In the United States District Court for the District of Nevada

No. 12,177

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

vs.

ELMER F. REMMER.

INDICTMENT

The grand jury charges:

That on or about the thirteenth day of April, 1945, in the District of Nevada, Elmer F. Remmer, late of Reno, Nevada, did wilfully and knowingly attempt to defeat and evade a large part of the income tax due and owing by him to the United States of America for the calendar year 1944, by filing and causing to be filed with the Collector of Internal Revenue for the Internal Revenue Collection District of Nevada, at Reno, Nevada, a false and fraudulent income tax return wherein he stated that his net income for said calendar year, computed on the community-property basis, was the sum of $9,500.00 and that the amount of tax due and owing thereon was the sum of $2,570.00, whereas as he then and there well knew, his net income for the said calendar year, computed on the community-property basis, was the sum of $33,734.61, upon which said net income he owed to the United States of America an income tax of $16,259.54.

In violation of Section 145(b), Internal Revenue Code; 26 U. S. C. Section 145(b).

The grand jury further charges:

That on or about the fifteenth day of March, 1948, in the District of Nevada, Elmer F. Remmer, late of Reno, Nevada, did wilfully and knowingly attempt to defeat and evade a large part of the income tax due and owing by him to the United States of America for the calendar year 1946, by filing and causing to be filed with the Collector of Internal Revenue for the Internal Revenue Collection District of Nevada, at Reno, Nevada, a false and fraudulent income tax return wherein he stated that his net income for said calendar year, computed on the community-property basis, was the sum of $11,244.79 and that the amount of tax due and owing thereon was the sum of $2,776.87, whereas, as he then and there well knew, his net income for the said calendar year, computed on the community-property basis, was the sum of $94,235.84, upon which said net income he owed to the United States of America an income tax of $61,341.68.

In violation of Section 145(b), Internal Revenue Code; 26 U. S. C., Section 145(b).

Sixth Count

The grand jury further charges:

That on or about the fifteenth day of March, 1948, in the District of Nevada, Elmer F. Remmer, late of Reno, Nevada, who during the calendar year 1946 was married to Helen L. Remmer, did wilfully and knowingly attempt to defeat and evade a large part of the income tax due and owing by the said Helen L. Remmer to the United States of America for the calendar year 1946, by filing and causing to be filed with the Collector of Internal Revenue for the Internal Revenue Collection District of Nevada, at Reno, Nevada, a false and fraudulent income tax return for and on behalf of the said Helen L. Remmer, in which it was stated that her net income for said calendar year, computed on the community-property basis, was the sum of $11,244.79 and that the amount of tax due and owing thereon was the sum of $2,776.87, whereas, as he then and there well knew her net income for the said calendar year, computed on the community-

MOTION FOR A BILL OF PARTICULARS

The defendant by his attorneys, John R. Golden and Leslie C. Gillen, moves the Court to require the attorney for the Government to file a Bill of Particulars, on the ground that the indictment contains mere conclusions of law and fails to contain a plain, concise and definite written statement of the essential facts, constituting the offenses charged, in that it does not inform the defendant of the nature, kind and amount of each item claimed by the Government as making up the total gross income for Elmer F. Remmer and Helen L. Remmer, and each of them, for each of the years 1944, 1945 and 1946, and in that it does not inform the defendant of the type and amount of each deduction against the claimed total gross income of Elmer F. Remmer and Helen L. Remmer, and each of them, for each of the years 1944, 1945 and 1946, which Bill of Particulars should particularly set forth the following with respect to each count in the indictment:

1. The nature or kind of each item claimed by the Government as making up the total gross income claimed to have been received by the defendent.

2. The source of each income item claimed by the Government to make up the total gross income claimed to have been received by the defendant.

3. The amount of each item claimed by the Government as making up the total gross income claimed to have been received by the defendant.

4. The type and amount of each deduction against the claimed total gross income of the defendant, allowed by the Government in computing the alleged net income of the defendant.

5. The type and amount of each deduction against the claimed total gross income of the defendant, disallowed by the Government in computing the alleged net income of the defendant.

6. Whether or not the amount of each item making up the total gross income claimed by the Government to have been received by the defendant, was made up from figures taken from the books of defendant, or from some other source or sources or a combination of such books and other sources.

7. If the amount of the total gross income claimed by the Government to have been received by the defendant is partly made up of items from sources other than the books of the defendant, the nature and amounts of each claimed by the Government to have been received by the defendant.

COPY OF CRIMINAL DOCKET ENTRY OF JUNE 15, 1951

June 15, 1951: Hearing on Motion for Bill of Particulars. Ordered Motion is denied.

[Title of District Court and Cause.]

ARRAIGNMENT

Be It Remembered, That the above-entitled matter came on regularly for hearing before the Court at Carson City, Nevada, on Friday, the 27th of April, 1951, the plaintiff being represented by Mr. Miles N. Pike, and the defendant being present in court with his counsel, John R. Golden and William K. Woodburn of the firm of Woodburn, Forman and Woodburn. The following proceedings were had:

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

Mr. Pike: This is the time set for arraignment of the defendant in the case of United States of America vs. Elmer F. Remmer, case No. 12,177. I would like to have the record show the presence in court of the defendant.

The Court: The record will show the presence of the defendant, with counsel. The clerk will proceed with the arraignment.

(Clerk hands copy of indictment to defendant and reads):

Q. (By the Clerk): Is that your true name?
A. That's right.

(Clerk continues reading.)

The Court: Is the defendant ready to plead at this time?

Mr. Golden: Before we plead, your Honor, may I point out to you that this is one of the new forms of indictment which gives the rule as to conclusion as to total amount of taxes allegedly fraudulently unpaid and therefore I prepared a motion for bill of particulars, which I would like to file and we are perfectly willing to plead, provided we may do so without prejudice to any further proceedings on this motion and any other motion directed to the same purpose.

Mr. Pike: Your Honor, I see no objection to that.

The Court: So then I take it, Mr. Golden, with that understanding, of course, that any plea entered at this time does not prejudice motions filed or that can be filed, you are ready to plead.

BLURRED COPY

Mr. Pike: Well, I understand the motion will actually be filed now, that it will be without prejudice to determination by the Court on the motion.

(Motion filed.)

Mr. Golden: With the understanding then that all rights under this motion and any further proceedings leaning toward further information as to the total contained in the indictment or further particulars are reserved and that plea may be without prejudice thereto, we are prepared to plead.

Mr. Pike: Well, your Honor, I don't know if it would go quite that far. I feel the motion would have to be filed at this time. I feel that the statement of counsel was a little broader than what is admissible by the rule.

Mr. Golden: What I mean, as I understand the practice, and of course it may be different in this district, we make our motion, then the government in answer thereto either comes in with a bill of particulars or a refusal to give a bill of particulars, and if we are not satisfied with what the government produces, then we address the Court, applying for further particulars.

The Court: I think that would be a reasonable understanding. If a bill of particulars was ordered by the Court or given by agreement or consent of counsel, and it didn't seem to include the matter that counsel had in mind, or which might be required by the rules or statute, I should think counsel would be entitled to move for clarification or additional bill of particulars.

Of course, I have no knowledge of just what the plea will be, but it has been my practice here that in the arraignment I consider it advisable to inform the defendant as to possible penalties under the count before he enters his plea, so the defendant is informed that for violation of the charge contained in Count 1, the defendant could be fined as much as ten thousand dollars or imprisoned as much as five years, or both said fine and imprisonment, on a plea of guilty or conviction after a trial and that penalty applies to each of the counts. I want the defendant to know that before he contemplates his plea. That, of course, is the maximum fixed by statute. That does not mean, of course, the Court would impose that sentence. The Court may impose anything less than, any fine or imprisonment less than that. I think it is my duty to inform the defendant of the penalty before a plea is contemplated. So now, Mr. Remmer, I understand you are ready to enter your plea.

A. Not guilty.

Q. You are not guilty as to the charge contained in Count 1, and what is your plea to the charge contained in Count 2 of the indictment?

A. Not guilty.

Q. Count 3? A. Not guilty.

Q. What is your plea to the charge contained in Count 4 of the indictment? A. Not guilty.

BLURRED COPY

Q. And to the charge contained in Count 5?

A. Not guilty.

Q. And to the charge contained in Count 6?

A. Not guilty.

The Court: So plea of not guilty will be entered in each of the counts of the indictment. We will try to find a time for trial. My thought is, and I want counsel to know it and every one else to know it, that whenever a case of this character comes up, a case, I mean, charging violation of the laws of the United States, I will give it preference to civil cases now on the docket. Have you any idea as to preference about the trial, Mr. Golden?

Mr. Golden: It is quite agreeable to us to go along with Mr. Pike.

The Court: So trial of this action will be set for Tuesday, November 7, 1951, in this court room at Carson City, Nevada, with a jury, at 10:00 o'clock, and you are satisfied to have the defendant remain on the present bail?

Mr. Pike: That is correct, your Honor.

The Court: So the defendant is ordered to be in court at Carson City, Nevada, on Tuesday, November 7, 1951.

MOTION FOR CONTINUANCE

The defendant, through his counsel, respectfully moves the Court to grant a continuance of his trial until April 1, 1952, for the following reasons:

The defendant has not been given reasonable opportunity to prepare for trial.

(a) In that the Government has in its possession various records of business ventures in which defendant was a partner during the period covered by the indictment, and refuses to permit defendant to examine such records, except upon the condition, among others, that defendant submit the written consent of third parties who are unknown to the defendant and whose names the Government refuses to disclose to the defendant;

(b) In that the defendant has been unable to adequately prepare for trial by reason of the Government's refusal to release from a tax lien filed by the Government any portion of the defendant's assets, notwithstanding that defendant has offered to post a surety bond with a qualified company fully protecting the Government with respect to any funds released; and the Government has refused to release any of the defendant's assets except upon the conditions impossible for defendant to meet, as will be more particularly set forth in the Affidavit to be presented in support hereof.

(c) In that to properly prepare defendant's case for trial requires a complete accounting analysis of all records relating to nine separate business ventures in which the defendant had an interest during the period covered by the indictment and the refusal on the part of the Government to release any portion of defendant's assets has greatly restricted his ability to employ and secure accounting assistance requisite for the proper preparation of his defense;

(d) In that the indictment contains no particulars enabling the defendant to determine upon what the indictment is based, despite defendant's Motion for a Bill of Particulars, which was denied.

That this Motion will be based upon an Affidavit of counsel to be presented on or before the date of the hearing hereof.

MOTION TO INSPECT AND TAKE COPIES

The defendant, through his counsel, respectfully moves the Court for its order that the United States Attorney permit the defendant to inspect and copy or photograph, at such times and places and in such manner and upon such terms and conditions as are just, the books, papers, documents and tangible objects hereinafter described, obtained from or belonging to the defendant or obtained from others by seizure or by process, upon the ground that said items may be material to the preparation of his defense and that the request therefor is reasonable, all as more fully appears in the affidavits to be used at the hearing of this motion.

Said books, papers, documents and tangible objects are as follows:

The books of account, journals, ledgers, cash books, expense books, vouchers and other records maintained by, or pertaining to the income and expense of, the following businesses for the years 1944, 1945 and 1946, from which businesses the United States contends the defendant received taxable income as an owner during said years: One Ten Eddy Street; B-R Smoke Shop; One Eighty-Six Club; Day-Nite Cigar Store; 21 Club; San Diego Social Club; 311 Club; Menlo Club, Menlo Bar and Tiny's Waffle Shop; Transit Smoke Shop and Transit Club; and any other businesses from

AFFIDAVIT OF JOHN R. GOLDEN IN SUPPORT OF MOTION FOR CONTINUANCE AND OF MOTION TO INSPECT AND TAKE COPIES

State of California,
City and County of San Francisco—ss.

John R. Golden, being duly sworn, deposes and says:

That he is an attorney at law duly admitted to practice before the United States Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit, the United States District Court for the Northern District of California and all the Courts of California, and in the above-entitled case before the United States District Court for the District of Nevada; that he has been

the personal attorney for the defendant herein for approximately three and one-half years and knows of his own knowledge the matters hereinafter averred; that he has been one of the attorneys representing the defendant in income tax matters since February, 1950; that prior thereto the Bureau of Internal Revenue placed liens against the defendant in a total sum in excess of Eight Hundred Thousand ($800,000.00) Dollars; that as a result of said liens the defendant ever since has been without funds or other assets with which to prepare and undertake his defense herein; that affiant has never received any fee or compensation for his representation of the defendant herein; that shortly after the defendant's income tax case came to affiant's attention, affiant attempted to obtain a release of a portion of the assets under lien in order to retain tax counsel and properly prepare and undertake representation of the defendant in his tax matters; in this connection affiant telephoned to the then Collector of Internal Revenue at Reno, Nevada, on June 20, 1950, and at said Collector's suggestion, wrote a letter to said Collector, with a copy to the United States Attorney at Reno, Nevada, on June 21, 1950, requesting permission to post a corporate surety bond to obtain a partial release of the assets under lien for the purposes aforesaid; that on the same day, June 21, 1950, said Collector wrote to affiant denying such permission; that affiant again wrote to said Collector on June 22, 1950, renewing said request, and on July 6, 1950, said Collector wrote to affiant to the effect that he would not consider a bond for partial release but would accept corporate surety bond in the then amount of said liens, that is, Eight Hundred Sixty-Seven Thousand, Three Hundred Seventy-Three and 52/100 ($867,373.52) Dollars; that the defendant could not possibly procure a bond in any such amount; that prior to June 20, 1950, affiant engaged the services of a certified public accountant practicing in San Francisco, California, to assist him in his representation of the defendant in income tax matters, in the expectation that a portion of the defendant's assets under lien would be released for the purposes aforesaid and that defendant would accordingly be able to compensate said accountant for his services; that after affiant's failure to obtain a release of a portion of the defendant's assets as aforesaid, said accountant notified affiant in November, 1950, that his services would not be available in connection with the defendant's income tax matter; that both affiant and his associate, Leslie C. Gillen, engage in general civil and criminal practice and neither of them is versed in income tax law and procedure; that after the office of the Regional Counsel, Penal Division, Bureau of Internal Revenue, had recommended indictment herein, affiant, through personal friendship, was able to associate Spurgeon Avakian, attorney at law of Oakland, California, who specializes in income tax law, as one of the defendant's counsel, and arrangements were made for a conference in defendant's case in Washington, D. C. with the Department of Justice; that said conference was cancelled by the Department of Justice just prior to the departure of Mr. Avakian to Washington, D. C. to attend said conference; that on March 2, 1951, affiant wrote to Assistant Attorney General Theron Lamar Caudle, in charge of the tax division of the Department of Justice, Washington, D. C., renewing his efforts to obtain a release of a portion of the defendant's assets under lien and requesting that no action be taken on the recommendation for indictment until there had been such release of assets and an opportunity to prepare a showing against such indictment; that Mr. Caudle in reply notified affiant that such matters were the responsibility of the Bureau of Internal Revenue rather than the Department of Justice; that accordingly affiant wrote to Charles Oliphant, Chief Counsel, Bureau of Internal Revenue, Washington, D. C. on March 9, 1951, again renewing said request; that Mr. Oliphant agreed to discuss this matter when counsel arrived in Washington, D. C. for the forthcoming conference with the Department of Justice; that said conference was cancelled by the Department of Justice on March 14, 1951, and the Chief Counsel for the Bureau of Internal Revenue referred affiant to Walter Campbell, Regional Counsel, Penal Division, in San Francisco, California, in connection with his attempts to obtain a release of a portion of the defendant's assets under lien; that during the next two weeks counsel for the defendant and said Mr. Campbell held several discussions concerning this matter, and in said discussions Mr. Campbell informed counsel that on instructions from the Bureau of Internal Revenue, Washington, D. C., he would have to insist that as a condition of the release of any assets that the defendant submit a statement of his present assets and liabilities; notwithstanding the renewed offer to post a corporate surety bond in any reasonable amount to protect the Government in releasing any such assets; that such condition was not feasible because without the funds with which to retain an accountant the defendant could not furnish same and, accordingly, this last request for a release of a portion of the defendant's assets was, in effect, denied; that on April 9, 1951, the indictment herein was filed; that affiant, being still without the services of an accountant, filed a motion for a bill of particulars herein on approximately April 27, 1951; that counsel for the United States refused to supply affiant with any of the particulars so demanded and said motion was placed on the calendar for hearing on June 15, 1951, on which date the above-entitled Court denied said motion; that thereafter said Mr. Avakian conferred with affiant and advised him that, particularly by reason of the complete lack of any particulars as a result of the denial of the motion for a bill of particulars, it would be essential to the proper preparation and presentation of the defense herein that the services of an accountant be engaged and that such accountant have sufficient time and opportunity to analyze the books and other records pertaining to all the defendant's activities; that in September, 1951, although still hampered by lack of funds for the defense herein, affiant, again through personal friendship, finally was able to engage the services of Lawrence Semenza, certified public accountant of Reno, Nevada, to assist in the preparation and presentation of the defense herein; that said Mr. Semenza commenced to work immediately in this case but has not completed his analyses nor had made available to him all of the books and other records that pertain to this case all as more fully appears in the affidavit of said Mr. Avakian filed herewith.

AFFIDAVIT OF SPURGEON AVAKIAN IN SUPPORT OF MOTION FOR CONTINUANCE AND OF MOTION TO INSPECT AND TAKE COPIES

State of California,
City and County of San Francisco—ss.

Spurgeon Avakian, being duly sworn, deposes and says:

BLURRED COPY

I am an attorney at law, practicing in Oakland, California, as a member of the firm of Phillips & Avakian, and specializing in tax law.

In March, 1951, Mr. John R. Golden associated me as counsel for Mr. Elmer Remmer in connection with an investigation then being conducted by the Bureau of Internal Revenue of the tax returns of Mr. Remmer. Subsequently, on April 9, 1951, Mr. Remmer was indicted by the United States Grand Jury in Carson City, Nevada, for allegedly attempting to defeat and evade the income taxes of himself and his wife for the years 1944, 1945 and 1946. Said case is presently set for trial in Carson City on November 28, 1951, and this affidavit is being made for presentation to the Court in support of a motion by defendant for a postponement of said trial to permit defendant's counsel to prepare for trial and of a motion for inspection of records in possession of the Government. The following facts are within my own personal knowledge, except as indicated otherwise.

1. The Government's Refusal to Permit Inspection of Books and Records of Defendant's Businesses. On October 22, 1951, I talked by telephone with Mr. Walter M. Campbell, Jr., who is Regional Counsel of the Penal Division of the Bureau of Internal Revenue, in San Francisco, California, and who, I am informed, has been designated to try the above-entitled case for the Government. I told him that I had just learned that the Government had in its possession various books and records of some of the business ventures in which Mr. Remmer had an interest, and that, in preparation for trial, I wanted to arrange for an examination of them. He stated that all such records were then in Reno undergoing examination by representatives of the Bureau, and that arrangements for our examination of them there could be made if we showed that Mr. Remmer had an interest in the businesses to which they pertained. I replied that, if the Government contended that Mr. Remmer had an interest in such businesses, that should be sufficient showing of his interest; but if Mr. Campbell would give me a list of the businesses as to which he had any doubt, I would endeavor to make such additional showing as might be necessary. Mr. Campbell said he would prefer to have me submit a list of the businesses in which Mr. Remmer claimed to have had an interest during the years in question. Since Mr. Campbell was then engaged in a trial which had been in progress for three weeks (and which was not concluded until November 7), he asked me to telephone this list to his secretary. I attempted to get in touch with Mr. Campbell's secretary later that day and also on October 23, but was unable to do so.

Accordingly, on October 23, 1951, I wrote to Mr. Campbell as follows:

"Dear Mr. Campbell:

"As stated in my telephone conversation with you yesterday, I have just learned that the Bureau has in its possession various records of some of the ventures in which Mr. Remmer had an interest. We would like to arrange for the examination of such records in the immediate future, in preparation for the trial in the above-entitled case. In view of your statement that the records are now in Reno, I assume that the best procedure would be for Mr. Semenza to see them there as soon as you have given the necessary authority to your men in Reno.

"So far as I know, Mr. Remmer had an interest in the businesses known as One-Ten Eddy, B-R Smoke Shop, 186 Club, Day-Nite Cigar Store, 21 Club, San Diego Social Club, 311 Club, Menlo Club, and Transit Smoke Shop. If this list is incomplete, and the government has possession of the records of other businesses in which he had an interest, we would, of course, be entitled to study those records also and would appreciate being advised accordingly.

"Thanking you for your co-operation, I am,

"Sincerely yours,

"SPURGEON AVAKIAN."

Because Mr. Campbell was then engaged in said trial continuously I was unable to confer with him personally on this matter until November 9, 1951, except for one telephone conversation on or about October 30, 1951, in which he stated that, because of his preoccupation with said trial, he had not yet had a chance to consider my letter of October 23. On November 7 I received from him a letter dated

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

November 6, which, insofar as pertinent to this point, reads as follows:

"Dear Mr. Avakian:

"Reference is made to your letter dated October 23, 1951, concerning records of some of Elmer Remmer's ventures, which records you believe are now in the possession of the Bureau of Internal Revenue. You wish to arrange to examine such records in preparation for the trial of the case.

"* * *

"* * * As Mr. Remmer's representative, you are, of course, entitled to see any records of his which we may have, provided proper showing is made as to his interest; and inasmuch as such records were obtained from third parties, the written consent of such parties to inspection by Remmer or his representatives should be furnished this office.

(Emphasis added.)

"Very truly yours,

"WALTER M. CAMPBELL, JR.,
"Regional Counsel."

On November 8, I discussed this letter with one of Mr. Campbell's assistants, who suggested that I talk directly to Mr. Campbell. I was unable to contact Mr. Campbell until November 9, at which time I told him that I saw no basis for requiring the consent of third parties as a condition to our examination of the records of Mr. Remmer's businesses, but, if he would give us the names of such third parties, we would attempt to obtain their consent rather than delay further our preparation for trial. He replied that he did not feel free to give us such names.

Thereafter, on November 9, 1951, I wrote again to Mr. Campbell, renewing my request for permission to examine said records, objecting to the condition of furnishing the written consent of third parties, but offering to seek the consent of such parties if he would give me their names and addresses and describe the records as to which the consent of each of them was required.

During the period 1944-6, inclusive, Mr. Remmer reported on his Federal income tax returns income from the businesses known by the following trade names, as an owner of a partial interest therein: One Ten Eddy Street; B-R Smoke Shop; One Eighty-Six Club; Day-Nite Cigar Store; 21 Club; San Diego Social Club; 311 Club; Menlo Club, Menlo Bar and Tiny's Waffle Shop; Transit Smoke Shop and Transit Club.

Furthermore, in 1949, after the filing of tax liens against Mr. Remmer as more particularly described in the affidavit of John R. Golden, which is filed herewith, the Bureau of Internal Revenue issued its notice of assessment (commonly known as a 90-day letter), in which it alleged that Mr. Remmer received income from the businesses whose trade names are listed above, during the years 1944-6, inclusive. The interest of Mr. Remmer in the business ventures to which the books and records in question relate is shown, therefore, not only in his tax returns but also in the adjustments proposed by the Bureau of Internal Revenue.

My experience as a tax attorney includes three years of service with the Tax Division of the Department of Justice, in Washington, D. C., and five years of private practice. Based on that experience, it is my opinion and belief that proper preparation of this case for trial requires an accounting analysis of all books and records of the business ventures in which Mr. Remmer had an ownership interest. Because of the Government's refusal to identify the third parties from whom these records were obtained, and because I have been unable to gain this knowledge in any other way, I do not know precisely what records the Government now has in its possession, but I believe that they include the books of account, ledgers, cash books and expense books of some or all of the businesses named above. All such records, together with any others pertaining to said businesses, are material to the preparation of Mr. Remmer's defense, since they constitute evidence tending to show the amount of net income of said businesses.

Based on my experience as a tax attorney, it would, in my opinion, probably require a minimum of one month, and more probably two or three months, to analyze the records of these nine businesses, once such records have been made available to defendant's representatives.

2. The Effect of The Denial of a Bill of Particulars. As shown in the accompanying affidavit of Mr. John R. Golden, the defendant's motion for a Bill of Particulars was denied by the Court. The indictment simply alleges a total amount as the net income for each year, without any particulars. No further information has been obtained from the Government, contrary to its usual practice of advising a taxpayer of the items of income alleged to be unreported and of giving him a chance to submit evidence relative thereto, prior to an indictment. The 90-day letters issued by the Bureau of Internal Revenue in 1949 to Mr. Remmer and his wife provide no assistance to defendant in preparing for trial because they are based on amounts of alleged net income substantially different from those alleged in the indictment. The following tabulation shows the amounts of the combined net income of Mr. and Mrs. Remmer, as shown on their returns, as set forth in the 90-day letters issued in connection with the tax liens filed in 1949, and as alleged in the indictment:

Year	Per Returns	Per 90-Day Letters	Per Indictment
1944	$ 19,000.00	$136,718.94	$ 67,469.21
1945	59,318.36	265,661.78	75,865.19
1946	22,494.58	185,150.63	188,471.68
Total....	$100,812.94	$587,531.35	$331,806.08

The fact that so many different businesses are involved in this case, makes it necessary to do a tremendous amount of accounting work to prepare for trial. The denial of any particulars simply magnifies this task, because proper preparation requires an analysis of each and every business, even though the Government may secretly intend to challenge the correctness of the tax returns only as to some of them in the trial of the case.

3. Other Factors Bearing on the Inability to Prepare a Defense by November 28, 1951. As set forth above, the analysis of defendant's records which are in possession of the Government will not be possible by November 28, even if the Government makes such records available on November 15. In my conversation with Mr. Campbell on October 22, 1951, the only condition he mentioned for examination of these records was the making of a satisfactory showing as to Mr. Remmer's interest. The further condition, that we furnish the written consent of undesignated third parties, was not mentioned prior to Mr. Campbell's letter of November 6. The raising of this second condition after a delay of more than two weeks from the making of our request, has delayed by that much time the preparation of the defense.

From the time when I was first associated in this case, I have advised Mr. Golden and the defendant that, particularly in view of the numerous business ventures involved, a tremendous amount of accounting work would be required, and that the case was too complex to analyze without such accounting. The efforts to obtain proper accounting assistance, and the effect on these efforts of the Government's refusal to release any of Mr. Remmer's assets from the tax liens mentioned above, are related in the accompanying affidavit of John R. Golden. As soon as the services of an accountant were obtained, in September, 1951, said accountant commenced work on this case, under my general direction, and from then until October 19, 1951, he was diligently engaged in such preparation. I first learned, during conferences with said accountant in Reno on October 18 and 19, 1951, that the books and records of the businesses named above were in the possession of the Government. Promptly after my return to my office in Oakland, on October 22, 1951, I requested permission from Mr. Campbell to examine said records, with the results set forth above.

Within the limitations resulting from the Government's refusal to release any of Mr. Remmer's assets from the tax liens, defendant and his counsel have sought with diligence to prepare for trial but have been unable to do so for the reasons set forth above and in the accompanying affidavit of John R. Golden.

AFFIDAVIT OF WALTER M. CAMPBELL, JR., IN OPPOSITION TO MOTION FOR CONTINUANCE AND TO MOTION TO INSPECT AND TAKE COPIES

District of Nevada—ss.

Walter M. Campbell, Jr., being duly sworn, deposes, and says:

That he is an attorney at law, presently serving as Regional Counsel, Penal Division, Bureau of Internal Revenue; that he is appearing in the above-entitled case by virtue of an appointment by the Attorney General of the United States as Special Assistant to the United States Attorney for the District of Nevada, which appointment has heretofore been filed with the Clerk of this Court, together with the requisite oath of office; that as a part of his duties as Regional Counsel he reviews reports of investigations made by various agencies of the Bureau of Internal Revenue regarding violations of the Internal Revenue laws for the purpose of determining whether or not the evidence justifies a recommendation by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue to the Attorney General that prosecution be had and, in the event the Attorney General forwards a particular case to the United States Attorney, he then provides such assistance as the United States Attorney may desire in the presentation of evidence to a Grand Jury and to the court if the need therefore arises; that the

United States Judicial District of Nevada is within the jurisdiction of affiant in the performance of his official duties; that it is the practice of the affiant during the consideration of a case to afford the taxpayer and his representatives conferences at which they may offer evidence or such explanations as they may desire for the purpose of convincing affiant or his representatives that prosecution should not be recommended; that the report and recommendation of the Intelligence Unit of the Bureau of Internal Revenue in the above-entitled case was received by affiant on or about January 11, 1950; that the indictment herein was returned on April 9, 1951, and the defendant was arraigned on April 10, 1951, and thereafter entered his plea of not guilty on April 27, 1951, at which time a date was set for trial on November 7, 1951, which has since been continued to November 28, 1951; that on June 15, 1951, a motion on behalf of the defendant for a bill of particulars was denied by this court;

That during the course of the pendency of this proceeding and from and after January 11, 1950, and continuing up to the present time, conferences and communications have been had with various attorneys and accountants representing the defendant Elmer F. Remmer; that under the rules of procedure of the Treasury Department it is required that before conferences can be held with the representatives of a taxpayer the taxpayer must file with the Treasury Department a power of attorney authorizing his representative to appear in his behalf; that the following powers of attorney, the originals of which are in affiant's possession, have been filed by or on behalf of the taxpayer:

(1) Power of attorney executed April 29, 1949, by Elmer F. Remmer to Daniel J. Hanlon, Attorney at Law, Washington, D. C., and Paul Dillon, Attorney at Law, St. Louis, Missouri;

(2) Power of attorney executed June 2, 1949, by Elmer F. Remmer to John P. Thatcher, Attorney at Law, Reno, Nevada, and Lawrence J. Semenza, Certified Public Accountant, Reno, Nevada;

(3) Power of attorney executed March 10, 1950, by Elmer F. Remmer to John P. Thatcher, Attorney at Law, Reno, Nevada, William K. Woodburn, Attorney at Law, Reno, Nevada, Lawrence Semenza, Certified Public Accountant, Reno, Nevada, John R. Golden, Attorney at Law, San Francisco, California, Leslie C. Gillen, Attorney at Law, San Francisco, California, Nathan Jay Friedman, Certified Public Accountant, San Francisco, California, Paul Dillon, Attorney at Law, St. Louis, Missouri, and Daniel J. Hanlon, Attorney at Law, Washington, D. C.;

(4) Power of Attorney executed November 17, 1950, by Elmer F. Remmer revoking previous powers of attorney as to John P. Thatcher, Attorney at Law, Daniel J. Hanlon, Attorney at Law, and Nathan Jay Friedman, Certified Public Accountant, and appointing or reaffirming the appointment of the following: Andrew E. Hurley, Attorney at Law, New York, New York, William J. Forman, Attorney at Law, Reno, Nevada, William K. Woodburn, Attorney at Law, Reno, Nevada, Lawrence Semenza, Certified Public Accountant, Reno, Nevada, John R. Golden, Attorney at Law, San Francisco, California, Leslie C. Gillen, Attorney at Law, San Francisco, California, and Paul Dillon, Attorney at Law, St. Louis, Missouri.

In addition to the above-named attorneys and certified public accountants there have also been associated in the case in behalf of the defendant Spurgeon Avakian, Attorney at Law, Oakland, California, since not later than April of 1950, and George Lohse, Attorney at Law, Reno, Nevada, within the past few days;

That, by reason of the foregoing, affiant believes and therefore states that the defendant Elmer F. Remmer has at all times, and particularly since April 29, 1949, been represented by competent legal counsel and by competent accountants; that Lawrence J. Semenza, a certified public accountant, has continually, since at least June 2, 1949, represented the defendant in this matter;

That a conference was held in affiant's office on May 25, 1950, at which were present on behalf of the defendant John R. Golden, Attorney at Law, and Nathan Jay Friedman, Certified Public Accountant; that it was represented to the affiant at that time that Mr. Friedman was at that time actively engaged in making an audit of the defendant's affairs; that affiant informed the taxpayer's representatives that if they prepared a net worth statement on behalf of the taxpayer that the Government representatives would be willing to meet further with the taxpayer's representatives and make a comparison of such net worth statement with that which had been prepared on behalf of the Government; that no such net worth statement has ever been presented on behalf of the defendant;

That on October 30, 1950, a conference was held in affiant's office at which were present in behalf of the taxpayer John R. Golden, Attorney at Law, Andrew E. Hurley, Attorney at Law, and Nathan Jay Friedman, Certified Public Accountant; that during the course of this conference it was revealed on behalf of the taxpayer that an audit was being conducted and on that occasion certain records were made available to and turned over to the accountant for the taxpayer;

That at a time prior to the indictment in this case certain records which had come into the possession of the investigating agents from third parties were delivered to Lawrence Semenza, Certified Public Accountant, at his request and upon his receipt and promise to restore them when desired by the representatives of the Government, in order that the said Semenza might use them in connection with his employment by the defendant; that thereafter and in preparing to present this case to the Grand Jury at Carson City, Nevada, Mr. Semenza was called upon to return such records; that thereupon Mr. Semenza stated that he had turned such records over to Nathan Jay Friedman, Certified Public Accountant, who in turn had delivered them to John R. Golden, Attorney at Law, and that the said attorney would not release the records to him in order that he might restore them to the Government as he had agreed; that thereafter a subpoena duces tecum was issued to the said Lawrence Semenza to appear before the Grand Jury and produce such records; that the said Lawrence Semenza appeared before the said Grand Jury without said records and repeated under oath substantially the same statement theretofore made to the investigating agents; to wit, that the attorneys for the defendant had refused to restore possession of said records; that on or about October 24, 1951, affiant received the original of the letter set forth upon Pages 2 and 3 of the affidavit of Spurgeon Avakian filed herein; that on November 6, 1951, affiant wrote Mr. Avakian, as follows:

"Dear Mr. Avakian:

"Reference is made to your letter dated October 23, 1951, concerning records of some of Elmer Remmer's ventures, which records you believe are now in the possession of the Bureau of Internal Revenue. You wish to arrange to examine such records in preparation for the trial of the case.

"You are familiar with the circumstances under which Lawrence Semenza received some of the records in this case from Special Agent Ray A. Weaver, gave a receipt to him for them and agreed to return them to Mr. Weaver on notice. At that time Mr. Semenza had on file a power of attorney authorizing him to represent Remmer before the Bureau. At a later time return of the records was sought from Semenza, who was unable to carry out his undertaking because he had turned them over to another accountant representing Remmer. It is our belief that counsel for taxpayer (of whom it is realized you are only one) had it in their power to enable Semenza to fulfill his undertaking, but declined or refused to do so.

"In the light of the foregoing, we do not feel justified in permitting any of the records involved in this case to leave our possession. As Mr. Remmer's representative, you are, of course, entitled to see any records of his which we may have, provided proper showing is made as to his interest; and inasmuch as such records were obtained from third parties, the written consent of such parties to inspection by Remmer or his representatives should be furnished this office."

That by reason of the foregoing affiant believes and therefore states the fact to be that the defendant has had ample opportunity to prepare the defense of his case and that the motions for a continuance and for inspection of records should be denied.

That in the spring of 1950 I was taken by Mr. Ray Weaver, a Special Agent of the Intelligence Unit of the Bureau of Internal Revenue, to a room located at 100 McAllister Street, San Francisco, California, and there shown material which was stated to be records obtained by the Bureau relating to Elmer Remmer; that this material consisted of a mass of original documents such as adding machine tapes, bank statements, cancelled checks, dealers' daily reports and daily information relating to a number of businesses in which Elmer Remmer was alleged to have an interest; that this material filled a packing box of approximately fifty cubic feet in volume plus several other smaller cartons;

That the total time that I and others with whom I am associated spent reviewing these records was not more than twelve hours of which my time was not more than eight hours;

That he is an attorney at law duly admitted to practice before the United States Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit, the United States District Court for the Northern District of California and all the Courts of California, and in the above-entitled case before the United States District Court for the District of Nevada; that he has been one of the attorneys representing the defendant in income tax matters since approximately February or March, 1950, and knows of his own knowledge the matters hereinafter averred; that during the latter part of March, 1951, affiant's associate, John R. Golden, was on temporary active duty as a Reserve Officer with the United States Army, and during that time affiant was negotiating with Walter Campbell, Regional Counsel, Penal Division, Bureau of Internal Revenue, San Francisco, California, in an attempt to obtain the release of a portion of the defendant's assets under income tax lien upon the posting of a satisfactory corporate surety bond to protect the Government, and in the course of those negotiations affiant offered to submit for Mr. Campbell's consideration the defendant's affidavit reciting his inability to finance his defense, and confirmed such offer by letter to Mr. Campbell dated March 28, 1951, reading as follows:

"This refers to our conference this afternoon regarding a release of funds to Mr. Remmer for preparation of his defense to contemplated charges of tax evasion.

"We understand that the Chief Counsel of the Bureau has suggested that, as a condition of releasing any funds from the government's lien, Remmer should submit a statement of assets and liabilities, and of the amounts needed. As we have pointed out to you, however, a financial statement cannot be prepared without extensive accounting work, and we cannot hire an accountant until after funds have been released.

"With regard to your inquiry as to whether Remmer can submit an itemized list of his assets and liabilities, without a valuation of the items which would require accounting analysis, we feel that there are certain basic objections as discussed below, and that a preferable procedure would be to release funds on a surety bond which would fully protect the government. The bond could be conditioned on the payment of the tax liability as ultimately determined and would obligate the surety company to pay the amount of the bond if the tax liability were not paid by Remmer. We believe that such a bond can be obtained from a reputable surety company, on the strength of collateral which would be provided by Remmer's brother.

"With such a bond, the government would, for all practical purposes, be protected as fully as it is now, and a release of funds on that basis would neither prejudice the government nor subject the Bureau to criticism.

"Our fear of having our client submit a list of assets and liabilities lies in the ever-present possibility that some assets might be omitted through faulty memory, especially in the absence of accounting analysis of his financial transactions during the past few years. Mr. Remmer's activities have been varied, and have frequently involved loans and investments with personal friends and close business associates, without the record-keeping formalities which are observed in dealings between strangers. Under these circumstances, there would be a real possibility of unintended errors in any statement based solely on his memory.

"If this were an ordinary case, we could assume the risk of satisfying the government, in the event of such errors, that the taxpayer had simply made a mistake. This, however, is a case in which a certain newspaper has created a public atmosphere most unfriendly to the taxpayer. The denial to us of a conference on this matter in the Department of Justice in Washington is, we believe, one of the results of that newspaper campaign against our client. It is quite possible, therefore, that any mistakes made by our client in a list of assets, no matter how honest and unintentional, will subsequently be made the basis of a criminal accusation. The pressure on the government to do this might be particularly strong if Remmer should be indicted and thereafter should be acquitted of tax evasion charges.

"We want to make it clear that our objection to the submission of an itemized financial statement is based on (1) the danger of inadvertent errors, in the absence of accounting investigation, and (2) the fact that the government can be fully protected by a surety bond without the submission of an itemized financial statement. The making of such errors is a matter of common human failing against which we, as counsel, have a duty to exercise caution, and it is solely in that spirit that we respectfully request that the funds be released on a surety bond basis.

"Our client would, of course, submit an affidavit reciting his inability to finance his defense and affirming that he has no interest in the collateral posted with the surety company.

"We understand that the cash covered by the tax lien is the sum of approximately $35,000 which is held in an escrow in Reno. It is our opinion that the accounting and legal fees and expenses in this case, if a full investigation is made, will exceed that amount, particularly if a lengthy trial should develop. Accordingly, we request that the full amount of that escrow be released.

"We trust that, in fairness to the taxpayer, the Bureau will permit a release of his funds without imposing conditions which are unnecessary to protect the government."

That Mr. Campbell rejected said offer and advised affiant that release of funds would not be recommended unless the defendant submitted a "satisfactory" detailed statement of his assets and liabilities, together with a statement of "what funds are necessary for his defense by way of attorneys' fees, accounting fees, etc."; that for the reasons outlined in the letter quoted above and because of the liens theretofore placed upon the defendant's assets, as appears from the affidavit of John R. Golden on file herein, and the consequent inability to analyze the charges which the Government might be contemplating against the defendant and to make a true estimate of the situation, the defendant was unable to comply with the conditions demanded by Mr. Campbell; that on November 9, 1951, Spurgeon Avakian, one of the defendant's counsel herein, wrote a six page letter to Mr. Campbell in reply to the letter dated November 6, 1951, written by Mr. Campbell to Mr. Avakian and quoted in Mr. Campbell's affidavit in opposition to Motion for Continuance and to Motion to Inspect and Take Copies, filed herein on November 15, 1951; that affiant read to the Court Mr. Avakian's said letter to Mr. Campbell at the hearing of the Motions for Continuance and to Inspect and Take Copies made before the Court on November 15, 1951, at Las Vegas, Nevada, and incorporates said letter herein as though again set out in full; that to the best of affiant's belief Mr. Campbell has not replied to Mr. Avakian's said letter.

MOTION TO QUASH SUBPOENAE DUCES TECUM

The plaintiff, through its undersigned counsel, respectfully moves the Court for an order

(1) To quash the subpoenae duces tecum to produce "all books, papers, documents and objects * * *" heretofore caused to be served by counsel for the above-named defendant upon (a) Walter M. Campbell, Jr., Special Assistant to the United States Attorney for the District of Nevada, and (b) upon Miles N. Campbell, Jr., in San Francisco, California, on or about November 20, 1951, and upon said Miles N. Pike on November 23, 1951. That said motion to quash is made and based upon the following grounds and reasons:

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(1) That compliance with said subpoenae duces tecum would be (a) unreasonable, and (b) oppressive.

(2) That the said records enumerated and designated in each of the two said subpoenae referred to records that have heretofore been made available for the inspection of the defendant or his duly authorized representatives on occasions long prior to the scheduled date of the above-entitled case upon the merits, which scheduled trial date is presently set for trial with a jury at Carson City, Nevada, at 10:00 a.m., Wednesday, November 28, 1951.

(3) That the said books, papers, documents and other records referred to in said subpoenae appear to be the same, or substantially the same, as the books, papers, documents and other records heretofore referred to by counsel for defendant in those certain Motions for Continuance and to Inspect and Take Copies and the evidence introduced and proceedings had with reference to said motions before the Federal Court sitting at Las Vegas, Nevada, on November 15, 1951, at the conclusion of which said hearing on said motions the said Court entered its order denying said motions and each of them.

That this motion is made pursuant to the authority contained in Rule 17c, Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure, and will be based upon the affidavit of Walter M. Campbell, Jr., heretofore filed in opposition to the above-referred-to Mo-

AFFIDAVIT SUPPLYING OMISSIONS IN THE RECORD

State of Nevada,
County of Washoe—ss.

John R. Golden and Spurgeon Avakian, each being duly sworn, each for himself and not one for the other, deposes and says:

That he is one of the attorneys of record for defendant herein and was personally present in Court on December 19, 1951, during all of the proceedings hereinafter described and knows, of his own knowledge, the facts hereinafter averred.

That on said date, in the absence of the jury, affiant, John R. Golden, requested the Court to set a date and time for the hearing of defendant's Motion to Correct Errors in the Record arising from Omissions, which Motion was filed herein on December 17, 1951, and noticed for hearing on December 18, 1951, at 1:00 o'clock p.m., or at such other time as the Court may order.

That the Court informed said affiant that said Motion would be heard at the next calling of the Court's regular Motion calendar.

That said affiant thereupon requested the Court to hear said Motion not later than the last Court day of the year 1951.

That the Court denied said request.

That upon reading the transcript of the proceedings of December 19, 1951, in the absence of the jury, it appears that the Court Reporter did not report the foregoing request by said affiant and the Court's foregoing statements, and the Court Reporter has so informed said affiant.

That each of said affiants has been informed that the next regular Motion calendar of the Court ordinarily would be held on January 7, 1952, but does not know whether said Motion will be heard then because the above-entitled case still is on trial, and will be on trial, on said day.

DEFENDANT'S REQUESTED INSTRUCTIONS REFUSED BY THE COURT

Defendant's Requested Instruction No. 19

It is a maxim of our law that where an act may be attributed to a criminal or to a non-criminal cause, it is the duty of the jury to attribute the act to the non-criminal cause rather than the criminal one. A crime is never presumed where the conditions may be explained upon an innocent hypothesis.

The jury is instructed that it is their duty to reconcile all circumstances shown in evidence with the innocence of the defendant, and to account for all facts, if possible, upon the hypothesis that the defendant is not guilty.

Refused: February 21, 1952.

/s/ ROGER T. FOLEY,
United States District Judge.

Defendant's Requested Instruction No. 10

You are instructed that you are not permitted to guess as to the guilt or innocence of the defendant. If the evidence is such that you are required to guess or indulge in surmise or conjecture as to the guilt or innocence of the defendant, then you must return a verdict finding the defendant not guilty. In such instance, the presumption of the defendant's innocence applies and your verdict must be in accord with the presumption of innocence.

BLURRED COPY

Refused: February 21, 1952.

/s/ ROGER T. FOLEY,
United States District Judge.

Defendant's Requested Instruction No. 16

I instruct you that it is a rule of law that a party is bound by the testimony of his own witness. This means that a party eliciting a fact from a witness called by him endorses and vouches for the credibility of and is concluded by the statements of such witness. This is true unless the party calling the witness has succeeded in impeaching him by certain well defined methods. These methods do not include a showing or allegation of bias or hostility.

Therefore, even if you may feel that a witness called by one of the parties is or might be biased or hostile to that party, nevertheless in determining the credibility of that witness you must follow the rule that the party calling him vouches for him and is bound by his testimony.

Refused: February 21, 1952.

/s/ ROGER T. FOLEY,
United States District Judge.

Defendant's Requested Instruction No. 17

You are instructed that the defendant in this case is presumed to have good character for the traits involved in the accusation, and it is your duty to consider this presumption, together with all the other facts in the case, in arriving at your verdict.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

Refused: February 21, 1952.

/s/ ROGER T. FOLEY,
United States District Judge.

Defendant's Requested Instruction No. 21

You must bear in mind that the character of evidence which would warrant a verdict in a civil case is different from that which is required by law to justify a conviction in a criminal case. A mere preponderance of evidence would be sufficient to justify a verdict against the defendant in a civil case, but it is wholly insufficient in a criminal case. In a criminal case, such as this, in addition to a preponderance of evidence the law requires that the evidence shall be of such character and be so clear and convincing that the jury, and each of the jurors composing the jury, shall be satisfied to a moral certainty and beyond all reasonable doubt that the defendant has committed the particular crime charged, before the jury can find the defendant guilty.

Refused: February 21, 1952.

/s/ ROGER T. FOLEY,
United States District Judge.

BLURRED COPY

Defendant's Requested Instruction No. 26

I instruct you that you are not entitled to consider or weigh, as against the defendant, the fact of his arrest upon the charge preferred here. Under no circumstances known to the law could you be justified in finding this defendant guilty, because of the fact of his arrest upon this charge; nor would you be justified in concluding that this defendant must be guilty or otherwise he would not have been arrested upon the charge preferred. I instruct you that in passing upon the merits of this case, you must remember that the guilt or innocence of a person accused of crime is not to be determined by the mere fact of his arrest, nor must you be influenced thereby.

Refused: February 21, 1952.

/s/ ROGER T. FOLEY,
United States District Judge.

Defendant's Requested Instruction No. 28

It sometimes happens that a case on trial attracts more than passing attention and notice, in the newspapers and among the public generally. However conscientious and careful a juror might be in observing the Court's admonitions and in keeping his or her mind insulated against any outside comment or observation, it might be that inadvertently and without any intention of influencing a juror, and without fault on anybody's part, some casual remark or chance observation, or comment might reach a juror's ear, particularly if a case is talked about or commented upon generally in public places where a juror has to go, or is a matter or topic of general conversation.

It also happens sometimes that as testimony is given there are reactions or responses to it among those in attendance in the courtroom, whether the spectators have any direct interest in the outcome of the case or not. You are therefore instructed and admonished that if any incidents of this nature have occurred, or do occur, or if you are conscious of any such things, none of them should be permitted to influence or affect any of you to the slightest extent, bearing in mind always that it was to try this case on its merits that you were empanelled and sworn, and that the only evidence you may legally or properly consider or entertain under your oaths as jurors is such evidence produced by either side, in open Court, while the Court is in session, with both sides present and having the opportunity to cross-examine and otherwise to subject the evidence to the tests sanctioned by law.

Refused: February 21, 1952.

/s/ ROGER T. FOLEY,
United States District Judge.

Defendant's Requested Instruction No. 39

You are instructed that the evidence adduced by the prosecution is to be estimated not only by its intrinsic weight, but also according to the evidence which is in the power of the prosecution to produce. This rule in criminal cases applies solely to the prosecution and not to the defendant.

BLURRED COPY

Refused: February 21, 1952.

/s/ ROGER T. FOLEY,
United States District Judge.

Defendant's Requested Instruction No. 40

You cannot convict the defendant upon your own or any suspicion, no matter how strong. In all criminal cases, the proof inculpating the accused should be of a degree of certainty transcending mere probability, mere surmises, speculations and conjectures, and exceeding strong suspicion.

The evidence in a criminal case may (let it be assumed), create a strong suspicion, or it may create a strong probability that the complicity of the defendant in the alleged crime is established as charged; but, nevertheless, I instruct you that our law, in its wise and humane demand for the protection of the life and liberty of a human being, requires more than strong suspicion or strong probability; it demands that the evidence should lead to a moral certainty of the conclusion of guilt, beyond every other reasonable hypothesis, and to the exclusion of all reasonable doubt. Less than this will not suffice; for if a defendant could be convicted on mere suspicion no citizen would be safe against public disgrace and imprisonment.

You are therefore charged by me that you would not be justified in finding this defendant guilty upon the ground that it is more probable that he is guilty, if there be any such ground, than that he is innocent.

Refused: February 21, 1952.

/s/ ROGER T. FOLEY,
United States District Judge.

Defendant's Requested Instruction No. 41

You are instructed that suspicious circumstances are not, in themselves, sufficient to convict the defendant, but the prosecution must prove to a moral certainty and beyond a reasonable doubt the guilt of the defendant. If, after considering all the evidence in the case, you find that there are no more than suspicions, even though strong suspicions, as to the guilt of the defendant or that the evidence only creates suspicious circumstances pointing to the defendant, you must return a verdict finding the defendant not guilty.

Refused: February 21, 1952.

/s/ ROGER T. FOLEY,
United States District Judge.

Defendant's Requested Instruction No. 42

You are instructed that laws are made and juries called upon to investigate cases just as much for the protection of the innocent as for the punishment of the guilty. If, therefore, after a careful consideration of all the evidence, you are not satisfied beyond a reasonable doubt that the defendant is guilty, you must say so by a verdict of "not guilty." By so doing, the object of the law will be attained as fully as if you were to find a verdict of guilty.

Refused: February 21, 1952.

/s/ ROGER T. FOLEY,
United States District Judge.

Defendant's Requested Instruction No. 43

The Court instructs the jury that matters of fact, if any, which are left uncertain by the evidence, cannot be made certain to the prejudice of the defendant by inference. In the absence of evidence, no inference can be drawn by the jury against the defendant; but, on the contrary all the inferences and presumptions consistent with the facts proved are to be drawn and indulged in favor of the innocence of the defendant. No fact or circumstances upon which you may base a conclusion of guilt is sufficient, unless such fact or circumstance has been proved beyond a reasonable doubt and to the same extent as if the whole conclusion depended upon that one fact or circumstance.

Refused: February 21, 1952.

/s/ ROGER T. FOLEY,
United States District Judge.

Defendant's Requested Instruction No. 47

You are instructed that if the testimony in this case in its weight and effect be such that two conclusions can be reasonably drawn from it, the one favoring defendant's innocence because of lack of proof and the other tending to establish his guilt, the law demands that the jury shall adopt the conclusions favoring the defendant's innocence, because of said lack of proof, and therefore find the defendant "not guilty."

In other words, if the evidence in this case, in its weight and effect, be such that two conclusions can be reasonably drawn from it, the one tending to establish his guilt, and the other creating a reasonable doubt as to his guilt, law, justice and humanity alike demand that the jury shall adopt the conclusion of innocence and find the defendant "not guilty."

Refused: February 21, 1952.

/s/ ROGER T. FOLEY,
United States District Judge.

Defendant's Requested Instruction No. 48

If one set or chain of circumstances leads to two opposing conclusions, one or the other of such conclusions must be wrong, and therefore if in such a case you have any reasonable doubt as to which of said conclusions the chain of circumstances leads, a reasonable doubt would be thereby created, and you should give the defendant the benefit of the doubt, and acquit him.

Refused: February 21, 1952.

/s/ ROGER T. FOLEY,
United States District Judge.

BLURRED COPY

Defendant's Requested Instruction No. 49

I instruct you that no defendant can be convicted unless the prosecution proves each and every fact necessary to constitute the crime to a moral certainty and beyond all reasonable doubt. A defendant cannot be convicted upon mere suspicion or upon probability of guilt, however strong. Neither can he be convicted upon a bare preponderance or upon a greater weight of the evidence, but only upon evidence that proves his guilt to a moral certainty and beyond all reasonable doubt. If there is any reasonable doubt of his guilt whatever, it will be your duty to find the defendant Not Guilty.

Refused: February 21, 1952.

/s/ ROGER T. FOLEY,
United States District Judge.

Defendant's Requested Instruction No. 50

A defendant in a criminal case is never required or expected to prove his innocence, but the law places the burden on the prosecution to prove the defendant guilty of the crime with which he is charged, and to prove every fact essential to constitute that crime beyond all reasonable doubt and to a moral certainty; and if the jury cannot say, after a careful consideration of all of the evidence in this case, that the guilt of the defendant is thereby established in their minds beyond all reasonable doubt, and to a moral certainty, it is their sworn duty to acquit the defendant by returning a verdict of "Not Guilty."

Refused: February 21, 1952.

/s/ ROGER T. FOLEY,
United States District Judge.

Defendant's Requested Instruction No. 54

The Court instructs the jury that no facts or circumstance can be used by you as a basis for any inference of guilt against a defendant, unless such fact or circumstance is proved beyond every reasonable doubt, and every fact or circumstance in the case which is not proved beyond every reasonable doubt, should be wholly dismissed from your consideration, and must not be permitted by you to influence you to any extent against the defendant.

Refused: February 21, 1952.

/s/ ROGER T. FOLEY,
United States District Judge.

Defendant's Requested Instruction No. 56

You are instructed that under the law there are only two possible verdicts in a criminal case, namely, guilty and not guilty.

The verdict of guilty may be reached by you only if you and each of you are convinced that the defendant has been proved guilty to a moral certainty and beyond all reasonable doubt; if you are not absolutely so convinced your verdict must be not guilty.

BLURRED COPY

In other words, you need not be satisfied of the defendant's innocence to reach a verdict of not guilty, but rather your verdict must be not guilty except in the one instance I have described.

The prosecution legitimately may ask for a verdict of guilty only if it has convinced you of the defendant's guilt to a moral certainty and beyond all reasonable doubt, but the defense is entitled to a verdict of not guilty under all circumstances save that of proof of guilt to a moral certainty and beyond all reasonable doubt.

Refused: February 21, 1952.

/s/ ROGER T. FOLEY,
United States District Judge.

Defendant's Requested Instruction No. 57

The reasonable doubt to which I refer, such as would entitle the defendant to an acquittal, need not necessarily arise out of or from the evidence itself, but may result or arise from a want or lack of evidence, sufficient to satisfy the mind.

Refused: February 21, 1952.

/s/ ROGER T. FOLEY,
United States District Judge.

Defendant's Requested Instruction No. 60

In a criminal trial you, the jury, cannot convict the defendant merely because you believe the evidence is such that a man of prudence would act upon it in his own affairs of grave importance. Men frequently act in their grave and important concerns without a firm conviction that the conclusions upon which they proceed to act are correct, but having deliberately weighed all the facts and circumstances, known to them, they form a conclusion or opinion upon which they proceed to act, although they may not be fully convinced of its correctness. But such a degree of certainty is wholly insufficient to authorize a verdict of guilty in a criminal case. In criminal cases the jury should be fully convinced of the correctness of their conclusion, that the accused is guilty, and that conviction should be so clear and so strong as to exclude from their minds all reasonable doubt.

Refused: February 21, 1952.

/s/ ROGER T. FOLEY,
United States District Judge.

Defendant's Requested Instruction No. 69

One of the elements of the crime charged in this indictment is the making of a wilful attempt to evade the taxes. A wilful attempt must be shown by evidence of affirmative action on the part of the defendant, done with the motive of defrauding the government of income taxes. Acts of omission, such as the failure to make careful inquiries or to search for additional information which might show the correct tax, do not constitute a wilful attempt within the meaning of the statute of which the indictment is based. Before you may find the defendant guilty, the evidence must satisfy you beyond a reasonable doubt that the defendant affirmatively, and by acts of commission, did certain things with the bad purpose and the evil motive of deliberately showing an amount of tax on the returns of himself and his wife which he at the time knew to be less than the tax actually due.

Refused: February 21, 1952.

/s/ ROGER T. FOLEY,
United States District Judge.

Defendant's Requested Instruction No. 75

You are instructed that when considering Section 145b, I.R.C., the law speaks of "willfull" acts. This means acts of the type which by common knowledge are done to conceal. Where in filing an income tax return or avoiding payment of income taxes, full disclosure of the facts are made, fraud is negatived by such disclosure, even if the taxpayer makes an erroneous or untenable claim based on such facts; revealment is deemed to exonerate such person from a charge of fraud.

Defendant's Requested Instruction No. 78

You are instructed that if a defendant believed or understood the law to be different, or if he honestly sought and followed erroneous advice, or if he came to a belief that he was entitled to do that which he did do, such a defendant is entitled to be acquitted on any charge growing out of his acts based on such belief.

Refused: February 21, 1952.

Defendant's Requested Instruction No. 79

I charge you that there are certain types of crime which are complete when the person intentionally does the acts denounced by law. There is another class of crime which requires not only the deliberate act but a further element, to wit: The commission of the act with a specific intent. The first intent, that is, general intent, is merely to do the act; the second class is to do the act with a specific intent that this act may bring about a certain result.

The specific intent involved in this indictment is an intent to defraud the United States of taxes.

BLURRED COPY

This intent is a question of fact which must be proven by the prosecution beyond a reasonable doubt. After considering all the evidence, including the presumption of honest and lawful intent with which every defendant is clothed, should you entertain a reasonable doubt as to the intent of the defendant to defraud the United States of taxes you must acquit.

Refused: February 21, 1952.

/s/ ROGER T. FOLEY,
United States District Judge.

Defendant's Requested Instruction No. 80

Before the defendant in this case can be found guilty of the alleged charge set forth in the indictment, it must be established, by the evidence, to a moral certainty and beyond a reasonable doubt that the defendant had the specific intent to commit the acts therein alleged.

If, in your judgment as jurors, the prosecution fails to prove such specific intent to a moral certainty and beyond a reasonable doubt as to the defendant in this case, or, if after considering all the evidence you or any of you entertain a reasonable doubt as to whether the defendant in this case had such specific intent, then you must return a verdict finding the defendant not guilty.

Defendant's Requested Instruction No. 81

Before you may convict the defendant you must be satisfied to a moral certainty and beyond every reasonable doubt that there is a tax deficiency due and that defendant wilfully and unlawfully paid less tax than he knew to be legally due.

Unless there is some form of deceit or dishonesty proved to you to a moral certainty and beyond every reasonable doubt, you must find the defendant not guilty.

The mere failure, if you find such failure existed, to pay the tax legally due, or the filing of an incorrect or false tax return, if you find such was done, is not enough to convict the defendant, but in addition you must also find to a moral certainty and beyond every reasonable doubt that any such act or omission was done purposely in bad faith with an intent to evade tax.

In other words, the gist of the offense is an act done with a bad purpose without justifiable excuse, and an honest rather than a dishonest error, due perhaps to honest reliance on the misguided advice of others or the incompetence of bookkeepers and accountants or an honest but mistaken interpretation of the applicable law or regulations, would not support a finding of wilfullness as the word is used in criminal law.

Before you may consider any evidence of any assets belonging to the defendant in computing his net worth, you must first find to a moral certainty and beyond all reasonable doubt that such assets were acquired and paid for by the defendant in the applicable year and you must also find to a moral certainty and beyond all reasonable doubt the cost to the defendant of such assets.

In this case the government has attempted to prove that the defendant and his wife owe additional income tax for each of the years in question by reference to what is known as the "net worth and expenditures" method. This method involves, for each year, the calculation of the increase in net worth from the beginning to the end of the year, and the addition to that increase of amounts spent by the defendant and his wife in the way of expenditures which are not deductible for income tax purposes. In order for this method to be effective, the net worth of the defendant and his wife at the beginning and the end of the year must be clearly and accurately established by competent evidence. Before you can treat this total amount—that is, the increase in net worth and the non-deductible expenditures—as taxable income for that year, you must be satisfied beyond a reasonable doubt that all of that money represents taxable income received by the defendant and his wife during that particular year. It is not up to the defendant to prove that some of that money was accumulated in prior years or was received by him or his wife in some form other than income, such as loans or gifts or inheritance. Rather, the government must prove beyond a reasonable doubt that its computations are based on income of each of the years 1944, 1945 and 1946. To meet this burden, the government must accurately establish the net worth of defendant and his wife at the beginning and end of each year. It is not sufficient for the government to list simply the assets and liabilities it knows about; it must also satisfy you, by competent proof, that there were no other assets and liabilities in existence. The defendant is not required to show that the gov-

To meet this burden, the government must accurately establish the net worth of defendant and his wife at the beginning and end of each year. It is not sufficient for the government to list simply the assets and liabilities it knows about; it must also satisfy you, by competent proof, that there were no other assets and liabilities in existence. The defendant is not required to show that the government's net worth statements are incorrect or incomplete. If the government's proof leave any doubt based upon reason as to whether all the assets and liabilities of defendant are included in the government's computation of net worth, it follows that those computations cannot be relied upon, and you must find the defendant not guilty.

For example, if you are satisfied beyond a reasonable doubt that his net worth at the beginning of a particular year was $100,000.00, and that his net worth at the end of that particular year was $120,000.00; and if you are satisfied beyond a reasonable doubt that his non-deductible expenditures during that year were $10,000.00; and if you are satisfied beyond a reasonable doubt that none of the $20,000.00 increase in his net worth or of the $10,000.00 in non-deductible expenditures came to defendant as a loan, or as a repayment of a prior loan, or as a gift or inheritance, you would then be justified in concluding that his net income for that year was $30,000.00.

If, however, you cannot determine beyond a reasonable doubt the amount of his net worth at the beginning or end of the year, you cannot compute his net income by this method. As an illustration, if the defendant had an asset at the beginning of the year consisting of cash money in an undetermined amount, so that you could not compute his total net worth at the start of the year beyond a reasonable doubt, you could not determine how much his net worth actually increased during the year. On the other hand, if you should be satisfied beyond a reasonable doubt as to the amount of any such cash, you could compute the net income by this method.

There has been evidence in this case that, in a number of businesses, the defendant entered into agreements with other parties providing that such other parties were to have a "working interest" in the business, consisting of a specified percentage of the profits, but were to leave their shares in the business until the defendant had recovered his investment, at which time the other partners would become partners in the assets of the business as well as in the profits.

Under the law it is permissible for two or more people to enter into such a partnership arrangement. If such an agreement is made, each partner is taxable on his percentage interest in the profits, regardless of how much money he actually draws out of the business. If one partner has originally contributed more of the investment than the other partners, and he draws more than his share of the profits out of the business, the excess simply reduces his investment in the business and is not taxable income. He is taxable only on his percentage share of the profits each year.

Accordingly, unless you are satisfied beyond a reasonable doubt that the defendant and his associates did not intend to operate said businesses as profit-sharing partners, you must treat the income of said businesses as partnership income and compute the defendant's tax only on his percentage share of the profits for each year.

Defendant's Requested Instruction No. 114

The crucial factor in applying the increase in net worth concept to prove income, is satisfactory proof of the taxpayer's assets at the starting point. In criminal cases the courts insist upon inflexible proof that all of the taxpayer's assets have been accounted for at the start of the tax period in question.

In attempting to prove income for the years in question by the net increase in worth and expenditure method, it is incumbent upon the prosecution expressly to exclude the hypothesis that some of the large expenditures by the defendant, if you find evidence of any such expenditures, might have been made from sources other than current business income.

Without adequate proof that all of the defendant's assets at the beginning of the period were taken into consideration and his net worth at that time clearly and accurately established by competent evidence, and without excluding the reasonable probability that any increase in net worth or expenditures are traceable to prior accumulations or gifts or loans or other non-taxable items, the defendant must be acquitted.

Defendant's Requested Instruction No. 124

During the period involved in this indictment, Sec. 29.41-3 of Regulations III issued by the Secretary of the Treasury provided, in part, as follows:

"It is recognized that no uniform method of accounting can be prescribed for all taxpayers, and the law contemplates that each taxpayer shall adopt such forms and systems of accounting as are in his judgment best suited to his purpose. Each taxpayer is required by law to make a return of his true income. He must, therefore, maintain such accounting records as will enable him to do so. * * * Among the essentials are the following:

"(1) In all cases in which the production, purchase, or sale of merchandise of any kind is an income-producing factor, inventories of the merchandise on hand (including finished goods, work in process, raw materials, and supplies) should be taken at the beginning and end of the year and used in computing the net income of the year. * * *

"(2) Expenditures made during the year should be properly classified as between capital and expense; that is to say, expenditures for items of plant, equipment, etc., which have a useful life extending substantially beyond the year should be charged to a capital account and not to an expense account; and

"(3) In any case in which the cost of capital assets is being recovered through deductions for wear and tear, depletion, or obsolescence, any expenditure (other than ordinary repairs) made to restore the property or prolong its useful life should be added to the property account or charged against the appropriate reserve and not to current expenses. * * *"

There has been testimony in this case that the prosecution has in its possession various business records of the enterprises in which the defendant had an interest, and that the prosecution has not produced those records for introduction in evidence.

It would be proper for you to infer, from the prosecution's failure to produce those records, that they contain evidence which would be detrimental to the prosecution's case and beneficial to the defendant.

Furthermore, in determining whether these business enterprises maintained adequate books and records, it is proper for you to consider that, in addition to the books and records in evidence, there are other records maintained by these businesses which the prosecution has kept in its possession and has declined to place in evidence.

No. 12,177

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,

vs.

ELMER F. REMMER.

JUDGMENT AND COMMITMENT

Violation of Sec. 145(b), Internal Revenue Code;
26 U.S.C. Sec. 145(b), in 6 counts

On this 29th day of February, 1952, came the attorney for the government and the defendant appeared in person and by counsel, namely, John R. Golden, Esq., Leslie C. Gillen, Esq., and George Lohse, Esq.

It Is Adjudged that the defendant has been convicted upon his plea of Not guilty, and a verdict of guilty of the offense. Count 1: That on or about the thirteenth day of April, 1945, in the District of Nevada, Elmer F. Remmer, late of Reno, Nevada, did wilfully and knowingly attempt to defeat and evade a large part of the income tax due and owing by him to the United States of America, for the calendar year 1944, by filing and causing to be filed with the Collector of Internal Revenue for the Internal Revenue Collection District of Nevada, at Reno, Nevada, a false and fraudulent income tax return wherein he stated that his net income for said calendar year, computed on the community-property basis, was the sum of ....., as charged in counts 1, 2, 3, and 4 of the Indictment, and the court having asked the defendant whether he has anything to say why judgment should not be pronounced, and no sufficient cause to the contrary being shown or appearing to the Court,

It Is Adjudged that the defendant is guilty as charged and convicted in counts 1, 2, 3 and 4.

It Is Adjudged that the defendant is hereby committed to the custody of the Attorney General or his authorized representative for imprisonment for a period of Count 1: Five (5) Years and pay to the United States Government a fine in the sum of Five Thousand ($5,000.00) Dollars. Count 2: Five (5) Years and pay to the United States Government a fine in the sum of Five Thousand ($5,000.00) Dollars, the imprisonment portion of the sentence is to run concurrently with the imprisonment portion of the sentence imposed upon Count 1. Count 3: Five (5) Years and pay to the United States Government a fine in the sum of Five Thousand ($5,000.00) Dollars, the imprisonment portion of the sentence is to run concurrently with the imprisonment portion of the sentence imposed upon Count 1. Count 4: Five (5) Years and pay to the United States Government a fine in the sum of Five Thousand ($5,000.00) Dollars, the imprisonment portion of the sentence is to run concurrently with the imprisonment portion of the sentence imposed upon Count 1, so that the total sentence is Five (5) Years imprisonment, and the total amount of the fines is the sum of Twenty Thousand ($20,000.00) Dollars. It Is Further Ordered that defend-

SENTENCE

Be It Remembered, That the above-entitled matter came on for hearing before the Court at Carson City, Nevada, on Friday, February 29, 1952, Hon. Roger T. Foley, Judge, presiding, the plaintiff being represented by Messrs. Bruce Thompson and Robert F. McDonald, and the defendant being present in court with his attorneys, Messrs. Leslie Gillen, John R. Golden and George Lohse. The following proceedings were had:

The Court: In the case of the United States of America vs. Elmer F. Remmer, the record will show the presence of the defendant with counsel. The time fixed for consideration of the probation officer's report and time of sentence was originally fixed at three o'clock, but I am informed that counsel desire to have the matter heard at this time.

Mr. Gillen: We understood that you had finished the matter you had today and we wanted your Honor to know that we are here.

The Court: Will counsel stipulate we may proceed at this time?

Mr. Gillen: Yes, your Honor.

Mr. Thompson: Yes, your Honor.

Mr. Gillen: May it please the Court, there was filed this day by the defense a formal motion for a new trial. Your Honor will recall that on the occasion of the return of the verdict in this case, I orally advised your Honor of the intention of a motion for a new trial and said it would be supplemented by a formal motion and your Honor permitted the motion to be filed as of this date. There are eighteen grounds specified in our motion, copy of which has been served on the United States attorney, and there is in support of that motion an affidavit made severally in joint form by Mr. Golden and myself. I might state, too, your Honor has possibly ruled on every ground that is set forth here, with the exception of ground 17, and I do not know what is your Honor's pleasure in regard to hearing any argument on the other 17 grounds set forth.

The Court: You have no desire to argue the matter further?

Mr. Gillen: We can.

The Court: If you want to.

Mr. Gillen: Well, if your Honor feels that argument would not in any wise change your Honor's decision regarding our position regarding the other 17 grounds, why, we submit the matter with the supporting affidavit.

The Court: Very well.

Mr. Gillen: And as to the 17th ground set forth, your Honor will note that this is a matter that came to our attention subsequent to the return of the verdict in this case and in that matter we ask for an opportunity to obtain evidence in that connection by hearing.

The Court: You submit the motion for a new trial now, the entire motion?

Mr. Gillen: Yes, we will submbit that, with our request that——

BLURRED COPY

The Court (Interceding): The motion for new trial will be denied on all the grounds stated therein.

Mr. Gillen: I take it that also includes, your Honor, that the defendant have a right to have a hearing on the 17th ground, take testimony on the 17th ground?

The Court: That will be also denied.

Mr. Gillen: Very well. It will appear that the next order would be the matters that are before you on the calendar for consideration.

The Court: Yes. The defendant may rise. Mr. Remmer, this is the time appointed for consideration of the probation officer's report and the matter of sentence. On the 22nd day of February, 1952, the jury impanelled in the case of United States of America vs. Elmer F. Remmer, No. 12,177, returned to this Court its verdict of guilty on the charge contained in the first count of the indictment, verdict of guilty on the charge contained in the second count of the indictment, and verdict of guilty on the charge contained in the third count of the indictment and verdict of guilty as charged in the fourth count of the indictment. Now, by virtue of the verdict of the jury, the defendant, Elmer F. Remmer, is hereby adjudged guilty of the offense set forth in the first count of the indictment, which charged that he did, on or about the 13th day of April, 1945, in the District of Nevada, wilfully and knowingly attempt to defeat and evade a large part of the income tax due and owing at the time to the United States of America for the year 1944, by filing and causing to be filed with the Collector of Internal Revenue, a false and fraudulent income tax return, wherein he stated his net income for that year was $9500 and that the amount of tax due and owing thereon was the sum of $2570, whereas he then and there well knew his net income for the calendar year, computed on the community property basis, was the sum of $33,734.61, and upon which a net income tax was due and owing in the sum of $16,259.54. The defendant is adjudged guilty of that offense.

And by virtue of the verdict of the jury, the defendant is adjudged guilty of the charge set forth in Count 2 of the indictment, substantially the same as the charge contained in Count 1 of the indictment, except that it charges that the defendant did attempt to defeat and avoid a large part of the income tax due the government by his wife, Helen L. Remmer, by causing to be filed with the Collector of Internal Revenue a false and fraudulent income tax return, showing the same amount of net income as alleged in Count 1 of the indictment and the same amount of taxes due, and alleging also there was due the United States of America the sum of $16,259.54. The defendant is adjudged guilty of that offense.

By virtue of the verdict of the jury, the defendant is adjudged guilty of the offense set forth in Count 3 of the indictment, which alleges that he did, on or about June 14, 1946, in the District of Nevada, wilfully and knowingly attempt to defeat and evade a large part of the income tax due and owing the United States of America, by filing and causing to be filed with the Collector of Internal Revenue a false and fraudulent income tax return, wherein he stated his net income for the calendar year was $28,888.68, computed on the community property basis, and that the amount of tax due and owing was the sum of $13,072.02, whereas, as he then and there well knew that his net income for the said calendar year, computed on the community property basis, was the sum of $37,157.10, upon which income he owed to the United States of America the sum of $18,586.83. The defendant is adjudged guilty of the offense set forth in Count 3 of the indictment.

By virtue of the verdict of the jury, the defendant is adjudged guilty of the offense set forth in Count 4 of the indictment, which alleges that on or about the 14th of June, 1946, in the District of Nevada, the defendant, Elmer F. Remmer, did wilfully and knowingly attempt to defeat and evade a large part of the income tax due and owing by his wife, Helen L. Remmer, by filing and causing to be filed with the Collector of Internal Revenue in the District of Nevada, a false income tax return for and on behalf of Helen L. Remmer, in which it was stated her net income for the calendar year, computed on the community property basis, was the sum of $30,429.68 and that the amount of taxes due and owing thereon was the sum of $14,074.29, whereas, as he then and there well knew, her net income for said calendar year, computed on the community property basis, was the sum of $38,-708.09, upon which said net income there was due and owing to the United States of America a tax of $19,649.82. The defendant is adjudged guilty of that offense.

Now, Mr. Remmer, have you anything to say why the judgment of the Court should not be pronounced against you on Count 1 of the indictment?

A. No, sir.

The Court: Have you anything to say why the judgment of the Court should not be pronounced against you on Count 2 of the indictment?

A. No, sir.

Mr. Gillen: Your Honor, at this time I think we should properly have advanced our motion for a new trial, but your Honor has passed on it.

The Court: Have you anything to say why the judgment of the Court should not be pronounced against you on Count 3 of the indictment?

A. No, sir.

The Court: Have you anything to say, Mr. Remmer, why the judgment of the Court should not be pronounced against you on Count 4 of the indictment?

Mr. Gillen: Same answer.

The Court: I will be glad to hear from counsel or the defendant or both, but I think it might be well to hear from the probation officer and the United States Attorney. You may be seated. I did not require the probation officer to file a formal written report, for the reason I think the Court has had ample opportunity to become acquainted with the facts and circumstances of this case during the trial. I did ascertain from the probation officer that the defendant, Elmer F. Remmer, has not until this time been convicted of a felony. Is there anything the United States Attorney would like to say?

Mr. Thompson: Your Honor please, I believe the ten or eleven weeks of trial also fairly informed all of us regarding Mr. Remmer's past activities and I see no need to make any additional statement.

The Court: Mr. Gillen, or other counsel, or the defendant, have you anything you would like to say further at this time?

Mr. Gillen: I think it would add nothing. Your Honor is acquainted with the fact there is no past criminal record or felony of this man and your Honor is acquainted with the fact of his business activities in the State of Nevada in connection with Cal-Neva and other matters that came before your Honor. I feel we don't have anything further at this time.

The Court: The Court having asked the defendant if he has anything to say why the judgment of the Court should not be pronounced against him on the four counts in the indictment, and no sufficient cause to the contrary been shown or appearing to the Court, it is the order of the judge that the defendant be, and hereby is, committed to the custody of the Attorney General, or his authorized representative, for imprisonment for the period of five years, and pay to the United States Government a fine in the sum of five thousand dollars on the charge contained in Count 1 of the indictment. I want to say at this time I do not intend to impose any additional term, that the additional terms here will be concurrent, so the defendant will know now.

It is adjudged the defendant be, and hereby is, committed to the custody of the Attorney General or his authorized representative, for imprisonment for the period of five years and pay to the government of the United States five thousand dollars on the charge contained in Count 2 of the indictment. The term of imprisonment hereby imposed as punishment for the offense charged in Count 2 of the indictment, is to run currently with that imposed as punishment for the offense charged in Count 1 of the indictment.

It is adjudged the defendant be, and hereby is, committed to the custody of the Attorney General or his authorized representative, for imprisonment for the period of five years and pay to the Government of the United States five thousand dollars on the charge contained in Count 3 of the indictment. The term of imprisonment hereby imposed as punishment for the offense charged in Count 3 of the indictment is to run concurrently with that imposed on Count 1 of the indictment.

It is adjudged the defendant be, and hereby is, committed to the custody of the Attorney General, or his authorized representative, for imprisonment for the period of five years and pay to the Government of the United States five thousand dollars on the charge contained in Count 4 of the indictment. The term of imprisonment hereby imposed as punishment for the offense charged in Count 4 of the indictment is to run concurrently with that imposed on Count 1 of the indictment.

It is further ordered that said defendant be further imprisoned until the amount of the fine on each of said counts be paid to the United States Government, the total sum being twenty thousand dollars.

The defendant is committed to the custody of the United States Marshal for the execution and carrying out of the aforesaid judgment of the Court.

Mr. Gillen: Now, may it please the Court, at this time it is perfectly plain to me—I am sure I am correct in it—the term of imprisonment on each count is concurrent?

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Gillen: The fines imposed on each count are cumulative, twenty thousand dollars?

The Court: Yes, twenty thousand dollars total fine and total period of imprisonment five years, five years on each count and the second, third and fourth counts concurrent with Count 1.

It is recommended that this period of confinement be had in a federal penitentiary.

Mr. Gillen: I understand. At this time, may it please the Court, I respectfully appeal to the Court, advising the Court that it is the intention of the defendant to formally give notice of an appeal from the conviction in this matter. I appeal to the Court at this time to fix a bail and permit the defendant to be admitted to bail pending his bail under Rule 46(a), subdivision 2, of the Rules of Criminal Procedure. I understand it is only necessary for us to make an oral motion, but we have made a written motion, which we present to your Honor and which we have served upon the United States attorney. I need not point out to your Honor that throughout this entire proceeding the defendant in this case has religiously appeared at each and every proceeding of the case and there was never any question about his appearance or about his tardiness in attendance upon court procedure, and I will ask your Honor to fix a bail at this time. We will file at the same time this formal notice of appeal—there are some insertions to be made—and we will file that, too.

The Court: Tht motion for bail is denied and defendant is remanded to the custody of the marshal. The court will be in recess until 10:00 o'clock Monday morning.

Mr. Gillen: May we interrupt, your Honor, upon another matter. There is another matter here that we want to take up with your Honor. Rule 38(a), subdivisions 2 and 3, provide an election that reposes in a convicted person under sentence to elect not to commence the service of his sentence and to also stay the payment of any fines pending a review of his case by an appellate tribunal, and at this time there is before your Honor, presented by the defendant, a formal election upon the part of the defendant, on the basis of the appeal to be taken, not to commence the serving of his sentence and to stay the payment of the money sentence until the entire matter has been reviewed. That, your Honor will find in Rule 38A, sections 2 and 3.

BLURRED COPY

The Court: Of course, do you contemplate giving some security for the fine?

Mr. Gilllen: I suppose it could be arranged. Of course, your Honor does have in mind that there is a very substantial lien which now has tied up all of the available property of the defendant, all of his assets.

The Court: I have no objection, and I can not see why there should be any objection, to an order staying the sentence of imprisonment pending the appeal, that is as to the effect of staying the operation of the sentence, but I would require ample security for the payment of the fine on that condition.

Mr. Gillen: Not in derogation of your Honor's thought, I wonder how the United States attorney feels about that, because they are familiar with the substantial lien on our defendant's assets, more than enough to protect——

The Court: Has the United States any objection to an order staying sentence pending appeal?

Mr. Thompson: I think the defendant has the right not to elect commencing upon service of his sentence. Mr. Gillen attributes to our office a considerable sum we have a lien. It is true that the federal government has attempted to place a lien upon the defendant's property. Whether that has actually been effected against all or any substantial part of the defendant's property, we have no knowledge. As a matter of fact, I do not know personally just what particular items of property are presently subject to the lien thereon.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

Mr. Gillen: There is one item of 35-thousand dollars in cash, lien at the First National Bank of Nevada, and your Honor will recall there was some evidence here——

The Court (Interceding): I willl make the order that the fines may be stayed upon the defendant giving good and sufficient bond in the sum of twenty thousand dollars.

Mr. Gillen: May we have a certain number of days in which to put up that bond? In other words, the election to stay the beginning of the prison sentence has the effect of not releasing the defendant, but keeping him in custody locally. Now, we wouldn't want to see him whisked away before we could put that bond up.

The Court: He won't be whisked away.

Mr. Golden: Your Honor's order was he be imprisoned until the fine is paid. May that be made that we have five days in which to post that bond and pending that he will remain here and then that condition will be met by posting of the security. Do I make that clear, your Honor?

Mr. Gillen: The arrangements have to be made with some surety company and this is Friday afternoon. We are also facing a two-day holiday in which we can't do anything.

The Court: He has been committed to the custody of the marshal and I can't see where he will suffer any additional inconvenience by requiring the bond to be presented——

Mr. Gillen: What Mr. Golden is thinking of, while he is exercising his election as to the imprisonment portion of the sentence, he apparently is under compulsion to pay the money fine of the sentence——

BLURRED COPY

The Court: That will be stayed as soon as the bond is presented. What rule is that?

Mr. Golden: 38(a), 3.

The Court: I have made an order that payment of the fine will be stayed upon condition that a bond in the sum of twenty thousand dollars be filed and I don't understand just what difference it would make——

Mr. Gillen: And he should be imprisoned until payment of that fine. The United States marshal may determine, since your Honor said imprisonment should be in a federal penitentiary, that as to that part——

The Court: He shall be imprisoned on this fine part by the United States marshal until the bond is filed and approved by the United States attorney.

Mr. Gillen: All right. We just were fearful——

The Court: So you understand that. So we will be in recess until Monday morning at 10:00 o'clock.

MOTION FOR NEW TRIAL

The defendant moves the Court to grant him a new trial for each of the following reasons:

1. The Court erred in denying defendant's motion for judgment of acquittal made at the conclusion of the evidence.

2. The Court erred in overruling defendant's objections to and denying defendant's motions to strike:

a. The testimony of the witness Scollin and Government Exhibits 17, 18 and 19 and each of them.

b. The testimony of the witness Badobinatz and Government Exhibit 42.

c. Government Exhibits 15 and 60 and each of them.

d. The testimony of the witness Lando as to his lack of acquaintanceship with certain named persons, viz.: Joe Leonard, Bob Burgess, Sacramento Sam and Crying Mack.

e. The testimony of the witness Gillingham and Government Exhibit 58.

f. The testimony of the witness McCaffery and Government Exhibit 59.

g. The testimony of the witness Greenhouse and Government Exhibit 71.

h. The testimony of the witness Strong and Government Exhibits 100 and 100a and each of them.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

i. The testimony of the witness Bray and Government Exhibit 101.

j. The testimony of the witness Hill and Government Exhibit 16.

k. The testimony of the witness Ezralow as to Government's Exhibits for Identification 154, 154a and 154b and each of them.

l. The testimony of the witnesses Kyne, Maundrell, Casselini, Busterna, Lando, Silverman and Ezralow and each of them as to the 186 Club and Government's Exhibits 87, 87a, 88, 88a, 166, 167, 43, 131 and 110f and each of them.

3. The verdict is contrary to the weight of the evidence, especially as to the recognition of the partnerships and of the loans.

4. The verdict is not supported by substantial evidence, especially as to the use of the net worth and expenditures method to compute net income.

5. The Court erred on June 15, 1951, in denying defendant's motion for a bill of particulars.

6. The Court erred on November 15, 1951, in denying defendant's motion to inspect and take copies.

7. The Court erred on November 27, 1951, in denying defendant's motion for production and inspection of books, papers, documents and objects and in quashing the subpoena duces tecum issued in connection therewith.

8. The Court erred in compelling defendant's counsel, during the trial, to produce defendant's books and records and in denying defendant's motions to return them and suppress their use in evidence and in admitting them in evidence over defendant's objections.

9. The Court erred in denying defendant's motions, during the trial, for the production and inspection and admission in evidence of defendant's books and records taken and retained by the Government and withheld from evidence.

10. The Court erred in sustaining objections to questions addressed to the witnesses Kyne, Maundrell, Schriber, Weaver, Brady, Morgan and Harkness and each of them for the Government, and the witnesses Semenza, Woodburn, Thatcher, Graham, Edna Jeffress, James Jeffress and Golden and each of them for the defense, and in rejecting defendant's offers of proof in connection with said defense witnesses and said Brady.

11. The Court erred in refusing to allow in evidence Defendant's Exhibits Z, D1, E1 and F1 and each of them.

12. The Court erred in admitting testimony of the witness Weaver, especially as to an alleged conversation with the defendant.

13. The Court erred in charging the jury and in refusing to charge the jury as requested.

14. The Court erred in denying the defendant's motions for a mistrial.

15. The Court erred in permitting the attorney for the Government over objection to argue to the jury outside the record.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

16. The Court erred in denying defendant's challenge for cause to the prospective juror John W. Humphrey.

17. The defendant was substantially prejudiced and deprived of a fair trial by reason of the acts and conduct of the jury, the Court, the prosecuting attorneys and the Agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation and each of them in the circumstances described in the affidavit filed herewith, which by this reference is incorporated herein. The interests of justice demand and the defendant respectfully moves that there be a trial of this issue, that he be permitted to adduce evidence as such trial, that subpoenas be issued for the attendance at such trial as witnesses of the jurors, the trial Judge, the members of the United States Attorney's office and other prosecuting counsel, the Agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the person who communicated with the juror I. J. AFFIDAVIT IN SUPPORT OF MOTION FOR NEW TRIAL

State of California,
City and County of San Francisco—ss.

Leslie C. Gillen and John R. Golden, being duly sworn, each for himself and not one for the other, deposes and says:

That he is one of the defendant's attorneys in the above-entitled case and participated in the trial thereof.

That the trial of said case commenced on November 28, 1951; that the jury reached its verdicts on February 22, 1952; that subsequently and on February 23, 1952, affiant first learned of the facts hereinafter averred.

That in December, 1951, or January, 1952, a person unknown to affiant had a conversation with one of the jurors in said case, namely, I. J. Smith, who later became the foreman of the jury; that in the course of said conversation said person made a remark to said Smith to the effect that said Smith could profit by bringing in a verdict favorable to the defendant; that said Smith promptly reported the substance of said conversation to the trial Judge in said case, Honorable Roger T. Foley, and the latter conferred with the prosecuting attorneys concerning sam ; that as a result the Federal Bureau of Investigation was requested to and did make an investigation of said incident and made a report thereon; that neither Judge Foley nor the prosecuting attorneys related said incident to any of defendant's counsel and the latter were kept in complete ignorance thereof until the verdicts had been reached, and thereafter learned thereof only through the press; that copies of articles appearing, respectively, in the San Francisco Chronicle and the Oakland Tribune, on Sunday, February 24, 1952, are attached hereto and by this reference incorporated herein.

That, had defendant's counsel been apprized of the situation, they would have moved for a mistrial and further would have requested that Judge Foley remove said Smith as a juror and substitute an alternate juror, or which there were two, for him, for the reason that said Smith, having had such conversation, quite naturally would be apprehensive of being suspected and criticized were he to vote and attempt to have the other jurors vote for a verdict in favor of the defendant, and thus would be and was prejudiced against the defendant by reason of such conversation; that the omission of the trial Judge to bring the facts of the aforesaid out-of-Court incident to the attention of defense counsel at the time of its occurrence prevented defense counsel from making timely efforts to avoid prejudice to the defendant as aforesaid and his acts and conduct deprived defendant of a fair trial.

That the interests of justice demand and affiant respectfully moves that there be a trial of this issue, that he be permitted to adduce evidence at such trial, that subpoenas be issued for the attend-

Judge Reveals FBI Made Probe After Report of Remark to One of Panel

By Victor Stier
Tribune Staff Writer

Carson City, Nev., Feb. 23.—Federal Judge Roger T. Foley revealed today that the FBI investigated the possibility of jury tampering midway in the income tax evasion trial of Elmer F. (Bones) Remmer.

The FBI found no evidence of tampering in its inquiry, Judge Foley said.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

Remmer, Bay area and Nevada gambler, was found guilty by a jury last night of four of the six counts of tax evasion on which he was indicted in 1948. He is now in the Washoe County Jail at Reno awaiting sentencing, which has been set for 3 p.m. next Friday.

From his jail cell today, Remmer declared: "We're going to fight this thing through. We've just started. If I had it to do all over, I'd do it the same way with the same lawyers."

Remark by Juror

Judge Foley said the tampering investigation stemmed from a remark made to one of the jurors, I. J. Smith, a Reno insurance and realty man, who subsequently became jury foreman.

Sometime in December, the judge related, Smith came to him and told this story:

A former client of his (Smith's) had come to his home on business. During the course of their conversation, he made a remark to the effect that Smith could get a lot of money out of the trial through the defense.

Smith told the judge he thought the man, a dealer in a Reno gambling casino, had simply made a waggish remark and that he was kidding. However, in view of Judge Foley's admonitions not to discuss the case, Smith said he decided to report the incident.

Asks FBI Check

Judge Foley said today that he informed the prosecution, but not the defense, and had the Reno office of the FBI check the story.

BLURRED COPY

"It was the conviction of the FBI, and my own that the man made a remark in bad taste."

Asked why he didn't tell the defense, Judge Foley explained: "If there was anything to the report, it probably would have been a defense move. If it had been a police officer or an internal revenue man who had made the remark, I would have notified the defense and not the prosecution, so as to eliminate any possibility of their stopping the investigation."

Attorneys Aroused

Defense attorneys were irate when informed of Judge Foley's story.

"Any conference with the judge should have had both sides present," they declared in a statement.

"If we had been informed, as we had a right to be, we would have strongly urged Judge Foley to excuse the juror and replace him with one of two alternates since it would have been only natural for that juror to lean over backwards to avoid any possible criticism or suspicion.

"If the judge gave the report enough weight to refer it to the FBI, it is all the more reason why we should not have been kept in ignorance."

Denies Tampering

Smith denied the report, but admitted: "I did talk to Judge Foley about another thing. Nobody tried to influence me. The man might have been out of line, but he did not try to tamper with me."

Asst. U. S. Attorney Bruce Thompson said: "I can't talk about it."

Remmer was dressed in a light tan, monogrammed sport shirt and tan checked slacks when he talked with newsmen in the Reno jail today.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

His declaration to "fight this thing through" backed up statements made last night by his attorneys, who said they will file formal motions of appeal and for a new trial early this week.

Reno Gambler Talked With Juror

Jury Tampering Charge Enters the Remmer Case

By Pierre Salinger
Chronicle Staff Writer

Carson City, Nevada, Feb. 23.—Elmer F. (Bones) Remmer's attorneys are going to bring up the matter of a "secret investigation" of alleged tampering, when the San Francisco gambler's conviction for tax evasion goes to the Federal Circuit Court in San Francisco on appeal.

The announcement was made today after Federal Judge Roger T. Foley confirmed that he had summoned the FBI to check into a visit a gambling house dealer paid to one of the jurors hearing the case.

The Judge said he had informed the prosecution about the incident, but had not mentioned anything about it to the defense.

As Attorneys Leslie C. Gillen and John R. Golden began preparing the way for an appeal, their client spent his first day in the Washoe County Jail. He was sent to jail Friday after the jury convicted him on four counts of criminally evading his income taxes in the years 1944 and 1945. The jury could not agree on two other counts involving Remmer's taxes in 1946.

Gambler's Visit

The gambling house dealer's conversation with a juror took place in December, when the trial was less than a month old. He called on I. J. Smith, a Reno real estate dealer and insurance man, a member of the jury and later its foreman, to consult with him about some automobile insurance.

In the course of the conversation the dealer said: "You could get a pile if you would go along with Bones."

Smith, who confirmed the incident, said he considered the remark only a jest, but he reported it the following day to Judge Foley.

The Judge, who said he also did not take the remark seriously, called in the FBI because, he said, "a Judge should take every precaution." The FBI's report confirmed his belief that the remark was not meant seriously, the Judge added.

Defense Objections

Asked why he had notified the Government's attorneys about the "innocent incident," but not the defense, Judge Foley explained:

"This incident turned out to be harmless. But if there had been anything to it, and if we had told the defense, it would have stifled our investigation."

Gillen and Golden objected to this comment.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

"Any conference with the Judge should have had both sides present," they said, in a joint statement. "By definition, all parties are present at a conference.

"If we had been informed, as we had the right to be, we would have strongly urged Judge Foley to excuse the juror and replace him with one of the two alternates. Under the circumstances, it would have been the natural thing for that juror to lean over backward to avoid any possible criticism or suspicion.

"Judge Foley gave the incident enough credence to refer it to the FBI. That is all the more reason why he should not have kept us in ignorance."

First Night in Jail

The attorneys reported today that, in spite of the secrecy, they had finally learned of the incident.

Remmer, meanwhile, reported he was well rested after spending the night in jail for the first time in his life.

When he arrived at the jail in Reno after his conviction last night, he made up for the lack of a pillow in his cell by curling up his clothes and resting his head on them. Then he dropped off to sleep almost instantly.

He chatted briefly with his lawyers and newspapermen.

"If we had it all to do over again, I'd do it with the same lawyers and the same way," Remmer said.

And, to the newsmen who interviewed him through the bars of his little cell, the portly gambler commented:

"I still don't know what I'm here for. I don't know of a single thing I've done to be in here."

INSTRUCTIONS TO THE JURY

Instruction No. 1

There are certain general principles of law to which the Court desires to call your attention.

You will understand that under our system the Court and the jury have a divided responsibility. It is the duty of the Court to decide all questions of law which may arise during the progress of the trial, and the duty of the jury to pass upon the facts. If the Court is unfortunate enough to make a mistake in deciding those questions of law, there is another court which may be appealed to, to correct those mistakes. It is, therefore, the duty of the jury to take the law as laid down by the Court, because if the jury should undertake to determine what the law is, and should make a mistake, there is no way of remedying it. It is the province of the jury to pass upon the facts of the case, upon the credibility of the witnesses, and to apply the law to the facts of the case as they find the facts to be. The Court is just as little inclined to interfere with the province of the jury passing upon the facts of the case, as it is sensitive about having the jury to undertake to determine what is the law of the case. With this understanding of our respective duties, the Court states to you the following general principles.

Given:

/s/ ROGER T. FOLEY,
United States District Judge.

BLURRED COPY

Instruction No. 2

The indictment itself is a mere charge or accusation against the defendant, and is not of itself any evidence of his guilt, and no juror in this case should permit himself or herself to be to any extent influenced against the defendant because of or on account of the indictment.

Given:

/s/ ROGER T. FOLEY,
United States District Judge.

Instruction No. 3

The indictment in this case charges violations of Section 145(b) of Title 26, United States Code, which so far as it applies here reads: "* * * any person who wilfully attempts in any manner to evade or defeat any tax imposed by this chapter * * * shall * * * be guilty" of an offense.

/s/ ROGER T. FOLEY,
United States District Judge.

Instruction No. 4

The indictment charges the defendant with six offenses or counts as follows:

Count One: That on or about the thirteenth day of April, 1945, in the District of Nevada, Elmer F. Remmer, late of Reno, Nevada, did wilfully and knowingly attempt to defeat and evade a large part of the income tax due and owing by him to the United States of America for the calendar year

Instruction No. 5

The defendant is presumed to be innocent at all stages of the proceeding until and unless the evidence shows him to be guilty beyond a reasonable doubt. This rule applies to every material element of the offense charged. Mere suspicion will not authorize a conviction.

Given:

/s/ ROGER T. FOLEY,
United States District Judge.

Instruction No. 6

A reasonable doubt is one based on reason. It is not mere possible doubt, but is such doubt as would govern or control a person in the more weighty affairs of life. If the minds of the jurors, after the entire comparison and consideration of all the evidence, are in such a condition that they can say they feel an abiding conviction of the truth of the charges as contained in a court of the indictment, there is not a reasonable doubt as to such count. Doubt to be reasonable must be actual and substantial, not mere possibility or speculation.

Given:

/s/ ROGER FOLEY,
United States District Judge.

Instruction No. 7

You are instructed that the rule of law which throws around the defendant the presumption of innocence and requires the Government to establish, beyond a reasonable doubt, every material fact averred in the indictment, is not intended to shield those who are actually guilty from just and merited punishment, but is a humane provision of the law which is intended for the protection of the innocent, and to guard, so far as human agencies can, against the conviction of those unjustly accused of crime.

Given:

/s/ ROGER T. FOLEY,
United States District Judge.

Instruction No. 8

You are to consider only the evidence introduced in this case. A conviction is justified only when such evidence excludes all reasonable doubt as the same has been defined to you, without it being restated or repeated. You are to understand that the requirements that a defendant's guilt be shown beyond a reasonable doubt should be considered in connection with and as accompanying all the instructions that are given to you.

Given:

/s/ ROGER T. FOLEY,
United States District Judge.

Instruction No. 9

Every person required to pay income taxes is under a personal duty to file or cause to be filed for him a proper income tax return. Bona fide mistakes should not be treated as false and fraudulent, but no man who is able to read and write and who signs a tax return is able to escape the responsibility of good faith as to the correctness of the statement which he signs, whether prepared by him or somebody else.

Given:

/s/ ROGER T. FOLEY,
United States District Judge.

Instruction No. 10

It is not necessary for the Government to prove that the defendant received income in the exact amount stated in the indictment or that the taxes due on his income were exactly as stated in the indictment. It is sufficient if you find beyond a reasonable doubt that the defendant received a substantial amount of income in excess of that which he reported on his income tax returns and that he wilfully attempted to evade or defeat a substantial portion of the taxes alleged to have been due in the indictment.

Given:

/s/ ROGER T. FOLEY,
United States District Judge.

Instruction No. 11

To establish its case the government must prove both of the following elements: (1) That substantial income tax was due and owing from the defendant in addition to that declared in his original income tax returns; and (2) that the defendant wilfully attempted to evade and defeat such tax.

The gist of the offense charged in the indictment is wilful attempt on the part of the taxpayer to evade or defeat the tax imposed by the income tax law. The word "attempt," as used in this law, involves two elements: (1) An intent to evade or defeat the tax; and (2) some act done in furtherance of such intent. The word "attempt" contemplates that the defendant had knowledge and understanding that during the calendar years 1944, 1945 and 1946 he had an income which was taxable, and which he was required by law to report, and that he attempted to evade or defeat the tax thereon, or a portion thereof, by purposely failing to report all the income which he knew he had during such calendar years and which he knew it was his duty to state in his returns for such years.

There are various schemes, subterfuges, and devices that may be resorted to to evade or defeat the tax. The one alleged in this indictment is that of filing false and fraudulent returns with the intent to defeat the tax or liability. The gist of the crime consists in wilfully attempting to escape the tax.

The attempt to evade and defeat the tax must be a wilful attempt, that is to say, it must be made with the intent to keep from the Government a tax imposed by the income tax laws which it was the duty of the defendant to pay to the Government. The attempt must be wilful, that is, intentionally done with the intent that the Government should be defrauded of the income tax due from the defendant.

If you find from the evidence beyond a reasonable doubt that the defendant did consciously, knowingly and intentionally fail to report or cause to be reported his true income and thereby the Government was cheated or defrauded of taxes, you may find that he intended to evade the tax. However, you must not convict the defendant unless the evidence has convinced you beyond a reasonable doubt that he knew he was doing wrong.

Given:

/s/ ROGER T. FOLEY,
United States District Judge.

Instruction No. 12

The possession of money alone is not sufficient to establish net taxable income. But evidence of the possession of money and the expenditure of money may be considered as part of a chain of circumstances which you may consider in arriving at a conclusion as to whether or not the defendant enjoyed taxable income.

BLURRED COPY

Given:

United States District Judge.

Instruction No. 13

If you find that there were any gains, profits or income received by the defendant which were not reported, it makes no difference as far as the question of taxability is concerned whether such income was lawfully received or unlawfully received, inasmuch as both were taxable.

Given:

/s/ ROGER T. FOLEY,
United States District Judge.

Instruction No. 14

The income tax law provides that the net income of the taxpayer shall be computed upon the basis of the taxpayer's annual accounting period, in accordance with the method of accounting regularly employed in keeping the books of the taxpayer; but if no such method of accounting has been employed, or if the method employed does not clearly reflect the income, a computation shall be made upon such basis and in such manner as does fairly reflect the income.

The Government is authorized by law, if the books of the taxpayer are found to be inadequate, to adopt a reasonable method of ascertaining income. In this case it has undertaken to find out what the defendant was worth at the beginning of each year involved and what he was worth at the end of that year, so as to show what he had accumulated as income in the meantime.

If, at the end of a year, a man has in his possession more property than he had at the beginning of the year, it goes without saying that he got it from some place; and, if it is shown that he did not get it by gift or inheritance or loan, it may be inferred that it was part of his taxable income.

Given:

/s/ ROGER T. FOLEY,
United States District Judge.

Instruction No. 15

The Government has placed before you evidence relating to the defendant's net worth at the end of each of the years 1943, 1944, 1945 and 1946. A defendant's net worth at a given time is the difference between all of his assets and all of his liabilities. Loans receivable are to be considered as assets and loans payable are to be considered as liabilities in computing the net worth. Increase in net worth for any year is computed by subtracting the net worth at the beginning of the year from the net worth at the end of the year. In order to compute the defendant's taxable net income by this method you should add the defendant's living and other non-deductible expenses for that year as shown by the evidence and the income taxes which he paid during that year to the increase in net worth. These expenditures should be added because they are not represented in the assets which the defendant has accumulated and are not deductible expenses.

Expenditures which are deductible under the income tax laws are immaterial and of no significance in computing net income on the so-called "net worth and expenditures" method. The law provides that a deduction shall be allowed for all the ordinary and necessary expenses paid or incurred in carrying on any trade or business. The term "ordinary and necessary business expense" does not have any specific definition, but it refers generally to expenditures which have a reasonable relationship to the carrying on of a business.

Given:

/s/ ROGER T. FOLEY,
United States District Judge.

Instruction No. 16

If you find that the defendant had substantial taxable income for the years 1944, or 1945, or 1946 which he did not report on his income tax returns, then you may find that there was a substantial amount of tax due to the United States Government for such year by the defendant.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

Instruction No. 17

As I have heretofore charged you, the defendant has been indicted under a statute which applies to "any person who wilfully attempts in any manner to evade or defeat any tax imposed," etc. With respect to the meaning of the phrase "in any manner," I charge you that Congress did not define or limit the methods by which a wilful attempt to evade and defeat might be accomplished. The indictment in this case charges attempts to evade taxes by filing false income tax returns. In event you determine that the income tax returns, or any of them, understated the incomes of the defendant, or his wife, you must then determine if such understatement was wilful.

Given:

/s/ ROGER T. FOLEY,
United States District Judge.

Instruction No. 18

The Court instructs the jury that in every crime or public offense there must exist a union or joint operation of act and intention.

Intention is manifested by the circumstances connected with the perpetration of the offense and the sound mind and discretion of the person accused.

BLURRED COPY

Instruction No. 19

The word "wilful" when used in a criminal statute generally means an act done with a bad purpose, but the word is also employed to characterize a thing done without ground for believing it is lawful, or conduct marked by disregard whether one has the right so to act.

Given:

/s/ ROGER T. FOLEY,
United States District Judge.

Instruction No. 20

Since a state of mind is difficult to prove precisely, evidence of surrounding circumstances may be admitted to prove intent or knowledge. Thus, direct proof of wilful or wrongful intent or knowledge is not necessary. Intent and knowledge may be inferred from acts and such inferences may arise from a combination of acts, although each act standing by itself may seem unimportant. These are questions of fact to be determined from all the circumstances.

Given:

/s/ ROGER T. FOLEY,
United States District Judge.

Instruction No. 21

You may find that there is evidence of an intent to commit the crime of attempting to evade and defeat the payment of a tax, even though there is coupled with that intent the desire to suppress information for other reasons. Thus, even if you should find that the defendant desired to conceal his ownership of property from anyone, you may also find in addition to such motive the existence of an intent to defraud the United States of moneys due as income taxes and to attempt to defeat or evade such taxes.

Given:

/s/ ROGER T. FOLEY,
United States District Judge.

Instruction No. 22

There is a distinction between civil tax cases and criminal tax cases. This is a criminal case. The defendant is charged under the law with the commission of a crime, and the fact that he has or has not settled a civil claim for the payment of taxes claimed to be due to the United States is not to be considered by you in determining the issues in this case.

Given:

/s/ ROGER T. FOLEY,

Instruction No. 23

The law requires that income tax returns (other than returns of corporations) shall be made to the collector for the district in which is located the legal residence or principal place of business of the person making the return.

Instruction No. 24

Individuals carrying on business in partnership shall be liable for income tax only in their individual capacity. Partnerships as such are not subject to income tax, but are required to make returns of income.

A partner in a partnership shall include in his individual net income his share of the net income or loss of the partnership. If he draws either more or less than his share, his income tax is nevertheless based on the share to which he is entitled under the partnership agreement.

Instruction No. 27

Money received as a gift or inheritance is not taxable income. The prosecution has the burden of proving to your satisfaction beyond a reasonable doubt that none of the money which it claims as taxable income came to the defendant or his wife as a gift or inheritance.

Instruction No. 28

Certain businesses were described in the income tax returns in evidence as partnerships. The law does not prescribe any specific form of agreement as a requisite for partnership status. A partnership is an organization of two or more parties who have intended in good faith, and acting with a business purpose, to join together in the present conduct of an enterprise. The arrangement between them may be either written or oral, and can be either an express or an implied agreement. It is not necessary that they contribute equal amounts of capital, or devote equal amounts of time to the business of the partnership, or have an equal share in the drawings, or have an equal right to draw money out of the business. The important question is whether the parties, including the defendant, actually had the intent in good faith to join together in operating the business as partners.

Instruction No. 32

As previously stated to you, the income tax law provides that the net income of the taxpayer shall be computed in accordance with the method of accounting regularly employed in keeping books of the taxpayer. In this case two methods of recording transactions in books of account have been referred to, one referred to as the cash method and the other as the accrual method. Under the cash method income is recorded as of the time it is actually received and expenses are included only when actually paid. Under the accrual method of recording transactions income is set up when the right to receive the money arises and expenses are set up at the time the liability is incurred.

BLURRED COPY

Evidence is of two kinds, direct and circumstantial. Direct evidence is that evidence which is given when a witness testifies directly of his own knowledge to the main fact or facts to be proven. Circumstantial evidence is proof of certain facts and circumstances from which the jury may infer other and connecting facts, which usually and reasonably follow. Crimes may be proven by circumstantial evidence as well as by direct testimony of eye witnesses; but the facts and circumstances in evidence taken as a whole must be consistent with each other, and with the guilt of the defendant, and inconsistent with any reasonable theory of the defendant's innocence.

In a case of either direct or circumstantial evidence it is not necessary that the proof shall be conclusive. It is sufficient if the jury believe from all the facts and circumstances of the case that the accused is guilty, and that they have no reasonable doubt in their minds as to his guilt. If the jury believe the facts as shown by the evidence in this case as to any count are all consistent with the supposition that the defendant is guilty, and cannot reconcile the circumstances produced in evidence with any other supposition than that of guilt, it is their duty to find the defendant guilty of that count; but if the jury do not so believe, they should find the defendant not guilty of that count. All that can be required is not absolute and positive proof, but such proof as convinces the jury that the crime has been made out against the accused beyond a reasonable doubt.

Given:

/s/ ROGER T. FOLEY,
United States District Judge.

Instruction No. 34

You are not bound to decide in conformity with the testimony of a number of witnesses, which does not produce conviction in your minds, as against the declarations of a lesser number or a presumption or other evidence, which appeals to your minds with more convincing force. This rule of law does not mean that you are at liberty to disregard the testimony of a greater number of witnesses merely from caprice or prejudice, or from a desire to favor one side against the other. It does mean that you are not to decide an issue by the simple process of counting the number of witnesses who have testified on the opposing sides. It means that the final test is not in the relative number of witnesses, but in the relative convincing force of the evidence.

Given:

/s/ ROGER T. FOLEY,
United States District Judge.

Instruction No. 35

The rules of evidence ordinarily do not permit the opinion of a witness to be received as evidence. An exception to this rule exists in the case of expert witnesses. A person who by education, study and experience has become an expert in any art, science or profession, and who is called as a witness, may give his opinion as to any such matter in which he is versed and which is material to the case. You should consider such expert opinion and should weigh the reasons, if any, given for it. You are not bound, however, by such an opinion. Give it the weight to which you deem it entitled, whether that be great or slight, and you may reject it, if in your judgment the reasons given for it are unsound.

Given:

/s/ ROGER T. FOLEY,
United States District Judge.

Instruction No. 36

You are the sole judges of the credibility and the weight which is to be given to the testimony of the different witnesses who have testified upon this trial. A witness is presumed to speak the truth. This presumption, however, may be repelled by the manner in which he testifies; by the character of his testimony, or by evidence affecting his character for truth, honesty and integrity or his motives; or by contradictory evidence. In judging the credibility of the witnesses in this case, you may believe the whole or any part of a witness' testimony, as may be dictated by your judgment as reasonable men and women. You should carefully scrutinize the testimony given, and in so doing consider all of the circumstances under which any witness has testified, his demeanor, his manner while on the stand, his intelligence, the relations which he bears to the Government or the defendant, the manner in which he might be affected by the verdict and the extent to which he is contradicted or corroborated by other evidence, if at all, and every matter that tends reasonably to shed light upon his credibility. If the jury believe that any witness has wilfully sworn falsely as to any material fact in the case, they may disregard the whole of the evidence of any such witness, except insofar as it is corroborated by other credible evidence.

Given:

/s/ ROGER T. FOLEY,
United States District Judge.

Instruction No. 37

At times throughout the trial the Court has been called upon to pass on the question whether or not certain offered evidence might properly be admitted. With such rulings and the reasons for them you are not concerned. Whether offered evidence is admissible is purely a question of law, and from a ruling on such a question you are not to draw any inference as to what weight should be given the evidence, or as to the credibility of a witness. In admitting evidence, to which an objection is made, the Court does not determine what weight should be given such evidence. As to any offer of evidence that was rejected by the Court, you, of course, must not consider the same. As to any question to which an objection was sustained, you must not conjecture as to what the answer might have been or as to the reason for the objection.

BLURRED COPY

Given:

/s/ ROGER T. FOLEY,
United States District Judge.

Instruction No. 38

You are instructed that if the Judge has said or done anything which has suggested to you that he is inclined to favor the claims or position of either party you will not allow yourselves to be influenced by any such suggestion.

I have not expressed, nor intended to express, nor have I intimated nor intended to intimate, any opinion as to what witnesses are, or are not worthy of credence; what facts are, or are not, established; or what inference should be drawn from the evidence adduced. If any expression of mine has seemed to indicate an opinion relating to any of these matters, I instruct you to disregard it.

If in these instructions, any rule, direction or idea be stated in varying ways, no emphasis thereon is intended by me, and none must be inferred by you. For that reason, you are not to single out any certain sentence, or any individual point or instruction, and ignore the others, but you are to consider all the instructions as a whole, and to regard each in the light of all the others.

The verdict to be rendered must represent the considered judgment of each juror.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

In order to render a verdict it is necessary that each juror agrees thereto. Your verdict must be unanimous.

Given:

/s/ ROGER T. FOLEY,
United States District Judge.

Instruction No. 39

The fact that an attorney may have during the course of the trial persistently or vehemently pressed argument in the interest of his client is not to be considered by you to the prejudice of his client.

Given:

/s/ ROGER T. FOLEY,
United States District Judge.

Instruction No. 40

The matter of sympathy is not to enter into your deliberations. Every man who commits a crime is in one sense unfortunate. He is to be pitied, and those who are to share his suffering, and who are innocent, are also to be pitied; but that is one of the almost universal attendants and consequences of crime. Few persons can commit a crime unless some innocent person suffers in consequence. Your sole duty and my sole duty, under our oaths, is to ascertain and determine what the truth is. You are to determine whether a crime has been committed, and whether the evidence offered upon this witness stand satisfies you of the guilt of the defendant beyond a reasonable doubt.

BLURRED COPY

Given:

/s/ ROGER T. FOLEY,
United States District Judge.

Instruction No. 41

A person charged with an offense against the laws of the United States shall, at his own request but not otherwise, be a competent witness. His failure to make such request and to testify as a witness shall not create any presumption against him; and no juror in this case should permit himself or herself to be to any extent influenced against the defendant because of, or on account of, his failure to testify as a witness in the case.

Given:

/s/ ROGER T. FOLEY,
United States District Judge.

Instruction No. 42

It is your duty to consult with one another and to deliberate with a view to reaching an agreement, if you can do so without violence to your individual judgment. You each must decide the case for yourself, but should do so only after a consideration of the case with your fellow jurors, and you should not hesitate to change an opinion when convinced that it is erroneous. However, you should not be influenced to vote in any way on any question submitted to you by the single fact that a majority of the jurors, or any of them, favor such a decision. In other words, you should not surrender your honest convictions concerning the guilt or innocence of the defendant for the mere purpose of returning a verdict or solely because of the opinion of the other jurors.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

Given:

/s/ ROGER T. FOLEY,
United States District Judge.

Instruction No. 43

While you have a right to use your knowledge and experience as men and women in arriving at a decision as to the weight of the testimony and credibility of witnesses, yet your finding and decision must rest upon the evidence admitted in this trial. You cannot act upon the opinions and statements of counsel as to the truth of any evidence given, or as to the guilt or innocence of the defendant.

You must consider all the evidence in connection with the law as given by the Court, and therefrom reach a verdict; in doing so you must, without favor or affection, bias, prejudice or sympathy compare, weigh and consider all the facts and circumstances shown by the evidence, with the sole, fixed and steadfast purpose of doing equal and exact justice between the United States of America and the defendant at the bar.

Given:

United States District Judge.

BLURRED COPY

Instruction No. 44

The Court instructs the jury that you should weigh all the evidence before you and ponder upon the instructions of the Court, that you may not, perhaps, by careless disregard of your responsibilities, fail in conserving the rights of society, on the one hand, or, on the other, condemn to punishment one who may have done no wrong. Court are only respected when there is an earnest desire and true endeavor on the part of all their officers to do right. Any departure from this justly arraigns the law tribunals for inefficiency, and excites public disregard and contempt for their decrees. Neither passion nor sympathy should swerve or sway, but you should keep as certainly to the course pointed out by impersonal justice as the needle is faithful to the pole. Thus only shall you escape an accusing conscience and redeem the oathbound obligations assumed by each of you at the time you were chosen to hear attentively, to consider wisely, and determine justly.

Given:

/s/ ROGER T. FOLEY,
United States District Judge.

Instruction No. 45

The duty of counsel and of the Court has now been performed. Counsel have brought to your consideration facts and evidence which, in their judgment, will assist you in determining the truth. They have assisted you in marshalling and explaining the testimony. The Court has endeavored to advise and correctly instruct you as to the law, and it now remains for you to perform the last and the most important duty in this trial, to determine the issue of guilt or innocence; and it is with the utmost confidence that I submit this case to you, believing that you will not permit your judgment to be unduly influenced by sympathy or sentiment on the one hand, or by prejudice on the other; that you will consider the law simply as it is given to you by the Court, and the evidence which has been introduced before you during the progress of this trial.

The liberty of the defendant is sacred; it cannot lightly be taken away. You cannot bring in a verdict of guilty until the guilt of the accused is proven by the evidence in the case beyond a reasonable doubt. The interests of the Government are also important; its laws are made to be obeyed, and if broken, they should be vindicated. If, after a careful consideration of the law and the evidence in the case, you are satisfied beyond a reasonable doubt that the defendant is guilty, you should bring in your verdict accordingly. You must be just to the defendant; you must also be just to the Government. Duty demands it, the law demands it, and your oath demands it. As upright men and women, as honest jurors, you are now charged with one of the most solemn and responsible duties of an American citizen, and I trust that you will perform it with an eye single to your duty, to your oath, to the law as given you by the Court, and to the evidence in the case.

BLURRED COPY

It takes twelve to find a verdict. The Clerk, as a matter of convenience, has prepared forms of verdict which will be handed to you.

If you find the defendant guilty of any of said offenses charged in the indictment, you will insert the word "is" in the blank space before the word "guilty"; if you find the defendant not guilty of any of said charges, you will insert the word "not" in the blank space before the word "guilty."

In arriving at your verdicts, you may find the defendant not guilty on all counts or guilty on all counts, not guilty on some counts and guilty on other counts, or you may reach a verdict on some counts and fail to reach a verdict on other counts.

You will now retire to your jury room, and when you have agreed upon a verdict, you will have your foreman sign it, and notify the Marshal, and you will be returned into court.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

In the United States District Court, for the District of Nevada

No. 12,177

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,

Plaintiff,

vs.

ELMER F. REMMER,

Defendant.

Before: Hon. Roger T. Foley, Judge.

HEARING ON MOTION FOR CONTINUANCE

Be It Remembered, That the above-entitled matter came on regularly for hearing before the Court at Las Vegas, Nevada, on Thursday, the 15th of November, 1951.

Appearances:

WALTER M. CAMPBELL, JR., ESQ.
MILES N. PIKE, ESQ.
Attorneys for Plaintiff.

LESLIE C. GILLEN, ESQ.,
GEORGE LOHSE,
Attorneys for Defendant.

The following proceedings were had:

The Court: In the case of United States of America vs. Elmer F. Remmer, No. 12,177, there have been several motions and I suppose it would be logical to take up the motion for continuance first, would it not?

Mr. Lohse: Yes, your Honor.

Mr. Pike: The Court is familiar with the circumstance that Mr. Walter Campbell, with headquarters at San Francisco, who is attorney with the Penal Division of the Internal Revenue, is present in court and Mr. Campbell has the status of Special Assistant to the Attorney General for the purposes of this case and for the purposes of this case has the status likewise of Special Assistant to the United States Attorney for this district. Mr. Campbell is familiar with this case. He has worked on it and he is present in court for hearing of this motion.

Mr. Gillen admitted for purpose of this case.

Mr. Gillen: Does your Honor desire I proceed?

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Gillen: May it please the Court, there are two motions your Honor mentioned and I thought the logical way to approach the problem was on the motion for continuance. I believe this, your Honor, I believe that both motions pretty well dovetail one into the other and I think can be followed by your Honor very readily because the second motion, which your Honor so kindly shortened the time, is whether, in respect under Rule 16, would ultimately, for its ultimate time, require some further time before proceeding to trial, so I think both matters could be addressed to your Honor at once.

May it please the Court, Mr. Lohse, the Nevada counsel, filed, on behalf of the defendant in this case, the initial motion for a continuance upon the several grounds that are set forth in his motion and mentioned in his motion that the motion would be supported by affidavits which would subsequently be presented. Those affidavits are now in court and were served on opposing parties and address themselves, I believe, in support of both motions. I might state to your Honor also that counsel, Mr. Lohse, in his motion mentioned the date of April 1st as the requested continued date, and I might say to your Honor that that is an arbitrary date. We have in mind discussing it with Mr. Lohse; that our problem here is an efficient accounting analysis and we have in mind that accountants are busy in the early part of the year up until the middle of March, for reasons that we are all acquainted with, so in the event your Honor did entertain our motion, the date of April 1st is not the necessary date, as far as we are concerned.

The Court: Before we proceed, would it be well to have Mr. Lohse entered as attorney of record?

Mr. Lohse: Your Honor, I filed the motion for continuance and signed as one of counsel for the defendant in the action and filed that with the clerk in Carson City and presumed, after talking the matter over with Mr. Pike, that would be sufficient filing of notice of my association in the case.

Mr. Pike: Yes, I see no objection to the Court entering order recognizing George Lohse as one of counsel.

The Court: Is it you personally?

Mr. Lohse: The firm, your Honor.

BLURRED COPY

The Court: Proceed.

Mr. Gillen: May it please the Court, on the initial motion for continuance filed by Mr. Lohse on behalf of this defendant very sketchily the grounds set forth are that primarily the defendant was not given a reasonable opportunity to prepare his defense in this matter and that is based upon the fact that, as we contend, the government has, and is, withholding certain documentary evidence which it is necessary for our accountant to see and for the attorneys to see, in order to adequately present a defense in the matter.

Secondly, that the government has, by an arbitrary assessment, tied up all the available assets of the defendant in this case and that has seriously hampered the defendant in being able to have means to provide himself with adequate services of accountants, as well as counsel, and in that regard, may it please the Court, it will be noted later in the affidavits, if your Honor has not had opportunity to read those affidavits, in that regard there was a request made that there be released for the defendant for his defense certain of his liquid assets, and in that regard it was offered, and we were prepared to file, a surety bond to protect the government in the amount that the government saw fit to release to us.

Another condition was imposed by the government that we felt, as lawyers, we could not conscientiously recommend that our client comply with, and that will be set forth in the affidavits, and also that one of the complications in this matter, which makes it so difficult for us, is that there are approximately, to our knowledge, nine business enterprises involved and requires a very comprehensive study by the accountants in order to be able to furnish the attorneys with sufficient evidence to enable them to present a proper defense; and finally, may it please the Court, supporting our motion for a continuance, it is set forth that the indictment itself, being pleaded under the simplified form, there is absolutely nothing, excepting that the contention of the government is that for certain years certain amounts of taxes were due and were not paid, and although the bill of particulars was requested and refused by the government, and also the matter was taken up and upon showing in a a former matter before your Honor, we were denied bill of particulars, which leaves us in very bad position in not having sufficient accounting study, not having means to provide such a thing, not having documents to work with and not having any particulars from the government regarding its contention.

Then finally, with regard to the second motion, may it please the Court, that is based upon our contention, under Rule 16, that we have not had an adequate opportunity to inspect and obtain information from documentary evidence which the government is withholding from us and which it is the government's contention is evidence of business interests or partnerships, some of which we know about and some of which we are doubtful whether we know about and we contend, of course, that we are entitled, under the rule, to examine those documents and determine the merit of the government's contentions and to possibly explain to the government and to the Court that there is no merit in many or most of the contentions.

Now if the Court would permit me, I would like to read the supporting affidavits. There are two, one of which is made by my associate, Mr. Golden, who was before your Honor on the matter of bill of particulars, and the other made by Mr. Spurgeon Avakian, whom as your Honor is undoubtedly acquainted, is a specialist in tax law and has been appointed by Mr. Golden and myself as the technical expert in the matter, because we are just ordinary run of the mill lawyers and do not propose to know too much about tax law. With your Honor's permission, I would like to read these two affidavits and I believe they will assist your Honor to follow our motions. Shall I proceed?

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Gillen: The first is in the United States District Court for the District of Nevada, United States of America against Elmer F. Remmer, No. 12,177, "Affidavit of John R. Golden in Support of Motion for Continuance and of Motion to Inspect and Take Copies." (Reads to line 24, page 3: "* * * for the forthcoming conference with the Department of Justice: * * *" I might say to your Honor that I was in Washington, D. C. on this matter in February of 1950 and at that time it was discussed that there would be another hearing on the matter, and I might state to your Honor that through correspondence there was another hearing arranged for Mr. Avakian, who had come into the case in the interim, and I might say Mr. Avakian and I were to make that trip together, referred to in the affidavit, and in fact had our airplane reservations and reservations at the Mayflower Hotel. We were to leave the day following the day of the receipt of the letter that the contemplated conference had been arbitrarily cancelled and the matter had been referred to Mr. Pike, United States attorney in Nevada.

Now if I may proceed with the reading of this: (Continues reading to end of affidavit. Containing also the federal jurat.)

Now if I have the permission of the Court, I would like to read the further enlightening affidavit of Mr. Avakian. (Reads to line 20, page 3.) I might state I was also engaged in the same trial Mr. Campbell was engaged in at that time. (Continues reading to bottom page 3.) And this is letter from Mr. Campbell. I might state to your Honor there is a portion left out. I have a copy of the letter. We feel the portion omitted has nothing to do with this.

The Court: Unless counsel think it necessary to read the portion not in the affidavit——

Mr. Pike: That will be handled subsequently. We suggest the affidavit be read as it is.

Mr. Gillen: All right; we will read the affidavit: (Reads) L. 26, page 3—"' * * * You wish to arrange to examine such records in preparation for the trial of the case.' " Then this delated from the (Continues reading from affidavit to bottom of page 3,) And the emphasis is added by ourselves. That is the end of the letter. Resuming the affidavit: (Completes reading of the affidavit.) And bears the federal jurat.

Now I think perhaps, your Honor, it would be well for me to bring to your Honor's attention in further detail than appears in these affidavits the portion of the letter from Mr. Campbell to Mr. Avakian of November 6, 1951, which was omitted as not being pertinent, but it is pertinent because of a letter that followed from Mr. Avakian to Mr. Campbell. Probably to pick up the threat of our thoughts, we had better read the first paragraph of Mr. Campbell's letter and then the next paragraph will be the paragraph that was omitted from the letter as stated in the affidavit. This is the Walter Campbell letter to Spurgeon Avakian on November 6, 1951:

"Dear Mr. Avakian:

"Reference is made to your letter dated October 23, 1951, concerning records of some of Elmer Remmer's ventures, which records you believe are now in the possession of the Bureau of Internal Revenue. You wish to arrange to examine such records in preparation for the trial of the case."

This is the next paragraph that was omitted, your Honor:

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

"We are familiar with the circumstances under which Lawrence Semenze * * *"

That is the accountant in Reno:

"* * * under which Lawrence Semenza received some of the records in the case from Special Agent Ray A. Weaver, giving him a receipt for them, and agreed to return them to Mr. Weaver * * *. At that time Mr. Semenza had on file power of attorney, authorizing him to represent Remmer before the grand jury. At a later time return of the records was sought from Semenza, who was unable to carry out his undertaking because he had turned them over to another accountant representing Remmer. It is our belief that counsel for the taxpayer had it in their power to enable Semenza to fulfill his undertaking, but declined or refused to do so."

Mr. Campbell: Read the first sentence of the succeeding paragraph.

Mr. Gillen (Reads): "In the light of the foregoing, we do not feel justified in permitting any of the records involved in this case to leave possession."

Mr. Campbell: To leave our possession.

Mr. Gillen: Evidently an error, was omitted in the copy of the letter I have here. I suppose it should be "to leave our possession." Now, may it please the Court, Mr. Campbell then winds up his letter:

"As Mr. Remmer's representative, you are, of course, entitled to see any records of his which we may have, providing proper showing is made as to his interest * * *"

BLURRED COPY

Now you see what is happening there, may it please the Court, is that first of all we are informed that the government does have records, our accountant, Mr. Semenza, tells us he walks into a stone wall at this point. It is first admitted that the government has admitted they have records, then a condition is laid down. We have to know what the interest of the defendant was, says Mr. Campbell. Mr. Avakian counters by saying if the government contends that Mr. Remmer has an interest, isn't that sufficient, then it is up to us to find out what you content and attempt to explain it. Then Mr. Campbell puts a further condition. He says: "We have those records—if we do have the records—from third persons and you are going to have to get permission of those third persons before we can show you those records," and Mr. Avakian says, "Well, if you will tell us who those third persons are and what those records are, although we do not think we have to, we will try to get their consent and try to furnish you with the information of how many business enterprises there were"; then in his letter of November 6th Mr. Campbell goes further: "You remember something happened on the matter when the records were turned over by Mr. Weaver to Mr. Semenza and Mr. Semenza did not give them back because he did not have them, and we think one of the counsel kept that from being done," and it has been, if I may say so respectfully, it has been a matter of bringing up new conditions and playing cat and mouse. First of all, "we have certain records and if you want them, you have to tell us what the records are and you have to get permission of the people from who, we got them; maybe we have the records and maybe we don't. You tell us what the interest of Mr. Remmer was, what was the contention of Mr. Remmer as to his interest in these and you tell us who the third parties are," and we are unable to do those things and all the time admitting, under Rule 16, we are entitled to see these records.

Now there is something further interposed in this November 6th letter and that is, then Mr. Campbell says in effect "We do not trust you any more because once you got some records from us and we didn't get them back, and for that reason we do not want records to go out of our possession." We are not asking for records to go out of the government's possession. We are simply asking for rights, under Rule 16, to go and look at the records, inspect them, get the information out of them that will enable our accountant to make an intelligent analysis and will enable him fully then to prepare us for the defense in this case.

Now may it please the Court, I think in view of that little condition that is brought up here, I think it would be well if I may impose upon the Court's time to read Mr. Campbell's letter of November 6, 1951. I should like to read copy of the letter then sent by Mr. Avakian to Mr. Campbell in which, in my opinion, the Semenza incident that is bothering Mr. Campbell seems to be very fairly explained, and also the exact position of the defense. May I have your Honor's permission to read that letter.

This is on the stationery of Phillips and Avakian,

Financial Center Building, 14th at Franklin, Oakland, 12, California, and some other references to the members of the firm. It is dated November 9, 1951, addressed to Mr. Walter M. Campbell, Jr., Regional Counsel, Penal Division, Bureau of Internal Revenue, 100 McAllister Street Building, San Francisco, California:

"Dear Mr. Campbell:

"Thank you for your letter of November 6, 1951, in response to mine of October 23, 1951, in which I requested the opportunity to examine * * *"

Mind you, your Honor, "to examine," not "to take possession":

"* * * any records in the possession of the Bureau of business ventures in which Mr. Remmer had an interest.

"Your letter does not state that you do have such records in your possession, although that conclusion could be implied from your letter as a whole. You state that we are entitled to see any of Mr. Remmer's records which you may have in your possession provided the proper showing is made as to his interest and provided further that we furnish you with the written consent to such inspection of the third parties from whom the Bureau obtained the records. You also state that you can not permit us to take possession of these records because of the incident described in your letter in which Mr. Semenza was unable to return records which were released to his possession by Special Agent Weaver.

"Your letter leaves me confused and uncertain as to a number of matters, and, in addition, I believe that some clarification is needed of your understanding of the Semenza incident. To facilitate the examination by us in preparation for trial of any records which we are lawfully entitled to examine. I wish to set forth our position and request clarification of yours in the following respects:

"1. Does the Bureau now have in its possession records of businesses in which Mr. Remmer had an interest? If so, may we have the immediate opportunity to examine them for such periods of time as may be reasonable, considering the volume and contents of the records?

"2. I do not know just what you have in mind when you state that a condition of our examination of any such records is the making of a 'proper showing' as to Mr. Remmer's interest. If the government contends that Mr. Remmer has a proprietary interest in the profits of a particular business and that he is accordingly taxable on some or all of the income therefrom, does not that of itself require the government to recognize the principle that a man is entitled to examine his own records in preparation for trial? Should you not, in good faith, permit us to examine the records of all businesses which you will contend at the trial were owned either wholly or partially by Mr. Remmer? Can you tell us what type of showing you want?

"3. I can neither understand nor justify your statement that the inspection will be conditioned upon the submission of the written consent of third parties from whom such records were obtained. In the first place, we do not know what records you have nor the businesses to which they relate nor the names of the third parties from whom they were obtained. Furthermore, I know of no legal authority which requires the consent of third parties before a taxpayer can examine his own records. So far as I know, the owner of records is not only entitled to examine them, but is also entitled to possession of them. The right of the Bureau of Internal Revenue in this respect is specifically limited by Section 3614 of the Internal Revenue Code to the right 'to examine,' and even that right of examination is limited by the Fourth Amendment to the Constitution, which gives a person under criminal investigation the legal right to withhold his records from examination by the government if he desires. The limited time between now and the commencement of the trial on November 28 makes it impractical for us to obtain a ruling from the court on this matter. Whatever our feelings may be as to the illegality and unfairness of the Bureau's position, we are forced as a practical matter to meet whatever conditions you may impose upon our examination of these records, if that will enable us to prepare for the trial. Accordingly, if the government insists upon our furnishing the written consent of such third parties, will you please advise us immediately of the names and addresses of such third parties and of the particular records which they turned over to the government, so that we can seek to locate these people and request their written consent. It is to be understood, however, that our compliance with this condition would be under protest and would not be construed as a relinquishment in any manner of any of the rights of our client.

"The denial of our Motion for Bill of Particulars leaves us in a difficult position for preparation of trial. The indictment alleges only a total sum as the net income for each year. Although Mr. Remmer reported income from a number of different enterprises during this period, the indictment does not state what his correct income from each enterprise is alleged to be. We do not know whether you are challenging the correctness of the reported income from all of these enterprises or only some of them. Neither do we know, as to any particular enterprise whether you are questioning the total income of the enterprise or only the percentage allocable to Mr. Remmer. The task of analyzing these complex factors has been aggravated by the fact that, since 1948, Mr. Remmer's assets have been frozen by tax liens based on arbitrary assessments now aggregating over $800,000. This has made it impossible for him to retain the necessary accounting and legal advisors to litigate the validity of that assessment or to make timely preparation for the criminal case. In 1950, Mr. Golden offered to post a surety company bond fully protecting the government, if the government would release a few thousand dollars. The Treasury Department refused to release any portion of the funds except on bond covering the entire assessment. That, of course, was an impossible as well as unnecessary condition. In March of 1951, immediately after I entered the case, the request of Mr. Golden was renewed, and the Bureau's Washington office communicated to us, through you, its willingness to release a portion of Mr. Remmer's assets, in order that he might finance his preparation for trial, but only on condition that he first submit a detailed financial statement showing his assets and liabilities at that time. That condition was also impossible, since the financial statement could be prepared only after the accounting work was done, and in addition it would require the expense of a current audit, as well as one covering the years 1944-46. Furthermore, that condition seemed unnecessary, because we were willing to protect the government with a surety bond covering the amount of assets released." In other words, it just became a vicious circle. If you tell us everything you have in mind as to your assets, we will release you some money, so that you can make an analysis of your assets. We say, "Well, we will put up a surety bond, but we can't tell you what our assets are without having an accountant, whom we need money to pay to make the analysis, so we will be able to tell you what our assets were." We are just going around in a circle.

Resuming the letter, may it please the Court:

"The result of all these factors has been to place grave obstacles in the way of our effective representation of our client. Whether intentionally or not, the government has effectively curtailed Mr. Remmer's ability to have his case prepared adequately.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

You already know my views in that regard, and I believe you know my feeling that if you personally had held full responsibility in this matter, we would have been treated with fairness more becoming to a democratic government. I repeat these facts to emphasize the importance to us of having access to the records in question at the earliest possible date, and not as any criticism of you. We realize that government policy is dictated by many people.

"You subsequently informed me that your Washington office was willing to accept a detailed list of assets and liabilities, without valuation. That was somewhat less burdensome than the earlier condition but still would require considerable accounting, and it was equally unnecessary since the bond would fully protect the government.

"4. Your reference to the Semenza incident is written in such a way as to indicate criticism of Mr. Remmer's counsel for not furnishing the records in that case. You state that at some time in the past, Special Agent Weaver had turned certain of Mr. Remmer's records over to his accountant, Lawrence Semenza, on the understanding that the latter would return them to him on notice. You state that 'at a later time return of the records was sought from Semenza, who was unable to carry out his undertaking because he had turned them over to another accountant representing Remmer. It is our belief that counsel for the taxpayer * * * had it in their power to enable Semenza to fulfill his undertaking, but declined or refused to do so.' You will recall that the request of Mr. Semenza to return the records in question was in the form of a subpoena from the grand jury served upon him very shortly before the session of the grand jury at which he was directed to appear, in April, 1951. Mr. Semenza learned from inquiry of the other accountant that the records were in the office of John R. Golden, who had been counsel for Mr. Remmer in connection with this matter for some time, and still is. Because Mr. Golden, a reserve officer, was at that time engaged in two weeks of active military service in the Army, Mr. Semenza contacted me, and you will recall that I then telephoned you and advised you in substance as follows:

"a. Since I had just been associated into the case I did not know the contents or significance of the records in question.

"b: Because Mr. Remmer's assets had been frozen for over two years by a tax lien and because the government had declined to release any portion of these funds, even though we had offered to post a bond fully protecting the government with respect to the portion released, it had been impossible to finance an accounting analysis of the records or of the case generally.

"c. I did not know the names of the third parties from whom Mr. Weaver had initially obtained the records or whether he had obtained them in the manner provided by law. Furthermore, I did not feel that his return of them to Mr. Remmer's representatives was a matter of charity on his part, since Mr. Remmer, as the owner of the records, was entitled to them at all times anyway, and the government at most had the right of inspection, not of possession. Accordingly, any condition exacted by Mr. Weaver from Mr. Remmer's accountant without the knowledge and consent of Mr. Remmer or his lawyers was of no legal effect.

"d. Mr. Remmer was out of town and Mr. Golden, although stationed at the San Francisco Presidio, would not be available for extended consultation until a few days later.

"e. If you would advise me in at least a general way as to the contents or significance of the records in question, I would then be in a position to make an intelligent appraisal of the matter and possibly feel free to make the records available on my own responsibility. You stated that you did not feel free to disclose such matters. I told you that a relinquishment of such papers to the grand jury by Mr. Remmer's attorney might be construed as a waiver of his constitutional rights, and that I felt I would be violating my professional responsibilities as a lawyer if I took such action without first consulting my client, particularly since I was in ignorance of the facts and you were not in a position to enlighten me. I further pointed out to you that the primary reason for my unfamiliarity with the accounting features of the case was the government's refusal to release assets (even on a bond) to permit us to finance the extensive accounting analysis this case requires, and the government's further refusal to give us any indication of the issues of the case (contrary to the general practice in such cases.) As you knew at the time, the government even cancelled a conference in Washington which had been scheduled for a date several weeks in advance of the indictment.

BLURRED COPY

"f. I further stated to you that, under all these circumstances, I did not feel that we should be asked to decide, in a period of a day or two, and without consultation with our client, an important matter affecting his constitutional rights, particularly since the government, up to that point, had denied to us the benefit of administrative conferences customary in cases of this kind. Realizing the possible embarrassment to Mr. Semenza, I suggested for your consideration the possibility of subpoenaing Mr. Golden before the grand jury, since he was the person in actual possession of the records. In that way, the grand jury could have had the records without any waiver of Mr. Remmer's legal rights.

"I regret that you feel that we acted improperly in that regard. Even if we were wrong, however, I do not see that the government has been prejudiced. In the seven months which have elapsed since the grand jury session, the government has not directly or indirectly requested an opportunity to examine these records, which would indicate their relative unimportance to the government. In any event, it has been my consistent experience that Special Agents do not voluntarily reliquish taxpayers' records without first carefully copying or summarizing all pertinent information, and I doubt that Mr. Weaver was negligent in that regard.

"I trust that you will promptly arrange for examination of these records by us, in view of the imminent trial date. Since you have been engaged in a trial continuously during the past six weeks, it has been impossible to discuss this matter with you directly except for several very brief telephone conversations. I appreciate that the requirements of that trial on your time have prevented you from giving extended consideration of this problem; and I can understand that, as a lawyer bound to protect the government's interest, you did not want to decide this matter without careful thought, any more than I wanted to make a hurried and haphazard decision last April in the Semenza incident mentioned above.

"Now that your trial has been concluded, I hope that you can give immediate attention to this matter.

"Sincerely yours,

"SPURGEON AVAKIAN."

May it please the Court—you have indulged me very kindly in reading all these matters—I thought they would be helpful to your Honor—may it please the Court, our suggestion is simply this: Of course from the very outset—and I say this, we try to be brave as possible and not cry babies—but from the very outset in this case we have received from the hands of the government special treatment within my knowledge, because I attended a conference in Washington in February, as I told your Honor, that initially we were specifically told that the year 1944 was not being considered in this investigation at all and then at a very late date in December, either November or December, I am sure it was December, of 1949 we were suddenly told that 1944 now was being considered by the government and we had better hurry and do something because the statute was running and thereafter, of course, we were given special treatment by having a promised conference cancelled arbitrarily and the matter being directed to the attention of Mr. Pike here and the machinery set in motion for indicting the defendant in this case, and also the fact that the defendant was practically put in a straight jacket, from a financial standpoint, to properly prepare himself so he could explain his position, but is called upon to walk the plank, so-called, bindfolded, not knowing what the government has had or contends, because of the simplified form of pleading and because of the various other things that were done to place obstacles in his path. I want to say, not facetiously, in this particular country, which is noted for its outdoor sportsmen, a mallard duck at the hands of the hunter would be given fairer treatment and given a chance at least to get out of the way than Mr. Remmer has been given thus far by the government. I do not say that facetiously. It is probably a trite comparison, but that is the fact of the matter and whoever is responsible for it, I don't know, but there have been things done here so that we run around in a circle and we find doors closed on us at every turn and we are in a position now that we are compelled to go to trial without proper preparation, or without opportunity to examine these documents. Whether they have merit or not, we do not know; how they were obtained, whether obtained in an unlawful seizure, concerning which the United States government is very strict in our courts, we do not. All those things we would like to go into and have the right to go into those things and if we are forced to go to trial November 28th, we are going into trial in such an important case, with so many complexities, wholly unprepared to give our client proper representation.

BLURRED COPY

May it please the Court, it may be pointed out to your Honor by opposing counsel here that it is a long list of attorneys that have from time to time stepped in and out of the scene in connection with Mr. Remmer's affairs and there have also been several accountants who have appeared briefly and have left the scene and now disappeared, and that is entirely true, and the explanation for the whole thing why the man had so many attorneys that came and went is the fact that the man has never had the adequate means to retain those attorneys and those accountants and it is only people who were willing—if I may use the term—to gamble with him and help him out, because we feel he is being placed at a very great disadvantage and an injustice is being worked upon him, that he has the services of the attorneys he has now and the services of Mr. Semenza.

I submit the matter to your Honor.

Mr. Pike: Your Honor please, in order that there may be no lack of clarity as to the government's position, government's counsel are obliged to resist, and do oppose, a granting of both motion for continuance of trial date, which is presently November 28, 1951, and the motion for an inspection and to make copies of the records.

As Mr. Walter Campbell's name appears in the affidavits, reference has been made to him in the correspondence likewise read to the Court this morning, he will present factually to the court matters as to the reasonableness and the timeliness of these motions. It is noted by the Court at the outset, of course, that many of these matters referred to in the affidavits are antecedent and many of them are not antecedent. As stated in Mr. Spurgeon Avakian's letter of November 9, 1951, to Mr. Walter Campbell, some seven months have elapsed since the return of the indictment in this case, and whoever may have been counsel for the defendant prior to that time, it appears that at least for the last seven months past all of the present counsel for Mr. Remmer have continued in that capacity. This case was initially set for trial on the 7th of November of this year and then, due to circumstances in connection with a case that lasted longer than contemplated——

The Court: It was first set for trial November 7th.

Mr. Pike: Correct.

The Court: And then because the Court was engaged in an action that required a week or ten days longer than expected, we had to move the present case back from November 7th to November 28th.

Mr. Pike: Correct. We have subpoenaed witnesses, we are prepared to go to trial, and the government opposes the granting of either of these motions.

Now as to the motion to inspect the records, it is recognized that under Rule 16 there are rights given to inspect and it is not an arbitrary attitude to deprive the taxpayer or the defendant in this case of any of his substantial rights, but as will be developed factually before the Court, those rights have been exercised, at least in very large part, as will be demonstrated to the Court by Mr. Campbell, so I reiterate that we are obliged to resist on behalf of the government both of these motions.

Mr. Campbell: If the Court please, if I may be heard very briefly. I filed with the clerk of the court this morning a rather hastily prepared affidavit, which has also been served upon opposing counsel, the moving paper having been served on me and Mr. Pike on Tuesday of this week. I will read this affidavit, except for portions which will be portions as set forth by affidavits read by Mr. Gillen: (Reads to Line 18, page 2 of affidavit—"* * * appear in his behalf; * * *"

Parenthetically I say that applies not only to attorneys appearing in his behalf but also to accountants appearing in his behalf.

Might I state parenthetically that the last power referred to in this affidavit is the present power of attorney which is pending before the Department and so far as my knowledge at this time is concerned, there have been no revocations by the defendant in this case or withdrawal by any of the attorneys or the accountant mentioned, so that it would appear of his present representation that of Paul Dillon, attorney-at-law, has continued since April 29, 1949, Lawrence Semenza, certified Accountant, since June 2, 1949, at the very least that of other attorneys that now appear in this case, William K. Woodburn, John P. Thatcher, Leslie Gillen and Paul Dillon, as attorneys-at-law, since March 10, 1950. Reading from the affidavit again: (Reads commencing Line 6, Page 3, to Line 18.) And I, in the affidavit, state the letter to Mr. Avakian, which sets out in full reply of November 6, 1951, which has heretofore been read. And the affidavit concludes:

BLURRED COPY

"That by reason of the foregoing affiant believes and therefore states the fact to be that the defendant has had ample opportunity to prepare the defense of his case and that the motions for a continuance and for inspection of records should be denied."

Now, if the Court please, in connection with this case there did come into possession of the government records of certain businesses. None of these records were placed in the government's possession by the defendant in this case, nor were any of his personal records as such given to the government by the defendant or by any of his representatives. The government is still in possession of certain fragmentary records which were delivered to the government by third parties and which relate to such enterprises as One Ten Eddy Street; referred to 186 Club, Menlo Club, and certain miscellaneous cancelled checks and bank statements of various purported businesses. In addition to those records the government also previously had in its possession, and obtained from third parties—I might say none of the records referred to which I am referring, or any of the records in connection with this case, were obtained by the government either by process or by seizure; all records were given voluntarily to the government by third parties.

As stated in the affidavit, in connection with work which Mr. Semenza was doing, which was prior to the indictment in this case, Mr. Semenza called upon Special Agents for permission to examine those records in connection with certain work he was doing for Mr. Remmer. It was found more convenient for Mr. Semenza to take those to his office. Mr. Semenza, of course, is a highly reputable certified accountant in this State. Inasmuch as the records have been obtained from third parties, to whom the Special Agent, of course, owed a responsibility to return them if called for, whatever their original sources are, the receipt from Mr. Semenza was obtained to agree, if they became necessary for purposes of the government, to restore them to the Special Agent. Prior to the indictment, and in preparing the present case to the grand jury, Mr. Semenza was called upon for the return of those records. To his embarrassment he found that they had been placed, without his approval, by reason of the fact that Mr. Friedman, another accountant—his appearance in the case is shown by powers of attorney—he turned these records to Mr. Friedman, who in turn in November, when he terminated his employment, turned them over to Mr. Golden. It was the government's position, and is now, that both Mr. Semenza and Mr. Golden, so far as the Treasury Department were concerned, were attorneys of record and both had power of attorney, giving them the right to appear for and on behalf of the defendant Remmer. We therefore, as appears from the correspondence, feel it was a situation of one attorney, joined co-counsel, you might say, refusing to honor the obligations or undertaking which had been entered into in good faith by Mr. Semenza. Be that as it may, however, Mr. Semenza was given a subpoena duces tecum, but he repeated substantially the same story before the grand jury that he was unable to produce them. I do not believe there was no responsibility of Mr. Avakian to continue to make further requests of defendant's counsel when they had so clearly indicated that they would not return these records. Possibly it is true that because of that experience, the government has insisted, and does insist, upon the letter of its rights, so far as these records are concerned.

Now I might state to the Court that these records, to which counsel previously referred, the records which are still in possession of the government, have been examined, and I believe in detail, by the representatives of the defendant Remmer. That examination was conducted as a result of conference had with counsel and representatives of the taxpayer. I might state parenthetically there have been so many accountants and certified public accountants all at the same time representing this man, I do not presume probably any one of them knows the entire story of the transactions, but nevertheless, by reason of arrangements, made by Mr. Golden in behalf of Mr. Friedman, who also had power of attorney and is a certified public accountant of San Francisco, access was given to him of these records during the time of his employment. I am advised Mr. Friedman, together with some associated accountant in his office, spent approximately a week going over these records. Whether or not the information contained is available to their defense counsel, I do not know. I presume it is. However, that is a basis of our resisting this motion at this late date, because the defense has had in its possession, or the possession of representatives of the defendant, the information which they now seek.

Now I wish to add this. There has been considerable made about the letter which I sent to Mr. Avakian under date of November 6th. As I stated here, and as I stated to Mr. Avakian and stated as early as May 25, 1950, to Mr. Golden, and Mr. Golden represented the taxpayer, we had obtained these records from third parties and therefore we had to protect the custody of those records. All that we have asked here with their motion under Rule 16, is that they make some showing that these records are the records of Mr. Remmer. The rule is very clear and concise. It states:

BLURRED COPY

"Upon motion of a defendant at any time after the filing of the indictment or information, the court may order the attorney for the government to permit the defendant to inspect and copy or photograph designated books, papers, documents or tangible objects, obtained from or belonging to the defendant or obtained from others by seizure or by process, upon a showing that the items sought may be material to the preparation of his defense and that the request is reasonable * * *" etc.

And certain of those alternatives should be eliminated. We have no records which were obtained from the defendant. We have no records which were obtained by seizure or by process. It leaves the alternative set forth in the section of "records belonging to the defendant but obtained from others," and giving them inspection of those. We have sought in our condition that the defendant make some showing, some representation that they are his records, before we permit that inspection. That is simply what the matter amounts to.

Now so far as release of funds which were taken under jeopardy, as your Honor is aware, the government has the right and it is an unusual power and rarely exercised, where the Commissioner feels, has reason to believe—must be based on reasonable cause—that the interest of the government require, for fear of dissipation or destruction or disappearance of assets of the taxpayer against whom a claim is pending that that might occur, the Commissioner has the right to levy a jeopardy assessment and file liens clouding the title of property belonging to the taxpayer. In this instance, without going into the reasons, because they are not material here, the Commissioner exercised that legal right and there is at the present time some $35,000 in cash which is tied up in escrow in Reno. The defendant, through counsel, has sought that the Commisisoner exercise a discretion in levying his lien to the extent that this fund of $35,000 can be released for the use of Mr. Remmer in his defense. The Commissioner requires that a proper showing be made that it is necessary that these funds be released and for that purpose the Commissioner has required, and does in all cases require, that where such a levy is proposed that the taxpayer himself show that he does not have other funds with which he can meet those matters, so as to justify the Commissioner in releasing that money which the government has, and it is for that reason that the Commissioner requested of the defendant here, through me, that a present statement of assets, which would have no effect that I could see upon the issues of the case to be tried, because we are asking what he has today, not what he had back in 1944, '45 and '46—we are asking for his statement of assets and liabilities, in order that the Commissioner may determine that there exists a need and that he is without funds otherwise to protect himself. As I say, however, that is an administrative matter in which the Commissioner is clothed with a discretionary power and it seems to me it is not an abusive discretion on the part of the Commissioner, and, of course, the matter of whether or not it is an abuse is not before this Court in any proceeding pending here, but it clearly would not be an abuse of discretion for the Commissioner to require, over the signature and oath of the defendant, that he does require these funds, that he does not have assets available which are not tied up, with which he can defend himself.

I wish to point out to the Court there are several matters in these affidavits, of course, in this last letter of Mr. Avakian, which was read to the Court, which I just received Tuesday afternoon, there are various matters which we do seriously controvert. However, I do not think that is material to the matter here, other than to point out, so far as accounting preparation of this defendant is concerned, there has been ample opportunity afforded the defendant on that prior to his indictment and that about seven months has elapsed since his indictment, with which to prepare these matters; that statement in the affidavit that Mr. Semenza finally agreed in September of this year to undertake the representation, by reason of the fact that Mr. Semenza's power of attorney to represent this man has been on file continuously since 1949, and as I said, to our knowledge, Mr. Semenza did secure certain of the records, which are still in possession of defendant's counsel, for the purpose of representing Mr. Remmer.

So under all these circumstances, if the Court please, I wish to join with Mr. Pike opposing the granting of either of these motions.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

Mr. Gillen: I would like to reply briefly, may it please the Court, to some of the observations made by counsel. May this remark be received with the spirit in which it is given to the Court.

I might say this, your Honor, I am not totally ignorant of the problems that beset the gentlemen who sit on the opposite side of the table. I have never held as prominent position as either, but for as long as 13 years I was senior control deputy for the district attorney in San Francisco, and we did adhere, not only to our consciences or sense of morals, but to the admonitions many times given by the Court to members in our profession and the District Court of the United States, as well as the Supreme Court and many of our States, that prosecutors of a person should be as concerned that the person has an opportunity to fairly defend and he should not be put at an undue disdvantage, as they are concerned with bringing to justice a person that should be brought to justice. Now I should feel, if I were back in my old position as a prosecutor for the State of California and my native city San Francisco, that placing so many un-American obstacles in one's way, I should feel I would be starting the case at a decided mental disadvantage and that I should be starting the case at a decided disadvantage before any fair-minded persons who are going to be the triers of the fact.

May I say this to your Honor, Mr. Pike mentioned that one of his concerns in this case was that witnesses had been subpoenaed. Of course I know—I have a very high regard for Mr. Pike—which concerns him most, whether witnesses be discommoded or injustice be done to a man, Mr. Pike unhesitatingly would say his greater concern would be that a man have a fair trial than that a witness come over or the government maybe take the trouble to telephone and say, "Instead of answering that subpoena for such and such a date, you will have to answer it for such and such a date."

Mr. Campbell mentioned the affidavit set forth the number of attorneys and two accountants for whom powers of attorney had been given. I might state this to your Honor. Within my knowledge there were in all three attorneys until Mr. Blakey and Mr. Lohse appeared, who have ever taken any part since this investigation was set in motion. That was Mr. Hurley of New York, Mr. Golden and myself, and I can say to your Honor that the reason for giving powers of attorney at these various points, such as attorneys in Nevada, Washington, and so on, was because of the facts of the case, because of the lack of funds on the defendant's part to be able to ship attorneys all over the country because the case was in Nevada and there was the necessity of going to Washington, D. C., and there were arrangements made for attorneys to appear, but they never took an active part. There were only three attorneys until Mr. Blakey coming into the picture and now Mr. Lohse, under the file requiring a local counsel, who took an active part, and I might state to your Honor on the occasion of my trip to Washington in February, that I was then actually in Washington, D. C., on another income tax matter and I, so to speak, gave Mr. Remmer the benefit of my feeble efforts, which proved to be very feeble, in the conference which was held in Washington, D. C.

Now there is another observation I would like to make in connection with something that was said by Mr. Campbell, and that is this—Mr. Campbell advises your Honor of something with which your Honor was undoubtedly familiar before, advises your Honor that it is the concern of the Commissioner that when he has good reason to believe that a taxpayer still owes money to the government and when there are available and in sight belonging to that taxpayer, and when there is the fear that arises in his mind that the taxpayer might dissipate those funds that rightfully should go to pay his taxes, that then in that event, as an administrative matter, under the law, he may direct that arbitrary assessment, government lien, be placed upon that property. For why? For the reason that he wants to preserve that property to make it available for taxes should it ultimately develop more taxes are due the government, and that is fair enough. Then Mr. Campbell said in this instance, when Mr. Remmer wanted to withdraw some of his funds, even though he was willing and in a position to put up by surety bond, corporate surety bond to insure the government against losing a dime of whatever part of the liquid assets they released, cash they released, he said the Commissioner wanted to know, did Mr. Remmer really need the money, the defendant? Might he have some other assets? Did he really need the money? Of course, it must be obvious to your Honor that the only concern at that point of the Commissioner was, "I have in my possession, or at least under lien, subject to any taxes that may develop, these assets to make that assessment. Now if in substitution thereof I have a corporate surety bond which assures the government, which is the same as money only in another name, that should be my concern, and not my concern whether Mr. Remmer is being prudent about how he spends his money for counsel fees or accountancy fees.

I want to say one other thing, your Honor. I discussed this with my associate and I did not know a point was going to be made this morning and therefore I am not prepared with affidavit on the point. Mr. Campbell mentioned the fact that considerable time ago there was made available, not the records that we are concerned with, but some of the records, to a Mr. Friedman, who was for a brief period of time an accountant. Well, if your Honor will receive it, I can only tell you this, that Mr. Friedman did engage in certain conferences and did set about to make an analysis and did require some money for his services, which we were unable to pay, and did move out of the case and pass into the limbo of those others who were named in powers of attorney but failed to take any active part. Now it is my information, may it please the Court, from my associate—and I say this is not a matter under the oath and dignity of an affidavit, because I did not know a point was going to be made of it—it is my information from my associate—if your Honor wishes an affidavit, I am sure I can obtain one as quickly as I can get one from San Francisco —that Mr. Golden and Mr. Friedman did hold conferences with government officials at any early stage in this case and that it developed that the government had quite an abundance of records and that the accountant and attorneys were told that those records would be made available to them for their inspection. This is my information from my association, that Mr. Friedman and one of his men went down to the government office and it is my information that they did not spend any time at all, not a week or several days, but according to my associate, in very short order—as a matter of fact, after perhaps half a day, as I get the information— Mr. Friedman returned to Mr. Golden and told Mr. Golden that there was such a mass of stuff dissembled, in such bad form, that it would take several of Mr. Friedman's men and himself a considerable period of time to sort out the stuff and get it in shape to be able to examine it and know what it might mean, and that that would take considerable time and amount to considerable expense and Mr. Friedman did not feel he would be able to undertake even examining into those documents without a substantial payment, and he pointed out to Mr. Golden, where he was willing to be more or less generous with his own personal time, although he wanted to be paid for his services, still in regard to junior accountants he employed, he had to meet pay rolls for them and he couldn't undertake such a monumental job without having a substantial retainer to go over those things, and that is the information in my hands from my associate regarding that incident that Mr. Campbell referred to.

BLURRED COPY

Now may it please the Court, you have been very indulgent with us and I submit the matter.

The Court: I have a recollection of the hearing June 15th in Carson City on motion for bill of particulars. I think at the conclusion of that hearing the Court suggested that counsel confer with Mr. Golden and Mr. Pike and the suggestion was made that certain information be furnished Mr. Golden at that time and I also recollect that the Court at the time, in the event Mr. Golden did not receive the cooperation from Mr. Pike that the Court indicated that should be given, he could apply to the Court later. Now no application of that kind has been made in relation to those proceedings June 15th. Now am I to understand from what we have heard here today all of the records, which are the subject matter of the present motion to inspect, were at some time given to Mr. Friedman or made available to him for inspection?

Mr. Campbell: That is my understanding.

Mr. Gillen: I do not know about all of the records. I will put it this way—there is no question that there was a substantial amount of records in Mr. Campbell's office, or some adjacent office, shown to Mr. Friedman, but Mr. Friedman, as I told your Honor, reported that it would be so expensive to do he could not do it and at that time there was request made for the release of $35,000, to be protected by bonds, so we might spend that money for that very purpose.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

Mr. Campbell: I might state my understanding is among those records shown Mr. Friedman on that occasion were those which were since subsequently delivered to Mr. Semenza.

Mr. Gillen: Some of them were. May I ask your Honor to keep this in mind, as indicated in Mr. Avakian's affidavit and letter, that it was not until October of 1951 that Mr. Avakian came up here on the 18th and 19th with Mr. Golden and had consultation with Mr. Semenza, that Mr. Avakian and Mr. Golden were made acquainted with the fact that Mr. Semenza was not in position, or had not had an opportunity to see certain records and that he could not make a complete analysis without those and that was the time that Mr. Avakian immediately, upon his return to his office on the 20th of October, appealed to Mr. Campbell to afford us an opportunity to make an examination of those records.

The Court: Now am I also to understand that the matter of releasing assets and accepting surety bond for the funds released, am I to understand that this is an administrative matter, to be determined by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue?

Mr. Campbell: That is correct, your Honor.

The Court: So the ruling concerned with that question, there is not an application to this Court for order requiring the Commissioner to release assets. The only reference to that failure to have assets released is to show cause why delay has been had in this matter.

Mr. Gillen: To show our diligence, your Honor, and to show the reason for our present predicament.

The Court: Now, of course, I feel the Court would have no power to make such order. That is a matter of discretion and perhaps could not be subject to review under administrative act.

Mr. Gillen: I think it would be subject to review in appellate proceeding.

The Court: It may be, but here suppose a motion of this kind, Notice of Motion to Inspect and Take Copies, if that motion had been made prior to the time Mr. Friedman entered into the picture, these subsequent funds would amount to a full compliance with an order of the Court granting that motion. The defendant has had all the benefits that the Court could give, the benefit by an order under Rule 16.

Mr. Gillen: No, I do not think so, your Honor, because of this, your Honor—although we know that there was a bundle of records, we do not know that those records contain these particular records which Mr. Semenza needs.

The Court: An examination of that bundle of records were made available to his auditor or counsel. Of course, what took place between the auditor or the accountant and defendant and counsel, can not seem to be chargeable to the government or go to show that the government had not been considerate of the defendant's rights.

Mr. Gillen: Well, as to these new records, as your Honor is informed by the affidavits, Mr. Semenza advised Mr. Avakian and Mr. Golden that those records had not been made available to him, concerning some number of business enterprises in which Mr. Remmer is supposed to have a partnership. We do not know what those are.

The Court: If there had been refusal on the part of the government to allow inspection under Rule 16, I would be inclined to feel——

Mr. Gillen: May I respectfully say there has been a refusal.

The Court: I can not see it that way. I think when the accountant Friedman was given access to these records under Rule 16, that takes care of that situation.

Mr. Gillen: I do not think so, your Honor, for this reason, if I may respectfully say so—we do not know, and we suspect, that these are not records that were contained among the records that were made available to Mr. Friedman.

The Court: All right, take it from this view then. I think it is admitted—the Court at least had heard enough here, to authorize the Court to consider that Mr. Friedman had access to these records. Now something happened. He found them in an involved state of confusion, going to require some money, some time, to analyze those records. That was a long time ago.

Mr. Gillen: That is right, your Honor.

The Court: Then why wasn't the motion that was filed on the 14th of November filed at that time?

Mr. Gillen: I will tell you why, your Honor.

BLURRED COPY

Because, as indicated by Mr. Avakian's letter and Mr. Avakian's affidavit, he said, "it was just brought to my attention that the Government has certain records which we have never seen and which our accountant has never seen and therefore, Mr. Campbell, we are asking you to make those records available for inspection."

The Court: We have no showing of the poverty of this defendant except by relaying. All we have is what he told counsel.

Mr. Gillen: You have the oath of Mr. Golden in his affidavit.

The Court: Mr. Golden tells us what Mr. Remmer told him.

Mr. Gillen: Mr. Golden tells you he received no money.

The Court: That does not show us that Mr. Remmer may not have assets to take care of funds. There is no substantial showing here from which the Court would be authorized to say Mr. Remmer is destitute.

Mr. Gillen: Well, the question is now——

The Court (Interceding): This situation could go on forever. It may be some present counsel acting for Mr. Remmer would be tired of serving.

Mr. Gillen: I have never walked out on a client in 24 years of practice.

The Court: The motion for continuance is denied and motion for inspection is denied and the case will be held on the 28th of November, 1951, at Carson City as set.

DEFENDANT'S CHALLENGE FOR CAUSE TO JUROR JOHN W. HUMPHREY

November 28, 1951—Carson City, Nevada

John W. Humphrey, Reno, Nevada, employed by Sierra Pacific Power Company, having been drawn as a prospective juror, was questioned by the Court generally and specifically, as follows:

The Court: Now, ladies and gentlemen, you have heard a statement of the nature of this case. Have any of you heard anything other than the statement of this case; in other words, do you know anything about this case? Have you heard any one discuss this case with you? I want to be sure you understand this question. Have any of you heard about this case before you came into court today?

Mr. Humphrey: I have read it in the paper.

Q. (By the Court): Did what you read amount to any more than what you have heard in this statement? A. No, just about the same.

Q. Anything you read, did it leave with you an impression as to whether or not the charge was true, or any opinion as to whether the charge was true?

A. I am afraid I did form an opinion.

Q. You formed an opinion in the case from just what you read in the papers? A. Yes.

Q. That is all you know about the case?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Have you discussed the case with any one who knew anything of the facts? A. No, sir.

Q. Have you any idea what the evidence in this case will be? A. No, I do not.

Q. All you know is that the defendant is charged with this offense? A. Yes, sir.

The Court: Any one else here who has read about the case? I suppose several of you have, but the mere reading about this case, has that left with you an opinion as to the guilt or innocence of the defendant?

Juror Coletti: I have heard gamblers at my bar.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

The Court: Did they claim to know anything about the evidence?

A. (Mr. Coletti): They thought they did. I don't know whether they did or not.

Q. And the conversation that you had with gamblers has left an impression on you, or an opinion one way or another?

Mr. Coletti: Yes, sir.

The Court: It would be difficult then for you to sit in this case and listen to this evidence and free your mind from the opinion or impression you gained in your conversations with other people?

Mr. Coletti: I don't know.

The Court: From what you have heard, if you were asked to give a decision, could you give a decision one way or another at this time?

Mr. Coletti: Well, from what I have heard, I think I could.

The Court: Any objection to excusing this juror?

Mr. Thompson: We have no objection, your Honor.

The Court: Any challenges for cause?

Mr. Lohse: Your Honor, the defense has no objection to the excusing of either Mr. Hillygus or Mr. Humphrey.

After further questioning of other jurors:

Mr. Lohse: At this time I thought your Honor was going to pursue the questioning of the prospective juror, J. W. Humphrey.

The Court: Just let me proceed here.

BLURRED COPY

Mr. Lohse: Your Honor please, on behalf of the defendant, may I challenge one of the jurors?

The Court: Wait a minute. I want to know if you have any further questions to suggest.

The Court: Any challenge for cause?

Mr. Lohse: Your Honor please, at this time we will challenge the juror Humphrey for cause. If the Court please, Mr. Humphrey expressed the opinion that he was prejudiced against gamblers particularly.

The Court: I did not hear him say so.

Mr. Lohse: I believe he did.

The Court: You did not make any such statement?

Mr. Humphrey: Not at all.

Mr. Lohse: I understood so. Perhaps it was erroneous.

The Court: Well, he did not.

Mr. Lohse: I thought he expressed an opinion he would not be able to fairly judge the defendant because——

Mr. Humphrey: I said I might, because of the occupation——

The Court (Interceding): You have heard what we tried to explain about duties of jurors. You would not find a man guilty unless you believed him guilty beyond a reasonable doubt?

Mr. Humphrey: I would not.

The Court: And you wouldn't find him guilty of the offense charged because he worked some place you didn't think a good place to work?

Mr. Humphrey: No.

The Court: The challenge is denied.

Mr. Lohse: We note an exception, your Honor.

HEARING OF CONTEMPT OF COURT OF DAVID N. KESSEL AND WALTER M. PECHART

(In the Absence of the Jury.)

Present: Walter M. Campbell, Jr., Esq., Miles N. Pike, Esq., Bruce R. Thompson, Esq., Attorneys for Plaintiff.
Charles J. Wiseman, Esq., Joseph P. Haller, Esq., Attorneys for David N. Kessel and Walter M. Pechart.
David N. Kessel and Walter M. Pechart.

The Court: We have two matters to consider this morning before we proceed with the trial. Mr. Kessel was called as a witness yesterday and I want to be sure that we understand the state of the record. The question propounded to Mr. Kessel was "Do you know Mr. Remmer's occupation?"

Mr. Campbell: That is correct, your Honor.

The Court: And the witness refused to answer the question and was ordered by the Court to answer the question, for the reason that it appeared to the Court that a response to the question would not present a reasonable danger of incrimination of the witness.

In regard to the witness Pechart, the question was asked, as I recollect it—I want to be sure that

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

I have the right understanding—the record here shows the situation as I think we have stated in regard to the witness Kessel—Monday morning, May 10, 1951, the question:

> "Do you know Mr. Remmer's occcupation?
> "A. I refuse to answer the question.
> "Q. Upon what ground?
> "A. Tend to incriminate me.
> "Mr. Campbell: I press the question.
> "The Court: Well, you will be detained until tomorrow morning at 10:00 o'clock. You are committed to the custody of the marshal and you have counsel and in the meantime you may consult counsel. You will have a hearing tomorrow morning at 10:00 o'clock on your refusal to answer. You are now committed to the custody of the marshal."

So I think probably it would be well to take these cases individually.

Mr. Wiseman: Yes, your Honor.

The Court: The legal argument, I presume, would perhaps be the same.

Mr. Wiseman: It would apply to both, your Honor.

The Court: The present impression I have is, and I would like to be informed on the question fully, of course, that the privileges invoked here is to protect against possible prosecution or incrimination of an offense defined by the State law, not federal law. The question which Mr. Kessel refused to answer: "Do you know Mr. Remmer's occupation? A. I refuse to answer the question," do you contend that that has to do with the federal law?

Mr. Wiseman: Yes, your Honor.

The Court: What federal law?

Mr. Wiseman: If I may be permitted to explain.

The Court: Yes, I would like to know what your position is because if we could agree on some of the principles it would save some time.

Mr. Wiseman: I very respectfully might say to your Honor that in the opinion of counsel there was no contempt of any order your Honor made yesterday. I think the record will sustain there was no order in the record given to the witness Kessel to answer the question and respectfully I submit to your Honor he was not in contempt yesterday or at this time of any direction of the Court.

It is not, as your Honor suggested, that a question that may, upon the face of it disclose a possible offense against a State law is the grounds upon which this witness invoked his constitutional right against self-incrimination. Now preliminarly, your Honor, a witness—and I think it should be conceded—is entitled to invoke his constitutional right against self-incrimination at any time or upon any occasion and upon any court. Now in order for the Court—and I think the authorities sustain the statement—in order for the Court to pass upon the question as to whether or not the privileges may be exercised, the Court may inquire, and should inquire, into the grounds, so that you, in determination of whether or not he should or should not answer the question, can thereupon pass upon it.

Now in this connection, your Honor, if you recall, the witness Kessel, when called upon as a witness in this action, asked your Honor the opportunity to make a statement. Your Honor at that time directed him to answer the question and then he exercised his privilege against answering the question upon the ground that it would self-incriminate him. Now, your Honor, and we expect and represent to you, the witness would have advised this Court that at the present time he is under indictment in the United States Federal court for the Northern District of California. I would expect, your Honor, that he would have told you at that time that that indictment, upon which he is standing trial on the 7th day of January, 1952, in the United States Federal court for the Northern District of California in San Francisco, is based upon a violation of two United States Code, Section 192, the same being a contempt of the United States Senate. I would expect, your Honor, that he would have handed you at that time, so that you could have passed upon the proposition as to whether or not he was invoking his constitutional privilege, not because of a violation of a State law, but for a fear, or a tendency toward a fear, that any answer he might give to you here would incriminate him and privilege his rights under this indictment.

Now, your Honor, this indictment would show that the witness Kessel was called before the subcommittee in what is commonly known as the Kefauver hearing and upon that hearing, your Honor, exercised his constitutional privilege against self-incrimination, refused to answer certain questions of the committee, thereafter an indictment was returned, and insofar as the witness Kessel is concerned, there are some 28 counts in this indictment which relate for failure to answer certain questions propounded by that committee.

Now, then, your Honor, in order to determine in respect to the witness Kessel as to the relevancy of any question or the materiality of any question asked him upon this trial, you would have to have, it seems to me, before you the indictment, you would have to have before you, with respect to the indictment, the various questions asked the witness Kessel by the sub-committee and upon which he is under indictment and upon which he stands trial on January 7th. Now in connection with that matter, your Honor, a question which is propounded to this witness upon this trial, which appears upon the surface to be an innocuous question, if we may use that expression, might become a very material question, insofar as his constitutional rights are concerned with respect to the questions upon which he now stands upon indictment.

Now then, your Honor, the proposition is still not as simple as that. In connection with this indictment, your Honor, and the number of counts—and the counts, I say, are concise, they simply consist of questions and refusal of the witness to answer—you must, it seems to me, your Honor, to further pass upon the materiality of these questions, have the transcript of that testimony which contains other questions which relate to the question propounded to the witness Kessel. Now, your Honor, the indictment, as I say, contains some 28 counts, can be simplified briefly—and I think I make a fair statement to the Court because I am going to hand these to your Honor—the Kessel indictment, the questions related to his business, your Honor, to his business associates, to his knowledge of certain persons and parties, but above and beyond that, your Honor, the questions propounded by that committee with respect to the witness Kessel related to his income tax problems and questions related to whether or not, I believe in counts 20 to 25 or so, related to this question. He was entirely examined with respect to his income tax returns, whether he had ever filed them, whether he had ever been checked by the Internal Revenue Department, whether any penalties had ever been assessed against him, not simply, your Honor, inquiring whether he did or did not know a certain man, but for the purpose of bringing into the answer to those questions any material relating to his income tax problems.

Now, your Honor, I would further expect the witness Kessel, had he been so permitted at the inception of this trial, to have told you further he was under investigation by the Internal Revenue Department for some past year, further that he would have told you that he has been consulted, that accountants have been in communication with accountants for the Internal and Treasury Departments, that his attorneys have been in conference with them with respect to his income tax returns. Those matters I mention so you may determine whether or not a question, which you would be entitled to consider as being non-incriminating, is in fact incriminating, because the defendant Kessel is now in this position, Judge, he is about to stand trial in federal court on January 7th for failure to answer questions which relate to his business, to his business associates, to his income tax problems, all for the purpose, your Honor, of preserving his constitutional rights against self-incrimination. In other words, he is indicted, he is under indictment because he invoked his constitutional rights, he is now in that analogous position—he comes before this Court, a question is addressed to him, in the absence of your Honor having any knowledge of these things, which I assume you have not up to the present moment, and a question which is innocent on its face, is presented to him, he exercises, in his judgment, his constitutional rights of self-incrimination, and your Honor, having nothing before you except the naked question, not knowing the grounds on which he fears any answer he might give may incriminate, even in respect to the indictment, but above and beyond that in respect to any investigation by the Treasury Department, your Honor can see, in the absence of this information or the grounds upon which he exercises his privilege to an innocent question, would conclude that it is not self-incriminating.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

Now, your Honor, it has been suggested to you —not suggested, but the statement has been made— that this relates to State law. Judge, if you took the indictment, if you are satisfied this man is standing trial within three or four weeks upon the very matters, upon the very questions that are being pressed by counsel at this time, I think your Honor would understand just in a consistent position he would have to exercise his constitutional privilege before you at this time. Let me suggest this to your Honor—he in good faith, and let us say upon advice of counsel, before the sub-committee hearing exercised his constitutional privilege against self-incrimination. Whether he was right or wrong will be determined upon the trial of that case. Now we come before you upon this hearing as a witness for the government in this matter, and a question is asked. Let us assume one of two things now, that he either voluntarily answers the question, he is then in the position of having taken a position before the committee on a refusal to answer and before you here of having voluntarily waived that privilege, so that it will then be said that he should not have exercised and had no right to exercise or grounds to exercise his privilege before that committee. Now take the other part of the matter, your Honor. Assume then, for the purpose of this argument, that a question is addressed to him, assume then that a question, innocent upon its face, is put to him here and your Honor, in the absence of this other information—which I know you have not had up to the present moment—directs that witness to answer. Well, it just occurs to me and seems to me, your Honor, that there is then a determination by this district court of the very issue which will be presented to the court before a jury on the 7th of January in San Francisco. In other words, there is a determination by your Honor, unless you have all these material facts before you, that a question asked the witness in San Francisco, upon which he stood his constitutional grounds against self-incrimination, is presented again to the witness here and he is directed and ordered to answer, it is a determination—at least I fear it is a determination—by this court that the question that was asked him in San Francisco, upon which he stood his grounds by that exercise that he should have answered the question and consequently is in contempt of court.

Now, your Honor, in connection with the situation, I feel satisfied, your Honor, it is an unusual situation, in which a witness is under indictment for failure to answer specific questions. Now it seems to me, your Honor, in addition to that and explanatory of that hearing, I would expect, as I told you before, that this witness would have told you, and will tell you, that he is under investigation by the Treasury Department; there have been these conferences between his lawyers and attorneys, all of which furnish a ground upon which he fears that any answer that he might give you here will be self-incriminating. Now the only way that matter can be presented to the Court, and your Honor is justified in inquiring into, is grounds to ascertain if the fear he tells you is well-founded. In other words, unless your Honor knows that, simply because an innocent question is presented to the witness and simply because he refuses to answer that question, your Honor would be justified, in the absence of any knowledge of those fears that a man has, to direct and order him to answer that question.

Now, your Honor, with respect to the factual background, I think I have given it to you. I have these indictments here, your Honor. They are easy to read, they can be read in five minutes, your Honor can see the questions. Every question in fact, irrespective of whether or not it is in itself a direct question as to whether or not the man is guilty of a crime, such as "Did you commit the murder," it is not that question, but it is an innocent question, your Honor, which ties in and relates to other questions of importance in this indictment, with respect to this man's personal income tax problem, augmented, your Honor, and expanded by other questions which appear in the transcript of the hearing before the committee, which I have here, which explain in a large measure, or amplify, a question upon which this witness refused to answer.

Now, your Honor, with respect to the legal proposition, I do not think any of us are in dispute. I think, your Honor, with respect to a witness' position under these circumstances, he is entitled, in the absence of a stipulation, and he has, to exercise his privilege with respect to every question asked, particularly under these circumstances. I can well appreciate that if a question is asked the witness and each time the witness has to repeat a lengthy statement or state his grounds and every time your Honor has to consider the question and either make an order or direction to answer the question and thereupon the question is answered, I can well understand, your Honor, that that interferes with the orderly progress of this trial, but there is no way, your Honor, that this witness can protect his rights unless to every question asked him he exercises his privilege and the Court considers the materiality of the question and either permits him to decline to answer or orders him to answer. Now that, your Honor, it seems to me is the simple procedure and a stipulation certainly would eliminate it if we deem to every question asked him that he makes that answer.

Now, your Honor, with respect to authorities, I know the Court is thoroughly familiar with the law in this matter.

The Court: You do not need to assume that.

Mr. Wiseman: Let me say this, your Honor, I think we are in accord with this, that a witness, presumably any witness, is entitled to exercise his constitutional right in court. Now that constitutional right, your Honor, should be preserved, and will be preserved, if the facts are known to the Court upon which the Court would base its ruling. Now in respect to Kessel, I think I have indicated to you that he has more than reasonable fears against self-incrimination with respect to any question, based upon, your Honor, the indictment, based upon the transcript of the testimony before the committee, and further based upon the investigation of his activities with respect to his income tax problems over the past years.

Now your Honor recently—and these matters are coming before the courts more often in the last year—recently the Supreme Court of the United States, in Hoffman vs. United States, Supreme Court 814, decided May 29, 1951, in respect to this very point, your Honor, and I just want to read your Honor four or five lines in respect to his right:

> "To sustain the privilege, it need only be evident from the implications of the question, in the setting in which it is asked, that a responsive answer to the question or an explanation of why it can not be answered might be dangerous because injurious disclosure would result."

Now the injurious disclosure would result, your Honor, in practically having this court determine that questions asked this witness before the committee in San Francisco were proper questions and that consequently, your Honor, he is in contempt of the Senate Committee. In other words, there would be a determination, a practical determination at least, that the question that was asked him in San Francisco was not a question upon which he could invoke his constitutional privilege, because it had been determined by this Court in Nevada that the question was not such that he could invoke the right of self-incrimination.

Now, your Honor, conceding now that the witness in question should feel that a disclosure would be injurious, and certainly upon this record has indicated it would be, I would call your Honor's attention to Estes v. Potter, Fifth Circuit, 183 Fed. (2), page 865, which, in my judgment, expresses the rule as clearly and concisely as any case I have been able to run across, and that case, your Honor, dealt with the very problem that now confronts you. In other words, your Honor, what we have here is a series of apparently innocent questions. The questions presumably relate only to such facts, consequently the privilege could not be invoked with respect to such facts, and I think that is departure, that is contrarywise to what the actual facts of this case were. Now in the Estes case, they considered the question, they did not consider the question as I suggested: "Did you rob a bank," but they were considering questions which formed a link and which all put together produced a charge of some nature against the defendant. Now the Court, dealing with that very problem of the question and answer, said:

> "A witness need only show that his answers are likely to be dangerous to him. If in the circumstances it is reasonable to infer the possibility of incrimination from the answers that the witness may give, the privilege may be claimed."

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

Now just at that point may I stop, your Honor, and ask, in fairness of counsel for the prosecution, that after we have shown to you the indictment, which contains the very question that this witness was asked, isn't it, in fairness to state, Judge, that the very questions being asked this witness relate to that indictment. Answers to those, your Honor, would be a determination as to whether or not he was or was not guilty of contempt before that committee.

I am reading, your Honor, from page 868 of the report. Now this is the problem your Honor now has:

> "It is for the court to determine, in the first instance * * *" and that is primarily your question:

> "It is for the court to determine, in the first instance, whether incrimination is reasonably possible from any answer the witness may give; but if such possibility exists, then the witness has the absolute right to assert his privilege, which extends to more than the admission of a crime or any element thereof. The privilege bars compulsory disclosure of any fact that tends to incriminate the witness."

and citing authorities, Counselman v. Hitchcock, the leading case in contempt in the United States and has been, your Honor, for 75 years.

Now I want to call your Honor's attention likewise to Rogers v. United States, decided in the

BLURRED COPY

Tenth Circuit, 179 Federal (2), page 559, reading from page 562, when the court said, keeping in mind the Estes case and absolute right of the witness there given; and this, your Honor, I think is an answer to the innocent question upon its face:

> "Furthermore, a witness may not be required to give an answer which furnishes a link in a chain which would enable the Government to obtain the facts showing his guilt of a crime. It is also clear, from all the cases, that a witness may not refuse to answer because his answer might tend to incriminate others."

Now, your Honor, with respect to the link in the chain, that is the very problem this Court has to decide with respect to each and every particular question asked this witness.

Now, your Honor, there is one other case, and I am not going to read any further on the law, because I think the law is clear on the thing: Kasinowitz v. United States. This is the Ninth Circuit, your Honor, 181 Fed. (2), 632, and I believe this was Justice Holmes' decision, I am not positive about it. This, your Honor, is at page 637 from the Ninth Circuit. I am addressing myself to the question I am designating as an innocent appearing question. At page 637 the Court said:

> "The question which the witness may refuse to answer need not of itself require his admission of the commission of a crime, otherwise, as stated in United States v. Weisman, 111 F.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

2d at page 262, the witness 'will be forced to disclose those very facts which the privilege protects.' "

Now, your Honor, I am just going to cite two other cases, Alexander v. United States, 181 Fed. (2), 480 and another, Doran v. United States, 181 Fed (2), 489.

Now I think, your Honor, there is no dispute about the legal proposition; in other words, the witness' absolute right to exercise his privilege. There is no question in the first instance it is the duty of the Court to make determination from the facts brought to the Court's attention and knowledge. There is no question, your Honor, that a simple, innocent appearing question may still give the witness the right to exercise his privilege if it follows a link in a chain which might or might not tend to establish a crime.

Now in conclusion, your Honor, let me state this, there is no dispute, your Honor, and I think counsel will concede, that both of these witnesses are under indictment in San Francisco in federal court for failure to answer questions which are set forth in these indictments. I think further, your Honor, that we concede that they go to trial on the 7th of January; that the questions that are asked this witness in respect to his business—because I briefly summarize both of these indictments, they relate to his business—business activities and his income tax problems, the very purpose of business questions was to bring into the income tax questions the source of his business, the witness is going to trial on the very questions, your Honor, relating to his business, his associates, his knowledge of persons and associates, going to trial, your Honor, further with respect to failure to answer questions in respect to income tax problems. These questions are being addressed to him and, your Honor, if he voluntarily answers the questions, he is put in the position of having admitted before this Court that the privilege exercised by him in San Francisco was without ground and without merit, and if your Honor orders him to answer the question, then I say to your Honor that you are determining the question asked the witness in San Francisco was a proper question, that the witness had no right to exercise his privilege, that he was in contempt of the committee at the time and is a determination of the fact which this witness is, under the law, permitted to have submitted to a jury for determination because automatically, your Honor, in this matter he is entitled to have a trial by jury for failure to answer the question. Further than that, as I say, this witness would expect, and I would say, that he would tell you of the investigation made, all of which creates a fear in his mind, your Honor, that any question asked him will be self-incriminating and tend to establish some sort of charge of which he is not informed, although he reasonably fears it will relate to a violation of our Internal Revenue income tax law.

Now, your Honor, I am going to submit to your Honor the indictment and I mention that the transcript of the California hearings which further explain this, I can say to your Honor relates only to the particular 10 or 15 pages of this which I have marked, and if from these matters, your Honor, it appears he has a fear, facing this indictment that he is about to go to trial on, relating to business or income tax returns, I say it is reasonable and a material one, in which he is entitled to invoke his constitutional privilege.

In respect to Mr. Pechart, I submit that Mr. Pechart's position is the same substantially as Mr. Kessel's, that he was not in defiance or contempt of any order of your Honor yesterday, that he stands before you today in the same position as he was originally here before the court, as a witness, and that he did not violate any order yesterday, because the record is free from that.

The Court: Now I would like to ask you a question. Do you agree, Mr. Wiseman, that the provision of the Fifth Amendment, "shall not be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself" applies only to a federal crime and not a State crime?

Mr. Wiseman: I would concede that, your Honor.

The Court: Now I do not recall of ever hearing of a situation just like the one we have here. This is just a matter of conflicting proceedings for contempt. The purpose of the indictment in San Francisco, which you have mentioned is a charge that the witness was in contempt of the Senate Committee. Now if we would be justified in postponing the trial of this case until the conclusion of the trial in San Francisco—what I have in mind is this —are we required—put it that way—to postpone the trial of this case until the litigation in San Francisco is completed? We have no idea what the result of that trial will be, but suppose that trial, in effect, amounted to a question that such a question as this would have to be answered: "Do you know Mr. Remmer's occupation?," are we required to stand by and postpone this trial until that court in California decides that this question could be answered? Well, let us look at it from another point of view. It could happen, where people are closely related in business, that a number of trials of this same nature, perhaps on facts somewhat similar, could be in progress at the same time in different jurisdictions or before different tribunals or district courts in the same district, and then when a witness, who would be a material witness in each of those cases, was called and this situation arose, would the Court then, having his presence before it on the witness stand, be required to stand by and await the determination of other proceedings for contempt? You have not cited any case—I have not heard of any case—that embodies such a situation as we have here, none at all. Isn't that true?

Mr. Wiseman: As far as I know, Judge, it is a novel question.

The Court: The case in California is merely a contempt proceeding, that is all it is. The indictment is required by the statute to bring the matter before the Court to determine whether or not the witness was guilty of contempt or committed contempt of the Senate Committee. You have the same situation, the same witness, to determine here now whether he must answer this question. That is what I understand we are trying to determine this morning, whether he must answer this question. If the Court determines that he must, then he will be given an opportunity to answer it before the jury. Now I just want to give you some of the thoughts I have running through my mind and I hope what I have said does not disturb any line of argument that counsel has planned here.

I would like to hear further from you.

Mr. Wiseman: Judge, in regard to that may I say this, as an officer of the court. There is upon the part of these witnesses certainly no intention, on advice of their counsel, to be contemptuous of this court in respect to any order that you might make. I think frankly, Judge, there was a misunderstanding yesterday in respect to the manner in which the privilege was exercised by these witnesses. In other words, Judge, they are put before you in this position, where they have to exercise their privilege with respect to every question. They are not questions that have no relation at all, as "What suit did you wear last Sunday?," I don't mean questions of that kind, but with respect to any question with relation to any fear, or assumed fear —and your Honor keep in mind it is not only limited to this indictment, but it is as I told you, that these witnesses, I would expect to tell you, are under investigation and I think that fact would be conceded by the prosecution, that there has been an investigation and is at present an investigation, that that itself, independently of the indictment, would furnish some grounds upon which you could determine, as you can, the question whether or not a question is or is not material and should or should not be answered. But I say there should be some orderly procedure so the examination of the witness should not become such as to make the jury and your Honor impatient, but your Honor, I think it should be conceded they have a right to exercise their privilege to every question. It is not done for the purpose of harassing or interfering with the progress of this trial because their problems are as important to them as to the defendant or the prosecution in this case. In other words, if they have constitutional privilege as citizens, they have the same right to exercise it as the defendant or any member of the prosecution. So I say, Judge, anticipating the further progress of this trial, that neither the witnesses nor their counsel want to be put in the position before your Honor of even indicating that they desire to be in contempt of any order you may make. In other words, I feel any order you make would be in the exercise of your best judgment and not presuming that these witnesses would be in contempt of any order you make, but I say they are entitled to exercise their privilege. Now there is a method of doing it, which may or may not impress you, but ultimately, your Honor, the privilege simply relates to their fear of self-incrimination.

BLURRED COPY

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

The Court: I think we understand we have to meet these things as they arise. No matter if it interferes with the progress of the trial, we must go along and rule on each question. Now the question before us here is simply this, on the part of Mr. Kessel, "Do you know Mr. Remmer's occupation?" That is all we have to consider here.

Mr. Wiseman: I know, regardless of how it arose, your Honor will consider as to the facts before you and make your determination as to the materiality of that question. Thank you, your Honor.

The Court: The only point I am considering or deemed we had here now is this question of this being a matter involving a crime by virtue of this indictment. Maybe that is a crude way of putting it—you understand what I mean.

Mr. Wiseman: Of course, anything that might be fear might be seized upon as charge for violating against income tax.

Mr. Campbell: I take it our present argument, of course, is addressed to the last question. However——

The Court (Interceding): Well, I tell you about that last question. He is going to be ordered to answer this question, but I thought while we had the jury absent we might discuss some questions of law which would be helpful as we go along with the trial. The pleading of privilege under the Fifth Amendment seems fallacious to me under a question of this kind—"Do you know Mr. Remmer's occupation?"

BLURRED COPY

Mr. Wiseman: Yes, your Honor, it is a link in a chain of questions.

Mr. Campbell: I understood the argument was to be used as a guide post throughout the examination of these witnesses.

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Campbell: Now, as I understand counsel's argument, he makes two principal points—first, that the witnesses Pechart and Kessel are presently under indictment in the United States District Court at San Francisco for failing to answer certain questions before the committee to investigate organized crime, Interstate Commerce Commission, known as the Kefauver Committee, and, secondly, the contention is that they are presently under investigation with regard to their individual tax matters——

The Court: I am going to interrupt you a moment. I am going to call the jury in and excuse them until 1:30.

(Jury and alternate jurors returned into court at 10:55, admonished and excused until 2:00 o'clock.)

Mr. Campbell (Continuing): As I stated to your Honor, counsel made two principal points; first, as to the indictment presently pending in San Francisco, and, secondly, as to an investigation of the income tax affairs of the two witnesses, which he states is presently under way.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

It would seem a strange situation if, by having refused to answer certain questions before a Senate Committee and then subsequently being either under indictment or under fear of indictment of having committed contempt against the Senate, that the witnesses could, through a claim of immunity upon those points, make their testimony, which would be material and pertinent in collateral cases, to which they were not even parties, a matter beyond the reach of the contending parties in such proceeding, which is in effect what Mr. Wiseman's contention is here.

Referring very briefly to the indictment pending in San Francisco, to the indictment against Mr. Kessel, which is in a number of counts, but as counsel says, very brief in each count, some 32 counts, charging contempt with failure to answer certain questions before the Kefauver Committee. These questions are as follows:

(Reads from indictment.)

Now, if the Court please, we are here in this proceeding and under the indictment inquiring into the affairs of Elmer F. Remmer. We are not inquiring into the affairs of David Kessel or of Walter Pechart. It has been shown by the evidence that has so far been introduced that testimony which could be given by Kessel and by Pechart is material to the issues here, because it has been demonstrated by the return, for example, that they had certain business enterprises in common. It is not material to this inquiry as to the amount of profit or loss sustained by Pechart or Kessel from those enterprises. It is material to this inquiry as to the amount of profit which was obtained by the defendant Remmer, which is the only material inquiry which this court is making in this proceeding.

I wish to refer in that connection to the case of United States vs. Greenberg, reported in 187 Fed. (2) at page 35, which is a Third Circuit case, the decision having been written by Judge Maris. If I may read a little at length, because I believe it goes directly to the situation which we have here. I am reading from page 38, and this is an appeal from a conviction for contempt from a judgment of the district court for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania, finding the defendant guilty of contempt of court for refusal to answer certain questions:

> "If, however, a direct answer to the question can not under the particular circumstances of the case upon any reasonable theory disclose a fact which is, in the words of Chief Justice Marshall, 'a necessary and essential part of a crime' the question must be answered. To support the claim of privilege the danger must be real, not remote or fanciful. It must appear that the answer to the question may disclose a fact which will supply a link in the chain of evidence which is necessary to establish the commission of a crime by the witness."

Citing Mason v. United States, 1917, 244 U. S. 362.

> "It is not enough that answers to anticipated later questions might do so."

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

Citing Camarota v. United States, 3 Cir., 1940, 111 F. 2d 243, certiorari denied 311 U. S. 651.

"Applying this rule the district court considered the questions here involved and decided that direct answers to them could not incriminate the appellant of any federal crime. We are satisfied that the court was right in so holding with respect to each of the two groups of questions in controversy on this appeal.

"We take up first the group of questions relating to the use of the telephone at 1133 West Diamond Street, Philadelphia. The appellant had stated in reply to previous questions that he had regularly used that telephone but that he had not used it for his lawful business. He declined, however, to answer questions as to whether he used it for any other business and, if so, for what business, claiming that to answer would incriminate him.

"It must be conceded that some possible answers to a question as to a witness' business may be incriminating under the federal law. The witness may be by occupation an illicit dealer in narcotics, an illicit distiller or a counterfeiter. However, as this court pointed out in the United States v. Hoffman, supra, 'the question * * * is so frequently asked of witnesses as a mere identifying question that without more a court may well regard it as normally too innocent to fall within the Marshall principle.' Accordingly the witness 'must show the court enough beyond his bare statement of crimination at least to indicate that his claim was not clearly groundless, a contumacious assertion made in bad faith.' "

Citing 185 Fed. 2d 621:

"It is not necessary, of course, for the witness to prove that his answer would actually be incriminating, for to do so would be to lose the privilege in establishing it. Accordingly he need not prove that the government has in its possession or that the grand jury has secured from him or from other witnesses evidence which when the answer to the question under attack is added, will be sufficient to complete the chain of evidence needed to convict him of federal crime. Here, as we shall see, the court was justified in concluding that a direct answer could not reasonably form a link in that chain. Accordingly the court did not err in refusing appeliant access to the grand jury minutes and to the files of the government. Where, as here, the question was innocent on its face all the appellant was required to do was to satisfy the court that there was a reasonable possibility of the existence of facts in his situation and under the circumstances of his case which might convict him of a federal crime if a fact which might be disclosed by a direct answer to the controverted question were added to them.

"In the United States v. Hoffman * * *"

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

Well, I will strike the reference to Hoffman, as the Supreme Court case has been cited to your Honor. Reading further on page 39:

> "The theory which the appellant advanced in support of his claim was that if he should state the business in which he used the telephone the next questions asked him would be whether he had derived income from that business, whether he had employees in that business, and whether he kept records of that business. His answers to these questions, he asserts, might tend to incriminate him of criminal violations of the internal revenue laws relating to the income tax and the withholding of income and social security taxes from employees' wages. We do not have to decide, however, whether the defendant may claim his privilege with respect to these questions for they have not been asked. What we have to decide is merely whether a witness may decline to state his business, although itself not unlawful under the federal law, upon the theory that he may have violated some federal law in the course of the conduct of that business and that subsequent questions with respect to the conduct of his business may develop these delinquencies. We think that to pose this question is to answer it. For to approve the appellant's contention would mean that every business man would be entitled to decline to state his business merely because it might be possible that in carrying it on he had infringed the internal revenue laws or some other federal statute. This court ruled against this contention in Camarota v. United States, supra, when we held that Camarota was required to answer questions as to whether he had engaged in a certain business, not unlawful under the federal law, even though he contended that answers to anticipated subsequent questions as to his receipts from such business might tend to incriminate him of a violation of the income tax laws. See also United States v. Weinberg, 2 Cir., 1933, 65 Fed. 2d 394, 395 certiorari denied 290 U. S. 675, 54 S. Ct. 93, 78 L. Ed. 583. We accordingly conclude that the court did not err in denying the appellant's claim of privilege with respect to these questions."

Now as I have stated, with respect to the pending indictments in San Francisco, which are not based upon questions which would be material here or which it would be expected your Honor would be called to rule upon, nevertheless, if such questions were material here, I do not believe that the fact of an impending indictment in San Francisco should deter this court from exercising its judicial discretion in ruling upon the question as to whether or not the witness should be compelled to answer.

Counsel states that to compel a witness to answer certain of these questions would, in effect, be prejudging the case which is to be tried in San Francisco. If that were true, the court to uphold the privilege against self-incrimination might also be considered pre-judging the matter. However, I do not believe that either situation is presented here. That is a proposition based upon a—well, I suppose you would refer to it as a quasi-judicial proceeding or a Senate investigation—where the witness when asked certain questions chooses to exercise his constitutional rights. Whether he was right or wrong is not for the determination, of course, of this court. We are now faced with an entirely collateral proceeding, in which they are called as witnesses, not as parties, where the inquiry is not made into their personal affairs in a manner which could incriminate them, so far as would appear from this record, but simply as to their knowledge of the affairs of the income of the defendant, Elmer Remmer. As to the method to be used, this Circuit has laid down the principles in Graham vs. United States, reported in 99 Fed. (2), 746, in a decision by Judge Wilbur. Reading from page 750:

> "There is an inherent difficulty in protecting a witness against self incrimination. His mere assertion, however, advanced, that in his opinion the answer to a given question would tend to incriminate him is not sufficient to justify the witness in refusal to answer unless and until a sufficient showing is made to the court that the claim of the witness is a substantial one. That is, the court must be convinced that the answer of the witness would be calculated to incriminate him if he was guilty of an offense foreshadowed by the question. When a witness is examined in open court his objection to answering a specific question is passed upon immediately by the court before the witness is compelled to answer."

Now for the convenience of the Court, if the Court desires to examine the record of the proceeding before the Kefauver Committee, I have here in shorter form, being in form of the proceedings themselves before the Senate against Mr. Kessel and Mr. Pechart for contempt, wherein is set forth a complete reporter's transcript of the testimony. This refers specifically to the particular matters involved.

Now insofar as investigation of these witnesses by the Bureau of Internal Revenue is concerned, I have no doubt that investigation is under way. I accept Mr. Wiseman's statement in that regard. I have nothing to do with the investigation myself, but if that is true, nevertheless the statistics show thousands of citizens are investigated daily, there are thousands of revenue agents in the Senate for that purpose and for the purpose of auditing and investigating returns, and unless the danger became apparent and real and as pointed out in the Greenberg case which I cited to your Honor, any business man could refuse to testify as to any aspect of his business. Further, as I have previously stated, the questions directed, and intended to be directed to these witnesses, do not relate to their own net incomes, to the profits which they themselves received, but to those of the defendant, Elmer Remmer. So far as criminal violations of the Internal Revenue Code are concerned, the year 1944 is now beyond the reach of the statute of limitations, assuming that a timely income tax return is filed. The statute of limitations is within six years of the time the offense has been committed. The civil statute for assertion of tax liability is ordinarily three years, with the exception of those cases where the understatement of income is in excess of 20 per cent, in which event the statute is five years, unless waived by the taxpayer. Under all the cirstances of this case, if the Court please, it is the position of the government that we are entitled to pursue with these two witnesses the matters which are material and within the issues of this case.

For the record I would like to state briefly the questions set forth in the indictment of Walter Pechart and which he refused to answer on the ground of his constitutional privilege and which were the basis of the indictment against him in the Northern District of California, which are as follows:

I might state further, your Honor, that it is the position of the government that should any of the questions which are the subject of that indictment become material to the inquiry here, then we shall ask such questions and ask the ruling of the Court to compel the witness to answer such questions on the basis of their materiality to the instant proceedings because otherwise the mere return of an indictment—or in an instance where no indictment had yet been returned, but there was fear of an indictment because there had been a citation or statement by a committee chairman of the Senate that the witness was in contempt—would successfully impugn and might entirely block the progress of the duly constituted courts of the United States in their function in handling of their business and in determination of lawsuits and criminal actions pending before it.

BLURRED COPY

We will submit it, your Honor.

Mr. Wiseman: If the Court please, I hope I do not misunderstand Mr. Campbell. He refers to the fact that this being a collateral matter, that it might not be available to a witness in a collateral matter, the right to exercise his constitutional privilege. I hope I did not misunderstand him—he is a very able lawyer, but if there is any indication to this court that because the defendants are not directly involved in this case, or say some subsequent case, that for that reason the right to invoke their constitutional privileges is not reserved to them, I think——

The Court (Interceding): I do not so understand Mr. Campbell and I have not that idea myself.

Mr. Wiseman: He mentioned a collateral matter, your Honor——

Mr. Campbell: No, I do not so contend.

Mr. Wiseman: The other case he cited, Graham vs. United States, 99 Federal (2) 746, was familiar to us and that is the very point I make before this Court. In other words, Judge, as I said at the inception of the argument, a showing has to be made to you, so that you can determine whether or not any particular question was or was not material, whether a witness could or could not exercise his privilege. The very point, Judge, I argued at the inception of the argument, an opportunity to present to you and make a showing so that you could rule, that you have the facts before you to determine the case. Unless you have those facts, unless you have the showing, as suggested by Graham vs. U. S., it places yourself completely in the dark as to the ground upon which, or the basis upon which, a witness comes before you and exercises his constitutional privilege. We are in direct accord with that and that is the very thing, your Honor, I have been attempting to present to you, the showing from which you could determine whether or not the question, innocent of itself, might or might not incriminate this witness. There is no question about the rule of law and it is expressed, as we concede, in Graham vs. United States for the reason of presenting, of making a showing, as we have attempted this morning.

Now, your Honor, with respect to Greenberg vs. United States, if your Honor reads that case you will find out the court considered the only business question as related in the facts of that case and the court properly, in that case, because the questions had not been answered, did not anticipate what they might have been and consequently made no ruling upon them, which confirms the very thing I am suggesting here to your Honor, that unless you have, as you do have in the indictment, questions relating to their income, their business associations, you are not in a position to rule on it and in the Greenberg case, as read to you by counsel, the very acts of these defendants are set forth and it is the very purpose that we had coming before you at this time, Judge, is to impress upon you the fact—as your Honor says, you can not anticipate them at this time certainly—and it is for that very reason, Judge, that we made suggestions with respect to the method of procedure.

Now on the question of Pechart, I hand you my transcript and I tell you the questions contained in the indictment have to be read in connection with other questions referred to in the transcript generally. Now with respect to Pechart, in the transcript I had, which has been supplemented now by loose sheets presented by Mr. Campbell, questions were asked by that committee on page 515 of the transcript:

(Reads.)

The only purpose of those questions is not to establish that they might be guilty of some offense against State law, the very questions asked, in the light of surrounding circumstances, indicate that the inquiry was made to ascertain if there was any offense in respect to his income tax problems and whether it appears in that, it certainly appears in the transcript, the committee announced publicly and through the press that any information of an interesting nature would be turned over to the Bureau of Internal Revenue.

Now further with respect to Pechart, your Honor, and on the subject matter of the indictment, questions arose and were asked him with respect to ownership of property, how much his home cost, whether it was mortgaged, whether he owns business property and other questions, your Honor, relating to the question upon which the committee sought the indictment.

Now, your Honor, I have nothing further in that connection. I will submit the matter to the Court, and before I do it, may I call both witnesses. They are in court, have been in court since 10 o'clock, and I respectfully ask that their bail be exonerated.

The Court: No, the bail will continue and both witnesses ordered to appear here at two o'clock this afternoon and I will just give you my thoughts at the present time. If the matter should occur to me before two o'clock I, of course, would change my view, but when they come into court at two o'clock I am going to ask counsel for the government to again propound to Mr. Kessel the question which I think is the question, the refusal to answer of which precipitated these proceedings, so far as he is concerned: "Do you know Mr. Remmer's occupation?" and if he refuses to answer the question, or if he raises his privilege on the grounds an answer to the question might incr nate him, I will then order him to answer the question and then if he refused, I will commit him for contempt of this court.

In regard to the witness Pechart, he is ordered to appear here at two o'clock and at that time I will request the government counsel to again propound to him the question which I understand to be the question which precipitated these proceedings this morning: "Q. With regard to a portion of the premises which you rented from Mr. Remmer known as the San Diego Social Club, did you operate any business on those premises?" If he claims his privilege under the Fifth Amendment, the Court will then order the witness to answer the question; upon his refusal to do so, he will be committed for contempt of this court.

So we will be in recess in this case until two o'clock and the witnesses Pechart and Kessel are ordered to appear here in court at two o'clock.

[Title of District Court and Cause.]

HEARING ON PLAINTIFF'S MOTION TO QUASH SUBPOENA DUCES TECUM AND DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO INSPECT

Be It Remembered, That the above-entitled matter came on regularly before the Court at Carson City, Nevada, on Tuesday, the 27th of November, 1951, the plaintiff being represented by Miles N. Pike, Esq., and Bruce R. Thompson, Esq., and the defendant not being present in court but represented by John R. Golden, Esq., Leslie C. Gillen, Esq., and the firm of Lohse & Fry, by George Lohse, Esq. The following proceedings were had:

Mr. Pike: Your Honor, with reference to the case of United States of America vs. Elmer F. Remmer, as stated, previously this morning there has been a motion filed by defense counsel, supported by certain affidavits, in connection with which additional affidavit was received by me in yesterday afternoon's mail—as a matter of fact, two additional affidavits, those of Mr. Gillen and Mr. Christopher P. Miller, and likewise I wish to state to the Court that heretofore, on November 23, 1951, I was served with subpoena duces tecum to appear before this Court at this time as a witness, and I, of course, have so appeared in response to the subpoena.

Now it is my understanding—and in this I have only indirect information—that Mr. Walter M. Campbell, Jr., who is of counsel for the plaintiff in this case, for the purposes of this case, and Special Assistant United States Attorney, was, I am informed, served with a similar subpoena duces tecum at San Francisco, California, on or about November 20, 1951. In looking over the courtroom this morning, I did not see Mr. Campbell present and so before proceeding, as the Court may designate, with reference to either the motion filed by defense counsel or the motion to quash the subpoena, I feel it incumbent upon me to tender such explanation as I am in position to make with reference to the non-attendance of Mr. Campbell at this time. Of my own personal knowledge I can simply say that the last conversation I had with Mr. Campbell was on Wednesday afternoon before Thanksgiving last week, which places it November 21st, and at that time he expressed his plans as arriving in Reno, as I understood, on last Friday. Now since then I have had no direct communication with him. I have talked to Mr. A. V. Brady, who is connected with the Bureau of Internal Revenue and who is present in court this morning, and Mr. Brady has handed me two telegrams, each addressed to him in care of the United States District Court here at Carson City and dated respectively November 25th and November 26th of this year, both signed Walter M. Campbell, and the first one stating in substance that Mr. Campbell would arrive tomorrow morning—that should have been yesterday morning, considering that the wire was sent November 25th, your Honor—and suggesting that Mr. Brady meet Mr. Campbell if possible, and the more recent wire was directed to Mr. Brady, stating that Mr. Campbell had been delayed by illness, that he would arrive tomorrow morning —which would be this morning, November 27th— and suggesting that Mr. Brady meet him. Now other than that, I have no personal information, except that I have been advised indirectly that Mr. Campbell is en route to Reno and Carson City, and the purpose of my explanation, as is apparent to the Court, is in reference to the subpoena which, if it was served, requires an explanation.

Now with that exception, I might state that in the absence of Mr. Campbell, the United States attorney's office is prepared to proceed at this time on the hearing of either of the defendant's motion to produce, which has been set for hearing at this time, or upon the government's motion to quash, which was filed with the clerk of the court just this morning and copies of the Notice of Motion and Motion to Quash Subpoena Duces Tecum served upon Mr. Campbell and myself were handed to defense counsel in Reno yesterday afternoon. I do not wish to presume to indicate the order of the hearing on the respective motions and of course I realize that defense counsel would wish to be heard on that, but while addressing the Court I would respectfully suggest that the Court consider hearing the motion to quash the subpoenas because, although I have appeared in response to the subpoena, I have filed this motion to quash the subpoenas duces tecum for the reasons stated and under the authority of Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure No. 17(c), and as the Court will observe, there is a provision about the middle of that paragraph sub-division of the rule that the Court may, when the motion is promptly made, quash such a subpoena.

Mr. Golden: If the Court please, without waiving any rights we may have, we do not make any point of the fact that Mr. Campbell is apparently unavoidably detained and are perfectly willing that the matter be treated as though he were here in response to the subpoena. We are likewise perfectly agreeable, if the Court so wishes, that Mr. Pike proceed further with his motion to quash.

The Court: Very well, thank you. So you desire to proceed with the motion to quash?

Mr. Pike: Yes, your Honor. I do not know as the Court has before it a copy of the subpoena duces tecum itself, and I make particular reference to it because, as the Court will observe, there is affixed to the document a typewritten sheet which designates the books, papers, documents and objects sought to be produced here in Court in response to this subpoena and as the motion for the production of certain records filed by defense counsel refers to the decision of the United States Supreme Court in the case of Bowman Dairy Company vs. United States of America, dated April 30, 1951, 341 U. S. P. 214, 95 Advance Sheets, 95 Law Edition 879. I have the Supreme Court advance sheet here, your Honor. I refer to that particularly because on the second page, as appears in the advance sheet of the Bowman decision, there is a quoted portion of a subpoena duces tecum involved in that case, which is not identical with this, but I may say very very similar to it, as a close comparison will disclose. I may say, your Honor, I refer to the Bowman case—this may seem presenting my argument a little in reverse—because the Bowman decision is the decision referred to in the moving paper on defendant's motion to produce, but the subpoena is the language, of the books and other records sought to be produced, I would say substantially identical with the subpoena quoted in the Bowman decision. There are some differences.

So I refer now to Rule 17(c), which, of course, is the authority relied upon for defendant's motion and which is likewise the authority relied on for the motion to quash now before the Court, and reading the entitlement of that sub-section, "For Production of Documentary Evidence and of Objects." Then reading on: "The subpoena may also command the person to whom it is directed to produce papers, documents or other objects designated therein * * *," and the government is in reliance upon this next section: "The court, upon motion made promptly, may quash or modify the subpoena if compliance would be unreasonable or oppressive." Reading on:

> "The court may direct that books, papers, documents or objects designated in the subpoena, be produced before the court at a time prior to the trial or prior to the time when they are to be offered in evidence and may, upon their production, permit the books, papers, documents or objects, or portions thereof, to be inspected by the parties and their attorneys."

And so at this time, pursuant to the Notice of Motion heretofore served and filed, I make the motion to quash the two subpoenas served upon Walter M. Campbell, Jr., and myself.

As the moving authority, I refer particularly to the affidavit made by Mr. Campbell and filed and read before this Court at the recent session held at Las Vegas, Nevada, on November 8th, as I recall, 1951, and as those affidavits are rather fresh in the mind of the Court, unless the Court indicates otherwise, I will not read the affidavit again at this time.

I have set out in this motion to quash the subpoena that compliance with the subpoena duces tecum would be unreasonable and oppressive, without designating the facts or the asserted basis for that statement. However, as further grounds I have set up, on line 29 there on the first page of the Motion that the "records enumerated and designated in each of the two said subpoenas refer to records that have heretofore been made available for inspection of the defendant or his duly authorized representatives on occasions long prior to the scheduled date of the above-entitled action upon the merits, which scheduled trial date is presently set for trial with a jury at Carson City, Nevada, at 10:00 a.m. Wednesday, November 28, 1951," which is tomorrow. And in particular connection with that, the Court will recall the defendant's motion for a continuance of the trial date and of the motion to produce under Rule 16 of the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure, which were presented and argued before the Court at Las Vegas and denied by the Court, the Court will recall in that connection the affidavit of Mr. Campbell, and will likewise recall the contentions made by Mr. Campbell before the Court sitting at Las Vegas that on two occasions; namely, the occasion when Mr. Friedman, an accountant from San Francisco, and one of those persons named as authorized to act under the power of attorney designation filed by the defendant with the Bureau of Internal Revenue, was given free access to these records at San Francisco, and I believe that a proper statement to make, from what was presented to the Court at that time, both through the affidavits and through the discussion that took place between defense counsel and Mr. Campbell and his assertions to the Court, that Mr. Friedman spent substantially a week with those records.

BLURRED COPY

Reference is made in these moving papers to the circumstance of there being no money available to pay accountants' fee and for that reason an examination was not made.

The second circumstance referred to in this paragraph 2 of the government's motion to quash will likewise be brought to the recollection of the Court through the Las Vegas hearing the affidavit statements of Mr. Campbell, to the effect that Mr. Lawrence Semenza, a certified public accountant at Reno, Nevada, being another of the persons designated to act under power of attorney through the document filed with the Bureau of Internal Revenue, examined the records in San Francisco and not only examined them, but took a considerable number of those records with him. The Court will then recall the matters reflected, as to the efforts made by representatives of the Bureau of Internal Revenue to have the records returned to that Bureau and their inability to obtain them for the stated reason as appears in these documents, that Mr. Semenza had given the records to Mr. Friedman and that Mr. Friedman had purportedly given the papers to Mr. Golden, presently of defense counsel, and that those records are not available to the government for production by reason of those particular circumstances.

And the third paragraph of the motion to quash——

The Court: The records that were turned over to the auditor were never returned to the government?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

Mr. Pike: Were never returned. The facts, according to the government's contention, were substantially those already stated but the Court will understand, of course, that I am predicating my statements on what was presented to the Court at Las Vegas. I am undertaking to adhere to that. Many of these matters are not in any way within my personal knowledge, but they are set forth in these various affidavits and documents and were related to the Court there. So that those would be the two occasions referred to in this present motion to quash when certified public accountants, authorized to act on behalf of the defendant, had an opportunity to examine them. Defendant complains that there was not money available to pay those accountants and for that reason they should be given opportunity to examine at this time.

I do not think it is incumbent upon me, as government attorney, in this or any other case, to assume a harsh position and when I have stated here in the language of Rule 17(c) that this is unreasonable or oppressive on the government I, of course, had in mind the meaning of those terms and I had in mind that factually that was true. Here we are the day before the trial. I have not said in so many words in this motion to quash that this is not the time to begin, and I do not think that is necessary, but it is not the time. We have had these proceedings extending over a period of years. Negotiations between representatives of the Bureau of Internal Revenue, the office of the Attorney General, and since April of this year there has been an indictment pending against the defendant, and it does not appear to me that there is any proper justification or explanation for seeking to inspect and take copies at this time, the day before trial.

This next paragraph says in substance that the books, papers, documents and other records referred to in this subpoena are substantially those referred to in the motions had before the federal court—I said in here on November 8th earlier this morning and I was mistaken, it was November 15th, at Las Vegas. Now I am not going to indulge in long argument on the same, but I respectfully submit to the Court that examination of papers show that they are the same and the argument would be the same. If the Court will look at the bottom of this small paper attached and forming part of the subpoena duces tecum, it refers to these particular clubs or businesses in which there were certain records turned over, so without discussing the Bowman case at this time, I want to refer to the case of United States vs. Maryland & Virginia Milk Producers Association, which is decision of the United States District Court, District of Columbia, of December 2, 1949, and it appears in 9 Federal Rules Decisions, page 509, and the decision is written by District Judge Holtzoff. Now by way of comment, your Honor, Judge Holtzoff is one of the co-authors with a Mr. Barry of the text on Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure, and if the Court and counsel will recall, in the preliminary drafts of these rules and the discussions that were had at the time the rules were being formulated for presentation to the Supreme Court of the United States for consideration and enactment, Judge Holtzoff took a very leading part in those discussions. I do not have it in court, but I have one of the official publications containing the draft of the rules as finally enacted before the recent amendments and that volume has in it the discussions and shows the participation by, who is now Judge Holtzoff, as the basis for each of the particular rules. So I am going to read this short one-column decision of Judge Holtzoff on page 510, as follows:

> "In this prosecution for alleged violation of the Sherman law * * *" giving the citation for it:

> "* * * the defendants have applied for a subpoena duces tecum directing the Government to produce for the defendants' inspection all documents which the Government has obtained from any person who is not a party to this proceeding. In other words, the defendants seek a broad discovery of all documentary evidence that the Government has obtained in support of its case, with the exception of such material as is covered by the recently coined and apt term of 'work product' of a lawyer.
> "Defendants seek to support their application by reference to Rule 17(c) of the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure, 18 U.S.C.A. This rule relates to the issuance of subpoenas duces

BLURRED COPY

tecum and contains the following provision on which the defendants here rely: 'The court may direct that books, papers, documents or objects designated in the subpoena be produced before the court at a time prior to the trial or prior to the time when they are to be offered in evidence and may upon their production permit the books, papers, documents or objects or portions thereof to be inspected by the parties and their attorneys.' "

The decision goes on:

"The purpose of this provision is a limited one. It is to make it possible to require the production before the trial of documents subpoenaed for use at the trial. Its purpose is merely to shorten the trial. It is not intended as a discovery provision.

"(2) In this case the proposed subpoena duces tecum is not intended to be used to secure evidence to be introduced at the trial, but is intended to be employed as a broad discovery for the purposes of inspecting all the documentary evidence in possession of the Government and which the Government intends to use at the trial.

"(3) It is well settled that in a criminal case, unlike a civil action, such a right of broad discovery does not exist. As I said before, Rule 17(c) was not intended to be a discovery provision, but merely a means to make a subpoena duces tecum returnable prior to the trial in order that time at the trial may be saved while documents are being examined and inspected.

"In the light of these considerations, the motion is denied."

Now let us see about this duces tecum. This is to inspect some documents that are going to be subpoenaed and look at them ahead of time by what is characterized as, out of the Bowman decision itself, a fishing expedition. I am reading now from the portion which says what the defense counsel would like to have produced here: "All books, papers, documents and objects (except memoranda prepared by government counsel, and documents or papers solicited by or volunteered to government counsel which consist of narrative statements of persons or memoranda of interviews) * * *"; then leaving out the written narrative statements or other matters enumerated within the observations as to exceptions, then it goes on:

"* * * obtained from or belonging to the defendant or obtained from others by seizure or by process or obtained by Government counsel in any manner other than by seizure or by process, * * *"

The Court has in mind Rule 16 that was invoked at the previous hearing and its limitation to seizure or process. And then it goes on:

"* * * (a) in the course of the investigation by the Grand Jury which resulted in the return of the indictment herein, and (b) in the course of the Government's preparation for the trial of this cause, if such books, papers, documents and objects, (a) have been presented to said Grand Jury, or (b) are to be offered as evidence in the trial of the defendant under said indictment, or (c) are admissible in evidence either for or against the defendant with respect to any of the allegations or charges contained in said indictment, * * *"

And as to that last, your Honor, I do not know how it is to be determined whether any of these are admissible in evidence until we see what the foundation is and the document is, and then:

"* * * including without limitation the books of account, journals, ledgers, cash books, expense books, vouchers and other records maintained by, or pertaining to the income and expense of, the following businesses for the years 1944, 1945 and 1946, from which businesses the United States contends the defendant received taxable income as an owner during said years: * * *"

And then it enumerates some nine or ten clubs or businesses, and then goes on:

"* * * and any other businesses from which the government contends defendant received income as an owner during said years."

Well, I think the broad discovery feature, or attempted discovery, of the subpoena duces tecum is quite apparent.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

I might say the only other case I found, your Honor, that pertains to this general subject of Rule 17(c) is a decision of the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals and it is in the case of Flynn against the United States. Decision was rendered on January 10, 1949, and reported in 172 Fed. (2), at page 12, and the decision is written by Circuit Court Judge Stevens and in the case generally a man was charged with having impersonated a federal officer and was found guilty of that charge and then he was subsequently indicted and tried and found guilty of perjury committed during the first trial, and our reading of the volume shows substantially as it relates to Rule 17(c) apply to anything like our present facts, simply that when the trial was on—I am now on page 14:

> "Before the date set for the trial of the case, appellant made a motion for the issuance of a subpoena, under Rule 17, Rules of Criminal Procedure, and for a continuance, but the court denied it without prejudice. Before going to trial appellant made a motion that the case be continued because certain letters had not been received or witnesses subpoenaed, and this motion was renewed at the close of the Government's case in chief."

And at the conclusion a similar motion was made, but in that particular case, as I read this decision, it was held to be no error because a continuance was denied in order that a certain letter might be made available or further efforts might be made to develop the whereabouts or contents of such a letter.

So then if we take the ruling of the United States Supreme Court in the Bowman case and restrict it to what it actually held under the proposition of law that a case is to be taken for what it holds, why it is not considered here that the holding of the Bowman case, which was this person who had refused to produce records in response to the subpoena duces tecum was not in contempt of court for such failure, we find that has no governing authority against this motion to quash, but on the contrary you can find certain portions of it that would have close application to this situation where the Court says, for example—this is on page 7 of the advance sheet, in the concluding portion of the opinion—it says:

> "Clause (c), which is the last clause in the subpoena, reads as follows:
> " 'are relevant to the allegations or charges contained in said indictment, whether or not they might constitute evidence with respect to the guilt or innocence of any of the defendants. * * *' "

And I ask the Court to note the very slight departure made from that language, which was characterized as a fishing expedition, the language by the United States Supreme Court, from the language appearing in the concluding portion of this instant subpoena duces tecum and essentially it is a transposition of language similar and the insertion of additional clause in there and the fishing expedition language is left there. But the Court then said:

> "This is a catch-all provision, not intended to produce evidentiary materials but is merely a fishing expedition to see what may turn up. The clause is therefore invalid."

And it held that one would not be held in contempt under a subpoena that is part good and part bad. Now possibly there has been an effort made here to take out the bad part, but I do not see where that has been accomplished and under the ruling of the Bowman case this subpoena, with its fishing expedition language, I would say would come squarely under the Bowman case. Well, I can make a comparison here. Here is the fishing expedition language, the quoted portion, as compared with the language in the instant subpoena. I refer to Clause (c). If the Court will look at the quoted portion in the Bowman decision and then look at the clause, same (c), in our present subpoena, the Court will see what I mean. On the last page of the Bowman decision. The Court has a discretion here but it is the government's contention that there is nothing in the Bowman decision that abandons that discretion of the Court requiring protection of what amounts to a discovery proposition, as stated. In the Bowman decision we have the following language:

> "It was not intended by Rule 16 to give a limited right of discovery, and then by Rule 17 to give a right of discovery in the broadest terms."

BLURRED COPY

And the Court recalls there it is seizure by process. Here Rule 16 has been invoked. The motion is based on Rule 16, has been denied, and now counsel are back with Rule 17(c) and it may be that under this Bowman decision there is this right of discovery. The government contends otherwise.

The Court: We will take a recess until 1:30.

Afternoon Session—November 27, 1951, 1:30 P.M.

Mr. Pike: I had finished addressing the Court on the opening argument to quash subpoenas.

Mr. Golden: If the Court please, as counsel has indicated, there are two motions here, the first of them a motion for production and inspection of books, papers, etc., and it calls for, as counsel has stated, all these documents, with the exception of certain items which we consider to be private memorandum and inadmissible in evidence, private memorandum belonging to the government, which we are not asking for. It calls for all the material admissible in evidence which has been admitted in evidence before the grand jury, or is intended to be used in evidence at this trial, or which could be used in evidence, either for or against the defendant. In other words, I would like to make it quite clear at the outset that the only things we are asking for are things which are admissible in evidence. Now counsel says, how can you tell in advance whether something is admissible in evidence or not. What we call for, and what I think anybody reading it would understand, what we call for is anything which, under the accepted rules of this court, would be admissible in evidence.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

This motion is made in connection with the subpoena which was issued in accordance with Rule 17 of the Criminal Rules and likewise in accordance with that section the government made a motion to quash the subpoena. As counsel has indicated, the controlling portions of that rule, for the purpose of the two motions—if I may be permitted to read that again, just so we have that in mind right here. As to the government's motion, the sentence is:

> "The court on motion made promptly may quash or modify the subpoena if appliance would be unreasonable or oppressive."

In other words, I submit to your Honor respecting that, subpoenas which were issued as a matter of course under the rule cannot be quashed unless your Honor finds that the compliance with those subpoenas would be unreasonable or oppressive.

Now then our motion is made under authority of the sentence that follows in Rule 17:

> "The court may direct that books, papers, documents or objects designated in the subpoena be produced before the court at a time prior to the trial or prior to the time when they are to be offered in evidence and may, upon their production, permit the books, papers, documents or objects, or portions thereof, to be inspected by the parties and their attorneys."

Now your Honor will note the very purpose of this motion and of that sentence is that these documents and objects be produced either prior to the trial or prior to the time they are offered in evidence. We have under the rule, if the Court please, I submit a perfect right to subpoena anything which the government has, subject only to the limitation that if the Court finds that what we call for, that the supplying of what we call for, would be unreasonable or oppressive, the Court may limit us, but the purpose of our motion is not to ask for a validation of the subpoena—the subpoena is valid —the purpose of our motion is to ask that these matters be produced in advance, as provided by the sentence I just read.

Now your Honor has in mind, I am sure, and your Honor's recollection was partly refreshed this morning by Mr. Pike, that this is the last in a series of efforts by the defendant—and I do say this respectfully—to compel and force the government to tell us what this defendant is charged with and give us sufficient information to enable us to prepare our defense. Now I know that ordinarily an indictment tells the defendant what he is charged with and I know that ordinarily—although this is in the discretion of the Court—ordinarily the testimony before a grand jury is not available to the defense in federal courts. However, your Honor, I am sure, has in mind that this indictment simply charges the defendant with a wilful nonpayment or evasion of lump sums of income tax for specific years and does not give him any information whatsoever as to the basis on which the government is going to make its case, and at this point I call your Honor's attention, without going into any detail, to the affidavit of Mr. Spurgeon Avakian on file herein, which is one of the affidavits which was used before your Honor last week in Las Vegas, and in that affidavit, on page 5, it is set out in columnar style, so it is very easy to read, for each of the three years the returns which the taxpayer made—when I say the returns he made, I mean the amount of tax shown by the returns he made—in the first column; in the second column the amount of tax which the government claims civilly he owes and in the third column the amount of tax upon which this indictment is based, and the figures are very interesting. For example, the tax on returns for the year 1944 is 19 thousand and tax by the 90-day letter is 136 thousand plus and the tax according to the indictment is 67 thousand plus. 1945 is even more interesting. It varies between 59 thousand for figures shown by the returns to 265 thousand by the 90-day letter issued by the plaintiff in this case, and in the indictment it is down to 75 thousand. The totals show return and tax of 100 thousand that civilly it claimed it should have been almost 600 thousand and on the indictment that is something over 300 thousand. I believe the indictment, as a matter of fact, only charges about 155 thousand, but in any case there is a great variance between the figures. I am not going into any detail, your Honor, in the matter of those particulars. That matter was argued here. I do want, however, and I think I should in fairness to our client, inform the Court of an impression the Court apparently has, which we believe is incorrect. I refer now, your Honor, to a statement made by the Court at Las Vegas last week—we had the proceedings written up—I don't know whether the Court or the government ordered or have copies, but this copy is available to anybody who wishes to read it, and at that time your Honor, I believe the Court was under the impression that in connection with that demand for bill of particulars there dilatoriness or something of that nature on the part of defendant's counsel. Your Honor said this:

> "I have a recollection of the hearing June 15th in Carson City on motion for bill of particulars. I think at the conclusion of that hearing the Court suggested that counsel confer with Mr. Golden and Mr. Pike and the suggestion was made that certain information be furnished Mr. Golden at that time, and I also recollect that the Court at the time, in the event Mr. Golden did not receive the cooperation from Mr. Pike that the Court indicated should be given, he could apply to the Court later. Now no application of that kind has been made in relation to those proceedings June 15th."

In other words, I gather from that, your Honor, that the Court is under the impression that after the argument on the bill of particulars and after the Court's denial of it on June 15th, the door was left open to us to reapply. What actually happened, if I may refresh your Honor's recollection, is this. The indictment was filed on the 9th of April. Defendant was arraigned on the 27th of April and made a motion for bill of particulars. At that time your Honor suggested that counsel on both sides get together and if the government did not supply what the defendant felt he was entitled to, then the defendant could apply to the Court for an order on motion for bill of particulars. Now the motion for bill of particulars was filed on April 27th. On May 11th, hearing nothing, I wrote to Mr. Pike. I did not get an answer. I discovered later—this is not meant to be critical—that after he got my letter at Reno he forwarded it to Mr. Campbell in San Francisco, but at any rate, not hearing from Mr. Pike in answer to my letter of may 11th, on May 17th I wrote to Mr. Dickey, the clerk of this court, and he replied on May 21st, telling me that he had taken up the matter with the United States attorney. I have all those letters here and if it is felt to be of any consequence, I would be very happy to read them into the record. Now hearing nothing from the government, on June 1st I wrote to Mr. Pike and asked him to arrange for a date for argument on bill of particulars and then I got a letter from Mr. Pike telling me that the matter would have to be taken up with the Court and a date was arranged for June 15th. In other words, your Honor, the opportunity to get any information about this charge from government counsel was requested before the argument on the bill of particulars and it was pursued with dispatch and we waited an interval of some two weeks, wrote to them, heard nothing, had correspondence back and forth, and finally it was put on the calendar and then your Honor denied that motion and there was thereafter no indication from either the Court or counsel that we could make any further attempt by way of bill of particulars to determine just what the government is going to charge at the trial of this case, because we couldn't get that information from the indictment.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

Now may I pause there just one moment, your Honor. At the time your Honor denied that motion I did not take an exception and I believe under the rules that is not necessary, but may I just for the purposes of the record at this time renew the motion for bill of particulars and except to your Honor's denial.

The Court: I have no objection to exception being noted as of that date.

Mr. Golden: All right, thank you.

The case at that time was set for November 7th for trial and by virtue of the congestion of the calendar it was continued, first to November 15th and then to November 28th for trial. Now on November 15th in Las Vegas Mr. Gillen, on behalf of the defendant, made two motions, one for continuance, one to inspect and take copies of certain material which the government had. Now I take it from the transcript of the proceedings down there that your Honor denied the motion to inspect, largely if not wholly, upon the ground that your Honor was given the impression that the defendant had had ample opportunity previously to inspect and take copies of the material which he was entitled to have under Rule 16.

In that connection, may I call to your Honor's attention at this point the fact that Mr. Campbell's statements before your Honor on November 15th are not positive statements, but rather either based on hearsay, you might say, or at any rate vague. There are two statements, the first is on page 26, in which Mr. Campbell says:

> "Now I might state to the Court that these records, to which counsel previously referred, the records which are still in possession of the government, have been examined, and I believe in detail, * * *"

Those are his words:

> "* * * and I believe in detail, by the representatives of the defendant Remmer."

And again on page 27 he says:

> "I am advised Mr. Friedman, together with some associated accountant in his office, spent approximately a week going over these records."

"I am advised" that Mr. Friedman did that. Mr. Campbell is not speaking of his own knowledge.

Now it never occurred to us, in preparing those motions, that Mr. Campbell might not have personal knowledge of the actual situation and therefore, to cure that what we believe was misstatement given the Court, we have prepared an affidavit in connection with this motion, to which I will refer in such a motion, but on connection with those motions in Las Vegas, we, for the same purpose at this time renew them and except to the Court's denial.

The Court: The exception may be entered in the record.

Mr. Golden: Now without further preliminaries, we come to these motions here. Now in discussing this I am going to talk in favor of our motion and against the government's motion all at the same time, because the motions are really contradictory to each other, in our opinion. One of the points which the government makes is that this case is set for trial tomorrow and by inference therefore our motion is not timely and their motion should be granted, because it comes too late. In that connection, your Honor, the language which I read from Rule 17 of the Rules is, I believe, a complete answer. It says that the Court may direct that these matters be produced at a time prior to trial or prior to the time when they are to be offered in evidence, which to us means that a motion could be made even in the middle of the trial that certain matters be produced in advance for inspection of the defense, and I might say to your Honor, because I expected Mr. Campbell would be here, but it is the practice in San Francisco, which, of course, is not binding upon your Honor, that those motions are accepted or entertained during the middle of a trial and in this last case which Mr. Campbell prosecuted such a motion was made and granted. I am not saying that as any authority, but simply referring to it.

Furthermore, your Honor, it was only on November 15, 1951, that we learned, through statements of Mr. Campbell, at that argument, that material, which they have which we are trying to see and which they do not want to let us see, is material which, according to the government, was not obtained by seizure or by process and therefore would not be available to us under Rule 16 but only under Rule 17. That appears on page 25 of the transcript, where Mr. Campbell says:

> "I might say none of the records referred to which I am referring to, or any of the records in connection with this case, were obtained by the government either by process or by seizure; all records were given voluntarily to the government by third parties."

Now we didn't know that until approximately ten days ago and immediately upon return of Mr. Gillen from Las Vegas and the delivery of the transcript of what was said there, this present motion was made.

There is one other little point I want to mention in that connection. Mr. Campbell stated at that hearing—and I am saying this in self-defense—that it appeared Mr. Semenza had been on power of attorney signed by the defendant for a long time, and by inference he indicated that he had become connected with this case only in September, 1951. The fact of the matter is, as I pointed out to the government, civilly he is claiming a large amount of money from this defendant, a different amount, based upon different factors than this indictment is based on, and while Mr. Semenza has been on that power of attorney and has had opportunity to do some work in connection with this 90-day letter, we are now met with an entirely different case and it was only in September that we were able to make arrangements, which are not financial arrangements, I might say, that he would express himself as willing to associate himself and work on this criminal case and at the times that the accountants in San Francisco and Mr. Semenza, according to Mr. Pike's statement this morning, were permitted to see these matters, there was at that time no indictment, there was no reason for them to look at those matters from the point of view of this indictment. They couldn't. They didn't know what the indictment said.

To go into this a little further, one of the new affidavits—and I am not going to read the ones we used in Las Vegas, they are available—one of the new affidavits is that of Mr. Gillen and I will either read it in full or describe it, as your Honor desires. Has your Honor had an opportunity to read it?

The Court: No, I have not read it.

Mr. Golden: Will it be all right if I just paraphrase it?

The Court: Yes, sir.

Mr. Golden: Mr. Gillen recites he is an attorney and one of Mr. Remmer's attorneys here and that at a time in the latter part of March, 1951——

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

The Court (Interceding): I think this is practically the same as the matter we had in Las Vegas. The facts in the affidavit here this morning seem to contain facts brought before the Court in Las Vegas.

Mr. Golden: This particular affidavit of Mr. Gillen's is to a large extent to remove certain impressions that we felt the Court had as to the facts in the matter in Las Vegas in connection particularly with your Honor's statement in Las Vegas that the defendant himself had never said he was without funds, but only through his lawyers.

The Court: Isn't this motion to the same effect as that in Las Vegas?

Mr. Golden: No, your Honor.

The Court: This is a motion for continuance and——

Mr. Golden: To inspect and take copies.

The Court: What is the difference between that motion and the one now before the Court?

Mr. Golden: The one in Las Vegas was to inspect and take copies of material which was obtained by the government by seizure or process. Now they come in and say they don't have, on November 15th they say they don't have, any such material obtained by seizure or process and we now are making motion to obtain all the material which is admissible in evidence, either for or against the defendant. It is not limited to material obtained by seizure or process. It is a motion to see in advance evidence and matters which may be used as evidence. Under the Supreme Court case, which

I am getting to in just a moment, a distinction is made between matter obtainable under Rule 16 and under Rule 17(c).

The Court: Well the motion formerly made was made under Rule 16?

Mr. Golden: Yes, your Honor.

The Court: And the present motion has nothing to do with the subject matter of Rule 16?

Mr. Golden: No, it has not, except to this extent, that as the Supreme Sourt had held the matter objectionable under Rule 17(c) may include matter also objectionable under Rule 16, but Rule 16 is more limited, more restricted, than Rule 17(c), that is, as to the type of material taken.

The Court: A motion under Rule 16 could only operate on and have effect upon matters which had been taken from the defendant——

Mr. Golden: Or belonging to him.

The Court: ——or belonging to the defendant or obtained from others by seizure.

Mr. Golden: That is right, your Honor. As I said, Mr. Campbell stated to your Honor last week that none of the material which the government has was obtained by seizure or by process; therefore, now, in view of the denial of that motion and in view of this statement, we make this motion under Rule 17(c).

There are two purposes to Mr. Gillen's affidavit. Without reading it in full, one is it points out that at all times in the matter of the defendant's financial position—and he has brought out and does have perhaps some bearing, although we do not think so, the Supreme Court and government has mentioned it—that he has been willing to make an affidavit that he is without funds. The only affidavit he is unwilling to make, on the advice of counsel, is the detailed statment of his assets and liabilities and the reason for that is he can not, because he has not got the information because he has not got the money.

The other purpose which Mr. Gillen's affidavit serves, your Honor, is to bring into the files of the matter and officially before the Court, the letter which Mr. Avakian wrote to Mr. Campbell, which Mr. Gillen read while in Las Vegas. This is a six-page letter. This transcript we have is the only one available, but we wanted the matter officially before the Court.

The Court: Did you ever hear of a subpoena duces tecum used for the purpose that you are attempting to use one here? Have you ever in your practice before served a subpoena upon an attorney for the government in a case of this kind, or in any criminal case?

Mr. Golden: Those are two different questions, your Honor.

The Court: Well, they are, but it occurs to me that the purpose of this rule is to require the presentation in court by a witness in the trial or to bring into court certain matters that some person has in his possession that you believe to be matters of evidence in a trial, not, as Judge Holmes stated here, for the purpose of discovery.

Mr. Golden: Well, we quite agree, your Honor, that the purpose of Rule 17 is not for discovery.

BLURRED COPY

The Court: That is what we have here. It is what it will result in.

Mr. Golden: No, I say respectfully, that your Honor assumes that because Mr. Pike——

The Court (Interceding): In your subpoena did you point out any specific document or paper that you want?

Mr. Golden: Well, the answer is no and there was a reason for that. The chief reason is that we do not know what they are.

The Court: "* * * books, papers, documents or other objects designated therein," that is the language of Rule 17(c) of the Federal Rules. You just name papers, not what papers they are or whose papers they are or anything of the kind.

Mr. Golden: May I then, in view of your Honor's question, rearrange this a little bit and go immediately into the matter of the Bowman Dairy Company vs. United States, and I want to say right now that any decision by any district judge in 1949, no matter how great an authority he may be, is as naught compared to a 1951 decision of the Supreme Court: The law is what the Supreme Court says it is, even if this gentleman did write the rules. He may have intended one thing, but the Supreme Court said he said another thing. The subpoena in this case, your Honor is word for word with the subpoena in the Bowman case, with one exception, and if your Honor will permit me, may I tell you briefly what this case is about.

That was a Sherman Act prosecution and the

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

United States attorney, or special government prosecutor, was subpoenaed by the defense, the same as here, and also a motion was made under Rule 16, as well as a motion under Rule 17(c). The motion under Rule 16 was granted by consent. The government in that case did not have any objection to giving the defendants the information. As to the motion under Rule 17(c), the government was willing to give the defendant some of the things he wanted, but not all of them. The court points out—we are using different volumes—but the court points out prior to the motion that the government made an offer, which did not include documents "furnished the government by voluntary and confidential informants." Now the district court held the government attorney in contempt. The Circuit Court reversed it, it went to the Supreme Court, and it is true, as Mr. Pike says, that the government attorney was finally not held in contempt, but the reason he was not held in contempt was because the subpoena in the Bowman case called for, sub-section (c), to which Mr. Pike referred, for material "relevant to the allegations or charges contained in said indictment," and I am quoting, "whether or not they might constitute evidence with respect to the guilt or innocence of any of the defendants." Obviously we all know, from general practice, that the defendant, despite the rules, is not entitled to get things which the government has which are not evidence or may not be admitted in evidence, so in our subpoena we changed it and our clause (c) refers only to matters, and I am quoting now: "admissible in evidence either for or against the defendant with respect to any of the allegations contained in the indictment," and then it goes on to say, "including * * *." Now with that exception, which makes our subpoena narrower, because we only call for what is admissible in evidence rather than everything that is relevant, whether or not it is admissible, as is the Bowman Dairy case, with that exception our subpoena is word for word, your Honor. The matter appears in the third paragraph of Justice Minton's opinion. It quotes here as to what it was in the Bowman case:

> " 'all documents, books, papers and objects (except memoranda prepared by Government counsel, and documents or papers solicited by or volunteered to Government counsel which consist of narrative statements of persons or memoranda of interviews), obtained by Government counsel, in any manner other than by seizure or process, (a) in the course of the investigation by Grand Jury No. 8949 which resulted in the return of the indictment herein, and (b) in the course of the Government's preparation for the trial of this cause, if such books, papers, documents and objects, (a) have been presented to the Grand Jury; or (b) are to be offered as evidence on the trial of the defendants, or any of them, under said indictment; or (c) * * * ' "

BLEED THROUGH- POOR COPY

as Bowman has it:

> "'* * * are relevant * * *'"

as we have it: "are admissible in evidence."

> "'* * * to the allegations or charges contained in said indictment, whether or not they might constitute evidence with respect to the guilt or innocence of any of the defendants * * *'"

Now regardless of whether Mr. Pike thinks this is a fishing expedition or any skepticism he may have by reason of his position, inclination or strong belief upon the matter, what does the United States Supreme Court say about that kind of subpoena:

> "The defendants had the right to subpoena all materials in possession of the government which were admissible in evidence, including those obtained by it by solicitation or voluntarily by third persons, but the trial court, in weighing production of materials of the latter kind, should uphold protection against disclosures of identity of persons and the method, manner and circumstance of the government's acquisition of these materials."

That is fundamental. We do not need to know who gave them or under what duress or promises. We are not interested in that. We are just interested in seeing—if I may read very briefly from the opinion. The court says this:

> "It was intended by the rules to give some measure of discovery. Rule 16 was adopted for that purpose. It gave discovery as to documents and other materials otherwise beyond the reach of the defendant which, as in the instant case, might be numerous and difficult to identify. The rule was to apply not only to documents and other materials belonging to the defendant, but also to those belonging to others which had been obtained by seizure or process. This was a departure from what had theretofore been allowed in criminal cases.

"Rule 61 deals with documents and other materials that are in the possession of the Government and provides how they may be made available to the defendant for his information. In the interest of orderly procedure in the handling of books, papers, documents and objects in the custody of the Government accumulated in the course of an investigation and subpoenaed for use before the grand jury and on the trial, it was provided by Rule 16 that the court could order such materials made available to the defendant for inspection and copying or photographing. In that way, the control and possession of the Government is not disturbed. Rule 16 provides the only way the defendant can reach such materials so as to inform himself.

"But if such materials or any part of them are not put in evidence by the Government, the defendant may subpoena them under Rule 17(c) and use them himself. It would be strange indeed if the defendant discovered some evidence by the use of Rule 16 which the Government was not going to introduce and yet could not require its production by Rule 17(c)."

And then here we have other documents:

"There may be documents and other materials in the possession of the Government not subject to Rule 16. No good reason appears to us why they may not be reached by subpoena under Rule 17(c) as long as they are evidentiary. That is not to say that the materials thus subpoenaed must actually be used in evidence. It is only required that a good-faith effort be made to obtain evidence. The court may control the use of Rule 17(c) to that end by its power to rule on motions to quash or modify.

"It was not intended by Rule 16 to give a limited right of discovery, and then by Rule 17 to give a right of discovery in the broadest terms. Rule 17 provides for the usual subpoena ad testificandum and duces tecum, which may be issued by the clerk, with the provision that the court may direct the material designated in the subpoena duces tecum to be produced at a specified time and place for inspection by the defendant. Rule 17(c) was not intended to provide an additional means of discovery. Its chief innovation was to expedite the trial by providing a time and place before trial for the inspection of the subpoenaed materials."

Then as a matter of fact, the case it cites will be the case, the district court case, which counsel was reading from this morning, United States v. Maryland & Virginia Milk Producers Assn., 9 F. R. D. 509.

"However, the plain words of the Rule are not to be ignored. They must be given their ordinary meaning to carry out the purpose of establishing a more liberal policy for the production, inspection and use of materials at the trial. There was no intention to exclude from the reach of process of the defendant any material that had been used before the grand jury or could be used at the trial. In short, any document or other materials, admissible as evidence, obtained by the Government by solicitation or voluntarily from third persons is subject to subpoena. It was material of this character which the Government was unwilling to stipulate or produce or to produce in obedience to the subpoena."

The Court: What were the contents of the subpoena in this Bowman case?

Mr. Golden: You will find that, your Honor, in the third paragraph of the opinion. It says, Mr. Justice Minton:

"Petitioners also moved under Rule 17(c) for an order directing the Government at a time and place to be specified therein to produce for inspection certain other books, papers, documents and objects obtained by the Government by means other than seizure or process. Petitioners filed and served on the Government attorneys a subpoena duces tecum, the pertinent part of which reads as follows:

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

* * *"

And then the following paragraph quotes the subpoena, your Honor.

The Court: What part of that subpoena did the Court declare to be a fishing expedition?

Mr. Golden: Paragraph (c), at the bottom of that paragraph. It is in quotes:

"* * * are relevant to the allegations or charges contained in said indictment, whether or not they might constitute evidence with respect to the guilt or innocence of any of the defendants."

The Supreme Court said that was invalid and that is why I changed it.

The Court: You may proceed, Mr. Golden.

Mr. Golden: I would like to say, your Honor, that we filed, in connection with this motion, to offset the information which Mr. Pike has and which Mr. Pike had apparently from Mr. Campbell, this information to the effect that we spent about a week looking at these documents. That is the affidavit of Mr. Miller, it is only one page. He works for Mr. Friedman, and the gist of it is that that office, Friedman's office, spent altogether only twelve hours looking at government records, in which the affiant spent eight hours, and that all they did was to survey it to see what would be required to analyze it and then they gave up because of lack of funds, they were unable to do it.

BLURRED COPY

Now is the first time I heard—of course it is true, but new to me and I think Mr. Pike is misinformed—today is the first time I heard Mr. Semenza had an opportunity to see the material the government has. It is true he saw certain records which he took away, and while I would like to defend myself in that act, I do not suppose your Honor wants to take the time to go into it now, because it is a side issue, but to my knowledge the stuff Mr. Semenza saw is the stuff he took away with him, but he never was given the opportunity, or did he see the material which the government still has. I do not think it is our fault—as I say, I would be glad to defend myself under oath or otherwise—the fact remains, however, that the material which we charge the government has seen and saw for as long as it wanted to and gave back to us voluntarily, that material which they photostated and whatever they wanted to do with it, that belongs to us. It belongs either to the defendant or to his alleged partners or to his alleged employees. It isn't the government's. That is material which is ours and they say, in effect, "We gave you back material that doesn't belong to us, although we got hold of it some way or other, and now you won't give it back to us, so we are not going to let you see it." Well, that is cat and mouse stuff. Maybe they do not trust us and I submit, your Honor, regardless of that so-called Semenza incident, which I am further prepared to go into, except I do not believe your Honor wishes me to take that time, that we are, under the decision of the Supreme Court here entitled, as a matter of right—and I say this respectively—entitled as a matter of right to see this material, under such reasonable safeguards as your Honor may provide. We do not pretend we are entitled to take it away. We do say that we are entitled to see it for the purpose of the case and we are entitled to see what they have used or are going to use or what could be used, either for or against the defendant. I respectfully submit to your Honor, regardless of what has or has not gone before, there is no escape from the plain language of the Bowman case, and again I say this respectfully, regardless of what any man or official may think of the defendant or his motives—and that is not the issue here—the point is that the government says that that rule was made and means this and we are entitled to that under such safeguards as will, in your Honor's opinion prevent it from becoming a fishing expedition. Thank you.

Mr. Pike: Your Honor, in my opening argument in support of the motion to quash the subpoena duces tecum served upon Walter M. Campbell and myself, which I made this morning, I was afforded an opportunity to speak at some length, in the course of which I undertook to analyze, to the best of my ability, the holding of the United States Supreme Court in the Bowman Dairy case, as well as other authorities cited to the Court. I say again, referring to the cases for authority what it actually holds, that it does not undertake to deprive the trial court of the exercise of its discretion under the particular facts and conditions appearing before the Court as to what would be the permitted course of discovery to the defendant in a criminal case, having in mind the language of the Bowman case itself, as it has been read to the Court several times in the course of this hearing.

Factually, referring to the correspondence of May 15, 1951, letter from Mr. Golden to me in my official employment as United States attorney, he did, of course, make reference to the fact that motion for bill of particulars had been filed and inquired, in substance, what might be accomplished without a court hearing and I did, in turn, discuss that with Mr. Campbell, with the result that nothing was accomplished and there was a hearing had before this Court, at which time motion for bill of particulars was presented and was denied by the Court:

As to the opportunity accorded the defendant through his authorized representatives, Mr. Friedman and Mr. Semenza, to inspect the records in question, I wish to state again to the Court that Mr. Ray Weaver of the Bureau of Internal Revenue in San Francisco is present in the courtroom, and based upon information he has given me, in addition to the statements made in Mr. Campbell's affidavit and the representations made by Mr. Campbell before the Court at the time of the Las Vegas hearing November 15th, it is my understanding that Mr. Semenza was given access to all of the records then in possession of the government at San Francisco, with the exception of what we could properly say the exception of the subpoena here, these narrative statements and the reports of agents and like material, referred to in the Maryland & Virginia Milkers decision as lawyers' work, or some equivalent language, and that the defendant was not only given the opportunity of inspection, but he was given the right to select from the records such records as he wishes to take with him, upon giving a receipt for the same, that he selected what he wished to take with him and that has been the last custody that the government has ever had of those records.

I feel that I have presented the government's contention that this motion to quash the two subpoenas should be granted, and as I have used the language "fishing expedition," it is not my language, as attributed to me by counsel, but it is the language of the United States Supreme Court in the Bowman case. It is not a question of my occupying the position of judge, but I said what the highest court in the land has said in relation to granting any improper discovery in a criminal case as to the evidence proposed to be used by the government. I believe that that concludes what I have to say on the merits of this motion. I do not think that this is the appropriate time to introduce evidence in the form of testimony of Mr. Weaver, because I think we are getting away from the point governing the legal argument that is sought to be applied to this motion to quash, and I am not going to call Mr. Weaver as a witness, because his testimony will essentially relate to Mr. Semenza's inspection of the records, and that is only part of the matter being considered. However, your Honor, I am obliged to say this, that there is another matter which I must bring to the Court. I feel I may well take up the Court's time to do it.

Mr. Gillen: Let's take up one thing at a time. We would like the motion granted or denied.

Mr. Pike: I understand the only motion before the Court now is the government's motion to quash the subpoenas served on Mr. Campbell and myself. It is not my understanding that the Court consolidated that motion for hearing with defendant's motion to produce, although reference has been made back and forth.

The Court: Aren't they the same in substance; that is, the same matters are involved?

Mr. Pike: Well, I think this might well be true.

The Court: Do you want to argue now on that?

Mr. Pike: No, I do not. I have a matter entirely extraneous.

The Court: Let us take up this and finish that later.

Mr. Pike: Mr. Golden says he wants to say something further and if I understand the orderly procedure on the motion, the moveant makes the opening and closing.

The Court: We have a peculiar situation. We have argued two motions in the same argument, one side was the moveant and the other side was the opponent.

Mr. Golden: Your Honor, I only want to say these two things. First, I hope your Honor did not get the wrong impression from my closing remarks about the defendant's motive. The position is that because of history, because of having been doing right along, that we did want to say these things in advance in order to say what equally we are entitled to say under oath.

The only other thing I want to say is that by accident Mr. Campbell isn't here, although I feel the matter is as much hearsay to him as to Mr. Pike. We suggest, your Honor, if there is any doubt in the Court's mind as to just what opportunity we actually had to see these records, while it is our understanding that Mr. Weaver was present, both when Mr. Friedman saw these things and when the defendant or Mr. Semenza did, we would like to have him take the stand and answer such questions your Honor has and such questions we have on the subject.

The Court: My view I take in this proposition, I don't see that any testimony would alter the result of my decision on these motions. We had a motion for bill of particulars on April 27th and there was similar discussion. I thought at the time that perhaps maybe counsel could get together and have an understanding as to certain documents and matters which might be in the possession of the government.

BLURRED COPY

Mr. Golden: Excuse my interruption. The defendant is not dissatisfied with what they offered us—they never offered us anything. They told us it was a matter the Court had to decide.

The Court: However, it seems that this subpoena could have been obtained a long time before the day before the trial. Now Rule 16 provides for a method of discovery and inspection of documents, books and objects which have been obtained by seizure or process from the defendant or from any other persons. We have an idea of what the defendant wants to see at this late date, from the affidavit presented here by Mr. Miller. In his affidavit Mr. Miller says that in the spring of 1950 he was taken by Mr. Ray Weaver, a special agent, to a room in San Francisco and shown material which was stated to be records obtained by the Bureau relating to Elmer Remmer, that this material consists of a mass of original documents, such as adding machine tape, bank statements, cancelled checks, dealer's daily reports and daily information, relating to a number of businesses in which Elmer Remmer was alleged to have an interest, that this material filled a packing box of approximately 50 cubic feet in volume, plus several smaller cartons. Now to wait until the day before the trial to have a mass of such material turned over to you for inspection and production, it seems to me would be well within the scope of Rule 17(c), where it states: "The court on motion made promptly, may quash or modify the subpoena if compliance would be unreasonable or oppressive."

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

We are going to try this case tomorrow morning. How could we examine a roomful of various documents, machine tape, etc.?

The motion to quash is granted and the defendant's motion is denied.

Mr. Golden: May we take exception for the record, your Honor?

The Court: Yes. Defendant's motion for production and inspection of papers and objects is denied; for one reason particularly, that it was noticed here by the defendant just before the trial came on for hearing, the day before the trial.

Mr. Golden: Would your Honor permit me to make one observation of condition which your Honor could impose, which would amply take away the——

The Court: (Interceding) I do not know what you want to say. I read the Supreme Court decisions in this Bowman case and, of course, I am not going to criticize the Supreme Court, but I can't understand how the Supreme Court could seriously consider a subpoena in language like this: "all documents, papers and objects." It seems to me that fairness would require a statement or description of the specific document or book that he might be arranged to see in the hands of somebody else, and as Judge Holtzoff has quoted, "The purpose of this provision (17(c)) is a limited one. It is to make it possible to require the production before the trial of documents subpoened for use at the trial. Its purpose is merely to shorten the trial." Now if we have to give you a little time during the course of the trial to examine any document which is offered by the government in evidence, you are going to get that time to examine it.

Mr. Golden: Thank you, your Honor. I thought we could possibly work out a way——

The Court: We are going to take plenty of time to try the case and not hurry along. You can have all the time you need.

Mr. Pike: Before the Court leaves the bench, I am obliged to make an additional statement relating to this proceeding. The Court can appreciate I had no way of knowing what the Court's ruling would be on either of these motions. Your Honor, I feel that at this time it becomes incumbent upon me to invite the Court's attention to a situation that was referred to earlier in this hearing and which, by reason of the most recent development of it, has a very direct affect upon the future proceedings in this case, and I refer to the absence of Mr. Campbell.

This morning when Mr. Campbell was not here, I turned to the Court the only knowledge that I had with reference to his absence. I did that for the reason that he had been subpoenaed along with me by the subpoena duces tecum just quashed by the Court's order, to be here today. I can refer to the telephone conversation I had with Mr. Campbell on the afternoon of Wednesday, November 21st, and my understanding, based upon such conversation, he planned to be in Reno and Carson City Friday, November 23rd. I refer to the two telegrams that had been received by Mr. Brady, present in court, and who is with the Bureau of Internal Revenue, with headquarters in San Francisco, both of which were signed Walter M. Campbell, the first of which indicated a necessary delay that would cause Mr. Campbell to be in Reno yesterday, and suggesting that Mr. Brady meet him there at that time, and the second of the telegrams suggesting that due to a condition of ill health Mr. Campbell was not able to be in Reno yesterday, but that he would be here today, and suggested again that Mr. Brady meet him. During the noon recess of the court, and in fact just prior to coming in to the courtroom at 1:30, I received, for the first time, another telegram which was sent from San Francisco today, according to the markings on it, late in the morning, addressed to Mr. A. V. Brady, care of United States District Clerk, Postoffice Building, Carson City, Nevada, reading as follows:

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

> "Due to unforeseen emergency can not arrive and therefore request postponement."

Signed Walter M. Campbell.

Now, your Honor, I might say that this request on the part of Mr. Campbell has been in no way discussed with me. It comes as a complete and altogether new expression from Mr. Campbell and I am stating my position before the Court so the Court will understand the position in which the government counsel finds himself. In the first instance, it is to be noted that I have no reason to consider the telegrams other than a bonda fide wire.

BLURRED COPY

I know of no way to communicate with Mr. Campbell except the means that I have tried within the last day or so without success. I do not know the nature of the unforeseen emergence referred to in his wire. I do know this, however, that Mr. Campbell is the regional counsel of the penal division of the Bureau of Internal Revenue and that his official address as such is 100 McAllister Bldg., San Francisco 2, California, at which address I have communicated with him. Similarly I know in my official capacity that he occupies the official position of Special Assistant to the Attorney General of the United States and there is filed with this clerk, pursuant to the authority of the Attorney General of the United States, who is my official superior, a statement designating Walter M. Campbell, Jr. as a Special Assistant United States Attorney for the District of Nevada, which designation, as I understand, is effective for the purposes of this case of United States vs. Remmer. So I now find myself in the position, as United States Attorney, where Mr. Campbell, occuping those official positions, has by this wire directed to Mr. Brady, who is present in court at this time, requested the postponement of this trial.

As the Court knows, I resisted the motion for a continuance of the trial and Mr. Campbell joined me in resisting such motion, at Las Vegas, on November 15th. Mr. Campbell has represented to Mr. Brady in his wires, and I in turn have presented them to the Court, first stating in yesterday's wire his inability to attend by reason of ill health, and he has now stated his inability to attend due to unforeseen emergency and he states to Mr. Brady: "Therefore request postponement."

Now that is my present position in this thing, your Honor. I know the jury has been summoned, I know the witnesses have been subpoenaed, and I might say a considerable number of those witnesses, as well as jurors, are due to report in this court room at 10:00 o'clock tomorrow morning. If the case is to be postponed, I have brought to the attention of the Court the reasons for the postponement, the request of Mr. Campbell. Mr. Campbell has long been associated with this case. I do not say this in any critical sense at all, but at the motions in Las Vegas I was impressed by those circumstances that, in addition to the representations made to the Court by respective counsel for the defendant and by Mr. Campbell, speaking on behalf of the government, there were many extraneous matters, if the Court will permit me to say so, that in my opinion were not strictly evidence in the case, but they related to the dates of hearings, of conferences, of the exchange in correspondence, and many outlying matters, with which I have no familiarity, but with which Mr. Campbell's personal connection has gone back to a period of years and as a result, your Honor, I find myself in this situation where now this request, which I have no reason to question bona fide emanates from Mr. Campbell, and I am disclosing this to the Court at this time because I wanted to talk to my associates representing the government and decide just what I should do.

Mr. Gillen: Have you any objection to me looking at that telegram?

Mr. Pike: None at all.

The Court: You have here agents of the Internal Revenue Department, men who have gathered evidence, prepared the case?

Mr. Pike: We have those agents, I believe most of them available, your Honor. I have been asked this question outside court and I have answered it directly, so I see no objection to my making the same statement before the Court, because it is a factual one. When I was asked as to who was going to try the Remmer case, to use the language commonly applied to lawyers participating in a trial, I told them that it was my understanding that Mr. Campbell would handle the greater part of the court presentation of the government's case. Now most certainly that was my understanding and the preparation for the trial has been on that basis, with the understanding, however, that Mr. Thompson and I would likewise participate in the trial.

The Court: By the very meager application for continuance, I am not disposed to grant any continuance, Mr. Pike.

Mr. Pike: I wanted to present the circumstances to the Court and I did not feel I was in position to move for continuance, your Honor, and yet it seemed to me the request comes from a representative of the agency——

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

The Court: That is why I inquired whether or not you had gentlemen from the Internal Revenue Department who had assembled evidence and participated in the preparation of this case, so we probably can go along with the case.

Mr. Pike: I think that is true.

The Court: It may require a little more time than it would if Mr. Campbell was here, but I can't see any reason why we should continue it. If that is an application for continuance, it will stand denied.

Mr. Gillen: May we offer this telegram in evidence and have it in the court records?

The Court: I would rather not.

Mr. Pike: Mr. Brady is present in court. I asked him to observe very carefully the other two wires.

The Court: I do not see any necessity of putting it in the record. We will recess until tomorrow morning at 10:00 o'clock.

ARGUMENTS DURING COURSE OF THE TRIAL IN THE ABSENCE OF THE JURY

MOTION FOR RETURN OF DOCUMENTS AND SUPPRESSION OF EVIDENCE

Tuesday, December 12, 1951, 10:00 A.M.

(In the absence of the jury)

Mr. Golden: Your Honor, these matters are with relation to the material which, in compliance with the Court's order, the defendant's counsel deposited with the clerk on Friday afternoon, December 7th, at approximately 1:30, and also other books and records and material which is in the possession of the prosecution. Without reading the list which I read in part yesterday, for the sake of clarity that list is the same list as the list of documents which is contained in the subpoena which was served on Mr. Semenza and I assume that may be considered read, as it is already in the record.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

The Court: It may be deemed to have been read.

Mr. Golden: It was already in the record when Mr. Campbell read it. Also, for the sake of clarity, I am leaving out the matter of those three checks which we discussed several times and which Mr. Campbell has——

The Court: (Interrupting) I think I should let the record show the presence of the witness Pechart and he will be ordered to appear as a witness at the conclusion of this argument at 11:00 o'clock or thereafter. You may proceed.

Mr. Golden: Now your Honor will recall that on Friday, after court had adjourned, the government made a request to go through the material which we deposited with the clerk over the week end and we all repaired to chambers, and as a result of the discussion there and some brief discussion of the authorities, your Honor instructed the clerk to keep the material inaccessible to both sides over the week end.

Now as to the material which we deposited with the clerk, which consists of corporate records of the Cal-Neva corporation, we do not claim any legal privilege, other than the fact that that material was not in Mr. Semenza's possession when subpoenaed and therefore the Court's order to produce it is not effective directed to the defendant's attorneys, which Mr. Campbell himself, on page 480 of the transcript, says is entirely improper, but our motion before in regard to those corporate records is a practical one, your Honor. All the defendant's attorneys and accountants are living in Reno, which is some 30 miles from Carson City. While it is a beautiful day today, the weather at times at this time of the year is inclement and driving after dark is not always as safe as it might be. Furthermore, the night, that is the period of time from adjournment of court in the afternoon until the convening of court in the morning, is not long enough to divide up between the prosecution and the defense and we can't, of course, expect the clerk to keep his office open all night, but it is necessary for us to see those records frequently and sometimes every night.

Furthermore, as the record does already show, your Honor, the government had these records for a period of time sufficient to enable them to take copies and we believe that they have taken copies, and if they have not, we say that they were dilatory in not calling for the records before the trial began. Now those are the practical questions as to the corporate records.

Now as to the non-corporate records, in addition to the practical questions, we say that they are legally privileged and I now move the Court in the following respects: as to the records and materials which we deposited with the clerk on Friday afternoon last, we move the Court for the return of that material and also for the suppression of its use in evidence by the government.

Mr. Campbell: Is that a separate motion?

Mr. Golden: Yes. There are two separate motions. We move for its return and we move the

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

Court to suppress its use in evidence by the government.

As to the material now in possession of the prosecution, which was seized, was taken by the Internal Revenue agents from persons whom the government claims to have been partners or agents or employees of the defendant, or from places in which the government claims the defendant to have been a partner or sole owner, we likewise make two motions; one, for the return of that evidence to us, and the other to suppress its introduction in evidence by the government.

Now in support of those motions, if the Court please, we start out with the element and proposition that a subpoena duces tecum or a court order for direction of documents may constitute an unreasonable search and seizure and, of course, there is no distinction really between a subpoena and a court order. A court order is actually a subpoena. Authority for the proposition that a subpoena duces tecum or court order may constitute an unreasonable search and seizure is the case of Hall vs. Hinkler, 201 U. S. 43. It would be equally error for the prosecution to call for the defendant to take the witness stand and the Court's order of the 6th of December, requiring the production of his records, is in the same category.

Now we offer to prove, your Honor, through the testimony of witnesses, that the government's acquisition of these records—that is both those on deposit in court and those that we say they still have in their possession—and the government's retention of those records and the government's demand for the records which they gave back to us under a condition which they had no right to impose, namely, that we would return them when they wanted them, constitute unlawful search and seizure under the Fourth and Fifth Amendments to the Constitution of the United States. The Fourth Amendment provides that: "The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated . . ."

The Fifth Amendment provides that: "No person . . . shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself."

Now the record is clear, your Honor, and we offer to make it more clear if it is not, by producing evidence of witnesses, that these records, that is, both those with the Clerk and those which the government still has, are the defendant's own property and that he is entitled to them under authority of the decision of the Supreme Court in Bowman Dairy Company vs. United States, with which your Honor is familiar, because that was our authority on the motion made on the 27th of November and that decision was followed, incidentally, in the United States District Court of the Southern District of California, Hon. Ben Harrison judge, in the case of United States vs. Capri, 21992-Criminal. We have the transcript of his decision here, which is a District Court decision, your Honor, in the Southern District of California, Judge Ben Harrison, 21992 Criminal, and the decision was on December 4, 1951. I have here an official certified transcript of Judge Harrison's decision, which I would be very glad to leave with the Court.

Now the papers we are talking about, your Honor, are not the corporate records, which the courts have held are not privileged because a corporation is not a person within the Fourth and Fifth Amendments of the Constitution which I have quoted, nor are they records required to be kept by law, which the courts have held are really public records, in which the government has an interest and which the government has a right to inspect, such as OPA records. The OPA cases go along on the point that sellers, merchants and those who were subject to the OPA regulations, were licensed by the government and as part of their license they were required to keep these records and they really are official public records, but the papers which we are talking about are papers which the government not only admits, but insists are the defendant's private papers. Under the Internal Revenue laws the only requirement is that a taxpayer, or potential taxpayer, keep such data as will enable him to determine his income and will enable the government to verify it. He can keep it on scraps of paper, it could consist merely of a cash register tape and a check book, any record would suffice, there is no requirement under the Internal Revenue laws that any particular kinds of books or records should be kept.

Now I refer your Honor to page 396 of the transcript to this statement by Mr. Campbell, and I am quoting:

> "To be perfectly fair about the situation, it is the contention of the government that all of these various enterprises which, with the exception of Cal-Neva, Inc., which is a corporation, were partnerships, in which the defendant here, Elmer Remmer, was a partner, and in that respect they are the personal records of the defendant, Elmer Remmer. They were not originally obtained by the special agent from the defendant, Elmer Remmer, but were obtained from third parties. I feel it is only fair that that statement be made to the Court."

That is Mr. Campbell's very fair statement. So these are private records of the defendant, and on page 408 of the transcript Mr. Campbell makes an equally fair statement. He says:

> "Mr. Golden knows it would be highly improper to serve subpoena on him as the attorney."

Now, your Honor, the interplay of these two great fundamental American constitutional provisions, namely, the protection of the privacy of the individual and the protection of the individual against compulsory production of evidence to be used against him, resulted in what is here called in law the doctrine of searches and seizures, which is so well epitomized in the leading case which we presented to your Honor on Friday afternoon in chambers; namely, Boyd vs. United States, 116 U. S., 616; 29 L. E. 746, and at page 751 of the Lawyers Edition the Supreme Court says:

> "Any compulsory discovery, like compelling of production of his private books and papers, to convict him of crime or forfeit his property, is contrary to the principles of a free American government. It is abhorrent to the instincts of an Englishman. It is abhorent to the instincts of an American. It may suit the purposes of despotic power, but it can not abide the pure atmosphere of political liberty and personal freedom."

Now in an annotation covering that case, which appears at Vol. 207 of U. S. at page 541, the following appears in better words than I have at my command:

> "In the leading case of Boyd v. United States, 116 U. S. 616, 29 L. Ed. 746, Sup. Ct. Rep. 524, it is held that it does not require actual entry upon premises and search for and seizure of papers to constitute an unreasonable search and seizure within the meaning of the 4th Amendment, but a compulsory production of a party's private books and papers, to be used against him or his property in a criminal or penal proceeding, or for a forfeiture, is within the spirit and meaning of the Amendment.
> "The question remains, when such compulsory production may be regarded as unreasonable. It is remarked in the foregoing case that there is an intimate relation between the provision of the 4th Amendment that 'the right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers and effects against unreasonable searches and seizures shall not be violated,' and the provision of the 5th Amendment that no person 'shall be compelled, in any criminal case, to be a witness against himself;' the court saying: 'They throw great light on each other.' For the 'unreasonable searches and seizures' condemned in the 4th Amendment are almost always made for the purpose of compelling a man to give evidence against himself, which, in criminal cases, is condemned in the 5th Amendment; and compelling a man 'in a criminal case to be a witness against himself,' which is condemned in the 5th Amendment, throws light on the question as to what is an 'unreasonable search and seizure' within the meaning of the 4th Amendment. And we have been unable to perceive that the seizure of a man's private books and papers, to be used in evidence against him, is substantially different from compelling him to be a witness against himself. We think it is within the clear intent and meaning of those terms. We are also clearly of opinion that proceedings instituted for the purpose of declaring the forfeiture of a man's property by reason of offenses committed by him, though they may be civil in form are in their nature criminal.

BLURRED COPY

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

"A like idea has been expressed by other courts, and the general principle may be accordingly deduced that a compulsory production of private books and papers is unreasonable where it substantially compels the owner to furnish evidence which may be used against himself in proceedings of a criminal or quasi-criminal character."

Now, your Honor, the prosecution undoubtedly will advance the argument, which it already has advanced, that since it had those records at one time, the defendant has lost his privilege. We point out, of course, that the prosecution's testimony has not contended that the defendant personally ever waived his privilege or personally delivered any of these records to the government or personally authorized their delivery to the government. As a matter of fact, in chambers on Friday Mr. Pike expressed grave doubt as to whether the defendant's absence could be waived by his counsel or had to be waived by the defendant personally and where we are here, where we have a constitutional right, it would have to be waived by the defendant personally. The fact is, that the demand for these records by the government indicates that they hope to use them, or information gleaned from them, against the defendant. Now two wrongs do not make a right, as we all know. It was wrong for the government to take those records in the first place, because their only right under the statutes is to inspect them.

BLURRED COPY

The Court: I think we can agree, can't we, Mr. Golden, up to this time, in view of the order that was made in chambers, that the records deposited in the clerk's office, pursuant to the order made the other day, have not been examined or the contents of them divulged to the government's counsel?

Mr. Golden: I believe that is correct, your Honor, yes.

We offer to prove, through the evidence of witnesses, under Rule 41(e), which requires the Court to take such evidence as is necessary to determine whether or not they have been acquired under unreasonable search and seizure, that the government's taking of those records in the first place was wrong and under the authorities here it is wrong for the Court to order us to deposit them in court for the prosecution's inspection and use in evidence.

The Court: You may present such evidence.

Mr. Campbell: I would like to be heard briefly before the evidence is presented.

The Court: All right.

Mr. Golden: The Court itself stated, when charging the jury here, a fair trial is the bulwark of America and I would like to read to your Honor one brief passage from the case in which the opinion is written by Judge Learned Hand, a very learned judge of the federal court, United States v. Coplon, 185 Fed. (2), 629, at page 638. Judge Hand says:

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

"But we can not dispense with constitutional privileges because in a specific instance they may not in fact serve to protect any valid interest of their possessor. Back of this particular privilege lies a long chapter in the history of Anglo-American institutions. Few weapons in the arsenal of freedom are more useful than the power to compel a government to disclose the evidence on which it seeks to forfeit the liberty of its citizens. All governments, democracies as well as autocracies, believe that those they seek to punish are guilty; the impediment of constitutional barriers are galling to all governments when they prevent the consummation of that just purpose. But those barriers were devised and are precious because they prevent that purpose and its pursuit from passing unchallenged by the accused, and unpurged by the alembic of public scrutiny and public criticism. A society which has come to wince at such exposure of the methods by which it seeks to impose its will upon its members, has already lost the feel of freedom, and is on the path towards absolutism."

Now, your Honor, we ask to present evidence here which, in connection with the acquisition and retention of all of these records by the prosecution or its agents, and under the ordering of that evidence, we ask your Honor to quash the court's order of December 6th and to return to the defendant the material now on deposit with the clerk, and likewise to order returned to the defendant the remainder of his personal private papers which the government has in its possession, and to suppress the use by the government in evidence of any of the material deposited with the clerk or any of the other property of the defendant which the government has in its possession. And I understand that before your Honor hears the testimony Mr. Campbell expressed a desire to be heard, your Honor.

The Court: Yes. I think the record makes it clear, does it not, that the order made the other day, ordering the defendant to deposit the records with the clerk, was made pursuant to a motion by the government?

Mr. Campbell: Yes, your Honor. The government requested that the records called for in the subpoena served upon Lawrence Semenza be produced. A hearing was held, at which time Mr. Semenza identified himself as an accountant for the defendant and that he had been an accountant for him for many years. He testified that he held, and had held for a number of years, the power of attorney of the defendant, authorizing him to represent the defendant before the Treasury Department of the United States. He stated in his testimony that pursuant to his employment he had gone to the Bureau of Internal Revenue, whom he knew to be in possession of certain records, and had asked for their use in connection with certain phases of his employment. At that time he was permitted to take away with him whatever books and records pertaining to those matters which he deemed useful in his work. At that time he wrote, in his own handwriting, and that was produced here in court in evidence, a memorandum setting forth or listing the various records which he took with him. On that occasion he testified that he agreed to restore those records to the Treasury Department whenever their need should appear. Subsequently, he testified, an additional account was secured for the defendant, one Nathan Friedman of San Francisco; that he delivered these books and records to Mr. Friedman, who also held, as I recall, a power of attorney from the defendant, Elmer Remmer. Subsequently Mr. Semenza was called upon, first orally, to produce such books and records in contemplation of the grand jury proceedings in this district. He stated that he made an effort to them, but found that they had been delivered by Mr. Friedman to the attorney, John Golden, who at that time, as I recall, was in the military service on annual maneuvers, or whatever they might be, but that he discussed the matter with another of Mr. Remmer's attorneys, Mr. Avakian, who advised him that he had not had an opportunity to go through the records. Subsequently, a subpoena was served upon Mr. Semenza to appear before the grand jury and produce those same records which were set forth in his receipt and which he had promised to return. He appeared before the grand jury without the records and according to his testimony gave substantially the same statements, that they were beyond his conrol to produce.

BLURRED COPY

The evidence then goes on to show, and was produced before the Court, that subsequent to the grand jury proceeding, at which time Mr. Semenza testified, that is before the grand jury as well as here in court, that the records were not in his possession, the records were restored to Mr. Semenza's possession and remained there in his possession until approximately, according to Mr. Semenza, a week prior to the time that the subpoena to produce those records in this court was served upon him. At that time he stated the books and records were delivered to the office of Mr. Lohse, a Nevada attorney and counsel in this case, who had just been associated within a few days' time, as local counsel for the defendant Remmer, and that the records were at that time in the office of Mr. Lohse where, I believe he testified, he was performing his work as an accountant for the defendant. So much for what the record shows in that regard.

Now Mr. Golden proposes two motions; that is, the return of the material and the suppression of the use of that material in evidence. Inferentially, at least, his motion would also include the use of secondary evidence obtained from inspection of those records. Since his motion is made upon the ground that the records were originally obtained through an unlawful search and seizure, he states that he bases his motion under Rule 41(e) of the Rules of Criminal Procedure. If I may, I will read that rule into the record, Rule 41(e): (Reads)

We are not concerned here, of course, with the issuance of a search warrant, so that if any of the grounds are applicable here, it would be ground (1), that the property was illegally seized without warrant. Continuing to read: "The judge shall receive evidence on any issue of fact necessary to the decision of the motion. If the motion is granted, the property should be restored unless. . . ." Now the last sentence, to which I particularly direct the Court's attention: "The motion shall be made before the trial or hearing, unless opportunity therefor did not exist or the defendant was not aware of the grounds for the motion, but the court in its discretion may entertain the motion at the trial or hearing."

Now the law has been clearly established, through numerous cases, that a motion to suppress evidence, as having been illegally or improperly obtained, must be made at the first opportunity. It must be made at the time that the defendant first becomes aware that the evidence has so been obtained and that it is proposed to use such evidence against him. There have been some eight months elapsed since the indictment in this case. There have been several years elapsed since the material was in the possession of the agents of the government, to the knowledge of the defendant and his representatives, because they called upon the representatives of the government, through the instrumentality of Mr. Semenza, to obtain access and inspection of these various records.

Now if there were, and if there have been, any illegal obtaining of these records in the first instance, a timely motion should then have been made even prior to the indictment, but in the very latest point of time immediately after the indictment, to suppress evidence which the government had obtained, either by obtaining certain of the books or records, or to suppress evidence which they obtained by means of an inspection of those books and records, and I think the law is extremely clear in that connection.

The Court will recall that there have been several hearings with respect to these books and records and yet, for the first time and upon the trial of this case, counsel now seeks to raise the question of the original taking. There was no such claim made. For example, at the hearing at Las Vegas, when other records, which were obtained at the same time, under the same procedure, under the same method as those which are now deposited with the clerk were obtained, but which apparently were not considered by Mr. Semenza material for his examination, no such claim was made in behalf of the defendant that those records, which they sought to inspect, were illegally or improperly obtained by the government.

By making this argument, I do not mean to concede in any fashion that the government did not obtain these books properly and with the full consent and the willingness of the party who turned those records over to them in connection with their examination of the income tax liability of this defendant. As counsel has stated, the law requires that a taxpayer maintain such books and records as will adequately show his annual income for accounting purposes. It is true that the law does not require any particular kind of books, does not require double entry system or single entry system or even a formal set of books, but the law does require that a taxpayer keep such records as will adequately set forth his annual income for accounting purposes, as counsel says, so that the government can verify the correctness of his returns.

Now it had been my——

The Court (Interceding): Do you maintain that the records kept by a taxpayer are in the same category and would come under the same rule as OPA records?

Mr. Campbell: No, your Honor, and in that connection I am going to refer to a 9th Circuit case, but I do say once the taxpayer, either directly or through his agents, has made those records available to the government, or they have become available to the government through third parties, and the taxpayer, through his failure to assert any rights which he might otherwise have had, fails to take proper steps to obtain the return of those books and within a reasonable period of time, as set forth by the cases, then he has estopped any connection with those books because they have become books of account between him and the government.

In that connection, I wish to refer your Honor to a case in this circuit—before calling attention to this case, I might state counsel has referred to the Capri case, in which some motions were decided this month relating, I believe, to the inspection of records, by Judge Harrison. I have not seen the transcript of that hearing, but I do know this to be a fact, that the motions made in that case were made promptly after the indictment. The indictment in that case, I do not believe, is 30 days' old and the motions I know were pending prior to the commencement of this case.

Now regarding the 9th Circuit case of Levin et al. vs. United States, reported at 5 Federal (2), 598. I might state to your Honor that this case, and several other cases upon which we rely, have been set forth in a memorandum which I wish to hand to the Court and will at this time hand counsel a copy. In this case of Levin the Court states:

The Court then goes on to review the cases of Internal Revenue Agent v. Sullivan and United States v. Cooper, and finally under point (8) gives this statement:

Now I also wish to direct your attention to the following case, that of Greenbaum vs. United States, 280 F., 474, a 6th Circuit case, which more nearly approaches the situation here than any case which we have been able to find. In some respects we are meeting a very novel situation, where the defendant's representatives, through promises which they either did or did not intend to perform at the time they were made, secured these books from the government, but at any rate, whatever the original intention was, when the time came for performance, the person making the promise had either placed himself in or had been placed in the position by others of having to say that compliance with those promises had been put out of his ability by his co-counsel or co-attorneys.

The Court: I think I will have the jury come in and excuse them so they won't have to sit around the hall.

Jury returned into court, admonished and excused until 1:00 p.m.

Mr. Campbell: Now in the Greenbaum v. United States case, 280 F., 474, apparently a contention was made by the prosecution of a similar situation which existed there, but the evidence fell short of establishing it, as it had in this case. Reading from page 478 in that case, set forth at the bottom of page 4 of the memorandum: (Reads from memorandum through line 1 on page 5.)

Now stop a moment. The evidence, of course, here shows, under oath of Mr. Semenza, that they were delivered to those holding the power of attorney, or to Mr. Semenza holding power of attorney, of Mr. Remmer, under promise to return. However, in this Greenbaum case it was simply a statement made by the District Attorney that he had been informed by somebody else. (Continues reading through line 5.) Again the evidence in the Greenbaum case has fallen short of that which is here. (Continues reading through line 8.) So I state, your Honor, the showing there fell far short.

BLURRED COPY

They were unable to establish that a promise had been made for the return of the books by the representative of the defendant, but here the showing is clear. (Continues reading through line 11.) I will not read into the record at this time the balance since I have handed your Honor memorandum stating further statements.

The Court: Does that statement of facts in that case show or refer to in that last sentence: "If a court has any power to make such an order as was here made, it should be exercised only where there is no doubt as to the facts," does the decision disclose what the nature of that order was?

Mr. Campbell: Yes, the court very simply, upon a statement of the District Attorney and without being able to substantiate it by proof that any such promise had been made, ordered the books produced and was there held to be error that he had done so and this decision which I have read to your Honor is pointing out the insufficiency of the showing which was made before the Court in that connection.

We have also cited to your Honor in government's memorandum, and which I will not at this time read into the record, inasmuch as it there before your Honor, the case of Mellett vs. North Carolina, 181 U. S., 589 and the case of United States vs. Amorosa, 167 Fed. (2), 596, a case of the 3rd Circuit.

Now the government's contention boils down to this: In the first place, the motion of the defendant regarding the suppression in evidence of these books or, if it be inferred that there also be included in that motion secondary evidence as to their contents, is not brought timely. The defendant had it in his power from t[illegible] first instance that he learned that these books and records were in the possession of the government, to have made timely motion. He knew it at the very latest in 1949, I believe it was, when Mr. Semenza called upon the Internal Revenue with respect to these records, as the representative of the defendant, and obtained them upon his promise to return. The very latest possible that that it would seem reasonable within which to have brought a proper motion would have been not later than the return of the indictment in this case, and yet some eight months have elapsed.

Further, while motions were made for inspection, both in Las Vegas and immediately prior to the beginning of this trial, no question was raised regarding the obtaining of the other records which are within the same category as these records referred to here.

Further, we believe, in the language cited by counsel from the Supreme Court case of Boyd vs. United States, 116 U. S., where the language is used that certain matters are abhorrent to the instincts of an American, we think the situation here presents a similar situation. If the books and records were returned to Mr. Semenza, if the promise made was made in bad faith, which I do not contend, your Honor, but if it was made in bad faith, that is important, and if their return was refused in bad faith, certainly that is important.

BLURRED COPY

The Court has made final orders with respect to the motions for inspection heretofore made, so that the last final order of this Court was the order to the defense counsel to deliver these same records, which were called for on that receipt, to the clerk of the court and which order, of course, has been complied with by counsel. So that as I see our problem, it is only in the nature of any problems which may have arisen since Friday, when the records were deposited. It is the government's position that under the circumstances, and under the somewhat peculiar circumstances of this case, it is entitled to full inspection of the records, but more important to their use in evidence in this case, and in the alternative, if for any reason the Court should conclude that the records themselves are beyond the reach of the government, then the government is entitled to produce secondary evidence as to the contents of those records. I submit, however, that with the records, the best evidence, being available and under the facts and circumstances of this case, that those records should be made fully available for inspection and use of the government in this case.

Mr. Pike called my attention to the fact that included in the motions of defense counsel was a request that evidence be taken going back to the original circumstances under which the records came into possession of the government. Now we presume that such matters, of course, were in the mind of the Court at the time the other orders in this matter had been made, both as to the inspection of the records which are still in the possession of the government, to which counsel has referred, and with regard to these particular records within or at any seasonable time to raise these points, should clearly preclude the necessity of taking of the time of the Court as to going into those matters at this time.

Mr. Golden: If the Court please, if I may answer briefly Mr. Campbell.

In the first place, as to the timeliness of these motions, as Mr. Campbell himself points out, the defense made three motions prior to the beginning of the trial in this case, under respectively Rules 7(f)—that was for bill of particulars, 16, and 17(c). All those motions were denied.

We do not know, and never have known, just what it is that the government has in its possession, other than the records, of course, which were returned with Mr. Semenza and which were deposited with the clerk. What else they have, we don't know. This all addresses to the timeliness of this motion.

As to the records which were deposited with the clerk, Rule 41(e), which Mr. Campbell read, contains the sentence to the effect that the motion may be made at the first opportunity after the defendant becomes aware of the situation. That is down toward the bottom of the section.

Now to take this thing up chronologically—at the time Mr. Semenza was supposed to go before the grand jury with these records and at the time Mr. Campbell states I was on temporary active duty with the United States army and Mr. Se-menza got in touch with Mr. Avakian—this is all in the record, your Honor, it is not a gratuitous statement, it is in the record from the motion made at Las Vegas—Mr. Avakian advised Mr. Campbell as follows: that he did not know the names of the third parties from whom Mr. Weaver obtained the records or whether they were obtained in rightful procedure by law; furthermore, he did not know if they were returned to Mr. Remmer or some other party on the part of Mr. Remmer; furthermore, since Mr. Remmer, as the owner of the records, was entitled to them at all times anyway, the government at most had the right of inspection and not possession, and accordingly any condition exacted by Mr. Weaver from Mr. Semenza, acting without the knowledge or consent of Mr. Remmer and his lawyers, was of no legal effect.

Now it will, I am sure, be stipulated to be a fact here that some of these records, and particularly the ones on deposit with the clerk, were obtained by Internal Revenue agents from a man by the name of Maundrell, who years ago went to Honolulu to live and who is still living there and who has been here as a witness subpoenaed by the government since the beginning of this trial, and that is the first time that we were able to learn that he is the one from whom the government got these records. The matter of the timeliness of the motion, your Honor, is in the discretion of the Court, as far as the records are concerned, which are still in the possession of the government. If those records were obtained improperly or if their retention is improper, which we offer to show by evidence, it is not for the representatives of the United States to say that we did not complain about it soon enough. Any discretion your Honor has in the matter certainly should be exercised, the benefit of any doubt should be given to the defendant, who is raising these constitutional questions, but as to the records which are on deposit with the clerk here, our contention is, your Honor, that not only were they originally taken with a promise on the part of the agents—and we expect to show this through testimony—on the part of the agents to return them whenever called for, which is an antecedent promise to this promise, but also it is our contention that the Court's order itself does—and we say this respectfully, of course—itself constitute a violation of the defendant's rights under the Fourth and Fifth Amendments of the Constitution. That was only a few days ago, that was on Thursday, and on Friday we told the Court we wanted to present these matters and they were tentatively set for Monday and for the reason other matters occurring, they did not go on and today is Wednesday morning. There is nothing dilatory about that.

Now it appears to me Mr. Campbell's contention, from the authorities he presented here, that while ordinarily the prosecution is not entitled to private papers of the defendant, it is so entitled in this case because of the promise made by Mr. Semenza. That appears to be the gist of the matter, and he refers to the fact that Mr. Semenza was under power of attorney executed by the defendant. Well now we have for consideration, your Honor, the constitutional rights of the defendant. He personally must waive a trial by jury. He personally must waive any of his rights under the Constitution. Now if Mr. Campbell's logic is correct and if Mr. Semenza, or any other person acting under power of attorney, had said to the representatives of the government, "Mr. Remmer, the defendant in this case, is going to take the witness stand"—parenthetically may I say we do not know; whether he is or not depends on the case the government is putting on, I am not making any conclusions whether he will or not take the stand—if Mr. Semenza, under power of attorney, had promised that Mr. Remmer was going to take the witness stand, could the prosecution call for him to take the witness stand? Of course it couldn't. And so Mr. Semenza's promise, which we assume was made and which was made in good faith—in the first place, in consideration, as pointed out, by the fact originally the government promises to return the material to the person from whom they took it—Mr. Semenza's promise cannot waive for the defendant the Constitution of the United States, and we offer to show, as I say, the conditions upon which this material was obtained originally by the government. Like any case, like a title company, with the question of whose property this is in dispute, they go back to the beginning and they start in with the original title and they trace it back.

Now Mr. Campbell's third point, as I understand it, is this—that the government has secondary evidence of this material and he says if inferentially the motion is to suppress the use of that secondary evidence—well, I don't just follow, but in any case our motion here, your Honor, is for return of those books and for their suppression of use in evidence. If secondary evidence is offered by the government on the ground that the original evidence is not available, if it meets other tests, if it is competent material and relevant, and if secondary evidence was not obtained unlawfully it would be admissible, we are not asking your Honor at this time to rule that the government could not put into evidence, or offer into evidence, secondary evidence of those records in there. We are asking for the return of those records and be confirmed in our possession of them, so that we may use them and have them and if the government produces secondary evidence and it develops they got it lawfully and it is material and relevant, it goes in, but we say to your Honor we start out here with the fundamental propositions laid down by the Constitution and if they are to be whittled away, they are not to be whittled away by a promise made by an attorney in fact, even in good faith, and I repeat, your Honor, that we offer now to show the circumstances under which this material was originally obtained, including the fact that when obtained the persons who obtained it promised to return it to us, and we wish to call several witnesses on that point.

The Court: Now that raises a suggestion. No notice was given to the government whatever——

Mr. Golden: Notice of what, your Honor?

BLURRED COPY

The Court: Let me proceed.

Mr. Golden: Oh, excuse me.

The Court: ——of any intention to call witnesses. In other words, they have had no opportunity to prepare to meet the testimony of any witnesses who might be called at this time. There is no notice in this application that was given. It didn't appear from anything that was said in the oral motion, the oral motion having been made at this time. I could see if this request was granted, it could very likely result in a delay of this trial. I will deny that portion of the motion as coming too late.

Mr. Golden: May I interrupt your Honor? I just want to understand.

The Court: Yes. I deny the request to have evidence taken at this time as to the original custody of the books by the government or Internal Revenue Department.

Nothing has been suggested in any of the motions heretofore filed that would indicate an attack upon the government's right to have these records in its possession, an attack based on illegal search or seizure. Now the Greenbaum case lays out a pattern that I think we could follow here. There is no doubt here but there was a promise to return these books to the agent whose name was Mr. Weaver.

The motions of the defendant are denied. All motions are denied.

Mr. Golden: May I point out to your Honor that in our opinion the section of the rule, the sentence which says: "The judge shall receive evidence on any issue of fact necessary to the decision of the motion," is not a discretionary matter, but mandatory.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

The Court: But I do not believe it is necessary to hear the evidence at this time. The motions are denied on all grounds.

Mr. Golden: The government did not raise the point they had to have notice. May I also point out in the Greenbaum case and all the cases, the defendant personally made voluntary delivery to the trustee. The essence of this case is that the defendant has not personally waived his rights.

The Court: The motion is denied and we will be in recess until one o'clock.

Thursday, December 13, 1951, 10:00 A.M.

(In the absence of the jury.)

Defendant present with counsel.

The Court: I understand, Mr. Golden, you have a matter you would like to present.

Mr. Golden: Yes, I will be very brief.

Your Honor, I would like to make the motion and state what it is to your Honor. I won't argue it unless your Honor wants argument, because the argument would be substantially as to the motion yesterday, and I assume from your Honor's ruling yesterday that your Honor will deny the motion, but I want to place the motion in the record.

BLURRED COPY

The motion, your Honor, is in connection with the testimony of the persons who have testified and introduced evidence regarding expenditures of the defendant, and I will just name them briefly without commenting on them. There is Shreve & Company, the witness Bray; Bullock & Jones, the witness Gillingham; the New York tailor, the witness Greenhouse; Stanley Furniture Company, the witness Hill; the contribution to the campaign in Alameda County, the witness was Mr. Murphy; Sulka & Company, the witness McCaffery; Franklin Hospital, the witness Oglesby; the insurance brokers, Tinneman, Bridgeford & Rainey, the witness Scollin; and the Blackstone Hotel, the witness was Mr. Strong.

Now it came to our attention over night, your Honor, that the information which led to the use of the testimony in evidence of those witnesses by the government came from papers which were taken by the government agents, the Internal Revenue agents, and we offer to show by evidence that those papers were illegally taken and retained and we move to strike out the testimony of those witnesses and the evidence introduced by them and to suppress the use of the records introduced by them and any other records which are based upon information so obtained, and particularly the evidence of the hospital bill; for this reason, your Honor, the government, we submit, finds itself upon the horns of a dilemma here. Either these expenditures are business expenditures, in which case they do not enter into a net worth case, have no bearing on the issues here, or else they are personal expenditures, non-business expenditures of the defendant, in which case the government, even more clearly than with regard to the record that we talked about yesterday, has no right to take the personal papers or retain the personal papers of the defendant. In other words, while a man is required to keep books or some data which shows his income, there is no requirement saying that he keep any account of his personal expenditures, when he buys a car or when he is sick in the hospital, or whatever it may be. We say the government is in that dilemma—either they contend that these matters are personal, in which event they had no right to take the information, got illegally, and under the well-known rule they can not use evidence illegally obtained, or the expenditures are business expenditures and do not enter into the case and are incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial. As I say, I won't argue the authorities in the matter, but we make that motion and we offer to prove, in support of that motion, that these personal records were illegally taken and illegally retained.

Now I just want to say this, your Honor, the records I am talking about now are not any of the records which were delivered to Mr. Semenza and which Mr. Semenza promised to return to the government. These are records which have never been returned to the defendant or any of his representatives, which we have never seen, which we tried to see by means of the three pretrial motions which were made here, and as I say, these records were obtained from people who had them, third parties who are named so far, without the defendant's consent or without his knowledge.

If I did not make myself clear, I offer to place witnesses on the stand who will substantiate by their testimony what I said.

The Court: I want to ask you a question or two, Mr. Golden. The basis of your contention now made, and the basis of the motion you have made in regard to the various records you mention here, is the same, that is, they arise out of the 4th Amendment.

Mr. Golden: And the 5th Amendment, your Honor.

The Court: You say that the use of these records or information derived from them would violate the provisions of the Constitution which reads: "The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects against unreasonable searches and seizures shall not be violated" and so on.

Mr. Golden: And the 5th Amendment.

The Court: Well, let us take this one first. The 5th Amendment that you deem applicable here provides that "No person shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself."

Mr. Golden: Yes, your Honor.

The Court: The records themselves, assume that they were brought into the custody of the government without a violation of the 4th Amendment, there is no question but what they would be admissible in evidence?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

Mr. Golden: Well, you are assuming something, your Honor, which by the evidence——

The Court (Interceding): I want to take the thing as we go along. Let us assume now—I want to get your position if I can—start off this way, let us assume—I would like to have you argue if you want to; of course, you do not have to if you do not want to—let us assume that these records were properly in the custody of the government, the records of the defendant, of his accounts and checks and various books of the various business enterprises, particularly those which were conducted on a partnership basis. In that situation there would be legal objection to the introduction of evidence against him. Now I notice in the decision by Judge Hand, United States vs. Kelly, 55 Fed. (2), where in the syllabus we find this statement: "In trial for assisting and preparation and presentation of fraudulent income tax returns, taxpayer's books shown to have been kept in due course were competent evidence under the statute, though made before enactment thereof and subdivision, providing that section as a whole shall not be retroactive, does not require that documents kept in the regular course * * *" That is the general rule of evidence in Title 28 which is by the federal rules made applicable to criminal cases. Now records kept in the ordinary course of business of this defendant, I understand are admissible against him in evidence, unless they are procured as in violation of the search and seizure provision of the Constitution of the United States, the 4th Amendment. Now is there any fault to find with that statement of law?

BLURRED COPY

Mr. Golden: May I ask your Honor a question. Is your Honor talking about business records, for example, of the Franklin Hospital——

The Court: No, I am talking about the business records of Mr. Pechart and the other gentlemen and this defendant in the 21 Club, in these various enterprises in which there is a partnership, but your argument ties in with all the other propositions you go back to of which you claim disregard of the 4th Amendment.

Mr. Golden: Well, of course, your Honor, the records which are properly kept, that is to satisfy the ordinary foundation, kept in the course of business, if they are legally obtained, without violating any of the defendant's rights, of course they are admissible.

The Court: In other words, if records, we will say, were against Mr. Remmer, could be introduced against him, records obtained of his business ventures which are the subject matter of this inquiry——

Mr. Golden: I am not contending that the prosecution cannot introduce evidence against the defendant, that would be foolish, but if your Honor assumes that the evidence——

The Court (Interceding): I am just assuming that for the purpose of getting an answer to that question. I want to see what foundation we are on here. I want to see what these rulings I have been making could rest on.

Mr. Golden: Well, I have to distinguish, your

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

Honor, between the records we were talking about yesterday and the records I am talking about today. Taking up first the records I was talking about yesterday—if it be assumed for the purposes of this discussion that they were properly obtained and properly retained and that their acquisition and use by the government did not violate either the 4th or 5th Amendments, and if the records were otherwise admissible, then, of course, there is no question about it, but that, of course, assumes the whole question.

Now as to the records I am talking about this morning, your Honor, to give a concrete example, the Franklin Hospital man, Mr. Oglesby, comes here with a ledger to show how the Franklin Hospital kept them in the ordinary course of business, and so on. There is no question, apart from constitutional provisions and the law built around them, that that record is admissible, but our point is that the prosecution learned that the defendant had been a patient at the Franklin Hospital by unlawful seizure and retention of either a check or a statement or some paper which gave them that information, and of course your Honor is familiar with the recent cases of the Supreme Court which hold that there comes within the protection of the Constitution not only actual evidence, but information which will give the prosecution a lead to the evidence.

The Court: I understand, but let me ask you another question. I notice there is a case in 77 Fed. (2), Eaker vs. United States, which holds that when articles of business are produced by an officer there is an assumption that they are properly in his possession. Now you just make a motion here right out of the clear blue sky, that perhaps they didn't get these records properly. You do not make a statement of offer or anything of that kind. You just say you offer to show. You want the Court to have an inquiry here that is collateral, outside of this trial. Read this Adams case and some of these New York cases. The Court is not required to stop a trial and go off on a tangent on investigations such as you propose here.

Mr. Golden: Well, I respectfully disagree with your Honor, but——

The Court (Interceding): Well, let's look at the case; I can get that in a minute.

Mr. Golden: I say under 41(e) of the rules, the Court must take evidence and we can always make an offer of proof. I will be glad to make a statement of what we expect to prove to your Honor, if you permit me.

The Court: I would like to know just what you expect to prove.

Mr. Golden: All right. We expect to prove that these papers that we talked about yesterday and are talking about today were taken by the agents of the prosecution, or the Internal Revenue Service, from third parties, not from the defendant; were taken without the defendant's consent or knowledge; were taken under a promise by those agents to these third parties, to return those records upon demand, and notwithstanding that promise ever since, in the face not only of informal demands, which were in the record, from the exchange of correspondence between Mr. Avakian and Mr. Campbell, but in the face of formal demands, by reason of those three pre-trial motions, they have refused to perform, and we offer to show further that some of the papers so taken were the records of expenditures we are talking about this morning.

The Court: Now I have Rule 41(e) of the Rules of Criminal Procedure. (Reads rule.) Now that is the reason why it is brought here in this court; otherwise it would properly be brought in the California jurisdiction.

Mr. Golden: Yes, your Honor.

The Court (Continuing): "Motion shall be made before the trial and hearing unless * * *" Now I have heard several suggestions from counsel that there is something wrong about the manner in which these records were obtained and it appears in the first place, from the testimony of Mr. Pechart himself here yesterday, that the government was given full access to all these records; in fact, they went so far as to provide a convenient place for the agents of the government to work on these records, and they were delivered to two agents by Mr. Pechart. Then subsequently Mr. Remmer requested the records and they were delivered to Mr. Remmer. Then they found their way—I don't know how they got back to Mr. Weaver, I don't know whether the records ever got back to him after that or not—but I can't see just on what you base an illegal acquisition of these records by the government.

Mr. Golden: Your Honor, the Court is laboring under a misapprehension of the facts. We are not talking about the records which were covered by Mr. Pechart's testimony at all. Those records are not part of this motion.

The Court: But this motion gets back to the same foundation.

Mr. Golden: No, your Honor, we are talking about records which were taken by the agents from other parties in San Francisco and some of which are now on deposit in the clerk's office.

The Court: What other parties?

Mr. Golden: We believe, although, of course, from the absence of bill of particulars we can't be certain, but want to develop it, we believe from the preceding witnesses, Mr. Maundrell, Mr. Kyne and others. Now we have no way of finding out without evidence.

The Court: Well, I am going to deny the motion. Call in the jury. The motion is denied.

ARGUMENT ON CROSS-EXAMINATION OF 15 PER CENT INTEREST

December 18, 1951

(In the absence of the jury.)

The Court: Now on the basis of the record and the last question or two of the record——

Mr. Gillen: May we have the last question read?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

The Court: Yes, you may have it read.

(Last 2 questions read.)

"Q. Look at this agreement and tell me what was meant by working interest in the amount of 15 per cent?

"Q. Mr. Kyne, what happened to your 15 per cent share of any profits of the Menlo Club during the years 1944 and 1946 inclusive?"

Mr. Gillen: That is another matter than your Honor has ruled on.

The Court: I am making a statement. On the basis of your last question and on the question or two previous to it, in the face of the expressions of the Court, in effect asking counsel to desist from pursuing the line of examination, and to a similar question clothed in a little different language, to which objections have been repeatedly sustained, the Court hereby fines Mr. Gillen for contempt of this Court and fines you in the sum of two hundred dollars and remands you to the custody of the marshal until the fine is paid.

Mr. Gillen: Your Honor is absolutely unfair about this——

The Court: And counsel is remanded to the custody of the marshal until the fine is paid.

Mr. Gillen: Am I again to be shut out from explaining my position on the record? I asked your Honor to dismiss the jury and permit me to be heard why I was pursuing, but you arbitrarily refuse to do that?

The Court: Yes, sir.

BLURRED COPY

Mr. Gillen: Now I want to be heard. I am an advocate of this court and I have a great responsibility on my hands.

The Court: You are committed to the custody of the marshal until this fine is paid.

Mr. Gillen: I will pay the fine. I will not be humiliated by being led out by the marshal. Here is the fine. I respectfully ask permission to explain to this Court what our position is, why we are attempting——

The Court (Interceding): Are you ready to proceed?

Mr. Gillen: I am ready to proceed with saying this——

The Court (Interceding): I have ruled that this contract takes care of this witness' interest in this contract and I am not going to permit you to explore that fact any further in your questions on cross-examination.

Mr. Gillen: Is this attitude of this Court fair, never to permit me to tell you why I am trying to read what happened to the profits along to the jury?

The Court: Do you want to keep on talking?

Mr. Gillen: I want to make a showing so I will have no further difficulties with your Honor's ruling.

The Court: What are you going to have to say?

Mr. Gillen: Here is what I want to have to say. Counsel has belabored throughout this examination, not only with Mr. Kyne, but also with Mr. Lando, who was a partner, asked repeatedly, "Did you ever put a cent of money into this business" and the answer was "No." Now, what I want to say is this—that a working interest means simply this, the working interest that was the arrangement, not only what is appearing in writing, but in all other enterprises in which these men were interested, that this was the situation—that they were given a percentage of the partnership; that as the profits came in, instead of drawing down their profits, those profits were turned back into the business, so that they would reimburse the man who put up the initial money, until such time as the profits paid back. The profits, for example, that Mr. Kyne earned, were chargeable to him, he had to pay income tax on them, but instead of taking them out, he put them back in the business until such time as his equity levelled the amount of money that had been put in by Mr. Remmer, and that is what was meant by working interest. The way counsel is reading it, it invites the jury to draw the inference that Mr. Kyne, for example, and Mr. Lando were just phonies, that they never put a penny in, and although they were charged with the profits and although they were advanced money to pay their income taxes on those profits, that the fact of the matter was they never received anything. Now that is not the fact of the matter and the books of the Menlo Club will show that at a point Mr. Kyne's interest, for example, had reached some 30 per cent of equity of what he was entitled to on his 15 per cent. Now if I can make it clear, I can do it on the blackboard for the Court.

The Court: Well, that is hardly necessary.

BLURRED COPY

Mr. Gillen: Does your Honor understand what I am getting at? I have tried to reach somehow and there is no reason that I can see, and I have not deliberately been abusive or discourteous—I have tried to reach the thing in a way to show what was meant by 15 per cent of the profits. It kept coming in, he did not draw it—the point I want to show is it went back into the business to build up his equity in the Menlo Club, until such time as he would have paid up what would have been 15 per cent of 75 thousand dollars.

The Court: Your questions were not directed to that direction.

Mr. Gillen: I did not have an opportunity—I may be stupid.

The Court: You are far from being stupid. You did not want to listen.

Mr. Gillen: I will follow any suggestions your Honor has to make to keep out of trouble, as to reach that point.

The Court: We will call in the jury.

Mr. Gillen: Your Honor has no suggestions? I would be very happy to hear from your Honor.

The Court: I do not think it is going to be a suggestion because I do not think the questions to which these objections were made and sustained had the purpose that you give to them here in this argument. You repeatedly asked this witness about his 15 per cent in this Menlo Club.

Mr. Gillen: I wanted to show what was the meaning of 15 per cent working interest.

The Court: No, you tried to make it appear in your question—I mean that is the way it would appear—that he had 15 per cent interest in the Menlo Club from the inception of the operation.

Mr. Gillen: He did in the profits, your Honor, and it says so in Paragraph 8, but he did not get any actual physical——

The Court: Paragraph 8 is——

Mr. Gillen: Read Paragraph 8 and you will see he had an agreement, 15 per cent interest in the profits.

The Court: Wait a minute. (Reads Paragraph 8.)

Mr. Gillen: Now you see that was retroactive as of the very date the Menlo Club was purchased, May 1, 1945.

Mr. Campbell: That should be read with the succeeding two paragraphs.

The Court: (Reads further paragraphs.)

Mr. Gillen: You see what happened there—there are two different 15 per cent items; one is the actual physical property, namely, tables, chairs, equipment, accessories of the club, the other is 15 per cent interest in the profits. Now I want to find what each of those mean and how Mr. Kyne can obtain his 15 per cent interest in the physical properties from 15 per cent interest in the profits, which were retroactive on that agreement. That agreement was signed in 1946, but that 15 per cent was conveyed over to him retroactive as of May 1, 1945, the very day the Menlo Club was purchased and during the time he was in the army, he was enjoying the benefit of 15 per cent of the profits of the Menlo Club, and that was going toward equity in the physical properties, and I think when your Honor sees my last point, your Honor should do something about your order for contempt. I have a regard for my reputation and do not like to be punished for disregard of the Court. I work very hard.

BLURRED COPY

The Court: It does seem to me, Mr. Campbell, there are two different things here. Now the 15 per cent in the social bar and restaurant business: (Reads from exhibit.) However, in this paragraph 8, there is an interest in the profits, distinguished from an interest in the assets and the body of the business. Do you have a copy of this?

Mr. Campbell: I do not interpret the document meaning there is a 30 per cent interest.

The Court: No, there isn't, there is a 15 per cent interest.

Mr. Gillen: We never said there was a 30 per cent interest.

The Court: But in the 4th paragraph it recites the party of the first party to convey to the second party a 15 per cent interest in and to the social room and restaurant business.

Mr. Campbell: Then it goes on and provides, effective May 1, 1945, there is to be a 15 per cent working interest, as I understand it, in and to the profits. That money, however, is not to be paid to Mr. Kyne, but is to be applied by Mr. Remmer on the recoupment of the 175 thousand dollars; after it having been recouped, then the actual 15 per cent interest comes into being. That is my understanding. And while that 15 per cent is going through the channel of Mr. Kyne, he is building up an equity in the actual physical property.

Mr. Gillen: No, he builds up an equity, but not that way.

Mr. Campbell: There is a question about that.

The Court: Isn't that 175 thousand to be accumulated from 15 per cent of the profits?

Mr. Gillen: May we put this on the blackboard?

The Court: I am going to set aside that order of contempt and ask the clerk to return to you the fine and I think this is a more involved contract than I thought it was when I first heard it.

Mr. Gillen: We are very concerned about it too, your Honor.

The Court: If the Court had the same understanding as he has now, I would not have made the order of contempt, although I think still that when the Court requests an attorney to desist from pursuing a certain line, whether objections were erroneously sustained or otherwise, you ought to desist.

Mr. Gillen: I felt I was hampered in my cross-examination and asked your Honor to hear me until I could make an explanation your Honor would understand.

The Court: I think there is enough here to permit this cross-examination.

Mr. Campbell: May I suggest this, in due respect. I think we should come to some understanding at least as to what is meant by this agreement——

The Court: I have this understanding, that the second party is not to own an interest until 175 thousand dollars is to be accumulated by the retention of 15 per cent of those profits by the first party; is that right, Mr. Gillen?

BLURRED COPY

Mr. Gillen: That is not quite it, but your Honor is on the right track.

Mr. Campbell: May I make this suggestion from the government's viewpoint and possibly Mr. Gillen can agree. The evidence will show that several similar agreements were entered into with those who were active in the business, similar in every respect with the other parties. The agreement, as I understand it, has this ultimate end, that until Mr. Remmer is repaid 175 thousand dollars, there shall be credited, in this instance to Mr. Kyne, 15 per cent of the profit, but that shall not be received by him but shall be retained by Mr. Remmer, together with what he is retaining from the others under similar agreements, and what he is retaining from his own profits.

The Court: That is my understanding of it.

Mr. Campbell: Until he shall have reached 175 thousand dollars?

The Court: That is my understanding and I think he could pursue cross-examination to show it.

Mr. Gillen: I would ask Mr. Avakian to explain this matter very concisely to your Honor.

Mr. Campbell: I do not believe the witness can give a legal interpretation of this document and I think the objections which were heretofore made were properly made and properly ruled upon by the Court.

Mr. Thompson: Your Honor, it is for the Court and jury to decide what the agreement means under directions by the Court. It is not for the witness to rise up in the chair and tell everybody what the agreement means.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

The Court: Mr. Avakian?

Mr. Avakian: I think your Honor has grasped this matter pretty well. We would like to make completely clear what we understand the meaning of this agreement. If, for instance, your Honor, I may use hypothetical figures and reduce this twenty thousand dollars, to make the example more simple. Let us suppose A and B are going to buy a business that cost $20,000. A has $20,000 and B has no money, so B and A make an agreement that A will put $20,000 up for buying the business, partner B will have a 50 per cent working interest in the profits and the understanding is that partner B will let his profits accumulate in the business to his credit, building up his equity from zero to 50 per cent. Partner A will draw more than his share of the profits, so that his equity, which is originally 100 per cent of the assets, will be reduced to 50 per cent, so that if the partnership is set up on that basis, then the initial entry in the investment account in the books will be partner A $20,000, partner B zero. Let us assume the first year the partnership has no income from the $20,000. Now because of the working interest in the profits arrangement, that $20,000 will be credited in the investment account, $10,000 to partner A and $10,000 to partner B. Partner A's investment account will then be the original $20,000 he put in, plus $10,000, or one-half of the profit credited, or $30,000. Partner B's investment account, which was originally zero, will have $10,000, because half of the profits have been credited, and therefore one would have an investment account showing $30,000 to A and $10,000 to B. At that point A makes a withdrawal of $20,000, which reduces his investment from $30,000 to $10,000. Partner B withdraws nothing, so his investment account remains at $10,000, so now we have B building up his equity by refraining from withdrawing his part of the profits until he has now a proportionate interest or equity in the physical assets themselves.

BLURRED COPY

Now the question, your Honor, that the prosecution has been asking repeatedly of these witnesses—"Did you receive any of the profit?"—is misleading, because as your Honor knows, there are direct and indirect ways of receiving the same. If, for example, my employer deposits my salary in my bank account, in a sense I have not received my salary, but in another sense I have received it, because it has gone into my bank account, and so with these profits, your Honor, if we can show that their profits were credited to their investment accounts, so that their profits were able, in a way, to build up an investment for them, they have actually in indirect fashion, but nevertheless realistically, received the benefit of their share of profits. That is all we are trying to get at, your Honor, and for the prosecution to ask the question, "Did you receive any of this money?" and get a "No" answer and leave it there, is keeping the jury in the dark. We want to show, although they did not get the money to put in their pockets, they did have their full benefit, because it gave them an ownership or equity interest in the assets of the business of the particular partnership.

Mr. Campbell: I want to be heard very briefly. Counsel's proposition is all right, except it does not take into consideration the agreement which they had in this case in regard to the Menlo Club, and that is this—there was no equity, as I take it, under this agreement which was built up in these people by reason of the working agreement, that is, no real equity, unless and until the 175 thousand dollars was fully repaid. For example, in the 4th paragraph on the second page, it is stated: "In the event of the death of the second party herein during the existence of this agreement"—this agreement exists until 175 thousand dollars is paid or the party withdraws: "* * * the interest of said second party and his estate shall cease and terminate * * *," etc. And it goes on to provide that his estate shall only have an interest——

The Court: That last statement seems to refute your theory. "There shall be paid by the first party or his successors in interest, to the legal representatives of the estate of the second party, the balance remaining on the account book maintained by the first party, in which is set forth amount of profits accruing to second party."

Mr. Campbell: If the second party, at the time of his death, shall have acquired said working interest.

BLURRED COPY

The Court: How is he to acquire the working interest except from accumulation of 15 per cent profits?

Mr. Campbell: No, your Honor, he was only to acquire it when and if the first party shall have received the entire sum of 175 thousand dollars. Now that is my understanding of the agreement.

The Court: Then wouldn't that construction take any purpose out of the next to the last paragraph on page 1? What does that mean? It should be considered as having some purpose there. Your construction of that contract would eliminate entirely any consideration of that next to the last paragraph on page 1.

Mr. Avakian: That is Paragraph 8 we have been talking about.

The Court: Yes, just eliminate Paragraph 8 from consideration and you have the result that you are suggesting.

Mr. Campbell: Well, it is my belief that the construction and interpretation of the agreement is a legal matter for construction of the Court, not for interpretation of the witness. He has stated, if the Court please, that this is his sole and only agreement.

The Court: All right, but according to Paragraph 8, as of May 1st there was assigned to him by Mr. Remmer a 15 per cent working interest. I think counsel can pursue that on cross-examination.

Mr. Campbell: The prior question to which objection was sustained——

The Court: I am going to set aside those rulings

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

and allow him to pursue that 15 per cent mentioned in this Paragraph 8, and I will state if I had not had the wrong idea myself, I would not have taken the position I did, but still I have ordered the record show that you are purged from contempt.

Mr. Golden: Would your Honor indicate, for the record, the date set for that hearing of this morning this morning?

The Court: I will place it on the calendar.

Mr. Golden: What does that mean?

The Court: That means it will take its regular turn.

Mr. Golden: May the record show that we requested it be heard this week or next week?

The Court: It may so show, but it won't be.

Mr. Avakian: May I raise one more point before the jury comes back?

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Avakian: I think your Honor appreciates the implication of the questions that have been asked of some of these witnesses is that these partners were phonies——

The Court: That may be so, but I think there is something substantial in that Paragraph 8.

Mr. Avakian: Yes; my point is this, if the question of the good faith of a party is involved here, as it apparently is, then we should be permitted to question the witnesses as to their actual intent, because that throws light on whether——

The Court (Interceding): No.

Mr. Pike: Your Honor, may I make this observation—it is not my understanding that the Court is called, at this time, to make a construction of the legal acts of the different parties under this agreement concerning the Menlo Club. The Court recognizes, as I view the rulings, that the respective parties in this particular case may proceed on their own theories as to meanings that they place upon that contract, considering that the rights of the parties are determined by the contract itself and so limited. Now what is respectfully suggested to the Court is as far as we can go, rather than to undertake, at this time, to define the rights and beliefs under the agreement itself. The cross-examination would be in accordance with the defendant's theory of this case and applications.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, it is a fundamental parol evidence rule that if an agreement is not clear on its face as to meaning or essential provisions which appear to call for some explanation, such as this, the working interest, the parties can explain what they mean by this provision, and that is a fundamental rule.

The Court: We have a decided difference of opinion as to the proper construction of this contract. I think counsel should be permitted to pursue on cross-examination this 15 per cent working interest in the profits.

[Title of District Court and Cause.]

ARGUMENT ON ADMISSION OF 117 SERIES

December 18, 1951

Mr. Golden: Now, if your Honor please, as we understand it, Mr. Campbell is attempting to introduce here various exhibits on the theory that since they came out of one of the boxes which we deposited with the clerk last week they must be the records of the particular enterprise in question. He is trying to lay connecting links, authenticating and proving and laying the foundation for these documents in that way.

Your Honor will recall that the testimony as to these records, so far as it has gotten into the record, is that the government had everything and gave back to Mr. Semenza the material which we deposited with the clerk. Now there is nothing here to show that the material which the government got originally is, for example, the regular books of account of the Day-Night Cigar Store. There has been no foundation laid for that. The government takes this position, they say: "We had some books which we think, or which somebody necessarily may have told us, are the books of account"—for example, Day-Night Cigar Store. "We gave those books and material to Mr. Semenza. Mr. Semenza gave them to you (that is, to counsel) and the Court ordered counsel to produce them." But the basic foundation and identification of those books and records is not here. There is no way that we could question whether or not those are actually the books and records of, for example, the Day-Night Cigar Store. Do I make that clear, your Honor?

The Court: I think I understand your position.

Mr. Golden: So that is the reason, in addition to our legal objections and motions, that is the reason we object to the last few exhibits going in. Mr. Kyne does not positively identify them as the records of these places and Mr. Campbell says, "They must be authentic because I got them out of that box," but we don't know. All we can say is that they are the material which was given to Mr. Semenza, which he gave to us and which we deposited with the clerk, but accidentally, if it is accidental, other books may have gotten into that material before the government turned it back to Mr. Semenza, or other pieces of paper may have gotten in there other than some records of the taxpayer, and there has been some evidence here already that even the Bureau of Internal Revenue is not perfect in keeping of records and there may be some mistakes there. We ought to have this authenticated and ought to have the opportunity of cross-examination on it.

The Court: Let me remind you of this—you made an objection to the order, the order which brought this material into the court, on the ground that they were books and records of the defendant, taken without compliance with the 4th Amendment, or in violation of the 4th Amendment.

Mr. Golden: Yes, that is what the government contends that they were, books and records of the defendant, but we have no opportunity to cross-examine to find out if that is so, and if your Honor will recall, we wanted to put on evidence to trace these books and other material from the time they originally got into the hands of the government, and we renew that offer. That may clear it up.

Mr. Campbell: I might state, your Honor, that in the first place these books and records, and the basis of the Court's order, was necessarily the subpoena which was served upon Mr. Semenza, in whose custody the books and records had been delivered by the government. Now the subpoena did not call Mr. Semenza in so many words to produce the records which were turned over to them. He was called upon to produce certain records in relation to specific businesses; in other words, regular business records of those businesses. Now for the first time, at the trial of this case, the defense took the position that they should not be compelled to comply with the subpoena by reason of the fact that all of these records referred to were the records of this defendant. Then after the Court's order that they produce those records, the records were produced and placed in the custody of the clerk, in compliance with the Court's order that certain specific records be produced.

Now these records have been in the possession of the defendant's agents and accountant, or the defendant's attorney in fact and accountant, since 1949. Now counsel has delivered the records themselves, and after having had them in their possession for a period of three years, attempts to raise, by inference, that question that there may be other records contained in here that they know nothing about. I think no serious weight should be given to that, and as a matter of fact, counsel now refuses to agree that these very records were the ones that they deposited with the clerk, which is altogether incomprehensible under the circumstances, but be that as it may, these records were produced here as the records of those businesses and I think that is a sufficient foundation, when the Court has ordered that records, for example, of the Day-Night Cigar Store, which are specified in that order and subpoena and which are specified in the receipt given by the attorney-in-fact and the accountant or the taxpayer, as being the records of those businesses when he received them and returned to the Court under the subpoena calling for those official records, it certainly is sufficient foundation for their introduction in evidence.

Mr. Golden: May I just say this, your Honor, our objection goes to the matter of foundation. Now a subpoena is nothing more than a demand. Now——

The Court (Interceding): I wonder if perhaps--you used the term "foundation" which, of course, is proper, I understand that, but to get at the point that seems to be bothering us here, if we get down to this basis—the question in my mind, has there been a showing made here some way, a legal showing, that these are a part of the records of the particular enterprise?

Mr. Golden: We do not know, your Honor.

The Court: Now if they were produced pursuant to an order to produce the books and records of all these enterprises of this defendant——

Mr. Golden: I do not want to interrupt——

The Court: Go ahead.

Mr. Golden: This is the situation, your Honor: The government subpoenaes an agent or attorney-in-fact of the defendant to produce certain records pertaining to this entity and that establishment, and so on. Now that agent or attorney-in-fact produced, or turns over to us and we produce—that doesn't make any difference—produces certain books of say the 186 Club, Day-Night Cigar Store, and so on. There is no testimony in evidence that those are the books of that particular establishment. Before they may be used in evidence, somebody must get up on that witness stand and say this particular exhibit is one of the books of accounts of the Day-Night Cigar Store, for example. Nobody has done that. Surely Mr. Campbell cannot contend that in a criminal, or even in a civil, case that by subpoenaing something he has placed in the record evidence that the thing that is produced in response to that subpoena is what he claims it is, and that is particularly true in federal court, where a subpoena duces tecum is issued without an affidavit, not even an ex-parte sworn statement here by anybody that the particular material listed in the subpoena is what it purports to be. There is nothing here but a compulsory delivery by Court order or Court subpoena, which is the same thing.

BLURRED COPY

The Court: The order contemplated delivery of books and records.

Mr. Golden: Surely.

The Court: The Court wouldn't assume that you had delivered something other than books and records.

Mr. Golden: Which we don't know. I hold in my hand prosecution's Exhibit 112A for identification. It shows for the place of the 110 Eddy Street and 50 Mason Street——

The Court: Wouldn't the defendant know, or the defendant's representatives know, these different institutions know that a certain book was not a record, and if that was so, wouldn't it have been eliminated from the material delivered?

Mr. Golden: No, your Honor, for four reasons: Number 1, these things were in the custody of the government for a long time; (2) the books were not personally kept by the defendant and he may well not know whether or not they are actually the records, he may never have seen them before, that is, seen them at the time they were being kept; (3) that would be compelling the defendant to testify against himself, and (4)—I have lost number 4, your Honor—just a moment——

The Court: I think there is enough here presently to show that they are part of the records of the enterprises. Now if they are not and that was shown during the course of the trial, we might have a different situation.

Mr. Golden: Well, my fourth reason is this, your Honor; it is recalled to mind now. Your Honor said a moment ago, we would suppose, in response to the Court's order, you would only turn over the authentic records of these various places. Can we dare to take the risk of saying to ourselves, "We don't think this is an authentic record, we won't turn it in to the clerk pursuant to the Court order"?

The Court: I think so. I do not think that you would intentionally—suppose, for instance, one of our Federal Reporter books, 114 Fed. (2), happened to get mixed up with those records, would you produce that pursuant to that order?

Mr. Golden: No, but suppose Mr. Semenza tells us out of court that he does not think that this particular exhibit, just for example, is what the label on it indicates it is. Can we then go to the Court and say we do not think this is a record, we are not going to turn it in? Of course, we cannot. We have to turn it in and the government, to get it into evidence, has to show through a witness, whoever it may be, that this is a record of that business.

The Court: I think it is a fair assumption that when material is produced pursuant to an order of the Court to produce certain material, that the material produced is that material. I think we can stand on that.

Mr. Golden: It still has to be introduced on the basis of testimony. Somebody has to swear that this is what it purports to be.

The Court: Well, there is some evidence to that effect. We are not entirely bereft of that. It is not clear, however.

Mr. Golden: Mr. Kyne says he does not know what business is there.

The Court: He does not go that far, that he does not know.

Mr. Golden: I wonder if we might have Mrs. McIntyre read the part where Mr. Campbell offered Exhibit——

The Court: He says it looked like Mr. Slater's writing; he didn't recognize the book.

Mr. Campbell: He also stated the books were maintained for that enterprise.

The Court: Well, the ruling will stand.

Mr. Avakian: Does your Honor want to take up the matter of the transcript on the offered series, now that the jury is out?

The Court: No, not now.

Mr. Avakian: We are ready to take it up any time your Honor desires.

The Court: Yes, but I have not had a chance to look at it. We will call in the jury.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

Thursday, December 27, 1951—2:00 P.M.

(In the absence of the jury.)

Mr. Gillen: Because of his skill and knowledge, I would rather Mr. Avakian replied to the remarks of Mr. Campbell. (Last question read: "Well, did anybody ever reject this 1945 return or statement that you made concerning it?")

Mr. Campbell: Now my objection to that, of course, is as to being incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial. There is presently pending, which I did not want to state before the jury, in the Tax Court of the United States, claim by the government against the taxpayer with relation to all these claims, all these returns, a suit involving some 800 thousand dollars. If this question is to be raised as to whether or not the government or any of its agents told him that they rejected or accepted any filing of any of these things, I think the government would be entitled to show that the government has rejected these returns and has filed such a claim against the taxpayer, which is presently pending before the Tax Court; but I made my objection for the purpose of conserving the time spent here as much as we can, because of the belief that is a collateral issue. Of course, those returns are the basis of the indictment.

The Court: Wouldn't it be possible if these returns have been rejected—I don't know, of course, they have been—would it be possible they could be rejected without knowledge of this witness, who left the employment in 1948?

BLURRED COPY

Mr. Campbell: And the acceptance or rejection is always subject to whatever later develops, so far as evidence is concerned, with regard to the government's position relating to the matter. As I say, there is pending before the Tax Court—and I do not think counsel would contradict—and presently at issue that suit involving some 800 thousand dollars with respect to the issues here. Now I do not believe, in fairness to the defense counsel, that they desire to inject the fact of that controversy before this jury, but if questions of this kind are asked, the government has a right to produce that evidence and show that, but I do believe it is collateral matter which should not be gone into.

Mr. Gillen: I think your Honor will recognize, anything said by any agent of the government to this witness——

Mr. Campbell: No agent can bind the government.

The Court: I sustain the objection as to what the agent stated.

Mr. Avakian: May I respond to Mr. Campbell's argument?

The Court: Yes, sir.

Mr. Avakian: I think it is important to bear in mind here we have two issues which this jury has to determine; one is the issue of correct tax liability, whether or not the income shown in these returns was correctly computed and reported. That is one issue. The second issue arises only in the event the returns were incorrect, and that issue is whether incorrect returns, if they are incorrect, were filed with an intent to avoid taxes.

Now on that second issue we feel that the last two questions asked of this witness are highly material, they are highly significant, and for this reason, your Honor. It is quite possible that the 1945 Menlo Club return was incorrect; in fact, I would say, in view of the fact that the income was based on, for reasons the witness has explained, 1944 records of income, that it would be in the nature of a miracle if the exact figure of income shown on the 1944 return was the 1945 income. The 1945 income undoubtedly varied either upwards or downwards from the 1944 figure. It was explained why of necessity they had to use something, because the 1945 records were inadvertently destroyed, so they set forth in the best manner that they could in computing income of 1945, with a letter of explanation to the Internal Revenue. That letter of explanation has bearing on the question of their good faith and their intent. In other words, the witness has testified that thereafter, while he was still employed there, four or five revenue agents, whom he has named, were there investigating the income of the Menlo Club. Now I think all of us, who have any familiarity at all with various investigations, know that ordinarily a revenue agent, who spends any substantial amount of time on a case, will call to the attention of the taxpayer's representatives with whom he is dealing, anything which appears to him irregular. We grant, of course, they can not bind the government by that, but in view of that practice of calling attention to irregularities as they appear, to mistakes, in view of that policy to call attention to any irregularity in connection with this matter, is a circumstance which the jury can properly consider in determining whether these people were acting in good faith and with an honest intent in preparing the return the way they did.

Now as a matter of law, they might have been wrong. That is a question which the jury will also have to determine, but if they were wrong, were they wrong honestly or justified in that? Now if they were so clearly wrong that had the revenue agent immediately spotted that and would call it to their attention, that would be some indication that perhaps they were not acting in good faith. On the other hand, if the revenue agents who spend all their time making audits, did not call their attention to this as irregular in connection with that matter, then that is a circumstance which the jury might properly consider in determining whether the action that was taken in preparing the return in this manner was one which could have been taken in good faith and on that question of good faith we feel that it is an important circumstance to show, and as Mr. Gillen has said, the case of the government here, so far as it is put in, is entirely one of circumstantial evidence, both on the matter of what the correct income was and the matter of good faith, so if the jury is going to have to determine those questions from circumstantial evidence, then shouldn't it have before it, as one of the circumstances, the fact that four or five agents, in auditing those returns, did not say anything to the man who prepared these or assisted in its preparation, if prepared in an illegal fashion?

Now with respect to the 90-day letter decision that Mr. Campbell refers to in the amount of some 800 thousand dollars. That is a matter which is not in the record; Mr. Campbell has correctly stated there is such a case. In view of the fact he mentions—and I do not believe it will have materiality, because there is nothing in that 90-day letter which calls attention to any irregularity with respect to the manner of computing the 1945 income. There is a statement in it, without any explanation whatsoever, that described the receipts of the Menlo Club were in a figure larger than the amount shown on the returns, but there is no explanation of that whatsoever and there is no statement concerning the fact that the manner of computing was improper or evidenced bad faith. I mention that because it was brought up by counsel, but regardless of the competency of that matter, it is an important circumstance for the jury to determine whether there was entirely good faith in connection with this particular return, to know whether four or five agents, investigating the matter, did or did not call attention to anything irregular in connection with it. Now we submit when there is a matter of intent involved, the Court should not restrict us in showing the circumstances, and all the circumstances, that relate to the matter, because after all the guilt or innocence of this defendant, so far as we can tell up to now in this case, is going to be determined entirely upon the basis of circumstantial evidence.

Mr. Campbell: I would like to make a very brief statement. From counsel's familiarity with cases of this kind, he must be aware of the regulation which prohibits agents from discussing with the taxpayer, during the course of investigations, what they find to be irregularities, but be that as it may, I agree that the intent of the taxpayer in filing his return is an element which must be considered and submitted to the jury, but the intent must be that of the taxpayer and must be that at the time of the return, that it was falsely filed. It is undoubtedly true there were a number of agents during the course of this investigation, because here is a very extensive groups of businesses, very extensive records which had to be examined, and therefore whether they said to this man, "Those returns aren't worth the paper they are written on, they are full of lies," or whether they said, "Those returns look all right on their face to me," isn't determinative of the issues here. They are collateral matters and I feel if this sort of thing is gone into, whether the revenue agents raised any questions as to the returns, then we will be entitled to show that the government has a suit pending of some 800 thousand dollars involving these years, and I object on the grounds that these questions are incompetent and immaterial to the issues before this Court.

Mr. Avakian: May I correct a general statement

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

I made with respect to the 90-day letter and explain it in more detail? I stated the 90-day letter shows a larger amount of gross receipts for the Menlo Club than the tax return did. Actually, your Honor, the difference between the 1945 Menlo Club tax return, that is in evidence here, and the gross receipts figure shown in the 90-day letter, which Mr. Campbell has mentioned, shows a figure of seven thousand dollars; the tax returns showing gross receipts of 558 thousand dollars and the 90-day letter showing 565 thousand dollars; in terms of percentage a negligible difference, and we say this 1945 tax return was rejected by the government because of only seven thousand dollars out of more than half a million, but incidentally, whether or not Mr. Campbell would be entitled to introduce this 90-day letter in evidence later, that is a question which your Honor can pass upon when the offer is made. Incidentally, we feel if the correctness and honesty and good faith of the 1945 return of the Menlo Club is being challenged by the government here—and I take it they are challenging it—then all the circumstances relating to that should be introduced in evidence here.

Now when we go into the matter of determining anything from circumstances, it is a familiar argument that I have heard the prosecution make in many of these cases—what have you to say in reply to such statement, by saying it would be contrary to regulations. For five years I represented taxpayers in home equity cases and with very, very few exceptions—I wouldn't know more than one case out of ten—the agents have discussed with me, particularly things that they thought were wrong with returns and perhaps with the exception of one case out of ten it has been my practice and knowledge that agents have discussed any investigations with the taxpayers and representatives the things that they thought were wrong.

The Court: Do you contend there is no such regulation?

Mr. Avakian: I know of no such regulation.

Mr. Campbell: I am sure Mr. Avakian knows of no case where agents, in the course of investigation, have disclosed to the bookkeeper or taxpayer, or have discussed with the taxpayer, except in certain exceptional instances, their findings, and I am advised by the agents that by regulation they are not supposed to so disclose their evidence. It is true when the case comes into my office, I sit down with the taxpayer's representative and afford them an opportunity for conferences. I think they are afforded the same opportunity to come in and make an explanation to the Bureau while it is still in the investigative stage, they are offered that opportunity. However, the negative fact, which is what he is asking him—did they ever tell you anything was wrong?—I presume expecting a "no" answer—isn't proof of anything as of the time that the return was filed, which is where the intent counts, and it is the intent of the taxpayer, not the interpretation of the agent, that is material. It is the ultimate fact itself. What the agent may have said or even what he did say, unless it was said to the taxpayer while the return was being prepared, certainly has no probative value.

The Court: The objection will be sustained. Bring in the jury.

ARGUMENT REGARDING ADMISSION OF EXHIBIT "Z"

December 28, 1951

Mr. Gillen: Now, may it please the Court, the defendant's Exhibit "Z" for identification is a document clarifying the situation which was requested by the government, according to my information, from Mr. Schriber more than a year ago, and it is my information that this document, either the original or one of the copies of this document, signed by both of the parties involved, Mr. Schriber and Mr. Remmer, has been in the hands of the government for more than a year. Whether it reached Mr. Campbell or not, I am not prepared to say; if not, it has been in the hands of the Internal Revenue Department.

Now the reason the document is of vital importance to the defense's case is that your Honor very readily recollects that Mr. Campbell, in questioning both Mr. Schriber and Mr. Kyne, and also Mr. Maundrell, invited the inference from those who listened, that there had been a cash payment of 25 thousand dollars and that the first check payment was an additional 25 thousand dollars rather than a mere re-arranging of how the payments should be made. In other words, it becomes obvious that Mr. Maundrell, when he was setting up the books, decided he wanted a bank transaction, a check account there, and Mr. Schriber gave back the 25 thousand dollars and was given a check, which he put through. Now the inference has been invited—and the subject has been gone into by three different government witnesses inviting that inference—that there was an extra 25 thousand dollars paid by Mr. Remmer to Mr. Schriber. It has been explained to the contrary by three witnesses, and finally there was a statement made by both parties which was supplied to the government. That statement is identical, insofar as the transaction, of the status, is concerned, as was testified to here by Mr. Maundrell and is identical, so far as payments are concerned, with 125C, the government's exhibit, the ledger page on the Menlo Club.

Now I believe, may it please the Court, that I have laid a stronger foundation for admission, through Mr. Maundrell, of this exhibit than was laid by counsel in the matter of getting before the jury a bill of sale, or whatever the document might be called, for the purchase of a safe for 52 Mason Street by Mr. Kyne. Your Honor will recall that Mr. Kyne was on the witness stand for some four days. He was the government's witness. That the Herman Bros. bill of sale, or whatever it was, setting up the transaction, was not shown to Mr. Kyne, although Mr. Kyne was the man who purchased the safe and who signed as the purchaser of the safe. At the time it was shown to Mr. Maundrell, Mr. Maundrell was asked to recall from memory the description of the safe and compare it with the description in the document. He was asked to testify concerning a transaction which took place in 1944 or a year before he became identified with the Remmer enterprises, and he was asked to identify Mr. Kyne's signature. On the basis of that testimony, it was determined by your Honor that a sufficient foundation had been laid for the admission of that document.

Now I would like to read—it is very brief—from the transcript exactly what the foundation was, and then I would like to point out to your Honor how much stronger my position is with Mr. Maundrell to have an identification and lay the foundation for the introduction of this document here. This will be found, may it please the Court, on page 1262 of the transcript and it begins at line 24. It is Mr. Campbell examining on direct examination Mr. Maundrell, the present witness — Mr. Campbell asked to have an exhibit marked for identification and then several discussions, and on the next page, page 1263, starting at line 20, Mr. Campbell:

"Q. Now I am going to show you plaintiff's Exhibit 139 for identification and ask you to examine it. Can you state whether or not that refers to the safe on the premises at 52 Mason Street?"

There was an objection by Mr. Avakian.

The Court: What was the objection?

Mr. Gillen (Reads): "Mr. Avakian: Objected to, no proper foundation laid as to the witness' knowledge of the transaction—long before he came there. If your Honor will examine the document, I think you will see my point. You will observe the date and recall this witness' testimony as to the date of his employment."

BLURRED COPY

The transaction of the safe was a year before Mr. Maundrell came to work.

"The Court: He may answer the question.

"A. It appears to be the same safe that we had there at that time.

"Q. Do you recognize the description set forth thereon? A. Yes.

"Q. And that is the safe to which you referred as having the 12 boxes?"

Objection by Mr. Gillen. My objection was:

"I think this is pretty much calling for his opinion and conclusion. I mean, there is no harm in the matter one way or another, but it is asking him to speculate on something that was purchased a year before he went to work there."

The question was read, and the Court says: "He may answer the question." I will read the question again:

"Q. And that is the safe to which you referred as having the 12 boxes? A. Yes, sir.

"Q. And do you recognize the signature hereon over the subheading 'Purchaser'?

"A. Yes, sir.

"Q. And whose signature is that?

"A. William Kyne.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

"Mr. Campbell: This will be offered in evidence, No. 139."

Now Mr. Avakian made an objection and there was some discussion about Mr. Kyne not having been questioned and the Court suggested Mr. Kyne could be called by the defense and there was a question whether he be called back as the prosecution's witness or our witness.

Mr. Campbell: I think you should read line 14.

Mr. Gillen: I will read the whole page (reads):

"Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, we object to the introduction on the ground no proper foundation has been laid for the document. The witness simply states it seems to describe a safe similar to the one that they had when he later came there and the introduction of the document in this manner deprives us of the opportunity to cross-examine regarding it. Your Honor will recall Mr. Kyne, the witness for the prosecution, was on the stand for four days and if they had presented that when Mr. Kyne was here, we could have cross-examined Mr. Kyne at that time.

"The Court: I think Mr. Kyne was excused subject to call.

"Mr. Avakian: Yes, but if we had tried to cross-examine Mr. Kyne on this document, we would have been met with the objection it was not within the scope of his direct examination.

"The Court: I will permit you to cross-examine him.

"Mr. Avakian: And you will also instruct that he is brought back at the prosecution's expense?

BLURRED COPY

"The Court: The objection is overruled. I will not make any commitments now on the expense.

"Mr. Avakian: Then we would have to bring him back at our expense to cross-examine him?

"The Court: Very well. Objection overruled. If you want to bring him back, you may.

"Mr. Avakian: We request that he be brought back at the government's expense.

"The Court: These discussions should be had outside the presence of the jury. They have no place in the record at this trial of the case."

I think that is about all on that subject, may it please the Court.

Now here we have a situation with regard to this Exhibit "Z" for identification where Mr. Maundrell was the only witness who was familiar with the transaction, just as Mr. Kyne was familiar with the safe transaction.

The Court: Do you want to use this document now?

Mr. Gillen: No, your Honor, I have it in mind, and I just want to say to your Honor that here we have a witness who handled—in fact, issued the checks—on the entire Schriber transaction, from the first check that was issued to Schriber. He set up the ledger account. He is familiar with the entire status of the thing, he is familiar with the signatures, and he is called upon to identify that statement set forth there as truly reflecting and augmenting his own ledger sheets and the cancelled checks and everything else.

The Court: Mr. Maundrell has already testified as to the facts as he recalled them.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

Mr. Gillen: Yes, your Honor.

The Court: This statement was made how many years after the transaction with which it has to do?

Mr. Gillen: Well, what is the date on the statement?

The Court: March 7, 1949.

Mr. Gillen: Well, that was made, your Honor, at the government's request, according to my information. They wanted a statement from both parties as to what the status was on the payments and both parties made that and it coincided with the ledger sheets and certainly, your Honor, this document and our foundation that we have laid, and are prepared to lay——

The Court (Interceding): 139 was used, was it not, merely as memorandum or matter to refresh the witness' memory as to the description of the safe?

Mr. Gillen: No, it was with relation to the transaction and purchase of the goods.

Mr. Campbell: The invoice of the company who sold the goods.

The Court: Mr. Maundrell described the safe on the premises. He was shown this document and stated it was the same safe which he had been describing.

Mr. Campbell: As to that, your Honor, it is my understanding when we come to this particular document, which purports to be a summarization entered into between Mr. Schriber, who was a witness here and testified at length, both on direct and cross-examination, as to his recollection of the transaction, and the witness Maundrell, who has testified as to what actually took place, here is an attempt at this stage to put in a summarization by Mr. Schriber, who is no longer on the stand, and by the defendant, who in effect, if that document were admitted, would be testifying without taking the stand. Now the best evidence, of course, is the witness who participated in the transaction, the checks themselves, and the books and records which were kept at that time. Here is a matter which was made up some four years after the transaction, not made by this witness, in which he is asked as to an accurate summarization but would signify nothing on that the defendant agreeing that this is an accurate summarization, and I can see no theory in law in which that would be admissible unless it was a document signed by the witness and being used for the purpose of impeaching testimony. He is here, is available as to cross-examination on this subject, as was Mr. Schriber, who were apparently two of the three parties to the transaction and that, I submit, is the best evidence. This particular document I have stated to counsel and I have stated to the Court, I have never seen before. I asked Mr. Weaver, in charge of the investigation, and he states he never saw it. However, assuming it was supplied to some government agent—I do not know—nevertheless there is no dignity by which it could become an exhibit in this case. It would come within the category, of course, of self-serving declaration and purports, according to counsel's statement—I have not read it carefully—to be simply a summarization of this witness' testimony. I do not think it is admissible.

Mr. Gillen: In the first place, may it please the Court, in regard to Mr. Campbell's statement Mr. Remmer is in effect testifying to a self-serving declaration without taking the witness stand, he is doing that very thing in the tax return when he signs, he is testifying to the financial status without taking the witness stand and that becomes an important part here. Now it is in effect, this statement, a declaration against the defendant's interest because if it weren't as set forth in the books and if it weren't as set forth in this statement by both parties to the transaction, then Mr. Remmer could take credit for paying out an additional 25 thousand dollars he never paid out. That would be to his benefit in that instance, and in this instance it is a declaration against his interest. Now Mr. Campbell puts a witness on the witness stand and then by another witness he appears to be attempting to impeach and discredit that former witness' testimony—well, an illustration is the Schriber situation—he attempts to show by two other witnesses, against his own witness, that Schriber received 25 thousand dollars more than he did receive, and we think it is vital and we think it is certainly accumulative and additional to the testimony that has already gone in before the jury here. Now certainly it is a stronger situation for a man who handled the whole transaction, as did Mr. Maundrell, to look at a document that was signed by two parties to the transaction which he supervised and handled and managed and planned and carried with them, to say, "Yes, this truly reflects ev thing I know about the transaction," as compa with Mr. Maundrell being called, after Mr. K who bought the safe was on the stand for days—the safe was never mentioned, being ca upon to describe it. We can not, without y Honor's permission and making an exception, can not call back Mr. Kyne and examine. objection would be proper if it wasn't within scope of Mr. Kyne's direct examination, beca

BLURRED COPY

he had never been asked about it, but I imag your Honor, that Herman Brothers and the v ous other people, have probably built a hund safes of the same description as the safe wh is described in that bill of sale at 52 Mason Str and yet they laid the weak foundation, "Does look like the safe as described here at 52 Ma Street?" He didn't know anything about the p chase. He was asked preliminarily, "Is this signature of Willie Kyne?" and on the basis that, "Yes, this looks like the safe and signat of Willie Kyne," that document goes before jury. Why they didn't ask Mr. Kyne, I d know; why they waited until some other witn was on the stand, I don't know, but here is the n who knows about the transaction, participated set up the books and he is asked as to what knows, and we feel, your Honor, it should be p mitted to go before the jury. It is practically identical situation in which you permitted 139 go before the jury.

The Court: The ruling will stand.

[Title of District Court and Cause.]

ARGUMENT RE: EHIBITS 150, 150A AND "E"

Thursday, January 3, 1952—2:20 P.M.

(In the absence of the jury.)

Mr. Campbell: If the Court please, I wish to point out that this document which is being offered is offered under the certificate of the Deputy Commissioner in charge of the Chicago office of Bureau of Public Debts that a search of the Treasury Department's registrations and redemption records, which records involve bonds, disclosed no other bonds or redemptions by Elmer F. Remmer or Helen L. Remmer, either individually or as co-owners, than those shown in the information as set forth herein. The certificate of the Deputy Commissioner is followed by the certificate of Margaret B. Choppin, Records Administration Officer, Division of Office Services, office of Administrative Services, Treasury Department:

> "I hereby certify that Chas. P. Peyton, whose signature appears above is the Deputy Commissioner in Charge of the Chicago Office Bureau of Public Dept and that all final records of the issue and redemption of United States Saving Bonds are maintained in that office."

The document has been issued under the official seal of the Treasury Department and is offered on the basis of certified copy of a public record, under the applicable statutes herein referred to.

The Court: Do you consider Section 1733, Title 28 applies?

Mr. Campbell: No, not business records—this is certificate of public records.

The Court: Government records and papers?

Mr. Campbell: Yes.

Mr. Golden: Your Honor hasn't seen this. This is a group of pages tied together with an official ribbon and seal. The certificate is to the effect that the annexed pages were prepared at the direction of the person signing the certificate, who is a Deputy Commissioner in charge of the particular department, and he certifies, as I say, first that the pages were prepared at his direction, and second, that the registration and redemption records in Chicago, which is the main office, covering the period 1935 to 1948, don't disclose anything else pertaining to Elmer F. Remmer or Helen L. Remmer other than is in these pages.

Now this is not, your Honor, does not purport to be, any kind of an authenticated copy of any kind of an official record. This is something which was prepared by somebody—it doesn't say by whom—and this Mr. Payton, Deputy Commissioner, undoubtedly some clerk came in to him and said, "I prepared this at the request of Mr. Campbell" or some office staff, "Will you certify it." That is all he knows about it. These are not official records. This is a private record. As a matter of fact, while I may be mistaken, I am surprised at all the government has access to this record. Certainly if I wanted to find out what records in that office showed as to bonds purchased by John Smith, I couldn't do it unless I had a letter from John Smith authorizing me to make inquiry. These are private. These are not public records, such as the clerk of this court has, open to the inspection of anybody, so they do not photostat those records. They simply make up some marked sheets and we have here an ex-parte statement, no more than an affidavit, that these marked sheets show what the records in Chicago show. Now there is no problem in bringing witnesses whom we might cross-examine as to the records. They have brought people from Chicago, New York and Honolulu. I might say this too, your Honor, while, of course, we have no knowledge as to the particular data in here, I am sure your Honor is aware, and we are, that government agencies, like any large office, any bank, do make mistakes. Now there have been cases certainly where a man has bought or redeemed a savings bond, an United States bond, and it does not show on their records. To cite a case, where the army pays a woman on the theory that she is a widow of a soldier killed in action and he turns up alive. Now we think we are entitled to cross-examine on voir dire the person who says that this is the actual record. We would like to have that person on the stand, would like to see the records, if physically possible, or pictures of them. After all, there are a certain number of bonds in here presumably purchased at certain times and redeemed at certain times. There would be nothing to prevent the government from taking a photostat of the pages of official records on which these entries appear. For example, there may be some marks on these original entries which have not been copied. This is like I went into an office and made notes and saying, "I copied these down from official records" and you certified it. Certainly Mr. Peyton himself didn't do it, we know that. Will your Honor take a look at it?

BLURRED COPY

The Court: I would like to see it.

Mr. Campbell: Of course, the only purpose of certification of an official record is to avoid bringing a large amount of records. There are perhaps millions and millions of bonds issued in this country that of course could not be produced here. For that reason that statute has been made. However, I will offer, in connection with that exhibit and ask to have marked for identification, a certification to which is attached photographic copies of all of the bonds referred to, which shows on their face the date and the amount of payment. I will ask to have the clerk mark this for identification. I hoped to avoid cluttering the record.

Mr. Golden: It isn't the circumstances of the bonds——

The Court: I understand your objection will go to this exhibit, the same objection would apply to this exhibit.

Mr. Golden: Yes and in addition to 150——

Mr. Campbell: I wish to submit the other proposed exhibit to the Court as well.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

The Court: Well, let us look at the statute; Section 1733 of Title 28 reads: (Reads section)

Mr. Golden: Not records; they are bonds, your Honor.

Mr. Avakian: They are photostats of bonds purchased and redeemed.

The Court: Well, those would be records.

Mr. Golden: No, records is a writing which records for history some transaction or evidence. This is evidence of indebtedness.

The Court: Doesn't this record for history that these bonds were in evidence? The objection will be overruled. Exhibits 150 and 150A will be admitted in evidence.

Mr. Campbell: I think I should offer them in the presence of the jury.

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Golden: 150 is neither a record or a transcription of a record.

The Court: Now we have heard a lot about Judge Hand and I think he ruled some time ago that we could have a summary instead of bringing in voluminous books and records, that the court could receive in evidence summaries of official records.

Mr. Golden: Sure, if the witness takes the stand and can be cross-examined.

The Court: That is why we have Section 1733.

Mr. Golden: Yes, your Honor, and that says a record or transcript of record, but this is some notes taken by somebody. It doesn't purport to show the exact record.

BLURRED COPY

The Court: I am going to admit them in evidence. Any other matters to be disposed of while the jury is absent?

Mr. Campbell: May I suggest a recess at this time?

The Court: Yes, we will be in recess for 15 minutes.

(Recess taken at 2:30 p.m.)

Defendant present with counsel.

Jury and alternate juror absent.

The Court: I want to consider a little further these exhibits, particularly 150. Now 150A is a group of records or copies of records of the Treasury Department and certified under the seal that the contents of this exhibit, photostatic copies of bonds, are true copies of records.

Mr. Golden: I do not want to interrupt your Honor.

The Court: Well, I would like to hear from you. Under Section 1733 these books or records or account or minutes of proceedings of any department or agency of the United States shall be admissible to prove the transactions or occurrences as a memorandum of which same were copied or made. And then in (b), "Properly authenticated copies or transcriptions of any books, records, papers or documents of any department or agency of the United States should be admitted in evidence equally with the original." Now the documents comprising Exhibit 150A would fall within the provisions of subdivision (b) of Section 1933. Now

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

I am not so sure about the subject matter here, Exhibit 150.

Mr. Campbell: May I be heard on that at the proper time, your Honor?

The Court: Yes. Now 150 is composed of a number of sheets and I can't read that word—I suppose it is "information regarding United States savings bonds" and the certificate reads that the annexed reports, form CO 1596—and that seems to be the same form of these different documents—certifies that the annexed reports on form CO 1596, consisting of 10 pages, were prepared at the direction of this officer, contain information regarding certain United States savings bonds, derived from the Treasury Department records on file in the Chicago office. The Treasury seal. Now whether this exhibit, these documents, could be considered transcripts of records——

Mr. Campbell: That is the point we make. So far as these being private records is concerned, they are not. These are public records. They are bonds which have been issued. By law and regulations the Treasury Department, the proper function thereof, is required to keep records showing the outstanding bonds, the person to whom those bonds are outstanding, the purchase price and in the event of redemption by the United States, the amount of such redemption. The document itself, that is, certified copy itself, purports to be a transcript obtained from the books and records of account which were kept by that office in Chicago, which is certified to be the office where all such records are kept for the Treasury Department relating to such bonds. As a matter of fact, a comparison of the two exhibits, 150 and 150A, discloses that the information in 150 is the same as that disclosed in 150A, with the exception of one bond, which 150 shows has not been redeemed, or was not redeemed at the time that the transcript was prepared and is therefore not set forth in 150A. 150A are photostatic copies, or photographic copies —I don't know the exact process—of the redeemed bonds, showing the original bonds. On the face of the bond, if redeemed, there is placed the stamp of the redeeming agency. In most instances, I believe, they are banks which redeem those bonds; showing the amount paid by the bank on account of the United States for the redemption of those bonds. Under the laws and regulations pertaining to bonds, various financial institutions are made authorized agencies of the United States, including banks who are members of the Federal Reserve, to redeem those bonds and they are, as a matter of fact, I understand, paid a small fee for that service performed in behalf of the Treasury, so that as to the Exhibit 150A, which are certain photostats of the original records themselves, they are the original record of invoice between the United States government and the purchaser of that bond—the only original record—in the book of account. As to 150 itself, it is a transcript of the records wherein pertinent information is gathered in a concise or precise form.

The Court: Now let me ask you this. Is your understanding of the meaning of the word "transcript" as used in this section a summary? Is a transcript a summary of a record?

Mr. Campbell: Yes, your Honor. As this is used in the context of 1773(b) indicates that, when it says transcripts of any books, as compared to copies of books.

The Court: If that is so, then that seems to me to reach the objection counsel made as to a lack of opportunity to cross-examine the individual who prepared the summary or transcript. Right now the statute contemplates that a transcript of a record may be admitted in evidence. If a transcript is something which is prepared from a record, the statute does not contemplate that it would be admissible, only on condition that there is an opportunity to cross-examine the person who made the summary so transcribed. That is the thought that I had.

Mr. Golden: Well, your Honor, as to that point, if a transcript meant anything other than a true and exact copy——

The Court (Interceding): Tell me what you mean by transcript. What is your understanding? I don't take it it means a certified copy. I don't believe the word "transcript" means a certified copy of an instrument or a document.

Mr. Golden: It means, in my understanding, an accurate excerpt, complete in itself as far as it goes, that is, including whatever dates it includes or whatever material it includes. If it is in any sense a summary or involves to any degree whatsoever the discretion of the person preparing it, who is not under oath, then we have extra-judicial discretion.

The Court: Let us see what this certificate is. Now he certifies that the annexed reports were prepared at his direction and contain information regarding certain United States savings bonds, derived from the Treasury Department records on file. Now a transcript would be nothing more or less than information from records, would it not?

Mr. Golden: It would be more than that. It would be all the information from the records. For example, your Honor, I am sure your Honor during the war purchased bonds of this nature—you will recall that the person who makes the purchase, the person who actually steps up to the window and buys the bond, can buy it in some one else's name or he can put some one else down as purchaser, or I can take my associate's money and buy a bond in his name. That would all show on the entire record.

The Court: The thought I have is that that objection perhaps goes more to the weight than to the admissibility of the offered exhibit and if such a condition exists, why the defendant could show it.

Mr. Golden: We could show it if we had the man here, yes, but how could we show it under these circumstances? Your Honor, I had a divorce case a few months ago, in which one of the bonds, or some bonds were in issue and I wrote to this office in Chicago and the reply came back that if the person who, according to the records was the owner of the bonds, authorized it, they would let me have the information. Now these are not—Mr. Campbell says they are public records—they are not. It is true a bond is indebtedness of the United States, but it is also an asset of the owner, but no one can get that information without the owner's authority. It is a government record, but it is not a public record. Any one can walk into the clerk's office and ask to see the record of any case filed in this court.

The Court: But the government might be in a different position than a third party individual.

Mr. Golden: They might be, but I do not know any authority for that right.

The Court: It would seem in cases where the government is a party, the government could use its own records in support of its action.

Mr. Golden: For example, in order for some Congressional Committee or the Federal Trade Commission or some State Department of the government to obtain income tax returns of a certain individual, they have to get the permission of the President.

Mr. Campbell: I beg your pardon, that is not quite correct.

The Court: I just wanted to make sure that I had the right view of the application given Section 1733 to the exhibits, and I think I have.

Mr. Golden: Of course we do not think those exhibits are records or transcriptions of records.

The Court: I feel certain as to 150A but I have some doubt as to 150, but I think——

BLURRED COPY

Mr. Golden: Mr. Peyton says there the attached pages contain all the pertinent information. Who is Mr. Peyton? Maybe he doesn't know what pertinent means, for all we know. There may be some information which he thinks is not pertinent and which we think is pertinent.

The Court: I fail to see that word "pertinent" here.

Mr. Golden: I think it is there.

The Court: He certifies that the annexed reports were prepared at his direction and contain certain information. He further certifies: (Reads from exhibit.)

Mr. Golden: Of course, I did not have it in front of me.

The Court: There is no conclusion there so I feel that these statutes have a purpose and the purpose is to make it more convenient to introduce documents of this nature. So I am going to admit the exhibits when the jury comes in.

Mr. Golden: As long as the jury is out, there is an entirely different matter that would take just a moment.

The Court: Yes, certainly.

Mr. Golden: It concerns defendant's Exhibit "E," which is the amended income tax return for Helen Remmer, it is Exhibit "E" for identification.

Now if I can refresh your Honor's recollection on that, because this happened several weeks ago. Mr. Mooney was on the stand and he testified that he had prepared amended returns for 1944 for

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

Helen L. Remmer and Elmer F. Remmer, at which point we introduced for identification the Exhibit "E," and he stated that at the time he was a witness before the grand jury Mr. Campbell had the amended 1944 return of Elmer F. Remmer and Mr. Campbell said at that time he had some recollection of that, he would check on it further. Mr. Mooney testified that those two 1944 amended returns had been filed and subsequently he said he was almost positive they had been filed and he was positive that the additional tax called for by those returns had been paid into the Internal Revenue coffers. Now we had no direct answer from Mr. Campbell as to whether he had found such document, but he did subsequently produce Mr. Forrester, the local deputy here, who testified that he had not found any record of the filing of those amended returns. Now on the basis of Mr. Mooney's testimony we offer in evidence defendant's Exhibit "E," which we overlooked at the time offering in evidence and found on reading the transcript we had not, and we also would like to inquire whether Mr. Campbell has located, among his papers, the corresponding amended return for Elmer Remmer.

Mr. Campbell: I will state for the Court I have examined the grand jury minutes and have also refreshed my recollection, and I find that my recollection coincides with that of Mr. Pike and Mr. Thompson, who were also present before the grand jury. Mr. Mooney used before the grand jury the same pencilled written document which he produced here and which has never been in the possession of the government, except during the course of his questioning before the grand jury, when he was questioned about that document. So far as any record, we have found no such document was ever filed with the government of the United States.

Mr. Golden: Well, the testimony of Mr. Mooney, your Honor, appears in several places. First on page 440 of the transcript, the last line of page 439:

> "Q. Now, Mr. Mooney, I hold in my hand defendant's Exhibit E, which I will identify for you as amended return for 1944 for Helen Remmer, made out in pencil, in your handwriting, which you said was a counterpart of identical one for Elmer Remmer. * * *"

And then a little farther down, line 16, the question is asked again:

> "Q. These were filed and collected?
> "A. So far as I know. They might have got lost. The money was paid.
> "Q. But the money was paid?
> "A. Yes, I think I turned the money in on two slips, two credit slips, and the returns were filed two weeks afterwards or maybe a month."

Then, if your Honor will recall, at the time that occurred he testified Mr. Remmer bought the stock in Mr. Mooney's mining company, thereby reducing the amount of the check that he had ready to pay the income tax and stating that he would forward that money in a few days, before the tax was due. You recall Mr. Mooney testified that when he looked it up in the office, he found Mr. Remmer had a credit, so it wasn't necessary to collect that further money from Mr. Remmer, which is certainly sufficient evidence to go to the jury—in fact, it is undisputed, uncontradicted evidence. And also Mr. Forrester is the one who testified, although his records did not show that credit, it was apparent from the records that nothing was done about trying to collect that additional tax from Mr. Remmer, so the evidence is really undisputed there was that credit there, which could only arise if these amended returns had been filed and the money paid, and we think that is ample evidence to place in evidence before the jury Exhibit E.

The Court: Mr. Mooney testified he could not recall whether Mr. Remmer's amended return was filed. I have it under my note on Exhibit E. He was talking about contributions Mr. Remmer had made, something about a 15 per cent contribution, that was in 1944 amended returns for Helen Remmer, Exhibit E.

Mr. Golden: May I read this one sentence here, your Honor. This is Mr. Gillen questioning Mr. Mooney and Mr. Mooney's answer:

"Q. It is true, is it not, that you filed both of these amended returns and that you collected what was due, the additional money that was due, and turned it in on those amended returns and that that created the credit?

"A. Yes, there is a book charge, interest, probably two years in there, 1944."

BLURRED COPY

Of course, we haven't Elmer Remmer's amended return and we are not offering that, but there is in evidence for identification Helen Remmer's amended return and the only purpose of these proceedings is to offer in evidence the exhibit which is already in for identification and which we overlooked offering in evidence on December 6th.

Mr. Campbell: To which we object. That does not purport on its face to be a return ever filed. It was never received by the Collector's office. It purports to be some pencilled writing——

Mr. Golden: Oh yes, this purports to be a copy, not the one that was filed.

Mr. Campbell: Pardon me. The Collector's records do not indicate any amended return for either Helen Remmer or Elmer Remmer was filed for that year. As I said, further at counsel's request, Mr. Mooney made some statement about having been examined on that purported amended return before the grand jury, but examination of the grand jury minutes refreshes my recollection, which was confirmed by Mr. Pike and Mr. Thompson, who were present before the grand jury, that Mr. Mooney produced this document at that time.

The Court: So that he did say the records of the department disclosed no such filing. Doesn't that present a question for the jury—have this exhibit admitted in evidence and it is a question for the jury to determine whether or not that return was ever filed.

Mr. Campbell: That is true if Mr. Mooney's testimony goes to the point that he claims to have filed it.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

The Court: Well, what is his testimony?

Mr. Golden: Start at the bottom of page 439:

"Q. Now, Mr. Mooney, I hold in my hand defendant's Exhibit E, which I will identify for you as amended return for 1944 for Helen Remmer, made out in pencil, in your handwriting, which you said was a counterpart of identical one for Elmer Remmer. It is true, is it not, that you filed both of these amended returns and that you collected what was due, the additional money that was due, and turned it in on those amended returns and that that created the credit?

"A. Yes, there is a book charge, interest, probably two years in there, 1944."

The Court: I think that is sufficient to admit this exhibit.

Mr. Campbell: Yes, if you refer to the answer. The question contains a number of elements, including the filing and whether or not there was a credit. His answer is: "Yes, there is a book charge, interest, probably two years in there, 1944." Certainly that is not a statement that such a return was filed.

The Court: I think it is.

Mr. Campbell: He is answering, as I take it, one element. Pardon me just a moment—I do not find immediately what I was looking for. May I suggest that your Honor defer the ruling on this until we have a further opportunity to examine the record?

BLURRED COPY

The Court: Very well, but I am inclined to admit it. I take Mr. Mooney's testimony to be that this was filed, and if that is his testimony I think it should be admitted and then the question as to whether or not it was filed is a question for the jury.

Mr. Campbell: So your Honor will defer the ruling?

The Court: Yes, I will. So I guess we are ready for the jury now.

[Title of District Court and Cause.]

ARGUMENT RE: EHIBIT 153

Wednesday—January 9, 1952, 10:30 A.M.

(In the absence of the jury.)

Mr. Campbell: Now, if the Court please, your Honor will recall the state of the record, wherein Mr. Kyne was asked as to the ownership of 110 Eddy.

Mr. Gillen: Is Mr. Kyne here? I think it might be well, your Honor, if Mr. Kyne is here.

Mr. Campbell: I do not think his presence in the court room is necessary during the argument.

The Court: I do not think so either.

Mr. Gillen: I only had in mind in other instances the witness involved was present. I thought you might want to do that again.

The Court: Well, we will see if it is necessary to have him in, he may come in; while it is necessary that he remain here.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

Mr. Campbell: He was not excused yesterday. The matter was deferred until this morning.

Mr. Gillen: I believe he intends to be here.

Mr. Campbell: Very well. Your Honor will recall the record as it existed when Mr. Kyne was on the stand. Mr. Kyne was asked as to the ownership of 110 Eddy Street in November of 1945. He stated that he had no personal recollection. First he said he referred to the books and records and then asked as to his own recollection, he said he had none. He was then shown the exhibit, purported to be affidavit executed by him in November of 1945. He was shown the document and asked if it refreshed his recollection as to the situation as it existed then. He stated that that did not refresh his recollection, but that the affidavit, the document which he had signed—he identified his signature, the fact he had sworn to it—spoke the truth of the facts as he knew them at that time, although he had no present recollection. The document was offered in evidence as past recollection recorded.

In that connection I wish first to call your attention to Warden on Criminal Evidence, reading from page 1384 of Vol. II, which is paragraph numbered 803, 11th Edition, 1935 Edition, the heading of Memorandum: (Reads) Now the witness here has testified it did not refresh his recollection, and the text writer, Warden, goes on as follows: "However, in some cases * * *" citing State vs. Easter, 185 Iora, 7 N. W. 748.

Now in Volume III of Warden's Criminal Evidence, also the 11th Edition, paragraph 1276, appearing at page 2143, Warden writes as follows: (Reads) Which is the situation in the record here.

BLURRED COPY

The Court: He did not testify here to the effect that he recalls by means of the memorandums those facts stated, but he did state the affidavit was true.

Mr. Campbell: Yes, he said the affidavit was true and truthfully stated the facts as he knew them at that time.

The Court: Is that in the record?

Mr. Campbell: That is my understanding of the record. Now may I read further from this text?

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Campbell (Continuing): "He may then testify——" It goes on to point out that the rulings are not harmonious as to the admissibility of the record, citing Bates v. Preble, 151 U.S., 149.

The Shoborg case, 264 Federal Reporter at page 1——

The Court: What circuit?

Mr. Campbell: From the 6th Circuit. Reading from page 9: "The court received in evidence * * *"

The Court: Those were reports that were required to be made, weren't they, in the course of their employment?

Mr. Campbell: The particular reports in that case, as I recall, were made by the investors. My recollection is that they were listening in on telephone conversations. This is decision prior to the time of the restriction now placed by the Interstate Communications Act. They were making notes as to the conversations and then summaries of those notes at the end of the day.

Mr. Gillen: Before we lose the thought of those citations, I would like to ask counsel, through the Court, if it isn't a fact that Shoborg disagrees with Bates vs. Preble and says it is the contrary?

Mr. Campbell: Yes, I so read from the Shoborg case.

Now I wish to also refer to the case of Putman vs. Moore, reported in 119 Fed. (2d), at page 246, a 5th Circuit case, in which the decision is written by Judge Foster of that circuit. Reading from page 248: (Reads) "The general rule * * *" Now the transaction involved in that case, concerning which the testimony was sought, was, as I recall, not one required to be kept.

The Court: The effect of that case is that the witness might testify from memorandum.

Mr. Campbell: Even though he has no recollection.

The Court: What does that mean, that he might read it?

Mr. Campbell: He might read it into evidence or it might be read into evidence or received in evidence.

Now some question was also raised on the matter of best evidence and the books. Of course, the best evidence rule is applicable when the contents of a particular document are attempted to be established by evidence of the contents of that particular document when that document is available.

BLURRED COPY

That is not our situation here. Here we are attempting to establish the ultimate fact, the ownership in that particular business.

The Court: I want to get that.

Mr. Campbell: Now in that connection I wish to refer your Honor to the case of in re Ko-Ed Tavern, Inc., which is reported at 129 Fed. (2d), at page 806, an opinion of the Circuit Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit, where one of the issues was as to the ownership of a bankrupt corporation. In that connection the Court, on page 810, states as follows: (Reads) And incidentally Lyon's stock ownership was not denied at any time.

In this connection also I wish to read from a decision by Judge Jerome Frank of the Second Circuit, Hersey v. Swift & Company, 146 Fed. (2d), at page 444, reading from page 445: (Reads) We are not called upon to decide this question.

Now we submit, if the Court please, that in the present state of the record, wherein the witness has testified that, while he has no present recollection and while his recollection is not refreshed by his examination of the affidavit, but that affidavit which was given in 1945 spoke the truth as he then knew the truth, that such affidavit is admissible in evidence here as a past recollection record and that the matter of the best evidence here has no application to the instant situation, and we offer the document in evidence.

The Court: However, from your argument I take it that, assuming that your argument presents the correct view of law, there is a question here as to whether or not the witness may testify from the affidavit or whether the affidavit itself may be admitted in evidence. Now that is a pretty nice distinction, but there is that question.

Mr. Campbell: Well, I take it the better rule is that announced by Warden and which has been followed in federal jurisdictions.

The Court: If we should go on the other theory, that the witness may testify from memorandum, what would that mean, that he could be asked, his attention called to that portion of his memorandum, this affidavit, and be asked to read what that states?

Mr. Campbell: It would be a question, as I take it, the distinction would be whether he would read the affidavit, in effect, to the court and jury, or whether the affidavit itself would be admitted before the Court and jury.

The Court: However, there might be other matters in that affidavit. I haven't it before me or I did not look at it. There may be other matters in that affidavit which would have no bearing on this situation.

Mr. Campbell: As to the ownership.

The Court: If I went along with you on this proposition, I would limit it merely to reading that portion of the affidavit which concerns this one point.

Mr. Campbell: Yes. I think the entire affidavit, if your Honor will examine it, is directed to that one point as to the ownerships and the nature of the ownerships in the business.

BLURRED COPY

The Court: However, have counsel any different ideas?

Mr. Avakian: So I may not be under any misapprehension, it is my understanding, both from what was said this morning and what Mr. Campbell said yesterday, that the affidavit which he is offering is offered not by the way of impeachment by way of testimony of Mr. Kyne, not by way of contradiction of anything already covered, but apparently as a memorandum made in the past, concerning some facts beyond what is already in this record. If I am incorrect on that, counsel should correct me.

The Court: Let us see if we can all agree on it. I understand it relates to a matter of which the witness has no present recollection. He has no present recollection who the owners of 110 Eddy were at this particular time involved.

Mr. Avakian: No, I do not think that is correct. There are two elements involved in this ownership. As to one, he has testified, as to the other, he said the books are the best evidence. Now I presume the questions put to him regarding this affidavit, as to questions which he said he did not now recall, those questions and his answers went to that element to which he said the books were the best evidence as to value of interest which each partner has built up in the business, whereas, insofar as the other element of percentage and share is concerned, we have already had testimony.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

The Court: I would like to get the question from the record.

Mr. Avakian: First of all, I would like to read the testimony on that latter, given by Mr. Kyne on December 17th.

Mr. Campbell: I think we are concerned with matter which occurred here yesterday.

Mr. Avakian: This is part of Mr. Kyne's testimony.

The Court: You may read it.

Mr. Avakian: On December 17th, commencing on page 904 of the transcript, Mr. Campbell asked these questions of Mr. Kyne and Mr. Kyne gave the answers as I will read them. The question related to Mr. Pratt in connection with 110 Eddy:

"Q. Now how long did Mr. Pratt remain interested in the business?

"A. I don't remember. The books should show." Mr. Campbell then obtained the books and there was an identification of those and then he said:

"Q. Now in whose name were the liquor licenses at 110 Eddy Street?

"A. I think they were in my name.

"Q. Over what period of time?

"A. Oh, about a year, I guess.

"Q. What year was that?

"A. I don't know whether it was '42 or '43.

"Q. And in whose name were they after that?

"A. Remmer, Kyne, Cavani and Turner.

"Q. How long did they continue in those names?

"A. Until the place folded.

BLURRED COPY

"Q. When was that?

"A. I believe it was '47.

"Q. What was Turner's first name?

"A. Clarence I think.

"Q. And it is Frank Cavani?

"A. Frank Cavani, yes sir.

"Q. Now during the years 1944, 1945, and 1946 did Cavani and Turner continue throughout that period to be active in the conduct of the business?

"A. Yes sir.

"Q. What were their duties in respect to the business?

"A. I believe that Cavani was there in the day time and Turner used to be there at night time.

"Q. What duties did they perform there?

"A. Manager.

"Q. And what share of the business, if you know, did Cavani have?"

And I call your Honor's attention to the fact he was questioned there as to the share of the business:

"Q. What share of the business, if you know, did Cavani have?

"A. One-fourth.

"Q. And what share of the business did Turner have?

"A. One-fourth."

So that there he is being questioned by Mr. Campbell as to 1944, 1945, and 1946 and when he is questioned as to the share that the partners had there as in 1944, 1945, and 1946, he states directly, in response to a question, if you know, he states directly that Cavani had one-fourth share and Turner had one-fourth share. Now that is a part of Mr. Kyne's testimony in this case and he had no difficulty in stating from present recollection, from personal knowledge, what the shares of the business were.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

Now we come to the questions that Mr. Campbell asked yesterday on further examination. I am reading now, being page 1836 of the transcript, Mr. Campbell's questions and Mr. Kyne's answers:

"Q. Mr. Kyne, with relation to the 110 Eddy Street as of the month of November, 1945, will you state what the interests were in that concern?

"A. Well, the money put into the place was supposed to be met with and then we would be partners."

That is a significant answer to the whole matter here:

"A. Well, the money put into the place was supposed to be met with and then we would be partners.

"Q. Now as of that date, as of the month of November, 1945, who owned the business?"

And after an objection and ruling, the answer:

"A. The books would show that.

"Q. Would you answer my question? I am asking you?

"A. I say the books would show that.

"Q. What was your interest at that time?

"A. The books would show that.

"Q. What is your recollection of your interest?

BLURRED COPY

"A. I forget.

"Q. You do not recall what your interest was then?

"A. No, I don't.

"Q. Did you know at that time what it was?

"A. No, I don't.

"Q. Did you at that time in November of 1945?

"Mr. Gillen: What was the question?"

And Mr. Campbell said: "Did he know in November of 1945 what his interest was, and after an objection Mr. Campbell withdrew that question and said:

"Q. Does this Exhibit 153 for identification, which you identified as being your signature, refresh your recollection in that regard?"

And after discussion between Court and counsel he answered:

"A. It does not refresh my memory.

"Q. Mr. Kyne, will you examine this document. Will you read it through—— "A. I have read it through.

"Q. ——and state whether or not it sets forth the truth as you understood it at the time you made that affidavit?

"A. Yes."

And then after further discussion between Court and counsel, the question was:

"Q. Now will you state at this time your understanding as to the ownership of the business known as 110 Eddy in 1945?"

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

There was an objection by Mr. Gillen and Mr. Campbell said:

"I will withdraw the last question * * *"

So that question was never answered, your Honor, and we never did get the answer as to what his understanding is at this time as to ownership of the business.

"Mr. Campbell: I will withdraw the last question and offer the document in evidence on the basis of the witness' testimony that he does not recollect at this time but that this document states the truth as he knew it at that time, and submit the document to the Court."

Now an examination of the document shows, your Honor, that it contains not one single statement as to the amount in dollars of the interest that had been built up in this business. When Mr. Kyne was questioned as to percentage share, as I read to your Honor, he answered directly what the percentage share was, but then yesterday, after he had stated that these shares were to be paid for by money in the place being met with, then immediately after that—in other words, after the witness was talking about amounts they were to be paid, immediately after that Mr. Campbell started questioning him as to what his interest was in November of 1945.

The Court: What is the question before the Court, the question which it is objected to this exhibit will answer? Is it what is the percentage or what his share is or who the owners are?

BLURRED COPY

Mr. Avakian: My interpretation of it is—has the investment been paid back so that the partners, who are going to buy their shares, have become owners, or have they not yet become owners or partners in the business.

The Court: Let us refer again to the questions yesterday.

Mr. Avakian: Page 1836. You recall this further examination. Mr. Kyne has already been questioned on the shares of the business. This is something additional that comes up after he testified on the shares.

The Court: The question now upon which all this discussion arose yesterday was this: "Now as of that date, November, 1945, who owned the business?" That is the question before the Court.

Mr. Avakian: That's right. Now, your Honor, bearing in mind all that has gone in in this case about arrangement of these partnerships, how the partners were brought into the business, and your Honor will recall that that question was withdrawn——

The Court: Not this question.

Mr. Avakian: But the question just before the offer in evidence.

The Court: This question is still before the Court: "Now as of that date, as of the month of November, 1945, who owned that business."

Mr. Campbell: That was my inquiry that brought this up.

The Court: The court ruled and went on to say the books would show.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

Mr. Avakian: That is where it is referring to the amounts credited to each partner and the books will show whether each partner has built up his equity to the point where he becomes an owner in the assets. There is nothing in this affidavit which states what the amount of interest in it is. The only thing in his affidavit is covered by his direct testimony. That is all he testified to, are the things that are in the affidavit.

Now my point is this, your Honor. Mr. Kyne has already testified as to shares that each of the partners had for the years 1944, 1945 and 1946. If this affidavit is offered to discredit that testimony, to impeach it, the testimony he gave on December 17th, which was direct testimony on the shares of the business and who the partners were, then if it is offered for that purpose, we have a different question as to whether the proper foundation has been laid for impeachment. If it is offered for the purpose of showing whether the partners had by November of 1945 paid for their interests, bearing in mind their interest in the business as distinguished from interest in the profits was to be paid for out of the profits that would come to them in the books, if it is offered for the purpose of showing whether by November, 1945, that interest had been paid for, then this affidavit does not throw any light on that and the books are the best evidence, because they show what has been accumulated in November, 1945.

The Court: Let me say this now—I think I see your point, but yesterday he was asked, "Now as of that date, November, 1945, who owned the business," and he told us he didn't remember, had no recollection.

Mr. Avakian: That is the context, your Honor, of his present answer, that the ownership was to be acquired when the investment had been paid.

The Court: Well, he didn't recollect who the owners were. He said that yesterday.

Mr. Gillen: Your Honor will have to read the preceding question and answer.

Mr. Avakian: And also the preceding testimony as of December 17th as to who owned the shares in the business.

The Court: All right. "Q. Mr. Kyne, with relation to the 110 Eddy Street, as of the month of November, 1945, will you state what the interests were in that concern? A. Well, the money put into the place was supposed to be met with and then we would be partners. Q. Now as of that date, as of the month of November, 1945, who owned the business?"

Mr. Avakian: And he said the books would show that. It is obvious then he is talking about these amounts that had been built up, which would pay for the original investment. If by interest Mr. Campbell meant percentage rather than dollar amount, that has already been answered.

The Court: You want to know as of a certain date, in November, 1945, who owned the business.

Mr. Avakian: Right, and that involves the question of whether the credits had been built up enough to pay for it, and the books are the best evidence of that, as the witness said. Now if there is any uncertainty about what this means, a question of Mr. Kyne on voir dire would clarify as to what he meant.

Mr. Campbell: I submit the question was a very simple one asked of Mr. Kyne. He states he has no present recollection, that that document speaks the truth, and certainly that document answers that question as to who owned the business.

Mr. Avakian: Just a moment. I do not know whether counsel means when he says what the interests were, whether he means percentage or dollar amount. I interpret this as to dollar amount and I think that is clear because as to percentage he has already questioned him and it has been answered and I submit the further questioning refers to the other aspect, namely, dollar amount.

The Court: Now I am speaking about this question and answer. He merely stated he can't recall, he has no recollection of the matter involved in this question. Now, "As of the month of November, 1945, who owned the business?" He answered that, he said he can't recall. That answer itself might not be sufficient to warrant a showing that this witness is hostile.

Mr. Avakian: I do not think they are attempting to show that. I asked if they are trying to impeach and they have not answered that.

The Court: If the showing was or the contention was here, and the Court went along with it, that this was a hostile witness, then this affidavit, of course, could be included.

BLURRED COPY

Mr. Avakian: But we submit, your Honor, the question—are we talking about dollars and cents interest or talking about shares?

The Court: I don't believe counsel is confined to be restricted in his examination of a witness by prior questions he might have asked. Suppose we would eliminate from consideration these other matters that occurred when Mr. Kyne was on the stand before and just take what occurred yesterday. We have a situation there where he was asked as of some time in November, 1945, who owned the business and he said he had no recollection, the books were the best evidence. So that brings us squarely down to this question of law that we argued here this morning.

Mr. Avakian: Well, your Honor, the point is this, as a part of the examination and as the preceding answer, he talked about——

The Court: That is what I am getting at. Are you committed, when you begin the examination of a witness and ask two or three questions and those questions might be said to cover a theory, are you committed to that theory or to that line all the way through your examination of a witness?

Mr. Avakian: No, I do not mean that, your Honor. But if I question a witness on apples and then on oranges and he said, "I don't know anything about oranges," then I produce an affidavit which talks about apples—I have already questioned him about apples and he has answered—what does an affidavit having to do with apples have to bear on the question he says he doesn't know regarding oranges? My point is if the affidavit relates to share of business, it would be a proper question as impeachment. If the question relates to dollars and cents, the affidavit is immaterial; the books show, not the affidavit.

The Court: On the authorities stated, I am going to admit the exhibit.

Mr. Avakian: May we question Mr. Kyne on voir dire as to what he meant?

The Court: I am going to admit it. It is admitted.

Mr. Campbell: May we have a short recess?

Mr. Avakian: May I inquire on voir dire on the affidavit? We would like voir dire examination on it. That is customary practice, I believe.

The Court: I know, but this offer was made yesterday.

Mr. Avakian: And then the witness was withdrawn, and we would like voir dire examination in connection with it. No further question will be put to the witness.

The Court: All right. You may put him on the stand.

Mr. Avakian: For voir dire, and you will reserve ruling until the voir dire?

The Court: Yes, I will reserve ruling until the voir dire.

(Short recess taken at 1:20 a.m.)

OFFER OF PROOF ON CROSS-EXAMINATION OF WITNESS HARKNESS

Thursday, January 10, 1952, 1:00 P.M.

(In the Absence of the Jury.)

The Court: Now an offer of proof on cross-examination is what you propose to make.

Mr. Avakian: That is right; and may I say, your Honor, after that is made, there is an unrelated matter which will take only a moment of your Honor's time, which we would like to mention.

Through the cross-examination of the witness on the stand, we offer to prove, your Honor, these following matters which we believe are proper cross-examination of expert witnesses: First, that in the preparation of the 1946 partnership return of 110 Eddy Street, a deduction for salaries was taken in amount of $22,450, whereas this witness' examination of the books show that the salaries total $27,650. Secondly, we offer to prove through this witness that that difference in amount of $5200——

The Court (Interceding): Let me ask you this—I do not want to interrupt, I don't intend to cut you off—you say that the return shows the matters that you desire to prove by this witness, is that what you mean?

Mr. Avakian: If you will let me finish my offer and see what I am driving at. That difference of $5200 represents salary paid to one Frank Cavani, partner.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

Next we offer to prove through this witness, as an expert tax accountant, that in the preparation of partnership income tax returns, the proper treatment of a salary paid to a partner is to exclude the salary from item designated "14" on the face of the return, Salaries and Wages, but to include that salary payment as distribution of profits for that particular partner in preparing Schedule I on the back of the return.

Further, we offer to prove that if this partnership return were prepared in a proper manner, from the viewpoint of tax accounting, from the figures shown in the books, Schedule I of the partnership return for the year 1946, which I believe is Exhibit 83, instead of showing a profit to Elmer Remmer of $474.86, would show a loss of $825.14; that that same schedule, instead of showing a profit to William Kyne of $474.86, would show a loss to Mr. Kyne of $825.14; that that same schedule, instead of showing a profit to Thomas C. Turner of $474.86, would show a loss to Mr. Turner of $825.14, and that with respect to Mr. Cavani that the schedule, instead of showing a profit of $474.85, would show a profit of $4374.86, and that the reported share of Mr. Remmer on Exhibit 83 actually was an overstatement by the sum of $1199.99, in comparison with what the figure would have been had the proper tax accounting been used in preparing Exhibit 83 from the books and records which this witness analyzed.

Now in connection with that offer of proof, your Honor, I would like to renew my request that your

BLURRED COPY

Honor permit us the scope of cross-examination of an expert in the matter of these tax accounting matters of salary.

The Court: Well, we will take up this offer of proof. As I understand it, this offer of proof does not concern any other matter embraced in the cross-examination. As I understand it is direct. The direct examination had to do, and all had to do, as far as I can see, is to show the source of this Exhibit 163.

Mr. Avakian: That is not all, your Honor.

The Court: Now you could prove these matters if you want to make this witness your own witness.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, this witness will also testify he made examination of these returns. That was direct.

The Court: Very well, but the purpose of this cross-examination, as I understand, is as to the reliability and authenticity of Exhibit 163.

Mr. Avakian: No, that is only part. He was assigned these particular returns for analysis and he testified that he examined these returns and these books. Now that is his testimony.

The Court: Yes, that is true.

Mr. Avakian: This offer of proof relates to his direct testimony that that was what he did.

The Court: Have you anything to say, Mr. Campbell?

Mr. Campbell: Yes, I submit these matters are not within the scope of proper cross-examination. This witness stated he had before him, when he drew this schedule, these figures and returns. Some figures he drew from the books and where the books did not have figures, he took the figures from the returns. That is the entire, and in my opinion, all his testimony. The matters which counsel seeks to adduce, if true, can properly be adduced through his own case and through his own witness.

The Court: The offer will be rejected.

What is the other matter?

Mr. Avakian: When Mr. Schriber was on the stand, he was excused subject to call and the defense reserved the right to recall him and we would like to know if a time could be suggested agreeable to the Court and others to get him back up here.

The Court: That is a matter to take up with counsel and if you can not agree I will hear the matter.

RE: CROSS-EXAMINATION OF EXPERT WITNESSES

Friday, January 11, 1952, 1:00 P.M.

(In the Absence of the Jury.)

The Court: I understand counsel desire to present some matter?

Mr. Gillen: May it please the Court, the matter that we desire to take up with your Honor, the defense is convinced that we are suffering irreparable harm in the case of the defense by reason of the rulings that have been given in regard to so-called expert witnesses.

BLURRED COPY

We are just entering the stage of expert witnesses in this matter. The prosecution has introduced three, four, I guess, members of the office of the Internal Revenue Department. Three of them are accountants and one a certified public accountant and one man—I do not know whether Mr. Mooser was an accountant or agent in the particular type of work he was doing.

Now, may it please the Court, we feel that we have fallen short of appreciation here of the rules in regard to expert witnesses in whatever line they may be called as experts, and it is our opinion that a man who is either a public accountant or who is a certified public accountant more so, is in no different position as an expert in his particular field than a physician and surgeon. Now your Honor knows and must know particularly—I know there were some railroad cases tried here and that experts in the operation of railroads and mechanical matters are called as witnesses, and it is a fundamental rule that a witness may be examined first as to his qualifications, to determine whether or not he can depart from the hearsay rule and give his opinion, and thereafter if he presents testimony gives his conclusions. He may name, for example —I think the best illustration is that of a doctor—a doctor is called upon to examine a man who has been injured. The doctor might relate what he discovers about the man, relating symptoms, some of which may be objective, some subjective. He might, as to both symptoms, give his opinion, what they mean, how they occurred, what might be the prognosis; then as to substantive symptoms, the ones the doctor must rely upon the patient for, the doctor gives his expression and opinion, whether they are sound, whether there is merit to the complaints made, and so on, and then he describes his conclusions as a result of his findings, both subjective and objective, as a rule, and then he describes what mode of treatment should be given and he might also be called upon to give a prognosis as to the man's future. Of course, your Honor realizes that he can then be cross-examined concerning any type of treatment that might be applied. He can be cross-examined as to symptoms that might have been present in the record by reason of testimony of some other expert, a symptom he might overlook, just like a certified public accountant might overlook a notation or particular ledger, and he can be asked if those matters were called to his attention would that in any wise change his opinion or change his conclusions. Or a doctor might be called upon to give expression to his opinion as to whether or not the treatment could be resorted to in another manner and whether or not, in his opinion, that would be better or worse or whether in his opinion that would change the picture from his point of view—the man is an expert —still using as illustration the physician or surgeon, a doctor may sit in the courtroom and listen to testimony of another man on the witness stand and then he might be called and asked on cross-examination, "Did you hear Dr. Jones," for example, "testify and do you agree with what Dr.

BLURRED COPY

Jones said?" He might say, "I agree (or disagree) with Dr. Jones because I found a symptom Dr. Jones did not mention and if Dr. Jones had found that symptom or was cognizant of that symptom, his opinion might be as to what I figured. I would agree if the symptoms Dr. Jones found are true, but I found additional symptoms."

We have an illustration in connection with Mr. Mooser. He stated it was his opinion, from everything he had found that the rent of the 186 Club and various other accounts had been paid in cash. Then comes another expert, in the person of the gentleman who is now presently on the stand, a certified public accountant, and what does he say? He says he found record of running account of payment of rent and utilities by check through the Day-Night Cigar Stand, because the 186 Club did not have a check book and various accounts, including tax and social security payments, were made by check through the Day-Night Cigar Stand, which was debited to the account they carried in their books with the 186 Club.

Now, may it please the Court, it is true, as your Honor said this morning, one witness can not be called upon to pass upon the credence of another witness' testimony, but the fact of the matter is that that is not the rule with regard to experts, because an expert listens to the testimony of another expert and then gives his opinion and conclusion within the realm of his speciality or field. We know it is complete departure from the fundamental hearsay rules and everything else because of the particular skill and experience and so of the expert, and it doesn't make any difference whether it is an account or a doctor or a dentist or even a lawyer, which is probably the most inexact science we can conceive of, but the fact of the matter is that anything that has been gone into the record, that appears in the record, can be put together into a hypothetical question or may be called upon for testimony from an expert from what he has heard another expert testify to and it is perfectly proper for us to probe those things.

Now your Honor has suggested to us from time to time, and particularly with reference to this gentleman and perhaps Mr. Mooser yesterday, you can call him as your own witness. Of course, your Honor knows in the first place we have to preserve a certain status until the conclusion of the prosecution's case, because for obvious reasons, and following your Honor's suggestion, we wouldn't be permitted to examine any witness at all by way of cross-examination, just sit and listen and then call the same or some other witness back to attempt to refute what has been established; something that is left before the jurors, the triers of the fact. It is an impression and if it is left there and no attempt to remove that impression, unless that particular subject, fresh in the minds of everybody, can be fully and completely probed at that time and any refutation be accomplished, it should be accomplished at that time.

We respectfully submit, your Honor, that an accountant who is called upon to examine books should be in no different position than a doctor who is called upon to examine the body of a human being. The accounts sets forth, from what he has examined the symptoms and prescribes or adopts, for substantiation of the opinion that he is going to give, the way the matter should be treated and then he gives his conclusion and result of his examination. Absolutely no different from the doctor.

an altogether different picture for the doctor. So we certainly urge that some consideration should be given to the very nature of these witnesses now —and I assume that we are going to have more— and we be permitted to probe from every possible aspect to determine whether or not they may not have found other things, if other symptoms are present and in that way then the jury is left with a set of facts that can be determined one way or another. We maintain, if the Court please, that this case is based entirely upon circumstantial evidence and your Honor knows when a case is based upon circumstantial evidence, in order for a conviction, then the circumstances must be said that they point only to the guilt of the defendant and not conceivable of any other rational determination. Now certainly if an expert accountant says, "The way I treated it * * *"—of course, here to start an accounts must set up certain ledgers with regard to accounts, so that he may be able to fit them into the picture—sometimes an account is not clear, as indicated here, and he has to set up a ledger, well, I assume this was done because of this reason. It might be wrong and it might be right, but he does the best he can at the time to set up some basis for him to inaugurate his diagnosis of the whole situation, and we feel, your Honor, that any the situation, any the factual situation, that might show alternative assumptions, based on the hypothetical questions or the facts in the case, should be left to the jury, so they may draw their conclusions with all of the other circumstantial evidence in the case, and adopt whatever assumptions they think to be the reasonable theory, or to afford them an opportunity to determine whether or not there is some reasonable doubt in their minds because of the two theories that are equally conceivably the right theory.

BLURRED COPY

We submit that matter to your Honor.

The Court: Let me make an observation. Supposing these exhibits which are summaries—I think those are the exhibits you have in mind.

Mr. Gillen: Together with other evidence, your Honor.

The Court: Suppose those exhibits, of which it might be said they are either deductions or assumptions or expressions of opinion or an expert witness—well, I really think your point is well taken as to that class of material.

Mr. Gillen: That is what we are addressing to your Honor, yes.

Mr. Campbell: I would like to be heard as to those exhibits, however, your Honor. I think if your Honor will recall the evidence, and let us take the last when Mr. Harkness was still on the stand. He was not asked on direct examination for any opinion or conclusion whatsoever. His testimony was entirely elicited.

The Court: I do not want to interrupt, but I want to understand that statement. But the exhibit which was introduced in evidence, pursuant to his direct examination, contained within it assumptions and deductions, not merely extracts or copies or transcripts from records——

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

Mr. Campbell: That wasn't his testimony, your Honor.

The Court: But the exhibits themselves—he arrived at certain items or statements contained in Exhibit 164 that were not copied from the book or records but were the result of some deduction of his, isn't that true?

Mr. Campbell: No, I do not believe that to be the case, your Honor.

The Court: Is that your point, Mr. Gillen?

Mr. Gillen: Your Honor has my thought exactly.

The Court: I do not mean to interrupt, but I want to get started thinking.

Mr. Campbell: As I see the situation and understand the evidence, first as to direct examination—he stated, in response to questions, that this summary had been drawn from specific books which are in evidence and specific records which are in evidence, that these represented the accounts and figures in the books.

Now on cross-examination he was asked if, in addition to the book, if there was anything in the record which also substantiated—this was as to cross-examination—and he said, "Yes, I heard the testimony of Mr. Kyne," and his direct testimony led to the introduction of the document and Mr. Harkness identified that and said the figures in that were drawn from the records which were identified as being in evidence here and did not represent his conclusions or opinions. He did not state whether, in his opinion, those entries were correct.

BLURRED COPY

He did not state in his opinion, as a certified public accountant, except possibly on cross-examination, but not direct examination, he did not state that as an accountant those were improper entries or that the entries were false in any regard. He was simply asked to put into evidence, in a schedule form, that which was contained in the exhibits which have been produced here.

Now your Honor permitted, and has permitted, the fullest and widest latitude in cross-examination as to the sources from which he got that figure, as to the total, where he had total accounts in the books, and that is not a matter of conclusion, it is a matter of mathematics, which can be done by the jury, Court or counsel, as well as by a witness and a witness in this case and in connection with this type of evidence, is only used for convenience and assistance, rather than compelling the jury, or asking the jury, to take the books themselves and make the additions and put them down in the schedules, so that this is in a shorter and more concise form than going through a lengthy ledger.

Now I agree, if we were asking for opinion as to the accuracy of the books, as to the handling of matters on the books, as to classifying of accounts, whether proper or improper, as to entries of partnerships that were set up in there, which are matters of opinion and would be matters of opinion, then I would agree that they were testified as expressions and would be subject to all examination of expressions, but under the circumstances of this case, at this point, these men have not called upon for opinion at this stage, they have only been asked what do those records show as to those accounts, which for convenience have been put on schedules and introduced, and under those circumstances I do not agree with counsel.

Now so far as passing on testimony which counsel pointed out some discrepancy between Mr. Mooser and Mr. Morgan, I submit that is not the case. Mr. Mooser testified he went in and examined the records of the 186 Club, not of the Day-Night Cigar Store. He did not examine those, only the 186 Club. He said their expenses were paid in cash through the Day and Night bank account. Mr. Morgan's testimony is in harmony. He said the 186 Club expenses were paid by check by the Day-Night Cigar Stand and they were reimbursed in cash by the 186 Club, which is substantiation of Mr. Mooser. As a matter of fact, the 186 Club did pay expenses in cash because some they paid to the Day-Night and I presume some they paid direct, but there is no difference there. Nor was Mr. Morgan testifying in the roll or capacity of an expert to pass upon the weight or the credence to be given to any other witness. That is a matter within the province of the jury, as one of the instructions, that they are the sole judges of the weight to be given and the credibility to be given the witness, and I submit, your Honor, that in the orderly procedure of this trial, that your Honor's rulings have been correct under the law, that the cross-examination in the first place must be confined to the scope of direct examination, that unless an opinion is sought and received in evidence, then, and not until then, would the rules which Mr. Gillen refers to as to expert testimony apply. Now take the situation of a doctor which he refers to. Medical testimony, of course——

The Court (Interceding): May I ask a question? Take this summary, 164. The purpose of it is, as you stated, to get into a narrative and easily accessible form the effect or contents of a great many books and records. Not so far as an item in the summary can be traced down to an item in a record, we have no opinion or deduction.

Mr. Campbell: That is my position.

The Court: But suppose there is an item or two here in this summary that he adduces from a fact that there was not something entered at a certain time and something else was carried into it. We have heard of those situations. I am going to ask Mr. Avakian, or any one of counsel, let us get in our minds some of these questions which this court has ruled against you on and let us see if they can be said to come within the category of an opinion. If any of these witnesses in any of these exhibits have an item which is not set forth on the account, but is the result of his opinion of what that account means, or what the item is by some expert knowledge of his or knowledge of accounting, then I think we ought to pursue the same line of cross-examination as to any other witness, so let us look at some of these questions of which counsel seem to feel the ruling should have been otherwise. I would like to hear them and examining them in that light, I am willing to retract and let you go ahead with it.

Mr. Avakian: I can give you two examples, your Honor, if I may have 163. Exhibit 162 is Mr. Harkness' exhibit and he shows, for example, at the end of 1946 certain amounts as capital accounts as per books at December 31, 1946, of the various partners. Now let us bear in mind this, your Honor, as a preliminary statement, that when the witness presents a summary of this kind, he is not only stating these particular items are figures that are found in the book, but he is also stating that these figures represent what the book show as to capital accounts of these partners and that also involves then, your Honor, an analysis of the various entries in these various books to determine what is material and relevant in determination of the amount of the capital account. Now in this particular example that I am using, we find that capital account shown on Exhibit 163 for the partners at the end of 1946 did not include any allocation of profit or loss for the year 1946. Now Mr. Harkness testified that a capital account, to be correct, should include the profit and loss both and it further developed in my cross-examination on January 1st—or maybe the 2nd, but on the following January—an entry was made in the books crediting the 1946 profit, so that from the books themselves he had available the data which would have made a correct figure to enter into this exhibit under his statement of what is correct, so that it would have been proper then to show that, instead of using December 31, 1946, capital account of the partners, the last entry that was made in 1946, he should have included the entries made in the books early the next year to reflect the 1946 profits. Furthermore, your Honor, the books themselves show what the profit or loss for the year was, according to the books, the books that he used.

Now your Honor will remember in connection with my offer of proof I stated in the preparation of the return, whoever prepared the return, overlooked a $5200 salary payment made during the year 1946 to Cavani. Now that payment showed in the books, so had he used the data shown in those books in a different way from the way he used it, he would have come up with a different answer. Now, I wasn't asking him to speculate as to things not in the record. I wasn't asking him to speculate as to things that were not in the very books upon which this exhibit was based. I was simply asking him if, instead of picking out the particular figures from the particular page of these books that he did pick out, had he used other figures that are found in that book and made a proper accounting treatment of those figures—not picking figures out of the air—but making a proper accounting analysis of the figures that were in the books themselves, what answer would he have come up with. That is what was involved in my offer of proof. That, your Honor, is where we disagree with Mr. Campbell, that they are simply summarizing the books.

Now if the books themselves which were used, would support a different answer than the one in the exhibit, we feel we are entitled to show that, so that when the jury decides the facts, if it decides to interpret the facts in this direction, it will know what Mr. Harkness' conclusions would have been as to the amount of capital account. If it decides to interpret this way, it will likewise know what Mr. Harkness' opinion and conclusion was on that interpretation of the facts. That is all we are getting at, your Honor, and I do not think that we should be limited in treating these people as expert witnesses, when in fact they are presenting testimony which represents conclusions on accounting questions, which we can not expect the jury themselves to work out. You might say an expert witness is one who is called for the purpose of putting together for the jury difficult and complex matters, on which the jury has not either the experience or ability to reach completely, questionable conclusions without some assistance.

Mr. Campbell: I would like to answer that. I think Mr. Avakian's statement pretty well answers itself in this record. Mr. Harkness was asked to put on this sheet, and he stated that he had, the capital accounts as shown on the books as of December 31, 1946, and from Mr. Avakian's statement, that is exactly what he put in. He made no adjustment. Mr. Avakian is attempting to argue with him that when he makes this summary, which only purports to be a summary of what the books show, that he should make adjustments as an accountant. He wasn't asked to make adjustments; he was asked to put down what the books show as of that date. I submit if the defense contends that the books should have been adjusted, they are at liberty to produce evidence in that regard, but Mr. Harkness was not asked if in his opinion did these capital accounts correctly reflect the capital of these various individuals, and I have no doubt that counsel would object to that immediately.

The Court: Let me put this thought to you—probably it is crudely expressed—if there is any item of figure in that summary and it has a certain designation and it can not be found in the same designation in one of the records, I would say that the defendant could go into that and treat that as an opinion of an expert?

Mr. Campbell: Yes, sir.

Mr. Avakian: But I recall exactly that situation, your Honor. Page 1966 of the transcript, I was questioning Mr. Harkness on Exhibit 163. Mr. Harkness had an entry in the account of Mr. Kyne of $4985.44, and the last date in the account showing that the balance was May 31, 1945. There were no further entries in the account after that date, yet Mr. Harkness used that figure in Mr. Kyne's capital account as of December 31, 1946, and I asked this question, and I am at line 15, page 1966——

The Court: Don't pass one ruling that you will probably say was correct—I found a ruling in your favor, so you don't want to overlook that.

Mr. Avakian: We appreciate every ruling in our favor. The question was:

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

"Q. Now would you eliminate—and I will give you a sheet of paper if you want to work this out—would you eliminate from Exhibit 163 the item of Wm. E. Kyne, trustee account, $5,985.44, as of December 31, 1946, and tell me what the total of the capital accounts would then be?

"Mr. Campbell: To which I object as not proper cross-examination.

"The Court: Objection sustained.

"Mr. Avakian: Aren't we entitled to see what the result would be if he had not made the assumption he did?

"The Court: That is a matter not within the scope of direct examination. It is a matter of calculation.

"Mr. Avakian: It is a matter of testing what the results would be if he had not made the assumption that he made."

The Court: Stop a moment. Let me look at that please. I don't see how I can go along with you on your contention in regard to that question.

Mr. Avakian: Because, your Honor, he assumed a figure that was entered as of May 31, 1945, represented the balance of that account on December 31, 1946. Now there was no entry as of December 31, 1946. The last entry in the account was May 31, 1945.

The Court: You could ask him on cross-examination, go into the reason why he made that deduction, but to ask him to accept your theory and then figure out the exhibit to suit your theory by it, is a different thing.

BLURRED COPY

Mr. Avakian: That is plain if the evidence would support two interpretations, one that it was still there on December 31, 1946, and the other it wasn't.

The Court: He testified the item was there May 31, 1945, but he said he treated it as if carried all the year through.

Mr. Avakian: A year and a half later.

The Court: And you might inquire as to his reason for so assuming, but to go farther and ask him to accept your theory and work a mathematical problem here to the jury on your theory, I can't see where that is proper.

Mr. Avakian: That is exactly the same as asking a doctor, did you make a certain assumption in your examination of this patient, and he says yes. Maybe the testimony in the record would permit another interpretation which would make that assumption incorrect, then it is proper to say, "Now, Doctor, if you had not made that assumption, what would your diagnosis have been? Would it be any different?" To the extent that the witness has relied upon his experience as an accountant in drawing certain conclusions and to the extent that the jury might properly conclude that his assumption was wrong and something else was true, it is proper to ask the alternative question—if your assumption is wrong and the fact is this way, what would your conclusions be, and then the jury has before it the conclusions of this expert on both alternatives.

The Court: If you have a doctor on the stand and he gives his opinion as to the cause of an injury, you are examining first what he bases that upon, objective or subjective symptoms.

Mr. Campbell: I think it is a matter of common knowledge to all of us, not requiring an expert and not calling for conclusions, that when an accountant leaves open a particular date that then that record shows the balance would be the same, just like our bank accounts. We might make our last deposit in our account on December 15th and our last withdrawal made December 20th, and yet the balance would be the same.

The Court: The question was, what should the doctor prescribe or do for a certain condition or injury. Then you ask him if a certain symptom had not appeared, what would he prescribe for the patient? That is what this amounts to.

Mr. Gillen: May I give your Honor a very familiar illustration that your Honor has probably encountered in railroad cases? A doctor has examined a man injured on the railroad and the doctor will assume or draw his information as to certain symptoms—the man suffered pain down his right leg, and the doctor says, "I assume, because you have no other history of previous injury or anything else, that all this pain comes from this injury" he received on a certain date. Then comes along cross-examination—"Doctor, if you were informed that a year and a half before this man fell off a locomotive and at that time suffered a fractured rib, and so on, would your diagnosis be different?" Of course, that brings into play another symptom that the doctor wasn't aware of or another set of facts that are existing and of course nine times out of ten that will change the doctor's opinion, or in other instances, the doctor will ask questions back and forth and say, "No, I do not think that injury would bring about the symptoms that now appear."

The Court: I agree with you, but I don't think that applies to the ruling shown in line 13, page 1966, of this transcript. I still think the ruling to that question is correct, that ruling beginning on line 13.

Mr. Avakian: The objection, of course, was based on the ground it is not proper cross-examination and it is an assumption which he obviously made, because there is no entry in the book subsequent to that date, so——

The Court: You want the jury to accept your theory and then work out the problem on the basis of your theory?

Mr. Avakian: No, it is not a mathematical question. It isn't asking the witness to accept as true the hypothetical statement. All it is stating is if the facts are accepted as different by the jury, which is to decide the facts, what would your opinion be?

The Court: You are asking the witness to accept your theory and work out a problem?

Mr. Avakian: That is right. That is not binding on anybody.

Mr. Gillen: We did that hypothetically when the doctor gives his opinion from his own findings and then takes this set of facts and decides what his opinion would be under those circumstances.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

The Court: Well, what will we do now, proceed?

We will bring in the jury.

HEARING ON DEFENDANT'S MOTION FOR BILL OF PARTICULARS

Be It Remembered, That the above-entitled matter came on regularly for hearing before the Court at Carson City, Nevada, on Friday, the 15th of June, 1951, the defendant not being present in court but represented by his counsel, John R. Golden, Esq., and the plaintiff being represented by Bruce R. Thompson, Jr., Esq., and Walter M. Campbell, Esq. The following proceedings were had:

Mr. Golden: I have here a memorandum of points and authorities I would like to hand the Court.

This is motion for bill of particulars made under Rule 7(f) of the Rules. At the time of the arraignment, your Honor read the indictment carefully, but may not recall that it simply alleged that as of each year the defendant wilfully, etc., understated his income in a specified amount and failed to pay income tax in a specified amount. There is no detail whatsoever. Now the old form of indictment, before the new rules, had something the appearance of an income tax return to show the income from various sources, that is, earnings, rents, royalties, what not, and it showed the exemptions and deductions and what the government said the income should be. The new form of indictment simply says——

The Court: The defendant is present?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

Mr. Golden: No, he is not.

The Court: Is there any question about the propriety of proceeding here without him?

Mr. Golden: Well, the situation is this—at the time we were here for the arraignment, I asked the Court whether he need to be present and your Honor reserved decision on that and then when I had some correspondence with the clerk regarding a hearing date, I again asked the question and I assumed, I think, from my letter, if I didn't hear to the contrary, he need not be here. So far as we are concerned, we will waive his presence and there never will be any question about raising it, I assure you.

The Court: Any objection on the part of the government?

Mr. Thompson: No, we have no objection.

The Court: Very well.

Mr. Golden: In other words, your Honor, there is nothing in the indictment here to show whether the defendant did not return all his income or whether he overstated his deductions. There is nothing to show the nature, source or amount of any item claimed in the indictment to be increased or decreased or the type deductions, whether allowed or disallowed, and nothing to show whether the income which the government claims the defendant receives is reflected in his books or not, and if not, where it might be reflected. The position is the same as in a civil case. If the plaintiff in a civil case were to sue the defendant for one thousand dollars for goods sold and delivered, the defendant would be entitled to bill of sale, assuming the merchandise was shoes, at such and such a price. That is what we want. We need a bill of particulars in an effort to make this trial run smoothly, to permit us to prepare for trial and, of course, in addition to protect us against second prosecution for the same offense, which could well be had were there not a bill of particulars, because there is nothing to identify these sums of money and the cases, as cited in the memorandum, your Honor, show that under these circumstances we are entitled, as a matter of right, to such a bill.

Now I know we are not entitled to the evidence. We are not asking for evidence. We want to know, for example, whether the government claims that the defendant received in such and such a year such and such income from such and such an enterprise of his. We do not know whether they have a witness who will say that was the money, or another witness who will say, "I made up the books," or "I was told to make an erasure in the books," or something of that sort. We do not care what their evidence is, but we want to know on what they are going to proceed. If the particulars to which we are entitled happened to disclose some evidence, under the case cited under paragraph 5, nevertheless we are entitled to it. Although we are not entitled to evidence, the fact that the information may include evidence, would not preclude us from getting it. I have cited a number of cases, your Honor, in which the courts have held that we are entitled to a bill, and in particular I have set out at length in the memorandum an opinion of a district judge, Judge Reeves of Missouri, in full because I am not sure whether it is shown in the official reports, and commencing on page 3 of the memorandum that sets out very fully an opinion which is typical of the cases.

Now these matters, of course, are in your Honor's discretion. If this defendant were charged with a particular single transaction such, for example, as unlawful extracting gold bullion, then I would say we would not be entitled to a bill of particulars as to the details of the transaction, because he would know those things himself, and there have been cases in which defendants have asked for those particulars in such circumstances. However, in these tax cases there is no case which I have found which does not give the defendant the information which we have asked for in the bill of particulars.

The indictment in the Kelly case, your Honor, is practically word for word like the indictment in this case. The indictment set forth on page 4 of the memorandum, it says: On or about a certain date the defendant did wilfully and knowingly attempt to defeat and evade, and so on, a large portion of the tax by filing with the Collector of Internal Revenue a false and fraudulent return, and so on:

> "* * * wherein he stated that his net income for said calendar year was the sum of $5,017.42 and that the amount of income and victory tax due and owing thereon was the sum of $890.46, whereas, as he then and there well knew, his net income for the said calendar year was the sum of $33,855.33, upon which said net income he owed to the United States of America an income and victory tax of $15,621.72."

Apart from the figures and the years, the indictment is practically the same and Judge Reeves analyzed the authorities exhaustively and closed by saying that:

"The obligation is upon the Government, either in the indictment or by a bill of particulars, to inform the taxpayer concerning the facts employed as a basis for a charge of income tax evasion."

Now I do not know whether your Honor will agree with me or not, but I think that is sufficient for the moment, until we get into the detail of what I believe we are entitled to and your Honor may wish to hear from Mr. Campbell first on the general proposition.

Mr. Campbell: Possibly I should identify myself. My name is Walter M. Campbell, Jr. I am regional counsel, Penal Division, Bureau of Internal Revenue, and I have heretofore been appointed Special Assistant to the United States Attorney to assist in the prosecution of this case and the official appointment has been filed with the clerk of the court.

The Court: I think when we were in court before it was suggested that Mr. Golden and Mr. Pike should confer on certain matters that should or should not be agreed upon. Was there such a conference?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

Mr. Golden: No, your Honor. The chronology of the matter is this. I heard nothing whatsoever—we were here on April 27th and on May 11th I wrote to Mr. Pike and asked him to give me some word as to his intentions.

The Court: I wonder if we could recall—would it show in there what those matters are? I was inclined at that time that I thought the defendant ought to have some of those specified matters and I thought that we could work out by agreement with Mr. Pike. It might be worth while to see what they were. Maybe we could get some kind of understanding on this.

Mr. Campbell: I may state, your Honor, prior to that date we have had a number of conferences relative to these matters, I believe in Mr. Pike's office, shortly before the indictment was returned, and it was my opinion, expressed to Mr. Pike, that we should have an order of the Court, because we did not believe that what we would voluntarily supply to Mr. Golden would probably satisfy him, as I told Mr. Golden orally the other day.

The Court: Perhaps we could be in this situation—could you state at this time the extent of the matters which you would not object to if the Court made an order?

Mr. Campbell: Well, we are in this position, your Honor—as Mr. Golden is aware, the government's case here is what is termed a net worth case. The income which the government alleged was received by the defendant, net income and not reported, is represented by actual figures and net worth, comparing his assets at their cost at the beginning of the year and the assets held at the end of the year at their cost and excluding non-income sources. In support of that, of course, the defendant had various enterprises, some of which had books and records and some of which we have found no books and records. To disclose the exact nature of the government's case; that is, to provide a net worth statement, would, of course, disclose evidence which does support the government's case.

Now all of the requests of the defendant, in his motion for bill of particulars goes to pertinent facts, with the ex-deductions. Of course, they are not applicable, I believe, in a net worth case, because all expenditures have already been eliminated during the course of the year when the net worth of the defendant was ascertained at the end of the year, with the exception of outstanding liabilities which, of course, must be given weight.

I might add this statement, your Honor. During the course of these many conferences we had offered, prior to the indictment, to make available to the defense a copy of the government's income statement, if the defense would also supply the government with a net worth statement and the defense's position was that they were unable to do so because of accounting difficulties and lack of funds, I believe, with which to complete their accounting. Of course, the matter of granting or refusing bill of particulars is undoubtedly within the discretion of the Court and the extent to which a bill of particulars will be given is within the discretion of the Court. However, we feel that many of the requests made here, in view of the nature of the government's case, are not requests which can be met, because they are not applicable to the theory of the government's case, which is that of net worth case, and which is almost always the situation where inadequate books and records were maintained or made available to the government.

I do not think there is merit in Mr. Golden's point of the possibility of the defendant being placed a second time in jeopardy on the same charges. The gravamen of the offense in each count is that for a certain calendar year he attempted to defeat and evade a large part of his income tax. The decisions, of course, hold that the government need not prove a specific amount set forth in the indictment, so long as a substantial amount of understated income is proved a combination, so we think under such an amount as here would bar any further prosecutions with respect to his income tax for that particular year.

Now, of course, we will provide to the defendant whatever the Court deems proper should be given to him. However, these are all matters which are, of course, peculiarly within the knowledge of the defendant, who knows more about his income and sources of his income than any one else. The leading court case, of course, on the matter of the court's discretion, is that of Wong Tai vs. United States, reported in 273 U. S., page 77, and particularly from page 82, wherein it is stated:

BLURRED COPY

"The application for bill of particulars was one addressed to the sound discretion of the court, and, there being no abuse of this discretion, its action thereon should not be disturbed."

Now I am familiar with the opinion by Judge Reeves, which is cited in the memorandum of points and authorities. However, the tendency in the district courts here in the Ninth Circuit, so far as I have observed, and I have personally participated in all of these cases in the Northern District of California, has been where the taxes involved are those of the defendant or of the entity of which he is a party, that request for those particulars have been denied. Of course, however, there are no written opinions by the various judges on that subject and, as I say, it is a matter solely within the discretion of the Court.

The Court: Mr. Golden?

Mr. Golden: Your Honor, regardless of any possibility of double jeopardy, the other main reason for the bill of particulars is so the defendant can prepare his case.

Now Mr. Campbell has told your Honor that this is a net worth case, that the defendant has a number of enterprises, that there are books for some of them and not books for others, and at the same time he says these matters are peculiarly within the defendant's knowledge. Now that is not consistent. The defendant can't know, for example, if the government says in the beginning of 1944, the first count of the indictment, which is the year

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

1944, the defendant returned an income of $9500, when he should have returned an income of 33 thousand plus, now that does not tell the defendant anything. The government may say at the beginning of 1944 his net worth was zero or a million dollars or any other amount and at the end of 1944 it was a number of $33,934.61 more than that. It doesn't give him anything to go on at all, and we say we are entitled to know, if he has a net worth case, what net worths they are using. That is not divulging any evidence. We want to know what net worth they use for the start of the period. We want to know what the items are which make up that net worth. We want to know what acquisitions or receivables there were of each year which the government claims increased the net worth or constituted income. For example, if they say this man received ten thousand dollars from Cal-Neva or the Menlo Club in San Francisco, that isn't divulging any evidence. That is just telling us what they are going to try to prove. It may be if he is prepared that he can show that ten thousand dollars received from Cal-Neva was not income, but was a loan or repayment of debt, or whatever it may be. In other words, if we come in here the way this stands and went to trial tomorrow, we wouldn't have the remotest idea. As Mr. Campbell knows, this defendant has been connected with a number of different enterprises; the government has most of his records. They have permitted us to look at them at the government premises and we have, to some extent, looked at them, but by telling you it is a net worth case, he tells you that they are not relying upon those records.

As far as the offer to exchange net worth statements is concerned, that is not material here. There were reasons why we could not accept that offer, and furthermore, the government would not be bound by any such offer made to us unless by any such statement he could say it was given to us in response for a demand for bill of particulars and even then they can at any time amend their bill of particulars any time before the trial at least, if not during the trial.

If I may respectfully suggest so, your Honor, I think your Honor is absolutely right in stating that we are entitled to something in the face of this indictment. I think we ought to get down to brass tacks, as the saying is, and see just what it is your Honor is prepared to order that we receive. We take up the demands one at a time——

The Court (Interceding): You made a statement here in repeating Mr. Campbell's statement, the government is not relying upon the records. It would follow from that that if a bill of particulars was given, there is a question whether it would be almost impossible to give that statement without disclosing evidence.

Mr. Golden: I do not think so, your Honor. For example, this is what I had in mind and slipped my mind a minute ago. In the civil assessment made against this defendant by the government for these same years, one of the bases for those assessments is that he considered certain enterprises to be partnerships and the government says they are not partnerships. Now that is in a civil matter. In this criminal matter, we have been told officially in conferences that that is not any part of the basis of the criminal case, that the criminal case is simply on a net worth case, and we are absolutely in the dark as to any of the things which the government might claim here. They do not have to tell us the evidence to give us the net worth, they only have to tell us what was the result of their evidence would be.

The Court: Let me make this observation. In Count 1 of the indictment it is charged that the reported net income was $9500.

Mr. Golden: Yes, your Honor.

The Court: I would take it that that is what the books disclosed and was the actual report made in the return and perhaps supported by the books, but in view of the statement made by Mr. Campbell, and in view of your repetition of that statement, that the government is relying upon matters not in the books, to disclose any facts concerning that couldn't be done without disclosing the evidence.

Mr. Golden: Yet if your Honor will look at this Kelly decision of Judge Reeves, the same thing arose. At the bottom of page 7, your Honor, the court states what the government's memorandum was in that case. It says (Paragraph 3, line 23):

"* * * it is to be noted from the briefs of counsel for the government that:

" 'The defendant was engaged not only in the liquor and grocery business, but also in farming activities, real estate speculation, and rental of real estate. The defendant failed to present accurate and complete books and records covering all of these business activities for inspection by examining officers of the Bureau of Internal Revenue at the time of their investigation of the defendant's returns for the years involved. Due to the incompleteness of the defendant's books of accounting and records regarding all of these business activities, the examining officers, pursuant to Section 41 of the Internal Revenue Code, to determine the taxable income of the defendant for the years covered by the indictment, were compelled to resort to the records of various banks in which the defendant had made deposits, or had otherwise transacted business, plus expenditures evidenced by his returns or acknowledged by him.'"

BLURRED COPY

That is what the government said in that case. Then the Court says:

"It was of course proper for the government to obtain information in this way and the courts have upheld such procedure and, as noted, the evidence thus obtained is competent. However, this is information that may or may not have been available to the defendant. Apparently his books did not disclose these facts. Under such circumstances and from an examination of all of the authorities the obligation is upon the government, either in the indictment or by a bill of particulars, to inform the defendant concerning the facts employed by it as a basis for a charge that defendant had evaded or attempted to evade his income tax."

Now I say very sincerely, your Honor, we are not asking them to tell us who their witnesses are going to be or what they are going to testify to or what documents they are going to bring in here. All we are asking them to tell us is what they expect and hope to prove as the net result of all the testimony; namely, started out with such and such net worth, composed of such and such items on the cost basis, as Mr. Campbell says, and during the years in question he accumulated income at such and such time from such and such places and such and such amounts, giving him a resulting higher net worth. That is all we are asking for and that does not give us any inkling as to how they are going to prove it. If they say they are going to show in the year 1944 he got a check from Cal-Neva for ten thousand dollars, that doesn't tell us what man is going to come in here and testify against him or what they are going to claim that the prosecution—I don't mean that exactly—let me put it this way—suppose we knew they were going to claim a ten thousand dollar receipt and suppose we built up a defense explanation for it and they had something that would knock that explanation out, they do not have to tell us that, but they do have to tell us what we have to meet. That is our position.

The Court: In Judge Reeves' decision I notice this, Judge Reeves' opinion:

BLURRED COPY

> "Due to the incompleteness of the defendant's books of accounting and records regarding all of these business activities, the examining officers, pursuant to Section 41 of the Internal Revenue Code, to determine the taxable income of the defendant for the years covered by the indictment, were compelled to resort to the records of various banks in which the defendant had made deposits or had otherwise transacted business, plus expenditures evidenced by his returns or acknowledged by him."

Now that was the statement from the brief of government's counsel. The Court goes on to say:

> "It was, of course, proper for the government to obtain information in this way and the courts have upheld such procedure, and, as noted, the evidence thus obtained is competent. However, this is information that may or may not have been available to the defendant."

I can not understand that reasoning. If a man makes a deposit in the bank he would know it.

Mr. Golden: Yes, if he made it himself and somebody did not make it for his account. But suppose a man is passing through and stops in a bank and breaks a thousand dollar bill because he does not want the government to know he has a thousand dollar bill and five years later he is indicted and the government is going to bring in a witness to testify to that transaction. We do not want to know that, that would be evidence, but we do want to know what they claim is his income and the deductions.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

The Court: The thought I have in mind is it would be impossible to order a bill of particulars here which would not include within its contents evidence. The motion for bill of particulars is denied and the state of the record is that the defendant has heretofore entered a plea of not guilty to all the counts in the indictment, is that correct?

Mr. Golden: Yes, your Honor.

The Court: And the case is set for trial in this court November 7, 1951.

[Title of District Court and Cause.]

ARGUMENT RE: EXHIBIT 176

Monday, January 28, 1952, 3:15 P.M.

(In the Absence of the Jury.)

Defendant present with counsel.

The Court: I understand you desire to take something up.

Mr. Golden: We requested that your Honor take the bench in the absence of the jury. Inasmuch as the jury was already outside for the usual recess, I thought this might be an opportune time to discuss this matter.

Now we are handicapped, in a sense, your Honor, because, of course, we do not know what the witness on the stand, Mr. Weaver, would say in connection with these checks which are marked for identification No. 176, and in that sense we may be premature, but so long as the jury is out, I would like to call this to the Court's attention.

At Mr. Campbell's request, we were handed just now by the clerk certain—at least, one letter from a medical man, which apparently was filed here with the clerk on the 21st of January, and also a second letter from that same doctor, this Earl I. Laskey, a doctor in Beverly Hills, California, and also an original and carbon undated letter, apparently written by F. C. Stewart, Medical Director, who signs himself as Medical Officer in Charge of Public Security Agency, Public Health Service, in Los Angeles, California. Now we assume, your Honor, that the purpose of showing us these certificates from these doctors is to attempt to lay some sort of foundation for admission of hearsay testimony, consisting apparently of a conversation between the man Villaudy, who is named in the certificates, and the witness Mr. Weaver.

Now all that we actually know about the matter is that during the two weeks' recess we read in the newspapers that Mr. Campbell had stated that he had had this Mr. Villaudy examined by a government doctor and that the representations of Mr. Villaudy and his doctor that he was in ill health and unable to attend the trial in Carson City were groundless and just an excuse and that he was going to be subpoenaed as a witness. I say we read that in the newspaper. Now we find that the medical director of the Public Health Service apparently agrees with Mr. Villaudy's own doctor, to the effect it would be detrimental to Mr. Villaudy to come to Carson City at this time.

Now the rules provide a recognized procedure by way of depositions for taking of the testimony of a witness who is unable to attend or prevented from attending a trial at the hearing, Rule 15, your Honor. My suggestion is that we might here, in the absence of the jury—if this meets with your Honor's approval—what this hearsay testimony which is proposed consists of and it may well be that we would stipulate to the facts in that regard.

Now I call your Honor's attention that the three checks which have been marked Exhibit 176 for identification, the first check, chronologically, is dated May 13, 1943, in the sum of two thousand dollars, apparently written on the account of Albert Villaudy, payable to the order of the First National Bank of Nevada. There is nothing on it whatsoever to connect it with this defendant or this case and the only way it could be connected, in the absence of Villaudy, would be by hearsay testimony. The other two checks, one September 6, 1944, in the sum of $2,600, and one January 8, 1945, for the sum of two thousand dollars, are made payable to the defendant Elmer Remmer and one of them is endorsed with that name and with Mr. Maundrell's name and the other is endorsed with the defendant Remmer's and another name, I can't read—looks like F. W. Guiss. In any case, particularly in regard to the first check, it could only be connected up by hearsay and we do not think there is sufficient showing to produce some letters, the first of which is dated the 17th of January and the second the 21st of January and the third the 25th of January, to the effect that this witness can't come here without giving us an opportunity to determine that ourselves and the effect would be, of course, to deprive us of the right of cross-examination as to these checks.

Now as I say, in a sense it is premature. There is nothing offered yet, but it is reasonable to suppose that the purpose of showing the letters from the doctors and introducing these checks for identification is to ask Mr. Weaver some questions about them, and it would be hearsay. Now we might stipulate to these checks if we find out what the contention of the government is and that is why we suggested we might take it up in the absence of the jury.

Mr. Campbell: I don't know what appeared in the papers. I might state we haven't had the newspapers down here for the time counsel referred to. The fact is the subpoena was issued for the presence of Mr. Villaudy and in response to that subpoena his attorney in Beverly Hills telephoned me and advised me that he was that day forwarding a certificate to the clerk of the court, which in due course was received by Mr. Pratt. After that had been received, I made the request, through his attorney, that he be examined by the doctor of the Public Health Service and he was so examined. The conclusion of both doctors is that Mr. Villaudy is too ill to appear, suffering from a large variety of ailments, including heart trouble and acute gout and arthritis, high blood pressure, shortness of breath, and other disabling ailments. I do not intend to take the time of the Court in requesting that the proceedings be had under the rule to suspend the trial while deposition is taken from this man. The evidence has heretofore shown that Mr. Remmer was charged on the books of Cal-Neva with certain monies which he advanced to Mr. Villaudy. We have here certain checks—of course, it is hearsay—which Mr. Weaver identified as having been paid on account of that loan. Now they have not been offered in evidence. If the objection is made that they are hearsay, of course, the objection is good. However, for what they are worth, we have produced these and are advising the Court that we have advised counsel of these letters, which I ask to leave with the clerk as to Mr. Villaudy's condition. That is the government's position.

Mr. Golden: Well, our position is this, if your Honor please—an article appeared in the press from some source, not from us, that this Mr. Villaudy was faking and pretending he was unable to come here. Now that didn't come from us. Now we don't say who it came from, but those things do not help the defendant any in a case like this. Now afterward it would appear from the fact from what Mr. Campbell states and from the dates of these letters, that no effort was made to subpoena the proposed witness until some time this month, and this case started in November.

We are prepared to do this, your Honor. We are prepared to stipulate that the two checks which are payable to the order of Elmer Remmer on their face may, by stipulation, go into evidence as representing repayments to the extent of the amounts of the checks and on the dates that they bear on this eight thousand dollar total amount of loans which Mr. Campbell has mentioned. However, in respect to the first check, which is payable to the First National Bank of Nevada and in no place appears anything pertaining to the charge here, we object to that on the basis it is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial. We are perfectly willing to take at their face value the two checks which bear the defendant's name.

Mr. Campbell: We will accept the stipulation.

The Court: Very well.

Mr. Golden: Then there will be no testimony by Mr. Weaver as to any conversation he had with Mr. Villaudy.

Mr. Campbell: No, none whatever.

The Court: That ends all question as to any possibility of deposition.

Mr. Golden: Yes, your Honor.

The Court: Let me ask as part of the information for the Court, I do not understand a deposition could be taken of government witnesses. If you notice this Rule 15 (reads rule).

Mr. Golden: Yes, I notice that, your Honor. Of course, the next subsection (b) says the party desiring to take the deposition——

The Court: Then the stipulation takes care of the whole situation.

Mr. Campbell: I do not understand there is any manner in which the government could take the deposition.

The Court: No, I wouldn't think so.

Mr. Golden: Unless we are willing to stipulate.

Mr. Campbell: May I ask the certificates of Dr. Laskey and Mr. Stewart, the medical director, be placed in the official files.

Mr. Golden: May these checks be separated and the one which we have not stipulated to be removed from the exhibit?

The Court: Yes, sir.

Mr. Campbell: May they be given a number, 176A for identification?

The Court: And Exhibit 176 will be admitted in evidence and will express the two checks mentioned by Mr. Golden.

Mr. Campbell: My understanding of the stipulation, so we may repeat it in the presence of the jury, is that it be stipulated that these two checks represent repayments by Mr. Villaudy on account of his loan in the amounts and upon the dates stated.

Mr. Golden: That is correct, your Honor.

The Court: Are we ready for the jury?

A. Yes.

ARGUMENT RE: HYPOTHETICAL QUESTION

Tuesday, January 29, 1952, 2:00 P.M.

(In the absence of the jury.)

Defendant present with counsel.

The Court: In view of the fact that the jury is not present, we can open the whole question as to all the objections proposed by counsel.

Mr. Avakian: May I suggest, your Honor, you might follow my argument more specifically if you have before you prosecution's Exhibit 165, which is the net worth statement of the Menlo Club presented by this witness.

The Court: I think we ought to hear from Mr. Campbell on his objection.

Mr. Campbell: As well as I can with the question in mind, which contained a great many elements—I will ask counsel if he has prepared written copies of the question. Usually in a long hypothetical question, the question is handed in written form to the witness, in order that he may have it.

BLURRED COPY

The Court: I think my notes will help me somewhat here.

Mr. Avakian: Perhaps in the absence of the jury I could put this chart on the blackboard.

The Court: Then you would have to take it off again in the event it is not admitted.

Mr. Avakian: I would be very happy to do that too.

The Court: There is another point that occurred to me, whether or not this is a question which goes to an ultimate point that might have to be submitted to the jury. I do not think that we should have witnesses here deciding the case for the jury. That is the point that I have in mind.

Mr. Campbell: Now Mr. Avakian's propounded question is based upon the supposition that various individuals—he gives them names but in his question refers to them by letters—entered into a partnership in a business purchased by one of the individuals named for 175 thousand dollars on May 1, 1945. Now the evidence in the case shows that any agreements which were drawn were drawn in November of 1946.

Mr. Avakian: May I inject—I did not refer to written agreement.

Mr. Campbell: The evidence further shows that one of the individuals, Mr. Kyne, was in the service in May of 1945 and did not learn apparently of either the acquisition of the business, and specifically as to any share which he might have in it, until his return from the service, by his testimony, when he was given this written document, copies of which are here in evidence.

The question purports to interpret the documents relative to the acquisition of the lease and premises from Mr. Schriber in the name of the witness Billington, as to what was purchased for the 175 thousand dollars, and is further predicated upon facts which are not here in evidence, in that the question postulates the proposition that a capital account was opened in the name of Remmer, crediting him with 175 thousand dollars. The question goes directly, not only in these respects but in other respects, into matters which must be determined, issues which must be determined, by the jury, and attempts to supply an answer based on counsel's theory to those issues.

I wish further to make the point—I do not have all the elements which were contained in that question, aside from those to which I have referred—his reference to the fact that the agreement provides that Remmer was to withdraw 175 thousand dollars before the others were to participate, and relative to the setting up of this capital account.

Now my objection goes further, that is, it is not within the scope of the direct examination. This witness was not asked the hypothetical question, nor was he asked to give an opinion as an expert witness on any such matters, and I submit it would not be a proper scope for cross-examination, even though it were a proper subject to inquire into or a proper opinion to seek from an expert called as his own witness.

On the other hand, we are here to determine certain specific matters. This man was called and was asked on direct examination, not as to opinion based upon the findings by others, but what his specific examination, for example, of the Menlo Club, to which counsel has made reference, to what he found in the books and records which are here in evidence. Government's Exhibit 165 is, and purports to be and so testified to be, figures which were drawn from the books here in evidence. The capital accounts at the bottom of the page, and to which I believe counsel was referring, were denominated and were testified to be the capital accounts as shown by the books. The rules with respect, the law with respect, to cross-examination of expert witnesses is generally covered in Corpus Juris Secondum, Vol. 32, which I have before me, and which is embraced in paragraphs 549 and following. That——

The Court: You had better give me the page number.

Mr. Campbell: Yes, the page number is page 342 of Vol. 32, continues for a number of pages.

Now the article deals first with where an expert is called, skilled or expert witness, by one side or the other and asked in his direct examination to give an opinion from the facts stated to him, which facts must be in evidence before the Court, although the selection of the facts, if reasonable, can be consistent with the theory of the party that is calling. We are not here faced with that situation, however. Mr. Weaver was not asked for opinions on his direct examination, but was requested to, and did, testify in these matters as to specific entries in the books and records which are here in evidence. He was not asked to give interpretations of partnership agreements or what rights were created under those agreements, either present or future rights, which this question would contemplate and which are a matter not of legal interpretation, but instruction of the court and finally a factual determination by the jury in this case, under the instructions given by the Court.

I submit, your Honor, that upon cross-examination that it is improper for counsel to propound a question of this kind. I do not believe that if the witness were his own witness, the question itself would meet the requirements that all of the elements of the question be in the record, and if it would not meet the requirements upon a direct examination of his own witness, it certainly would not meet the qualifications required under cross-examination, even though it were within the scope of the direct examination, which this question is not.

Upon those grounds, we submit that the hypothetical question, in its present form, is improper, both on the grounds that it includes elements which are not in evidence, includes elements which call for an invasion of the province of the Court and of the jury, the interpretation of legal matters and determination of issues in this case, and finally that it is not within the scope of the direct examination of this witness.

I do wish to call the Court's attention to one other thing. Referring to the agreements, which are in evidence, specifically plaintiff's Exhibit 130, which purports to be one of the partnership agreements as to the Menlo Club, this particular one being between Elmer Remmer and Harold H. Maundrell. This agreement is dated and reads: "Made and entered into this 4th day of November, 1946," and it nowhere purports to be even a recitation of a prior agreement, oral or otherwise, entered into by the parties as of May 1, 1945, as assumed by the question. It is true the agreement recites that this agreement entered into November 4th, or the assignment set forth there, shall be effective as of May 1, 1945, but the question assumes that an agreement was entered into on May 1, 1945, which is contrary to the evidence in this case.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, first of all may I respectfully disagree with Mr. Campbell's statement that on direct examination this witness was not expressing opinions, but was simply eliciting evidence that he had extracted from exhibits in the testimony, and if you will refer, your Honor, to Exhibit 165, I can call your attention to the particular things which represented, not extracts from testimony, but rather the results of Mr. Weaver's accounting analysis, with the result that he came up with things which were not covered by any previous testimony or by any other exhibit.

Let us take, for example, the item which is on the 10th line of the assets: "Improvements in 1945. Exhibit 133K $920" and "Improvements in 1946, Exhibits 134-135 and 136, $2,355.16." The exhibits that are referred to there, your Honor, go to the checks which show the expenditures for these particular amounts, and in the books of the Menlo Club these expenditures were deducted as current expenses. Mr. Weaver, in preparing Exhibit 165, determined that those should not be treated as current business expenses, but rather should be treated as capital items and so he capitalized them and set them up as assets. Now there is no other evidence, besides Mr. Weaver's testimony, that those were capital assets. The books do not treat them as capital assets. Mr. Weaver, as an expert accountant, based upon his own opinion and judgment as an accountant, determined that these should be treated as capital assets. Now that, your Honor, is not extracting a figure from an exhibit and putting it in a summary. That rather is a conclusion reached by him in his capacity as an expert.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

Then let me go down farther, your Honor. Under liabilities there is the matter of reserve for depreciation. Now there is nothing in the books, or in other evidence, that contains any of those figures or that item, your Honor. That represents Mr. Weaver's judgment as an accountant, that on the facts which have come into this case, the particular expenditures, which were treated as current expenses, should be capitalized and reserve for depreciation should be set up in respect thereto. Those are two items in which he exercises judgment as an expert.

BLURRED COPY

Let me go on, your Honor. He listed as an asset of the Menlo Club partnership——

The Court: Suppose you could find four or five more of the same example, I can't see why the mere presence of those—my question is, they are computations which I think he stated were put there through his understanding of proper accounting practice, how they could at all be the basis for a hypothetical question that would refute in total what purports to be a considerable quantity of evidence and present the question which is one of the questions which the jury in this case will have to answer.

Mr. Avakian: I do not think the question of intent to evade would be any ultimate question the jury would have to answer. The jury would have to answer the ultimate question of what was correct accounting of this taxpayer and what was the correct tax liability based on that income. The questions I asked of this witness are, under correct accounting practice, under this set of facts I have stated to him, what would be the proper accounting treatment of certain items I am going to ask him about, certain things that occurred. Now I made my first statement prior, your Honor, on this matter in answer to Mr. Campbell's statement that Mr. Weaver was not exercising his own judgment in his examination or in his exhibit, but simply extracting figures. Perhaps I should make this statement of the matter under which I consider this is proper. I am quoting now from Wigmore, Third Edition, Vol. II, Sections 682 and 684. I will read them in that order; Section 682, which deals with hypothetical questions of witnesses says: (Reads section.) And Section 6846, headed, "Hypothetical Questions on Cross-Examination," reads as follows: (Reads.) My understanding of that, your Honor—and that is taken from Wigmore, but that is my understanding the uniform rule of application in questioning witnesses.

The Court: Will you read that statement again.

Mr. Avakian: (Reads.)

The Court: All right—judgment of germane matters, on matters germane to the direct examination.

Mr. Avakian: That is right, your Honor.

The Court: Now he hasn't answered any question on direct examination which could be considered an opinion as to the effect of a considerable quantity of this evidence.

Mr. Avakian: Yes, your Honor he has, and may I explain it in this way. I think we all recognize that the hypothetical question which I asked, and which if the Court permits me I intend to chart on the board, relates to the Menlo Club. Mr. Weaver presented an exhibit which purports to be a net worth statement——

The Court (Interceding): If you want to ask some hypothetical question that had some relation to the matters which we see in Exhibit 165 of accounting opinions or deductions, it certainly would be within the scope of the direct examination and it would not in any manner invade the province of the Court or the jury.

BLURRED COPY

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, that is what I want to do. I only ask this indulgence, that the Court give me some liberality in analyzing and selecting here of my questions and to indicate to the Court, in the absence of the jury. One of the things I want to get at, which relates primarily to this exhibit and which represents my contention that this exhibit which he prepared is not correct accounting practice is this item he showed as asset of the Menlo Club, the partnership, 175 thousand dollars as the cost of it. Now the books of the Menlo Club show a liability against that asset, depending on which of the two sheets are taken, either 100 thousand or 125 thousand at the end of 1945.

The Court: An answer to this question would not be proper.

Mr. Avakian: What I am trying to do is to explain the subject I am going into, so you will understand what I am going into is germane. The witness testified that notwithstanding the fact that the books of the Menlo Club did show that liability, he omitted the liability from Exhibit 165 on instruction of Mr. Campbell, and he specifically stated that an accounting justification for omitting the liability was that the transaction with Mr. Schriber, by which that liability with Mr. Schriber was incurred, was a transaction personal to Mr. Remmer and not a transaction to the Menlo Club. Now, your Honor, I believe if I am permitted to ask this witness a series of questions, upon which I want to be heard, that he will answer under proper accounting practice if one of the partners individually has assumed a liability for an asset which he contributes to a partnership, and if that asset then is treated as a partnership asset in the partnership balance sheet, a corresponding entry should be made, crediting the capital account of the partner who had personally purchased the asset and was contributing to the partnership. In other words, what I want to show through this witness is that, having determined, as an expert, that he should eliminate from his partnership net worth statement a liability shown on the books that it was a private liability of one partner, he should then be consistent and make a corresponding adjustment in the capital account of the partner whom he considers having the personal liability, to give that partner credit for having contributed the asset to the cost.

Now it is fundamental, you might say, in accounting that one entry calls for a counter entry. You cannot give the partnership credit for an assist without showing something in the liability side somewhere. Now the books show the liability as a partnership liability. Mr. Weaver says, "No, I conclude"—or at least Mr. Campbell concludes—"that that was a personal liability to the partner, not partnership liability, so I am eliminating it." All right, your Honor. It is eliminated, but if, as a matter of proper accounting, the elimination of that liability as a partnership liability, would call for including a corresponding adjustment to a capital account, then wouldn't it be proper to show that?

The Court: Have you inquired of the witness on cross-examination as to whether or not that should have been considered as a credit to Mr. Remmer?

BLURRED COPY

Mr. Avakian: To his capital account?

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Avakian: That was the very question that I put to him?

The Court: Can't you do that with a hypothetical question?

Mr. Avakian: No, we cannot, for this reason—the question is meaningless except in a context of facts, so we have to set up a factual factor. In this hypothetical assumption I have made, I am assuming the same thing that Mr. Weaver and Mr. Campbell assumed, namely, that Mr. Remmer, through a personal transaction with Mr. Schriber purchased the club. All I want to show is this, by this particular question, that if Mr. Weaver was correct in assuming that liability to Schriber was not a partnership liability, but Mr. Remmer's personal liability, then he should have made another adjustment in preparing this net worth statement. Your Honor will recall that I tried to go into this on voir dire at the time this was offered and the objection was made to it that those questions as to that matter were not proper voir dire, and I would like to read a few of the statements——

The Court (Interceding): I think it would be proper cross-examination.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor said it would be proper cross-examination and you would allow——

The Court: But I do not think this is right.

Mr. Avakian: On page 2986 it says—as to whether hypothetical question is proper, I call your Honor's attention again to Wigmore, the statement that it is proper in cross-examination of one who takes the stand as a skilled witness to test his judgment upon germane matters.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

The Court: Take this question as a whole, sum it all up, it doesn't amount to a germane matter brought out on direct examination.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, it relates specifically to Exhibit 165 and adjustments he made of it.

The Court: I am going to sustain objection to the question. Going back to that question of voir dire, if there was anything in this Exhibit 165 which amounts to a conclusion as to what proper accounting practice is, or amounts to this witness' opinion as an expert, I think you are entitled to go fully into it on cross-examination.

Mr. Campbell: I agree to that, but not in this method.

The Court: Not in this way. I do not believe you should get before this jury a question which embraces a considerable portion of this question and then have this witness, on the assumption of certain parts, give an opinion. You could put one or two more witnesses on here and send the jury home—the case has been decided. In other words, it is invading the province of the jury.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, perhaps while the jury is out it will save time if I could ask further clarification of the Court on that point.

It has been my understanding—I want to be corrected if your Honor disagrees with me—it has been my understanding to offer an expert witness to testify as to matters of opinion and judgment, and if that opinion and judgment is exercised on the basis of any set of facts covered by the evidence—it cannot go beyond that, but based on his analysis and judgment of any set of facts in evidence—that it is proper in cross-examination of the witness to ask him to assume a different set of facts, likewise in evidence but bearing on the same point, and ask him what his conclusion would be based on that set of facts, and I think these quotations from Wigmore which I just quoted specifically cover that, but I want to be guided by the rules of this court, and that is why I am asking.

The Court: I think Mr. Campbell—perhaps he will—will agree that there are some items or figures in Exhibit 165 which are determinations of this witness in the exercise of what this witness considers proper accounting practices, isn't that true, Mr. Campbell, or is it?

Mr. Campbell: I think that is true of one or two items.

The Court: Some of these items that you mention, this 10th item, improvements and so on, capitalization of that, I think it is perfectly proper for you, on cross-examination, to inquire into this witness' method of arriving at that conclusion, and if you have a different theory as to the application of that 175 thousand dollars, whether it should be a credit to Mr. Remmer personally, go into that and discuss that with him.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, would it be proper to ask this question—if I ask the witness to assume an agreement between the partners, whereby one of the partners would contribute to the partnership an asset worth 175 thousand dollars, would it be proper then to credit capital account of that partner with 175 thousand dollars.

Mr. Campbell: I suggest that that is not the proper method of approaching it. The witness should be asked why certain figures were used here if they are not within the books, and then that question explored and if counsel has then a different theory of what the books or the records or the sources from which he drew it, if he has an opinion, proper questions can be put testing the validity of that, but to do as counsel would propose with these various assumptions, which include interpretations of documents that may or may not, depending on the witness' answer, have been taken into consideration, is a different subject.

The Court: I think we had better stay on this one point we have under discussion. I will sustain the objection to this question and we will meet these other matters as they arise. I realize that cross-examination has a wide scope and I do not want to improperly restrict it.

Mr. Avakian: I think your Honor appreciates the importance in this case of the particular points we are exploring now and I think your Honor is also aware of the fact that testimony of an expert witness is generally recognized by the courts as relating to matters which the jury must ultimately decide.

BLURRED COPY

The Court: When you talk about expert testimony, I want to see what there is in any of these exhibits or any direct testimony which amount to opinions.

Mr. Avakian: No, what we want to cover in addition to that is this, when the witness bases opinion upon a certain set of facts, I think the government witness has been basing his judgment on opinions, which opinions may be correct, I am not criticizing the correctness of the method, but opinions which are based on facts favorable to the government, if the evidence would permit a different interpretation also, we want to know whether he, as an expert, would reach a different answer, on expert judgment, if the facts are found by the jury to be not facts he assumed, but a different set of facts covered by the evidence. Then the jury would know whether there was disagreement between experts on matter of expert judgment, or simply disagreement between them on the facts they assume at the basis of forming their opinion.

Mr. Campbell: It seems to me we will have to reach those difficulties when we come to them.

The Court: Well, I think so. The objection to this question is sustained. We will take a short recess for about 10 minutes.

[Title of District Court and Cause.]

OFFER OF PROOF RE: REGULATIONS OF SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY

Wednesday, January 30, 1952—10:45 A.M.

(In the absence of the jury.)

Defendant present with counsel.

Mr. Avakian: Now, your Honor, in addition to the particular question that I raised to this objection, I also plan, if the Court will permit me, to ask with respect to the witness' familiarity with certain other sections of the regulations. Would it be proper to include those with our offer of proof while the jury is out?

The Court: All right.

Mr. Avakian: And then if your Honor would care, while the jury is out, I would like to state our position to the Court as to why we think it is material and proper.

The Court: Very well.

Mr. Avakian: Our offer of proof is to show that the Secretary of the Treasury had issued certain regulations under the Internal Revenue Code, entitled generally Regulations 111; to show that under Section 29.23(a)-1 of those regulations it is provided that incidental repairs are deductible as business expenses; to show that under Section 29.23(1)-1 the proper allowance for depreciation of depreciable assets is that amount which should be set aside for the taxable year in accordance with a reasonably consistent plan, not necessarily at a uniform rate, whereby the aggregate of the amounts was set aside plus the salvage value to allow at the end of the useful life of the depreciable property equally the cost or other basis of the property determined in accordance with Section 113; to show that under Section 29.23(1)-2 the necessity for a depreciation allowance arises from the fact that certain property used in the business gradually approaches a plane where its usefulness is exhausted and the allowance should be confined to the property and the allowance for depreciation applies to property which is subject to wear and tear, decay, decline by natural causes, exhaustion and obsolescence, due to the normal progress of the art, as where machinery or any other property must be replaced by new inventions, or due to the inadequacy of the property to the growing needs of the business. And in addition to showing these provisions of the regulation, to show this witness' familiarity with the application of those provisions, to show that this witness, as an expert in the field, knows that there is necessity for exercising judgment in determining, first of all what particular expenditures should be utilized as a depreciable asset, and secondly, to show the necessity for exercising judgment in determining the life of the property over the period of which the depreciation deduction is to be spread, to show the various factors that enter into the exercise of that judgment, to show that the common experience of himself and of the Bureau of Internal Revenue, to the extent that he knows it, is that there is frequently disagreement among experts and frequently disagreement between the Bureau of Internal Revenue and the United States courts as to just how and in what respect that judgment should be exercised in any given facts existing and through this showing, your Honor, to develop the fact that it is possible for taxpayers to be in error on matters of this kind, simply through the exercise of incorrect judgment, as distinguished from the existence of any fraudulent intent.

BLURRED COPY

Another purpose of our offer is to determine the qualifications of Mr. Weaver as an expert witness on these matters where he admits he has exercised judgment, by testing his familiarity with the regulations and by testing his familiarity with the experience of the Bureau of Internal Revenue with respect to such problems.

Now in connection with the offer and explanation of our purpose of it, your Honor, I want to call attention to the fact that there are two ultimate issues which are to be decided by the jury in this case. One is the question of the correct amount of Mr. Remmer's income during these three years. If we were dealing only with that question; in other words, if this were a civil question, in which the only issue was to determine how much taxes were due, no question of intent at all, then, of course, it would be proper to restrict the proof to questions of what is the proper accounting in this case and to determine that answer and that answer alone, but we have here another issue, and that is the issue of whether, if there is shown to be any deficiency, that deficiency resulted from any fraudulent intent on the part of the taxpayer to defraud.

Now it may be, and it is frequently the case in tax evasion cases, that there is a deficiency, but there is no fraud, there is no intent to evade. The question of intent to evade will have to be determined in this case and I think it is quite apparent, at least principally and perhaps entirely, on the basis of circumstantial evidence. Now the courts have held that the matter of whether a deficiency was due simply to neglect or to incorrect application of the law and so on, is material in determining whether the circumstances show fraudulent intent. In other words, your Honor, one of the circumstances which could indicate to the jury that any deficiency which they might find to be due was not fraudulent, was not due to any intent to defraud, is the fact that the deficiency arises, in part, from adjustments made of a kind which are subject to judgment and in which common experience shows disagreement between experts as to how the judgment should be exercised.

The particular significance of it is this, your Honor—these particular items that Mr. Weaver has capitalized for the Menlo Club amount to approximately $3200 and another item on this exhibit, which falls in somewhat the same category of the expenditures made at 50-52 Mason Street, amount to a total of approximately $8600.

Mr. Campbell: On this exhibit?

Mr. Avakian: Yes, it is in the accounts receiv-

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

able item, which is explained in detail by another exhibit. So these two items together, your Honor, total almost $12,000 and by capitalizing that $12,000 of expenditures, the government is increasing by $12,000 the amount of income that will be computed for the three-year period in question on the net worth method. Now suppose, your Honor, that the jury finds that there is an understatement of income in this case of $12,000. Then the whole case would turn, your Honor, on whether there was any fraud in connection with that understatement of $12,000. Now we feel it would be proper for the jury to have before it, in considering the question of intent, the circumstances of whether the $12,000 that Mr. Weaver has added to the net worth computation by capitalizing these expenditures, represents a matter of judgment, on which there is no clear-cut defined or positive rule to be applied, but rather on which there is simply a general rule, as indicated by the term "Incidental repairs." The word "incidental" we all know is not specific but rather generic. Mr. Weaver has used the term major repairs, should be capitalized. The distinction between major and minor is likewise generic rather than specific. It would be proper for the jury to have before it the fact that $12,000 of the income which has been built up by the government in its net worth computation does represent application of rules of judgment upon which experts disagree and upon which the regulations themselves set up general rather than specific lines of demarcation.

BLURRED COPY

Now I do not want to be understood, your Honor, as contending that in the matters that we desire to go into we are going to challenge the correctness of the allegations and the capitalizations which Mr. Weaver made. That is not the purpose of this questioning. The purpose of the questioning is to show that these things which he did do, which have the effect of increasing the amount of income that is going to be computed by the government on the net worth method, represent an area in which the exercise of judgment is essential.

Now your Honor will recall that we had some discussion earlier in this trial regarding the matter of the scope of cross-examination of expert witnesses and I guess on two or three occasions we have gone into that. Your Honor stated to us on those occasions that where it was shown that an expert witness had exercised judgment, you would permit us to cross-examine the witness with respect to that matter. Of course, on those occasions we did not have before us these particular matters, but it occurs to us that the cross-examination of the witness in the manner in which we desire to proceed would fall within the principle that your Honor stated here earlier, to the effect that where the expert did exercise judgment, you indicated that you would give us fairly liberal opportunity to cross-examine regarding the matter. We tried to draw a parallel, your Honor, of cross-examination of a medical expert. If a doctor is on the stand and he is testifying regarding his judgment and conclusions, it is proper to ask him if he is familiar with a certain work in that field. Now that is proper for two reasons—one is that it tests his qualifications as an expert, by showing the extent to which he is familiar with the literature on the subject——

The Court (Interceding): May I understand, Mr. Avakian, just what is the substance of the question that you would like to propose to bring out the points of your offer here?

Mr. Avakian: First of all I would like to find out whether the witness is familiar with the provisions of the Treasury regulations that deal with the particular matters to which he has exercised judgment. In other words, your Honor, as he himself stated yesterday, the preparation of this exhibit, preparation of net worth statement in this kind of a case involves——

The Court (Interceding): I will be glad to go along with you to that extent, at least as far as there are regulations which necessarily would be brought into use by such an expert witness as we have here in arriving at determination made by him; I will go along with you to that extent.

Mr. Avakian: I think that will probably serve our purpose then, your Honor. I might say this——

The Court (Interceding): But I don't want this witness to instruct the jury as to the law in this case.

Mr. Avakian: I understand that. We do not want that either, your Honor. We do want to find out, your Honor, whether he is familiar with the provisions of the regulations that are applicable to the particular matters of judgment which he exercised.

BLURRED COPY

The Court: How far would you go along? Suppose his answer was yes. Then you would want to produce the regulation and try to point out to him in what respect he may or may not have properly followed the regulation.

Mr. Avakian: No, I don't think that, your Honor. I would like to read him the particular pertinent provisions and ask him whether he is familiar with them.

The Court: That would not appeal to me in view of the present situation of your argument. How would it be to ask him if he is familiar with certain regulations, referring to them by some denomination which he would recognize; if he did not recognize them then describe it a little more completely. If he said yes, all right; if he said no, all right.

Mr. Avakian: Well, your Honor, I do not think that would serve the proper purpose of bringing out what we consider proper on this question of intent.

The Court: I think the interpretation of these regulations or any section of this statute, if they are going to be made for the benefit of the jury, should be made in the form of instruction by the Court.

Mr. Avakian: I think they should certainly be done that way too, but I think it is proper, your Honor, to ask an expert witness—here is an authentic document as recognized authority in the field—I think it is proper to ask the expert whether he is familiar with the statement, reading it, in that recognized authority. I will be glad to put the regulations in evidence if that would obviate any objection of your Honor, but the point is this, if this expert is familiar with a particular provision of the statement made in a recognized work in the field, that has a bearing on his qualifications, and we think it is proper to read that statement in that recognized authority to the witness, to ask him whether he is familiar with it and to ask him whether he took that particular Treasury regulation into consideration.

The Court: I will go along with you this far, and I say that without cutting you off—in any case where any of this testimony amounts to a statement of the witness' judgment and opinion, I think you are entitled to examine fully as to what he thinks and you could ask if, in forming his opinion on any of these matters, if he did depend upon or consult or consider any regulations or the statute, but to hand him the regulations and you, as attorney here, engage in a speech before this jury as to what proper interpretation be made of a regulation, of a section, or to have either one of you attempt to instruct the jury as to matters of law in this case, I am not going that far with you.

Mr. Avakian: I certainly would not want to go that far and certainly did not intend to imply that I wanted to.

The Court: I do not mean that you would have any intention of doing that but you might do something that would amount to the same thing.

Mr. Avakian: Would this be proper—if he did state that he took the regulations into account, would it be proper to state what particular section he took into account and to have him read the particular provision?

The Court: No, I do not want it read before the jury at all. When I say I do not want it read, I mean I do not think it is proper.

Mr. Avakian: I understand that. It has been customary in our experience, your Honor, to be permitted——

The Court (Interceding) For instance, this matter of dispute, which means this difference between courts of interpretations of this law, when we come to settle instructions, listen to arguments and decide those various decisions, then I am going to choose which one of them I am going to follow, but I do not want opinions of a great number, or one or more, different judges, of the different judges of this court, to be presented to this jury.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, there is a related matter. The witness made a statement yesterday that under law such and such a thing was required and I intend to question him later with regard to that. The statement was made as a statement of the law and I appreciate an expert witness can't divorce himself from things of that kind, but I had intended to ask him what particular portion of the law he based that statement on and also intended to ask him whether he was familiar with another portion of the law that relates to that subject, because I disagree with him as to what the law is and I want to test the basis of his knowledge there. For my own guidance I raise the point, so I can approach the matter in a way that would be acceptable to the Court. Would it be proper there for me to show him, without reading to the jury, the particular portion of law that I have in mind and ask him whether he took that into consideration?

The Court: What particular answer have you in mind? What was it?

Mr. Avakian: It is a matter—I forget the exact question, but it is a matter that relates to the circumstances under which a taxpayer may or may not use the cash or accrual method of accounting.

Mr. Campbell: I think that was on cross-examination.

Mr. Avakian: That is right. He made the statement under the circumstances a taxpayer could not use the cash method of accounting.

The Court: That is a matter to be argued before the jury after the case is concluded, or if it is a matter of law, the Court should instruct on it.

Mr. Avakian: That I understand. Would it be proper, without reading anything to the jury to hand him a particular thing and ask him whether he was familiar with that provision in reaching his conclusion?

The Court: No, I do not think so. We are going to have the jury accept its law from the Court, not the witnesses.

BLURRED COPY

Mr. Avakian: There won't be any statement to the jury on that. It would be simply asking the witness whether he is familiar with certain provision——

Mr. Campbell: That is by indirection.

Mr. Avakian: No, your Honor.

The Court: I am not going to permit that. Of course, that is not included in this offer. I will meet it when it comes.

Mr. Avakian: We will, of course, want to make our record on that when the time comes.

The Court: I am not sure you understand. I do not feel that would apply but we will meet that when it comes. This present situation here, we will dissolve that by saying any matters of opinion expressed by this witness, you may inquire as to what he bases his opinion on, but as far as having this witness interpret the law, we won't go that far.

Mr. Avakian: The witness' statement is this—I am quoting from Mr. Weaver's testimony: "Every accounting treatment must, to some extent, be based upon a legal interpretation. I do not see where you can make a distinct dividing line between law and accounting, because accounting treatment necessarily rests on the proper interrelations which are legal matters and as accountants, the accounting treatment must follow whatever legal interpretation they give to certain facts." That means then, your Honor, that the witness himself is admitting that he is applying provisions of law. Now all we want to do is to test his knowledge of the law that relates to that, because if he is applying provisions of law, without having in mind all of the applicable provisions of law, his accounting answers are, to that extent, wrong. Now we do not want to argue between counsel and the witness as to what the law is, but we do want to bring out whether or not the portions of the law that he considered—first of all, bring out what portions he did consider, so we can determine ourselves whether we think he went far enough, and then ask him if he is familiar with other provisions that we think material, without going into the content.

The Court: In other words, the idea that you seem to voice is this, that when he said legal that he meant some specific statute or rule of law. Sometimes people use the word "legal" as a synonym for right, something of that kind, right or wrong or whether proper. I do not know whether he meant it that way or not.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, there are particular provisions in the law which relate to the matters to which he has exercised judgment. Now obviously a judgment which is based on provisions of law is not good judgment unless it is based on all the pertinent provisions.

The Court: Wasn't that answer given in response to a question as to how he determined between replacements and capital investments, something of that kind?

Mr. Avakian: That particular answer was given in connection with the decision as to how he should classify the liability to Schriber, but his statement —you recall I read it—"Every accounting treatment must, to some extent, be based upon a legal interpretation. * * *" Obviously the decision to classify a particular expenditure as current or capital is based upon what the law says you must do in that regard.

BLURRED COPY

The Court: I think we are going too far here. In the first place, this case would resolve itself into a discussion of legal principles.

Mr. Campbell: The question was asked when the witness had testified that he put the particular item in the document under my instruction and counsel was questioning the matter of how he went to me, what advice I gave regarding the repair, and so on and finally in reply to one of Mr. Avakian's questions, Mr. Avakian asked him if he wanted to change his testimony and he said no and volunteered this other information. It seems to me we are straining at gnats in this matter and going into collateral matters that have no bearing.

The Court: This present question, the purpose for which we excused the jury, I think we can allow the question to the extent I have indicated, that on any matters which have to do with any evidence of this witness which constitute his opinion, you may inquire as to the source, what he bases his opinion upon. So we are going to take a recess now. The offer is rejected, except as I have indicated.

Mr. Avakian: Does that mean we can ask him whether he took particular sections of the regulations, without going into it?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

The Court: Ask him what he bases it on.

Mr. Avakian: Suppose he states generally the law without being specific, can we then ask him what particular provision?

Mr. Campbell: It seems to me we have to meet those matters as they arise.

Mr. Avakian: That is the purpose of the discussion in the absence of the jury, to straighten this out, so when the jury comes back we can proceed in accordance with the Court's ruling. In other words, the witness may say, "I based it upon law." Are we to stop there or can we show the particular section or provision of the regulations or particular authority which he relied upon and have him cite to us, so we can know and so the record for any reviewing court would show what particular portions of law he bases it on.

Mr. Campbell: It seems to me the witness has previously stated on several occasions on cross-examination on what he bases in analyzing those particular increases—on checks, records and testimony of Mr. Maundrell.

Mr. Avakian: Well, the testimony of Mr. Maundrell does not say this should be capital asset and this is showing he has taken facts as given by the testimony and analyzes those facts and determined that they should be put here instead of there.

The Court: There might be a certain item, or group of certain items, all of which you contend are not capital items. So that is the situation, that we find there are a certain group of items which the witness has designated as capital and you say they are not.

Mr. Avakian: That is true to a limited extent. As to some items I agree, your Honor, on the question of what should be done, but I want to show the second issue of intent.

The Court: Isn't it contemplated by counsel for both the government and the defendant that some one propose an instruction to the Court explaining that situation?

Mr. Avakian: Yes, your Honor, but we have from this witness statements that proper accounting calls for this, this is the right way to do it.

The Court: All right, suppose he said that and under the law he is clearly wrong. Wouldn't the jury be so instructed in effect?

Mr. Avakian: No, your Honor. That is the point I am trying to get at. If we have a law which said a certain line of demarcation is to be drawn between people 21 years old and those less than 21, your Honor can take care of that in the instructions, but when we have a law which uses generic terms, for the witness to say proper accounting calls for this treatment and to leave it there, without showing that provision that he relies upon is section so and so, and the Court can later on instruct the jury that section so and so contains a generic——

The Court (Interceding): Suppose he says, "I base this opinion upon my interpretation of the section." You can ask him what regulations, point it out.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

Mr. Avakian: Yes, that is all right.

The Court: I do not see anything wrong so far, but I do not want that read to the jury and have discussions of whether his interpretation is correct or yours is correct.

Mr. Avakian: We will accept that ruling, your Honor, and abide by it, but we feel——

The Court (Interceding): If it gets here where it gets right down to a situation where one of his entries on one of these exhibits is based upon his interpretation of the regulation or a statute, you can ask what regulation or statute did you base it on.

Mr. Avakian: I want to make it clear for the record that my own personal feeling is that it would be proper to go farther, but of course I am going to accept the Court's ruling and be guided by it and not go beyond what your Honor has indicated. To the extent that your Honor has ruled on that, our offer of proof is denied and in part is granted, is that right?

The Court: Yes. We will take a recess for 5 minutes.

(Recess taken at 11:20 a.m.)

January 30, 3:00 P.M.

(In the absence of the jury.)

(Defendant present with counsel.)

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, I understand at this time I may make the offer mentioned earlier.

The Court: Yes, sir.

BLURRED COPY

Mr. Avakian: In that connection, your Honor, the defense offers to prove, through the examination of Mr. Weaver, that approximately in May of 1948 the business of the Menlo Club was terminated, as a result of action taken by the San Francisco Police Department, pursuant to an interpretation made by the District Attorney of the City and County of San Francisco, at or about that time, to the effect that the business conducted by the Menlo Club was in violation of an ordinance which had been on the ordinance books of the City and County of San Francisco for many many years, approximately 43 years, and which had not previously been interpretated in such a manner as would make that business unlawful, and our purpose, your Honor, in desiring to prove that is that the amortization deduction taken in the Menlo Club return and reflected in the net income which has been reported by Mr. Remmer in his 1946 return, which is in issue here, was based in part on the possibility that action of that kind by the public authorities might be taken, in justification of the use of a five-year amortization as set forth in the return.

Mr. Campbell: To which we object, in the first place that it is not material and competent and cannot be proved by a witness of this kind, and further contemplation of such action would not be a matter of contemplation in 1946.

The Court: Further, I can hardly see how it would be proper cross-examination.

Mr. Campbell: No, that is correct and not within the scope of direct examination.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

The Court: The offer is rejected. Call in the jury.

Mr. Avakian: May I take up one more matter?

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Avakian: I am not entirely sure that I understood your Honor correctly when your Honor made this statement, but I believe the statement was made from the bench during the examination of Mr. Weaver, to the effect that your Honor hoped to get through with this examination pretty soon.

The Court: No, I hoped that we had reached the end of the examination as to his qualifications.

Mr. Avakian: Well, I just did not feel it might be proper in the presence of the jury to imply that we were dilatory.

The Court: I do not think that implies any dilatoriness on the part of counsel. The only thought I had was I wished we would get through with that part of the cross-examination.

Mr. Avakian: I have never been accustomed to the practice, your Honor, where a witness testified at length on a number of matters of having to test his qualifications on all those matters before I cross-examined specifically. It was my understanding when you came to a specific matter, you could test his qualifications on that matter.

The Court: What is your problem?

Mr. Avakian: I fear the jury may be prejudiced by your remark that you hoped we would reach the end of the particular matter.

The Court: I do not believe the jury even heard it or noticed.

BLURRED COPY

Mr. Avakian: We just thought we would have to call it to your Honor's attention.

The Court: I will call it to your attention as I have on four or five or six occasions, attempted to admonish the jury and instruct them that they are not to decide this case on any exchanges between the Court and counsel or between counsel or upon anything except the evidence, oral or written, admitted in evidence. I have told them so many times and I think we have an intelligent jury and I feel certain that they will not decide this case on anything else and I will find occasion, before the trial is over, to call that to their attention.

Mr. Avakian: We thought we ought to note our exception to the matter as promptly as we could, your Honor. That is all, your Honor.

The Court: Call in the jury.

(Last question read.)

Q. If we assume, as you have assumed, that the Menlo Club was not a partnership but that it was a sole enterprise of Elmer Remmer, and if we assume further that Mr. Maundrell's employment there was on the basis of a fixed salary plus 10 per cent of the profits of the business, and if we assume further that the Menlo Club was on the accrual basis of accounting, would the Menlo Club not be entitled to a deduction in amount of the annual salary paid to Mr. Maundrell plus the 10 per cent share of the profits to which he was entitled under his agreement?

The Court: Very well, Mr. Campbell.

Mr. Campbell: The basis of my objection is, as heretofore stated, that it assumes facts not in evidence. I am referring first to the assertion that you have assumed that it is not a partnership. The testimony on that point is the witness, in response to one of counsel's questions, said it was not a true partnership, that is true, but it goes on to assume that the books of the Menlo Club were on an accrual basis, which has been the subject of considerable testimony this morning, that they were on a cash basis and could not be on the accrual basis by reason of the lack of and non-existence of certain records.

I make my objection further on the grounds that the question itself not only assumes matters not in evidence here, but is also not within the scope of the direct examination of this witness.

The Court: Mr. Avakian, the thought I had when I sustained the objection, I thought there was no evidence here to support the assumption that the books were on an accrual basis.

Mr. Avakian: Here is the basis for the question, your Honor: The witness has testified that proper accounting, where inventories are a factor, as is the case in the Menlo Club, will under the regulations call for the use of the accrual method of accounting.

The Court: Repeat that statement.

BLURRED COPY

Mr. Avakian: The witness has stated that under Treasury regulations, where inventories are a factor—and they are a factor in the Menlo Club, as the evidence shows—the regulations require the use of the accrual method of accounting. That was his testimony this morning. Now, as your Honor stated yesterday, the duty of an expert witness is to do what is proper on the evidence, whether for or against the taxpayer, to do what is proper from an accounting point of view, so if the witness is correct in his statement that the Treasury regulations require the use of the accrual method of accounting, that in order to construct a proper net worth statement, of the Menlo Club of that business, we would have to cure any deductions he had during the periods of time that were covered by the net worth statement.

The Court: Let me make an observation at this point. I do not understand the evidence to show they were so kept. It may be true that the regulations require keeping in that manner, but if they were not kept in that manner, how could you say that it is proper to assume that they were kept on the accrual basis in this question?

Mr. Avakian: My point is this, your Honor. It is apparent from the statement your Honor made yesterday that expert witnesses should make whatever adjustments were proper. This witness has, your Honor, made certain adjustments in preparing net worth statements of the Menlo Club, which differ from the books. He has ignored certain things that were in the books, on the theory what he did was what proper accounting calls for. If I may go first to what the benefit would be and then get back again to the basis, perhaps I could make myself more clear.

The Court: Well, the point that is bothering me, I don't understand that these books were kept on the accrual basis.

Mr. Avakian: He testifies they were not kept on any truly consistent basis and he says the return was prepared in part on the cash basis and in part on the accrual basis.

The Court: Then you can't very well assume that they were kept on the accrual basis in the questions.

Mr. Avakian: What I am asking him to do is to construct for me the net worth statement based on the use of the accrual method. I do not remember the exact wording of the question, but that is the theory of the question.

The Court: That is where this last point made by Mr. Campbell comes into operation, not proper cross-examination.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, may I answer on that?

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Avakian: It is proper cross-examination, your Honor, because this witness has himself first of all, in preparing Exhibit 165, assumed that the Menlo Club is not a partnership, but is a sole enterprise of Mr. Remmer's, and although Mr. Campbell made a statement to the contrary, I would like to recall to your Honor's attention the fact that Mr. Weaver's justification for excluding the liability to Schriber from Exhibit 165 was that the Menlo Club was Mr. Remmer's entirely separate business and not a partnership, and therefore it was immaterial whether you show his personal liability to Schriber in that exhibit or somewhere else and he even offered, "I will be happy to write it in Exhibit 165 if you want," so his justification, your Honor, for his method of constructing Exhibit 165 is that this was not a partnership. Now we would like to show to your Honor that if he is correct in that, if that assumption of his is correct, that the Menlo Club is not a partnership, then on the accrual method of accounting, which he has said is the proper method that should be used here, there should have been certain adjustments made which would have resulted in Mr. Remmer's net income from the Menlo Club being exactly the same as shown on the partnership return.

The Court: I did not understand him to say that the regulations require that the net worth had to be on the accrual basis. It was the accounting should have been kept on the accrual basis.

Mr. Avakian: It is the same thing, your Honor, and after all what he is doing here by the net worth method is trying to compute the correct income and the net worth computation has to take into account either the cash or accrual method or it has no meaning. You can not take a taxpayer who is on the cash basis and reports on receipts and disbursements and make a statement on accrual basis and have any comparison. They are not comparable, so when you use the net worth method, you have to be consistent in using either the cash or accrual method. You cannot compare cash accounting with accrual accounting and make any comparison. It is meaningless.

Now the witness did say the Treasury regulations require the use of accrual accounting, so I would like then, your Honor, if that is his position, and since that is a part of his education and training which forms the foundation for what he has done here, I would like to have him tell us what the result would be if he did apply the accrual accounting and if he did apply his assumption that this is Mr. Remmer's sole business, because that would mean then, your Honor, that the obligations to Maundrell at the end of 1946, which were actually paid in 1947 and 1948, would be cured as deductions as deductions in 1946. In other words, if I may put it this way—during 1947 and 1948 Mr. Maundrell actually took out of that business and put into his own pocket, or used for his own benefit, $15,000, which was assigned to him as his share of profits of 1945 and 1946. Now on the cash method——

The Court (Interceding): We are getting back to discussions we had earlier in the trial on proper scope of hypothetical question. I think a hypothetical question should be based on facts in evidence.

Mr. Avakian: That is right, your Honor.

The Court: And it might vary to some extent. There might be qualifications to that. The theory of the part as to the effect of the evidence might be incorporated as a part of a hypothetical question, but there is no evidence in this record that these books were kept on an accrual basis.

Mr. Avakian: No, your Honor, the evidence in the record with regard to inventories and other entries in the books are the basis for Mr. Weaver's conclusion that the proper accounting method to apply to these facts in the record is the accrual method. That is based on the inventories here and the records that are here. He is simply applying the proper accounting procedure to the evidence in support that the accrual method is the method that should be used. Now if this is Mr. Remmer's own business and not a partnership, he was certainly entitled at some time deduction for the $15,000 paid to Maundrell. On the cash method he would be entitled to that deduction when he actually paid it in 1947 and 1948, but on the accrual method he would be entitled to deduction in 1946 when the obligation arose. That is the whole thing in a nutshell, your Honor.

If Mr. Weaver is correct in his two assumptions —and I call your Honor's attention to the fact that they are his assumptions, his hypotheses—on the basis of assumptions which he has made as an expert accountant, then these additional adjustments should be made to the extent which would result, your Honor, in allowing, as a 1946 deduction, the amount credited to his account as his share of the profits which is Mr. Maundrell's account and subsequently paid to him. It is simply when I made my deductions. In other words, if I were to pay my employees in January for services performed in December, if I were on the accrual basis, I would deduct it in December; if I were on the cash basis, I would deduct it in January. It is a question of when you deduct it. The fact of the deduction is there either way. At some time that deduction has to be allowed. Now, if Mr. Weaver is correct in his assumption—and I repeat, it is his assumption, his accounting hypotheses of how it should be done with this evidence—then I want the opportunity, your Honor, to show that under his hypotheses, correct accounting would call for accruing at the end of 1946 a deduction or liability, which would have the effect then of reducing the net worth and, your Honor, would have exactly the same effect as if a partnership were recognized, so we come out exactly the same way. You can see the significance of that, your Honor, and the importance to us of having an expression from a government witness as to whether on his own hypotheses certain things should be done. It is simply to cross-examine on his own hypotheses to get the full story, not just half of it, your Honor, but the full story of how this should be set up if he is correct in saying (1) this is not a partnership, (2) that the facts in this case call for application of the accrual method of accounting.

Mr. Campbell: If the Court please, I think counsel is incorrect in his statement of the evidence as to whether or not the testimony, particularly the testimony of Mr. Weaver, shows that the books were kept on the cash basis and not on the accrual basis.

In response to counsel's questions, it is true Mr. Weaver said that in a business of this kind and under the regulations, they should have been kept on the accrual basis but they were kept on the cash basis and it is on the basis of these records that he has constructed Exhibit 165. Now he has stated that the only items which appear on here, on 165, and upon which he exercised any judgment or made any classification, were with respect to certain expenditures which went into acquisition of capital assets and against which he set up a reserve for depreciation. That is, that all of his items are as set forth on the books, including at the bottom the capital accounts as shown in the books for the partners. Now it is true in response to counsel's question, when Mr. Weaver was asked about it, he gave his opinion that this was not a true partnership, but counsel now it appears, by this question, he wants Mr. Weaver to reconstruct a set of figures for him and to construct it on an accrual basis which was not used by the taxpayer or by his accountants, according to the testimony, and without there being before us any record or available in the record accrued accounts receivable and accrued other matters, which would have to be used to offset any liability which counsel is not seeking to accrue. I submit if the evidence is admissible, it must be produced on behalf of the defendant. This witness cannot be asked on a hypothesis of this kind and in the state of the record and with the evidence which is before him, to completely reconstruct on the stand—which would be necessary to do—he may have had simply one liability, as he says, in accruing a liability, such as liability to pay taxes, withholding taxes, you have an offsetting asset of the amount of money which has been accrued out of employees' paychecks. As shown by his testimony, he has taken the records which are here, he has taken the basis upon which those records were kept, for the purpose of producing this exhibit, and I submit it is not proper cross-examination, nor within the scope of cross-examination, to have this witness reconstruct a set of books for the defendant, which this question would require. I submit that the question assumes facts which are not in evidence here, would require the assumption of records, if the answer was to be complete, which are not now before the Court, if in fact such records are available, and therefore that the question is incompetent in its present form.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, I wish to make two observations. In the first place, Mr. Weaver did use the accrual method in preparing Exhibit 165, to some extent at least, because he included inventory. Now you will recall his own statement, that where inventories are a factor, the regulations call for the use of the accrual method, and we can reverse that, that the use of an inventory is itself the use of accrual method, so by including inventory in Exhibit 165 Mr. Weaver has, at least to that extent, in his own exhibit made use of the accrual method.

BLURRED COPY

Secondly, your Honor, it was not upon my invitation that Mr. Weaver made the statement that he did not consider the Menlo Club a partnership, rather it was an explanation of Exhibit 165 and in justification of it that he said that he did not consider it a partnership, and specifically, your Honor, he said, as a justification for omitting from Exhibit 165 the liability to Schriber, that it did not make any difference because he did not consider the Menlo Club a partnership, so that it is a part of his direct testimony. Your Honor, if you will look at his Exhibit 165, which is direct testimony, inherent in Exhibit 165 is his assumption that this is not a partnership and expressed by him on the witness stand as one of the bases for the exhibit was his direct statement that he did not consider it a partnership, so I am simply seeking, your Honor, to complete the picture on the things which he, himself, has brought into this case, certain assumptions which he himself has made.

Now, the uncontradicted testimony in the case—and it is all from government witnesses—is that these were partnerships, but the prosecution is apparently taking the theory that, notwithstanding that testimony, the jury should, by inferences, conclude that these were not real partnerships and Mr. Weaver has indulged in that inference in presenting Exhibit 165. Now, your Honor, if the prosecution has gone beyond the scope of the evidence in making that assumption, then obviously their own hypothesis was improper and should be stricken from the record. If, on the other hand, their hypothesis that this was not a partnership is a permissible inference which may be drawn from the evidence, then we are entitled to cross-examine him on that hypothesis, particularly, your Honor, since it is their hypothesis and not ours. We just want to complete his picture, your Honor, we don't want this in the exhibit half way. We want to show that if we take their entire theory of the evidence, we still wind up with the result that was the same as the tax returns that were filed.

We hope your Honor won't cut us off from that because this is a crucial question here. We should have, for the benefit of the jury in their determination of these accounting problems, what the correct accounting result would be, according to the government accountant if his hypotheses were carried out to its proper accounting conclusion.

Now if there is any doubt in your Honor's mind about the propriety about this, may we respectfully suggest to your Honor that particularly in a criminal case the defendant should be permitted reasonable leeway in exploring these things and examining government accountants. I do not think the question is unfair to the prosecution. I think it is within the scope of assumptions the prosecution has made in presenting this witness, it is within the bulwark of the manner in which Exhibit 165 was constructed, it is within the bulwark of Mr. Weaver's statement as to what method of accounting is the proper one to use. Now the Court necessarily has to exercise some discretion in matters of this kind because until you finish your case and can look back over it and fit every little thing into the complete picture, nobody can be absolutely sure as to whether a particular item of evidence was material and proper or not. Your Honor must exercise some discretion as we go along in that respect, and we are simply asking your Honor to be generous with us in that respect and to permit us to inquire into these matters, because of the importance to the defense of showing just what the result would be if the government accountant did continue further with the hypothesis which he has applied in his examination.

The Court: Let me have the question, please.

(Question read.)

The Court: Was on the accrual basis—if you assume that, I will allow that to be asked.

Mr. Avakian: In other words, if we modify to say if we apply the accrual method of accounting?

The Court: No. So the ruling that was made will be reinstated.

Mr. Avakian: I think I can modify the question.

The Court: If you will not accept it, the ruling will stand and the objection is sustained.

Mr. Avakian: I want to modify the question to eliminate——

The Court (Interceding): We will take a five minute recess. We will do that later on.

Jury absent.

(Last question read.)

Q. Isn't it true, Mr. Weaver, that you, and the other members of your staff, refused to return those records to the defense when the defense requested the opportunity to examine them in October of 1951 for the purpose of preparing for this trial?

The Court: What former ruling of the court was made on that?

Mr. Campbell: I am referring, may it please the Court, to the motions which were produced and made before this Court for the inspection of certain records and requesting a continuance of the trial. At that time there were placed before the Court the affidavits of both counsel for the defense and counsel for the government.

The Court: And motions were not made until a week or so before the trial.

Mr. Campbell: And that is referring at that time in October of 1951, if the Court please.

Mr. Avakian: It was after the prosecution refused to let us examine the records that we thereafter filed a motion with the Court.

Mr. Campbell: And counsel is referring to the correspondence which is a part of the records of those motions which passed between counsel and myself and the statements that were made before the Court.

The Court: My recollection is the reason I denied those motions in Las Vegas, they came in a few weeks before the trial, so it would, if granted, have resulted in postponement of the trial and I could not understand why the defense had been so dilatory in waiting for several years before they made the motion to get possession of those records. That was the idea I had.

Mr. Golden: I would say, your Honor, there is some correspondence to disabuse your Honor's mind of dilatoriness. Considerable correspondence passed back and forth and we have been held on a limb, so to speak. There have been promises it would be done.

Mr. Campbell: Your Honor will recall the evidence here. The case was delayed for the period of a year, during which the defense counsel were going to make, and agreed to make, and were apparently to make some kind of net worth statement. At that time the records that were in the office of the Intelligence Unit were made available to their accountant, one Nat Friedman, who spent some period of time, as the record shows, in examining what records were there available. Previous to that time records had been turned over to Mr. Semenza and the evidence shows he was turned loose to take whatever he wanted and selected what records he wanted. Now it seems to me, that those matters having been gone into, it is improper to inject them in this manner with this witness.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

Mr. Golden: There is a great deal more to the story than that. Mr. Campbell knows that we were lulled into a sense of security for a long period of time that the year 1944 was not under consideration, that that was sprung on us the last minute and that changed the whole picture. The brief little sketchy statement counsel made just now is very misleading to your Honor. It can't be crossed off that way. I don't want to interrupt Mr. Avakian——

Mr. Avakian: In addition, your Honor, the first time we were refused permission to examine the records was in October, 1951, so there was no occasion prior to that to come to the court. Now what happened was this, and I think your Honor will recall it—we were unable to hire an accountant——

The Court (Interceding): Let us not argue the merits. Read the question.

(Question read.)

The Court: What is the purpose of asking that question at this time from this witness?

Mr. Avakian: For this reason—the witness has testified repeatedly that these records were made available on every request that was made, and it is for the purpose of impeaching that testimony, to show it is not correct and that the fact is that they were not made available upon a certain occasion.

The Court: Objection will be sustained. Call in the jury.

BLURRED COPY

ARGUMENT RE: EXHIBIT "Z" AND EXHIBITS 109A AND 109B

Friday, February 1, 1952, 1:50 P.M.

(In the absence of the jury.)

Defendant present with counsel.

Mr. Gillen: May it please the Court, in regard to Defendant's Exhibit "Z" for identification, your Honor took occasion to look at this exhibit at the time it was first offered today and I believe from reading over and I believe on the occasion of its original offer some days ago, during the testimony of Mr. Maundrell, around Christmas time, it was also exhibited to your Honor.

Now counsel has offered objection that it is a summary of testimony. I can't follow counsel's objection and counsel's observation in that regard, because this is a document which was prepared and executed between these two principals of the transaction on March 7, 1949, which it becomes obvious at once to your Honor was at a time before anybody testified, before this case even started or this testimony. How could it be a summary? It is not a summary of anybody else's testimony at all. It is the best evidence because it is an agreement stating the facts of the transaction. It is a commitment by both of the parties, both of the principals, to the transaction as to the transaction itself, and it is the then existing status as of the time it was executed.

Now it also serves as admission against interest, despite the fact that gave rise to some mirth on the part of Mr. Shelton and amusement at the prosecution table. It is in fact an admission against his own interest by Mr. Remmer, in that Mr. Remmer acknowledged by this document that he owes a certain amount of money which, in the false picture that has been attempted to be created here, namely, that there were two payments in 1945 at practically the same time, one for 25 thousand cash, the other 25 thousand by check, would have meant that Mr. Remmer, so far as this transaction was concerned, would have been 25 thousand dollars to the good, but for the fact he admits he is 25 thousand dollars to the bad, that he owes the man 25 thousand dollars more.

Now this document, may it please the Court, is a statement of an account between two principals and it is the best available evidence. It is a recitation of the facts concerning a transaction, it is crystallizing of the status of the transaction and of the obligations involved at the time of the making of the document. It is commitment of both of the principals to those facts as set forth in the document and signed by them. It is better than parol evidence, it is better than oral testimony. It is a prepared agreement and statement of account between two principal participants to a transaction and it is substantiation, of course, of testimony given here, not only by Mr. Schriber, but testimony given here by Mr. Maundrell, whom your Honor will remember, when he moved into the Menlo Club business and was trying to set up a proper and efficient set of books, determined he would rather have a check out of the checking account represent the initial down payment on the transaction.

Now we feel, may it please the Court, that we have given your Honor a proper and firm foundation on a document that it is elementary would be admissible as the account stated between two principals, substantiating testimony that has already been introduced, not by this defendant, but by the prosecution in this case. Their own witnesses have related this transaction and throughout the case there has been a consistent effort attempted to detract from the very testimony that they have offered before this jury.

The conversations that were had between Mr. Schriber, as he has indicated on the witness stand here, and the man in charge of the investigation, Mr. Weaver, was conversation relating to Mr. Schriber on the income tax status in regard to it, in which he related—and we make this by way of offer of proof—he related the same facts and circumstances concerning the transaction as are revealed in this document and has been testified to both by Mr. Maundrell and Mr. Schriber. We offer the exhibit, your Honor.

Mr. Campbell: I might state, your Honor, that the offer of this type of document in evidence is entirely novel within my experience in the introduction of evidence, and particularly the introduction of evidence in federal court. This document purports to set out certain events which transpired at a time in April, 1945, between April 30th and September 8th, 1945, on its face and is signed, apparently, by the witness Gene Schriber, who has appeared, and by the defendant, Elmer Remmer, whose signature has been identified. Now, of course, the best evidence of any transaction are the documents which are entered into and oral statements of witnesses who were present at the time of the events. This is a document which was entered into a period in excess of two years after the investigation commenced in this case, purporting to set forth these facts.

Now counsel states that it is an admission against interest on the part of the defendant and therefore admissible in his behalf, which is also a novel situation, so far as my experience is concerned. An opposing party can offer documents which are admissions against interest of a witness or a defendant who is not available to be placed on the stand, and can place into evidence letters or documents written long after the event, as being admissions against interest, but through this method, or after an investigation is started, of a witness and the defendant sitting down and writing up what the facts are and then attempting to introduce that into evidence as being part, at least, the statement of the defendant, without the opportunity of cross-examination, it seems to me is defeating the very purpose of a court proceeding, when the witnesses are put on the stand and the story is elicited from their oral testimony. This is unsworn, it is a document addressed "To Whom It May Concern," written at a time that the investigation was fully under way. Mr. Gillen says it is in substantiation of the testimony that is already in the record. If that is true, it would add nothing to the record, except it would in this written form and in the manner in which the defendant or his counsel desires, be the evidence which is in evidence. It adds nothing to the record. It is not the best evidence of the events which took place. It purports merely to be a recitation after the events and it does not permit the government to cross-examine one of the parties who purports to state this is what took place.

Under all of the circumstances, the government submits that this document is not admissible under any theory of evidence in behalf of the defendant in this case, and we, therefore, renew our objection to its introduction.

Mr. Gillen: I would like to respond to counsel for a moment.

May it please the Court, here is a thought—I listened carefully to see whether or not Mr. Campbell would make any mention of it. He spoke of admissions against and that admissions against interest can be offered by opposing party in the way of writing or any other admission. Of course, I challenge counsel to say that the defendant cannot offer admissions against his own interests. He certainly can. A defendant can put his head in a noose if he wishes. I also challenge counsel to say that this document which I have offered here would not be an admissible and legitimate bit of evidence against either Mr. Remmer, or against Mr. Schriber, for that matter, if Mr. Schriber was involved in a trial, if the government sought to offer it, because it would be a statement of transaction between two principals, at least one of which principals are available, and have been available and have been used as a witness by the government. Now there is no question about it, the government at least was furnished a copy of this document more than a year before the commencement of this trial, there is no question about that, the government has had a copy of this for more than a year before this trial started. You said you couldn't find it, but I say that the government has it, whether you have it or not, the government has it, and I will remind you that that was all discussed during the testimony of Mr. Maundrell and you said you would look for it.

I say, may it please the Court, that if Mr. Campbell chose in this case to prove any aspect of the transaction here, to crystallize the evidence on any aspect of the transaction of the purchase of the Menlo Club by Mr. Remmer from Mr. Schriber to produce this document in evidence would be legitimate and admissible, and if the prosecution could put it in, the defendant could. I think counsel's argument went more to the weight than the admissibility. I think it is an admissible bit of evidence, admissible from either side of this case, and we renew our offer.

The Court: In view of the situation we have here, the ruling will stand.

I will hear you on this other matter.

Mr. Gillen: I thought it might be practical to give your Honor our views before the jury is called in.

BLURRED COPY

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Gillen: With regard to the prosecution's proffered Exhibit 109B, that exhibit, may it please the Court, comprises an execution on judgment executed out of the County Clerk's office in San Francisco, California, and I will remind your Honor that this pertains to that $1800 judgment against the defendant Remmer on behalf of Ogden F. Monahan, a man who had a judgment for $1800 back in 1948. That is, he obtained judgment on October 5, 1938, and there was some testimony that shows Mr. Monahan——

Mr. Campbell: I think the evidence shows it was finally satisfied in 1945.

Mr. Gillen: Now there are a number of photostatic sheets which we will pass up to your Honor to examine. The first sheet is writ of execution. We have no objection to the form of the exhibit. We will stipulate it is a true and correct photostatic copy, it has been certified to, of the writ of execution, and we think that is properly admissible as a public record.

Now the other documents which are attached are returns on the garnishment. We have no objection to the form, as being true and correct photostatic copies, certified to, but we do have a serious objection to the documents themselves and to their contents, upon the ground we think they are hearsay. In other words, may it please the Court, when a sheriff takes out a garnishment or writ of execution, he goes to a bank or he goes to any business establishment, and he makes an inquiry, with which your Honor is well familiar, as to whether or not that particular party holds anything that belongs to, or is indebted to the person named as the defendant. He obtains from the person he inquires an answer yes or no and he simply makes a return, which is hearsay. It is not an official act in and of itself. In other words, the deputy sheriff who serves the document or makes inquiry does not make his own investigation. Under the law he must be satisfied and content with whatever response he gets, whether true or false response, and therefore the contents of the return on the writ is merely hearsay notation by the deputy sheriff that he made inquiry of some one who told him a no or yes answer. He can not vouch for the truth or falsity and therefore the returns are hearsay.

The Court: Your objection goes to the offer of that portion of the exhibit that has to do with these garnishments?

Mr. Gillen: Yes, your Honor.

The Court: As far as the writ is concerned——

Mr. Gillen: The writ itself we believe is admissible.

The Court: Maybe counsel will go along with you on that.

Mr. Thompson: Well, if the Court please, the important part of the exhibit, from our point of view, is the returns on the writ. It is the sheriff's duty, under writ of execution issued by the court to seize any personal property, goods, etc., belonging to the defendant in his hands. That is his statutory duty and his public duty. That is the duty that he presumably carries out and the returns that are part of these writs not only show returns on specific inquiries at certain places, but there is a general return of writ of execution unsatisfied, in which the sheriff certifies that after due search and diligent inquiry he has been unable to locate any property not exempt from execution belonging to the defendant.

BLURRED COPY

Mr. Gillen: That is the part of the writ we are not objecting to.

The Court: Maybe you can get together with counsel. I would like to find out just what part of it you did not object to.

Mr. Gillen: The first two pages we do not object to. The returns we do object to. In other words, here is an example of it in plaintiff's Exhibit 109A. It says a deputy sheriff——

Mr. Campbell: I think we can get together on this. Now is it agreed that with the proffered Exhibits 109A and 109B that, there having been detached therefrom certain documents, that the documents remaining in those exhibits may be admitted in evidence?

Mr. Gillen: The writs and unsatisfied return of part of the writ.

Mr. Campbell: Yes. We will have these stapled together.

The Court: After they are stapled, show them to counsel again so there will be no question about it.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

Mr. Campbell: May it be stipulated that 109A and 109B may be admitted in evidence?

Mr. Gillen: So stipulated.

The Court: So we will make the order when the jury returns.

[Title of District Court and Cause.]

ARGUMENT RE: EXHIBIT 183

Monday, February 4, 1952, 1:15 P.M.

(In the Absence of the Jury.)

Defendant present with counsel.

Mr. Avakian: Perhaps it would be well if your Honor had the exhibit before him to follow my grounds of the objection.

The Court: I have it.

Mr. Avakian: We object to the offer of Exhibit 183 for identification, your Honor, on the ground it is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial. It is based on erroneous conclusions of law and it assumes facts not in evidence and in many instances it assumes facts directly contrary to the evidence presented by the government, and in line with that, your Honor, I would like to, if I may, take up the particular items in the exhibit and point out to your Honor the respects in which they are assumptions of fact not covered by the evidence, or even contrary to the evidence.

First of all, Item No. 2, which is the B. & R. Smoke Shoppe, and your Honor will recall that the figures that are entered thereas to the amount of the assets of Mr. and Mrs. Remmer in the B. & R. Smoke Shoppe are the figures shown as the total net worth of the B. & R. Smoke Shoppe in one of the other exhibits in evidence here. Now first of all then, the erroneous assumption made here is that the B. & R. Smoke Shoppe is the sole enterprise of Elmer Remmer, whereas the uncontradicted evidence of both of the other two partners, who have been called here by the government, is that the B. & R. Smoke Shoppe was a partnership. Each witness testified to that effect. In other words, with respect to that particular item, the figures that are used as the net worth figures of the B. & R. Smoke Shoppe at the end of each year, are assumptions which are not based on any evidence, because there is no evidence whatsoever of the amount of the assets of the B. & R. Smoke Shoppe on December 31, for any of these years. Mr. Weaver admitted that he had assumed in one case for a period of a year and another case for a period of two years, that there was no change in the bank roll and furthermore, as to one year in which there is evidence, he says the evidence is only five thousand in cash and 15 thousand in markers, rather than the total 20 thousand dollar figure cash used by Mr. Weaver.

The next item, Item 4, which is the Day-Night Cigar Store, again this exhibit assumes that the entire net worth of that enterprise was the net worth of Elmer Remmer, whereas the uncontradicted evidence presented by the government's testimony of the other two partners in that enterprise is that it was a partnership.

The next, your Honor, is Item 5, the 110 Eddy Street, and again this exhibit assumes that the entire net worth of 110 Eddy Street is the net worth of Elmer Remmer, whereas the uncontradicted testimony of the only two witnesses who testified on that point, namely the two partners, Kyne and Cavani, is that that was a partnership.

Then, your Honor, is Item 6, the Menlo Club, where again it is assumed that the entire net worth is entirely the net worth of Elmer Remmer, whereas the uncontradicted testimony of every witness called with respect to the Menlo Club is that it was a partnership.

The next item is No. 7, Transit Smoke Shop, which again assumes that the entire net worth of the Transit Smoke Shop belongs to Elmer Remmer, whereas the uncontradicted testimony of Mr. Kyne is that Mr. Kyne paid up half the investment and there is a check here in evidence, your Honor, issued by the Menlo Club to William Kyne and marked "Loan for Transit," which is in exactly one-half of the amount of the cost of the Transit Smoke Shop and which Mr. Kyne said was used by him to defray his one-half share of the cost of the Transit Smoke Shop.

The next item is No. 8, your Honor, cash on hand, which is shown as December 31, 1946, as $65,000. There is absolutely no evidence whatsoever in the record that on December 31, 1946, Mr. Remmer had $65,000 cash on hand. There is in evidence a check of the Menlo Club issued early in November, 1946, for $65,000 to William Kyne and marked as a loan to Elmer Remmer and which Mr. Kyne testified that he cashed, put the proceeds in Box 48, which he and Mr. Remmer had access to, and used the money when it became necessary, but there is no evidence whatever of $65,000, or even any other specific amount, being on hand on December 31, 1946.

Next, your Honor, is Item 11, the Gallagher & Burton whiskey, and as to that there is included in the amount of the net worth shown for that whiskey the sum of approximately $7400 paid in 1944 as federal excise tax, and in that respect the exhibits makes the erroneous conclusion of law that that $7400 tax should be treated as an additional cost of the whiskey rather than being treated as a currently deductible item.

Item 12 is designated loan to Brice and Silverman. There is absolutely no evidence in the record that Mr. Remmer ever made any loan to Mr. Brice and Mr. Silverman. There is evidence in the record that Mr. Remmer made an investment in a night club in New York, in which Brice and Silverman were concerned and that that night club went broke within a short time, and within four or five months Mr. Remmer received back $8,000 of the $12,000 investment. In connection with that, the significance of the distinction between a loan and an investment is this, that if it was an investment, which was the uncontradicted testimony, and the investment went sour, then if that is a deductible loss because the investment went bad, there is no continuing liability on the part of anybody to repay him for that, so $4,000 at the end of 1946 should not be shown as an asset. In other words, if I invest in a business and the business goes broke, the other partners have no obligation to pay me. There is no evidence this was a loan. The uncontradicted evidence is that it was an investment.

Next, your Honor, is Item 23, which lists 29 thousand dollars as due from the Bank Club for Gallagher & Burton whiskey, and the uncontradicted evidence is, your Honor, that this 29 thousand dollars was not paid to Mr. Remmer until July, 1947, and the effect of showing 29 thousand dollars as an asset of December 31, 1946, is to put Mr. Remmer on the accrual basis of accounting, because that is account receivable for merchandise sold and should not be taken into income until paid on the cash basis, and should be included as an asset only on the accrual basis, and there is no evidence here to the effect that Mr. Remmer was on the accrual basis, nor is there any evidence which would justify, as a matter of legal conclusion, that he should be on the accrual basis, and furthermore, I might point out to your Honor, if he were put on the accrual basis, then to be consistent, the entire net worth statement would have to be on the accrual basis and as to every figure here would be subject to revision.

Next, your Honor, with respect to the liabilities. There is no liability shown with respect to the sum of 50 thousand dollars borrowed from Robert Jeffress on September 27, 1946. The omission of that

BLURRED COPY

50 thousand dollars liability would inflate the net worth as shown in this exhibit by the same amount. Now the uncontradicted evidence is that 50 thousand dollars was borrowed from Mr. Jeffress on September 27, 1946. The uncontradicted evidence is that immediately thereafter, I believe on the next day, Mr. Remmer put 50 thousand dollars into Cal-Neva account, as the books of Cal-Neva show, and that that payment to Cal-Neva is taken into account here in computing his obligations to Cal-Neva, so the omission of the loan from which the payment to Cal-Neva was made would inflate his net worth by 50 thousand dollars, and I point out to your Honor that the uncontradicted evidence also is that in July of 1947, out of this 29 thousand dollar check from the Bank Club, Mr. Remmer paid 23 thousand to the Bank Club at that time on account of Mr. Jeffress' obligation to the Bank Club, so that it appears quite evident from the evidence so far that at least as to 23 thousand dollars of the 50 thousand dollars borrowed from Mr. Jeffress, the obligation was still in existence at the end of 1946.

The sum and substance of what I just said, your Honor, is that Exhibit 183 for identification, instead of correctly showing the difference between Mr. Remmer's total assets and total liabilities, in arriving at the proper net worth, rather miss at least one liability and on the asset side makes assumptions detrimental to him which not only are not covered by the evidence, but in some instances are contrary to the uncontradicted evidence submitted by the government.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

Now, in that connection I would like to call your Honor's attention to the case of Kirsch vs. United States, decided in 1949 by the 8th Circuit Court of Appeals and reported at 174 Fed. (2d), beginning at page 595. In that case, your Honor, the defendant was charged with income tax evasion and the government's case was based on what is commonly referred to as the bank deposit theory, which treats deposits in a bank as gross income to the extent that they are not identified as being something else, and the senior revenue agent testifying in that case was asked to compute the tax due by the defendant on the basis of a hypothetical question, which assumed that the unidentified deposits in his bank accounts were income. On an objection to that question in the trial court that it assumed facts not in evidence, the trial court suggested that the question be amended so as to state specifically that it was being assumed that the unidentified bank deposits were income, and on the basis of that amendment the court overruled the objection, saying: "I think the jury understands that what counsel is asking here, he is putting in these unidentified deposits as being income. Now he is assuming this is income, and he is giving his answer on that assumption, so that if you find it is not income and the amount is not the same on those unidentified deposits then, of course, this computation wouldn't be correct and you should not consider it," and the question was answered and after conviction, the Circuit Court of Appeals reversed the conviction, holding that it was improper to put a hypothetical question to the revenue agent based on assumptions of fact which were not covered by the evidence and which were, in fact, contrary to the evidence, and in that respect the evidence in the case showed, your Honor, from the testimony of the revenue agents, as follows: (Reads from 174 Fed. (2d) "At the trial * * * of the fact assumed." (Page 599-601.)

Now, your Honor, the assumptions that have been made here in preparing Exhibit 183 for identification, which run afoul of that rule——

The Court: I would like to have that before me.

Mr. Avakian: Yes, I am going to hand it to you. The assumptions that are going to violate that rule I will not enumerate in detail, and call attention to just two categories—one is the assumption in the face of uncontradicted evidence of the government's witness that none of these enterprises was a partnership; secondly, in another category is the presumption of the 50 thousand dollars that Mr. Remmer put into Cal-Neva in September, 1946, as in effect an asset, that is reducing the amount that he owed Cal-Neva, treating that in effect as increase in net worth and excluding, your Honor, the question of liability to Jeffress for 50 thousand dollars, which was incurred at or about the same time. I might call again your Honor's attention to this language here in the Kirsch case, in which they say it is wrong for the agent to do this, it is wrong for the agent to say: "From the evidence it shows all these deposits were not income, but I did not know how much was and I have made no effort to find out."

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

Certainly then it is improper to ignore the borrowing from Mr. Jeffress.

The Court: There was complete absence of any evidence that certain items of the bank account were income in that case.

Mr. Avakian: The evidence showed certain items were income, as to others, they didn't know.

The Court: There was a complete lack of evidence as to those.

Mr. Avakian: That is right, your Honor. Now the significance here of ignoring the partnership is that all of the assets of these partnerships, even though on the books of the companies that are in evidence here, even though capital accounts of different partners have been built up, even though that represents the portion of the assets there in which the partners have an equity, that is all ignored, your Honor, although that is the uncontradicted evidence and the sum total of the assets of those businesses is treated as Mr. Remmer's net worth. Now if there were testimony here, your Honor, to the effect that these were not partnerships, if partners came in, for example, and said, "I was described as a partner, but I wasn't a partner," or if the evidence were that the partner said, "Although a certain amount was credited on the books to my capital account, it was never intended that I should have that equity," then it would be a different matter, but the uncontradicted evidence of every witness, your Honor, shows that these were partners, every witness called here said, "Yes, I was taken in as a partner, my share of profits was credited to me on the books to build up my capital investment in the place." Now we can't ignore that.

Now, I would like to hand this decision up to your Honor. The portions from which I read commence at page 599. The decision itself commences at page 595; page 599 to 601, inclusive, I believe are the pertinent portions, your Honor.

The Court: I can't think of any questions at this time.

Mr. Campbell: I would first like to point out that the Kirsch case has no application to our present problem in this case. As I recall, the Kirsch case was one on which the government predicated the unreported income on what is known as the bank deposit method, as contrasted to the net worth method, which is the government's contention in this case. Under the bank deposit method, so-called, the government attempts to prove, through large bank deposits which continue over the period in question and which are in such amounts as to appear to be income, being received in the course of business, that a proper inference can be raised that those bank deposits are taxable income; and in the Kirsch case, as I recall, that was not supported, for example, by increases in the defendant's net worth, and I do not believe any attempt was made to show other than in general terms, the source of the money nor for what it was spent after it had come into the hands of the defendant, and in that case the government agent ignored the Blackman case—and the court does distinguish it from the

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

Blackman case, which was also a bank deposit case —the agent stated that the amount of bank deposits might very well include items which were re-deposits and therefore not income, but that in the absence of anything to the contrary, we are assuming, and have assumed, that they were income. In the Blackman case, which is the leading case on bank deposit slips, the agent testified he had, to the best of his ability, eliminated all duplications from re-deposits of funds. In other words, the bank deposit method, of course, is essentially a somewhat unsatisfactory method because a man's bank account does not necessarily reflect income producing activities. In other words, a man in business, such as a merchant, may cash checks for his customers, or may accept checks which are in part payment for goods and deliver the balance in cash to his customer, so that his deposits do not necessarily indicate his receipts for a given date, and that is the same type of thing which the agent in the Kirsch case admitted he had not eliminated.

Here, however, we are dealing, not with attempt to prove income through daily or weekly deposits to a bank account, but we are relying upon the increase of assets belonging to the defendant and which method, of course, has on various occasions and at various times in various cases been approved by this circuit. A recent case in this circuit is that of Barcott vs. United States, reported at 169 Fed. (2d), 929, in which the decision written by Judge Orr, the other two members of the bench concurring in the decision being Judge Stevens and Judge

McCormick, who recently retired as senior district judge at Las Vegas. Reading from page 930: (Reads) "Agent Swan made a computation——"

The Court: I think part of this argument is adressed to this contention that there is no evidence showing that certain of these enterprises are not partnerships. It would appear to me at this state that would probably be the most serious of the questions raised.

Mr. Avakian: Also the 65 thousand dollar amount on hand and the excluding of the Jeffress liability of 50 thousand dollars.

Mr. Campbell: I will refer to the two individual items first and then to the partnership allegation.

As to the liability of 50 thousand dollars to Jeffress, the defense in cross-examination of Mr. Maundrell, introduced a note bearing date, I believe, September, 1946, or some such date, in amount of 50 thousand dollars which, as I say, was produced by the defense. Mr. Maundrell testified that he was present when Jeffress, who is now deceased, came into the office with a large number of bills wrapped up in a newspaper, that Remmer called him in and told him to write up some kind of note and receipt for the 50 thousand dollars, and he wrote up that note. He testified he had no knowledge of the transaction other than that on direct examination, that so far as he knew, the note could have been paid back the next day. He had no knowledge when it was paid back or how long it was outstanding, so there is no evidence in the record that there was an outstanding liability of 50 thousand dollars at the end of 1946.

Now counsel refers to certain evidence given here by Mr. Perkins, the accountant for the Bank Club, that when they got to the point of paying some 29 thousand dollars they owed Mr. Remmer on account of whiskey in 1946, that at Mr. Remmer's direction when they repaid this in 1947 that they applied some 23 thousand dollars, or very similar sum, to an obligation which Jeffress owed to the Bank Club. That was all there was of that testimony. Now how Mr. Avakian can draw from that —of course, he is entitled to any inference he desires to draw—but how he can properly draw from that the fact that was a repayment of this 50 thousand dollar loan, wasn't another loan or wasn't a repayment on some loan that was made subsequently, I don't know. All Mr. Perkins knew, and all he testified to, was in June or July of 1947 Mr. Remmer permitted the application of some funds owed to him to be applied to the obligation of Jeffress, and I submit that this is not sufficient proof that there was an outstanding obligation or liability as between Mr. Remmer and Mr. Jeffress as of December 31, 1946. It may be there is evidence available to the defense to prove that as the evidence now shows, the government is certainly entitled to draw the inference it has. I might say in that regard there was testimony from Mr. Weaver—he was asked if during the course of his investigation he had gone into this loan between Jeffress and Remmer, for the purpose of ascertaining whether or not it was outstanding as of December 31, 1946, and he was asked specifically and called for certain exhibits as to when, during the course of his examination he had gone into that matter, and referred, I believe, to some letter which he had received from Semenza regarding credits to Mr. Remmer's account, that is, to Mr. Remmer's account in the books of Cal-Neva, Inc. As I recall Mr. Semenza's testimony, he stated he was unable to ascertain there was any such outstanding liability.

BLURRED COPY

Mr. Avakian: That is not true.

Mr. Campbell: The record will speak in that regard. As to the 65 thousand dollar item, there is in evidence check for 65 thousand dollars which Mr. Kyne stated he cashed, that he wrote at Mr. Remmer's request, cashed the check and received 65 thousand dollars cash and turned that cash over to Mr. Remmer, as I recall, in November, 1946. At any rate, the check is here and bears a date; that that money had never, to his knowledge, been returned. Under the circumstances, we have charged that 65 thousand dollars as being on hand as of December 31, 1946.

Now with relation to these partnerships to which reference has been made. Counsel states the record is entirely lacking in any evidence which would substantiate the government's placing of these assets, or of the net worths of these businesses, in the asset side of Mr. Remmer's statement. Now the evidence here shows that the entire investment in each of these enterprises, with the exception of the 186 Club, where some 16 thousand dollars was put up by Kopstake and Nealis and subsequently returned to them from earnings of the corporation, and with the exception of certain money in 110 Eddy Street, which was put up by Mr. Pratt, but which was returned to him, that all of the monies and funds were put up by Mr. Remmer.

The evidence further shows that the agreements as between Mr. Remmer and these other people, if they be considered as bona fide agreements, provided that Mr. Remmer was to receive the return of his investments before these other people were to receive anything. Mr. Kyne repeatedly was returned to the witness stand, he stated these were working agreements, he stated that the agreements of the Menlo Club were the same in connection with all the organizations. It is true the Menlo Club agreements were entered into after the origination of this investigation, but I think of considerable significance is the fact that you have these various groups, with supposedly different partners, yet the money was transferred back and forth without reference. Partners on the books were eliminated and new ones brought in apparently and showing on the books of the percentages to which the partners were allegedly interested, without consultation of the partners. The one man who was produced here who made an investment in the 110 Eddy Street, Mr. Pratt, did not know who his partners were, if any, and couldn't find out what the profits of the concern were, if any.

So far as the B. & R. Smoke Shoppe, the Day-

BLURRED COPY

Night Cigar Store, the Menlo Club, Transit Smoke Shop, these were all enterprises in which all of the cash involved was put up by this defendant. They were his capital. So far as the record is concerned, he was entitled to get back everything he had put in—and I think this is for the jury to determine—the government has produced here everybody who purported to have any interest in these matters.

As to the loan to Brice and Silverman, examination of the documents themselves will show that it was a loan. It was the testimony of Mr. Maundrell that it was a loan. It was the testimony of Mr. Maundrell on cross-examination that Brice had informed him that that portion which the government is now allowing as a repayment, had been repaid to Mr. Remmer.

Now as to the Gallagher and Burton whiskey, counsel raised the question of including the obligation from the Bank Club to Mr. Remmer for the purchase of that whiskey. Well, I presume it could be put either way, either he has the whiskey on hand or he has an obligation for the whiskey. The amount of money would be the same, whether you put it as whiskey on hand or whiskey for which he is to received money, which has been acknowledged by the Bank Club as outstanding and owing to Mr. Remmer as of December 31, 1946. When a man sells an asset, which this whiskey was, to a concern who are to pay him subsequently for it, he does not take a loss, to carry out Mr. Avakian's argument, to the amount of his investment in the asset; in other words, he had 29 or 30 thousand dollars' worth of whiskey—he cannot take a 30 thousand dollar loss of income for that period except he sold it, as Mr. Avakian's theory would result. In computing income on a net worth basis, however, accounts receivable are properly included as a part of the net worth, and that is so particularly where the assets giving rise to the account receivable have been removed as an asset from the net worth statement, as is the situation here.

Now as I understand the decisions with relation to the net worth method and with relation to the computations and with relation to the preparation of charts, either side is entitled, if the evidence will support it, or the inference from the evidence which can be reasonably drawn on the theory of the party presenting the particular chart, is entitled to place such theory before the jury, and I refer specifically to the case of U. S. vs. Skink, 126 Fed. (2d), 702, where a similar method as that which is here adopted by the government is used. Now this chart which is offered here is based entirely upon evidence which has been produced in this case. Now I agree that counsel does now, and has throughout the case, and will continue undoubtedly to quarrel with much of that evidence and to quarrel with the inferences which the government would draw from that evidence, which, of course, is perfectly proper for them to do so. That is one of their functions in the case, but I submit that this particular exhibit seeks to draw, if it draws any inference, draws inferences which can be legitimately drawn from the evidence and which the jury can have the right to draw from the evidence. Counsel's statement here is argument which might properly be presented to the jury in his argument of the case, of the strength and value which should be given to this proposed Exhibit 183. However, I do not believe that that affects the question of the admissibility of the document, for such weight as the jury might finally determine to give it under the legal instructions of the Court.

There is one other case also on the matter of recomputation by treasury agents of assets and liabilities and resulting net worth of a taxpayer. I refer to a case decided May 28, 1951, by the 6th Circuit, Garivy vs. U. S., 189 Fed. (2d), 459.

Mr. Avakian: If I may first comment briefly on these authorities which Mr. Campbell has cited and then on certain factual statements he made.

The Garivy case which he just cited deals only with the proposition it is proper for expert witnesses to present for use of net income and tax resulting therefrom the net worth method and we have no quarrel, your Honor, with the propriety of using expert witnesses to make these computations. That is not the point of our objection at all. The point of our objection is that this must be based on evidence in the record. Now the Garivy case did not involve that question. The Barcott case is simply a case concerning net worth method, was properly applied in that case and does not deal with the question of the meaning or scope of a hypothetical question to an expert witness, so it likewise has no bearing on the point here. It has been some time since I have read the Skink case, but my recollection is it likewise does not involve the rule the hypothetical question to an expert must be based on evidence supported by the record.

Mr. Campbell: Pardon me—I did not understand the hypothetical question is presently before the Court.

Mr. Avakian: Oh, yes, it is, your Honor, because incumbent in the exhibit if the computation of net worth on the basis of the evidence that is summarized in the exhibit. Instead of the witness saying verbally what the evidence is, he has it set forth in writing.

The Court: Let me ask you this question: Couldn't a computation be based upon the evidence and also upon a reasonable inference which might be drawn from the evidence?

Mr. Avakian: That is right, your Honor. The hypothetical question may include any inference which the jury could properly draw from the evidence that is in the record. That is where we come exactly to the Kirsch case. In the Kirsch case, your Honor will recall, there was a fixed——

The Court (Interceding): Yes, and I take it in that Kirsch case there was no evidence at all—(reads from the Kirsch case). Because it is found some of the deposits unaccounted for by any evidence on that point.

Mr. Avakian: That brings us specifically to the 65 thousand dollar cash on hand and I point to the inconsistency in Mr. Campbell's argument between that point and the Jeffress loan. He says the

BLURRED COPY

Jeffress loan was negotiated September 27, 1946. There is no evidence, other than Mr. Perkins' statement of 23 thousand dollar payment by Remmer to Jeffres' account the following year, that that liability still existed at the end of 1946, but on the 65 thousand dollars that Mr. Kyne says he turned over to Mr. Remmer on November 7, 1946, there is no evidence whatsoever that that money was on hand on December 31st. Mr. Campbell did not point to any evidence. On the contrary, he said, "Under the circumstances, we are entitled to assume that that money was still on hand." On the contrary, your Honor, Mr. Kyne's testimony is that Box 48 was continuously being used to put money in, take money out, and there is no record what was there at any particular time. He put the 65 thousand dollars there on November 7, 1946, but there is no evidence, your Honor, as to whether that, or any portion of it, or even a penny of it, was there on December 31st. The record is silent. We meet exactly the point of the Kirsch case. An assumption is being made without evidence to support it.

Mr. Campbell says, with respect to the Gallagher and Burton whiskey, it doesn't matter whether we ignore the whiskey or the amount payable on it. It does matter, your Honor, because the whiskey was entered at cost of 29 thousand dollars, as shown here by the proposed Exhibit 183 at the end of 1945. If you eliminate the whiskey from the assets and put it in account receivable, you are in effect charging him with having receivable, you are in effect charging him with having received 29 thousand taxable income in 1946, when actually he did not get the money until 1947. That is why I say the assumption he makes here puts it on the accrual basis.

Then, your Honor, with respect to these partnerships. Mr. Campbell overlooks the fact that, using Mr. Maundrell and the Menlo Club as an example, there was a credit on the Menlo Club books to Mr. Maundrell's account at the end of 1946 in amount of $17,000. Mr. Maundrell, during the next thirteen months, withdrew $15,000 of that $17,000. In the exhibit here, your Honor, that portion of the assets, namely, that $17,000 credited to Maundrell on the books of the Menlo Club, is treated as Mr. Remmer's asset. The evidence shows within thirteen months Mr. Maundrell put $15,000 in his own pocket or used for his own purposes and yet this exhibit, in the face of that, your Honor, in the face of that treats that $17,000 as part of Mr. Remmer's net worth. Now it is credited on the books to Maundrell's account, it is his portion, his equity in the assets of the Menlo Club. He actually draws it out within thirteen months; over a period of thirteen months in periodical withdrawals, he withdraws it, your Honor. Now does the evidence here support the inference that that $17,000 credited on Mr. Maundrell's account is entirely Mr. Remmer's assets? It does not, your Honor. There is no reasonable inference can be drawn. These are all facts brought into this case by the prosecution's witness. It would be different if Mr. Maundrell said "none of that $17,000 was credited on the books to my account, it did not belong to me and I never exercised a claim over it and I walked out and ignored it and left it there." That would be different, but Mr. Maundrell took $15,000 of it within the next thirteen months and you can't draw inferences contrary to that, your Honor. That is the prosecution's witness testifying. That is the uncontradicted testimony; that is what every witness says, and you can't draw an inference contrary to the prosecution's uncontradicted testimony. If the evidence were questionable, yes, but where the evidence is direct and positive and it is uncontradicted, you can't draw inferences contrary to it. That is the point of the Kirsch case. Undoubtedly in the Kirsch case the government argued to the jury that they should infer that all of these bank deposits represent income and undoubtedly the jury did infer or they wouldn't have convicted him, but the Circuit Court says no, that was improper, there was no basis for inferring from the evidence in that case that all the deposits were income, and similarly, as to each of these various items, we submit that the uncontradicted evidence is in such a state that on many of these items it is not permissible to draw any inference contrary to the direct testimony of the witnesses.

Now, your Honor, if we are right in any major respect, you can see the prejudice of submitting to the jury and allowing the jury to see his net worth statement, which on the basis of various assumptions made, which we feel are contrary to the evidence, builds up a net worth at the end of 1946 of 482 thousand dollars. Now that is not correct, your Honor. There are some items there that are correct, but there are many on which no proper inference from the evidence could support the inclusion.

Mr. Campbell: We will submit it, your Honor.

The Court: Mr. Campbell, on this $17,000 received by Mr. Maundrell, what is your position in regard to that?

Mr. Campbell: Well, simply this, your Honor; I do not think the evidence in the case shows he received $17,000.

Mr. Avakian: Fifteen thousand.

Mr. Campbell: Certain taxes were paid for that and he received a certain amount of cash. Now as I see the situation, we have to take that which existed as of December, 1946. Now there was in existence an agreement about that time between Mr. Maundrell and Mr. Remmer, by which Mr. Remmer was to receive a return of his 175 thousand dollar investment before these other people were to receive anything. Now we do know that the books of the Menlo Club were entirely inadequate for the period which we have under consideration here. For example, the bank account was left entirely off the records, funds were transferred back and forth from Mr. Maundrell and whatever funds were needed for another enterprise, they would come out of the safety deposit box or out of the Menlo funds. It may very well have been, we don't know—but in a period subsequent to this

BLURRED COPY

Mr. Remmer did get his entire 175 thousand dollars back, which would entitle Mr. Maundrell to what funds he received some 13 months later. However, for the purpose of this case and for the purpose of determining the relationship of assets as of December 31, 1946, I think we have to look to the situation as it existed at that time—what the circumstances were, what the impelling factors were of Mr. Maundrell receiving this money, were there legitimate partners who had dropped out of the thing long before—Mr. Fricker and Mr. Ditto received nothing as far as the evidence shows. Whether their account was still being carried on the books, I don't know, but I do believe that we have to look at the situation as it existed at the end of 1946. The evidence would show that Mr. Maundrell apparently was the only one—I believe that there are some small payment shown in the records to Nelson.

Mr. Avakian: Not so small.

Mr. Campbell: Well, the record shows that. I think the government is entitled to draw its inference from the records and from the exhibits which are here. So far as this witness drawing any inference, he has, according to his testimony and examination of the records here will disclose, placed on here the figures which are disclosed in the exhibits to which reference has been made and which are here in evidence. That is the government's position.

The Court: Well, the exhibit will be admitted in evidence.

3:50 P.M.

(Defendant present with counsel.)

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, the testimony of Mr. Maundrell which I have in mind is at pages 1401 to 1404 from the transcript, and I read particularly these questions and answers on cross-examination:

"Q. Now, Mr. Maundrell, you were questioned concerning two checks that were issued by you in November of 1945—November 16th, I believe was the date—for six thousand dollars to Lou Brice and Mattie Silverman. Those two checks, totalling 12 thousand dollars, represented a 12 thousand dollar investment that Mr. Remmer made in a night club in New York with Mr. Brice and Mr. Silverman, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

"Q. And that night club failed, did it not?

"A. Yes, sir.

"Q. In how short a time?

"A. About 8 days.

"Q. It operated about 8 days and failed?

"A. Yes, sir."

And then there is subsequent testimony, as to which, I think there is no dispute, that four or five months later Mr. Remmer told Mr. Maundrell that at some time prior to that conversation he had gotten back eight thousand dollars out of that twelve thousand.

Now, your Honor, we feel this question is proper. There is also testimony of Mr. Kyne, which your Honor can recall, where he talked to Mr. Remmer on the long distance telephone, Mr. Kyne being in

BLURRED COPY

New York, and Mr. Remmer told him he had a piece of a New York night club. In any event, your Honor, the purpose of the question is this. One possible interpretation of the evidence, according to this testimony of Mr. Maundrell I have just read——

The Court: Pardon me—does Mr. Campbell dispute that?

Mr. Campbell: Yes, to this extent, your Honor. I have before me, for example, check 1538, which is Exhibit 133, in regard to this check to Lou Brice for six thousand dollars. I also have before me government's Exhibit 133, which is the check stub book and which is marked "Loan." I have in mind the fact that on direct examination Mr. Maundrell testified as both the six thousand paid to Brice and the six thousand paid to Silverman, both were loans in connection with that and the question on cross-examination——

The Court: Let us find out what he said on direct examination.

Mr. Campbell: Yes. Might I borrow your transcript?

Mr. Avakian: Surely. Your Honor, as long as there is evidence which supports the facts in my question——

The Court (Interceding): If there is evidence on this direct examination that this was a loan, then in response to a question on cross-examination about an investment, I don't know that an inference should be drawn what he calls a loan should be changed to investment.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

Mr. Avakian: It can be interpreted either way in this case. If it is subject to two interpretations, we are entitled to question on both of them.

The Court: Did Mr. Maundrell use the word "investment"? Let us see what he said on direct.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor will also recall Mr. Kyne said he had a piece of a night club, that also has a bearing on it. That was on direct, your Honor.

Mr. Campbell: Here is his testimony on direct examination, page 1219:

"I show you plaintiff's Exhibit 133G, Check No. 1538, dated November 16, 1945, payable to Lou Brice, in amount of $6,000, and ask you for what purpose that check was drawn?

"A. Well, that was given to Mr. Brice as payment on night club Mr. Remmer had an interest in in New York.

"Q. What was the source of the funds on which you drew this check?

"A. The money was given to me in cash by either Mr. Remmer or the manager of the Menlo Club. If Mr. Remmer wasn't around, I always got the money from the manager."

I think from the record either inference could be drawn.

The Court: The objection will be overruled.

Mr. Campbell: I will withdraw my objection.

Opening Statement

By Mr. Pike:

May it please the Court, ladies and gentlemen of the jury: This morning I made a brief statement of what the case was about to this extent, that I endeavored to outline the elements contained in the six different counts or charges of the indictment. Now, as you have been told by the Court, the indictment itself is no evidence whatsoever of guilt. It is the mere formal charge against the defendant in this case. It is, however, as the Court has indicated, the mechanism through which and upon which the evidence brought before the jury for its consideration must be predicated. What I had to say this morning was, of course, not evidence in the case, and what I have to say now in connection with this opening statement, or what I say or any other attorney in this case may say throughout this trial is not in any sense evidence. If I make errors in referring to the figures contained in these charges, I have no doubt that I will be promptly corrected. However, I assure you that, to the best of my ability, the correct figures will be presented for your consideration at all times.

The jury has listened to the reading of the indictment and each of the six counts contained in it and each juror is, of course, aware at this time that the six charges, and each of them, charge the defendant, Elmer F. Remmer, with the violation of a certain federal statute, which makes it an offense for a person to wilfully attempt to avoid and defeat the payment of a tax due the United States. In this case, of course, the particular tax that is referred to is the federal income tax and the particular years that are referred to in the indictment are the calendar years 1944, 1945, and 1946. There are two counts in the indictment as to each of those three years, '44, '45, and '46, and, for example, with reference to the first year in which the violation is charged, the calendar year 1944, we find the charge there to be that the defendant, Elmer Remmer, with intent to violate the law in attempting to defeat and evade a large part of the tax due the United States for income, did file a false and fraudulent income tax return for himself, in which he falsely stated the amount of taxable income that he had received for that taxable year and the amount of tax due, and the indictment then goes on, in that count, to state the government's contention and what it will be obliged to prove as to the actual taxable income that he received for the calendar year 1944 and the correct amount of tax that was due and payable on the actual taxable income received by the defendant for that year.

Now in the second count of the indictment we see the name of Helen L. Remmer appearing for the first time. Now, as the jury knows, Helen L. Remmer is not a defendant in this case and there is no other defendant in this case besides Elmer F. Remmer, but in the second count of the indictment the charge is that for the calendar year, 1944, Elmer Remmer, the defendant, wilfully and knowingly, and for the purpose of evading the payment of this tax due, or a large part of the tax due, filed, or caused to be filed for Helen L. Remmer a false and fraudulent income tax return, in which the amount of taxable income received by Helen L. Remmer for the calendar year 1944 was falsely stated and the amount of tax due on the taxable income received by Mrs. Remmer for that year was falsely stated. The indictment then goes on to charge the government's contention as to the correct taxable income for Mrs. Remmer for the calendar year 1944, and also to state in the indictment the amount of tax that was due for that year. Thus we have for the calendar year 1944, Elmer Remmer filing his own false income tax return, according to the charge, and in the second count of the indictment that Elmer F. Remmer filed, or caused to be filed a false and fraudulent income tax return for his wife, Helen L. Remmer for that same year.

I say that by way of illustration because if we move on then to the calendar year 1945, we find a similar situation. We find in the third count of the indictment that Elmer Remmer is charged again, for the purpose already stated, the charge that he unlawfully, in the indictment, filed a false return for himself in that calendar year, and we find in the next succeeding count of the indictment, Count 4, that he is charged with having filed, or caused to have been filed, a false and fraudulent return for the taxable income received by his wife, Helen L. Remmer for 1945; and just so, when we come to the fifth and sixth counts of the indictment, we note that they relate to the calendar year 1946 and we find in the fifth count of the indictment the charge that Elmer Remmer, for the purpose stated in each of the counts, did wilfully attempt to evade the payment of the correct income tax due from him for his taxable income for the calendar year 1946, filed a false and fraudulent return. The indictment in that particular Count 5, charges the amount of income that he reported and the amount of tax upon that income and then it charges what, under the government's contention, he should have reported in order to comply with the law and the amount of tax that was payable on that correct and larger amount of income.

Count six and last count of the indictment follows the same pattern. It is for the calendar year 1946, just the same as the fifth count. The charge is, without elaborating again, that the defendant, Elmer Remmer, filed, or caused to be filed, a false and fraudulent return of income for the calendar year on behalf of Helen L. Remmer. The indictment then sets out the amount that was reported, which it charges was a false amount, it was known to be false to Elmer Remmer at the time he reported it. He did it wilfully, in an attempt to evade payment of income tax due on that and sets out the amount of tax computed on the amount of income reported by the defendant in the false and fraudulent return filed for Helen L. Remmer for the calendar year of 1946 and also the government charges, in the concluding language of that count, the correct amount of tax that should have been paid.

The jury has been impressed by the language "wilfully and knowingly," as it appears in the federal statute, that makes it an offense for a person to attempt to evade the payment of a tax due, and the indictment contains the same language. The defendant is charged with having wilfully and knowingly attempted to defeat and evade a large part of the tax due in each one of these counts. That is true in every count, and "wilfully and knowingly," of course, means just what is says. It means that the government must establish——

Mr. Gillen: Your Honor, I must offer an objection that counsel is now departing from the prerogative of——

The Court (Interceding): I think counsel is just about to tell the jury that the government must prove the intent.

Mr. Pike: That is right.

Mr. Gillen: He is interpreting words, which is your Honor's province and must come from your Honor as a matter of law.

Mr. Pike: It is an element of the offense and that is what I am trying to say within my ability—that the government is obliged to prove knowledge on the part of the defendant that the amount of taxable income reported in the particular income tax return filed for each of these years, 1944, 1945, and 1946, was not the correct income for that particular calendar year. The government is obliged to prove that, which is the intent element in this case, beyond a reasonable doubt.

Now there will be rather voluminous records offered in evidence by the government and many records may be received in evidence. Those records will be produced before the jury by people who will bring them into court and standing alone, the jury may wish to know the significance of any particular documents or records that are brought before the Court and the jury for consideration. It is in connection with this evidence, when received and admitted in evidence, and the other accepted evidence in the case on the part of the government, that I address these brief remarks, as possible assistance to the jury in following the evidence which will be submitted.

In connection with the government's case evidence will be brought forward to show taxable income in the amount charged by the government in each of these calendar years, both as to the counts referring to the income of Elmer F. Remmer and the counts referring to Mrs. Remmer, or as she is named, Helen L. Remmer, for the purposes of this trial, for the particular calendar years, and there will be brought before the jury evidence as to the method of the determination of that amount of income for each of those years, as referred to in each of the six counts of the indictment.

The evidence will follow what may be referred to as a net worth computation of income. Now there it is the position of the government that net worth of a taxpayer may be considered generally as the difference between his assets and his liabilities, or perhaps, in more of our usual way of talking, the difference between what he owns and what his obligations and debts are, constitute a person's net worth. So here the government, in presenting its evidence as to the income that is charged by the government to be taxable under each of these counts of the indictment for each calendar, will present evidence showing what the net worth of the taxpayer was at the begining of the calendar year and will further offer evidence to show what the net worth of the taxpayer was at the end of the particular calendar year.

Now by way of pointing out this evidence, let us say that this evidence will show that the sources of property are confined within general classes through necessity, and those classes are gifts, inheritance, borrowed money, net income, whether that income be profits or whether it be earned income, and the evidence will consider and be presented to you on the proposition of the elimination or the consideration of the elements of gifts or inheritance having been received by the taxpayer during any given calendar year, after the net worth of that taxpayer has been established as of the beginning of that particular calendar year.

Now by way of pointing out as a further simple illustration on that, let us assume that if there were ten thousand dollars net worth of the taxpayer at the beginning of the particular calendar year, and eliminating gifts, inheritance and borrowed money, and the net worth of the taxpayer at the end of that particular calendar year is twenty thousand dollars, then there would appear to be a gain through income of ten thousand dollars at least, and why did I say at least? Because if the taxpayer has a gain of ten thousand dollars at the end of the calendar year in his net worth, the taxpayer has had his living expenses in addition to that, and it is generally on this net worth method of computation that the government's evidence in this case will proceed. The evidence will come forward before you on the proposition too that when it comes to the value of assets and liabilities, that the cost and not the marketable value will be relied upon by the government to establish the correct taxable income as charged by the government.

Now you have heard other language here in each count of the indictment as follows, and I read from Count 1, about the middle of the count, where it says:

> "Elmer F. Remmer in the year 1944, * * * filed and caused to be filed with the Collector of Internal Revenue for the Internal Revenue Department for the District of Nevada; Reno, Nevada, a false and fraudulent income tax return, wherein he stated that his net income for the said calendar year, computed * * *"

This is the language particularly:

> "* * * computed on community property basis was * * *"

according to the government's charge, a false and fraudulent return and smaller figure than he actually had in the way of income. But referring again: "Computed on community property basis"—I do not wish to discuss law, but under appropriate instructions of the Court you will be advised as to that aspect of the language of the indictment, which appears in every count, and you will note in that connection, of course, that each time there has been in the first count a reported income of Elmer F. Remmer, in the second count the reported income of Helen L. Remmer, the third count the reported income of Elmer F. Remmer, the fourth count the reported income of Helen Remmer, the fifth count the reported income of Elmer Remmer, the sixth count the reported income of Helen Remmer, and relating to the right of a taxpayer in a community property State, which Nevada is, to divide their community property income for the purposes of the income tax law, so as to properly take advantage of the particular tax advantages that might be available to them through so dividing their income in their income tax returns.

So I would say this, that as to the charge here, we find that Elmer Remmer is charged in each count with the intent, or in the language here, "wilfully and knowingly" having filed these false and fraudulent returns, in an attempt to evade payment of a large part of the income tax due for the particular calendar year, and I have stated that the evidence to be brought forward by the government will follow the net worth computation basis and there will be certain evidence as to the assets of Mr. Remmer as at the beginning of each of these three particular calendar years, '44, '45, and '46. What he owned at that time was what we will say his assets were at that time, and what he owed at that time was what his liabilities were at that time and the amount by which his assets exceeded his liabilities both at the beginning and at the end of each of those three calendar years, was what his net worth was at the beginning of 1944, and the end of 1944, and the end of 1944, and the beginning of 1945, at the end of 1945, at the beginning of 1946, and at the end of the calendar year 1946.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

Now again to possibly assist the jury in following this evidence that will be produced by the government, certain businesses, in which the government contends Mr. Remmer had an interest, either sole or partial, will be produced and they will relate, besides the interest in Cal-Neva, to nine other businesses or clubs, six of which were situated in San Francisco, California, and three of which were situated in the community of El Cerrito in Contra Costa County, State of California, and further pointing to the testimony in that regard, I might state the names of those clubs or businesses are as follows: That the six businesses in San Francisco, in reference to which the government will offer evidence as showing the interest of Elmer Remmer in the same, are: B-R Smoke Shoppe, 186 Club, Day-Night Cigar Store, 110 Eddy, Menlo Club, and Transit Smoke Shop; and that the three businesses in El Cerrito, Contra Costa County, California, were known as the San Diego Social Club, 21 Club, and the 311 Club.

Now here I have already stated that the net worth computation method would be applied and evidence will be brought before you for your consideration as to the application of that method of computation of taxable income for each calendar year as to these businesses and the method of computation for all, as the evidence will be developed, will be the same. The net worth, which is the difference between the assets and the liabilities, of each of these clubs and businesses, ten in number, including Cal-Neva, as to the beginning of each calendar year and as to the end of each calendar year of 1944, 1945, and 1946, will be shown and then, depending upon the evidence as to the particular interest of the taxpayer in the particular club or business which has shown an increase in net worth, there will be, under the government's contention, a proportionate chargeable interest in the way of taxable income to the defendant, Elmer F. Remmer, for that particular calendar year, by reason of his interest in that club or business which has produced the income resulting in increased net worth between the beginning of any particular calendar year and the end of any particular calendar year.

I have outlined again the charges in the indictment and I have tried to outline for your consideration the character and type of evidence that will be brought before you. I have referred to the net worth method of tax computation that the evidence will refer to here. After the proper allowance has been made for the elements of gifts received, inheritance, borrowed money, that there remains in all income, whether that income be earned income or income by profits from a business or from a club. Now essentially that evidence will be developed from the testimony of witnesses, the introduction of documents, and through the tendered testimony of further witnesses correlating and connecting these many references which, standing perhaps alone and isolated, may not have their full connection apparent to you in connection with the government's charge at the time that they are offered individually for your consideration.

I will say once more it is recognized that the government has the burden of establishing the elements of the charge contained in each of the six counts beyond a reasonable doubt.

Supplement to Plaintiff's Opening Statement

Thursday, November 29, 1951

Mr. Pike: Your Honor, just prior to the recess of court yesterday afternoon, I made an opening statement to the jury. At this time, with permission of the Court, I wish to add to and amplify that statement in certain particulars.

The Court: You may do so.

Mr. Pike: I wish to state that the government will introduce evidence to establish each of the elements of the offense charged in each of the six counts of the indictment in this case. In other words, the government expects to prove each of those charges and each of the elements contained in each of those six charges by competent legal evidence brought before this jury for its consideration, and as to the elements of the offense charged in each of the six counts, I might say that the evidence brought before you by the government for your consideration, and for the purpose of establishing in the mind of each of you beyond a reasonable doubt to establish the guilt of the defendant in this case, that evidence will be produced by the government to show that, as to the particular calendar year charged in the respective counts of the indictment, the defendant, Elmer F. Remmer, did wilfully and knowingly attempt to defeat and evade a large part of the income tax due and owing by him to the United States in the particular calendar year referred to in the count of the indictment, by filing and causing to be filed with the Collector of Internal Revenue of the Internal Revenue office of Reno, District of Nevada, a false and fraudulent income tax return, wherein he stated that his net income—or, as the case may be as to certain counts, as I explained yesterday, the net income of his wife, Helen L. Remmer—during each of these three calendar years, 1944, 1945, and 1946, was a certain stated amount and that the amount of tax due and owing thereon was a certain stated amount as given in these particular counts of the indictment; and the evidence will further show that the defendant, Elmer F. Remmer then and there well knew that his net income for that said calendar year, computed on the community property basis, or the income of his wife, Helen L. Remmer, for that particular calendar year, according to the particular count of the indictment, similarly computed, was a larger sum than that filed in his income tax return and that the tax payable on the larger and greater sum of income, which the government will offer evidence to prove and with the intent of proving, was larger than the tax which the defendant paid, or caused to be paid. The government expects to produce evidence before you to prove that the amount of income reported in these false and fraudulent income tax returns, either filed or caused to be filed by the defendant, as charged in each of the counts of the indictment, was larger in fact than the amount reported in the returns, and that there was an additional tax due the government as charged in each of the counts. Further, such evidence will be brought before you to establish, on behalf of the government's charge in this case, that at the time the defendant filed, or caused to be filed, each of these income tax returns, that he knew that they were false and fraudulent and that he filed them, or caused them to be filed, in each instance as charged with the Collector of Internal Revenue in this district in a wilful and knowing attempt to defeat and evade a large part of the income tax due and owing by him or from his wife in those instances where the particular count of the indictment refers to returns of Helen L. Remmer, a large part of the income tax due and owing the United States for that particular calendar year.

And further the evidence brought forward by the government will show that there was not only additional income received that was not reported in these false returns, but there was a tax due the government for each of the calendar years on such additional income besides that reported in the return, and that besides the intent to actually file a false and fraudulent return, the defendant did actually file, or cause to be filed the false and fraudulent return, in an attempt to evade the payment of a large part of the tax, as stated, all as alleged in each of the six separate counts of the indictment in this case.

Direct Examination

By Mr. Thompson:

Q. State your name, please.

A. Homer H. Forrester.

Q. Where do you live?

A. 1395 Nixon Avenue, Reno, Nevada.

Q. What is your employment?

A. I am employed with the Bureau of Internal Revenue as assistant collector for the District of Nevada.

Q. How long have you been employed as assistant collector of Internal Revenue for the District of Nevada? A. Since November of 1944.

Q. What are the duties of the office of collector of Internal Revenue for the District of Nevada, with regard to the receipt and filing of income tax returns of residents of the District of Nevada and the maintenance of returns so filed as a permanent record?

A. It is the duty of the collector to collect and assess income tax returns due the federal government and to maintain a [14*] record of the returns filed and the amounts of tax paid.

Q. Are returns on persons who are residents, or who claim to be residents, of the District of Nevada filed with the office of the collector at Reno, Nevada? A. Yes.

Q. And that applies to the income tax returns of those people? A. Yes.

Q. Are those returns so filed maintained in your office as official records of the Collector of Internal Revenue for this district? A. Yes.

Q. Have you brought with you, from the records of the office of the Collector of Internal Revenue for the District of Nevada, an income tax return for Elmer F. Remmer, sometimes known as Elmer Remmer, for the calendar year 1944?

A. I have.

Q. Will you produce it please? Mr. Forrester, I show you Plaintiff's Exhibit 1 for identification.

Mr. Gillen: May we see that?

Mr. Thompson: You may see it in a minute. I haven't offered it yet.

Mr. Gillen: Well, it is marked.

The Court: Let him proceed for a moment. You will have an opportnuity to see it, Mr. Gillen.

Direct Examination

By Mr. Thompson:

Q. Mr. Forrester, have you caused a search of the records of the office of the Collector of Internal Revenue for the District of Nevada to be made for the purpose of determining whether or not Elmer F. Remmer filed with the Collector of Internal Revenue for the District of Nevada any federal income tax returns in addition to those which now are in evidence as Plaintiff's Exhibits 1 to 12, inclusive?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to first of all as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial; income tax returns for any other years other than those mentioned in the indictment are not involved, and second, on the ground it is calling for hearsay evidence unless the witness made personal search himself.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Homer H. Forrester.)

The Court: Answer that question yes or no.

A. Yes.

Q. And what period of time did that search cover? A. The years you mean?

Q. Yes. A. From 1934 through 1941.

Q. Are there any returns on file in the office of the Collector of Internal Revenue for the District of Nevada for Elmer F. [17] Remmer for the years after 1934 to and including 1941?

Mr. Gillen: Just a moment. My objection——

The Court: To that I would sustain an objection.

Mr. Thompson: What is the objection?

The Court: It is hearsay obviously. He caused a search to be made but he didn't testify he made it.

Mr. Gillen: On the additional ground, may it please your Honor, it is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

Q. Mr. Forrester, did you personally make the search? A. No.

Q. Was the search made by employees of the office of the Collector of Internal Revenue for the District of Nevada under your supervision and direction?

Mr. Gillen: I think that would be hearsay, too. If it is competent material evidence at all, the party who made the search should be brought in.

The Court: You may answer this question.

A. Yes.

Q. And was the report made to you by the employee of that office after the search was concluded?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as calling for hearsay.

The Court: Answer yes or no.

A. Yes.

Q. Are there any income tax returns for Elmer F. Remmer on file in the office of the Collector of Internal Revenue for the District [18] of Nevada for the years after 1934 and including 1941?

Mr. Gillen: We offer the objection it is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial first, and, second, calling for hearsay, and third we assign asking of the question, in view of your Honor's indicated ruling, as misconduct on the part of the attorney.

The Court: I think it may be hearsay. Objection sustained.

Q. Mr. Forrester, after income tax returns are received and filed in the office of the Collector of Internal Revenue for the District of Nevada, what, if any, official record was made in your office of assessments, based upon returns filed?

(Objection as hearsay—discussion.)

The Court: The witness may answer this question.

A. After the returns are received in the Collector's office, an assessment list is prepared, listing the name and address of each taxpayer filing the return, showing the amount of tax as per the return and the amount of payments made with the return.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Homer H. Forrester.)

Q. Mr. Forrester, you have testified, I believe, that you have been employed as assistant collector of Internal Revenue for the District of Nevada since 1944 to and including the present date, is that correct? A. That's right.

Q. Were you employed in the office of the Collector of Internal [19] Revenue for the District of Nevada prior to 1944? A. I was.

Q. During what years?

A. I was employed from January 2, 1941, as deputy collector until the early part of 1943 and from the early part of 1943 to November, 1944, as assistant chief of the field men.

Q. You have been continuously employed by the Collector since what date?

A. Since January 2, 1941.

Q. In the course of your employment have you had occasion to examine the records which were kept by the Collector in the years prior to 1941, as far back as the year 1934?

Mr. Gillen: We offer the objection it is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial, has no bearing on the issues in this case.

The Court: Objection will be overruled. Witness may answer.

A. I have.

Q. And do you know what records were kept and maintained by the Collector since 1934 in the regular and usual course of the operation of the business of that office? A. I do.

Q. Was an assessment list regularly kept and

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Homer H. Forrester.)

maintained from the kind you describe in the office of the Collector of Internal Revenue at all times subsequent to the year 1934? [20]

Mr. Gillen: Again I offer the objection, it is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial what he knew about the assessment list or anything between 1934 and 1941 because such things are not shown, we have not been advised they are in the contention in the indictment.

The Court: I don't see how he can testify.

Mr. Gillen: It is hearsay also.

The Court: I think he can testify as to having seen such records. I will sustain the objection.

Mr. Gillen: I would like to add to my objection it would be hearsay as to prior to 1941.

Q. Mr. Forrester, since the year 1934, in the regular course of the business of the office of the Collector of Internal Revenue have records been kept and maintained which include an assessment roll of the kind you describe?

Mr. Gillen: Just a moment—I am going to offer an objection, may it please the Court, counsel is attempting to adopt regular course of business doctrine and it is calling for hearsay and that doctrine only applies——

The Court (Interceding): I think so.

Q. Mr. Forrester, are you familiar with the law and regulations governing the management of the office of Collector of Internal Revenue prior to the year 1941?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Homer H. Forrester.)

Mr. Gillen: We offer the objection it is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial, whether he was familiar. [21]

The Court: Objection overruled. You may answer the question.

A. I am, as far as the particular item that was mentioned.

Q. Do you know whether or not under the regulations in effect subsequent to the year 1934, the Collector has been required to keep and maintain an assessment roll of the type you have described?

Mr. Gillen: To which I offer an objection.

The Court: Objection overruled. You may answer the question.

A. Yes.

Q. And in your examination of the records of the office of the Collector of Internal Revenue for the District of Nevada have you found any instances of such assessment rolls for this succeeding the year 1934?

Mr. Gillen: Same question, your Honor, has already ruled upon; hearsay, not material also.

The Court: Objection overruled. That is not the same question I ruled on.

A. I have.

Q. Have you personally examined those assessment rolls?

Mr. Gillen: I offer the objection it is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial and respectfully invite the Court's attention to the fact that we are now concerning ourselves with matters ten years prior to the year that is called the initial [22] year in this indictment.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Homer H. Forrester.)

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question.

A. I have.

Q. Is there any record on the assessment rolls of the office of the Collector of Internal Revenue for the District of Nevada for the years succeeding the year 1934 of any income tax assessments made against Elmer F. Remmer or Elmer Remmer, with the exception of the years 1942, 1943, 1944, 1945, and 1946 and a delinquent return filed in 1937 for the year 1934?

Mr. Gillen: May it please your Honor, we offer an objection, first it is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial; objection secondly that the assessment rolls would be the best evidence and not this man's interpretation or recollection of what he may have seen at some time or other. We also assign asking such question as misconduct, on the ground it is calling for evidence of matters or things and referring to matters or things which we are not charged with. I admonish the jury we are only concerned here with the truth of the charges concerning this defendant's returns for the years 1944, 1945 and 1946 and I charge that these questions are only being asked for the purpose of casting some sort of aura of suspicion or cloud upon this defendant.

(Discussion.)

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Homer H. Forrester.)

Mr. Gillen: I am going to offer further objection, may it please the Court, on the contention that counsel made with [23] regard to the certificate. The certificate would undoubtedly have to be from the collector himself.

The Court: Objection will be overruled. You may answer the question.

Mr. Thompson: Before the answer is made, your Honor, I would like to modify the question by excluding the years after 1946.

The Court: Do you understand that now?

A. Yes. There were no entries made on our assessment list other than the ones mentioned.

Q. What is the source of the information from which the assessment list is made up?

A. The information contained on the income tax returns filed by taxpayers with our office.

Q. And if a tax return had been filed in any year showing a tax due from the taxpayer, in the ordinary and regular course of the business of the operation of the office of the Collector of Internal Revenue, would that have appeared as an entry on the assessment list?

Mr. Gillen: I offer the objection it is leading and suggestive and also asking for hearsay. It is asking him to speculate as to whether somebody before he was in the office in 1941 would have kept a record in a certain way.

The Court: Objection overruled. You may answer the question. [24]

Q. Mr. Forrester, I show you Plaintiff's Exhibit

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Homer H. Forrester.)

1, an income tax return for the calendar year 1944 for Elmer F. Remmer, and call your attention to the entry, "Balance of tax due $1070, interest $5.35," with a total of $1075.35. Have you brought with you any record from the office of the Collector of Internal Revenue for the District of Nevada showing whether or not that tax was paid by the taxpayer, and if so, when it was paid?

A. I have.

Q. Will you produce it please? This is a duplicate?

A. It is prepared in duplicate, yes.

Q. I show you Plaintiff's Exhibit 13 for identification, Mr. Forrester, will you state what that is?

A. It is a certificate of assessments and payments.

Q. And what does it cover, generally?

(Not answered.)

Q. Mr. Forrester, is Plaintiff's Exhibit 13 for identification a record which the Collector of Internal Revenue for the District of Nevada is required to make under the regulations?

A. It is.

Q. At whose request?

Mr. Gillen: That will be calling for hearsay.

The Court: Objection will be overruled. Answer the question.

Mr. Gillen: Under the regulations at whose request, is calling for hearsay.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Homer H. Forrester.)

The Court: Maybe it is. I will sustain the objection. [25]

Mr. Thompson: I offer Exhibit 13 in evidence, your Honor.

Mr. Gillen: We offer the objection, may it please the Court, that the exhibit contains matter which is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial, in no wise binding upon this defendant. Contains matter which is not involved in the time boundaries cited in the indictment, to wit, the years 1944, 1945 and 1946 and I would like your Honor to have an opportunity to look at the exhibit and your Honor will observe what I mean.

The Court (Examines exhibit): Objection will be overruled. It will be admitted in evidence, Exhibit 13.

Mr. Gillen: May I then have an opportunity to offer objection to certain portion of that exhibit, the portion which relates to the year 1934 and any other year up to the year 1944, as being entirely incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

The Court: Same ruling, objection overruled.

(Discussion.)

Q. I show you Plaintiff's Exhibit 13, Mr. Forrester, will you state what it is?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as being asked and answered.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Gillen: The further objection is offered, may it please the Court, that the paper itself is the best evidence and it is in evidence.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Homer H. Forrester.)

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question. [26]

A. It is certificate of over-assessments and payments to the income tax and estimated tax assessed and paid by Elmer F. Remmer. Assessment rather than overpayments.

The Court: Do you want to make a correction?

A. Certificate of assessment and payments. Of the income tax and payments made by Elmer F. Remmer for the year 1934 and year 1946.

Q. And in column 1 of Plaintiff's Exhibit 13 what information is given?

Mr. Gillen: Just a moment. That refers to a year not involved, may it please the Court, as your Honor will see from the indictment. I think it is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

The Court: What is your answer?

A. The taxable period.

The Court: There is nothing before the Court. You may proceed.

Q. Is that given on that exhibit in terms of calendar years; that is, taxable period calendar year 1943 or 1946, as the case may be? A. It is.

Q. In column 2 what information is given?

A. The list and year.

Q. By list, what do you mean?

A. It is merely an identification, whereby we can locate previous [27] returns and assessments.

Q. In column 3 what information is given?

A. The account number and the page or line on which it is assessed on our assessment roll.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Homer H. Forrester.)

Q. In column 4 what information is given?

A. The amount of tax assessed.

Q. In column 5 what information is given?

A. Well, 5 and 6 contain the dates the payments were made and the amounts paid.

Q. I show you Plaintiff's Exhibit 14 for identification, Mr. Forrester, relating to the tax paid by Helen L. Remmer, is that a record which the Collector of Internal Revenue for the District of Nevada is required to make under the regulations?

(Discussion by counsel and Court regarding showing of exhibits before identified.)

(Jury admonished and excused at 2:12.)

(Argument in absence of the jury.)

2:15 P.M.

(Jury and alternate jurors returned into court.)

(Last question read.)

The Court: Answer the question.

A. It is.

(Exhibit 14 admitted in evidence over objection.)

(Discussion.)

Q. Mr. Forrester, you have already testified regarding the information set forth in the different columns on Exhibit 13 [28] which is a certificate of assessment and payments for Elmer F. Remmer.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Homer H. Forrester.)

Is Exhibit 14 a certificate of assessments and payments for Helen L. Remmer the same type of document, with the same character of information set forth under each column as to that taxpayer?

A. It is.

Q. I show you Plaintiff's Exhibit 15 for identification, Mr. Forrester, is that an official record taken from the records of the office of the Collector of Internal Revenue for the District of Nevada?

Mr. Gillen: We offer the objection, may it please the Court, it is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial. If your Honor will observe the exhibit, your Honor will find it is a so-called floor tax of a corporation and not any individual return or report or evidence of payment or the evidence of any money by the individual defendant in this case. It is floor tax of a corporation.

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question.

A. It is.

Q. Without referring to any of the information given on Exhibit 15 for identification, will you state what type of record that is?

A. It is a return of floor stock tax on distilled spirits, malt liquor and wines under the Revenue Act of 1943.

Q. Referring again, Mr. Forrester, to your examination of the [29] assessment lists in the office of the Collector of Internal Revenue for the District of Nevada, did you examine those lists for the years subsequent to 1934 for the purpose of determining whether there were any entries thereon relating to the assessment of income taxes against Helen L. Remmer?

Mr. Gillen: We offer the objection, may it please the Court, it is incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial, not binding upon this defendant.

The Court: Objection will be overruled. You may answer the question.

A. It was done by employees under my supervision.

Q. Did you find a record of any entry in the assessment lists of the office of the Collector of Internal Revenue for the District of Nevada for the years from 1934 to 1946, inclusive, showing the assessment of any federal income tax against Helen L. Remmer?

Mr. Gillen: Just a moment. We offer the objection it is assuming something not in evidence. He said he didn't make the search himself—calling for hearsay; third, it refers to another person, not binding on the defendant, and fourth, includes years other than those involved here, and for that reason is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

The Court: The hearsay feature of this objection is good.

Q. Mr. Forrester, do I understand that you did not personally [30] examine the assessment lists as to Helen L. Remmer? I am not talking about search.

A. I examined the lists. I was under the impression it was the search, the same as made in the case of Elmer Remmer.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

Q. I did not refer to search for income tax returns. I referred to an examination of assessment lists, similar to the one that you made for Elmer F. Remmer.

A. I have examined that, yes.

Mr. Thompson: May I have the question?

(Question read.)

Mr. Gillen: Same objection, with the exception of the portion assuming something not in evidence.

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question.

A. There were entries in connection with 1934 return.

Q. And were there entries in connection with the years 1942, 1943, 1944, 1945, and 1946 returns?

Mr. Gillen: We offer the objection it is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial, referring to another person other than the defendant in this case and also referring to years other than the years that are involved in the indictment in this case.

(Further argument.)

The Court: Objection will be overruled. You may answer the question.

A. There were. [31]

Q. Were there entries of federal income tax assessment in the assessment lists relating to Helen L. Remmer for any year other than those you have mentioned, that is, the year 1934 and the years 1942 to 1946, inclusive? A. There were not.

Mr. Gillen: May I move to strike the testimony again on the ground that the assessment roll itself would be the best evidence what the assessment roll contained?

The Court: Motion denied.

Mr. Thompson: You may cross-examine.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Q. Now, Mr. Forrester, in direct examination this morning you answered Mr. Thompson with regard to the duties of the Collector of Internal Revenue, and I take it that you included in those the duties of the deputy of the Collector of Internal Revenue, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And among the duties of the Collector and also the deputies are the duties of assisting taxpayers in preparing their income tax returns, is that true? A. That is right.

Q. And as a matter of fact, there are times when practically everybody in your office is assigned to those duties, is that true?

A. That is right. [32]

Q. And it is a regulation, and encouraged in fact, that deputy collectors of internal revenue, and the collector himself, will assist any taxpayer or make out any taxpayer's return?

Mr. Thompson: That is already answered; incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Homer H. Forrester.)

The Court: Objection overruled.

Q. Is that true?

A. Well, assist any taxpayer.

Q. Make out income tax returns?

A. In certain cases.

Q. In any case where a taxpayer brings data, you will show him how to make it out and make it out and have him sign it?

A. If the records are not so voluminous that we wouldn't have the required time; in other words, we can't do a man's bookkeeping.

Q. If it is going to take you four or five days, if he had that much data to go into, you would——

Mr. Pike: Objected to as argumentative.

Mr. Gillen: This is cross-examination, your Honor.

Mr. Pike: It is not within the scope of direct.

The Court: Let us not have any exchange between counsel. Let us go right along.

Q. Mr. Forrester, I am going to show you the prosecution's Exhibit 1 in evidence, which I will identify for you as the 1944 tax return of Elmer Remmer, as stipulated to by the defendant, [33] and ask you to look at the handwriting in the body of that document and tell us if you recognize that handwriting.

A. I couldn't positively say that I recognize it. It is familiar.

Q. Would you say that was the handwriting of Mr. Pat Mooney of the Internal Revenue office in this District? A. It appears to be so.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Homer H. Forrester.)

Q. By the way, are you familiar with the signature of Elmer F. Remmer?

A. Only as it is shown on the returns.

Q. And I notice at the bottom of the first page of that exhibit there is a reference made to what collector's office was any prior payment made, is that true, bottom of left-hand side? A. Yes.

Q. And that means that a taxpayer might make a return and a payment to any one of the internal revenue collector's offices of the United States, is that true?

A. It means he could file a declaration of estimated tax in any other collection district, yes.

Q. And it also means that he could make a payment at any other collector's office, does it not?

A. Not to what payment office did he pay the amount—that refers only to the estimated tax for the current year.

Q. Doesn't it say, "If you filed a return for a prior year, what was the last year," and immediately after that, "To what [34] collector's office was it sent"?

A. That is correct, for a prior year.

Q. It doesn't say "the" prior year; it says "a" prior year, doesn't it? A. Yes.

Q. The fact of the matter is that a taxpayer could make a return to any district in the United States for any prior year, isn't that so?

A. That's right.

Q. I will ask you whether or not in your search for other returns that were made by the defendant

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Homer H. Forrester.)

Elmer F. Remmer, if you examined records of every Internal Revenue district in every office of the United States or the District of Nevada?

A. Just the records for the District of Nevada.

Q. I am going to ask you to look at Plaintiff's Exhibit 5 for the year 1946 and there is attached to it a sheet of paper giving detailed explanation and I note under "Deductions" there is a deduction for a charitable contribution by Elmer F. Remmer to St. Thomas Aquinas Church at Reno in the amount of $2500, and alongside that is a very small pencil notation, I can make out "OK" but can't make out the other words. I ask you to use that magnifying glass and tell us, if you know, what that indicates?

A. I can't make out the middle word.

Q. Would the middle word be the name of some member of the staff of the Collector of Internal Revenue? [35]

A. It is possible that it could be.

Q. Let me ask you this—do you make out "OK" before the middle word and "OK" after the middle word?

A. No, the last word appears to be "CK," the last letters.

Q. Are the first letters "OK"?

A. That is correct.

Q. And it is possible the last could have been "OK" too, but so written that it appears to be a "CK"? A. That is possible.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Homer H. Forrester.)

Q. Let me ask you this—isn't it a fact that when a rather large charitable contribution is reported as deduction that it is the practice of your office to check and confirm or verify whether such a contribution was actually made, by going to the recipient of the contribution, is that correct?

A. In certain cases. I might state at this time that income tax returns filed with our office are segregated into collector's returns and Bureau or revenue agent's returns. We are not allowed to examine or audit or verify the collector's returns; I mean, the returns classified as Bureau or agent's.

Q. Let me ask you, from your knowledge of the workings of your office, is it possible that those notations on the side indicate that your office desired to verify whether or not such a contribution had actually been made by Mr. Remmer to the St. Thomas Aquinas Catholic Church at Reno and that it was confirmed and "OK" means that some agent OK'd it by verifying it at [36] the place of the recipient of the contribution?

Mr. Thompson: We object to the question upon the ground it calls for conclusion of this witness as to what was possible. It is purely speculation or inference as to what those notations mean. It is not based upon any knowledge that he may have in his capacity as deputy collector.

The Court: I will overrule the objection. You may answer the question.

(Question read.)

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Homer H. Forrester.)

Q. Do you understand the question?

A. It is possible it was made with the idea of having the matter checked. As to whether it was checked and verified, I couldn't answer that question.

Q. "OK" and a name would indicate it was checked; the man who checked it said "OK"; in other words, verified it, isn't that so?

Mr. Pike: We object, it assumes something not in evidence, in that he says "and a name," because there is no evidence there is a name there.

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question.

A. It is possible.

Q. Of course, you wouldn't expect an agent, if he found it wasn't OK, to put OK on it?

A. It isn't the ordinary practice for our office or other agents to mark the returns. [37]

Q. Even in the Internal Revenue Department, OK means OK, doesn't it? A. Right.

Mr. Gillen: I think that is all.

Mr. Thompson: No further questions.

Q. Will you state your name, please?

A. John A. Hill; 559 Buena Vista Avenue, San Francisco.

Q. What is your employment or occupation?

A. Sales manager, Stanley Furniture Company, 739 Mission Street, San Francisco.

Q. Have you brought with you, pursuant to subpoena, certain records of the Stanley Furniture Company? A. I have.

Direct Examination

By Mr. Thompson:

Q. State the name of the company by whom you are employed again. [38]

A. Stanley Furniture Company.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of John A. Hill.)

Q. How long have you been employed by that company? A. Approximately 20 years.

Q. Are you acquainted with Mr. Elmer F. Remmer? A. I am.

Q. And do you see him in the courtroom?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Would you designate him, please?

A. Sitting over there.

Mr. Gillen: We will stipulate he knows Mr. Remmer and Mr. Remmer is in the courtroom.

Q. In your capacity as sales manager for the Stanley Furniture Company during the years 1945 and 1946, did you have occasion to make sales for the Stanley Furniture Company to Mr. Remmer of articles of merchandise? A. I did.

Q. You have produced, Mr. Hill——

(Exhibit 16 admitted in evidence by stipulation of counsel.)

Q. Referring to the exhibit, Mr. Hill, will you testify what sales of merchandise you made to Mr. Remmer during the years 1945 and 1946?

A. According to these records here the first sale to Mr. Remmer was for some furniture for his office, 52 Mason Street, San Francisco. [39]

Q. On what date?

A. I believe it was sold 1945, October of 1945, and October, same month, there were about four purchases in the month of October, 1945, and January of 1946 three purchases, and there were about seven purchases in the years 1945 and 1946.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of John A. Hill.)

Q. Did you personally make those sales to Mr. Remmer? A. I did.

Q. Will you state what the sales were and the amounts involved in each sale?

A. The original sale sold to Mr. Remmer was some office furniture for his office, 52 Mason Street. I think it consisted of some carpet for the floor, office desk and swivel chair and there was a purchase——

Mr. Gillen: I wonder if the witness could give the amounts?

A. That amount was $517.63. That was for carpet and desk.

Mr. Gillen: I think it would facilitate the testimony to give the date and the amount of the item.

The Court: Can you do that?

A. Yes, October 17 purchase furniture——

The Court: That is what year?

A. 1945; some carpet and some office desk and chair and a refrigerator, small radio, and that was purchased in 1945.

Q. And the amounts?

A. The amounts of $517.63, $352.50, $76.88, $128.13, $33.83; [40] and for the year 1946 he purchased some furniture for a home in El Cerrito, which consisted of what we call furniture home complete, for living room, dining room combination, and bedroom. The particular sale at that time was for $3660.69.

Q. Referring to that purchase, Mr. Hill, did you

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of John A. Hill.)

participate in the delivery of that furniture to Mr. Remmer's home? A. I did.

Q. And what is the location of his home where that furniture was delivered?

A. Well, it was located at El Cerrito. I think it was next door to what was known over there at that time as the 21 Club.

Mr. Gillen: We stipulate that that address is 306 Panhandle, El Cerrito, Contra Costa County, California.

Q. Will you continue?

A. This particular furniture was selected by Mrs. Remmer, who came into our store and selected this furniture for her home, which we delivered the following week. After it was all set up in her home, we called Mrs. Remmer and asked her to go and inspect it and let us know what she thought of the furnishings, which she did. I believe the following day, or following week, she came in and made a few exchanges and that is about all there was to that. We made the exchanges.

Q. That one purchase of furniture for the home with the later exchanges constitutes the whole transaction for 1946, is that correct? [41]

A. No, I think there were a few—I don't have an itemized statement, but in 1946 there were three other sales they made, one $25.63, one $204.95, and one $197.31.

Q. Do ou recall now what those purchases consisted of? A. Offhand, no.

Q. Do you have any record with you to which you could refer to determine what those purchases consisted of?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of John A. Hill.)

A. October 11, 1945, the amount of $352.50 was for his office furniture.

Mr. Gillen: That was item you mentioned before.

A. There was refrigerator and some carpet.

Mr. Gillen: I think those items were mentioned.

A. Well, I am trying to refer to the things he asked me if I had a record of the exact things.

Q. You can't designate the balance of those other three items the latter part of 1946 that you referred to? A. I do not have the record.

Q. Mr. Hill, by again referring to Exhibit 16, will you testify when and on what dates and in what amounts Mr. Remmer made payment for the merchandise purchased?

A. Well, this first purchase in October, 1945, all of his purchase on November 15, 1945, amount was paid in full, the check, $1075.14; and the purchase of 1946, some of the purchase of April 30th was check paid $208.13, on April we received a check for $197.31, and on May 10th we received check for $22.45. On [42] his sale of June 18, 1946, we received—well, on June 2nd we received check for $230.63, June 28 received a check for $513.63, and on July 9th we received a check for $204.95. Then we didn't receive any money until 1947 which, in February, I believe, we received a payment of a thousand dollars by check.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of John A. Hill.)

Mr. Gillen: Might I inquire, are we referring to the 1946 bill?

A. Yes, 1946 bill wasn't all paid at one time. It was paid at different times and in different amounts.

(Discussion.)

The Court: It is understood that payments shown on Exhibit 16 after 1946 are not material, so that is the reason why the testimony regarding the last payment in 1947 was stricken. Anything stricken during the course of the trial is not to be considered as evidence by the jury.

Q. Mr. Hill, I would like to call your attention to Plaintiff's Exhibit 16 and credit item of one thousand dollars, and ask you whether or not that exhibit does not show that that payment was made on December 27, 1946?

A. That's right, December 27, 1946, one thousand dollars.

Mr. Gillen: The witness was in error when he said February, '47?

A. Yes.

Mr. Thompson: You may cross-examine. [43]

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Q. Mr. Hill, you say that you are the sales manager of the Stanley Furniture Company on Mission Street in San Francisco and been with that concern for more than 20 years? A. Right

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of John A. Hill.)

Q. It is true, is it not, that your company also owns the Sierra Furniture Company in Reno, Nevada, is that correct? A. That is right.

Q. And your acquaintance with Mr. Remmer extends back to the time when Mr. Remmer was operating Cal-Neva, he did considerable business with the Sierra Furniture Company in the matter of furnishing Cal-Neva, is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. And then subsequently in California he still did business with your firm under the name of Stanley Furniture Company?

A. That is correct.

Q. Now there are three items here, Mr. Hill, that I want to ask you to enlighten us on. I don't know whether they are items that refer to furniture purchases for Mr. Remmer's home or furniture purchases for his office. There was an item—I will hand you this ledger sheet, Exhibit 16, and I will tell you the items I have in mind and perhaps you can tell us—there is a transaction reflected on March 25, 1946, for $25.63, another item of March 25, 1946, for $204.95, and another item for April 5, 1946, of $197.31. Can you tell us from any records you have [44] there what those purchases were and were they for the home or for the office?

A. I believe those purchases was for radio and refrigerator—I don't know what the other was for. I know one was for radio and the other refrigerator, but the other purchase I do not recall. I don't have the record with me.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of John A. Hill.)

Q. You have identified radio and refrigerator?

A. That is correct.

Q. Is there any way for you to determine whether they were delivered to the Mason Street office or the home in El Cerrito?

A. They were delivered to Mason Street.

Q. Do you recall whether purchases made for the office were paid by business check or were paid by personal check by Mr. Remmer?

A. Paid by business check.

Q. On that ledger sheet that you hold in your hand, prosecution's Exhibit 16, were any of those items that are reflected there as credits, would that be return of merchandise as well as payments?

A. They could be, yes.

Q. In other words, giving credit for, well, let us take an arbitrary figure, there is an item of $500, it might be for return of $500 item of merchandise rather than payment of cash?

A. That is right.

Q. I believe you said Mrs. Remmer, after inspecting the furniture [45] in her home, did make some exchanges? A. She did.

Re-Direct Examination

By Mr. Thompson:

Q. Mr. Hill, referring to Exhibit 16, which items on that exhibit reflect exchange of merchandise rather than payment? I notice you testified certain of them represented payments by check.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of John A. Hill.)

A. Our bookkeeper writes up credit first as a sale, so unless I have each individual sale here, I would not be able to tell. For instance, if she sent back a chair for $200 plus sales tax, she automatically enters credit against our store, which goes in the same as cash sale, that they don't owe us any more, so I would have to have each one individually before I could truthfully say which was which.

Q. What, by that record, Exhibit 16, enabled you to testify that certain payments for refrigerator and radio were made by a business check of Mr. Remmer rather than a personal check?

A. Well, because most of these collections were collected by me personally. I used to go up there personally to collect them.

Q. Most of them were?

A. That is right.

Q. Which ones on this represent personal collections by you in payment of the amounts owed by Mr. Remmer?

A. Truthfully I couldn't say. There are quite a few of them [46] here. Mr. Remmer would be out of town a considerable amount of time and if something was due us, I would generally go up to his office and collect it. I wouldn't have any way of telling you which were the credits and which ones he gave a check.

Q. Referring to the payments made by Mr. Remmer for furniture purchases for the home in

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of John A. Hill.)

El Cerrito, which ones of the credits on Exhibit 16 represent payments?

A. Well, I believe this one here of—I think, the $204.95 was a credit and I believe the $86.36 was a credit and I believe the other ones were payments that were made.

Q. You say the other ones were payments?

Mr. Gillen: He says he believes they were payments.

A. I believe the other ones were payments made.

Q. And you believe the two you mention were credits for the return of merchandise, is that correct? A. That is my knowledge of it, yes.

Q. Again examining the record that you have, Exhibit 16, Mr. Hill, isn't it true that credits for returned merchandise is designated by the symbol "cr" and payments for merchandise by the symbol "cs"? A. That is right.

Q. Again referring to that exhibit, will you testify which of the credit items represent payments by Mr. Remmer and which of them represent credits on account for returned merchandise?

A. On June 28th he has a credit of $230.63. On June 28th there [47] is a credit of $513.63, and I believe the other one is February 24th, which would be a credit of $86.36.

Q. Which ones, according to that record, represent cash payments?

A. Do you want them all the way down?

Q. I think you had better, in view of the fact we now have a method of identifying them.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of John A. Hill.)

A. Well, November 15th cash payment——

Q. What year please?

A. 1945. A cash payment of $1075.14. January, 1946, we have cash payment $33.83. Then on April 3 of 1946 we have a payment of $208.13. On April 15th we have a payment of $197.31.

Q. That is 1946 also?

A. That is 1946 also. And on May 10th we have a payment of $22.45. Then on June, 1946 we have a payment of $204.95 and on December 27th a payment of a thousand dollars.

Mr. Thompson: That is all.

Recross-Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Q. When you mention cash payments you don't necessarily mean actual cash; you might mean also a check, but you are using that term to distinguish from a credit for returned merchandise, is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. What does the symbol "sj" mean? The little symbol "sj," what does that mean?

A. I don't know. [48]

Q. It is a symbol of your bookkeeper, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. What does the symbol "sc" mean?

A. I believe that means payments of cash.

Q. You believe it means, are you sure?

A. I believe "cs" cash payments, "cr" means credit.

Q. Are you positive?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of John A. Hill.)

A. I am not postive.

Q. In other words, that is some symbol your auditing department uses? A. Yes.

Q. You don't know then which would be credit for returned merchandise and which would be credit for actual payments?

A. No, I do not.

Mr. Gillen: I think that is all.

A. Insurance brokers. [49]

Q. Are you a member of a firm or are you employed by some one? A. Member of the firm.

Q. What is the firm's name?

Q. You recognize him in the courtroom?

A. Yes.

Q. During the years 1945 and 1946 did your firm have occasion to sell insurance to Mr. Remmer? A. We did.

Q. Have you brought with you a record kept and maintained by your firm relating to those transactions?

Mr. Gillen: Is this document the original kept in the ordinary course of business or is it a document especially made up?

A. That is a document that our bookkeeping system had changed since that time.

Q. What I want to know, is this document that is part of the record that was kept the original document?

A. That is the original of what was taken from our bookkeeping system since changed. That is our new bookkeeping system.

Q. That is a copy of the original entries, is that so? [50]

(Discussion.)

The Court: You may proceed.

Q. (By Mr. Thompson): Mr. Scollin, showing you Plaintiff's Exhibit 17 for identification, will you state whether or not that is a record kept and maintained by your firm in the usual and regular and customary course of its business?

A. It is.

Q. And is it a part of the business of your firm to keep and maintain a record of that character?

A. It is.

Q. Does this record, Exhibit 17 for identification, relate to transactions had by your firm with Elmer Remmer or Helen Remmer during the years 1945 and 1946? A. It does.

Mr. Thompson: I offer it in evidence, your Honor.

Mr. Gillen: Just a moment. I am going to object to that, no proper foundation laid to determine whether or not it is an original entry.

The Court: Do you want to examine him a little on that question?

Mr. Gillen: Yes, I would like to, your Honor.

Q. (By Mr. Gillen) Mr. Scollin, when was this document that is now designated prosecution's Exhibit 17, when was it made up?

A. When was that particular document made?

Q. Yes. [51]

A. That was made up no doubt by the bookkeeper when we received that subpoena.

Q. Then it is not an original record?

A. Of our new bookkeeping system.

Q. Sir, it is not an original record, is it?

A. Of our new bookkeeping system, it is.

Mr. Gillen: I ask that the answer be stricken as not responsive and that the Court request the witness to answer.

The Court: Motion denied.

Q. This record was made up for the purpose of bringing it to court, was it not?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Charles J. Scollin.)

A. That is right.

Q. The original transactions are reflected somewhere else, is that not so? A. That is right.

Q. So this is not an original record, is it?

A. That is right.

Q. That is what I tried to get at. Where are the original records?

A. If we have them, they most likely are in the warehouse, though I couldn't verify whether they were destroyed. They most likely are in the warehouse.

Q. Then when did you get your subpoena?

A. It is dated here November 16th.

Q. You got your subpoena November 16th. [52]

A. It is dated that, yes.

Q. Of 1951? A. 1951, yes.

Q. And right after you got your subpoena this was made up from an original record?

A. Undoubtedly it was. I had nothing to do with it.

Q. You don't know?

A. That I don't know.

Q. So then when you answered that this reflected business that your firm did with Mr. Remmer and Mrs. Remmer, you were not acquainted with those facts of your own knowledge?

A. Will you repeat that?

Q. You were not acquainted whether these represented actual business transactions with Mr. Remmer and Mrs. Remmer, of your own knowledge? You simply received the subpoena to come up here and your bookkeeping department made up something and you brought it up here, is that correct?

A. That is taken from our records first.

Q. Did you see it taken from your original records? A. No.

Q. So you don't know of your own knowledge?

A. No.

Q. And you say you don't know whether or not those original records have been destroyed between November 16th of this year, this current month, destroyed or not? [53]

A. I say undoubtedly they would not be destroyed.

Q. You don't know where the original records are now but you know these are not original records? A. That is right.

Mr. Gillen: May it please the Court, we offer the objection the original records are the best evidence; also this witness is completely uninformed as to whether or not these truly reflect matters of original entry in connection with any transactions between his firm and Mr. Remmer or Mrs. Remmer.

The Court: He stated he had nothing to do with these, Mr. Thompson.

Mr. Thompson: May I inquire?

Q. (By Mr. Thompson): When did you say your bookkeeping system changed?

A. I believe it was at least three years ago.

Q. And at the time the bookkeeping system was changed, was a new set of books set up?

A. Yes.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Charles J. Scollin.)

Q. Based upon the present records?

A. That is right.

Q. And at that time were inactive accounts transferred to the new records?

A. I don't believe inactive accounts would be transferred.

Q. Is the record which we now have before us of the account for Elmer Remmer and Helen Remmer the same type of record which [54] your firm kept and maintains of other clients with whom they did business in 1945 and 1946?

Mr. Gillen: Just a moment. He has already testified, been asked and answered, that there was a different type of bookkeeping system maintained at that time.

(Discussion between counsel.)

Mr. Gillen: If your Honor will permit me, I would like to ask a question or two more of the witness.

The Court: Yes.

Q. (By Mr. Gillen) Mr. Scollin, did I understand you to say that you were a member of the firm of Tinneman, Bridgeford and Rainey?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And have been such for how long?

A. January of this year.

Q. How long have you been with that firm?

A. Since November 1, 1945.

Q. I note that the subpoena is in typewriting and is directed to the firm, is that correct?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Charles J. Scollin.)

A. Yes.

Q. And I take it that the reason you are here is that you have been designated by your firm as the member of the firm to appear in obedience to this subpoena, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. I notice on the second page, where it sets forth the records there are certain pencilled notations which appear to compare [55] with the typewritten transcript which you have presented here, is that true? A. That is true.

Q. Now that means that somebody in your firm, some stenographer or clerk, dug up that information out of the old bookkeeping system, is that not true?

A. This is Mrs. Bridgeford, a member of the firm.

Q. She went into the books of original entry and dug out that information, is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And then the document, which is now designated prosecution's Exhibit 17, was made up from those pencilled notations that she jotted down on the subpoena, is that correct?

A. I presume so.

Q. And that was done by some stenographer?

A. No, that was done by Mrs. Bridgeford.

Q. You saw her do it?

A. I didn't see her do it.

Q. She just told you she did it?

A. She usually does that work.

Q. And, of course, Mrs. Bridgeford, as a member of the firm, does not spend her time digging into records and making up transcripts from old records? A. Not unless it is necessary.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Charles J. Scollin.)

Q. To save you the trouble of bringing the book into court, [56] you made up this transcript, is that correct?

A. That I couldn't say that either way.

Q. Well, you haven't reconverted all of your books into this type of transcript?

A. Active accounts, yes.

Q. But not closed accounts? A. No.

Q. You only do that if somebody wants a copy of such business they want?

A. That is right.

Mr. Gillen: I submit, if the Court please, this does not reflect the original entry or comply with the rule that your Honor has read. This is something prepared by some one else, not within the knowledge of this witness. It is hearsay as to this witness and of course definitely not kept in the regular course of business.

The Court: Objection overruled. Exhibit may be admitted in evidence as Exhibit 17.

Q. (By Mr. Thompson): Referring to Exhibit 17, will you please testify to the items of purchase made, the dates on which purchases were made, what type of insurance was purchased, and the dates on which payments were made.

Mr. Gillen: I offer the objection it is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial and also that acceptance of this exhibit in evidence and reference to it by this witness deprives [57] the defendant in this case of the right of examination of the original documents reflecting the original transactions made at the time they were consummated.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Charles J. Scollin.)

The Court: Objection will be overruled.

A. Our record indicates that May 1, 1945 personal property floater, our office No. 106.37 was issued, $218.25. Second item is——

Q. What is a personal property floater?

A. Covers all personal property of any particular nature, including jewelry, household furniture, carpets, personal clothing, anything of a personal nature.

Q. Have you brought any other records which reflect what types of property were covered under personal property floater policy which is listed as the first item? A. I have some here.

(Discussion.)

Mr. Gillen: We offer the objection it is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial what types of property are insured.

The Court: Objection will be overruled. You may answer the question. Do you understand the question?

A. In other words, I am to continue on reading from this and taking out these records.

(Question read.)

A. Yes.

Q. What does that record consist of? [58]

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Charles J. Scollin.)

A. Consists of daily reports of our office.

Q. Will you produce it please? I show you Plaintiff's Exhibit 18 for identification. Does this constitute original records kept and maintained by your firm in the ordinary and customary course of the operation of its business? A. They do.

Q. Does Plaintiff's Exhibit 18 for identification refer to the first item on Plaintiff's Exhibit 17, designated May 1, 1945, personal property floater office No. 106.37? A. It does.

Q. Does it also constitute original record of your office relating to any other of the items on Plaintiff's Exhibit 17? A. It does.

Q. Which ones? A. 116.64.

Mr. Thompson: I offer Plaintiff's Exhibit 18 in evidence, your Honor.

Mr. Gillen: To which we offer an objection and I believe, may it please the Court, that your Honor should see the exhibit and I believe it will take some few moments to argue our objection on this with reference to the particular items.

(Jury and alternate jurors admonished and excused at 4:10 p.m.) [59]

(In the absence of the jury.)

Mr. Gillen: May Mr. Avakian present the argument?

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, as Mr. Gillen stated, we have no objection to evidence as to the amount of insurance premiums paid. As a matter of fact,

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

I believe Exhibit 17 already contains that information.

Our objection to the receipt in evidence of the offered Exhibit 18 for identification is based on two grounds, and both of them involve a consideration of the legal basis for proving income on the net worth method. You will recall that in his opening statement Mr. Pike stated that in proving income on the net worth method, the government will establish the net worth at the beginning of each year and the net worth at the end of each year and that that increase in net worth would represent a figure which would be at least that amount of income received, unless it came from gifts, inheritance, or loans, and then he said in addition if they could show that certain expenditures were made during the course of the year, then the income would be even in excess of the amount of the increase in net worth.

Now the very heart of proving income on the so-called net worth expenditures method is this, that increase in net worth must be shown and then the prosecution may add to that expenditures of a personal or non-deductible nature, because any expenditures that are made which are deductible for tax [60] purposes would automatically wash out, because if you show the expenditures as income, then by the very nature where expenditure is deductible, the deduction offsets it, so that expenditure, if it is of a non-deductible nature, would not affect any income of the taxpayer and in net worth expenditure method the result of the computation is not income on gross income but net income, so it becomes important then, in connection with any particular expenditure, for the government to show that that expenditure is not deductible under the income tax law before the amount of that expenditure can be added to the figures in net worth.

Now if your Honor follows me that far—and I hope that I am making myself clear, because this is a rather unusual point to come up in a court litigation—if your Honor follows me that far, then may I refer to the contents of this proposed Exhibit 18 for identification to explain our two-fold objection.

First of all, if the premium payment on this insurance represents a deductible payment, if the insurance is incurred in connection with the operation of a business, for example, so that the taxpayer would be entitled to deduce the insurance payment, then it would not fall in the category of expenditures that the prosecution may add to the net worth increase in computing net income for that year. Accordingly to have the amount of this insurance premium payment can be added to the taxpayer's [61] increase of net worth for the year 1945, the government must show that that payment was made for payment for insurance of a non-deductible or personal nature.

Now I understand from our off-the-record discussions here a moment ago with Mr. Thompson that he proposes to show, through introduction of this policy, which describes the property insured, that the property insured was not property used in a business, but rather was personal property, that is, not business type of property. Now I think your Honor will recognize that the statement of an insurance policy as to the property insured does not establish the use that the taxpayer, or the insured, is making of that property. I do not care what the property may be—it may be an automobile, it may be a refrigerator, it may be a chair or a desk, it may be a fur coat—and bearing in mind the type of business of this taxpayer, it is conceivable even that type of property could be used in business—the important point is on the crucial question of whether the property covered by this policy was used in business or not. The listing in the policy of items of property insured throws no light on what use was being made of it. Now the prosecution, I take it, is trying to prove by this policy that the property insured was of a non-business nature. That is a matter of determination, not from the nature of the property, but from the use that is being made of it, and so I submit that we have nothing before us in this policy which would [62] establish this.

The Court: You look at some of those items and after looking at them, do you have any trouble in determining whether or not they are used in business or for personal adornment?

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor will remember in his opening statement Mr. Pike listed ten businesses——

The Court: I am just trying to follow your argument.

Mr. Avakian: I am trying to explain.

BLURRED COPY

The Court: You said the statement of an insurance policy would not necessarily show whether the property insured was of a deductible nature or not.

Mr. Avakian: That is right.

The Court: Take a look at some items in that list and then do you have any trouble determining whether or not those items are deductible items?

Mr. Avakian: Let me explain my position. Here is a taxpayer who, according to Mr. Pike's opening statement, is engaged in ten different businesses, and I think we are not going too far from the record if we recognize for the moment that this was the type of business which involved entertaining in business and night clubs, etc.

The Court: We haven't any evidence as to the type of business. The Court is without any official knowledge as to the type of business of those businesses. [63]

Mr. Avakian: You have exactly hit the nail on the head, your Honor, and that illustrates why this is objectionable, because until they can show, for example, the fur coat or jewelry mentioned in this insurance policy, until they can show that this was not used in business, they have no right to bring into this case to build up as net income——

The Court (Interceding): Isn't that a matter of argument before the jury?

Mr. Avakian: No, your Honor, it is a matter of whether reasonable inference can be drawn from the fact a man insures a fur coat that he wasn't using that in his business.

The Court: Isn't it for the jury to determine from the evidence in the case, including that, and they can determine whether or not that property should be used in the estimate of income of the defendant. Isn't it for the jury to determine those things from all the evidence?

Mr. Avakian: It is for the jury, of course, to interpret and apply admissible evidence, but it is for the Court to determine whether evidence is admissible, and I think your Honor is well aware of the ruling in connection with admissibility of circumstantial evidence. There must be a reasonable inference which can be drawn from circumstantial evidence to a material issue to the case.

The Court: That is the rule that will have to be applied [64] to warrant a jury in returning a verdict of guilty. Every link would have to be connected. That is for the jury.

Mr. Avakian: I do not make myself clear, your Honor. Before we leave the submission of the case to the jury, the Court has to rule whether the evidence being offered has sufficient materiality. Now if it is remote, it has no business in the evidence. If there is a reasonable inference which can be drawn from that evidence, then it is proper to submit it to the jury to determine whether they want to draw that inference. We are at the point of determining whether it could be reasonable to infer the mere fact that a man insures a fur coat means he is not using that fur coat in a business. Now that is the heart of my objection on the first objection, that is, that submission of this policy, showing the articles insured, does not reasonably support a conclusion as to what use was being made of those articles. If it does not reasonably support the conclusion, then the Court has no business submitting that evidence to the jury. It is only if the jury could reasonably draw that conclusion it would be proper to submit it.

The second point of my objection is this—in this policy there are listed not only articles insured, but there is placed a value on each of those articles for the purpose of the insurance policy. You will recall that Mr. Pike made it clear in his opening statement that in making net worth computations [65] the government must use cost values and not market values of items that go into net worth. Now it would be highly improper then to submit to the jury evidence showing that a particular coat was insured for x dollars, because the jury might infer from that therefore x dollars figure should be used in this net worth computation, whereas the important factor Mr. Pike himself recognized, is not the value of it but the cost of it, what the taxpayer paid for it. Now it would be improper then to submit any value figure to the jury in connection with net worth computation, unless that is a cost figure, and furthermore, it is improper to submit to the jury any values of assets unless the time of acquisition of the asset is shown. Now here we have a policy taken out in May of 1945, insuring certain articles, say, for example, a fur coat. Now this policy does not show when that fur coat was acquired. If that fur coat was acquired before 1944, it has no place at all in this net worth net worth computation. But the jury might infer from the fact that the prosecution has introduced evidence that this fur coat was insured on May 1, 1945 that that was purchased in 1945 and that would be a highly erroneous conclusion for the jury to draw and we should not expect a jury to be able to appreciate all these facts once they enter into net worth computation. We are having a trial that is going on apparently for many days and many witnesses are going to be presented and it would be prejudicial to the defense to put into this record [66] things which are not proper evidence under net worth computation and trust that the jury would properly understand the law of net worth computations and would know what to eliminate from the evidence in the record as immaterial. If it does not have probative value, then it should not be in this record.

Mr. Thompson: Your Honor, I think Mr. Avakian has made a very clear explanation of the materiality of the evidence we are now offering. He infers, however, or speculates, as can be no more than remote possibilities, that these insurance policies relate to business. In the first place, is there one insured here named as the Menlo Club, the B & R Smoke Shoppe, the 116 Club? Are any businesses named as insured in these policies? No, Helen Remmer and Elmer Remmer are named as the insured and when they insure property under a personal policy floater, they insured property which they claimed to own. I do not think there can be, as far as materiality of evidence is concerned, any weight given to Mr. Avakian's suggestion that this evidence does not show, and I say most conclusively, that these are personal items of expenditure by Mr. Remmer during the year in question, which are entitled to be taken into consideration in making a net worth computation under the method which Mr. Avakian himself has explained.

We concede that the values given on the policy are not binding for the purposes of this case. Mr. Avakian is perfectly correct that it is the cost of the item and the time when [67] purchased which must be proved in a net worth case of this character, and it should be shown that the expenditure was made in one of the three years we have testified in this case. However, I might point out to your Honor that they are the ones that called for the original records. We tried to proceed in a way which would produce before the Court the material parts of this testimony and eliminate the immaterial parts. We now are in the position where we have to offer the original record in evidence. We think your Honor can properly instruct the jury at the time as to what portions of this record are material to be considered by the jury and what portions are not and we must, and it is very material to the government in this case, be permitted to introduce competent evidence which shows whether this expenditure by Mr. Remmer at the time in question was personal expenditure or business expenditure by a policy of this character, issued to Mr. Remmer and his wife personally, not to one of his businesses, and things of that character should be admitted.

Mr. Avakian: May I say this, your Honor—Mr. Thompson first of all says the policy is in the name of Helen Remmer and Elmer Remmer and not the Menlo Club. There is nothing in this record so far, your Honor, which distinguishes any of those clubs from Helen and Elmer Remmer. We do have the opening statement from Mr. Pike that Mr. Remmer had either full or partial interest——

The Court (Interceding): I do not attach much weight to that remark because business property could be insured in the names of the defendant and his wife.

Mr. Avakian: Sure, and Mr. Thompson's statement is admission that the values shown in this policy are not proper evidence in this case, calls for conclusion because that is a very prejudicial matter if it does go to the jury and he has admitted it would be erroneous to put that in.

The Court: Well, I think that counsel will have an opportunity during the course of the trial or it probably will be shown just what these costs are. If it is not, the Court can take care of that question in the matter of instructions to the jury, instruct the jury not to regard those values placed as controlling, if that is the law, and at the conclusion of the trial counsel, I suppose, will submit instruction covering such points.

Mr. Avakian: I recognize all that, your Honor.

The Court: How else is the government going to be able to present its case?

BLURRED COPY

Mr. Avakian: By showing through whatever evidence there may be what the use was of these particular articles.

The Court: If it is a fact that the defendant's wife purchased these items, valuable articles of personal wear, during any of these particular years, if [69] it is a fact, the government certainly is entitled to show it.

Mr. Avakian: Yes, if there is showing by this evidence when it was purchased or what was paid for it. I don't want to seem to belabor this point, but I want to make it as clear as I can that this is a highly important question and if the government is going to be able to get before the jury in this fashion evidence which it itself admits is immaterial and incorrect——

The Court (Interceding): Are those articles identified there? Could they be identified by reference to that exhibit?

Mr. Avakian: They just name one full length mink coat, for example. I submit that the government is entitled to show if they can by any competent evidence, what expenditures were made of a non-deductible nature.

The Court: Don't you think the government is entitled to show whether it is a fact that the defendant and his wife were possessed of such articles?

Mr. Avakian: That they owned these articles?

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Avakian: That would be immaterial unless connected with evidence showing it is used in a non-deductible way.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

The Court: We cannot have the whole case put in at one time. [70]

Mr. Avakian: I appreciate that.

The Court: The objection will be overruled. The exhibit will be admitted in evidence. [71]

(Defendant present with counsel.)

(Presence of the jury and alternate jurors stipulated.)

The Court: Now at the conclusion of yesterday's session, the Court determined to admit in evidence Exhibit 18, but for the present the valuation figures contained in such exhibit are not to be considered by the jury. I say for the present. They may or may not later be considered. We haven't decided that question at this time.

Mr. Thompson: Your Honor, for the purposes of the record, I take it your present statement is a ruling on the objection which was made yesterday afternoon which was decided in the absence of the jury?

The Court: That's right. Are you ready to proceed?

Direct Examination

By Mr. Thompson:

Q. Mr. Scollin, at the recess yesterday we were to consider Exhibit 17, statement of Mr. Remmer's account with your firm, in connection with Plaintiff's Exhibit 18, which you testified, I believe, was the original record of your office relating to certain items on Exhibit 17. Will you state again what items on Exhibit 17 are covered by Exhibit 18?

A. Personal property floater, our office 106.37, effective May 1, 1945, covering personal property in that contract. [72]

Q. And the first item at the top of Exhibit 17, May 1, 1945, personal property floater, office 106.37, debit $218.25, that is one of the items covered by that policy? A. That is right.

Q. Also the second item on Exhibit 17, June 21, 1945, personal property floater additional, debit $24.56, is that also covered by Exhibit 18?

A. That is right.

Q. And also item dated May 1, 1946, personal property floater, debit $248.25, is that covered by Exhibit 18?

A. That is the renewal premium, $248.25. That is right.

Q. I refer also to the item dated November 1, 1946, personal property floater additional, $336.00?

A. That would be additional premium, yes.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Charles J. Scollin.)

Q. $336.00?

A. It doesn't seem to be on this contract.

Q. That is not part of policy Exhibit 18? Was that renewal of that policy?

A. That figure does not appear to be on the contract.

Q. I would like to read a portion of Exhibit 18, your Honor. As testified, this is a personal property floater insurance policy insured by the Home Insurance Company, New York, to Helen Remmer, with additional endorsements as testified. The items insured are as follows: one full length mink coat; one four Russian sable neckpiece; one coat full lynx collar; one [73] full length silver fox coat; one pair of diamond and platinum ear screws, 2½ cts. each; two fur foxes; one full length mink collar; one star sapphire and diamond ring; one diamond and platinum wrist watch, 100 diamonds; one fancy diamond ring; one diamond ¾ ct. two diamonds 1/5 ct., small diamonds; one diamond and platinum pendant watch open; one platinum bracelet, 96 diamonds, 64 emeralds; one diamond ring; one diamond approximately 4½ cts., 20 diamonds, six fancy diamonds; one fancy diamond ring; one diamond 1½ ct. ring 10 baguettes, 12 diamonds.

Mr. Scollin, referring again to Exhibit 17 and the item under date September 3, 1945, public liability, office 108.02, debit $14.00, do you know what that insurance coverage was for?

A. That covers Mr. Remmer's personal liability, including his home. It is a liability contract.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Charles J. Scollin.)

Q. The item September 2, 1945, plate glass, office No. 108.01, debit $7.50, do you know what that insurance covers?

A. That covers residence plate glass. All of the plate glass in his personal residence.

Q. The next item, August 17, 1945, fire on dwelling, $6500, three years, office No. 107.65, debit $54.25, do you know what that item covers?

A. That covers fire insurance in the amount of $6500 for three years.

Q. Do you know where that residence was located?

A. Not from that record I couldn't say. I believe it is [74] Orinda.

Q. Where is Orinda?

A. I believe in Contra Costa County.

Q. California? A. California.

Q. Under date of October 26, 1945, comprehensive liability, office 1.75, debit $25, do you know what that insurance coverage was?

A. That would be also his comprehensive personal liability policy.

Q. Date May 1, 1946, personal property floater, office 116.64, debit $248.25. Do you know what that insurance coverage was?

A. That would be personal property floater covering his personal effects, such as you read there, jewelry, furs, etc.

Q. That is renewal of the same policy, Exhibit 18, is that correct?

Mr. Gillen: What is the date of that?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Charles J. Scollin.)

Mr. Thompson: This item is May 1, 1946.

A. That is a renewal premium.

Q. Of Exhibit 18?

A. Yes. It would be renewal contract of that.

Q. Is it a renewal of Exhibit 18?

A. That's right, it would be.

Q. And the item November 1, 1946, personal property floater additional, $336.00? [75]

A. That would be a renewal premium under this contract.

Q. By this contract do you mean Exhibit 18?

A. No, sir, this contract here.

Q. Mr. Scollin, I show you Plaintiff's Exhibit 19 for identification, and state whether or not that is a record of your firm which is kept and maintained in the usual customary course of the business of that firm? A. It is.

Q. And is it a part of the business of your firm to keep records of that character relative to the issuance of insurance policies?

A. It is.

Mr. Thompson: I offer in evidence Exhibit 19 for identification.

Mr. Gillen: May it please the Court, the defendant makes the same objections to this Exhibit 19 as was advanced yesterday in connection with the introduction of Exhibit 18, and we make the additional objection that this Exhibit 19 shows an insurance policy issued exclusively to Helen L. Remmer, and for that reason, of course, we do not think that it could possibly be construed as binding upon the defendant in this case, because Helen L. Remmer as the insured is the only one that will be an insurable interest and the only one that will be recognized by the insurance company, and there is no evidence that the premium for this was paid by any one other than the person [76] named as the insured in the policy. I am very happy to pass the exhibit up and let your Honor observe that it is exclusively in the name of Helen Remmer.

BLURRED COPY

Mr. Thompson: If the Court please, exhibits are already in evidence showing that during the year in question when the policy was issued Mr. Remmer and his wife, Helen Remmer, filed federal income tax returns on the community property basis, in which income reported by himself was reported as community property and divided with his wife, Helen Remmer, for the purpose of computing the tax alleged to be due.

Mr. Gillen: Of course, that does not affect this policy. This policy might be on matters that belong exclusively to Mrs. Remmer. It might be separate property.

The Court: Objection overruled. The exhibit will be admitted in evidence.

Q. Mr. Scollin, by referring to Exhibit 19, are you able to testify what type of insurance and the character of the coverage is represented by the item of November 1, 1946, debit $336?

Mr. Gillen: We encountered the same situation in regard to the schedule in that exhibit as the other.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Charles J. Scollin.)

The Court: We will have the same understanding in regard to the schedule that seems to be in Exhibit 19 as in regard to Exhibit 18.

Mr. Thompson: Yes.

Mr. Pike: Your Honor, we understand, of course, if [77] the tender is made, it will be for the entire document, subject only to that reservation for the present.

The Court: That is right.

(Question read.)

A. This is a personal property floater unscheduled, effective November 1, 1946, for a period of three years for a premium of $336.

Q. What do you mean by unscheduled, Mr. Scollin?

A. That excludes all jewelry or furs in the policy.

Q. Covers every other character of personal property owned by the insured? A. It does.

Q. Mr. Scollin, by referring to Exhibit 17, will you testify as to the dates on which payments were made on account of Mr. Remmer and the amounts of payments?

A. On September 30, 1945, a payment was made of $298.06, which paid premiums of $218.25, $24.56, and $55.25. On November 27th payment was made in the amount of——

Q. What year was that please?

A. That would still be 1945—of $46.50, which paid $14.00, $7.50, and $25.00. On July 5, 1946, payment was made in the amount of $248.25, which paid premium under personal property floater of $248.25. On December 31, 1946, payment was made in the amount of $365.39, which paid a premium of $336.00 and $29.30.

Mr. Thompson: You may cross-examine. [78]

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Q. Mr. Scollin, do you have in your hand or in your possession your subpoena?

A. I believe it is on the exhibit, I believe it is 16.

Mr. Pike: It was produced yesterday and I believe it was here on our counsel table yesterday afternoon.

Q. Now I note in this subpoena that you were directed, or at least your firm was directed, to appear and bring with you data referring to payments made on insurance premiums November 27, 1945, and September 30, 1946, and July 5, 1946, and any other records of insurance payments on residence or other personal property of Elmer F. Remmer or Mrs. Helen L. Remmer during the years 1944 to 1946 inclusive. Do you wish to verify that by looking at it, or is that your recollection?

A. That is my recollection, reading that.

Mr. Gillen: Do you wish to verify that, Mr. Pike?

Q. Now I show you the prosecution's Exhibit 18, which we will call the daily—the insurance people call daily—a copy of the daily. I will hand you this exhibit and ask you if, from looking at that exhibit,

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Charles J. Scollin.)

you can tell us whether that daily indicates the original policy was renewal policy of an earlier policy?

A. This is a daily report of an original policy that was issued May 1, 1945, for a period of one year.

Q. Is there anything indicated that that was the first time [79] the property named therein was insured, either through your firm or elsewhere?

A. Will you repeat that again?

Q. Is there anything in that exhibit that indicates to you that was the first time that that property designated therein or referred to therein was insured?

A. It appears to be a renewal of a former policy.

Q. The date of that policy is what?

A. May 1, 1945, to May 1, 1946.

Q. It appears to be renewal of a policy that had been in existence prior to May 1, 1945, is that correct? A. That is right.

Q. And you don't know how many renewals prior to that on that same property was issued and effective for a 12-month period?

A. Not from this contract we couldn't determine that.

Q. You were not asked or directed in the subpoena to do any more than bring with you records from 1944 to 1946, inclusive?

A. That is my understanding.

Q. And so you don't know what your records reflect as to whether or not that same property may have been covered by a 12-month period—and I am talking about jewels and furs referred to in that particular floater policy—you don't know how many years that same property had been insured?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Charles J. Scollin.)

A. No.

Q. It might have been insured since the 30's, is that correct? [80] A. It could possibly.

Q. Now that particular floater policy which covers furs and jewelry, those policies are issued for 12-month periods, are they not? A. Normally.

Q. And then there are other types of policies that are issued for three-year periods?

A. That is right.

Q. And I believe that the prosecution's Exhibit 19 reflects a policy issued for a three-year period, is that correct? Would you care to look at it?

A. That is right, this is a three-year contract, November 1, 1946, to November 1, 1949, personal property floater.

Q. That policy covers personal property of a character other than furs and jewels, is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. That is why you call it an unscheduled policy? A. That is right.

Q. That covers such things as silverware and linens or furniture, antiques, etc.?

A. That is correct.

Q. Probably ordinary clothing?

A. Clothing also.

Q. And then as I recollect, there are policies in

BLEED THROUGH— POOR COPY

(Testimony of Charles J. Scollin.)

existence covering public liability, plate glass and fire on dwelling, [81] is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. Now public liability means, does it not, the insured person's obligations to some one who might be injured on their premises?

A. That is correct.

Q. Or who might be injured by their property or by themselves? A. That is right.

Q. And plate glass insurance, of course, covers plate glass broken by storm or other accident, or something of that sort?

A. That's right, correct.

Q. And of course fire on dwelling, I notice here is a $6500 policy for three years, is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. That is a rather modest policy for a dwelling house, is it not?

A. Depending on the valuation of the house.

Q. I say it is rather modest. You encounter higher policies on dwelling houses, isn't that right?

A. That is correct.

Q. Now your records reflect—and if the prosecution's Exhibit 17 will assist you, with the clerk's permission I will hand it to you—your records reflect who paid the premiums on those policies and in what manner the premiums were paid?

A. This record here indicates it was by cash and on those [82] dates I mentioned previously.

Q. Well, we have the dates, of course, set forth, and you have testified to them, but you say that the transcript that was made up for you by your office indicates that the payments were made by cash? A. It could be check.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Charles J. Scollin.)

Q. Check or cash?

A. Or cash, that's right.

Q. In other words, just reflects you received money in whatever form for those premiums?

A. That is right.

Q. And then the other part of my question was, does it indicate who made the payments?

A. No, it does not.

Q. The payments may have been made by some one other than Mr. Remmer?

A. That is right. Our records just indicate that it was check or cash.

Q. Now as to the prosecution's Exhibit 19 that reflects the policy issued, a floater policy and personal property, issued exclusively to Helen L. Remmer, does it not? A. It does.

Q. She is the sole insured in that policy?

A. Correct.

Q. And she is the only person whose claim would be recognized [83] by the company under those circumstances, is that true? A. That is true.

Mr. Gillen: I think that is all, thank you.

Redirect Examination

By Mr. Thompson:

Q. Mr. Gillen, calling your attention to the item August 17, 1945, fire on dwelling, $6500, three years.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Charles J. Scollin.)

Do you have any knowledge, or any way of telling from your record, whether that is the only fire insurance policy coverage issued for that particular dwelling?

A. According to our records, that is the only policy issued on that dwelling.

Q. By our company? A. By our office.

Q. Do your records show whether fire insurance coverage had been obtained for that dwelling from any other company? A. I would say no.

Q. They don't show?

A. They don't show. We wouldn't know whether any other policy was issued through another source.

Mr. Thompson: That's all.

Recross-Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Q. Isn't it a fact that when fire insurance is applied for, the applicant is asked what other insurance covers that particular property, isn't that a fact?

A. In some cases it is so, to establish a value, so that the [84] agent handling, or the broker handling, the insurance will not be criticized for underinsuring a piece of property.

Q. Is there anything that reflects what was done in this case in the records?

A. I would say no.

Q. Isn't it a fact that you usually make it your concern whether or not the same piece of property is insured several times by other company?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Charles J. Scollin.)

A. If it is a piece of merchandise business we would.

Q. Well, it is a fact, is it not, that within your practice and the custom of the insurance business, that as to dwelling houses, as a rule, there is only one policy on dwelling houses?

A. That is normal.

Q. And on business property there may be re-insurers, that is, company may take portions of the risk?

A. That is correct, they take a percentage.

Q. There may be four of five company?

A. Yes, are participating.

Q. Participating in one large building, like an office building, merchandise company or factory?

A. That is correct.

Mr. Gillen: I think that is all.

Mr. Thompson: That is all, Mr. Scollin.

MRS. AGNES BADOBINATZ

a witness on behalf of the plaintiff, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct Examination

By Mr. Thompson:

Q. Will you please state your name?

A. Mrs. Agnes Badobinatz.

Q. Where do you live?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Mrs. Agnes Badobinatz.)

A. 1506 Vageden Avenue, Fresno.

Q. Are you married? A. I am a widow.

Q. What was your husband's name?

A. Peter Raymond Badobinatz.

Q. Sometimes known in business as P. R. Badobinatz? A. P. R. Badobinatz.

Q. When did he die?

A. January, 1950, January 11th.

Q. January 11, 1950? A. Yes.

Q. Prior to his death where did you and your husband reside?

A. 1505 Vageden Avenue, Fresno.

Q. For how many years did you reside there?

A. At the same address or in Fresno?

Q. No, in Fresno. A. Since 1937.

Q. Do you know with what bank your husband conducted his business [86] usually during his lifetime? A. In Fresno?

Q. Yes.

A. The Bank of America, the main branch.

Q. You know he did do business with the Bank of America in Fresno, is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. In the month of February, 1947, did you have a conversation with your husband relating to an obligation of his? A. Yes.

Mr. Gillen: Just a moment. It slipped by me. This calls for a conversation between husband and wife at a date later than the time boundary in the indictment.

The Court: We have not reached that point. All

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Mrs. Agnes Badobinatz.)

we have there was a conversation; we don't know what it is.

Mr. Gillen: Of course, it is incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant what these people talked about in 1947.

Q. Mrs. Badobinatz, where did that conversation take place?

Mr. Gillen: I think that would be incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial, and I will offer that objection.

The Court: Objection will be overruled.

Q. Did you answer the question?

A. I did.

Q. I didn't hear it. A. At our home. [87]

Q. At your home in Fresno? A. Yes.

Q. Who, if any one, other than yourself and your husband, was present at that time?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

The Court: Objection overruled.

A. Nobody was present.

Q. What was the conversation that you had at that time?

Mr. Gillen: Now, of course, first this is asking for hearsay testimony that couldn't possibly be binding on the defendant in this case.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Thompson: Your Honor, I would like to be heard before you rule, if I may, and I respectfully request that you withdraw the ruling.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Mrs. Agnes Badobinatz.)

The Court: Very well, we will excuse the jury.

(Jury and alternate jurors admonished and excused from the courtroom at 11:05 a.m.)

(In the absence of the jury.)

The Court: Now.

Mr. Thompson: If the Court please, I will state in the absence of the jury that we anticipate that this witness will testify that on the occasion in question she had a conversation with her husband——

Mr. Gillen: I wonder if I might interrupt counsel, for this reason—if counsel is going to state—of course, the press is present—this is a public trial, the subject of that conversation would undoubtedly be talked about by the press and be published. I would like to make this observation before counsel goes farther—I can't see for the life of me, as stated before, how counsel expects to get conversation occurring between husband and wife. The husband is now deceased. How does he expect to get into this case a conversation which, first of all, is a confidential and privileged conversation? Secondly, is sealed forever by reason of the fact that the person who could waive the privilege and confidential relationship of that conversation is deceased, and I am not familiar with your so-called dead man's statute—we have the statute in California and I know your Nevada law is based largely upon the original code in California. I assume that the same statute is in existence here. And finally, of course, Mr. Remmer was not present at this conversation, that has been established. No one was present but this husband and wife and it would be calling for the grossest and rankest kind of hearsay.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Mrs. Agnes Badobinatz.)

The Court: I would like to hear from you on the hearsay question.

Mr. Thompson: Your Honor, I would like to suggest to counsel there is a well-recognized exception to the hearsay rule known as declaration against interest which goes into [89] effect when the person who made the statement is deceased or otherwise unavailable as a witness. When a statement is made by a person deceased or otherwise unavailable, and in this case we have proved he is deceased, which is against his pecuniary interest, such as admission of indebtedness, it is admissible in any trial if it is relevant and material. Now in this instance we are dealing with the payment of an obligation which we expect to take into consideration in the net worth computation of Mr. Remmer's income. We expect to corroborate the circumstances of that obligation by other evidence. I am saying that generally, your Honor——

The Court: Have you any authority here on this question of declaration against interest? I know, of course, that is an exception against the hearsay rule. I would like to hear if you have anything that would apply to that situation. Let us hear the authority.

Mr. Gillen: It wouldn't be binding upon Mr. Remmer, who was not present.

Mr. Thompson: Mr. Gillen confuses—I would like to read from 31 Corpus Juris Secundum, 954: (Reads) That is the heading in black print. The balance of the text is as follows: (Reads page 954) Then there is a lengthy discussion of the requirement, which I will be glad to read if the Court wishes. [90]

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

The Court: I can't see how the dead man's rule would have any bearing on this question. Just discuss that part of it for a moment. It isn't to be used in any way, shape or form against a deceased person. Now that, I think, is the purpose of the dead man's rule. That part I am not so much concerned with. Have you anything further to say on the question?

Mr. Thompson: Your Honor, with regard to the dead man's rule, I think it is well settled, if your Honor is referring to the Nevada statute——

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Thompson: ——that the dead man's rule only applies to transactions between parties to the litigation and that was decided——

The Court: Well, where one of the parties is deceased.

Mr. Thompson: That is right. Now the gentleman here has no part in this instant litigation and one of the requirements of the declaration against interest rule is that the person who made the statement, be dead or otherwise unavailable, so that he, himself, can not be presented as a witness to the fact. If under those circumstances we can prove a statement made by him which is against his declaratory interest and therefore would presumably be an accurate, honest, truthful statement of the facts, we are entitled to do that, and as the quotation points out that may be, as it clearly is, a weaker form of [91] evidence than would be the presence of Mr. Badobinatz if he hadn't so unfortunately died, but nevertheless it is competent and admissible evidence under these circumstances.

(Testimony of Mrs. Agnes Badobinatz.)

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, the provision to which we refer is a peculiar provision in all of our States and also the rule in federal courts and in Nevada the law reads as follows: Section 8971—I am going to read the entire section, which is short, and then emphasize the portion which I believe applies here:

> "A husband can not be examined as a witness for or against his wife without her consent, nor a wife for or against her husband without his consent; nor can either, during the marriage or afterwards, be, without the consent of the other, examined as to any communication made by one to the other during marriage."

The remaining sentence is not material, but that part I emphasized in reading is the important thing, your Honor. There are two aspects of communications between husband and wife. One aspect which does not apply here is——

The Court (Interceding): Read the complete sentence. (Mr. Avakian reads.) Now the purpose of that provision, beginning with, "nor can either," is to insure to a husband and wife that during their marriage they can speak with complete confidence to each other and rest assured that at no time, [92] whether during marriage or afterwards, can the other party to the marriage be examined as to any of those communications. The purpose of it is the social policy of encouraging free communications between husband and wife. We did not expect this to come up or we could have prepared case authorities, but I think the statute is clear:

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Mrs. Agnes Badobinatz.)

> "* * * nor can either, during the marriage or afterwards, be, without the consent of the other, be examined as to any communication made by one to the other during marriage."

The Court: Have you any federal cases?

Mr. Avakian: There are, but I don't have them at hand.

The Court: Would that provision govern a federal court?

Mr. Thompson: I think the rule of evidence in criminal cases in federal court is generally conceded to be the best common law rule of evidence as determined by the courts at the present time. I do not think there is any definite statutory rule of evidence, but I would like to suggest to your Honor that if Mr. Remmer who, as far as I know, is a stranger to the marriage between Mr. and Mrs. Badobinatz, can claim the privilege of Mr. Badobinatz with relation to confidential communication between husband and wife, this will be the first instance in which that claim was ever successfully made. A stranger to the marriage can not claim such a privilege, otherwise whenever you had a married witness and produced them, you would have [93] to produce the husband or wife to get their consent to testify. It is a personal privilege which only the husband or wife can assert.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Mrs. Agnes Badobinatz.)

The Court: I can see this picture coming up in the trial of any case. The husband is on the witness stand. He is speaking about some business matter but he happened to mention the matter to his wife day before yesterday and if counsel on the other side could bring that out by cross-examination, then it would be stricken.

Mr. Avakian: No, your Honor, the section says the witness can not be questioned as to communication between husband and wife. They can't question the husband as to what he told his wife, but they can question him as to the transaction.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Avakian: May we ask your Honor to defer ruling until we can provide federal authorities?

The Court: I overruled the objection now and I think your argument to be in the nature of an admission as to the soundness of the text which was just read on the question of declaration against interest.

Mr. Avakian: We won't concede that, your Honor.

The Court: Your only offer is on that point.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Mrs. Agnes Badobinatz.)

Mr. Avakian: We made the argument on one point and are making it now on another. [94]

The Court: Objection is overruled. Now the question is we don't want any conversation to go before the jury which wouldn't come within the provisions of this text, so I think we had better hear the conversation now in the absence of the jury, so we may know whether it is a declaration of interest.

Mr. Avakian: May we approach the bench and have the conversation given to your Honor?

The Court: I don't see any reason for that.

Mr. Avakian: Well, the papers——

The Court: I don't believe the gentlemen of the press here would publish matter which was not admitted in evidence.

Mr. Gillen: There was something published in our papers this morning that wasn't admitted in evidence.

The Court: Well, we are going to try this case without regard to the presence of the press. This is a public trial, so we will proceed.

Q. Mrs. Badobinatz, will you state at this time what the conversation was that you had with your husband in February, 1947?

Mr. Gillen: I am going to object to any testimony being taken by the Court outside the hearing of the jury. It is my understanding that your Honor wanted some statement by counsel.

The Court: I want to hear the conversation so

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Mrs. Agnes Badobinatz.)

I can [95] determine for myself whether it is a declaration against interest.

Mr. Gillen: Is this witness going to testify?

The Court: She is going to give me the conversation. You may proceed.

(Question read.)

A. He said he was going to the bank to get a cashier's check to send to Mr. Remmer of five thousand dollars for money that he had borrowed.

Mr. Thompson: That's it.

(Last question read.)

Mr. Gillen: We renew the objection on all the grounds previously stated and believe we have some further authorities found during the recess.

The Court: Objection overruled. Proceed.

Mr. Gillen: Does your Honor care to hear the authority [96] that we have?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

Mr. Gillen: Your Honor asked us for some federal authority.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Gillen: Let the record show that we have federal authority.

The Court: Proceed.

Q. (Read): What was the conversation you had at that time?

A Mr. Badobinatz said that he had to go to the bank to get a cashier's check for five thousand dollars to pay Mr. Remmer the money that he had borrowed.

Mr. Thompson: You may cross-examine.

Mr. Gillen: At this time, may it please the Court, we move to strike the question and answer and assign asking of the question as misconduct and press our motion—I amuse counsel, but I am very earnest——

The Court: The motion is denied. Let us proceed.

Mr. Gillen: The motion is denied before I state my grounds? I am about to state my grounds.

The Court: I thought you moved to set aside on all grounds contained in your objection.

Mr. Gillen: There is some additional.

The Court: I wouldn't entertain any other grounds except the ones raised in your [97] objection.

Mr. Gillen: You won't entertain any other grounds? I would like to cite your Honor a case.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Mrs. Agnes Badobinatz.)

The Court: What are your grounds? Go ahead and state them.

Mr. Gillen: Well, in the first place, it is hearsay as to the defendant Remmer, No. 1. In the second place, it is priviledged communication between husband and wife, No. 2.

The Court: I am asking you to state grounds other than those raised in the objection.

Mr. Gillen: All right. My new grounds are, first of all, there is no foundation laid to establish here when the indebtedness to Mr. Remmer was incurred. If it was incurred in 1920, 1925, 1930, it would be incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial, and moreover, we would like your Honor to consider, in connection with your ruling, the case of Frazier vs. U. S., decided October 3, 1944, found in 145 Federal Reporter (2), at page 139, where privileged communication between husband and wife is recognized. I would like to add the further ground that the answer given here is not a so-called declaration against interest, as recognized in law.

The Court: Motion is denied.

Mr. Gillen: Would your Honor consider the fact that it would be incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial?

The Court: The Court has ruled. The motion is denied.

Mr. Gillen: I am calling another matter to your attention. [98]

The Court: I don't want to hear any more argument on a matter I have already ruled.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

Mr. Gillen: No questions.

Mr. Thompson: That is all.

The Court: I hear no reason why you could not be excused. You may be excused.

EUGENE F. MURPHY

a witness on behalf of the plaintiff, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct Examination

By Mr. Thompson:

Q. Will you state your name, please?

A. Eugene F. Murphy.

Q. Where do you live?

A. 649 Brookwood Road, Oakland.

Q. Are you acquainted with the defendant, Elmer F. Remmer?

A. I am. I knew him since he was a boy. We were boys together in Oakland.

Q. And since the year 1934 where, do you know, has Mr. Remmer lived?

Mr. Gillen: I think that is calling for his opinion?

The Court: Let me have the question.

(Question read.)

Mr. Gillen: I withdraw the objection.

A. I knew he was in Cal-Neva and at San Francisco, back and forth. I wouldn't know where his residence was. [99]

Q. What is your business?

A. I am retired police inspector of the City of Oakland. Now outside representative of Billings Furniture Company, 14th and Clay, Oakland, California.

Q. When did you retire as police inspector for the City of Oakland?

A. My retirement took effect legally March 1, 1946, but I had overtime and the last day I worked was January 30, 1946.

Q. During the year 1946 did you have a conversation with Mr. Remmer relating to a contribution by him? A. I did.

Q. Where did that conversation take place?

A. I phoned him. I got his telephone number. Some way I obtained his telephone number in San Francisco. I phoned his office and I phoned from my home and I talked to Mr. Remmer. That was in April and I told him——

Q. April of 1946?

A. Yes, sir. I told him what the nature of the call was. I told him that the County Board of Supervisors were remodernizing the charter, that they asked me would I help, which Judge Kennedy took an active part, and being a friend of mine, asked me would I help the Board of Supervisors. I told him I would. So Maundrell, the chairman at the time, and Judge Kennedy and Harry Bartel, the present chairman of the Board, had a meeting and talked over the coming election, so they asked again [100] would I work with the finances with Bartel and I said yes, so I talked to Mr. Remmer what they were doing about having the charter modernized, had to modernize the charter so the salaries of supervisors and others could be regulated, etc.—that couldn't be changed unless the charter was changed—so I asked him if he wanted to give a little contribution to it. He said yes, he would send over $200, so shortly after I received a check from Hal Maundrell for $200 and I endorsed that check, which several others were made out in my name, I endorsed it—I don't know whether I gave it to Bartel, but we put all the money we received, I think around three thousand dollars, into the Bank of Commerce at 16th and San Pablo Avenue in Oakland, and the only one who could sign those checks was the chairman of the Board of Supervisors and myself, but some checks maybe come in that we cashed for petty cash, like for stamps, there were 75 thousand postal cards sent out and maybe 30,000 letters and they had volunteer workers they paid expenses of, but most of our checks, and I am pretty sure this check here, was put in that bank account.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Eugene F. Murphy.)

Q. The conversation which you have related you had by telephone with Mr. Remmer in April of 1946, is that correct? A. That is true.

Q. Did you ever talk to Mr. Remmer personally, other than by telephone, concerning this contribution? A. No. [101]

Q. Will you state again what you told him the purpose of the contribution was?

A. Here is what I told him—modernization of charter of Alameda County. I told him they were changing it so they could change the salaries of the county employees. That included the supervisors and the supervisors were the ones that brought this amendment up to the people to vote on it.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Eugene F. Murphy.)

Q. You also stated, I believe, that there was an election in the offing? A. Yes, there was.

Q. And was any of the money used, so far as you know, in connection with the campaign expenses of any candidates for office?

Mr. Gillen: I think this question has been asked and answered. The gentleman said what he was working on—to modernize the city charter so that the salaries of the city employees could be brought up to date.

The Court: I think you are correct.

Mr. Thompson: You may cross-examine.

Mr. Gillen: I think there is no cross-examination.

A. 717 Kansas Street, San Francisco, California.

Q. How long have you resided in San Francisco? A. Fifteen years.

Q. At one time did you own a business in San Francisco known as the 186 Club and Day-Night Cigar and Liquor Store? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you dispose of that business?

A. I did.

Q. On what date?

A. It was on or about March 1, 1943.

Q. Where did the transaction relating to the sale of that business take place?

A. Originally took place in my home.

Q. And that was around the first of March, 1943? A. Around about that time. [103]

Q. What did the business known as the 186 Club consist of?

A. Consisted as a cigar and liquor store, magazines, and a club room, incorporated club room.

Q. Where were the premises located?

A. Located at 26 Eddy Street.

Q. In San Francisco, California?

A. San Francisco, California.

Q. And what character of business was carried on in the incorporated club room?

A. A card room.

Q. You mean that is a place where people played card games?

A. Played card games, right.

Q. What types of games?

A. Well, draw poker, called panguingue.

Q. Who came to see you at your home around the first of March, 1943, regarding the purchase of those premises? A. Mr. Willie Kyne.

Q. And did you and he have a discussion at that time relating to the purchase of this business by Mr. Kyne? A. Yes, sir, we did.

Q. Subsequent to that, did you and Mr. Kyne meet in any attorney's office to complete the transaction? A. We did.

Q. And what was the name of the attorney?

A. Joe Haughey.

Q. Do you recall where his office was [104] located? A. Phelan Building.

Q. In San Francisco? A. San Francisco.

Q. Who was present at that time?

A. Mr. Kyne, Mr. Haughey, myself, and my attorney, Mr. Blackfield.

Q. At that time did you receive from any any money on account of the purchase price for this business?

Mr. Gillen: I am going to have to offer an objection to all this line of questioning. It is grossly hearsay as to the defendant in this case, not binding upon him, the actions of some man and Mr. Kyne and an attorney.

The Court: The objection will be overruled but, of course, if it is not connected up, you may move to strike it. You may answer the question.

A. I did.

Q. How much money did you receive from whom?

A. I received one thousand dollars as a deposit.

Q. Who paid you that money?

A. Mr. Kyne.

Q. And in what form was the payment made?

A. In cash.

Q. Were arrangements made at that time for the establishment of an escrow?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as leading and suggestive, also [105] hearsay.

The Court: Objection overruled. You may answer the question.

A. Yes.

Q. And was an escrow established in connection with the sale by you to William Kyne of the premises known as 186 Club and the Day-Night Cigar Store? A. Yes, sir.

(Testimony of Max Silverman.)

Q. And where was the escrow established?

A. Bank of America, Day and Night Branch, San Francisco.

Q. Did you subsequently receive the full purchase price for those two businesses from the escrow department of the Bank of America?

A. Yes, sir, I did.

Q. Do you recall on or about what date you received the balance of the money?

Mr. Gillen: May it be understood, your Honor, that all of this line of testimony which your Honor permits to come up, is subject to the objection that it is hearsay?

The Court: If it is not connected, you may move to strike it.

Mr. Thompson: That is a satisfactory understanding, your Honor.

(Question read.)

A. Well, approximately in the month of March, latter part of [106] March.

Q. Of 1943? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How much did you receive?

A. Fifteen thousand dollars from the escrow department and six thousand and sixty-seven dollars for the inventory. The escrow money was paid to me by check. The inventory money was paid by cash by Mr. William Kyne.

Q. As I understand it, you received the sum of

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Max Silverman.)

15 thousand dollars from the escrow department some time in the month of March, as you recall, 1943?

A. As I recall in 1943, right.

Q. And when did you receive the sum of $6067 in cash from Mr. William Kyne?

A. I don't know the exact date, but it should have been the early part of March, after the inventory—must have been the 1st or 2nd of March.

Q. And what do you mean by inventory?

A. The inventory, I mean by that that you take an inventory of stock, such as liquors, cigars, cigarettes, candies, magazines, etc.

Q. They were the stock-in-trade of those businesses?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. That inventory was taken and then you received $6067 as the purchase price for the inventory? [107]

A. That's right.

Q. The sum of $15,000 received from the escrow department of the bank and the one thousand dollars received by you in cash as a down payment in Mr. Haughey's office, was in payment for what?

A. For the lease, good-will, fixtures, licenses.

Q. Do you recall, Mr. Silverman, whether there was an allocation of the 16 thousand dollars purchase price for the premises, good-will, licenses and the like, between those various items? Do you understand what I mean?

A. I don't understand.

Q. Do you understand whether any particular portion of that total sum was in payment for licenses, another portion in payment for the lease, another portion in payment for the good will?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Max Silverman.)

Mr. Gillen: May that be answered yes or no, your Honor?

The Court: Yes, answer it yes or no.

A. Yes.

Q. And how was the total price of 16 thousand dollars allocated between the various items?

Mr. Gillen: To which we offer an objection, first of all, it is hearsay, and secondly, the written agreement is the best evidence of what the terms of the sale was, in the event that your Honor does not act upon the hearsay objection.

Mr. Thompson: If he recalls it, your [108] Honor.

The Court: You may answer the question. The objection is overruled.

Mr. Gillen: If there is an existing contract, that is, of course, always the best evidence.

The Court: I don't know whether there is.

Mr. Gillen: It should be eliminated then.

A. There is a contract.

Mr. Gillen: Then I ask that we see the contract, as the best evidence.

Q. Do you have the contract?

A. Mr. Haughey has the original contract.

Q. Do you have a copy of the contract?

A. I have a copy with me, yes.

Q. Mr. Silverman, I show you Plaintiff's Exhibit 20 for identification, which you have handed to me. Is that a copy of the only contract you had relating to this sale? A. I believe it is.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Max Silverman.)

Q. Is this copy of the only contract which you received in connection with the transaction?

A. Yes, sir, I believe it is.

Mr. Thompson: I offer it in evidence, your Honor.

Mr. Gillen: Well, of course, we still offer the objection, may it please the Court, that it is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial and hearsay as to the defendant in this case, not binding upon him, and purports to be a contract dated [109] February 4, 1943, between Max Silverman, the witness on the stand, and one Willie Kyne, making no reference whatever to the defendant in this case.

The Court: It will be admitted subject to a motion to strike if it is not connected.

Mr. Thompson: (Reads Exhibit 20.)

Q. Mr. Silverman, how was the purchase price of 16 thousand dollars allocated between the price for the lease, the price for the furniture and fixtures and equipment, the price for the licenses and the price for good will, as you recall?

Mr. Gillen: May it please the court, that is objected to as having been asked and answered and there is a contract here which speaks for itself and which this gentleman has testified is the only understanding there was between him and the buyer reduced to writing.

The Court: He said only reduced to writing, but he has heretofore stated there was some kind of distribution of this price for the various items and I can't see any reason why he can't so testify now. Objection will be overruled?

BLURRED COPY

A. Well, I appraised the value of my business at the time at that price and I don't know how to say as to the values between licenses and fixtures, that the fixtures were so much money and the lease I had was worth so much and the licenses at a value approximately three thousand dollars, but we come to an understanding [110] of worth——

Mr. Thompson: I might have misunderstood your previous answer.

Mr. Gillen: Just a minute—I move it all be stricken.

The Court: What is the grounds, Mr. Gillen?

Mr. Gillen: Well, the man doesn't remember, for one thing, what comments he made were only his appraisal and not subject to agreement. He said he valued the fixtures at so much and the licenses and lease worth so much, without mentioning the amount of his valuation and not the subject of any agreement. The agreement is there.

The Court: Motion is denied.

Q. Mr. Silverman, do you recall whether or not the total price of 16 thousand dollars was allocated between these various items in different sums?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as having been asked and answered.

The Court: Objection will be overruled.

A. Well, we didn't discuss it at the time as to the dollars and cents. At the time Mr. Kyne and

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Max Silverman.)

myself were talking, we came to the conclusion that——

Mr. Gillen: So that conclusion, your Honor, would be rankly hearsay.

Mr. Thompson: When the witness says, "we came to a conclusion," that is statement of what the conversation was. [111]

The Court: It might be hearsay. Objection is sustained. That part of the answer he is about to give, he is not to give.

Q. What type of license do you refer to as having been transferred to Mr. Kyne in connection with sale? A. Liquor license.

Q. What did those licenses cost you?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial, what the license cost him.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Shelton: If your Honor please, it is necessary on net worth statement for the government to do the very best it can to allocate between these different items if we establish that this property was a proper part of net worth statement in this case. The first effort would be to establish any agreement between the parties, buyer and seller, as to the values——

The Court (Interceding): We have nothing in this witness' testimony to show when these licenses were acquired.

Mr. Shelton: Well, counsel then would lay the foundation as to when they were acquired and then obtain such evidence as available to break down the cost between the various items for the purposes of tax computation.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Max Silverman.)

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, do I understand the Court is [112] entertaining argument on the objection sustained? If so, I would like to answer.

The Court: No. The reason why this is sustained is because I don't know when these licenses were procured.

Q. When did you acquire the liquor licenses, Mr. Silverman?

A. 1937, to the best of my recollection.

Q. Are those licenses that are renewed?

A. They are.

Q. When did you last renew the license?

A. Well, they are being renewed June 1st of every year. That would have been in 1942 when I renewed them.

Q. What did you pay for the license at that time?

Mr. Avakian: Objected to on the ground that the price he paid for the license in 1937——

The Court: No, that question is not directed to 1937. The last time of renewal, as I understand. Maybe I am wrong.

(Answer read.)

Mr. Avakian: This question then relates to renewal cost in 1942?

Mr. Thompson: Yes.

The Court: Answer the question.

A. $110.00.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Max Silverman.)

Q. Mr. Silverman, in San Francisco does the actual license [113] fee represent the value of the liquor license? A. No, sir.

Q. What was present on the premises in the way of furniture and fixtures at the time you sold that to Mr. Kyne?

A. The front part of the store had shelving that holds the liquor, counters, cigar case, candy case, coca-cola case, magazine racks, display cases, and in the back room were 13 tables to my best recollection at present, chairs and chips and some cards.

Q. What was the value of the furniture and fixtures and equipment at the time you transferred and sold the property to Mr. Kyne?

Mr. Gillen: Just a moment, objected to as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial, calling for opinion and conclusion of the witness and no foundation laid to show that he is qualified to place any valuation.

Mr. Thompson: He was the owner of the property, your Honor.

The Court: The objection is overruled.

A. Well, I valued it, as stated before, I valued the fixtures and the license and the whole thing as 16 thousand dollars. The way I arrived at those figures, I broke it down myself as to the value of the license, the value of the amount of business I have done, what the fixtures cost me, and Mr. Kyne tried to buy the place, I just put up one sum, that is the [114] amount I want for it and that is what he paid for it. It would be very difficult for me to say now as to what each and every piece of furniture or fixture in the store the actual value was.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Max Silverman.)

Q. What was the reasonable value, in your opinion, of the furniture and fixtures which were included in the sale to Mr. Kyne?

Mr. Gillen: That has been asked and answered several times, apparently to the best of the witness' ability, and also calling for his opinion and conclusion and also an attempt to qualify him as an expert.

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question.

A. What is the question again?

(Question read.)

A. Well, I felt the reasonable price for the fixtures alone, in my own mind, was ten thousand dollars, and the balance would be license and leasehold value.

Q. When you refer to fixtures, do you include the furniture and all the equipment which you described in the premises?

A. The entire premises, all the fixtures.

Q. And the furniture too?

A. Furniture, right.

Q. What was the reasonable value of the liquor license at that time which you sold to Mr. Kyne?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as having been asked and answered. [115]

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question.

A. I figured it would run about three thousand dollars, the value of the license.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Max Silverman.)

Q. What was the reasonable value of the leasehold interest which you transferred and sold to Mr. Kyne at that time?

Mr. Gillen: May it please the Court, I renew my objection to the whole line of questioning as hearsay, and also object that this has been asked and answered not once, but several times, and furthermore what the reasonable value of the leasehold is, it would seem to me, would have to be established through expert testimony.

The Court: Can't an owner give his opinion of the value of his property?

Mr. Gillen: An owner can say what it is worth to him, but I do not think he can give an opinion of the market value unless he establishes he is acquainted with realty in the particular location at the particular time.

The Court: Objection overruled.

(Question read.)

A. I valued it at three thousand.

Mr. Gillen: I move the answer be stricken. He said he valued it at three thousand. It is not responsive to the question.

The Court: Motion denied. [116]

Mr. Thompson: You may cross-examine.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Q. Speaking of that lease that you had, what length of time did it have to run, do you recall, in

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Max Silverman.)

February or March of 1943? What was the length of time the lease had to run?

A. I don't recall the exact time, but I believe it was until 1946.

Q. And was there a renewal option on that lease, do you recall? A. I don't recall that.

Q. You don't have the lease with you, do you?

A. No, sir.

Q. Now, do you have any recollection of what date in 1946 the lease expired? A. No, sir.

Q. As a matter of fact, you are not sure it was 1946? A. No, I am not sure it was in 1946.

Q. Now, I understood you to describe this enterprise as a cigar stand where cigars and tobaccos and candies and magazines were sold, is that correct? A. That is right.

Q. And then there was a bar in connection with it? A. No bar.

Q. What kind of liquor license was that?

A. Package goods. [117]

Q. Where you buy bottled liquor and take it off the premises? A. That is right.

Q. Not consumed on the premises, like a cafe?

A. No, sir.

Q. And I understood you to say there was also a card room contained in an incorporated club?

A. That is right.

Q. That was known as the 186 Club, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Max Silverman.)

Q. And that club was incorporated under the laws of the State of California, was it not?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. I have handed you photostatic copy of what purports to be an incorporation under the laws of the State of California, counsel. When you finish looking at it, I intend to show it to the witness and offer it.

Q. I will hand you here, Mr. Silverman, two photostatic sheets, photostated on both sides, purporting to be (1) an official document of the State of California, purporting to contain also some supporting documentary data attached thereto. Would you glance at those and tell us, if you recall, whether or not those represent the incorporation and the Articles of Incorporation of the so-called 186 Club at San Francisco that you have described here?

A. To the best of my recollection, I believe it is something [118] like this.

Q. As a matter of fact, one of those sheets bears your signature, does it not?

A. I don't see my signature on here.

Q. May I look at it?

A. I never had those papers myself. They belong to the membership.

Mr. Gillen: I would like to offer this as defendant's exhibit in evidence.

Mr. Thompson: If the Court please, we object on the ground it is irrelevant and immaterial, inasmuch as there is no testimony to the effect that the corporation itself was included in any sale to Mr. Kyne. The sale was of the leasehold premises, furniture and fixtures and the inventory and stock-in-trade on hand.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Max Silverman.)

The Court: The exhibit may be admitted and it will be Exhibit A.

Q. Now, Mr. Silverman, it is true, is it not, that when you became interested in the 186 Club and in the other enterprise, the cigar stand in conjunction therewith, that incorporated clubs incorporated under the State laws of California were legal organizations, which operated under the State laws of California?

Mr. Thompson: Objected to on the ground it calls for an opinion of the witness as to the law, your Honor. [119]

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question.

Q. Do you have the question in mind?

A. Yes. They were legal.

Q. It is true, is it not, that certain card games were prohibited by State law of California and certain other card games were recognized as legal games in California, is that correct?

Mr. Thompson: We make the same objection.

The Court: Same ruling.

A. As far as I know, some are legal and some are not legal.

Q. You know of your own knowledge, having been interested in that club, that, for example, draw poker was legal, unprohibited, while on the other hand stud poker was prohibited under the State law of California, is that correct?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Max Silverman.)

A. That is correct.

Q. And you know, of your own knowledge, under the State law of California, the games, so-called games of chance, were prohibited, while games, so-called games of skill, were the permitted games?

Mr. Thompson: Same objection.

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question.

Q. Isn't that true?

A. Well, as far as I know, the legal games were draw poker and no other games were permitted legally.

Q. Draw poker and panguingue. Do you recall what other games [120] were permissive games?

Mr. Thompson: I would like to know if panguingue——

The Court: He didn't give the answer as to panguingue.

Q. Do you recall, other than draw poker, what other games were legalized games in California?

A. Well, any game was that was draw was legal, so far as I understand. Panguingue also and draw poker, any game that you draw cards to are legal games.

Q. As distinguished from games that are so-called games of chance, where the skill of the player is not involved, is that correct?

A. That's right.

Q. I take it, Mr. Silverman, that you acquired your interest in this property from some predecessors, did you not? A. That's right.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Max Silverman.)

Q. In other words, according to the exhibit that I have shown you here, the exhibit consists of two pages and one of a so-called Articles of Incorporation of the 186 Club, which appears to have been organized on June 29, 1939, by Eugene H. Stone, San Francisco, Irving D. Freeman and Bernard D. Freeman of San Francisco. Were they your predecessors? A. I couldn't say off-hand.

Q. But you bought your interest from some one else, you were not the original incorporator?

A. I bought the cigar store originally and I held the lease. [121] The club was operated by membership as a non-profit organization.

Q. Now, also this document, this Exhibit, Defendant's A, contains the certificate of incorporation of the Department of State of the State of California, does it not, the charter certificate of incorporation, is that correct, that first page of the document, the exhibit?

A. All I can say what I see in front of me. I guess it is. I am not an expert in that. I guess it is the charter.

Q. Signed by the Secretary of State and official seal of the State of California?

A. That is right.

Q. State Department form, is it not?

A. That is right.

Q. Of course, being a non-profit corporation, there was no stock issued, isn't that true, no stock in existence, so far as you knew?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Max Silverman.)

A. So far as I know there was none.

Q. And you sold your interest in this corporation together with the fixtures to Mr. Kyne, did you not?

A. Well, not so far as the corporation is concerned. I sold the fixtures.

Q. You sold the good will and everything that was there, as well as the good will in the name of the 186 Club, did you not? [122]

A. Yes. I couldn't sell the charter, because the charter wasn't mine. It belonged to the corporation and I can't sell it.

Q. Have you personally done anything with the 186 Club operation since you sold what you did sell to Mr. Kyne? A. I don't get your question.

Q. Since you made this sale of whatever it was you sold to Mr. Kyne, have you personally done anything or had anything to do with the corporation, 186 Club? A. No, sir.

Q. In other words, when you sold the good will, fixtures, inventory, the leasehold, furniture and everything else to Mr. Kyne, you, so to speak, washed your hands of it and walked away and it was left in Mr. Kyne's hands?

A. That is right.

Q. Including the name of the 186 Club and everything else that was there on the premises, is that true? A. Yes.

Mr. Gillen: That's all.

Mr. Thompson: No further questions.

(Witness excused.)

a witness on behalf of the plaintiff, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct Examination

By Mr. Thompson:

Q. State your name please? [123]

A. Lanus Cardoza.

Q. Where do you live?

A. 60 Halkin Lane, Berkeley.

Q. Where are you employed?

A. San Francisco. American Trust Company.

Q. How long have you been employed by the American Trust Company?

A. Twenty-six years.

Q. And where is the American Trust Company's business located in San Francisco?

A. At 464 California Street.

Q. What character of business does it conduct?

A. Banking business.

Q. What is your present position with the American Trust Company? A. Assistant auditor.

Q. Have you appeared here today pursuant to subpoena issued to the American Trust Company?

A. I am appearing, yes.

Q. And did that subpoena require you to bring with you certain records of the American Trust Company? A. It did.

Q. Will you produce them please? Mr. Cardoza, are you prepared to furnish photostatic copies of

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Lanus Cardoza.)

each of the records of the American Trust Company which you have produced? [124]

Mr. Thompson: I would like to inquire of counsel at this time if they have any objection to having the photostats marked as exhibits rather than the original records?

Mr. Gillen: May we look at the documents first of all please? We have no objection to accommodating the bank or accepting photostats. Of course, we are not conceding they are significant.

Mr. Thompson: We understand that, Mr. Gillen.

Q. Mr. Cardoza, I show you Plaintiff's Exhibit 21 for identification; consists of a signature card for a commercial account and a transcript of a commercial account. Is that a record of the American Trust Company which is kept and maintained in the ordinary and usual and customary course of the operation of the business of that company?

Mr. Gillen: We will do this. We will stipulate those are true photostatic copies of the original bank records of the American Trust Company and that they may be offered for identification. If they are connected up later, if there is any significance, we have no objection from a technical standpoint as to the authenticity.

Mr. Thompson: You reserve only objection of relevancy and materiality?

Mr. Gillen: Yes, if prepared by you, we are satisfied they are true copies of records of the American Trust Company reflecting the activity of that particular commercial account. [125]

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Lanus Cardoza.)

Mr. Thompson: I would like to state for the record this is the account of Hazel Harris, 100 Park Drive, San Francisco, California.

Q. Mr. Cardoza, does the American Trust Company operate more than one branch in its bank?

A. It does.

Q. From what branch of the American Trust Company are the records contained in Exhibit 21 for identification taken?

A. From the San Anselmo branch.

Mr. Thompson: Exhibit 22 for identification is transcript of account of H. & H. Sandwich Shop by Hazel or Violet Harris, together with signature card for the same account.

Mr. Gillen: In the interest of time we offer the same stipulation as to those photostatic documents.

Q. Mr. Cardoza, from what branch of the American Trust Company are the records contained in Exhibit 22 for identification taken?

A. From the San Anselmo branch.

Mr. Thompson: If the Court please, we offer Exhibits 21 and 22 in evidence, subject to their being connected up.

Mr. Gillen: Oh no, we have to object to that, if the Court please. I understand there is another witness here with these checks and let us see what happens. We have offered a stipulation and tried to save time.

Mr. Thompson: We appreciate that. [126]

The Court: What is your objection to the exhibit?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Lanus Cardoza.)

Mr. Gillen: It is incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial, no foundation laid for anything, your Honor. It is a bank account of somebody else.

The Court: How about postponing the offer until you do connect it up?

Mr. Gillen: I think that is the proper way, your Honor and that is what we suggest.

Mr. Thompson: You may cross-examine.

Mr. Gillen: No questions.

HAROLD B. TRAUNPOUR

a witness on behalf of the plaintiff, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct Examination

By Mr. Thompson:

Q. Will you state your name please?

A. Harold B. Traunpour.

Q. Where do you live?

A. 2485 23rd Avenue, San Francisco.

Q. What is your business?

A. Banking sir.

Q. With what bank are you associated?

A. Crocker First National Bank in San Francisco.

Q. And where are the premises of the Crocker First National Bank situated in San Francisco?

A. 1 Montgomery Street. [127]

Q. What is your official position with the Crocker First National Bank?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold B. Traunpour.)

A. Assistant auditor.

Q. How long have you been employed at the Crocker First National Bank?

A. Thirty-four years.

Q. Have you brought with you, pursuant to subpoena, certain records of the Crocker First National Bank of San Francisco? A. Yes.

Q. Are you prepared at this time to furnish photostats of the records you are producing?

A. Yes.

Q. Will you produce first the signature cards and ledger accounts of the commercial account of the B & R Smoke Shoppe? Where are the originals of the ledger accounts?

A. They have been destroyed.

Q. What record have you kept of the original ledger accounts? A. We have microfilm.

Q. And the documents which you are producing now are blown-up films taken from your microfilm record? A. That is correct.

Mr. Gillen: Now, our understanding is—correct me if we have a misapprehension—Mr. Traunpour has the original signature cards for this account, but as to ledger sheets, that are reflected, that are in my hands here, these are photostatic [128] copies made up from microfilm which were used to supplant the original larger ledger sheets. The original sheets were destroyed and these smaller microfilms used in their place as permanent records?

A. That is correct.

Mr. Gillen: We have no objection to stipulating

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold B. Traunpour.)

that these may go in under the same conditions as stipulated, go in for identification. No technical objection raised as to the authenticity of the bank records. That is the account of William Kyne. But we would object to their going into evidence at this time.

Mr. Thompson: We offer Exhibit 23 for identification in evidence, without any reservation or restriction whatever, and call your Honor's attention to the fact that the income tax return for Elmer Remmer and his wife, Helen Remmer, Plaintiff's Exhibit 1, which is for the years 1944 to 1946 inclusive, report income from the B & R Smoke Shoppe.

The Court: And the period of time covered by those other documents cover the same place of business in the same period of time that is embraced within the admitted tax returns?

Mr. Thompson: Run from the period February 29, 1944, your Honor, to July 17, 1946.

The Court: Do you want to examine them with that point in mind? [129]

Mr. Gillen: May it please the Court, we call attention to the fact that the signature here sets forth: "I am the sole owner of the B & R Smoke Shoppe. Checks to be signed by myself only. William C. Kyne."

The Court: Very well, but the income tax returns, I presume, show that the defendant has some interest in that same institution?

Mr. Gillen: No, the income tax returns, your

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold B. Traunpour.)

Honor, show only that Mr. Remmer received some income from that institution. That doesn't mean that that is his bank account.

The Court: Very well. Exhibit will be admitted in evidence, Exhibit 23.

Mr. Gillen: He might only be working there. He might be an errand boy.

The Court: Exhibit 23.

Q. Mr. Traunpour, as part of Exhibit 23, I notice in the photostats of the ledger accounts the typewritten transcript with two items on it, $19.20 under date of February 7, 1944, with balance on that date of $712.27, and an item of $700 on February 17, 1945, with an item of $12.27, will you please explain how that typewritten transcript appears as part of your photostats?

A. It is merely because the photostat just preceding is very illegible and it was done over in this manner, just for clarifying sake. That is the way it came out of the photograph. [130] You can hardly see it at all.

Q. It is duplication of the photostat which precedes it?

A. That is right. It is a clear picture.

Q. Will you produce the signature cards and ledger accounts of the commercial account in the names of Elmer F. Remmer or A. F. Pritchett. Mr. Traunpour, what period of time is covered by the records included in Exhibit 24 for identification?

A. That covers period of time from February 17, 1945, to March 19, 1948.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold B. Traunpour.)

Mr. Gillen: No objection to Exhibit 24 for identification going into evidence.

Mr. Thompson: We offer it, your Honor.

The Court: It will be admitted in evidence, Exhibit 24.

Q. Mr. Traunpour, will you produce the signature card of safe deposit box 130 in the names of Henry Clay and William E. Kyne, receipt for the return of the key to that box, and any other papers and records you have relating to the box?

Mr. Gillen: I take it, Mr. Traunpour, you have the originals of these cards? A. I do.

Mr. Gillen: Now, the defense is prepared to stipulate to the authenticity of these photostats as true photostatic copies of the original bank records and there has been no offer in evidence yet. However, in anticipation of an offer, we would make an objection. [131]

Mr. Thompson: It is my understanding that the defendant reserves only the objection of relevancy and materiality.

Mr. Gillen: That is right. Are you going to offer it at this time?

Mr. Thompson: No. I am just restating what I understood your stipulation to be.

Mr. Gillen: Our stipulation is that we will not raise any technical objection to the authenticity of the photostats as being true photographs of the records in the bank. However, we reserve any right to object to the document for any use whatsoever upon any ground or basis that arises.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold B. Traunpour.)

Mr. Thompson: You stipulate that these are records of the bank kept in the ordinary and regular course of business?

Mr. Gillen: We will so stipulate to that, yes.

The Court: They have been marked?

Mr. Thompson: 25 for identification.

Q. Will you produce the signature cards and ledger account for the commercial account of Harold H. Maundrell for the period May, 1945 to June, 1946. Mr. Traunpour, does Exhibit 26 for identification consist of the signature card and transcript of a ledger account of the commercial account in the Crocker First National Bank entered under the name of Harold H. Maundrell?

A. That is correct.

stats, microfilms, of the commercial account of Harold H. Maundrell, we are prepared to stipulate that these are true authentic copies of the bank records of this account and we agree that they may go in evidence, subject to a motion to strike if they are not connected.

The Court: Very well.

Mr. Thompson: We offer them in evidence, your Honor, Exhibit 26 for identification.

The Court: I presume you accept the stipulation?

Mr. Thompson: Yes.

The Court: Exhibit 26 is admitted in evidence, subject to the motion to strike if it is not connected.

Q. Mr. Traunpour, will you produce the signature card and ledger account for the commercial account of Elmer F. Remmer and Harold H. Maundrell for the period June, 1945, to January, 1947?

Mr. Thompson: I ask that the documents the witness has produced be marked Plaintiff's Exhibit 27 for identification.

The Court: It may be so marked.

Mr. Gillen: May it please the Court, during the recess [133] this document was examined. We are prepared to stipulate, in the interest of time, this is a true and authentic photostatic copy of the original record of the bank on this account, and we are willing to stipulate that it may go into evidence, subject to a motion to strike, with the exception of the last three pages, which are for the year 1947 and which we would object to if offered in evidence, on the ground they are incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial and beyond the time embraced in the indictment, which goes only to the 31st of December, 1946, as I recall.

Mr. Thompson: Your Honor, the pages to which counsel objects, which are part of this offer, are for January, 1947. It is well known that in the ordinary course of banking business checks issued and passed during December of 1946 or preceding months frequently are not received by the bank——

The Court: I wonder if the records would disclose the checks that have to do with 1946? Could you make some arrangement whereby it would concern only 1946 transactions?

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, as I understand it, the net worth computations of the government, insofar as this account, would concern the balance of that account on December 31, 1946. I do not see that anything that happened in 1947 could affect that balance.

The Court: I think we could resolve this by admitting [134] this exhibit in evidence, with the understanding that no material appearing in the last three pages, except checks which were received prior to January 1, 1947, would be admitted. That is just a suggestion.

Mr. Thompson: I believe your Honor stated checks received prior to December 31st.

The Court: January 1, 1947.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harold B. Traunpour.)

Mr. Thompson: Prior to January, 1947, or January 31st?

The Court: January 1st.

Mr. Thompson: What we had in mind, your Honor, if checks drawn on the account——

Mr. Gillen: We withdraw our objection. Let it all go in.

The Court: All right. It is admitted then.

Mr. Gillen: I should not have said we withdraw the objection. We withdraw the condition imposed on it. We place no condition on it. It may go in without condition.

The Court: Very well.

Q. Mr. Traunpour, are you familiar with the operations in the teller's cage at the Crocker First National Bank and the various stamps that are used by a teller in the Crocker First National Bank?

A. I think I would recognize them.

Q. What does a stamp on a check placed there by the Crocker [135] First National Bank, stating, "Credit to the account of drawer" mean?

A. It is credited to the account of the person who draws the check.

Q. And what would be involved in a transaction of that character?

A. What would be involved?

Q. Yes. I mean, how would that take place? Under what circumstances would that stamp be used?

A. Well, I have very seldom seen that particular

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harold B. Traunpour.)

stamp used. There is one that is a little more in use, "Credit to the account of drawer."

Q. Well, do you know what that stamp means if it should appear on the check?

A. Well, as I just said, merely that it is credited to the account of the person who signs the check and draws the check.

Q. The maker of the check?

A. The maker of the check.

Q. And would that stamp be placed on a check if the person who drew the check on the account delivered it to the teller for deposit to the same account? Do you understand?

A. Would you clarify that a little.

Q. Would the stamp, "Credited to the account of drawer" be placed by the teller on the check if that check is offered for deposit to the same account upon which it is drawn? [136]

A. It wouldn't necessarily.

Mr. Gillen: I am afraid I am going to have to offer an objection, that this is purely some hypothetical matter that counsel is going into now and it is obvious that Mr. Traunpour, with all due respect to him, is not familiar with the particular significance of certain symbols or stamps of the bank. He said he thought he recognized them, but he seems to be unfamiliar with the particular hypothetical proposal made by the prosecutor.

The Court: I think the question perhaps is not understood by the witness.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

Mr. Thompson: I withdraw the question, your Honor. You may cross-examine.

Mr. Gillen: No questions.

CASPER HARRIS

a witness on behalf of the plaintiff, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct Examination

By Mr. Thompson:

Q. Will you state your name please?

A. Casper Harris.

Q. Where do you live?

A. San Anselmo.

Q. What is your business?

A. Unemployed at present.

Q. Are you married? [137] A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is your wife's name?

A. Hazel Harris.

Q. Are you acquainted with the defendant, Elmer Remmer? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How long have you known him?

A. Twenty-five or 30 years.

Q. Where have you known him?

A. In San Francisco, also Cal-Neva.

Q. Since in the year 1934 where, if you know, has Mr. Remmer resided?

A. 1934, I wouldn't know.

Q. Since 1934?

A. In the wintertime well Orinda, California, and Cal-Neva.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Casper Harris.)

Q. In the wintertime?

A. In the wintertime I believe Orinda.

Q. And where in the summer time?

A. In Cal-Neva during the season.

Q. In the year 1945 were you and your wife engaged in any business in California?

A. My wife had a sandwich shop in San Anselmo.

Q. What is the name of the business?

A. H. & H. Sandwich Shop.

Q. Located in San Anselmo, California?

A. Yes, sir. [138]

Q. In the year 1945 did you have any business transactions with Mr. Elmer Remmer in connection with the operation of the H. & H. Sandwich Shop?

A. Yes, sir, I borrowed $2,500 from Mr. Remmer.

Q. Where did that transaction take place?

A. In San Francisco.

Q. Where in San Francisco?

A. I received the money at 50 Mason Street.

Q. From whom did you receive the money?

A. From Mr. Remmer.

Q. You received the sum of $2,500?

A. Correct.

Q. Did you receive it in cash or by check?

A. Cash.

Q. Was a note executed to evidence the obligation? A. No, sir.

Q. What did you do with the $2,500?

A. Gave it to my wife.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Casper Harris.)

Q. In your conversation with Mr. Remmer relating to the loan, did he indicate to you where or to whom repayments of the loan should be made?

A. No. Checks were made out to Mr. Remmer to his home in Orinda, I believe.

Q. Did you, yourself, make any repayments on the loan?

A. The last payment, yes, sir, in cash. [139]

Q. You say you made that payment in cash?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Of how much money? A. $250.

Q. When did you make that last payment?

A. I think it was in 1948.

Q. Were the other payments on the loan made?

A. They were made by check, yes, sir.

Q. By whom? A. By Mrs. Harris.

Q. What was the business located at 50 Mason Street where you met Mr. Remmer?

A. It was their office, I believe.

Q. What was the name of it? Did it have a name, as far as you know?

A. Not that I know of. It did have a name, but I can't recall it.

Q. Do you think it was the B. & R. Shop?

A. I don't know.

Mr. Gillen: Just a moment—do you think——

The Court: He has answered he doesn't know.

Q. What character of business was carried on there?

A. It was his office, as far as I know.

Mr. Thompson: You may cross-examine. [140]

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Q. Mr. Harris, as I understand your direct testimony, you asked Mr. Remmer, whom you had known for 25 or 30 years, to loan you $2,500 for your wife's business, is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And he gave you $2,500 in cash and took no note? A. Correct.

Q. And how was the money paid back? You stated by check. What arrangement was made? Did you make any arrangement?

A. It was understood my wife was to pay back $250 a month. The business was running away with her and her checks were slow coming in and Mare Island and the San Francisco Presidio, sometimes her checks would be six months coming.

Q. In other words, she had a wholesale sandwich shop and her business grew so fast and the income came so slow, she wasn't able to handle it?

A. That is right.

Q. And she needed some additional capital?

A. That is correct.

Q. And as I understand your testimony, your wife did pay all this loan of $2,500 back at the rate of $250 per month, by check sent to Mr. Remmer's home and the last payment was made by you in cash to Mr. Remmer for the year 1948, is that correct? A. Correct.

Q. And that last payment was for how much, do you recall? [141]

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Casper Harris.)

A. Two hundred fifty dollars.

Q. That was the last $250 that was owed?

A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Gillen: I think that is all.

MRS. HAZEL HARRIS

a witness on behalf of the plaintiff, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct Examination

By Mr. Thompson:

Q. Will you state your name?

A. Mrs. Hazel Harris.

Q. You are the wife of Mr. Casper Harris who just preceded you on the witness stand?

A. That's right.

Q. And you live in San Anselmo, California?

A. That is right.

Q. During the years 1945 and 1946 did you operate a business in San Anselmo, California?

A. That is right.

Q. What was the name?

A. H. & H. Sandwich Shop.

Q. Did you have a commercial bank account in connection with the operation of that business?

A. Yes.

Q. Where was that bank account? [142]

A. It started out with the American Trust Bank.

Q. In Anselmo, California? A. Right.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Mrs. Hazel Harris.)

Q. Did you also have a personal account in that bank? A. That's right.

Q. Do you know Mr. Elmer Remmer?

A. Well, I have met him a few times. He was my husband's friend, but I have met Mr. Remmer several times.

Q. During the years 1945 and 1946 did you send payments to Mr. Remmer?

A. Well, I perhaps addressed the letter to Mrs. Remmer, if I remember right. I wouldn't be positive about that, but I think it was addressed to Mrs. Remmer.

Q. And you did make payments to Mr. Remmer? A. Yes, I made payments the same way.

Q. How many payments did you make during that period? A. Nine.

Q. And in what amounts?

A. $250 each, each check.

Q. Do you have any checks representing the payments that you made to Mr. Remmer?

A. Yes.

Q. Will you produce them please?

Mr. Gillen: If counsel wishes to offer these in evidence, we will stipulate that they may go without objection. [143]

Mr. Thompson: I offer in evidence as Plaintiff's Exhibit 28, your Honor, seven checks, the first being dated September 15, 1945, payable to the order of E. Bremmer for the sum of $250; the second being dated October 15, 1945, payable to the order of E. Bremmer for $250; the third being dated November 15, 1945, payable to the order of E. Bremmer; the fourth being dated May 6, 1946, payable to the order of E. Remmer for $250; the fifth being dated October 6, 1946, payable to the order of E. Remmer for $250, the next one dated July 6, 1946, payable to the order of E. Remmer for $250, and the last dated June 6, 1946, payable to the order of E. Remmer for $250.

(Testimony of Mrs. Hazel Harris.)

The Court: By stipulation they are admitted in evidence.

Mr. Gillen: Yes, that is the stipulation; they may be offered in evidence.

Q. Referring to Plaintiff's Exhibit 28, Mrs. Harris, I note three checks drawn to the order of "E. Bremmer." Who is E. Bremmer?

A. Well, that was meant to be Elmer Remmer, but I didn't know him well enough at the time when I first started writing the checks and I thought his name was Bremmer until I was corrected by my husband.

Q. What was the purpose of sending Mr. Remmer those seven checks making up Exhibit 28?

A. To repay the loan.

Q. You testified, I believe, that you made nine rather than [144] seven payments by check to Mr. Remmer. Do you have the other two checks?

A. No, I couldn't locate them.

Q. Were the other two checks that you have not been able to find also drawn payable through the bank account of the H & H Sandwich Shop or bank account of Mrs. Hazel Harris in the American Trust Company?

A. That I do not know.

Q. Did you have any other bank accounts at that time?

A. No, I did not. I do not believe so anyway.

Q. Do you know whether or not the other two checks which you have been unable to find were presented to your bank for payment and charged against your account?

A. I don't understand your question.

Q. You understand, Mrs. Harris, when you give somebody a check drawn upon your bank account, it finally comes back to your bank and the bank charges it against your account? A. Yes.

Q. You testified you have delivered to Mr. Remmer two checks which you have been unable to find. Do you know whether or not those two checks were in the sum of $250, were actually charged against your bank account?

A. Oh they must have been. They have to be, but I just have not taken care of my checks evidently and I couldn't find them.

Mr. Thompson: You may cross-examine. [145]

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Q. You know you wrote 9 checks however?

A. That is right.

Q. And initially, as I understand your testimony, your husband having obtained this loan for you from a friend to assist you in your business, you were initially under the impression his name was Bremmer instead of Remmer?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Mrs. Hazel Harris.)

A. That is right.

Q. And that was because of your lack of intimate acquaintance? A. That is right.

Q. And after writing it as E. Bremmer, your husband corrected you and told you it was Remmer?

A. That is right.

Q. And thereafter you wrote all other checks to Mr. Remmer, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. Is it your best recollection, beside a couple of checks written, I believe in the year 1945, latter part of 1945, that all subsequent payments by check by you were made in the year 1946?

A. Well, isn't there a few months between 1945 and 1946 there?

Q. Yes, there is.

A. I wouldn't know which checks are missing.

Q. In other words, according to the checks as introduced by counsel under our stipulation, the first check was written September [146] of 1945, the second October, the third check November, and then there is a space of time, the next check appears to be in May of 1946 and then a check in October of 1946.

A. Perhaps I didn't pay on time as I should.

Q. I beg your pardon, the next check in June, none in July, and the next in October of 1946. Would you say that all of your checks were paid in

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Mrs. Hazel Harris.)

1946 excepting the three which were paid in 1945, is that your best recollection at this time?

A. I really don't know when the others were paid.

Q. Did you completely pay the $2,500, or was additional payment made by some one other than yourself?

A. No, the last payment was made by my husband by cash.

Q. Do you have any recollection now as to whether or not those two checks that you were unable to find were issued in 1945 or during the year 1946? A. I couldn't say.

Q. Would you say it was one year or the other, that is 1945 or 1946?

A. I just couldn't say because I don't remember.

Q. Do you still have that business, the H & H Sandwich Shop? A. No.

Q. When did you give that business up?

A. Shortly after the war was over.

Q. In 1946?

A. One month after the war was over. [147]

Q. By the way, Mrs. Harris, do you recall when you got that money, the $2,500?

A. Well, some time in the year 1945. It would have to be in the year 1945.

Q. What was the necessity for you having that additional capital?

A. Well, my business—it was my first experience in business and I didn't realize it cost as much to go into business as it did and I needed more money to carry me along. I was selling wholesale sandwiches and needed more money to pay my help and current bills because the government doesn't pay at the end of the month like a lot of people do, the first of the month. It took them 15 or 20 days sometimes to pay me and the people I bought from demanded their money, so I needed the money to carry on.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Mrs. Hazel Harris.)

Q. You had to have additional capital and your husband effected this loan to you? A. Yes.

Q. Who delivered the $2,500 to you?

A. My husband delivered it.

Q. I take it you put it in your commercial account?

A. I put it in there but I can't find a ledger that I deposited $2,500, but I perhaps used a part in cash for something else, but I don't remember what—different bills coming in for different accounts. I can't say which one on the ledger it would be. [148]

Q. Did you have any partner in that sandwich shop?

A. I really didn't, but I started out to have. After about a week or ten days my sister-in-law started out with me, but she didn't have sufficient capital to keep up with me, so she backed out. That is why her name is on the bank signature when I opened the account.

Q. Did you have any other partner at any time in that business? A. No.

Q. Was Mr. Elmer Remmer, the defendant in

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Mrs. Hazel Harris.)

this case, ever a partner or ever have an interest?

A. I should say not.

Q. And payments that you made to him were exclusively for the return of loan made to you through your husband by Mr. Remmer?

A. Absolutely.

Mr. Gillen: That's all.

Redirect Examination

By Mr. Thompson:

Q. When did you open the business of the H & H Sandwich Shop? A. In the year 1945.

Q. Do you recall when?

A. No, probably my husband would know more about it than I.

Q. Approximately?

A. I don't remember the exact date. It seems to me like it was in June. I am a very funny person, I can't remember dates. It seems to me it was in the fall time, or the late summer or fall. [149]

Recross-Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

A. Mrs. Harris, with regard to the two checks that you were unable to locate, I note in the checks that were introduced in evidence under the prosecution's Exhibit 28, there is no reference made or any check found for the month of November, 1946, but I note in the prosecution's Exhibit 21——

Mr. Thompson: If the Court please, I object to

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Mrs. Hazel Harris.)

counsel reading from any exhibit not admitted in evidence at this point.

Mr. Gillen: I was just looking at that now and see that it isn't. I wonder if I might refresh the witness' recollection by showing her Exhibit 21?

The Court: I think so.

Mr. Thompson: If the Court please, I offer Exhibit 21 in evidence.

Mr. Gillen: I think there is no objection to it.

The Court: Exhibit 21 is now in evidence.

Mr. Thompson: We also offer Exhibit 22 in evidence.

Mr. Gillen: No objection to either of those.

The Court: Exhibit 22 is admitted.

Q. I note in the prosecution's Exhibit 21, which purports to be copy of the activities of a commercial account in the name of Hazel Harris, 100 Park Drive, that in the month of November of 1946 there appear vouchers in the form of some checks issued for $250 each in two instances, down at the bottom of the page. Would that refresh your recollection of the two checks you were unable to find, that either one or both of those might be the [150] checks you couldn't find?

A. One is for $250 and one for $256.

Q. I believe that is right.

A. There would be no reason for the $256 given for the payment and the one of $250 I wouldn't say, because it could be or could not be.

Q. That doesn't assist you?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Mrs. Hazel Harris.)

A. No, I don't know whether that would be the one or not.

Q. Now I note this exhibit, Mrs. Harris, and it may be examined by you if you wish, or by counsel, this exhibit No. 21 in evidence, that there are a few instances of checks written in the sum of $250. Can you think of anybody other than Mr. Remmer that you would with some regularity write out a check for $250?

A. I think I live the average life. There could be most anybody, I wouldn't know.

Q. That doesn't help you. All right.

Q. Will you state your name please?

A. Warren T. Sylvey.

Q. Where do you live?

A. 2685 18th Avenue, San Francisco, [151] California.

Q. What is your business? A. Banking.

Q. By whom are you employed?

A. Bank of America, San Francisco.

Q. In what capacity?

A. Assistant vice-president.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Warren T. Sylvey.)

Q. Are you appearing here pursuant to a subpoena issued and served upon the Bank of America National Trust and Savings Association at San Francisco? A. I am.

Q. Have you brought with you certain records of the Bank of America? A. I have.

Q. Will you produce the signature cards and ledger accounts of the account of B & R Smoke Shoppe for the period March 12, 1943, to January 23, 1945? Are you prepared to supply photostats of the bank's original records? A. I am.

Q. Have you also brought with you the original records of the bank? A. I have.

Mr. Thompson: I ask the records produced by the witness in response to my request be marked Exhibit 29 for identification.

Mr. Gillen. In the interest of time, we are prepared [152] to stipulate that Exhibit 29 for prosecution identification comprise a true and authenticated copy of the original records of the bank for this account and may be offered in evidence if the prosecution so desires, subject, of course, to our motion to strike in the event it is not connected up when it comes to the material issues of this case.

Mr. Thompson: We accept the stipulation, your Honor.

The Court: It may be admitted in evidence, Exhibit 29, subject to motion to strike.

Q. Mr. Sylvey, will you produce signature cards and ledger accounts for the account of the 186

Club for the period October 8, 1946, to January 31, 1947?

Mr. Gillen: May we see the originals at the same time?

Mr. Thompson: I ask that the documents produced by the witness at my request, your Honor, be marked Plaintiff's Exhibit 30 for identification. This witness is to produce a number of exhibits and if I could be permitted to call for them and have them marked for identification, then the attorneys might have opportunity to examine them all at once; if we could proceed in this way.

Mr. Gillen: That is the way we suggested a number of days ago, that we be permitted——

The Court (Interceding): We don't care what your suggestion was several days ago. Do you consent to this or not? [153]

Mr. Gillen: The only reason I made this remark——

The Court: I don't care to have any remark made. Let us forget a couple of days ago.

Mr. Thompson: My suggestion wasn't made in a critical way.

The Court: All right.

Mr. Gillen: I don't want to be critical, because we have to read things we don't know about.

The Court: We don't need to have any remarks. Proceed. Let us not have any trouble.

Mr. Gillen: I am not having any trouble. I just want to speak about something.

The Court: I don't want to hear from you.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Warren T. Sylvey.)

Mr. Gillen: Very well, I will sit down then.

The Court: You may proceed with the examination of the witness.

Q. Mr. Silvey, I show you Plaintiff's Exhibit 30 for identification. Are those photostats of the original records of the Bank of America maintained and kept by the bank in the ordinary and customary course of the business of the bank?

A. They are.

Q. Is it part of the business of the Bank of America to keep and maintain records of that character? A. It is.

Q. And do those records consist of the signature cards and [154] transcript of the ledger account pertaining to the account of the 186 Club?

A. They are.

Q. Do the records contained in Exhibit 30 for identification refer to a period of time from October 8, 1946 to February 17, 1947?

A. They do.

Mr. Thompson: I offer the exhibit in evidence, your Honor.

Mr. Gillen: If I dare, I might suggest that I was going to stipulate to that.

The Court: Just a minute. I don't want any remarks like that—"if I dare." I am not going to tolerate any sarcasm from you or any one else. When you say if you may dare, it is not very kind or courteous remark. Let us go along.

Mr. Gillen: May it please the Court, I am an advocate.

BLURRED COPY

The Court: Don't talk, because I will not tolerate——

Mr. Gillen: You are being very unfair. I can't even explain. You are being unfair. You won't even permit me—I am an advocate in this court. You refer to me as outsider and not belonging here.

The Court: We will excuse the jury until Monday morning at 11:00 o'clock, and please remember the admonition you have heard so many times, not to discuss among [155] yourselves or any one else any matter connected with the trial of this case, or form or express any opinion on this case until it is finally submitted to you, and I mentioned at the beginning of the trial and you promised that you would not read the newspaper reports and please do not do so and do not permit any one to talk to you about this case until it is finally submitted. If any should persist in talking to you, please report that person to the Court. We will be in recess until Monday morning at 11:00 o'clock in this case. We have a calendar to call at 10:00 o'clock.

(Jury excused at 4:05 p.m.)

(In the absence of the jury.)

The Court: Now, I want to tell you, Mr. Gillen, I do not want to punish you for contempt, but you are going to force me to do it. I do not want any back talk from you. I try to conduct this trial fairly. I have not any prejudice against anybody from San Francisco or from Africa. Now, I don't want any back talk and when you make a remark,

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

"If I dare," addressed to this Court, you can't get away with it. If I have any talk from you any more, I will commit you for contempt of court, understand it.

Mr. Gillen: Might I say to your Honor, I realize I am [156] an officer of this court——

The Court (Interceding): I don't want any talk. I will hear only when you ask questions and address remarks to the jury but none such remarks to me. We will be in recess in this case until 11:00 o'clock and all witnesses subpoenaed are ordered to be here at that time. Court will convene at 10:00 o'clock to call the calendar Monday morning.

Mr. Golden: May I request in another matter we would like to make some arrangement to have matters which are in evidence available at seasonable times and under seasonable conditions so we can examine and take photographs.

The Court: Can you make some arrangement with counsel, Mr. Clerk?

Mr. Golden: We have no objection if we can make proper arrangements with the clerk.

The Court: They may not be taken from the clerk's office. They may be examined at any reasonable time to suit the clerk's office hours.

Q. Mr. Silvey, will you produce the signature cards and ledger accounts of the account of William E. Kyne for the period from September 15, 1942 to March 5, 1945?

Mr. Thompson: I ask that the records the witness has produced in response to my request be marked Exhibit 33 for identification.

The Court: It may be so ordered.

Q. Mr. Silvey, will you produce the signature cards and ledger account for the account of the Menlo Club for the period October 2, 1946 to March 11, 1948?

Mr. Thompson: I ask that the records produced by the witness be marked Plaintiff's Exhibit 34 for identification.

The Court: So marked.

Q. Mr. Silvey, from what branch of the Bank of America have the records which you have so far produced at the trial been taken?

A. The Day and Night office, Bank of America in San Francisco.

Q. What is the address of that office?

A. No. 1 Powell.

Direct Examination

By Mr. Thompson:

Mr. Gillen: May it please the Court, defense counsel has examined the prosecution's exhibits for identification Nos. 31 to and including 34. We are prepared to stipulate that they may be offered in evidence without objection.

The Court: Very well.

Mr. Gillen: Of course, that is subject to the provision that we mentioned the other day and your Honor held, subject to the motion to strike in the event they are not connected with this defendant, they being in bank accounts of other names.

Mr. Thompson: That is satisfactory.

The Court: Pursuant to stipulation, Exhibits Nos. 31, 32, 33, and 34 will be admitted.

Q. Now, Mr. Silvey, you have also brought, pursuant to the same subpoena, certain records of the Grand Lake Branch of the Bank of America?

A. I have.

Q. Will you produce at this time the signature card and ledger accounts for commercial account of Mrs. Helen L. Remmer for the period June 1, 1945, to July 31, 1947, together with the [160] following deposit slips for the account: June 19, 1945, for $250; July 17, 1945, for $250; August 17, 1945, for $200; May 6, 1946, for $400; June 6, 1946, for $250; August 5, 1946, for $350; September 16, 1946, for $250; October 9, 1946, for $250; December 10, 1946, for $250, and January 6, 1947, for $250.

A. All right.

Mr. Thompson: Your Honor, I request that these records, all relating to the account of Mrs. Helen L. Remmer on the Grand Lake Branch of the Bank of America in Oakland, California, be marked Plaintiff's Exhibit 35 for identification.

The Court: It may be so marked.

Q. Mr. Silvey, you have also brought records from the 12th & Broadway Branch in Oakland of the Bank of America? A. I have.

Q. Will you produce the following cashier's checks and applications for cashier's checks, bearing the following numbers: No. 25166567, dated August 14, 1942? A. For $14,000.

The Court: Never mind mentioning the amounts.

A. I am sorry.

Q. Mr. Silvey, you have handed me Bank of America cashier check No. 25166567. You were also subpoenaed to produce the application for that check. Do you have that record? A. I do not.

Q. Where is that record? [161]

A. It has been destroyed.

Mr. Thompson: I ask that the cashier's check indicated be marked Plaintiff's Exhibit 36 for identification.

The Court: So marked.

Q. Mr. Silvey, under what circumstances are the bank's applications for cashier's checks destroyed?

A. Six-year period.

Q. You retain them for six years and then they are all destroyed? A. That is correct.

Q. Have you brought with you cashier's check No. 25166830, dated August 19, 1942?

A. I have.

Q. Will you produce it, please?

Mr. Thompson: I ask the check produced, your Honor, be marked Plaintiff's Exhibit 37 for identification.

The Court: So marked.

Q. Mr. Silvey, have you also produced check No. 25107378, dated February 11, 1946?

A. Will you repeat the number?

Q. 25107378. A. I have that number.

Q. The date is incorrect that I read to you?

A. The date is incorrect.

Q. What is the date? [162]

A. February 8, 1946.

Q. You also have produced with it the application for the check? A. I have.

Mr. Thompson: I ask cashier's check and application be marked Plaintiff's Exhibit 38 for identification, your Honor.

The Court: So marked.

Mr. Gillen: Are those Oakland branches?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

Mr. Thompson: Yes, those records are all from the 12th & Broadway Branch in Oakland.

A. Also known as Oakland Main Office.

Q. Have you also produced, Mr. Silvey, cashier's check No. 25107434? A. I have.

Q. Is that dated February 11, 1946?

A. That is correct.

Q. Do you have the application for that check?

A. I do.

Q. Will you produce that, please?

Mr. Thompson: I ask the check and application be marked Plaintiff's Exhibit 39 for identification.

The Court: So marked.

Q. Referring, also, Mr. Silvey, to the records of the Oakland Main Office of the Bank of America, have you produced, pursuant to subpoena, the records of the bank relating to loan [163] No. 25288?

A. I have.

Q. Regarding loan to Mrs. Helen Remmer and Miss Dorothy A. Remmer? A. I have.

Q. Have you handed me the only records you have brought relating to that?

A. No, I have the original. Now when you say the only record, what do you mean?

Q. What is the bank designation of the record you have produced?

A. This is the loan record.

Mr. Thompson: I ask that the record produced, your Honor, be marked Exhibit 40 for identification.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Warren T. Silvey.)

The Court: Is it understood that the photostat copy may be marked?

Mr. Gillen: Yes.

Q. Mr. Silvey, you also produced certain records of the Tracy Office of the Bank of America, in Tracy, California? A. I have.

Q. Will you produce the signature cards and ledger account for the commercial account of Helen L. Remmer for the period November 30, 1943, to March 19, 1947?

Mr. Thompson: I ask that the records produced be marked Exhibit 41 for identification, your [164] Honor.

The Court: So marked.

Q. Have you also brought with you, Mr. Silvey, the cashier's check and application therefor from the Fresno Office of the Bank of America, check No. 106963, dated February 6, 1947?

A. I have.

Mr. Thompson: I ask that this be marked Exhibit 42 for identification, your Honor.

The Court: So marked.

Q. Referring to the loan account, Mr. Silvey, in the Oakland Main Office of the Bank of America, regarding a loan to Helen Remmer and Dorothy A. Remmer, have you brought with you any other records of the bank relating to that account, other than the transcript of the account which you produced as Plaintiff's Exhibit 40 for identification?

A. I have what is commonly called a credit file.

Q. You have with you the originals of these letters?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Warren T. Silvey.)

A. Well, they are actually filed duplicates of original letters that were written.

Q. And the letters which you have produced, photostats of letters, relating to the credit file in connection with the loan of Mrs. Helen Remmer and Dorothy A. Remmer, are either copies of letters written by your bank in connection with that transaction or are photostats of the original letters which were received by the bank from some other sources?

A. That is correct. [165]

Mr. Thompson: I ask that that be marked 43 for identification.

Mr. Gillen: May I make this suggestion, if that is on that one loan account, I believe it would be more practical and easier to follow if it was all included in Exhibit 40.

The Court: Either that or mark it 40-A. Which would you suggest?

Mr. Gillen: Either one would be satisfactory.

The Court: It will be marked Exhibit 40-A.

Q. Mr. Silvey, have you also produced records of the Day and Night Branch of the Bank of America relating to an escrow set up at that bank in connection with the transaction between Mr. William E. Kyne and Max Silverman?

A. They are not records of the Day and Night Branch. They are records of our Trust Deposit San Francisco Main Office.

Q. Can you produce those?

Mr. Thompson: I ask that the photostats of the bank records referring to the escrow account be-

Mr. Thompson: I would like to inquire whether counsel have as yet had an opportunity to examine the exhibits just marked?

Mr. Gillen: Nothing beyond 34. [166]

Mr. Thompson: Your Honor, those are all the records we have to introduce by this witness. However, he cannot be excused until counsel has had an opportunity to examine them and cross-examine.

Mr. Gillen: Then we will have to have a little time.

resumes the witness stand.

The Court: I want to explain to the jury, counsel was occupied with the examination of records. That is why we kept you so long.

Mr. Gillen: May it please the Court, the defense is prepared to stipulate that the prosecution's Exhibit 35 may be offered in evidence without objection, subject, however, to the defense's motion to strike in the event it is not properly connected up.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Warren T. Silvey.)

The defense will stipulate, under the same conditions, to the admission in evidence of prosecution's Exhibit 36. Also under the same conditions prosecution's Exhibit 37. Also prosecution's Exhibit 38. Also No. 39, No. 40 and No. 40-A; also to the prosecution's Exhibit 41, and that, of course, contains an Elmer Remmer signature card, so that already is connected with the defendant and would not be subject to that [167] condition that we reserved on the others. And the defense will also stipulate to the admission in evidence of prosecution's Exhibit 43, subject to the same condition, motion to strike in the event that it isn't connected up. The defense will object to prosecution's Exhibit 42 and the objection is based upon the ground that it involves a cashier's check on the Fresno Branch of the Bank of America, the check being dated February 6, 1947. The basis of the objection of the defense is that this is a date after the time period fixed in the indictment, which is through the year 1946.

The Court: Now I understand, Mr. Gillen, of the exhibits which you have just stipulated may be admitted, No. 41 is admitted without——

Mr. Gillen: Without any condition, your Honor, because it is the account of Elmer Remmer at the Tracy Office of the Bank of America and bears his signature on the signature card, so that is directly, of course, connected with the defendant.

The Court: You have heard the objection to No. 42?

Mr. Thompson: Yes, your Honor. In reference

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Warren T. Silvey.)

to Exhibit 42, your Honor, I would like to point out that Mrs. Badovinatz—I think that is how you pronounce her name—of Fresno testified that in February of 1947 her husband told her he was going to obtain a check. We believe this particular cashier's check for five thousand dollars payable to Elmer Remmer is the check involved and that it should be received in evidence, evidencing [168] repayment of a loan which existed during the indictment time.

Mr. Gillen: Of course, your Honor, there is absolutely no basis for that in evidence. In other words, that may have represented a loan made two days before the cashier's check was made, it may have been made two weeks or a year before 1947. In other words, it may have been payment of loan made long prior to the year 1944, the opening year of the indictment, so on that basis I think at this time there is no foundation laid for the admission of that in evidence and until such foundation is laid, if it ever can be, that the objection of the defense is good.

The Court: I wonder if I could look at that check. That is 42?

Mr. Gillen: 42. While you are looking at that, your Honor, may the reporter read the last part of Mr. Thompson's statement?

(Statement read.)

Mr. Gillen: I think probably counsel used that phraseology inadvertently. There is no evidence it was in payment for a loan existing in 1946. There is no evidence when the loan is made, no evidence whatever in the record.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Warren T. Silvey.)

Mr. Thompson: Your Honor, I would like to inquire whether counsel will stipulate that Exhibit 42 is a record of the Fresno Branch of the Bank of America kept and maintained in the ordinary and customary course of its business? [169]

Mr. Gillen: We will stipulate that it is an authenticated reproduction of the original check. We do not raise any technical question as to the authenticity of the reproduction.

Q. Mr. Silvey, in reference to Exhibit 37——

Mr. Gillen: It might keep the record clearer if we waited for his Honor to rule on the objection.

Mr. Thompson: Excuse me. I overlooked that, your Honor.

The Court: If I recall the lady's testimony, it seemed that this conversation occurred in February, 1947.

Mr. Gillen: That is correct, between herself and her husband alone at the time. We have the transcript if your Honor would care to see the exact answer she gave. We would like to have your Honor look at it.

The Court: Very well.

Mr. Gillen: There was some technical objection, but the pertinent testimony all appears on page 97 of the transcript. May I hand it to your Honor?

The Court: Yes. At page 95 I see this question: "Will you state at this time what the conversation was that you had with your husband in February, 1947?" Then there was an objection and some discussion, and later on she testified here it was in February.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Warren T. Silvey.)

Mr. Gillen: If your Honor will note, she wasn't even asked concerning any personal knowledge she had of the circumstances and when the loan was made and there is no connection [170] in the record.

The Court: Objection will be overruled and the exhibit admitted in evidence as Exhibit 42.

Mr. Gillen: Your Honor is admitting that?

The Court: Yes, sir. My thought is that it is for the jury to determine under all the circumstances surrounding that, that the question here of the Exhibit 42 applies to that same transaction. That is my thought in the matter.

Mr. Gillen: We are not raising that point. In fact, I do not think we have any doubt that that Fresno check refers to the check mentioned by Mrs. Badovinatz. Our point is this, that there is no evidence in the record to show when the loan was made and unless the loan was made within the time period of the indictment, between and inclusive of the years 1944 to 1946, then it should not be before us and we feel your Honor should not have admitted it until and unless the prosecution is able to show that it represented a loan made in 1944, 1945, or 1946. Repayment of a loan in 1947 might have been made two weeks before whatever date it was in 1947.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Warren T. Silvey.)

The Court: I think still that would be a question for the jury. The ruling will stand.

Mr. Thompson: Did your Honor make formal ruling on the other exhibits?

The Court: Yes, they are all admitted, all subject to a [171] motion to strike except Exhibit 41. I think that was the one that you stated, Mr. Gillen.

Mr. Gillen: We stated there was no condition placed upon that to connect it up.

The Court: The other exhibits are admitted, subject to motion to strike.

Mr. Gillen: So we may have the record clear, your Honor has admitted Exhibit 42 over our objection. May that be admitted over our objection, subject to the motion to strike in the event there is no evidence showing that the loan was made during the period of time named in the indictment?

The Court: No, I think we will let that stand the way it is, Mr. Gillen.

Mr. Gillen: We are just asking to impose the same condition as we are to the other exhibits, with the exception of 41.

The Court: However, I won't place a bar, and perhaps when it comes time to argue these motions you might develop something that will warrant me to reconsider and sustain your motion.

Q. I show you Plaintiff's Exhibit 37, Mr. Silvey, that is a cashier's check of the Bank of America, Main Office, dated August 14, 1942, to the order of the Oakland Title Insurance & Guaranty Company for five thousand dollars, check No. 25166830.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Warren T. Silvey.)

Were you also requested to produce the application for that [172] particular check? A. I was.

Q. Did you produce it? A. I did not.

Q. Has that application also been destroyed under the same circumstances as the application requested in connection with Exhibit 36?

A. It has been.

Q. Mr. Silvey, on an application for a cashier's check and that portion of it designating the source of the funds to be used to pay for the check, if the word "register" should appear on that blank for application, do you know what that would mean?

A. It would depend on which department the cashier's check was issued out of. There are many, many departments in a bank, and each one maintains a register.

Q. Do you know out of what department of the Oakland Main Office Exhibit 37 was issued?

A. I do not.

Q. By looking at Exhibit 37 could you determine that? A. I could not.

Q. On occasion does the loan department of the bank issue cashier's checks? A. They do.

Q. And assuming that Exhibit 37 was issued by the loan department of the bank and the word "register" appeared on the application for the check as the source of the funds paying for [173] the check, do you know what that would mean?

A. It would mean that a loan that day was registered and the proceeds of the loan paid by cashier's check.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Warren T. Silvey.)

Mr. Thompson: You may cross-examine.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Q. Mr. Silvey, I want you to look at the signature card in prosecution's Exhibit 41. I am handing you the prosecution's Exhibit 41 and I will ask you to look at a portion of that exhibit which is a signature card and tell us, if you will, what is indicated on there as to the date that the signature card was signed and that account opened?

A. It indicates that it was opened on January 25, 1939.

Q. And that was a commercial account, was it not? A. That is correct.

Q. That means that that commercial account came into existence on January 25, 1939? Correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. Now there is another—I don't know whether it represents a separate card or whether it represents the reverse side of the signature card?

A. It is a separate card.

Q. There is another party's name occurring on there. What is that other party's name?

A. The signature name is E. Remmer by W. R.——

Q. Gift, isn't it? [174] A. Gift.

Q. Now is there any way for you to tell from that exhibit whether or not there existed in the Tracy Branch of the Bank of America an earlier commercial account? A. Prior to 1939?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Warren T. Silvey.)

Q. Yes. A. No, there is none.

Q. Do you mean there is no way of telling, or you can tell from that exhibit that there was no pre-existing account?

A. From the signature card I am unable to determine whether there was an account prior to January 25, 1939.

Q. So that that wouldn't indicate it was a renewal card or continuance of an old account?

A. No. This would indicate this is a new account opened for the amount of $50 on January 25, 1939.

Q. Now on Exhibit 42, which is the Fresno Bank of America cashier's check dated February 6, 1947, can you tell us which branch that is on? With the Court's permission, I hand you Exhibit 42. Can you tell us which branch that cashier's check was issued to in Fresno? You have two or three branches in Fresno, have you not?

A. That is right. This was issued out of the Fresno Main Office.

Q. Now I would like, with the Court's permission, to show you another exhibit, Exhibit 35. I will identify that as Helen Remmer account in the Oakland Main Bank of the Bank of America; [175] is that correct?

A. No, this account was established at the Grand Lake Branch.

Q. That is right. Can you tell us when that account was opened by Mrs. Helen Remmer?

A. October 28, 1942.

Q. Mr. Silvey, you couldn't make out the opening date of this account, Exhibit 35, from the photostat; is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. And you looked on the original?

A. Looked on the original.

Q. The original shows October of 1942; is that correct? A. That is what I believe it to be.

Q. It is blurred on the photostat?

A. And it is a bit blurred on this.

Mr. Gillen: I think that is all; thank you.

Redirect Examination

By Mr. Thompson:

Q. Mr. Silvey, Mr. Gillen showed you Exhibit 41, which is signature card and the transcript of the account of Elmer F. Remmer in the Tracy Branch of the Bank of America. What are the two small cards making up part of that exhibit?

A. The first is a signature card covering the conditions under which the account is maintained, and the authorized signature to withdraw the funds from that account.

Q. On that signature card how many authorized signatures were indicated? [176]

A. There was one.

Q. Whose signature is that?

A. Elmer F. Remmer.

Q. What is the second small card making up part of that exhibit?

A. That is what is called an authorization card.

Q. What is the purpose of it?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Warren T. Silvey.)

A. For mailing of statements and cancelled checks and for the return of deposited items that may have been deposited in the account and had been returned unpaid to the account and for service charges under certain scheduled conditions.

Q. And that is the card that is signed Elmer Remmer by W. R. Gift? A. That is right.

Q. Was any one other than Elmer F. Remmer authorized to draw checks on this account at any time? A. At no time.

Mr. Thompson: That's all.

Recross-Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Q. I wonder would you be kind enough to look at, with the Court's permission, the original signature card of Exhibit 41? Mr. Silvey, you testified, in looking at the photostat, that it appeared to you that the account had been opened with a deposit of $50. I will ask you to look at the original and see if the account wasn't opened with an initial deposit of $150? A. Yes. [177]

Q. So the original card shows it was opened with an initial deposit of $150 instead of $50 which you stated in looking at the photostat; is that correct? A. That is correct.

a witness on behalf of the plaintiff, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct Examination

By Mr. Thompson:

Q. Will you state your name, please?

A. Dana E. Bremner.

Q. Where do you live?

A. 6326 Roanoke Road, Oakland, California.

Q. What is your employment?

A. Oakland Title & Guaranty Company, Oakland.

Q. How long have you been employed by the Oakland Title Insurance & Guaranty Company in Oakland, California? A. About 15 years.

Q. Are you appearing here today pursuant to a subpoena served upon the Oakland Title Insurance & Guaranty Company? A. I am.

Q. Have you brought with you certain of the business records of that company called for in the subpoena? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you produce the records of the Oakland Title Insurance & Guaranty Company relating to an escrow No. 312404? [178] Mr. Bremner, the record you have produced has been marked Plaintiff's 44 for identification. I would like to ask you whether those records are records kept and maintained by the Oakland Title Insurance & Guaranty Company in the usual, regular and customary course of the operation of its business?

(Testimony of Dana E. Bremner.)

A. They are.

Q. Is it part of the business of the Oakland Title Insurance & Guaranty Company to act as escrow agent in real estate transactions?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. Is it also part of the business of the Oakland Title Insurance & Guaranty Company to keep and maintain records of the character comprising Exhibit 44 for identification?

A. We keep the actual records.

Q. And it is part of the business to keep those records? A. Oh, yes.

Mr. Thompson: I offer Exhibit 44 for identification in evidence, your Honor.

Mr. Gillen. If we may have your Honor's permission to confer for a moment off the record with counsel for the prosecution?

The Court: I might say the witness suggested a few moments ago there might be matters in there that are not pertinent.

(Off-the-record conference between [179] counsel.)

Mr. Gillen: May it please the Court, in the interest of not cluttering up the record with voluminous matter that has no reference to any matter we are interested in here—that is, title refers to predecessors in interest—we would be willing to stipulate that Mr. Bremner may testify from the record to any matters that the prosecution feels is pertinent and, of course, subject to our motion to strike if it is not pertinent.

Mr. Thompson: Satisfactory, your Honor.

Q. Mr. Bremner, will you refer to the record you have brought and state generally the nature of the transaction reflected in those records?

A. It is the sale of real property.

Q. Who is the seller?

A. The sellers were James M. Stevens and Betty Ann Stevens, his wife.

Q. Who were the buyers?

A. Helen L. Remmer, a married woman, and Dorothy A. Remmer, a single woman.

Q. What is the description of the property?

A. Do you wish me to read the entire description?

Q. Just the lot and block number and location.

A. Real property in the County of Contra Costa, State of California, described as follows: Portion of Lot 83 as shown on the map of sectionalization of a part of Ranch Laguna de la Palos Colorado, Contra Costa County, California.

Q. Does anything in your files show the common designation for that portion of parcel, such as street number? A. No, none.

Q. And what was the date of the transaction?

A. There are a number of dates. Do you mean the date it was consummated?

Q. Yes, that would be satisfactory.

A. The deed was recorded August 26, 1942.

Q. And the deed you refer to is the deed from

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Dana E. Bremner.)

Mr. and Mrs. Stevens, the sellers, to Helen Remmer and Dorothy A. Remmer, is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. What is the purchase price for the property?

A. Nineteen thousand dollars.

Q. And from whom did the Oakland Title Insurance & Guaranty Company receive the money to pay the purchase price?

A. The receipt was made out to Mrs. Elmer Remmer although it is signed Helen Remmer, and Dorothy A. Remmer. Fourteen thousand dollars was received from Helen Remmer and five thousand dollars was received from the Bank of America, Oakland Home Office.

Q. Referring to the $14,000 payment, do your records indicate the form that the payment took, that is, whether it was cash or by check?

A. Yes, it was a cashier's check.

Q. And do your records show the number of the cashier's check?

A. Yes, it was No. 25166567 on the Bank of America, Oakland Main Office.

Q. What form did the payment of the $5,000 take?

A. The $5,000 was cashier's check No. 25166830 from the Bank of America, Oakland Main Office.

Q. From whom did you receive instructions on behalf of the purchaser regarding the sale of the property?

A. The parties I mentioned as having signed

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Dana E. Bremner.)

that receipt. That was our instructions from Helen Remmer and Dorothy A. Remmer.

Q. Do your records show whether or not the buyers, or one of them, occupied the property at any particular time?

A. No. The buyers you say? I beg your pardon.

Q. Yes.

A. Yes, there is a notation set forth in these papers: "Premises occupied by purchasers on August 18, 1942. Per Wallace." The initials under that are C. M.

Q. And do your records show anything regarding where the buyers had lived prior to making this particular purchase?

A. The address given by the buyers when we took their escrow instructions was 1607 West Walnut Street, Stockton, California.

Q. Does it show how long they had lived there?

A. Yes, it was since 1939.

Q. In connection with the transaction, what costs were paid by [182] the buyers?

A. I don't know exactly how to answer that because the buyers did not actually pay the cost themselves. It was paid by the bank.

Q. What costs were paid on the part of the buyers?

A. Fire insurance pro-rated, $43.14. Title insurance premium, $112.50; war risk insurance, $15.00; recording quit-claim, $1.30; recording deed, $1.30; recording deed of trust, $3.90. That was a total of $177.14. As against that there was a credit of $10.95 for tax pro-rated, making a total of expense of $166.19.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Dana E. Bremner.)

Q. So the total amount that the title company received from the buyers in connection with the purchase of this property was how much?

A. That would be $14,166.19.

Q. And the additional five thousand dollars was received from the bank?

A. Yes, that was proceeds for the real estate loan.

Q. And it was a payment on behalf of the buyers? A. Right.

Q. The total purchase price for the property was 19 thousand dollars? A. Correct.

Q. And what the buyers paid you, either directly or by loans on the property, was $19,000 plus the costs which you related?

A. That is right. [183]

Q. On what dates were the payments made to the title company by the buyers, or on their behalf?

A. The fourteen thousand dollars I referred to was paid to us on August 14, 1942. The five thousand dollars from real estate loan was paid to us August 20, 1942, and the expense bill of $166.19 was paid on August 24, 1942.

Q. Has that particular parcel of property been sold by Helen Remmer——

A. (Interceding): That was an error, I beg your pardon. That must be an error because that was two days before the transaction was closed. September 24th, not August. I read it wrong.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Dana E. Bremner.)

Q. Which payment was paid on September 24?

A. $166.19.

Q. Has that particular parcel of property been sold by Helen Remmer and Dorothy Remmer?

A. Yes, it has.

Q. On what date?

Mr. Gillen: I don't know, first of all, whether that would be competent, relevant and material, and I think the time on it would be prior to the time we are interested in here. May we see the paper?

A. Yes, certainly. (Witness hands paper to defense counsel.)

Mr. Gillen: We offer the objection, may it please the Court, it is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial, involves a transaction which commenced in 1942 and ended at some subsequent time [184] to the time involved here. We think it is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

The Court: Objection will be overruled as to this question and see what the answer is. Read the question to the witness.

(Question read—On what date?)

The Court: Now you can answer that question, Mr. Bremner.

A. January 14, 1948.

Q. I don't believe I asked you, Mr. Bremner, the form of payment of the sum of $166 and some odd dollars, representing the costs paid by the buyers?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Dana E. Bremner.)

A. It was by credit to our account by the bank.

Q. And what bank was that?

A. Bank of America, Oakland Main Office.

Mr. Thompson: You may cross-examine.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Q. Now, Mr. Bremner, if you look again at the original escrow transaction, No. 312404, which showed the sale from the Stevens to Helen Remmer and Dorothy A. Remmer, do you have that before you, sir? A. Yes.

Q. Is there a reference there to a quit claim from Elmer F. Remmer to Helen L. Remmer, his wife? A. Yes, there is.

Q. And when was that executed, sir? [185]

A. August 14, 1942. Wait a minute—I beg your pardon—the abstract of that deed the first name is Alma F. Remmer.

Q. What does the abstract show?

A. Alma.

Q. What does the other document show?

A. That was a mistake. I have an abstract of the document from our abstract department and this would be correct, deeded by Elmer F. Remmer, husband, to Helen L. Remmer, his wife, a married woman, and Dorothy A. Remmer, a single woman.

Q. In other words, the effect of that instrument executed by Elmer F. Remmer was to deed any interest he might have in that property to his wife and to make it her separate property, is that correct.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Dana E. Bremner.)

Mr. Thompson: We object to that, calls for conclusion of this witness as to the effect of a legal instrument.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Let me ask you this—withdraw that and I will ask you this question. You have stated that you have been connected with the Oakland Title Insurance & Guaranty Company for a period of 15 years last past, is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. That has been continuous?

A. Except for a brief period during the war.

Q. Are you also a lawyer?

A. That is correct. [186]

Q. And you handle these escrow matters and transactions, transfers of real property, is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. What effect does your company give to the filing of record of a quit-claim deed from a husband to a wife with reference to interest in a piece of real property? That would be, of course, in California?

A. In this particular case it was for the purpose of perfecting a joint tenancy.

Q. A joint tenancy between whom?

A. Between the two purchasers, Helen Remmer, a married woman, and Dorothy A. Remmer, a single woman.

Q. In other words, the purpose of obtaining that

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Dana E. Bremner.)

quit claim deed was to effect a joint tenancy so that Helen Remmer, although she was married, would have that as her undivided separate property and not affected by the community property laws of California, is that right?

A. That is right.

Mr. Gillen: I think that is all.

The Court: Any reason why this witness could not be excused?

Mr. Thompson: No, your Honor, but the exhibit is for identification and at the conclusion of the trial if we found it was not needed, it will be returned to this witness, but in the event we should require it later on we would like it to [187] be available.

(Witness excused.)

The Court: I think it well for us to adjourn at this time so we may avoid, as much as possible, any danger of accidents on the highway, due to icy conditions which perhaps might exist, so we will adjourn now.

Direct Examination

By Mr. Thompson:

Q. Will you state your name, please?

A. Ronald Saunders.

Q. Where do you live?

A. 9301 Skyline Boulevard, Oakland.

Q. What is your employment?

A. Alameda County East Bay Title Insurance Company.

Q. Where is the Alameda County East Bay Title Insurance Company located?

A. 15th & Webster.

Q. In Oakland, California? A. Yes.

Q. What is your business with that company?

A. That is a hard one—public relations.

Q. Have you appeared in court today pursuant to subpoena served on the Alameda County East Bay Title Insurance Company? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you have brought with you certain of the records of that company relating to escrow transactions? [189] A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you produce the records of the Alameda County East Bay Title Insurance Company relating to escrow No. 335148? Mr. Saunders, I show you the records which you have produced, which have been marked Plaintiff's Exhibit 45 for identification. Are those records of the Alameda County East Bay Title Insurance Company kept and maintained in the ordinary, usual, and customary course of the business of the company? A. They are.

Q. And is it part of the business of the Alameda County East Bay Title Insurance Company to keep and maintain records of the character which you have produced? A. It is.

Q. Is it part of the business of the Alameda County East Bay Title Insurance Company to act as escrow agent for real estate transactions?

A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Thompson: I offer Exhibit 45 for identification in evidence, your Honor.

Mr. Gillen: May it please the Court, I would like an opportunity to examine the witness on voir dire as to the basis for possible objection.

The Court: You may do so.

Q. (By Mr. Gillen): Mr. Saunders, you say your connection with the Alameda County East Bay Title Insurance Company is that of [190] public relations? A. Partly, yes, sir.

Q. Now public relations man, in the common sense of the word, is a publicity director and one who creates good public relations or good will between his company and those with whom the company deals, is not that correct?

A. That's right, sir.

BLEED THROUGH— POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ronald Saunders.)

Q. And that is your job, is it?

A. I said partly. I also have, and have had, charge of all escrows. I mean open escrows, assigning of the escrows.

Q. Do you have charge of escrow records?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you prepare those records yourself?

A. No, sir.

Q. They are prepared by the counter man, are they not? A. That's right, sir.

Q. So that you are not familiar with the escrows that are prepared by the counter men other than you know there are records kept, is that correct? A. Correct. I am no expert.

Q. Well, I am not asking for that qualification. I am asking for personal knowledge of the records. You have no personal knowledge of the records of your company other than records are kept in the ordinary course of the title insurance company's business, is that correct? [191]

A. That is correct.

Q. And the major portion of your work is public relations, is that so? A. That is right.

Q. Do you hold any particular official title with the company? A. No.

Q. So the particular file that you brought, you were not familiar with other than it is a file kept in the company's office, your company's file?

A. That's right.

Mr. Gillen: Well, may it please the Court——

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ronald Saunders.)

Mr. Thompson (Interrupting): If the Court please, I think I am entitled to ask additional questions on voir dire.

The Court: You may.

Q. (By Mr. Thompson): Mr. Saunders, are you familiar with the character of records kept and maintained in the escrow department?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you know how escrow transactions are handled by the Alameda County East Bay Title Insurance Company? A. That's right, sir.

Q. Are you able to understand the various documents that are contained in an escrow file?

A. Yes.

Mr. Gillen: Of course I think that question is both [192] leading and suggestive and also calling for a man to pass upon his qualifications, like saying, how smart are you?

The Court: Let me have the question, please.

(Question read.)

The Court: I will sustain the objection.

Q. What did you say your duties were in connection with the escrow department?

A. When an order is placed with the company, it is given a number. I partly index those and assign them, if they haven't already been assigned, to the escrow officers and public relations.

Q. And you act in a supervisory capacity over the escrow officers in assigning transactions to them? A. No, sir.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ronald Saunders.)

Q. How long have you been employed by the Alameda County East Bay Title Insurance Company? A. The last six years.

Q. In what department of the company have you worked?

A. I worked in the tax department and public relations and the open escrow account.

Q. And were you designated by anyone in the company to produce these records to court pursuant to the subpoena issued? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial. It would be for the Court to determine whether this [193] man is qualified to interpret the records of the company.

The Court: I think he can answer this question.

(Question read.)

A. Yes, I was.

Q. By whom?

A. Mr. Sanborn, manager of the company.

Mr. Thompson: That is all.

Mr. Gillen: May it please the Court, I submit to the Court this witness does not qualify as either the person who prepared the records, the person who keeps the records, the person who is familiar with the details of the records, or the person who has sufficient knowledge of the transacting of escrow matters in a title company to be able to qualify himself to interpret the records that he has brought here. The witness himself has stated his work primarily is that of public relations man, which is another way of saying publicity man, and also that he does some administrative work in the matter of assigning to counter men escrow transactions that come in and I submit the man is not qualified to interpret, from his own testimony, those transactions, either from personal knowledge or general knowledge, by reason of his position with the title company.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ronald Saunders.)

Mr. Thompson: Your Honor, I do not know of any question directed to the witness asking him to interpret anything. The subpoena, as the record shows, was served on the company [194] itself. This witness has testified these records are records kept in the regular course of the business of the company and part of the business of the company to keep these records. We have offered the records in evidence as evidence of the transactions rather than the testimony of any witness.

Mr. Gillen: What we have in mind, your Honor, as the basis for this objection, if we have a witness who produces records and is not qualified to interpret them, we are deprived of the right to cross-examine someone with knowledge of the meaning of the particular records and it is like giving a publicity man from a chemical company a chemical formula and asking him to come in and interpret it.

Mr. Thompson: Your Honor, the records are the best evidence. They speak for themselves, what they contain and what their legal effect is.

The Court: It seems to me a subpoena of this kind should be directed in general terms to the organization or institution with the thought that they send up somebody who has custody or knowledge of the records. Now this is the second instance here in this case where we are called upon to stretch Section 1732 of the Code. This insurance man who testified to these insurance policies of certain personal property. I had a list of witnesses furnished me by the clerk and his name did not appear on the list of [195] witnesses, but the party who he informed us had knowledge and custody of the records, that name did appear, some lady, a partner in the insurance broker's office. That exhibit would be on much sounder ground if it had been introduced through testimony of that witness rather than the insurance man who testified here. Now here we have the same instance here. They were called upon to designate someone to bring up these records. It seems to me that they should have sent up somebody who has direct knowledge.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ronald Saunders.)

Mr. Gillen: That was Mr. Scollin, the insurance brokerage firm.

The Court: Yes, that is the man.

Mr. Thompson: I believe your Honor incorrectly recollects the situation. Mr. Scollin was a partner in the insurance firm which he represented.

The Court: His knowledge of that exhibit was very meager.

Mr. Thompson: I believe your Honor refers to Mr. Hill.

The Court: On this list of names is the name of Mrs. Bridgeford and during the course of Mr. Scollin's testimony it was made to appear that this lady had knowledge of this particular record and would have been the proper person to be sent up here by the [196] company. It looks as though we have the same situation here. I think we ought to be a little careful about the use of this Section 1732. I think the defendant is entitled to have any records presented through persons who have some knowledge of the record and have had some charge of its custody.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ronald Saunders.)

Mr. Thompson: I believe this witness testified he did have some control and supervision of the records, your Honor.

The Court: He testified he gave it a number, something of that kind. Now this Section 1732 is a pretty broad section, but I do not believe it should be stretched out of proportion. (Reads Section 1732) Now I think the effect of this witness's testimony is that he did testify that particular record, Exhibit 45, was a record kept in the regular course of business by the institution he represents and, Mr. Gillen, it seems to me that we have compliance with that section, but I do feel that the defendant is entitled to have these records produced by somebody who really knows something about them, and that is the thought I had when I heard the testimony of this gentleman, Mr. Scollin.

Mr. Thompson: In that connection, your Honor, I would like to suggest that these records are as readily available to the defendant as they are to the government. If they require [197] any explanation of the witness to explain them, it is as readily available to the defendant as it is to the government.

(Testimony of Ronald Saunders.)

The Court: Well, I wish if you are going to have any more exhibits of this nature, if possible you should get a representative of the firm or corporation who really has some knowledge of the documents. I will overrule the objection and admit the exhibit. I do that because I think they come within that section, Mr. Gillen, but I think it would be better if they would have these records produced by someone who had the custody.

Mr. Gillen: May it please the Court, as in the instance of the other title record that was referred to yesterday, I note in this file No. 335148 there is considerable immaterial matter that does not relate to any transaction that would affect the defendant in this case or any of the defendant's business affairs and for that reason I suggest that those be extracted from the record before they are introduced in evidence—reference to other people in the chain of title.

The Court: Can you agree with counsel as to matters that come within that category?

Mr. Thompson: Your Honor, it is difficult to do that. This is file pertaining to this particular escrow and I think we might have some difficulty in agreeing what is material and what is immaterial and it is clear that immaterial matters [198] harm anybody.

Mr. Gillen: Other persons, predecessors in interest, those things shouldn't clutter up the record, your Honor, prior owners, and so on.

BLURRED COPY

Mr. Thompson: It is my understanding the exhibit is in evidence, your Honor.

The Court: Well, there has been a request made. I did admit it but I will withdraw the ruling and see if cannot get the immaterial matter out of it, if there is immaterial matter in it.

Mr. Gillen: We might do it this way, possibly counsel could extract from that record what he considers material. We could meet that as he introduced that. Possibly we could agree on it, then he could introduce it.

Mr. Thompson: We have three or four other escrows. I suggest, your Honor, we have them marked for identification and then we can get together and agree what to abstract and what is material.

Mr. Gillen: All right.

The Court: All right.

Q. Will you produce escrow No. 337802?

The Court: I ask that the records produced by the witness concerning escrow No. 337802, be marked Plaintiff's Exhibit 46 for identification.

The Court: So marked. [199]

Q. Will you produce escrow No. 311361.

Direct Examination

By Mr. Thompson:

Mr. Gillen: May it please the Court, it is my understanding—correct me if I am in error—that the early recess granted by your Honor today was to comply in this, that the prosecution has taken from the exhibits offered for identification certain data which the prosecution considered material and the defense has no objection to that data going into evidence; however, each exhibit subject, of course, to our right to move to strike in the event it isn't connected up. Now as to the other portions, which I think are generally agreed to be supervisal, have no materiality, no connection with this matter, I understand it is the desire of the prosecution that those exhibits be marked for identification and remain in custodial charge in the event anybody in the future may wish to use them. Mr. Thompson, is that correct?

Mr. Thompson: That is generally correct, Mr. Gillen. At this time I would like to have the portion of Exhibit 45 for identification, which I am handing the clerk, marked Exhibit 45-A for identification.

The Court: Very well. It may be marked Exhibit 45-A. That is the portion you do not intend to offer in evidence at this time?

Mr. Thompson: At this time.

Mr. Gillen: That is the portion to be eliminated from evidence at this time. [201]

Mr. Thompson: At this time we offer in evidence Plaintiff's Exhibit 45 for identification.

Mr. Gillen: No objection.

Mr. Gillen: That is for identification?

Mr. Thompson: Your Honor, we have removed from Plaintiff's Exhibit 47 for identification certain documents which we ask to have marked Exhibit 47-A for identification.

The Court: So marked.

Mr. Thompson: We now offer in evidence Plaintiff's Exhibit 49.

Mr. Gillen: No objection.

The Court: It may be admitted.

Q. Mr. Saunders, you have produced in court certain records of the Alameda East Bay Title Insurance Company, which have been marked Plaintiff's Exhibits 45, 45-A, 46, 46-A, 47, 47-A, 48, 48-A, 49, and 49-A. As to all of those exhibits, are those records of the Alameda County East Bay Title Insurance Company? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Which were kept, made and maintained in the regular course [203] of the business of that company?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as having been asked and answered.

Mr. Thompson: Not as to all exhibits.

Mr. Gillen: I withdraw the objection.

Mr. Thompson: I just ask the general question.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. As to all those exhibits, are those records which it was the business of the Alameda County East Bay Title Insurance Company to keep and maintain? A. Yes, sir.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Q. Mr. Saunders, directing your attention to prosecution's Exhibit 45, and particularly the document in these which appears to be in mimeograph form, I will ask you to look at this—with the Court's permission, I will hand it to you—and tell us whether or not you recognize that form as a mimeographed form used by your company?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And it is true, is it not, that it is used so frequently and commonly that you have a regular mimeographed form for that purpose?

A. Yes.

Q. Now this mimeographed form is a form where persons having their real estate transactions, transfer of realty, request that [204] the title company keep the title in its name, is that correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. I will ask you, with the Court's permission, to look at the other exhibits, exhibits through 49, and tell us whether or not you find the same mimeographed forms directing or authorizing the title company to keep the title in its name? I do not think you will find it in 49, but I think up to 48.

A. In Exhibit 46 there is an unexecuted form.

Q. Would you just glance at the others. Tell us whether or not those same forms occur in the others? A. Yes, sir.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ronald Saunders.)

Q. By the way, in looking at that, any other instances where the unexecuted forms appear, such as in 46? Does unexecuted mean that the direction was not signed by anybody? That referred to 45, Exhibit 45, did it not referred to the same kind of action? A. I do not have 45.

Q. I have 45 down here, I am sorry.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Refers to the same transaction?

A. Exhibit 45; yes, sir.

Mr. Gillen: With the Court's permission, I should like to read this particular form to the jury.

The Court: Yes, sir.

Mr. Gillen: This is dated February 15, 1945, under date [205] of Oakland, California. It is the mimeographed form which Mr. Saunders has identified as the form prepared and used by his company in instances where persons, in participating in a real estate transfer, desire the title company to retain the title of the property in the name of the title company. It reads: (Reads from Exhibit.) And thereafter is description of the land on the form, which is unnecessary to read, and the signature line bearing the purported signature of Joseph C. Haughey.

That is all, thank you.

Q. Mr. Saunders, will you refer to Plaintiff's Exhibit 46 and give the description of the real property involved in that escrow?

A. Lots 11 and 21 in Block 104, as designated on the map entitled, "Richmond Annex Addition, Contra Costa County, California."

Q. Is the Alameda County East Bay Title Company holding title to that property under one of the holding agreements? A. Yes, sir.

Q. For whom? A. Joseph C. Haughey.

Q. I also show you Plaintiff's Exhibit 47. Will you please give the description of the property involved in that escrow?

A. Lots 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, and 10 in Block 104, as designated on the map entitled "Richmond Annex Addition, Contra Costa County, California."

Q. Is the Alameda County East Bay Title Company holding title to that property under one of the holding agreements? A. Yes, sir.

Q. For whom? A. Joseph C. Haughey.

Q. I also show you Plaintiff's Exhibit 48. Will you give the description of the property involved in that escrow?

A. It is a long description. Would you like it in full?

Q. Can you give it by lot designation and [207] block?

A. Parcel 1, Lot 17 in Block 104, as designated on the map entitled "Richmond Annex Addition, Contra Costa County, California," and parcel 2, a portion of Lot 20 in Block 104, as designated on the map entitled, "Richmond Annex Addition, Contra Costa County, California," and there are metes and bounds description.

Q. That is sufficient. Is the Alameda East Bay Title Company holding title to that property under one of the holding agreements? A. Yes, sir.

Q. For whom? A. Joseph C. Haughey.

Mr. Thompson: That is all.

Mr. Gillen: No further questions.

a witness on behalf of the plaintiff, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Will you state your name?

A. Joseph C. Haughey.

Q. Where do you live?

A. 2200 16th Avenue, San Francisco.

Q. What is your business or occupation?

A. Attorney at law. [208]

Q. In the City of San Francisco?

A. Yes.

Q. Were you in the courtroom during the testimony of Mr. Saunders? A. I was.

Q. And did you hear read here the holding agreement with respect to Lots 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11 and 21 of Block 104, Richmond Annex Addition, Contra Costa County? A. I did.

Q. Are you the same individual named in that holding agreement? A. I am.

Q. As being the person for whom the title company is holding that property? A. I am.

Q. Will you relate the circumstances under which that property is being held for your direction?

A. Well, I will have to call upon confidential relationship that exists between myself and the party for whom I worked. I am unable to testify unless my client waives, I mean the party I was working for at that time.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Joseph C. Haughey.)

Q. By that to whom do you refer?

Mr. Gillen: May it please your Honor and Mr. Campbell, we will waive, on behalf of the defendant, Elmer Remmer, the confidential relationship of attorney and client which binds [209] Mr. Haughey and permit Mr. Haughey to testify fully.

Mr. Haughey: As further protection for me, I would like Mr. Remmer to waive that personally.

Mr. Gillen: Will you waive the confidential relationship binding Mr. Haughey, Mr. Remmer?

Mr. Remmer: I waive it.

Q. Very well, proceed to relate the circumstances.

A. In either April or May, 1943, Mr. Remmer was interested in some property in El Cerrito, Contra Costa County, which is across the Bay from San Francisco. He had made arrangements for the purchase from Stanley Parsons, located on San Diego Street—I don't recall the other streets—and it is my recollection he picked me up in San Francisco and drove me over to the Bank of America, 12th & Broadway, and on the way over he told me that he was buying this property, this building on it, contained a bar, and that although he was buying it, he didn't want to have it in his own name.

Q. Did he state why he did not?

A. Yes, he said he was getting interested in a gambling venture in El Cerrito and there was some jealousy among other people that came up there to operate there at the time and he thought, in order to make it easier for himself to operate there, he would prefer that his name not be in the title, so at my suggestion—I told him, I said, "There is no problem to that. Much property in San Francisco is held in the name of title companies," for various reasons, to evade real estate brokers coming around and bothering the rightful owner; sometimes four or five people are interested in a parcel and as a matter of convenience have it put in the name of a title company, and I told him it could be done very easily, all he would have to do is to instruct the title company to put this property in the title company's name, subject to my instructions or my wife's instructions or anyone's instructions and he thought that was best to do and he told me, he said, "Well, let's put it through that way." So we proceeded to the bank and we entered the officer's quarters——

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Joseph C. Haughey.)

Q. (Interceding): Have you related all the conversation you had at that time?

A. As best I can recollect it.

Q. That is all that you recall at this time?

A. That is all I recall at this time.

Q. Was anything said in that conversation with respect to whether or not the property would then appear on the tax rolls in the name of the real party in interest?

A. I don't recall that was even mentioned.

Q. You have no recollection?

A. No recollection.

Q. Very well, proceed.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Joseph C. Haughey.)

A. So we proceeded to the Bank of America at 12th & Broadway and Mr. Remmer was greeted by one of the officers and [211] apparently was a friend of long standing——

Q. Mr. Haughey, you are an attorney, you understand that you are to relate what took place and not your impression.

A. Well, two or three other gentlemen came over and conversed with Mr. Remmer, employees of the bank, I think and a couple of other officers, at least one was an officer, his name was Bill Fitzmaurice—I think he has since died——

Q. (Interrupting): Very well.

A. And after we were there maybe 15 minutes, Mr. Fitzmaurice handed over to Mr. Remmer some cash, which Mr. Remmer put in his pocket and we proceeded to the Alameda County Title Company, which is three or four blocks from the bank.

Q. In what form was that cash?

A. Currency.

Q. Was it a large roll or a small roll of bills?

A. As I recall, he put it in a side pocket and we walked along and that is all the regard he had for it at the time—he just put in a side coat pocket. So we went up to the title company and I introduced myself to one of the counter men and told them there was an escrow—I think the escrow was already established by Mr. Parsons.

Q. Mr. Parsons was the seller?

A. Yes. Told him that we were there to complete the deal and I had the money and Mr. Remmer handed me the money. I don't know whether the counter man saw him give it to me or not, but [212] I told him I had the funds, I paid over the money to the counter man and signed the one that pertained to that particular deal, sale by Parsons to Remmer.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Joseph C. Haughey.)

Q. That is referring to the holding agreement.

A. I am assuming you have one, Mr. Campbell, without referring to it.

Q. How much money did you hand over to the title company on that occasion?

A. It is my recollection 25 thousand dollars. I may be in error, but the tax for it itself will show what the amount was.

Q. Yes, all right. I am going to show you at this time Plaintiff's Exhibit 45, and referring particularly to the holding agreement.

A. This one is dated 1945. I think there is an earlier one than this. The original transaction is 1943.

Mr. Gillen: It is Exhibit 47, Mr. Campbell.

Q. There was more than one transaction, was there not?

A. Yes, I think all told three or four.

Q. I will hand you all three exhibits.

A. I will take one at a time.

Q. So you may examine as to——

A. In connection with the one here identified as Plaintiff's Exhibit 45, bearing date of February 15, 1945——

Q. Pardon me, Mr. Haughey, if you will examine the three and refer to the one in which you referred in your testimony where [213] you paid the 25 thousand dollars. I think that is No. 47.

BLURRED COPY

A. Yes, Stanley N. Parsons and Clara E. Parsons, his wife. This is dated May 3, 1943. No, that is the statement of the title company—April 27th—I think 26th, originally written April 27, 1943. It was 24 thousand dollars paid at that time, apparently.

Q. If you examine the file you will find a thousand dollars deposit had already been made, is that correct? A. That is right.

Q. That is the first transaction which you had of that nature? A. Yes, that is right.

Q. And that covers what lots?

A. Lots 5, 6, 7, 8, 9 and 10, Block 104.

Q. All right, sir. Are you familiar with those premises yourself?

A. Just generally. I usually see that at night time, probably three different times.

Q. Do you know what was located at that time on those premises?

A. Yes, there was a night club and bar there at one time.

Q. Under what name?

A. At one time—I don't know the sequence of it at all—one time 21 Club and another time the 90 Club.

Q. Now will you turn to the next transaction, which I believe is Exhibit 46. [214]

A. Yes, sir.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Joseph C. Haughey.)

Q. Was that a similar transaction?

A. It was.

Q. And when was that transaction had?

A. It looks like the escrow was established March 24, 1945.

Q. And did you handle the details of that transaction in exactly the same fashion, or similar fashion, to that which you have described?

A. No, I did not. I see the instructions are signed by Robert Lincks.

Q. Who is he? A. I don't know.

Q. Is he not the real estate agent involved in the transaction? A. I don't know who he is.

Q. That holding agreement was also executed with relation to that?

A. On April 27, 1945, I directed a letter to the Alameda County State Title Insurance Company, 14th & Franklin, attention Mr. Calvert, re escrow No. 337802, which was the escrow established by Mr. Lincks, and that relates, part of the letter says—do you want me to read it in evidence?

Q. No, state the effect of it.

A. (Reads): "Further that you forward to me your usual holding agreement to convey title only upon instruction of the undersigned, Joseph C. Haughey * * * *." Signed by myself, Joseph [215] C. Haughey.

Q. So that property is also being held under holding agreement? A. That is right.

Q. What is the consideration paid?

A. According to the letter, four thousand five hundred sixty, to be disposed in accordance with instructions left with you by Robert Lincks.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Joseph C. Haughey.)

Q. Who furnished those funds?

A. I don't recall how the money was received, whether cash or check or how it was paid.

Q. For whom were you holding that property?

A. Elmer Remmer.

Q. Now, will you refer to Exhibit 45?

A. Yes.

Q. Is that also being held by the title company, that is, the title, under instructions from you?

A. Yes.

Q. Under a similar arrangement?

A. Yes, February 8, 1945, I enclosed cashier's check.

Q. What was the amount? A. $2800.

Q. And what was the property description there?

A. Lot 4 in Block 104, being portions of Lots 11, 12 and 13.

Q. And you say that you forwarded a cashier's check in that [216] connection?

A. Yes, I see my secretary mailed that. She signed my name there.

Q. Who supplied you with the funds with which to purchase that cashier's check?

A. I have no recollection from where the funds came, whether in check or cashier's check or how it came, but I see there was a cashier's check evidently sent.

Q. Was that your own money that you were sending? A. I do not think so, not mine.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Joseph C. Haughey.)

Q. Whose was it?

A. It was for the account of Elmer Remmer. Who supplied it, I don't know.

Q. Are you holding that property for the account of Elmer Remmer? A. I am.

Q. Now, all of the property which has been included in those three exhibits are all contiguous lots, are they not?

A. That's right, as far as I know. That was the purpose, it was my understanding. The acquisitions were made in order to prevent outlet to another street, to increase the parking area.

Q. Yes, we will come to that in a moment. Now, do you continue to hold those for his account up to this date? A. Yes.

Q. And have ever since that date? [217]

A. I have.

Q. Ever since their acquisition?

A. That is right.

Q. Now, in connection with your holding that property, Mr. Haughey, did you also have occasion to execute an agreement with one Brown, whereby the properties described in those three exhibits, that is to say, Lots 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11 and 21, were utilized as security for any transaction?

A. I did.

Q. Have you a duplicate original of that agreement with you? A. Yes I have.

Q. That is the document which you have produced?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Joseph C. Haughey.)

A. Yes, in pursuance to the subpoena which directed me.

Mr. Gillen: If counsel for the prosecution desires to put this in evidence, we stipulate it may be put in evidence without objection.

Mr. Campbell: This document marked Plaintiff's Exhibit 50 for identification will be offered in evidence.

The Court: Very well, it may be admitted in evidence, Exhibit 50.

Q. Now, referring to government's Exhibit 50, which I am going to hand you in a moment, Mr. Haughey, at whose instructions did you prepare that document?

A. This was the result of some negotiations between Joseph A. Brown, an attorney representing Gene Schriber, and myself, at [218] the time Mr. Remmer purchased the Menlo Club.

Q. When you say purchased the Menlo Club, do you refer to the acquisition of the lease of the premises?

A. That's right, premises of 1830 and 32 Turk Street, San Francisco.

Q. And in connection with the acquisition of that lease, were the lots referred to used as security for a note which was given in the acquisition of that lease?

A. Yes. Not all the lots that have been referred to here, but certain designated ones in this letter.

Q. I am referring to those set out in Exhibits 45, 46, and 47; that is to say, Lots 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11 and 21. A. That's right.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Joseph C. Haughey.)

Q. Is that correct? A. That's right.

Q. What was the total consideration to be paid for the acquisition of the lease of the Menlo Club premises?

A. One hundred seventy-five thousand dollars.

Q. Did you handle the negotiations in that regard?

A. Most of them. Some of the negotiations were handled in my absence between Mr. Remmer and Mr. Brown and others. I was not present at all negotiations.

Q. Now, in regard to those negotiations, who was the principal that you represented?

A. Elmer Remmer. [219]

Q. Referring to that document, it would appear that one Billington was to acquire the lease in his name. A. That is right.

Q. Who is Billington?

A. Joseph Billington is here in the court room. He is also known as Frankie Denny. He was a friend of Mr. Remmer's for many years, ever since they were boys.

Q. And the lease was acquired in the name of Joseph Billington, was it not?

A. That is right.

Q. Rather than in the name of Elmer Remmer?

A. Rather than in the name of Elmer Remmer.

Q. Was that pursuant to instructions given to you by Elmer Remmer? A. That is right.

Q. When was that lease acquired?

A. On or about April 30th of 1945, that is, the agreement was reached. The date the transaction was signed, I don't know.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Joseph C. Haughey.)

Q. April 1, 1945? A. No, May 1st.

Q. On that occasion was any consideration made to the lessor?

A. As to the actual transfer of money at that time, I have no definite recollection. It was my understanding that down payment was to be 25 thousand dollars and the balance secured by three promissory notes, each in the sum of 50 [220] thousand dollars, accepted by Billington and guaranteed by Remmer.

Q. And was the 25 thousand dollars paid in your presence?

A. As to that I have not a definite recollection at this moment, Mr. Campbell. I am trying to determine just when and where that money was paid or how.

Q. Did you see the three notes that were executed at that time?

A. I have copies of three of them in my office in San Francisco.

Q. You do not have them present?

A. No, I had them in my hands the other day.

Q. Do you recall at this time upon what date those notes matured?

A. I think they were payable—as I recall it—either three months or six months after. They were staggered in that manner, the first one three months after date or six months and the second a like period and the third a like period. I think they would be paid for, as I recall, within a year and a half, something like that.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Joseph C. Haughey.)

Q. Did you have anything to do with the payment of those notes? A. None whatever.

Q. Let me ask you this, from your knowledge of the transaction, as I understand from your testimony, the 175 thousand dollars was consideration for security of the lease, is that correct?

A. It was consideration for the lease. It was to be a ten-year lease and there were certain physical assets, I think, in [221] there, the material and operation of the business, regular established bar and restaurant, and I forget whether that included the purchase of that. I think it did include the stock in trade and the fixtures of the premises, together with the fact that they were getting a ten-year lease.

Q. Do you recall the names of the establishments located there?

A. I might be wrong; I think there is the 18 Church Street bar, was known as the Turf Club; the place adjoining the restaurant was known as the Menlo Coffee Shop, and the adjoining premises, 32, was combination cigar stand and card room and known as the Menlo Cigar Stand and Menlo Social Club.

Q. Was there a Tiney Waffle Shop?

A. I think that was the name of the restaurant, that is right, Tiney Waffle Shop.

Q. In regard to this lease, was there also to be paid a stipulated monthly rental?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Joseph C. Haughey.)

A. I think there was and I think that is contained in the lease.

Q. Do you recall, from having seen the lease at that time, what those amounts were?

A. No, I wouldn't want to venture.

Mr. Gillen: I submit, your Honor, the lease would be the best evidence of the terms. We have a copy of the original duplicate of the lease.

Mr. Campbell: I suggest, your Honor, we will proceed [222] along our own lines.

Mr. Gillen: Which we are willing to offer.

The Court: Counsel makes a suggestion. Do you care to follow that at this time?

Mr. Campbell: I think it might be marked for identification.

Mr. Gillen: We can offer it in evidence; if you want to use it, we will let you use it.

Mr. Campbell: We haven't seen that.

Q. Now, I am going to show you at this time government's Exhibit 48, which has already been identified here. A. Yes.

Q. That, I believe, refers to Lot 17 and part of Lot 20? A. That's right.

Q. In Block 104 of Richmond Annex Addition, is that correct? A. That's right.

Q. Are you also holding that property subject to the instructions of Elmer Remmer? A. I am.

Q. When was that property acquired?

A. The holding agreement bears date July 19, 1945. The escrow was established, or search was made, title report is dated June 28, 1945.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Joseph C. Haughey.)

Q. What was the consideration paid for that property?

A. On July 25, 1945, I wrote to the Alameda County East Bay [223] Title Insurance Company, re Escrow 342191, Lots 17 and 20, Block 104:

> "Gentlemen:

who was my secretary at that time. And now where that money came from, is something I don't know.

Q. Do you know in what form it came to them?

A. I have no knowledge whatsoever. From my letter, "It is my understanding the check has been delivered to you * * *." I don't recall at this time.

Q. For whom do you hold that property?

A. For Elmer Remmer.

Q. Was that property included in the property which was made security for the lease on the Menlo Club property?

A. I don't think so because this bears date July 25, 1945, and the other bears date May 1, 1945.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Joseph C. Haughey.)

Q. Is that the property you referred to which was acquired to give further ingress to the property? A. I believe it is one of the parcels.

Mr. Campbell: At this time, with the Court's permission, [224] I would like to read Government's Exhibit 50 to the jury.

The Court: You may do so.

Mr. Campbell: It is on the letterhead of Joseph C. Haughey, attorney at law, Phelan Building, San Francisco 2, May 1, 1945, (Reads Exhibit). And then are attached three documents, purporting to authorize Joseph Brown to convey the property referred to under the provisions of the holding agreement theretofore executed by Joseph C. Haughey, which I will not read.

Q. Now, is the Joseph Billington referred to in this document the same Joseph Billington that you referred to in your testimony?

A. One and the same.

Q. And to your knowledge did Joseph Billington have any interest whatsoever in these transactions? A. As far as I know, he did not.

Q. Was he anything more than a nominee of Mr. Remmer's?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as leading and suggestive.

The Court: Objection will be sustained.

Q. Who is Joseph A. Brown to whom this document is addressed?

A. He is an attorney in the Young Building in San Francisco and he was representing Gene

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Joseph C. Haughey.)

Schriber in the negotiations for the sale of the Menlo Club to Elmer Remmer.

Q. Who is Gene Schriber?

A. He is in the court room here. He is the owner of the Menlo [225] Club.

Q. Was he also, if you know, the owner of the premises upon which that club was situated?

A. To the best of my knowledge he was at the time these negotiations were entered into.

Q. He was or was not? A. He was.

Q. Did or did not these negotiations include the transfer of the title to the real property?

A. To the best of my knowledge they did not.

Q. The property referred to in government's Exhibits 45, 46, and 47, that is to say, that dozen or so lots in Contra Costa County, in what particular city are they located?

A. El Cerrito, which is in Contra Costa County.

Q. You refer to the fact that there was a 21 Club located there, is that correct?

A. That is my recollection of the name. The address was 90 San Diego Street, but I think the designation at one time either at the time Mr. Remmer acquired the place or after, it was known as the 21 Club.

Q. Do you know whether or not any other establishments were located on that property after Mr. Remmer acquired it?

A. I do not know. I have not seen the property in some time.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Joseph C. Haughey.)

Q. Although you still have full control over the property?

A. It doesn't interest me in seeing it because I have no financial [226] interest in it whatsoever.

Q. When did you cease to be Mr. Remmer's attorney? A. January, 1947.

Mr. Campbell: I think that is all

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Q. Mr. Haughey, you stated that Mr. Billington, who was named in the lease and agreement with relation to the acquisition of the Menlo Club property, the restaurant, the bar, club, and so on, was also known as Frankie Denny?

A. That is right.

Q. The reason he was also known as Frankie Denny was because in his youth he was a professional boxer, is that right?

A. I never knew his name was Billington. I always knew him as Frankie Denny.

Q. Because he was a boxer?

A. I knew him personally for years as Frankie Denny.

Q. And you did know he and Mr. Remmer had grown up as boys together? A. Yes.

Q. Now, I am going to ask you, Mr. Haughey, it is true, is it not, that prior to the time you were Mr. Remmer's attorney, a senior attorney in your office, Mr. Taffe, was attorney for Mr. Remmer for a number of years? A. That is right.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Joseph C. Haughey.)

Q. And upon the passing of Mr. Taffe you took over Mr. Taffe's [227] work for Mr. Remmer?

A. That is right.

Q. I presume you are familiar with the signature of Elmer Remmer? A. Yes.

Q. And have been familiar with it for many years during the time Mr. Taffe represented him, as well as being his attorney?

A. Yes, Mr. Remmer was a client of Mr. Taffe's father. I have known him since 1929.

Q. Mr. Taffe's father was Joe Taffe?

A. Yes.

Q. I am going to ask you to look at the prosecution's exhibit 50, particularly with reference to the second page of that exhibit, under the wording, "The undersigned do fully consent to the foregoing escrow," and bearing the purported signature of Joseph Billington and Elmer Remmer, and ask you to look at the last signature there and tell us whether or not that is the signature of Elmer Remmer, the defendant in this case?

A. It does not appear the same.

Q. Mr. Haughey, I am going to show you, with the permission of the Court, a document which has been designated Defendant's B for identification, a purported lease, and ask you to look at the last page of this document and tell us whether or not you recognize the signature on that page?

A. Well, it looks like Mr. Remmer's handwriting to me, but I [228] wouldn't vouch for it.

Q. How does it compare with the handwriting——

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Joseph C. Haughey.)

Mr. Campbell: We object, if the Court please, this man has not been qualified as an expert. He is being asked to compare certain documents.

Mr. Gillen: I will withdraw the question.

Q. You have not been Mr. Remmer's attorney since 1947? A. January, 1947.

Q. And let me ask you whether, looking at the lease I have handed you and looking at the prosecution's Exhibit No. 50, whether or not that refreshes your recollection that Mr. Remmer's handwriting and your signature is on both of those documents?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as improper cross-examination.

The Court: Objection overruled.

A. Well, the only way I can answer that question is by saying this, it appears to me defendant's B for identification, the signature affixed to that exhibit on page 8 looks more like Mr. Remmer's handwriting than the signature affixed to plaintiff's Exhibit 50. Whether they are one and the same, I do not know.

Q. Let me ask you if you recollect this, Mr. Haughey—is it not within your recollection that Mr. Schriber and Mr. Brown, his attorney, required that Mr. Remmer personally guarantee the transaction about the lease?

A. Oh yes, they insisted on that. [229]

Q. And they required Mr. Remmer's signature to be attached, not only to the agreement, which is Plaintiff's Exhibit 50 in evidence, but also to the lease which has been designated as defendant's Exhibit B for identification?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Joseph C. Haughey.)

A. That is right, as a guarantor, you might say.

Q. So that Mr. Remmer's name appeared in that transaction of the Menlo deal, did it not?

A. That's right.

Q. Now, do you recall, Mr. Haughey, that you carried on and conducted the entire transactions for Mr. Remmer and that he was present only at one negotiation, so far as the attorneys are concerned, Mr. Brown and yourself?

A. I wouldn't say, for this reason—I have definite recollection at one time negotiations were entered into and the deal was off. The money, as I recall was all prepared and set to be paid over and a dispute arose, I don't know whether between Remmer and Brown or Remmer and Schriber. The deal was off for two or three days, then negotiations were resumed. What took place in between time, I don't know.

Q. Well, is it within your recollection and memory that you conducted considerable of the negotiations with Mr. Brown and Mr. Schriber?

A. That is right, as portrayed by the paper work in evidence here.

Q. This lease was prepared by Mr. Brown, was it not? I am referring [230] now to defendant's Exhibit B for identification. A. That is right.

Q. And I take it, as Mr. Remmer's attorney, you were called upon to examine and study that lease and approve it and advise your client to sign it or not to sign it, is that correct? A. That's right.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Joseph C. Haughey.)

Q. And Mr. Billington signed as lessee and Mr. Remmer signed as guarantor of the lease?

A. That is right.

Mr. Gillen: I would like to offer this lease, may it please the Court, as defendant's next in order.

Mr. Campbell: May I ask a question or two on voir dire, if the Court please?

The Court: Yes, sir.

Q. (By Mr. Campbell): Mr. Haughey, I give you back this defendant's B for identification and ask you if you will examine that document carefully and state whether or not, to your knowledge, that is the original lease or an original duplicate?

A. I would say——

Q. (Interrupting): Have you examined it carefully?

A. It says copy above and it is apparent to me, or at least it is my belief, it is a carbon copy of the original.

Q. Well, have you read the document?

A. Some time ago, yes.

Q. You mean the document which you hold in your hand? [231]

A. What recalls in my mind is the last paragraph, the guarantee. The reason I recall it so vividly is the way Mr. Brown dictated without referring to any form.

Q. I understand that, but I am referring to the body of the indenture, which covers several pages.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Joseph C. Haughey.)

Are you able to say that that is a copy of the original lease? A. Off hand?

Q. Yes.

A. No, I wouldn't be able to say that on recollection, no, I wouldn't say that.

Q. Are you able to say those are the signatures of Gene Schriber and Joseph Billington?

A. Yes, that is Gene Schriber's signature.

Q. Is that the signature of Joseph Billington?

A. I believe that is Billington's. I will vouch for Schriber's. I am almost positive it is the signature of Schriber.

Q. As to the body of the lease, are you able to say that is either the original lease or an exact copy thereof?

A. I can only answer that by saying it is my belief it is a copy of the original.

Q. Can you state definitely that it is?

A. As a matter of recollection of it, no, I could not say that.

Mr. Campbell. Then we object.

Mr. Gillen: Of course it is fundamental any one who makes a lease makes more than one copy. The lessee gets one [232] and the lessor.

The Court: Objection overruled. The exhibit is admitted in evidence.

Q. (By Mr. Gillen): Mr. Haughey, you said your most vivid recollection of any wording in that document was the guarantee that was required to be signed by Mr. Remmer in that lease?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Joseph C. Haughey.)

A. That is right. The dictation of Mr. Brown, without any recourse to a form book.

Q. You admired him? A. Right.

Q. Now, Mr. Haughey, it is true, is it not—and with the Court's permission, I will show you what is now defendant's B in evidence, the lease—it is true, is it not, the beginning of the guarantee by Elmer Remmer starts on page 7, which is the same page which bears the signature of Gene Schriber as lessor and Joseph Billington as lessee?

A. That is right.

Q. And then it carries over to the final page of the document, which bears Mr. Remmer's signature, is that correct? A. That is right.

Mr. Campbell: With the permission of the Court, I should like to read that portion to the jury, starting on page 7 of defendant's Exhibit B:

> "I, Elmer Remmer, for and in consideration of the execution of said lease to Joseph Billington, do absolutely and unconditionally, for [233] value, guarantee the full provisions of said lease and payment of the rent therein provided for. I agree in case is instituted to enforce any terms of the said lease or collect any rent, I will pay a reasonable attorney's fee. I waive all notice of default or non-provision and agree that the lessor may * * *" bearing the signature, Elmer Remmer. I think that is all.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Joseph C. Haughey.)

Redirect Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Mr. Haughey, I am going to show you again defendant's Exhibit B and ask you to state whether or not that document bears any notarial acknowledgement? A. It does not.

Mr. Gillen: That would be incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

The Court: He already answered the question, it does not.

Q. Does that document show any evidence of ever having been recorded?

Mr. Gillen: Just a moment——

A. Under California law it isn't necessary.

The Court: Just a moment—do you have an objection?

Mr. Gillen: I will let the answer stand.

Q. Have you answered my question?

A. I said under California law——

Q. (Interceding): That is not my [234] question.

A. No, none whatsoever. It couldn't be recorded unless it was acknowledged.

Q. Does it show any evidence of having been recorded?

A. It does not, never was, to the best of my knowledge. Maybe the original was, but this one wasn't.

Q. Does that document show any place for a notarial acknowledgment to be executed?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Joseph C. Haughey.)

A. The same space here——

Q. I mean does it show the language.

A. No, it hasn't got it typed in, but slip can be attached to it, as often is done by the notary.

Mr. Campbell: That is all.

Mr. Gillen: I think that is all.

(Witness excused.)

(Defendant present with counsel.)

(Presence of the jury and alternate jurors stipulated.)

GENE SCHRIBER

a witness on behalf of the government, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Will you state your name, please?

A. Gene Schriber.

Q. Where do you live? [235]

A. 3015 19th Avenue, San Francisco.

Q. What is your occupation?

A. Property owner.

Q. That is your only occupation? A. It is.

Q. Are you acquainted with the defendant here, Elmer Remmer? A. I am.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Gene Schriber.)

Q. Over what period of time have you known him? A. I would say since about 1940.

Q. Did you have occasion, during the year 1945, and particularly on or about May 1, 1945, to enter into some business agreement with him?

A. I did.

Q. You have been subpoenaed to produce here a certain lease agreement, together with supplemental agreements. Have you done so?

A. Yes, I have.

Q. Will you produce them?

A. This is the original lease and bill of sale.

Q. And the third document is the receipt, is it not? A. That's right.

Mr. Campbell: I will ask to have these marked for identification at this time, in the following order —a lease as produced as 51 for identification, the bill of sale as 52 for identification, and the receipt as 53 for identification. [236]

Mr. Gillen: The defense, may it please the Court, has no objection to these three documents, 51, 52, and 53, now being for identification, going into evidence if the prosecution desires to offer them.

Mr. Campbell: They will be offered as 51, 52, and 53.

The Court: They will be admitted.

Q. Handing you these three documents, which you have identified as 51, I believe, is the original lease, is that correct? A. Correct.

Q. No. 52 is a bill of sale. I note, Mr. Schriber,

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Gene Schriber.)

that that document is not executed. Do you have the original of that document?

A. That is the only one I have, unless Mr. Brown has it.

Q. Your attorney has that?

A. He may have it. I haven't got it.

Mr. Gillen: Is that the receipt?

Mr. Campbell: Bill of sale.

Q. Do you have an executed copy, Mr. Schriber, of that bill of sale?

A. No, this is all I have.

Q. I observe that the bill of sale refers to the sale of certain fixtures, does it not?

A. Yes, it does.

Q. At the property known as Tiny's Bar and Tiny's Restaurant, is that correct? [237]

A. And the Menlo Club.

Q. That is in connection with the lease which you have produced here?

A. Yes, that is in connection with the lease.

Q. I also observe that both the lease which you hold and that bill of sale are in the name of Joseph Billington? A. That is correct.

Q. Do you know Joseph Billington?

A. Yes, I know Joseph Billington now. At that time it was only a name to me.

Q. At the time the documents which you hold, government's exhibits 51 and 52, that is to say, the lease of the Menlo Club, Tiny's Bar and Tiny's Restaurant, were executed, April 30, 1945, and May 1, 1945, Joseph Billington was unknown to you?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Gene Schriber.)

A. It was just a name. I knew him under another name, Frankie Denny.

Q. Did you know him personally? A. Yes.

Q. How long had you known him?

A. Maybe two or three years.

Q. With respect to the lease, with whom did you negotiate? A. Mr. Remmer.

Q. By Mr. Remmer, you refer to Elmer Remmer, the defendant here? A. That is correct.

Q. Did you have any negotiations with Joseph Billington, or [238] Denny, as you then knew him?

A. None whatsoever.

Q. When did you first learn that his name was to be placed on these documents?

A. Well, that is a little hard for me to say, but I think it was right around close to the 30th of April.

Q. Now, referring to the lease which covers the premises at 1830 and 32 Turk Street, in the City of San Francisco, are you the owner of those premises? A. Yes.

Q. When did you acquire those premises?

A. 24th day of April, 1945; I am sure that is the date.

Q. To what document are you referring?

A. You asked me when I acquired the property?

Q. Yes.

A. I happen to have it on a calendar here. It was Wednesday, the 25th.

Q. And these documents were executed on April 30th, is that correct?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Gene Schriber.)

A. That is correct, the bill of sale. The lease was drawn later.

Q. Referring to government's Exhibit 51, the lease, I observe that that is dated May 1st——

A. As per our agreement, yes.

Q. (Continuing): ——and apparently it would appear to be executed [239] on May 1st. Was that document in fact made and executed on that date?

A. Well now I don't know if it was that exact date or a day or two later, but it was very close to May 1st.

Q. Now, that document calls, does it not, for the payment of 175 thousand dollars?

Mr. Avakian: May we ask which document counsel refers to?

Mr. Campbell: I am referring to the document in the witness' hand, government's Exhibit 51.

Q. For the payment of 175 thousand dollars for a ten-year lease on the described premises, is that correct? A. That is incorrect.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, if we may object—I believe counsel is mistaken. Exhibit 51, the lease, I do not believe contains that language.

Mr. Campbell: I will use the exact language of the document. May I have it again?

Q. Referring to government's Exhibit 51—yes, I will stand corrected—the lease itself calls, does it not, for a total payment of 219 thousand dollars rental for the premises described?

A. That's right.

Q. In addition to that, I take it from the bill of sale or from the receipt, government's Exhibit 53, an additional 175 thousand dollars was paid as consideration for that lease, is [240] that correct?

(Testimony of Gene Schriber.)

A. No, that is not correct.

Mr. Avakian: Just a moment——

Q. What was the transaction?

The Court: Do you have an objection?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as leading and suggestive and assuming something not in evidence. There is no evidence that the sum of 175 thousand was paid.

The Court: Did you hear the witness' answer?

Mr. Gillen: No, I didn't hear it.

The Court: He answered no. Do you want the answer stricken?

Mr. Gillen: No, your Honor, we will let it stand.

Q. At the time of the execution of these documents, did you receive any sum of money, Mr. Schriber? A. Twenty-five thousand dollars.

Q. By whom was that paid to you?

A. That I can not tell you because it was left with my attorney, Joseph A. Brown, and I don't know who delivered the money. They came over and I had the documents signed and they picked them up and left twenty-five thousand dollars in cash. I didn't get it until the following day.

Q. Had you, yourself, previously operated these premises? A. For a period of time, yes.

Q. In your own behalf or for others? [241]

A. In my own behalf.

Q. And what was the nature of the operation on the premises acquired under the terms of this lease? A. I don't understand the question.

(Testimony of Gene Schriber.)

Q. What was the nature of the operation?

A. It was a card room and bar and restaurant.

Q. By card room, what do you mean?

A. Well, they play games with cards, like panguingue and low ball and form of poker, any legal game that was allowed in the State of California, that is what they had there.

Q. To your own knowledge did those operations continue after the lease was executed?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

The Court: Objection overruled. You may answer the question. A. Yes, they did.

Q. And over what period of time did you observe that operation with the card room continued after the execution of the lease?

A. Well, that is something I just don't remember the exact time but approximately I would say close to two weeks.

Mr. Campbell: At this time, if the Court please, I should like to read to the jury Plaintiff's Exhibit 53.

(Reads Exhibit 53.)

Q. Was the original signed and delivered to some one? [242]

A. It must have been, yes.

Q. To whom was it delivered?

A. Joseph A. Brown had it in his office and it was picked up there at the time I received the twenty-five thousand dollars.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Gene Schriber.)

Q. By Joseph A. Brown, do you refer to your attorney? A. Yes.

Mr. Campbell: If the Court please, I wish at this time to read certain portions of Plaintiff's Exhibit 51, the lease.

The Court: You may do so.

Mr. Campbell (Reads): "This indenture made and entered into this first day of May, 1945, by and between Gene Schriber of the City and County of San Francisco, State of California, and Joseph Billington, of the same place, hereinafter called, respectively, the lessor and lessee: Witnesseth: That the lessor, in consideration of the rents, covenants and agreements hereinafter contained, to be paid, kept and performed by the lessee, and upon the condition that each and all of the said covenants and agreements shall be fully kept and performed by the lessee, does by these presents, lease, demise and allow unto the lessee, for the purpose of conducting thereon a restaurant and cocktail bar, those certain premises situated in the City and County of San Francisco * * *"

And then describing the ground and upper floor of the building [243] known as 1832 Turk Street and the premises known as 1832 Turk Street:

> "* * * for the term of ten years at a total rent or sum of 219 thousand dollars, payable as follows: For the first five years at the rate of $1650 per month, payable monthly in advance, the next five years at the rate of $2000 per month."

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Gene Schriber.)

I will not read the body of the lease except for certain provisions—I will not read any of the body of the lease. The signatures of Gene Schriber and Joseph Billington, then follows the language as read to you by Mr. Gillen.

Q. In connection with that document, Mr. Schriber, as respect to the bill of sale and receipt, with whom were your negotiations?

A. Mr. Remmer.

Q. And over what period of time did they take place?

A. Well, it was a little over a day when we come to an agreement.

Q. And you say that you received the initial payment on the 175 thousand dollars of 25 thousand dollars, is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. And how much of the entire 175 thousand dollars have you received?

A. One hundred fifty thousand of it.

Q. In addition to that, have you also received the monthly rentals as stipulated? [244]

A. I have.

Q. During the period 1945 and 1946, inasmuch as the lease calls for a payment of $1650 a month from and after May 1, 1945, did you receive the sum of $1650 a month from Mr. Remmer?

A. Yes.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Gene Schriber.)

Q. Is that any part of the 150 thousand which you received?

Mr. Gillen: Of course, that is assuming that that was received in 1946. Objected to on the ground it is assuming something not in evidence.

The Court: Objection will be overruled. Answer the question.

Q. May I have the answer?

(Question read.)

A. You mean is that $1650 part of the 150 thousand dollars?

Q. Yes. A. No.

Q. Were any of the sums which you received paid to you by Joseph Billington?

Mr. Gillen: I think that would be calling for opinion and conclusion of the witness. Does he mean personally?

Q. Personally by Mr. Billington? A. No.

Q. Now, you said that at the time of these negotiations, or at the time these documents were signed by you, you received 25 thousand dollars in cash at your attorney's office, is that correct? [245]

A. That's correct.

Q. Did you subsequently have a conversation with Mr. Remmer regarding that 25 thousand dollars? A. I did, yes.

Q. When was that?

A. Well, I don't remember the exact date of it. It wasn't important at that time, though I can relate the conversation.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Gene Schriber.)

Q. Approximately how long was it after you received the 25 thousand dollars?

A. Well, I would say about six weeks.

Q. And where did the conversation take place?

A. That I don't remember.

Q. Do you recall if any one else was present?

A. No.

The Court: I don't understand your answer. Was there any one else present?

A. He asked me if I recall any one and I said no.

Q. You don't recall, or was there any one present?

A. I don't know if there was or not.

Q. Now, will you relate that conversation?

A. Yes. Mr. Remmer asked me if I would mind to let him issue me a check for that 25 thousand dollars. He had hired Mr. Maundrell to set up a set of books and wanted that check for his business so he would have a check for his transactions. [246]

Q. What did you do?

A. He issued me a check and I returned the 25 thousand dollars to him and accepted the check.

Q. Do you recall by whom the check was signed?

A. Yes, sir, Maundrell.

Q. Signed by Maundrell?

A. That is right.

Q. Have you ever seen that check since that time? A. Never have.

Q. Was the check delivered to you?

A. I don't recall if I cashed the check or cashed

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Gene Schriber.)

it at 52 Mason Street. I don't recall, but I just vaguely remember that I cashed it with some one else.

Q. And have you ever seen the check since that time? A. I have not.

Q. Was there any other signature on the check other than that of Maundrell?

A. Not to my memory.

Q. Do you recall Maundrell's first name?

A. Harold Maundrell.

Q. Do you recall that there was any imprinted or printed signature appearing above the signature of Harold Maundrell?

A. I don't remember whether there was or not.

Q. Do you recall upon what bank that check was drawn? A. No, I don't. [247]

Mr. Campbell: You may cross-examine.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Q. Mr. Schriber, from your testimony I take it that you had acquired the property which houses on the ground floor of the Menlo Club the Menlo Cigar Stand and Menlo Social Club, the Turf Club, which was a bar or tavern, a restaurant, Tiny's Waffle Shop, and which also housed some quarters on the second floor, just a short time before you entered into the lease arrangement, sale of the premises, is th .t right? A. That is right.

Q. As I recall your testimony, it was on the 25th of April, 1945, that you actually became the owner of the building and on the 30th of April and May 1st these documents were executed in your transactions with Mr. Remmer, with Mr. Billington being the designated person to hold the lease?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Gene Schriber.)

A. That is correct.

Q. Now prior to that time the combined rent for that building had been $825 a month, had it not, or half of the $1,650 a month?

A. That is right.

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial.

Q. And the 219 thousand dollar figure set forth in the lease which Mr. Campbell read to you, that comprised the total amount of the lease, month to month, over a period of ten years, with the rent being fixed at $1,650 per month for the first five years and two thousand dollars per month for the last five years, is that [248] correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. Now I will show you here the prosecution's Exhibit 51 in evidence and defendant's Exhibit B in evidence. One indicates as an original and the other a copy of the lease, the property we are now referring to. With the Court's permission, I would like to present them to the witness. Will you look at those and tell us whether you recall those being prepared by your lawyer, Mr. Joseph A. Brown, in San Francisco?

A. That is correct. Mr. Brown prepared both of these.

Q. Will you look at the signatures on page 7 and tell us whether or not you recognize your signature

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Gene Schriber.)

on both of those documents, both plaintiff's Exhibit and defendant's exhibit?

A. Both my signatures.

Q. You signed them both. Now you notice that on page 7, immediately after your signature and Mr. Billington's signature, there is commenced the wording of a guarantee under the obligations of that lease, do you notice that? A. Yes.

Q. And on the following page there is a signature contained. Do you know whose signature that is? A. I assume it is Elmer Remmer's.

Q. Do you recall whether it was at your request or demand, or at your lawyer's request or demand, or whether it was voluntarily that Mr. Remmer guaranteed the obligations of that lease to [249] you?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as a compound question.

The Court: Objection will be overruled.

Q. Do you understand the question, Mr. Schriber? A. I would like to have you read it.

(Question read.)

A. Well, I think it was at my request, because Joseph Billington was only a name to me and that was quite a large sum of money there involved and I wanted Mr. Remmer's guarantee it would be paid.

Q. That was the reason for the signing of the guarantee by Mr. Remmer?

A. That is right.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Gene Schriber.)

Q. Now there was some security put up, was there not, in the form of some lots in El Cerrito? Do you recall that? A. That is right.

Q. I am going to show you plaintiff's Exhibit 50, which is the letter from Mr. Haughey to Mr. Brown, your attorney, regarding the placing the lots as security. I will ask you to look at the second page of that exhibit and note whether or not Mr. Remmer also signed a consent to those lots being used for that purpose?

Mr. Campbell: I suggest the document speaks for itself.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Gillen: It is preliminary.

A. I don't think I could answer this question because I am not familiar enough with Mr. Remmer's analyzing to state. [250]

Q. Do you recall there was a request made to Mr. Remmer to join in consenting?

A. And I remember that this is his signature, yes.

Q. By the way, Mr. Campbell asked you a moment or two ago if any part of the additional 150 thousand dollars that you were to receive under the agreement of sale, over and above the 25 thousand dollars cash that you received, was any part of the money under the lease and you answered no. It is something separate?

A. That was altogether separate.

Q. Now that 25 thousand dollars which you received and which you later gave back and accepted a check for, at the request of Mr. Remmer, so there would be a check transaction and a record of the transaction, any additional payments were made over a period of time, were they? A. Yes.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Gene Schriber.)

Q. Do you recall how much additional over and above the initial 25 thousand dollars was paid in the year 1946?

A. There was another 25 thousand dollars paid, making a total of 50 thousand dollars in 1945.

Q. Mr. Avakian has called my attention — I mean in the year 1945, I should have asked you. You received 25 thousand dollars in the year 1945 initially when the transaction took place?

A. That is correct.

Q. Did you receive any other payments in the year 1945? [251] A. Yes, I did.

Q. Can you tell us what payments you received?

A. On September 8th I received 25 thousand dollars more.

Q. So you received in the year 1945 the sum of 50 thousand dollars? A. That is correct.

Q. Did you receive any payment in the year 1946?

A. Yes, two payments in 1946; one February 28th for 25 thousand dollars and another one on May 1st for 25 thousand dollars.

Q. So that in the years 1945 and 1946 you received a total of 100 thousand dollars?

A. That is correct.

Q. And that left a balance under that agreed

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Gene Schriber.)

figure of 75 thousand dollars to be paid, is that correct? A. Correct.

Q. Now you say that Mr. Remmer, when he made a request of you that the 25 thousand in cash initially paid to you on the 175 thousand dollar agreement, be returned to him and replaced by a check? A. Correct.

Q. And you said in your direct examination that he stated to you he had engaged the services of Mr. Harold Maundrell to set up books for use in the business, is that correct? A. Correct.

Q. And that he desired to have a check record of the transaction? [252] A. That is correct.

Q. Then I understood you to testify that to accommodate him you returned the 25 thousand dollars in cash and accepted in lieu thereof a check, which was signed by Harold Maundrell, is that correct? A. Correct.

Q. And it is your recollection that you cashed that check through some one other than through Mr. Maundrell or Mr. Remmer? A. Yes.

Q. You do not recall the bank that the check was on? A. No, I do not.

Q. Mr. Schriber, the second payment of 25 thousand dollars which you received under that 175 thousand dollar agreement that we mentioned here, which you say you believe you received in September of 1945——

A. That is correct, September 8th.

Q. ——was that in the form of a check, that payment?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Gene Schriber.)

A. That was in the form of three checks, split up, one for 15 thousand, one for 8,500 and one for 1,500.

Q. Do you recall whose checks they were? I mean do you recall who the payer was who signed that?

A. I think Mr. Maundrell did. I am sure he did.

Q. As I recall your testimony, you said the next payment you received was the sum of 25 thousand dollars paid in February of [253] the following year, 1946, is that correct? A. Correct.

Q. Was that payment made in the form of a check? A. Yes.

Q. And do you recall who signed that check?

A. Maundrell.

Q. Do you recall the final payment of the year 1946, I do not think you gave us the month.

A. May 1, 1946.

Q. Do you recall what form the payment was received by you of the 25 thousand dollars on that date? A. A check.

Q. By whom was that check signed?

A. Maundrell.

Q. By Mr. Maundrell. Now in addition to those four payments that you have mentioned here on the agreement, Mr. Schriber, there was also, I understood you to say, paid to you $1,650 per month on rent, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. And in what form of payment did you receive the monthly rental? A. By check.

Q. And who signed those checks?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Gene Schriber.)

A. Maundrell.

Q. So that the beginning of each and every month, if that was [254] the starting point of the rental, you received a check for $1,650 signed by Mr. Maundrell? A. That's right.

Mr. Gillen: I think, may it please the court, that this is all the cross-examination we have of Mr. Schriber. We would like, however, for Mr. Schriber to be on call for possible further cross-examination.

The Court: Do you suppose you would want him tomorrow or some time later in the trial?

Mr. Gillen: Possibly a little later in the trial, your Honor.

The Court: Well, he could be excused now and return to San Francisco.

Mr. Campbell: I have one question on redirect, if the Court please.

Redirect Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. You stated, Mr. Schriber, that you received fifty thousand dollars on this deal in 1945?

A. That is correct.

Q. Have you any books or records to which you can refer, which you can produce, with regard to the payments which you received? A. No.

Q. Isn't it a fact that you received 75 thousand dollars in 1945?

A. It is not. I was to receive 75 thousand but I didn't and [255] the reason was because I also agreed to deliver a liquor license to Mr. Remmer and I was unable to do so and the bar got closed up from early September until late in December and I have correspondence right here with me between my attorney at that time, Herbert Erskine, and Elmer Delaney, about the liquor license being transferred to me from Mrs. Bailey, which she refused to do at the Board of Equalization in the City of San Francisco closed that bar up.

Q. At any rate, you are positive that 50 thousand dollars was all that you received?

A. Yes, I am, and that is the reason I didn't get it.

Recross-Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Q. Mr. Schriber, the incident you are referring to now is this, that you were to receive the third payment of 25 thousand dollars in the year 1945?

A. According to my agreement, yes.

Q. And according to the agreement you were also supposed to transfer over to Mr. Remmer the California State liquor license?

A. That is right.

Q. To enable the tavern to conduct business?

A. That is correct.

Q. And without that, under California law, the tavern couldn't conduct business?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as calling for legal conclusion. [256]

The Court: I think the objection is good.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Gene Schriber.)

Mr. Gillen: I will withdraw that.

Q. At that time your attorney handling some of your affairs was Mr. Herbert Erskine, who is now recalled as the late United States District judge, as the party involved? A. That is right.

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial.

The Court: It may stand.

Q. At that time the party that you acquired the property from was represented by Mr. Elmer Delaney as attorney? A. Correct.

Q. You were unable to obtain transfer of the liquor license in order to transfer it over to Mr. Remmer? A. That is correct.

Q. And as a result of that, Mr. Remmer did not have the benefit of the tavern being open from September until some time after the first of the year of 1946, is that correct?

A. Closed until the first of the year. I think late in December of the same year they got open.

Q. And for that reason you did not press the third payment and he did not agree to pay the third payment until the liquor license was forthcoming?

A. He refused to pay it for that reason.

The Court: Mr. Schriber may be excused, subject to his recall? He may return to San [257] Francisco.

Mr. Gillen: Yes, your Honor.

JOSEPH BILLINGTON

a witness on behalf of the plaintiff, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Will you state your name, please?

A. Joseph Billington.

Q. Where do you reside?

A. 456 B Street, Oakland.

Q. What is your business or occupation?

A. I am interested in a tavern in Oakland.

Q. What is the name of the tavern?

A. East Shore Inn.

Q. Are you acquainted with the defendant, Elmer Remmer? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How long have you known him?

A. Approximately all my life.

Q. Mr. Billington, you were here in court yesterday? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You are the same Joseph Billington referred to in the testimony? A. That's right.

Q. I am going to show you plaintiff's Exhibit 51, which purports [259] to be a lease or indenture entered into between yourself and one Gene Schriber, and ask you if that is your signature appearing thereon? A. Yes, it is my signature.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Joseph Billington.)

Q. Have you ever read that document?

A. No, sir, I haven't.

Q. That is your signature appearing thereon?

A. It is, yes.

Q. Was your signature placed there at the request of any one?

A. Well, I was asked to sign the lease.

Q. Who asked you to sign the lease?

A. Mr. Remmer.

Q. Did you, yourself, have any interest in that lease? A. No, sir.

Q. You will observe that the lease refers to premises occupied by certain enterprises known as Tiny's Bar, Tiny's Restaurant, and the Menlo Club.

Mr. Gillen: That would be the Turf Bar.

Q. The Turf Bar, pardon me. A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you at any time have any interest in those enterprises? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you at any time have anything to do with the operation of those enterprises?

A. No, sir. [260]

Q. Did you at any time have anything to do with the operation of any enterprises at 18 Turk Street, 30 Turk Street, or 32 Turk Street in the City of San Francisco? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you at any time receive any profits as a result of any operations conducted on those premises? A. No, I didn't.

Q. I show you at this time government's Exhibit

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Joseph Billington.)

52, which purports to be a bill of sale to you of certain liquor licenses and other matters, and ask you if you have ever seen that document or the original thereof? A. No, sir, I have never seen this.

Q. Or did you ever see the original of that?

A. No.

Q. Did you at any time have any interest in any of the matters set forth in that bill of sale?

Mr. Gillen: May it please the court, in the interest of time, we are perfectly willing to stipulate that Mr. Billington's name appears on the documents that have been introduced by stipulation by the defense and that he was requested to place his name on those documents by the defendant and that he had no interest and drew no income from any of those enterprises, if that will save time.

Mr. Campbell: I think we should have the testimony.

Mr. Gillen: It was only in the interest of [261] time.

The Court: You may proceed.

Q. Did you at any time have any interest in those liquor licenses? A. No.

Q. I show you government's Exhibit 53, which purports to be a receipt, identified by the witness Gene Schriber, wherein it is related that you had paid to him the sum of 25 thousand dollars on account of the purchase price of Tiny's Bar, Tiny's Restaurant and the Menlo Club and agreed to pay an additional sum of 150 thousand dollars, and I will ask you if you ever saw that receipt or the original thereof?

(Testimony of Joseph Billington.)

A. I do not recall ever seeing any such receipt like that.

Q. Did you ever at any time pay to Gene Schriber, or to any one on his account, the sum of 25 thousand dollars? A. No, sir.

Q. Or did you at any time pay Mr. Schriber any other sum whatever? A. No, sir.

Q. Or have you ever had any business dealings with Mr. Schriber with relation to those premises on Turk Street? A. No, sir.

Q. Now, were you ever employed by Mr. Remmer?

A. Well, I was employed by Mr. Remmer and Mr. Kyne at 110 Eddy Street at one time.

Q. By Mr. Remmer and who? [262]

A. Mr. Willie Kyne.

Q. Were you also employed at the 21 Club?

A. Yes, sir, I was.

Q. In El Cerrito? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And over what period of time were you employed there?

A. Well, I am not too sure. It seems to me it was 1943 to September, 1945. I am not positive. I have forgotten the dates myself. I don't remember.

Q. And what was the nature of your employment at the 21 Club?

A. Well, I was in charge of the bar. I was on the floor also.

Q. Did you also work in the restaurant there?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Joseph Billington.)

A. Well, yes, I did, yes. It was all one room there, the bar and the restaurant.

Q. And was that the 21 Club located at 90 San Diego Street in El Cerrito?

A. That would be the address, I believe, 90 San Diego Street.

Q. What was the nature of the enterprise? What was conducted on those premises?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as already asked and answered. He says a bar and restaurant.

The Court: Objection overruled.

A. Well, restaurant and bar and casino.

Q. What do you mean by casino?

A. Well, they had games in back. [263]

Q. What type of games?

A. Roulette, twenty-one, craps.

Q. Was there also a game known as barbuti played there? A. Not to my knowledge.

Q. Did you have anything to do with the operation of the gaming room?

A. No, sir, I did not.

Q. Who had charge of that?

A. Well, I don't remember just who did have charge of that. I was so seldom in there. Mr. Pechart and Mr. Kessel were around there and who worked back there, I just knew by names; I didn't know their titles or what they did.

Q. What were your principal duties?

A. Well, my principal duties were to watch the front end of the bar and the restaurant and meet people.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Joseph Billington.)

Q. What compensation did you receive for your services?

A. Well, I received, I believe it was $75 a week and later it was $100 a week for my services.

Q. Did you at any time have any proprietary interest in those premises or in that operation?

A. No, no, I didn't.

Q. Who employed you to work there?

A. Mr. Remmer.

Q. And were you subject to his orders at all times?

A. Well, I guess so. Mr. Remmer wasn't around there too much. [264] Didn't see too much of Mr. Remmer.

Q. Did you look to him for orders, instructions?

A. Well, as I say, I never seen too much of Mr. Remmer, so there wasn't any instructions coming.

Q. Very well. You did, however, did you not, file a partnership return for that enterprise for the year 1944?

A. Well, I can't answer the question. I don't know.

Q. I wish to show what purports to be a partnership return of income for the year 1944 and ask you if that is your signature affixed thereto?

Mr. Gillen: Just a moment. Is this something that has been placed before the court for identification?

Mr. Campbell: I beg your pardon. I would like to have that marked for identification.

Mr. Gillen: If it is, I would like to see it.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Joseph Billington.)

The Court: Marked Exhibit 54 for identification.

Mr. Campbell: While counsel is examining that, I will ask to have this marked 55 for identification.

Mr. Gillen: The defense is willing to stipulate that those two returns are the returns of Mr. Billington for the years 1944 and 1945.

Mr. Campbell: I wish to interrogate the witness, Mr. Gillen.

The Court: You may proceed.

Q. I show you government's Exhibit 54 for identification and [265] that you examine that and state whether or not that is your signature affixed thereto?

Mr. Gillen: I don't know whether we made ourselves plain. We are willing to stipulate that those two documents may be admitted.

The Court: You mean admitted in evidence?

Mr. Gillen: Yes.

The Court: Exhibit 54 by stipulation is admitted in evidence.

Mr. Campbell: I presume the same stipulation will be made as to 55?

Mr. Gillen: Yes.

The Court: Exhibit 55 will be admitted in evidence.

Mr. Campbell: With the Court's permission, I would like to read the exhibits.

The Court: You may do so.

Mr. Campbell (Reads Exhibit 54): There is-attached a document entitled "Agreement." (Reads agreement.)

Q. Mr. Billington, did you receive any of the share of profits of that enterprise?

A. One year I got two thousand dollars.

Q. Was that as a share of the profits or as a bonus?

A. I believe that was working on the job, five per cent or something was paid for working there.

Q. That was in connection with your job? [266]

A. I guess so.

Mr. Campbell: Reading government's Exhibit 55: (Reads) From Schedule I: "Partner's Share of Income and Credits. J. Billington, 456 Lee Street, Oakland, California, $3,638.17."

Q. Did you receive any such amount?

A. Not to my knowledge. I don't remember.

Q. You don't remember receiving any such amount? A. No.

Mr. Campbell: (Reads balance of Exhibit.)

Q. Now, Mr. Billington, it has been stipulated here that these documents were signed by you. So there will be no question, you might examine your signature there.

A. Yes, that is my signature.

Q. Now, at the time you signed those returns did you read them over? A. No, sir, I did not.

Q. Until this day did you know what was contained in those returns? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know whether or not the figures

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Joseph Billington.)

which I read to you include the gaming room as well as the operation of the bar and restaurant?

A. I couldn't answer the question truthfully because I really don't know. [267]

Q. What was the nature of the restaurant operation there? Was it simply a cafe, night club, or what?

A. Well, it was the same as night club, had a dining room.

Q. Was there entertainment there?

A. They did have some entertainment at different times, yes.

Q. How many people could be seated in that restaurant?

A. Oh, probably 85, I believe, I am not sure.

Q. How large was the bar that was operated there?

A. Well, the bar went across the back of the room, possibly 20-foot bar; I couldn't tell you truthfully because I don't know. About 20 feet, I suppose.

Q. I believe you stated that you had received two thousand dollars at one time, is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. Do you recall in what year you received that?

A. No, I don't know, I don't know what year.

Q. How large was the gaming room on those premises?

Q. Well, they weren't too large. I don't know

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Joseph Billington.)

how long this room is—well, say 35 feet, just guessing.

Q. Would it be as large as this room?

A. No, it isn't as large. Might have been practically as long but not as large.

Q. How much equipment was in there?

A. Well, that I don't know. I didn't know what was back there, as far as equipment was [268] concerned.

Q. You don't know how many tables were there?

A. No, I couldn't answer that.

Q. Do you have any knowledge yourself of what the income was from any part of that operation during the years 1944, 1945, and 1946?

A. Mr. Campbell, I wouldn't know what it was.

Q. Who kept the books and records?

A. I believe Mr. Simmons, as you stated.

Q. That is Mr. G. E. Simmons?

A. I believe so, George Simmons.

Q. Did you have anything to do with the handling of the receipts at the end of the day?

A. Well, on the bar I did sometimes, yes.

Q. Did you have anything to do with the receipts from the gambling room? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you have anything to do with the receipts from the restaurant?

A. No, I don't think I ever had anything to do with them. I was used to the bar and the bar was my line.

Q. Did you have anything to do with the payment of the expenses of any part of the operation?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Joseph Billington.)

A. No. Only expenses, probably a liquor bill, or something like that.

Q. In other words, daily bills, I take it? [269]

A. Well, yes, like liquor bill or bills like that.

Q. Where a delivery man would present a bill, is that correct?

A. Well, no. You see, we had to have two signatures on those checks and I forget the other man to sign the check—well, Mr. Simmons had authority and I but Mr. Simmons generally did all the stuff unless he had to put my signature on, then he would send it out.

Q. Was your name on some bank account in connection with that operation?

A. Well, I don't know. I think they had a bank account in the Mechanics Bank, but I don't know whether in my name truthfully or whose name it was.

Q. Did you have anything to do with handling that bank account? A. No, sir.

Q. You say your signature was required on the checks?

A. Well, sometimes, you go to the bank, like you have an account and have them recognize my signature for a check.

Q. Well, on expenses that were paid out by the 21 Club, did you have to sign that check?

A. No; no, sir.

Q. What checks did you have to sign?

A. Well, now, I am kind of confused. I think I signed pay checks.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Joseph Billington.)

Q. Do you recall that you signed anything else?

A. I don't recall.

Q. Were those pay checks for the entire enterprise, that is, [270] for the bar, the restaurant and the gambling?

A. I think it was for the bar and the restaurant. I don't recall ever having anything to do, as I say, with the back room, to my knowledge.

Q. Do you know whether or not there was more than one bank account maintained?

A. That I don't know.

Q. Who would present you checks for signature?

A. Oh, Mr. Simmons.

Q. Would those checks be filled out at the time they were handed to you, or were they given to you in blank?

A. I can't answer the question truthfully.

Q. You don't remember?

A. It seems to me they must have been filled in. I really don't remember.

Q. Do you recall upon what bank or banks those checks were drawn?

A. Well, there is a bank there in El Cerrito. It could have been the Mechanics, I am not sure.

Q. You are not sure what bank?

A. There is a little bank in El Cerrito. I don't know whether it was that bank.

Q. You know the checks were drawn on that bank in El Cerrito?

A. Well, I believe they were.

Q. What is your best recollection? [271]

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Joseph Billington.)

A. Well, I can't say, Mr. Campbell. I have really forgotten. I know there was a bank in El Cerrito and outside that I don't know anything about the bank, the one bank I ever heard or knew anything about.

Q. Did you know anything about any other account? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know whether or not the returns which I read to you properly set forth the income of the 21 Club for those two years?

A. Not knowing, I couldn't say. I don't know.

Q. You don't know? A. Don't know.

Mr. Campbell: You may cross-examine.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Q. Mr. Billington, you stated in your direct examination that you and Mr. Remmer, the defendant in this case, had been lifelong friends, is that correct? A. Correct.

Q. As a matter of fact, you and Mr. Remmer were little boys together? A. That's right.

Q. And played together as children and grew up together, is that correct? A. Grew up together.

Q. And for a time you were a professional boxer, were you not? [272]

A. That's right, sir.

Q. And your professional boxing name was Frankie Denny? A. That's right.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Joseph Billington.)

Q. And then after that you injured yourself driving an oil tank? A. Right, sir.

Q. And after a time Mr. Remmer had you go to work for him, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. When you were requested by Mr. Remmer to sign the lease on the Menlo Club and the other properties, the Turf Tavern and the Tiny's Restaurant, isn't it a fact that Mr. Remmer told you that he wanted you to sign the lease and hold that lease in your name because he trusted you and he would be away a good deal of the time?

A. That's right.

Q. And isn't it a fact that the reason Mr. Remmer told you the reason he wanted some one he trusted, he wanted Mrs. Remmer protected in case anything happened?

A. That was his statement.

Q. And that he could rely on you to hold the property, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. Now, he told you at that time, did he not, that he would guarantee the lease so that there wouldn't be any liability on [273] you?

A. That's right.

Q. And as a matter of fact—if I may have the Court's permission to approach the witness with an exhibit—as a matter of fact, Mr. Billington, showing you prosecution's Exhibit 51, which has been identified as the original Schriber lease, following the signature of Mr. Schriber and yourself, Mr. Remmer did sign, guaranteeing the performance of the lease, the obligations thereunder, is that correct?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Joseph Billington.)

Mr. Campbell: We suggest the document speaks for itself, if the Court please.

The Court: You may answer the question.

A. Yes.

Q. And Mr. Remmer also signed with you to take on the escrow agreements, which have been designated prosecution's No. 50, the escrow agreement, between Mr. Schriber and yourself, is that correct? A. That's right, sir.

Q. Now, then, did you ever make an income tax return, wherein you claimed that you had derived any benefit financially from any of the Menlo Club property or its other enterprises, such as the bar or the Tiny's Restaurant?

A. No, I never returned.

Q. You never did receive any income out of either the Menlo Club, cigar stand, restaurant or bar, is that correct? [274] A. Correct.

Q. Either by way of salary or by way of any bonus or profit, is that correct?

A. Nothing; no, sir.

Q. Now you did, however, go to work for a time at the 21 Club in El Cerrito, that has been testified to here? A. Yes.

Q. And you were more or less the floor manager of the bar and the restaurant, is that correct?

A. Right.

Q. And for that you received a salary?

A. Right.

Q. And I understood you to say initially it was $75 a week, a little later it was increased?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Joseph Billington.)

A. I believe as near as I can remember that is right.

Q. A little later your recollection is that it was increased to $100 a week? A. That's right.

Q. And then you said that you recall at one time that you received something in the neighborhood of two thousand dollars, in the nature of a bonus, based on percentage of the business?

A. I received two thousand dollars, yes, sir.

Q. And that was over and above your salary, in addition to your salary?

A. Yes, that would be. [275]

Q. You drew your salary every week and this was some bonus given to you at the end of the year?

A. That is right.

Q. And that is what you have recalled, is it, that you have made an income tax return on, showing the collection of some financial benefit by you over and above your salary? A. Yes.

Q. So you made the two returns those two years, one being your individual return on salary and the other being a partnership?

A. As near as I remember Mr. Simmons made that out.

Q. Did you direct Mr. Simmons what to do, or did you simply turn over to Mr. Simmons the income concerning your personal affairs and Mr. Simmons prepared what he considered he should prepare? A. Yes.

Q. Mr. Simmons is an accountant?

A. Yes, sir.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Joseph Billington.)

Q. He has a brother also, Mr. Lester Simmons, works with him? A. Yes.

Q. You are not an expert in accountancy or bookkeeping, or anything of that kind?

A. No, sir.

Q. You have been a boxer and truck driver before? A. That is correct.

Q. And you turned all your personal affairs to Mr. Simmons, the [276] accountant to be made out as they should be made out?

A. That is right.

Q. As near as you know this was a true and correct report made to Mr. Simmons as to money that passed through your hands?

A. Mr. Simmons had my tax and wages and everything.

Q. In other words, Mr. Simmons was as familiar with that as you were?

A. That is right, more so.

Q. Mr. Avakian thought you were not sure that you understood a question I asked, so I will put it to you again. In regard to the San Diego Club or the 21 Club, rather, bar and restaurant over which you had supervision as sort of a general manager, as near as you can recall now did Mr. Simmons, the accountant, receive a full and correct report on everything that was made by the place and everything that was paid by the place?

A. Yes.

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as incompetent, in view of the witness' testimony that he knew nothing about the receipts of certain portions of the business.

Mr. Gillen: I am only asking for certain portions, the bar and restaurant, over which he had supervision.

The Court: You may answer the question. You may answer it after you hear it read.

(Question read.)

Q. You understand I am confining that to what you knew, not the [277] gaming room, but the bar and restaurant portion.

(Question read.)

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, when you answered before that Mr. Simmons was as familiar, even more so, with the profits and expenses, were you referring in your answer to the bar and the restaurant of the 21 Club?

A. Well, the bar and restaurant. As I stated, I didn't know anything about the other part.

Q. What I am trying to get at is was Mr. Simmons as familiar as you were with the money that was taken at the bar and restaurant?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as calling for his conclusion.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Did Mr. Simmons look over the accounts with you or look over the accounts very frequently of the bar and the restaurant?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Joseph Billington.)

Mr. Campbell: If he knows.

Mr. Gillen: Of course if he knows. I am not asking for anything he doesn't know.

A. I know I see him working on the books and just what he was doing, I can't state.

Mr. Gillen: That is all.

Redirect Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Counsel showed you Plaintiff's Exhibit 51, the original indenture and the guarantee agreement. Did you ever read that [278] before, Mr. Billington? A. No.

Q. He also showed you Government's Exhibit 50, which you signed and is signed by Elmer Remmer. Did you ever read that before?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as improper redirect. I didn't ask him anything about reading. I asked him if the signatures were contained and he was informed Mr. Remmer was going to guarantee these terms?

The Court: Objection overruled. What exhibit were you referring to just now?

Mr. Campbell: Referring to Government's Exhibits 50 and 51.

The Court: Let us have the question.

(Question read.)

A. No, I never read it.

Q. Now, counsel asked you relative to whether or not you had reported on your individual in-

Q. You did, did you not, report, however, income of Elmer Remmer from other enterprises on your individual returns.

Mr. Gillen: Just a moment. I am going to object to the question as improper redirect, and secondly as being a complex question. It is not clear.

The Court: Let us have it read again. [279]

(Question read.)

Mr. Gillen: I think I should add to that, may it please the Court, that Mr. Billington is Mr. Campbell's witness and I think Mr. Billington, as would be any other witness, is entitled to see any document from which Mr. Campbell is making reference and I submit he is attempting to cross-examine his own witness.

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question.

Let us have the question read so you know and understand it.

(Question read.)

Mr. Gillen: Just a moment. I would like to understand the question and I am going to object to it as a complex question.

The Court: Objection overruled. Read the question to the witness so we will understand it.

Redirect Examination

By Mr. Campbell: [280]

Mr. Campbell: I was about to use this exhibit to refresh the witness' recollection.

Mr. Gillen: I would like to look at the exhibit. In the first place the exhibit is a return dated 1943, which is earlier than the time of the time boundaries of the indictment, which begins in 1944. In the second place, it is improper redirect examination and it wasn't touched upon on cross. The cross touched only the field that was explored by counsel in direct examination, and third, as I indicated before, this witness is Mr. Campbell's witness and he is now seeking to cross-examine his own witness or to impeach his own witness, I don't know which.

Mr. Campbell: That is not quite correct, your Honor. Counsel asked the witness if he had ever reported, as I recall, any of Mr. Remmer's income upon his own personal returns.

Mr. Gillen: No, that isn't the question I asked at all.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Joseph Billington.)

Mr. Campbell: I call on the record.

Mr. Gillen: I asked him if he ever reported receiving any income of any nature from the Menlo Club on his own individual return.

(Record read.)

The Court: At this present time we really have nothing before the Court.

Mr. Gillen: Yes we have.

The Court: No question has been propounded. He [281] indicated the purpose to show this exhibit to the witness, that is all I can recall.

Mr. Gillen: Well then, it is premature.

The Court: We will go right along for the time being and then you may interpose the same objection.

Mr. Gillen: Very well.

Mr. Campbell: I will approach the matter in another manner.

Q. I am going to show you Plaintiff's Exhibit 56 for identification and ask you if that is your individual income tax return for 1943?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial, not proper redirect examination. Isn't within the confines of the direct examination or the cross-examination. Nothing was asked of this man concerning his income tax return for 1943, which is before the time of the indictment, either by Mr. Campbell on direct or myself on cross-examination.

Mr. Campbell: I wish to point out to your

(Testimony of Joseph Billington.)

Honor that counsel interrogated the witness as to his association with Mr. Remmer over a long period of time, as to his prior employment and activities. For that reason I believe this is material.

The Court: This question here, it seems to me, to be merely a question going to see if the witness can identify this exhibit, that is all. Objection to this question will be overruled. Now you may answer. [282]

(Question read.)

Mr. Gillen: May the witness answer yes or no?

The Court: Please answer yes or no.

A. Well, it is my signature and must possibly be the income tax for that year.

Mr. Campbell: This will be offered in evidence as Government's Exhibit 56.

Mr. Gillen: To which, of course, we offer the objection upon all the grounds heretofore urged, which your Honor thought were premature at that time, and I think properly so.

The Court: In view of the statement of Mr. Campbell, I would think it is probably not proper redirect examination.

Mr. Campbell: I then ask leave of the Court to reopen the direct examination for the purpose of offering this exhibit.

The Court: The direct examination may be reopened.

Mr. Gillen: Then we object to it on the ground it is the income tax return of this witness at a time earlier than this involved in the indictment, may it please the Court. I would like your Honor to see the exhibit.

The Court: What have you to say on that subject, Mr. Campbell?

Mr. Campbell: Well, the exhibit on its face will show its materiality.

The Court: I mean as to the year 1943? [283]

Mr. Campbell: It will show wilfullness and a plan or scheme.

Mr. Gillen: Well, I am going to have, for the record, to assign counsel's remark in the presence of the jury, as to wilfullness conduct. I would like your Honor to see the exhibit I wonder if I could prevail upon your Honor to instruct the jury to disregard the remark of counsel.

The Court: I take that remark to be that counsel indicates that it might show a plan, rather than the word "scheme." Is that your idea?

Mr. Campbell: Yes, your Honor.

The Court: Of course, that word "scheme" has the sound——

Mr. Gillen: It is an unpleasant word.

Mr. Campbell: Well, I retract it in that sense.

The Court: I take it that you mean it might show a plan. Do you want me to see that exhibit?

Mr. Gillen: Yes, your Honor. I would like to invite your Honor's attention again to the matter that this gentleman on the witness stand, Mr. Billington, is Mr. Campbell's witness and he is apparently attempting to impeach his own witness without laying a proper foundation.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Joseph Billington.)

The Court: Objection will be overruled. It may be admitted in evidence.

Mr. Campbell: If I may read from this Exhibit 56, your Honor? [284]

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Campbell: (Reads Exhibit 56.)

Q. Did you, during the year 1943, operate the San Diego Social Club as your own personal business.

Mr. Gillen: To which we offer an objection, may it please the Court, that it is improper redirect examination, incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial, not within the time confines of the indictment, which commences in 1944; also that he is impeaching his own witness without laying the proper foundation. And may I say this to your Honor, counsel a moment ago, in his anxiety to be able to ask these questions of the witness, pointed out to your Honor that I had asked in cross-examination concerning this witness' long association with Mr. Remmer. Your Honor will recall that counsel——

The Court: I don't want to interrupt, but haven't we lost sight of the fact that I permitted counsel to open up the direct examination? Your objection seems to be based on the theory this is redirect.

Mr. Gillen: That is true, you did permit. May I ask your Honor then to reconsider that there is no foundation laid here to impeach this witness and the other objection I was going to make would be defeated by the fact that you had ruled counsel could reopen.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Joseph Billington.)

The Court: Objection will be overruled.

(Question read.) [285]

A. Not to my knowledge.

Q. Did you have anything to do with the San Diego Social Club in 1943?

A. I think I did in 1943. I don't just remember the date when I went into the place.

Q. What was the nature of your association there, if you recall?

Mr. Gillen: Just a moment—I am going to object as having been asked and answered in the original direct examination. If your Honor will recall, it has been established here that the 21 Club and the San Diego Club were one and the same organization. That was established here yesterday by Mr. Haughey and it had been an interchangeable name, at one time the San Diego Social Club, another time called the 21 Club. Now Mr. Billington answered in his original direct examination that he had been employed there from 1943 until about September of 1945.

The Court: Objection will be overruled. You may answer the question.

(Question read.)

A. Well, as I say, it was all one business. I suppose it was all in the same building.

The Court: I don't believe the witness understood the question.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Joseph Billington.)

Mr. Campbell: May I reframe the question?

The Court: Yes. [286]

Q. What was the San Diego Social Club, Mr. Billington?

A. Well, San Diego Social Club and 21 Club were all the same, to my knowledge.

Q. Was the San Diego Social Club any particular part of the 21 Club?

A. Well, I guess that was the casino.

Q. I believe you testified you had nothing to do with the casino, is that right? A. Correct.

Q. Mr. Billington, Mr. Gillen was asking you about your career as a fighter under the name of Frankie Denny. Are you generally known as Frankie Denny or as Joseph Billington?

A. Well, both names.

Q. Generally speaking, under which name are you known?

A. Well, Frankie Denny would be most.

Mr. Gillen: May it please the Court, it is our information that there was a partnership return filed in connection with this same enterprise, the San Diego Club and 21 Club, for the same year, the year 1943, and that partnership return was filed in 1947 as a result of an audit. I believe that the government has in its possession now that 1943 partnership return. I should like to see it for the purpose of possibly asking a further question or two of Mr. Billington. May we have that?

Mr. Campbell: I don't have that in my possession [287] personally. We will make a search for it.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Joseph Billington.)

Mr. Gillen: There are a number of accountants here and gentlemen from your department. I wonder if we might ask——

The Court: Can you inquire of any of the gentlemen?

Mr. Campbell: Yes. May this be marked for identification?

The Court: Counsel wants to see it.

Mr. Campbell: I think it should be marked for identification.

The Court: It may be marked for identification, Plaintiff's Exhibit 57.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, may we inquire of the prosecution as to whether they are willing to stipulate Plaintiff's Exhibit 57 for identification was filed and was based upon a report of an audit made by Internal Revenue Agent Lester T. Farley?

Mr. Campbell: No, we are not willing to stipulate.

Mr. Avakian: May we then inquire of the government if they will produce the report of Revenue Agent Glen Gould and Lester T. Farley covering operations of the 21 Club and San Diego Social Club for the year 1943?

Mr. Campbell: I submit, your Honor, these matters have no relevancy to the witness on the stand here. There may be some proper place in the proceedings for such a request on the part of counsel, but certainly not proper interrogation of this [288] witness.

The Court: Is there any objection to allowing counsel to see the exhibit? The agents report—have you any objections?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Joseph Billington.)

Mr. Campbell: Those matters, of course, your Honor, are confidential government reports, just as any other working papers of the government.

The Court: Well, do you need these matters for cross-examination of this witness?

Mr. Avakian: Yes, your Honor. (Further discussion.) May we at this time request the Court to direct the prosecution to produce the document at the earliest possible time?

The Court: I will not make that order now. We will proceed. It will stay right where it is now. Proceed with the cross-examination.

Recross-Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Mr. Gillen: We would not be prepared to continue our recross-examination of Mr. Billington at this time. May he be excused and directed by the Court to make himself available?

The Court: Yes, you will be excused temporarily.

a witness on behalf of the plaintiff, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct Examination

By Mr. Thompson:

Q. Will you state your name?

A. Earl Gillingham. [289]

Q. Where do you live?

A. 25 Capra Way, San Francisco.

Q. What is your business?

A. Treasurer and office manager of Bullock & Jones, 340 Post, San Francisco.

Q. What is the character of business conducted by Bullock & Jones? A. Men's wear.

Q. It is a retail clothing establishment, is that correct, men's wear? A. That's right.

Q. And is this business limited exclusively to retailing men's apparel?

A. That's right. I would say yes, definitely.

Q. Have you brought with you, pursuant to subpoena, the records of Bullock & Jones relating to an account with Elmer Remmer?

A. I have.

Q. Will you produce that?

Mr. Thompson: I ask that the document be marked Plaintiff's Exhibit for identification next in order, your Honor. That will be Exhibit 58.

resumes the witness stand on further

Direct Examination

By Mr. Thompson:

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, before we resume with this witness, may we make two requests of the Court?

The Court: Yes, sir.

Mr. Avakian: First of all, with respect to the remark that was made by Mr. Campbell of the prosecution, regarding Plaintiff's Exhibit 57 for identification, as a return filed after the commencement of the investigation, in view of the fact that there is no such evidence in the record, we wish to assign that as misconduct on the part of the prosecution and request the Court to instruct the jury to disregard that remark.

Mr. Campbell: If the Court please, that statement was made in response to a statement made by Mr. Avakian regarding the return.

The Court: (Instructs the jury.)

Mr. Avakian: My second request is this, your Honor, Plaintiff's Exhibit 51 was produced by a gentleman whose name I do not know and we believe he has in his possession other documents material to this case. We would ask the Court for an order requesting that the gentleman identify himself and to [291] remain available with his evidence until such time as he is excused by the Court.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Earl Gillingham.)

The Court: That request will be denied. I think the state of the record is this gentleman is under direct examination.

Q. Mr. Gillingham, I show you Plaintiff's Exhibit 58 for identification, which consists of a transcript of an account in two pages and three pages of typewritten information on account paper. Will you state whether or not those documents are records of Bullock & Jones of San Francisco?

A. These first two sheets are original ledger sheets of Mr. Remmer's ledger account. The three typewritten sheets are merely summary of the original sheets, the regular ledger sheets.

Q. The last three sheets are copies which you have made from the original ledger sheets?

A. That is correct.

Q. And are those original ledger sheets records of Bullock & Jones kept in the ordinary and regular course of the conduct of its business?

A. They are.

Q. And is it part of the business of Bullock & Jones to keep and maintain records of that character? A. Yes, it is.

Mr. Gillen: May it please the Court, in the interest of time, the defense is willing the exhibit may be offered in evidence without objection and in the interest of clarity or [292] simplifying the exhibit and accommodating Bullock & Jones, the summary will be acceptable to the defendant, with this exception, I notice there are some pencil notations made on the bottom of the sheet, I do not know by whom they are made, but they appear to be immaterial and I suggest that they be erased or covered.

Mr. Thompson: That is satisfactory. I can ask the Court to erase those.

The Court: Exhibit 58 is admitted in evidence, of course, with the pencil remarks erased.

Q. Mr. Gillingham, I show you Plaintiff's Exhibit 58, is that the account of Mr. E. Remmer with Bullock & Jones for the years 1944, 1945, and 1946? A. It is.

Q. And what information on the account is given under the column date?

A. The date of purchase and date of cash payments.

Q. What information is given under the next column of the exhibit?

A. One column is debits, the next column is credits.

Q. By the next column of the exhibit, I refer to the second column. A. Second column.

Q. Left-hand side of the exhibit, what information is given?

A. Information of cash payment and article which was bought. [293]

Q. What information is given under the column DR.? A. Those are charges.

Q. Charges to the account?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Earl Gillingham.)

A. Charges to the account.

Q. And what information is given under the column Cash CR.?

A. That includes all credits credited to the account of Mr. Remmer.

Q. Under the second column of the exhibit we find notation under date of 12-28-44, M. O. 7088-9.

A. That is merchandise order.

Q. And what is a merchandise order?

A. A merchandise order is order for merchandise, the amount of which is determined by the purchaser and is made payable to the customer, made payable to the person who presents the merchandise order, made payable to the bearer.

Q. So far as Bullock & Jones is concerned, any one that brings in a merchandise order issued by Bullock & Jones, he delivers that to the company in exchange for merchandise of the same value?

A. That's right.

Mr. Thompson: Your Honor, with the Court's permission, I would like to read Exhibit 58.

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Thompson: (Reads Exhibit 58.) You may cross-examine. [294]

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Q. Mr. Gillingham, where it is noted on the transcript of the account which you furnished the court and which is now called Plaintiff's Exhibit 58, the reference to cash and the amount opposite the date means there has been a payment or credit noted on that account?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Earl Gillingham.)

A. 1946, it means that there has been a credit, a cash credit, and also—1946 was all cash, that's right.

Q. That means there has been a payment made on the account?

A. Payment has been made, that is right.

Q. You don't know whether it is payment by check or payment by cash, you can't tell from that?

A. No, I cannot.

Q. These might have all been checks?

A. That is right.

Q. You simply put it down to cash to indicate it is payment on account of money rather than merchandise?

A. That is right. If it is return of merchandise we would note it, so indicated.

Q. Now, the merchandise orders that you have referred to here are the common merchandise orders we are all familiar with when you give an order for 20 or 25 dollars and they go and select whatever merchandise they desire themselves?

A. That is correct.

Q. How long have you been connected with Bullock & Jones? [295]

A. Well, since October, 1929.

Q. And before that you were in the clothing business, also?

A. No. I was in the automobile business.

Q. In your experience in the clothing business

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Earl Gillingham.)

since 1929, it has been your experience, has it not, that usually people buy merchandise orders for gifts to other people, is that right?

A. That is correct.

Q. It is very uncommon at all that people buy merchandise orders for themselves?

A. That is right.

Q. I noted that in the figures that were read out by Mr. Thompson, there were some odd amounts, for example, merchandise order for $23.60, another merchandise order, or several of them, for $10.81. Let me ask you if that contemplated covering the California sales tax?

A. I presume that does, yes.

Q. In other words, three per cent sales tax on the purchase of merchandise? A. Yes.

Q. I notice some other merchandise orders where they were for over $100 without any odd figure attached, that is for $100—can you enlighten us on that? What would that mean? Would that mean that the customer had a merchandise order for $100 and he would have to pay his own sales tax? A. That is quite possible. [296]

Q. Or buy less than $100 worth of merchandise to have his sales tax covered, is that right?

A. That is right.

Q. I notice there was one item in the year 1944, in the month of December, merchandise order—I beg your pardon—yes, merchandise order $250, but it gives the designation M.O. No. 7088-9, that means that that was two merchandise orders, does it not? Is that correct? A. That is correct.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Earl Gillingham.)

Q. So each merchandise order might have been for $125, making a total of $250?

A. That is correct.

Q. I notice also in an item on the 19th of December, 1945, there is at the bottom of the column a notation of M.O. 8221-4, $400; that would indicate, would it not, that there were four merchandise orders in that instance? A. That is right.

Q. Probably for $100 apiece?

A. That is correct.

Q. On the matter of the items of "hat renovated, $5.00," does that mean where a man brings in a hat and has it blocked and cleaned and new band and make it last another year?

A. That is right, that is complete renovation.

Q. I wonder, Mr. Gillingham, if you have handy there the total of the merchandise orders that were purchased on this account [297] each year?

A. Repeat that, please.

Q. I wonder if you have totaled the merchandise order items? Have you done that?

A. The total of the merchandise orders year by year?

Q. Yes.

A. It is right on that summary sheet I gave you.

Q. Are those your pencilled notations?

A. Yes.

Q. I am sorry we had those rubbed out, Mr. Gillingham. May I approach the witness with the exhibit. Your eyesight is good, Mr. Gillingham, you might be able to solve some of this and I will give you a piece of paper. Would you be kind enough to total the merchandise orders?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Earl Gillingham.)

A. You want them year by year?

Q. If you please.

A. The year 1944, $250; 1945, $505.33; 1946, $416.34.

Q. Do you have that total, Mr. Gillingham?

A. Of all of that?

Q. Yes. A. $1,171.67.

Q. So that he purchased $1,171.67 worth of merchandise orders? A. That's right.

Q. Now is it true that there are reflected upon your records there that in all over that three-year period the total cash [298] payments amounted to $1,323.61? A. We have this total paid, yes.

Q. The over-all total?

A. Yes, that is right.

Q. Mr. Gillingham, do you have any knowledge of whether or not these merchandise orders were purchased as gifts for business associates or employees?

A. I wouldn't know for what purpose they were bought.

Mr. Gillen: I think that is all, thank you.

Mr. Thompson: That is all.

By Mr. Thompson:

Q. Will you state your name, please?

A. John C. McCaffery.

Q. Where do you live?

A. 19 Stuyvant Circle, New York, New York.

Q. By whom are you employed?

A. A. Sulka & Company.

Q. What is the character of the business operated by A. Sulka & Company?

A. Haberdashery and custom merchandise.

Q. Is that for both men and women, or just men? [299]

A. For men, sir.

Q. And what cities of the United States do you operate merchandise businesses?

A. New York, Chicago, and in the wintertime we have a Palm Beach office.

Q. Where is your business located in New York?

A. 661 Fifth Avenue.

Q. Where is it located in Chicago?

A. Michigan & Madison, Chicago.

Q. What is your position with A. Sulka & Company?

A. I am manager of the department of accounts.

Q. How long have you been so employed?

A. I will be there three years this coming May. I now will be two and one-half years.

Q. Have you brought with you, pursuant to sub-

A. Yes, I have.

Q. Will you produce them, please?

A. Certainly.

Mr. Thompson: I ask that the documents produced by the witness be marked Plaintiff's Exhibit 59 for identification.

The Court: So marked.

Q. Mr. McCaffery, you have produced original records and also made a typewritten transcription of them? [300] A. That is correct, sir.

Mr. Gillen: In the interest of time, your Honor, the defense is prepared to stipulate, if counsel is desirous of offering this Exhibit 59 in evidence, there will be no objection and at his convenience, if he desires to offer the transcription from the original ledger sheets, there will be no objection.

Mr. Thompson: We offer Exhibit 59 in evidence, your Honor.

The Court: The exhibit includes both the transcript sheet and the copy of it?

Mr. Gillen: Yes, your Honor.

The Court: It will be admitted in evidence.

Q. Mr. McCaffery, Plaintiff's Exhibit 59 consists of the account of Mr. Elmer Remmer with A. Sulka & Company in its New York store and Chicago store for the years 1944, 1945, and 1946, is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. And in the first column of each of these pages is given a date upon which the transaction took place? A. That is correct.

BLEED THROUGH— POOR COPY

(Testimony of John C. McCaffery.)

Q. What information is given in the second column under the heading of "Account Rendered and Item"?

A. The second column is itemization of merchandise purchases and payments for it.

Q. What is given under the third column, [301] charges?

A. That is record of the purchases made.

Q. And the amounts charged for each purchase?

A. That is correct.

Q. And what information is given under the column headed "Credits"?

A. The column headed "Credits" covers merchandise returned and payments made.

Q. What information is given under column "Pay Last Amount in This Column"?

A. That is the balance.

Q. Will you examine the exhibit and state whether or not any payments were made on account of return of merchandise?

A. There is no return of merchandise.

Q. And all items under the column headed "Credits" represent payments by the purchaser?

A. Payments made, that is correct, sir.

Q. Are you able to tell whether those payments were made by cash, check or some other form?

A. Yes, sir. The payments made are designated whether by check, money order or cash.

Mr. Thompson: I would like to read this exhibit to the jury, your Honor. (Reads Exhibit 59.)

By Mr. Gillen:

Q. You were subpoenaed, Mr. McCaffery, all the way from the New York office?

A. That is right, sir.

Q. With these records?

A. That's right, sir.

Q. On Exhibit 58 in evidence, which the defense stipulated could be put in evidence, I note in red typewriter ribbon a number of items giving credits under the designation of "Money Order." You recall those, do you not? A. I do, sir.

Q. Now I notice on your original cards, in connection with those money order credits, that there was also on your card c.o.d., that means cash on delivery, does it not? A. That is correct.

Q. So that in the transcript that you prepared here to facilitate the reading or interpretation of these original ledger sheets, when you put down money order, you didn't mean Mr. Remmer sent a money order to you? A. No, sir.

Q. But rather the merchandise was shipped from New York or Chicago to San Francisco or elsewhere on c.o.d. order? A. That is correct.

Q. And it was shipped by postal service, where the postman collected the amount of the charge at the time of delivery? [303]

BLEED THROUGH— POOR COPY

(Testimony of John C. McCaffery.)

A. That is right, to be shipped parcel post and payment to be made through the postoffice.

Q. And your company received payment from the postoffice in the form of money order, is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. And how Mr. Remmer paid for those c.o.d packages, you don't know?

A. That is correct, sir.

Q. Let me ask you this, does your firm do quite a large Christmas business?

A. Yes, a very large Christmas business.

Q. And lots of people come in there and buy large orders of things to give away to business associates and employees and so on?

A. That is correct, sir.

Q. From your experience in this business, it would appear, would it not, that when there were purchases under the account of Elmer Remmer on December 5, 1946; 350 cravats, meaning 350 neckties, and additional 50 cravats, meaning an additional 50 neckties, or altogether 400 neckties, it would appear that these were Christmas gifts, would it not? A. That would be my reaction.

Q. You wouldn't expect a man to buy that many cravats for his own neck?

A. That is correct. [304]

Q. I take it that it is your experience during the month of December is the time when your Christmas business becomes pretty active?

A. That is correct, sir.

Q. I wonder if you would be kind enough, Mr.

The Court: Very well.

Mr. Gillen: Other than that we have concluded our cross-examination.

The Court: Will you kindly do that?

A. I have the dollar breakdown here. I want to make sure what you wanted.

Mr. Gillen: The number of ties. I wonder if you would be kind enough to show us the number of neckties purchased each year and totals each year and grand total of neckties and grand total of money, if you please. A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Gillen: We have completed our cross-examination.

A. 791 Fourteenth Avenue, San Francisco.

Q. Where are you employed?

A. In the Alcohol Tax Unit of the Bureau of Internal Revenue in San Francisco.

Q. How long have you been employed by the Alcohol Tax Unit of the Bureau of Internal Revenue in San Francisco?

A. I have been in the Bureau of Internal Revenue thirty years, but not all with the Alcohol Tax Unit.

Q. How long have you been with the Alcohol Tax Unit?

A. Since its organization in 1934, I think.

Q. What is your present position with the Alcohol Tax Unit?

A. I am secretary to the Assistant Supervisor.

Q. Are you familiar with the procedure in the office of the Alcohol Tax Unit for the past several years, relating to the filing of floor stock tax returns on alcoholic liquors? [306]

A. Yes, I think so. Form 758 is filed by the taxpayer in duplicate with the Collector of Internal Revenue, with the payment of the tax due. The Collector then sends the duplicate, with the inventory—the inventory is attached to the original and duplicate, too—and the Collector sends the duplicate with the inventory to the Alcohol Tax Unit for auditing and then they are filed in our office.

Q. And by inventory do you refer to the inventory of the liquor upon which the tax is computed and paid?

A. Yes, the liquor that is on hand at the time the tax is paid.

Q. Have you brought with you from the San Francisco office of the Alcohol Tax Unit, a return filed showing the payment of floor stock tax on certain Gallagher & Burton whiskey?

A. Yes, I have.

Mr. Thompson: May the return produced by the witness be marked plaintiff's exhibit next in order, No. 60?

The Court: It may be so marked.

Mr. Gillen: In regard to Plaintiff's Exhibit 60 for identification, may it please the Court, the defense is prepared to stipulate that this may be introduced in evidence, if the prosecution so desires, subject, however, to the defendant's right to object to the same and move to strike in the event that it is not connected up with the defendant in any material respect.

The Court: It may be admitted in evidence, Exhibit 15.

Q. Miss Tinkler, referring to Plaintiff's Exhibit 60, what does the first page of that exhibit consist of, constitute?

A. A return of floor stock tax on distilled beer and malt liquors and wines under the Revenue Act of 1943.

Q. By whom was the return made?

A. You mean the name of the business?

Q. Yes.

A. It was made for Cal-Neva, Incorporated, Lake Tahoe, for retail liquor dealer.

Q. And by whom was it signed?

A. It was signed Cal-Neva Lodge, Inc., Elmer Remmer, president. It was filed with the Collector of Internal Revenue at Reno.

Q. And what is the amount of floor stock tax reflected? A. $7,853.18.

Q. Does the return show whether or not that tax was paid?

A. Yes, the Collector's stamp is "Received with remittance [308] May 19, 1946, Collector of Internal Revenue, District of Nevada."

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ramona Tinkler.)

Q. Does the return show the total gallonage of distilled spirits involved?

A. Yes, under quantity it shows 2,493.072 distilled spirits proof gallons.

Q. And attached to the first page of the exhibit is an itemized inventory of the liquor referred to on the first page, is that correct?

A. Yes, 1,194 cases.

Q. 1,194 cases. Does it show of what brand of liquor?

A. The entire 1,194 cases is Gallagher & Burton bourbon. The company has no wine or beer.

Q. On the third page of the inventory does it show what kind of liquor Gallagher & Burton was?

A. Well, there is a notation in pen, "Whiskey all 5ths, 86.8 proof."

Mr. Thompson: You may cross-examine.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Q. Miss Tinkler, the inventory which is attached to Plaintiff's Exhibit 60 in evidence, is that prepared by your office or an inspector of your office?

A. Probably by the taxpayer.

Q. It is checked by agents of your office to determine the accuracy of the inventory?

A. I don't know. [309]

Q. Now in the 1,194 cases, I note at the top of the first page of the inventory a notation, "46 cases damaged." Do you know whether or not that means that those cases were destroyed or whether the 1,194 would be over and above the 46 cases damaged?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ramona Tinkler.)

A. No.

Q. Would you look at that inventory and tell me, isn't that an inventory by someone in your office? When I say "your office" I mean in the Tax Unit office?

A. I don't understand that question.

Q. The inventory itself. A. Yes.

Q. Would you look at that and tell me whether or not that isn't prepared by some field agent out of the Alcohol Tax office?

A. I don't know. My understanding is that all inventories attached to Form 758 are prepared by the taxpayer.

Q. And accepted without check of a field agent by your office?

A. Well, they might be checked later.

Q. Now this exhibit would reflect to you—looking at it as a government document—would reflect to you that this was the report or return on floor tax of the Cal-Neva corporation?

A. Cal-Neva Lodge, Incorporated.

Q. That that whiskey belonged to, and the obligation to pay the floor tax, was upon the corporation, is that correct?

A. Yes, signed by the president of the corporation.

Q. Is there any requirement by the government that that should [310] be signed by any officer of the corporation? A. I don't know.

Q. It doesn't designate who should have to sign it?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ramona Tinkler.)

A. The taxpayer—"Whether taxpayer or corporation, state whether individual owner or member of firm or officer of corporation and give title of officer of corporation."

Q. So any officer of the corporation could sign that?

Mr. Thompson: Objected to as calling for her legal conclusion.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Gillen: It was my impression that this lady was asked as an expert in this office about the meaning of the document. That is why I am pursuing it further.

The Court: Well, on this question, I think that is a matter the statute will explain. You will find the answer in the statute.

Q. Now I will ask you to look at this exhibit again, No. 60, and note particularly under "Subscribed and sworn to before me this 19th day of May, 1944," the name of J. R. Bastian, D. C., below it, where it says, "Official Title." Can you tell us, if you know, what that signature means, what D. C. means?

Mr. Campbell: We will stipulate that refers to the deputy collector for the District of Nevada.

Mr. Gillen: All right, we accept that stipulation.

Q. Now let me ask you to look at the signature again and the [311] date that is written there, "J. R. Bastian" and D. C. and date, and compare with the other handwriting on that date and tell us if it doesn't appear to be written by the same person.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ramona Tinkler.)

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as calling for her conclusion. She is not qualified as an expert. The document will speak for itself to any one as well as to her.

The Court: She may answer the question. Objection overruled.

A. I wouldn't know.

Q. You notice there was a notation made at the bottom of the total of the tax due, 5 per cent penalty, $373.96, and a total of $7,853.18. Does that assist you in determining whether or not that was made out by the deputy collector or whether it was made out by the Cal-Neva Lodge Incorporation?

A. I wouldn't know.

Q. Well, you are satisfied, are you not, that the taxpayer wouldn't have made out a penalty to himself? A. I don't know.

Q. You know the penalty for any delinquent payment is fixed by the collector?

A. I don't have anything to do with figuring tax.

Q. Tell us what you know about collecting floor tax.

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

The Court: Objection sustained. [312]

Mr. Gillen: May I respectfully suggest to your Honor it is my understanding I may cover the exact ground covered by direct examination.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ramona Tinkler.)

The Court: Yes. What do you know about the practice of law, suppose somebody asked you that question? You could talk for a long time and I think this witness could talk probably as long.

Q. Now, Miss Tinkler, you did state that such a form as you hold in your hand there, with the inventory attached, is the form that is used by the Alcohol Tax Unit of the Internal Revenue Department for the collection of a floor tax of liquor on hand, is that correct?

A. Used by the Internal Revenue Service.

Q. And when that return is made, the law is that the payment of the tax due should be paid at the same time?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as calling for legal conclusion.

The Court: Let me have that question.

(Question read.)

The Court: She may answer the question if she can.

A. I don't know whether that is the law. I think that is the way it is handled.

Q. Didn't you testify that it is made out in duplicate, that Form 758 must be filed in duplicate with the remittance in the amount of the tax shown on the return, isn't that so? [313]

A. That is my understanding.

Q. What is? A. That is the procedure.

Q. And then I believe you identified that document by saying that the return was made and there was acknowledgment of remittance in the amount due, namely in the amount of $7,853.18, noted as having been received or paid on May 19, 1944, is that correct?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ramona Tinkler.)

A. That is the Collector's notation on it.

Q. And you will note also there was imposed on the tax that was due a delinquent penalty of five per cent of the tax due, isn't that true?

A. I don't know whether that is delinquent penalty or not. It is 5 per cent penalty.

Q. It states it is 5 per cent penalty, isn't that correct? A. It states in the form.

Q. And adds some 300 odd dollars, isn't that so?

A. $373.96.

Q. Isn't it within your knowledge customarily for deputy collectors of Internal Revenue to make out a return for taxpayers or to assist in making out of returns of taxpayers?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as improper cross-examination. This witness testified she was employed with the Alcohol Tax, not by the Collector's office.

The Court: Objection sustained. [314]

Q. You receive those returns back in your office, do you not? A. Yes.

Q. Do you have any knowledge on the subject of whether or not the tax collector prepares those returns and imposes the penalties when penalties are due?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as not the best evidence.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ramona Tinkler.)

The Court: Same ruling.

Q. What penalties are connected with the failure to make payment on floor tax in time?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to.

The Court: Objection overruled.

A. I don't know.

Q. Are there any penalties imposed for the failure to comply with the requirements that you set forth here in your direct examination, namely, that Form 758 must be filed in duplicate with payment of the tax due remitted at the same time?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to on the ground she has stated she didn't know.

The Court: Let her answer the question if she can.

A. I don't know anything about the penalties. I don't know what the law says about the penalties.

Q. You know there are penalties?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as argumentative.

Mr. Gillen: Of course it is argumentative. It is cross-examination. May I finish my question? [315]

The Court: Go ahead.

Mr. Gillen: I will restate the question.

Q. From your thirty years' experience with the Bureau of Internal Revenue and from your personal experience with the Alcohol Tax Unit of that Bureau since its inception in 1934, has the course of your work and knowledge of preparation to qualify yourself for that work, brought to your attention that there is a penalty attached for failure to pay alcohol floor tax?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ramona Tinkler.)

A. Well, I don't have anything to do with the——

Q. (Interrupting): I am asking if you have any knowledge whether or not there are penalties attached to a failure to comply with the requirements of Form 758?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial whether or not she knows.

The Court: She can answer the question.

A. I don't know that there are penalties.

Q. You don't know whether there are any penalties to it?

A. I don't have anything to do with it.

Q. Regardless of whether you have anything to do with it or not, you don't know whether there is any penalty imposed?

A. I assume there is, but I don't know anything about them.

Q. Do you have any knowledge what a five per cent penalty is imposed for? A. No, I do not.

Q. Do you have any knowledge of what penalty is imposed, if any, [316] if you fail to file your return in time by the fixed or required date?

A. No.

Q. Do you have any knowledge what any penalty is imposed for?

Mr. Campbell: Same objection.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. In connection, I mean with floor tax?

The Court: The ruling will stand. I think you have covered the ground on that point.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ramona Tinkler.)

Mr. Gillen: With the Court's permission, I would like the jury to see the first page, all for that matter, but particularly the first page of prosecution's Exhibit 60. May I pass it to each one of the jurors?

The Court: You may. Does that conclude your cross-examination?

Mr. Gillen: I believe.

The Court: Have you any further questions?

Mr. Thompson: No, your Honor.

(Witness excused.)

Mr. Gillen: I had intended to mention, if I did not mention, that I would like the jury, in examining the exhibit, to note the similarity in handwriting between the signature of the Deputy Collector and the addition of figures and filling in of the form.

The Court: Are you ready to proceed? [317]

Mr. Gillen: I believe Mr. McCaffery is prepared now.

Recross-Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Q. Mr. McCaffery, at the conclusion of your cross-examination, I requested that you further enlighten the jury the total, year by year, the number of cravats or neckties that were purchased from your firm for Elmer Remmer's account, plus amount of money paid for those ties for each year, and then also, if you will, give us the grand total of number of articles of merchandise and cost of merchandise. Have you done that, sir? A. Yes, I have.

(Testimony of John C. McCaffery.)

Q. Would you be kind enough to give us the results?

A. 1943, 18 cravats, $108 in New York. No purchase of cravats in Chicago. That is total of $108 for 1943. In 1944, 42 cravats in New York, $252; 36 cravats in Chicago, $216. That is total of 78 cravats for 1944, at a total of $468. In 1945, 36 cravats in New York at amount of $204; 24 cravats in Chicago at amount of $144, which is a total of 60 cravats in 1945, with a total of $348. In 1946, 504 cravats purchased in New York for $3,611. No cravats purchased in Chicago. Total of 504 cravats for 1946, with a total of $3,611. Do you want the total of all cravats?

Q. Yes. I asked you for the totals of 1944 to 1946, which are the years we are concerned with. You gave us the year [318] 1943.

A. The only reason I mentioned the $108, payment in 1944, that covered 1943 purchases.

Q. May have been purchased in late 1943?

A. Sir, it was purchased October and November, 1943.

Q. Now your statement of $3,611 for 1946, was any part of that paid in 1947, can you tell us?

A. Repeat the question.

Q. Your last bill for 1946, you give a total of merchandise purchased $3,611.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of John C. McCaffery.)

A. That is right, sir.

Q. For 1946; was any of that 1946 bill paid in 1947? A. No, sir; that is paid in 1946.

Q. When in 1946? A. December 27th.

Q. All right. Now would you give us the totals, please?

A. The 660 cravats that I have, I have to deduct the 18 in 1943, that I mentioned; in other words, that is 642 cravats.

Q. For the three years, 1944, 1945, and 1946?

A. That is right, sir.

Q. And then the total would be your total less $108? A. That is correct.

Q. What was your total?

A. Well, sir, the total I had was $4,535.

Q. And that included the $108 in 1943? [319]

A. That is correct.

Q. So if we deduct that, we get the exact amount for the three years we are interested in?

A. That is correct. That would be $4,427.

Mr. Gillen: I think that is all.

HARRY E. STEWART

a witness on behalf of the plaintiff, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct Examination

By Mr. Thompson:

Q. Will you state your full name, please?

A. Harry E. Stewart.

Q. Where do you live? A. Reno, Nevada.

Q. How long have you lived in Reno, Nevada?

A. About 62 years.

Q. Do you own and operate a business in Reno, Nevada? A. I do.

Q. What is the name of that business?

A. Nevada Transfer & Warehouse Company.

Q. How long have you operated that business?

A. Forty-four years. [320]

Q. What is the nature of that business?

A. Well, a general trucking movement, transportation of household goods and storage of miscellaneous articles, merchandise and household goods.

Q. During the years 1943 to 1947, inclusive, did you have occasion to receive for storage a quantity of Gallagher & Burton whiskey? A. I did.

Q. Have you produced with you in court the records of the Nevada Transfer & Warehouse Company relating to the storage and disposition of that liquor? A. Yes, sir.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harry E. Stewart.)

Q. Mr. Stewart, you have handed me two records which have been marked Plaintiff's Exhibit 61 for identification, will you state generally the nature of the records, without stating what information is contained on them?

Mr. Gillen: I wonder if we might see them.

Mr. Thompson: I am doing that for counsel's assistance, your Honor, so he will know what the records are.

A. This larger sheet is inventory sheet, or a physical inventory of numbers of cases received and distributed. The yellow card is a combined physical record, as well as a financial cash record.

Q. Mr. Stewart, I hand you Plaintiff's Exhibit 61 for identification. Are those records of the Nevada Transfer & [321] Warehouse Company which are kept and maintained by the company in the regular operation of its business?

A. They are.

Q. Those are the original records?

A. They are, sir.

Q. And is it part of the business of the company to keep and maintain records of that character?

A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Thompson: I offer Exhibit 61 in evidence, your Honor.

Mr. Gillen: To which we will offer an objection, your Honor, unless there is a better foundation laid.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harry E. Stewart.)

The exhibits bear three different names and I think that further interpretation or some clarification will have to be made. It would appear to me that there is considerable matter contained in this exhibit which would not affect or have any connection with the defendant in this case. It appears to be record of the storage of liquor and delivery of liquor to three different persons or corporations and a better foundation should be laid.

Mr. Thompson: If the Court please, I am perfectly willing to ask the witness to testify from the exhibit, but it is my understanding the exhibit should be received in evidence before he testifies regarding to explain the entries on it. The foundation of business record is laid and that is all that is required at this time. [322]

The Court: You might ask him a question in regard to any circumstances that might be pertinent to the issues here.

Q. Mr. Stewart, referring to Exhibit 61 for identification and the storage of liquor reflected by that exhibit, for whose account was the liquor stored originally?

A. Originally for Cal-Neva Lodge, Inc., E. R. Remmer; later transferred to the Bank Club at Reno, Nevada.

Q. Upon whose order was the liquor delivered from the Nevada Transfer & Warehouse Company?

A. Signature of Remmer, up to the time it was transferred to the Bank Club; after that to the Bank Club.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harry E. Stewart.)

The Court: I think that would cover the objection. Exhibit may be admitted in evidence.

Q. Mr. Stewart, referring to Exhibit 61, what date was the liquor received by the Nevada Transfer & Storage Company for storage?

A. December 30, 1943, we received 1194 cases Gallagher & Burton 5ths whiskey.

Q. Upon what dates and to whom were deliveries of that whiskey made out of the storage?

A. Under date of June 30, 1944, one hundred cases; July 12, 1944, one hundred cases.

Q. Would you please state to whom or to what firm your delivery was made? [323]

A. I thought I might accomplish that by mentioning the name once. Going over it again—on June 30, 1944, first delivery of 100 cases delivered to the Cal-Neva Lodge truck on order presented by the driver and signed E. Remmer. On July 12, 1944, 100 cases was delivered to the same truck on order signed by E. Remmer. On 9-10, 194 cases was delivered to the Cal-Neva Lodge truck on order signed by E. Remmer and delivered to the driver of said truck.

Q. What was the year? A. 1945.

Q. That last one was September 10, 1945?

A. Right. On May 9, 1946, Cal-Neva Lodge truck driver showed up at the warehouse and delivered to us, for account of Cal-Neva Lodge, 100 cases of Gallagher & Burton whiskey, bringing it up to a total of 900 cases. At that time, according to this record, the driver brought with him an order signed by E. Remmer, transferring the 900 cases to the Bank Club.

BLEED THROUGH— POOR COPY

(Testimony of Harry E. Stewart.)

Q. How many cases of whiskey remained in storage on December 31, 1946?

A. May I ask as a clarification for whose account?

Q. In storage under this inventory?

A. In storage under this inventory there was 750 cases.

Q. For whose account were you holding that at that time? A. Bank Club at Reno.

Q. Have you brought with you the order you refer to relating to [324] the transfer of the balance of the merchandise to the Bank Club?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Mr. Stewart, you have handed me the order referred to and it has been marked plaintiff's Exhibit 62 for identification. Is that the original order to which you referred? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Thompson: I offer it in evidence, your Honor.

The Court: It may be admitted in evidence, Exhibit 62.

Mr. Thompson: It reads as follows: "Please release 900 cases of liquor to the Bank Club. E. Remmer, Cal-Neva Lodge."

Q. I notice, Mr. Stewart, the order is undated. Will you please state how you fix the date of that order?

A. According to the physical inventory record on this larger sheet, the driver who brought in the 100 cases, listing the inventory from 800 to 900, brought this order with him. By the use of this record here made up by one of my employees at the time, indicates that that was the date.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harry E. Stewart.)

Q. And what was the date on which the driver brought in the 100 cases to your warehouse?

A. May 9, 1946.

Q. And on that date, upon receipt of that 100 cases, you then had in storage 900 cases, is that correct? A. Correct.

Q. Now later on during the year 1946 were any cases released [325] out of storage?

A. Yes, November 26, 1946, 150 cases were released.

Q. And to whom? A. To the Bank bar.

Q. And so on December 31, 1946, you then had in storage 750 cases, is that correct?

A. That is right, sir.

Q. Will you produce, if you have it, the order releasing 150 cases to the Bank Club?

A. I can show you a receipt. The order would be phoned to my office.

Mr. Thompson: I ask that the receipt be marked plaintiff's exhibit next in order. I offer plaintiff's Exhibit 63, the receipt from the Bank Club, your Honor, in evidence.

Mr. Gillen: We offer objection to that, may it please the Court, as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial. The basis for the objection is this—we feel that after a transfer was made of the 900 cases to the Bank Club from the Cal-Neva Club, that anything the Bank Club did thereafter in the way of withdrawing its own liquor from the warehouse —they apparently became possessed of it—would not be binding in any way on the defendant. What the Bank Club did in withdrawing this liquor after that, we think would be incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

(Testimony of Harry E. Stewart.)

Mr. Thompson: If the Court please, we intend to connect [326] it up later. We will withdraw our offer so long as it is understood that the only objection reserved is that one connecting it up.

The Court: If you withdraw the offer, counsel may make any objection that might occur to them.

Q. Mr. Stewart, plaintiff's Exhibit 63 is the original receipt taken from the files of the Nevada Transfer & Warehouse Company relating to the delivery of 150 cases of Gallagher & Burton whiskey? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And it is part of the business of the Nevada Transfer & Warehouse Company to keep and maintain records of this character? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And this particular record, Exhibit 63, was made, kept and maintained by the Nevada Transfer & Warehouse Company in the regular course of the operation of its warehouse business?

A. That's right, sir.

Q. Have you produced also, Mr. Stewart, the inventory of the 1194 cases of liquor in storage, Showing the serial numbers of the cases?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. May I have it please? A. Yes, sir.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Harry E. Stewart.)

Mr. Thompson: I ask that this inventory be marked Exhibit [327] 64 for identification, your Honor.

The Court: So marked.

Q. Mr. Stewart, I hand you Exhibit 64 for identification. Will you state what it is, please?

A. The serial numbers on the 1194 cases of liquor taken by my employees at the time the liquor was delivered to the warehouse.

Q. Is this also a record of the Nevada Transfer & Warehouse Company which is kept and maintained in the regular course of the operation of its business?

Q. It is requirement of the Alcohol Tax Unit, complied with by the Nevada Transfer & Warehouse Company.

Mr. Thompson: I offer it in evidence, your Honor, Exhibit 64.

The Court: It may be admitted in evidence.

Q. Mr. Stewart, do your records show from whom you received delivery of the 1194 cases of whiskey for storage?

A. Yes, sir, received from the Sierra Wine & Liquor Company at the plant, loaded on to our trucks and brought to the warehouse.

Q. And will you state again the date of that delivery from the Sierra Wine & Liquor Company?

A. December 30, 1943.

Q. Now during the period of the storage of that whiskey, from the date it was received until December 31, 1946, what payments, if any, did Nevada

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

Transfer & Warehouse Company receive on [328] account of the storage and other charges?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to because it is obvious to us now that for a period of time there was another store there, another owner of that liquor, at least 900 cases of that liquor, so that I think that question would be too comprehensive.

Mr. Thompson: I will reframe the question, your Honor, and ask for payment of storage charges and other expenses to May, or the end of May, 1946.

Mr. Gillen: May 9th.

Mr. Thompson: All right, May 9th.

The Court: That is the date the 900 cases were transferred to the Bank Club?

Mr. Gillen: Yes, your Honor. As modified, I see no objection to the question.

The Court: Read the question.

(Question read): "Now during the period of storage of that whiskey from the date it was received until May 9, 1946, what payments, if any, did the Nevada Transfer & Warehouse Company receive on account of the storage and other charges?"

A. $708.96 under date of April 30, 1945.

Q. Do you have any record or recollection of who made that payment?

A. Cal-Neva Lodge, Inc., the record shows check signed by Perkins. [329]

Mr. Thompson: You may cross-examine.

BLURRED COPY

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Mr. Gillen: May it please the Court, since plaintiff's exhibit 63, I believe it is, since the offer of that in evidence was withdrawn by the prosecution, I would like to reserve any cross-examination of Mr. Stewart until such time as evidence might be produced to connect that with the defendant. Now Mr. Stewart resides in Reno and if we need him, we shall ask that he be instructed to return.

Mr. Thompson: If the Court please, I do not see any reason to reserve cross-examination on that account. He has testified, so far as we know, to all he knows regarding that exhibit for identification and we have no objection at this time to counsel questioning him about it.

The Court: Well, I will excuse Mr. Stewart with the understanding he will be available upon adequate notice, a day or two notice, in the event you should want to cross-examine. That will be the understanding.

a witness on behalf of the plaintiff, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct Examination

By Mr. Thompson:

Q. Will you state your full name, please?

A. Pierino C. Barengo. [330]

Q. Where do you live?

A. 1429 Arlington Avenue, Reno.

Q. How long have you lived in Reno, Nevada?

A. Thirty-seven years.

Q. Do you have any connection with a business in Reno, Nevada?

A. Yes, at the present time I am partner and manager in the Sierra Wine Company.

Q. How long have you been engaged as partner and manager of that company?

A. As partner just for this year. As manager since 1934.

Q. During the year 1943 did you have a transaction with Elmer Remmer? A. I did.

Q. And when and where did that transaction take place?

A. Well, in his capacity as manager of Cal-Neva, I had regular sales of liquor to him as regular procedure of business. In addition, November 10th—do you want me to continue?

Q. November 10th of what year?

A. 1943; he came to me and told me that he had obtained, through friends in the East, some Burton & Gallagher whiskey.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Pierino C. Barengo.)

Q. How much?

A. To start with it was supposed to be one carload, which amounted to 1200 cases. He gave at that time deposit to me in the amount of 34 thousand dollars, covering the purchase [331] price of the whiskey, freight, taxes and any other expenses.

Q. How was that payment of 34 thousand dollars made? A. That was made in cash.

Q. And on what date was that?

A. November 10th.

Q. Of 1943? A. Right.

Q. What subsequent transactions did you have with Mr. Remmer relating to the purchase and disposition of that whiskey?

A. On November 16th he advised another car was coming and they would have two cars coming, and gave an additional deposit of 20 thousand dollars.

Q. How was that payment made to you?

A. That was made in cash.

Q. When you say cash, do you mean currency?

A. I mean currency.

Q. Was that whiskey received by the Sierra Wine & Liquor Company? A. Yes, it was.

Q. On what date? A. November 16th.

Q. 1943?

A. November 16th and November 18th, two days. Just to reexamine my records on this—November 16th.

Q. Now, when the money was paid to you, Mr. Barengo, the first [332] sum for 34 thousand dollars and the second sum for 20 thousand dollars, who paid the money to you? A. Mr. Remmer.

Q. Personally? A. Personally.

Q. On November 16th did the Sierra Wine & Liquor Company receive two carloads of Gallagher & Burton whiskey?

A. No, in rechecking my records, we received the first car on the 12th and the second car on the 16th. I have to correct it again—those are the dates of the sight drafts. We have here notation received November 14th and November 30th. Those are positive.

Mr. Gillen: What are those dates? The dates the liquor was received?

A. Those are the dates we received. The first car we received the 14th of November, 1200 cases; the second car received the 30th of November, 1200 cases.

Q. What kind of liquor was it?

A. Gallagher & Burton.

Q. Both carloads? A. Both carloads.

Q. Did you, after the receipt of the whiskey, or at any time, have any conversation with Mr. Remmer regarding how it should be disposed of?

A. Yes, at the time he ordered it he said it seemed like a [333] rather large amount of whiskey and he said he ordered for himself and some of his friends who were also engaged in the bar business. Liquor at that time being very scarce, we also had had other instances where that had happened.

Q. And do your records show what disposition

(Testimony of Pierino C. Barengo.)

the Sierra Wine & Liquor Company made of the whiskey after it was received?

A. Yes, it does.

Q. Will you testify to the dates and places of delivery?

A. On November 15th we delivered 500 cases to the Palace Club.

Q. That is November 15, 1943? A. 1943.

Q. And did you receive any payment on account of that delivery? A. $13,865.

Q. Who paid that money?

A. The Palace Club.

Q. All right. What other deliveries did you make? A. Fifty cases to Club 222.

Q. On what date please?

A. The 16th of November.

Q. Is that 222 Club located in Reno?

A. It was, yes.

Q. And also the Palace Club? A. Yes.

Q. And did you receive any payment on that delivery? [334]

A. Yes, we received $1,386.50.

Q. And who paid you that money?

A. Well, I would say that we collected it from 222 Bruce.

Q. And did you make any other deliveries?

A. Yes, made delivery of 300 cases to the Bank Club and we made a delivery of——

Q. (Interceding): What date was the delivery to the Bank Club?

A. I don't have that positive date here. I don't have a copy of the invoice for it. I have just the notation that it was sent there. I presume it to be the 16th.

(Testimony of Pierino C. Barengo.)

Q. Of what? A. November.

Q. 1943? A. 1943.

Q. And did you receive any payment at that time?

A. Received $8,319 from the Bank Club.

Q. Did you also make a delivery to the Silver Dollar Club.

A. There was 100 cases delivered to the Silver Dollar Bar. One order that we sent and we got paid for, $2773; another order, 100 cases, $2772, which Mr. Remmer collected.

Mr. Gillen: May I have the dates on those two orders?

A. The first one is 16th of November, 1943. I don't have the date of the other one. I believe it was the next day, the 17th.

Q. What is the total amount of money which the Sierra Wine & Liquor Company collected during the year 1943? As I understand, [335] it was all during the month of November, 1943, which you have testified to, relating to the two carloads of whiskey?

A. Between the deposits and what we collected from the sales was a total of $80,343.50.

Q. Did that total sum represent an overpayment for the whiskey?

A. The amount is $17,739.50.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Pierino C. Barengo.)

Q. And what did you do in connection with the amount of overpayment?

A. Check was made out to cash, given to Mr. Remmer, in the amount of $17,739.50.

Q. Do you have that check with you?

A. I have the check here.

Q. Will you produce it, please? Mr. Barengo, I show you plaintiff's Exhibit 65 for identification. Is that a check drawn on the account of the Sierra Wine & Liquor Company?

Mr. Gillen: We will stipulate if he wants to offer it in evidence, in the interest of time.

Mr. Thompson: We offer it.

The Court: Very well, it will be admitted in evidence. Exhibit 65.

Mr. Thompson: (Reads exhibit.) Endorsed on the back William Kyne.

Q. Mr. Barengo, is that your signature as the maker of the check? [336]

A. That is my signature.

Q. And to whom did you deliver that check?

A. Mr. Remmer.

Q. That is the defendant in this case?

A. Right.

Q. On what date?

A. 17th of November, 1943.

Q. Who is William Kyne who endorsed the check, if you know?

A. I know a William Kyne. I don't know if that is the Mr. William Kyne.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Pierino C. Barengo.)

Q. You didn't deliver this check to a man named William Kyne?

A. I did not. At that time I didn't know him.

Q. Do you have any record of the Sierra Wine & Liquor Company, Mr. Barengo, which summarizes the transactions which you have just related in your testimony?

A. I have the regular ledger sheets of the Cal-Neva Lodge for November of 1943, and the years 1944, 1945, 1946 and 1947. Included in these are the transactions that I mentioned. There is no record there of the sales made to the Bank Club, Club 222, Silver Dollar or Palace Club, as those charges are made direct to those particular accounts, ledger sheets.

Mr. Thompson: I ask that the liquor account produced by the witness be marked plaintiff's 66 for identification and I offer it in evidence.

Mr. Gillen: We will offer the objection to that, may [337] it please the Court, it serves no more than duplication in part of what this gentleman did and not as completely as he testified and does not reflect in any part the transactions of his firm with the Cal-Neva Lodge, a corporation. We think it is incompetent, irrelevent and immaterial under the circumstances.

The Court: It will be admitted in evidence, Exhibit 66.

Q. Mr. Barengo, referring to plaintiff's Exhibit 65, which is the check to cash for $17,739.50, was that check actually charged against the account of the Sierra Wine & Liquor Company and paid out of the account at the bank?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Pierino C. Barengo.)

A. That is the only way it could have gotten paid.

Q. Well, was it paid? A. Yes, it was paid.

Q. You have testified, Mr. Barengo, to the receipt of two carloads of Gallagher & Burton liquor and the delivery of 950 cases, as I understand your testimony, 300 cases to the Bank Club, 50 cases to the 222 Club, 100 cases to the Silver Dollar Bar, and 500 cases to the Palace Club, making a total of 950 cases. What did the Sierra Wine & Liquor do with the balance of the whiskey?

A. There was the other sale of 100 cases to the Silver Dollar Bar which was collected by Mr. Remmer.

Q. That would be 1050 cases.

A. Left a balance of 150 cases, of which, in that particular [338] car there had been three cases broken in transit, which left 147 cases, which we kept as security for payment of tax and commission covering the entire transaction.

Q. And did you receive payment of the tax and commission on the transaction?

A. A few years later.

Q. Well, in what year did you receive payment?

A. October of 1945.

Q. And from whom did you receive the payment?

A. I received payment August 9th—I should have referred to this?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Pierino C. Barengo.)

Q. Of 1945?

A. In 1945, from the Bank Club.

Q. In what amount? A. $4,896.57.

Q. $4,896.57, is that correct? A. Right.

Q. Upon receipt of that payment, what did you do with the 147 cases of whiskey which you were then holding, as I understand it?

A. That amount was in payment of the 147 cases.

Q. And when you received that money you delivered the cases to the Bank Club, is that correct?

A. That is right.

Q. How about payment of your storage expenses, freight and commission that you referred to? [339]

A. That was covered in this $4,896.57. We made an agreement that we would receive the whiskey——

Q. (Interceding): Are you referring to an agreement you made with Mr. Remmer?

A. Made a verbal agreement with Mr. Remmer that we were to receive $1.20 per case for handling this particular shipment.

Q. And your fee then would be $1.20 times 2400, is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. Do you know what that amounts to? Do you have a record of it? A. It would be $2880.

Q. That was your commission? A. Yes.

Q. Or your charge for handling the transaction?

A. That is correct.

Q. What other expenses did you have in connection with the transaction?

A. We paid the tax, but most of that money, the tax money, was included in the deposit because the deposit was more actually than the amount of money needed to pay for the whiskey.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Pierino C. Barengo.)

Q. Do you have a breakdown of the sum that was paid to you by the Bank Club in 1945?

A. Do I have a breakdown of that amount?

Q. Yes. [340]

A. It may be here in the letter which it appears we demanded payments. The price of whiskey increased, due to the fact there had been some floor tax put on whiskey during that time, from 1943 until it was paid for in 1945. This letter that was written to Mr. Remmer, which has a breakdown of 147 cases, is itemized as to interest and storage charges and insurance, etc. It isn't written by me. It is written by an attorney at possibly the direction of my father and uncle, because at that time I was in the service. This breakdown increases the amount to $5713.60.

Q. What are the items?

A. 147 cases of——

Mr. Gillen: Just a moment. What kind of memorandum is this?

Mr. Thompson: Will you show the memorandum to counsel, please?

Mr. Gillen: Yes, I would like to see it. He is refreshing his memory from something he didn't prepare himself. May it please the Court, I offer an objection to the last question and answer. As I recollect by his answer or two before, the gentleman on the witness stand said he was in the service and apparently there was some correspondence on the part of his father and lawyer.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Pierino C. Barengo.)

The Court: I think your objection is good. The objection is sustained and questions and answers relating [341] to that memorandum will be stricken from the record.

Mr. Gillen: Thank you, your Honor.

Q. At any rate, Mr. Barengo, in 1945 you did receive the final payment on that one carload of whiskey, is that correct? A. We did.

Q. And the amount of that payment was what?

A. $4,896.57.

Q. You received that from the Bank Club upon delivery of the 147 cases to the Bank Club?

A. Correct.

Q. Now what did the Sierra Wine & Liquor Company do with the second carload of whiskey?

A. That car there would have been a breakage of six cases, which were charged to the railroad company and payment received from them on those six cases. The balance of 1194 were delivered to the Nevada Transfer Company, 12-30-43.

Q. That was on December 30, 1943?

A. Yes.

Q. And upon whose order or request was that liquor delivered to the Nevada Transfer & Warehouse Company? A. On my order.

Q. And did you have any conversation with any one relating to what disposition should be made of that whiskey?

Mr. Gillen: Just a moment. [342]

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Pierino C. Barengo.)

The Court: Just answer that question yes or no.

A. Yes.

Q. With whom? A. Mr. Remmer.

Q. And when did that conversation take place?

A. About the 18th of November till would be the first week in December.

Q. Some time during that period?

A. During that period, on several occasions during that period.

The Court: In other words, he had several conversations during that period.

Q. What was the conversation relating to the disposition of the second carload of whiskey?

A. Well, we wanted to know who to deliver it to. We wanted to close the entire deal and wanted to know whether he wanted some of his other friends to have some or wanted disposition made to Cal-Neva. Cal-Neva being closed at that time of the year may have hampered his decision in that respect. However, towards the end of the year, when I was unable to reach Mr. Remmer and I wanted to dispose of the whiskey and complete the deal, as I was entering the service in January, I directed my employees to transfer the 1194 cases of Gallagher & Burton over to the transfer company and put it in the name of Cal-Neva Lodge.

Q. And that delivery was made on December 30, 1943? [343] A. That is right.

Q. Do your records show the cost of that carload of whiskey which was delivered to the Nevada Transfer & Warehouse Company?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Pierino C. Barengo.)

A. I have two invoices here covering each car. This invoice just showed the amount of the whiskey fob plant. There is attached to one of the invoices a freight bill covering that particular car. In addition to the freight, there is Nevada State tax, which was paid at that time, upon sale of merchandise I believe.

Q. Will you produce the charges relating to the carload which was delivered to the Nevada Transfer & Warehouse Company?

A. It consisted of freight and State tax and handling charges and receipt for 1194 cases.

Mr. Thompson: I ask that these documents be marked plaintiff's Exhibit 67, your Honor for identification.

The Court: They may be so marked.

Direct Examination

By Mr. Thompson:

Mr. Thompson: We offer Exhibit 67 in evidence, your Honor.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Pierino C. Barengo.)

Mr. Gillen: No objection.

The Court: It may be admitted.

Q. To refresh your recollection a little bit, Mr. Barengo, as I recall it you, yesterday, testified that your company, the Sierra Wine & Liquor Company, had received two carloads of Gallagher & Burton whiskey and you had testified to the disposition of the first carload in November of 1943, and we were referring to the second carload of whiskey which you said the Sierra Wine & Liquor Company had delivered to the Nevada Transfer & Warehouse Company for storage at the end of December, 1943, is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. And at the conclusion of the hearing, yesterday, I was questioning you regarding the costs in connection with the second carload of whiskey which was delivered to the Nevada Transfer & Warehouse Company. I now show you Plaintiff's Exhibit 67. By referring to that exhibit, will you itemize the costs [345] incurred and paid by the Sierra Wine & Liquor Company and charged to the Cal-Neva Lodge or Mr. Remmer, in connection with that second carload of whiskey?

A. Drayage on the above of 1,194 cases Gallagher & Burton whiskey, $50. That is drayage charges our warehouse to the Nevada Transfer Company, $50. State tax, $1,432.80; handling charges, $1,432.80; total of $2,915.60.

Q. Referring to the handling charges, does that represent the charge of Sierra Wine & Liquor Company at the rate of $1.20 per case which you testified to yesterday? A. That is correct.

(Testimony of Pierino C. Barengo.)

Q. Did the Sierra Wine & Liquor Company incur any other charges in connection with that second carload of whiskey which was delivered to the Nevada Transfer & Warehouse Company that you know of? A. None that I recall.

Q. Do your records show what the purchase price was for that carload of whiskey?

A. I have invoices for the two cars of whiskey.

Q. Well, referring to the second carload of whiskey, the one that went to the Nevada Transfer & Warehouse Company, what was the purchase price for that carload?

A. F.O.B. costs was $24.44 a case.

Q. What is the total extension of the carload?

A. Total of $29,328.00. The freight charges on that car was [346] $1,002.09; demurrage, $4.53. I believe on a breakdown, including the $1.20 a case handling charge, $1.20 a case tax, the price comes to $27.73.

Q. Per case? A. Per case.

Q. By that last statement do you mean that if you multiply $27.73 by 1,200 you will arrive at the total charges, including the purchase price and all these other items that you have referred to?

A. That is correct.

Mr. Thompson: You may cross-examine.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Q. Mr. Barengo, as I recall your testimony given yesterday, you said that in the month of

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Pierino C. Barengo.)

November, I believe it was, that Mr. Remmer talked to you about the fact that he was in a position to obtain some whiskey through some friends of his in the East, is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. And that he was going to get a carload of whiskey and that he intended to see that his friends in and about Reno, who were in the retail liquor business, would share in whatever he was able to get, is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. And that at a subsequent time, as I recall your testimony, he told you there was going to be a second carload, he would [347] get two carloads, is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. Let me ask you, as one in the wholesale liquor business, is it unusual and was it unusual at that time, for anybody in the retail liquor business to get a carload of whiskey?

Mr. Thompson: Objected to as immaterial.

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question.

A. We have had other customers buy carloads of whiskey previous to shortage and I think with the shortage conditions, I think anyone that would be able to buy a carload of whiskey would take the opportunity at that time.

Q. So it wasn't an unusual thing?

A. It was an unusual thing to get two cars, but he was fortunate to get two cars.

Q. It wasn't an unheard of thing?

A. No.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Pierino C. Barengo.)

Q. Then as I recall your testimony, you stated Mr. Remmer supplied you with a certain amount of money to handle the payment and charges for the whiskey, is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. Will you repeat to me again what was the sum of money that you received? There was a deposit of 34 thousand dollars, first——

A. Thirty-four thousand dollars first and 20 thousand dollars later.

Q. And that was after you were told there was a second carload [348] coming? A. Yes.

Q. And immediately upon the first car being received, which as I recall your recollection was about the 16th of November, you were directed to deliver to certain designated persons or concerns certain amounts of the first carload, is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. And those who participated, as I recall your testimony, were the Bank Club, the Palace Club, the Silver Dollar Club, and the 222 Club, all of Reno, is that true? A. That is correct.

Q. Then, as I recall your testimony, the Palace Club received 500 cases? A. Right.

Q. And the 222 Club, 50 cases? A. Right.

Q. The Bank Club, 300 cases? A. Right.

Q. And the Silver Dollar Club, 100 cases?

A. Right.

Q. And on November 17th, the Silver Club then received a second 100 cases?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Pierino C. Barengo.)

A. That is right.

Q. As I recall your testimony, you collected for all of this whiskey which was delivered to these other concerns, with the [349] exception of one item on November 17th of the second 100 cases sent to the Silver Dollar Club, which you was—Mr. Remmer collected himself, so you were informed?

A. That is true.

Q. As to all the others, you collected the money?

A. Yes.

Q. And were those collections, or were the amounts charged, on the basis of $27.73 per case that you indicated? A. Yes.

Q. In other words, the people who benefited by the arrival of this first carload of whiskey, the Palace Club, the 222 Club and the Bank Club and Silver Dollar Club, paid exactly what Mr. Remmer paid for it? A. That is correct.

Q. Now you have broken down for us, Mr. Barengo, the exact cost of this whiskey as it passed through your hands, have you not? A. Yes.

Q. And you broke it down as to the second carload, is that true? A. That is true.

Q. And that second carload, as I recall, is the carload that you had nothing to do with the disposal of, with the exception that on December 30th of that your, Mr. Remmer being away and you not having had any specific instructions as to what to do with that second carload, and you being on the verge of entering the service, placed it in the warehouse to the credit of the [350] Cal-Neva Lodge, is that correct? A. That is correct.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Pierino C. Barengo.)

Q. Now that was the carload you broke down for us in the price. I believe you said the original price of the whiskey per case was $24.44, is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. And then with the $1.20 state tax, the $1.20 handling charge that your firm charged and the other over-all expenses on the carload, increased the price from $24.44 to $27.73, is that true?

A. Eighty-nine cents a case freight and demurrage brings it to 89 cents, making a total of $27.73.

Q. Now let me ask you, Mr. Barengo, was that the actual financial set up or cost set up, insofar as the first carload was concerned; in other words, were the charges identical?

A. They were identical with the exception of $50 drayage charge that we charged.

Q. That was the charge for draying it from your establishment to the Nevada Transfer & Warehouse? A. That is correct.

Q. But I mean, counsel asked you with reference to the second carload which was turned over to the drayage company, the cost was $24.44 and showing an increase to $27.73, by reason of the charges, you recall that, do you?

A. Yes. [351]

Q. Now I am asking you did that hold as to the first carload also, the carload that was sold by you, namely, that each case cost $24.44, were the other charges identical with the exception there was that additional $50 for transferring from your company to the warehouse?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Pierino C. Barengo.)

A. We assume that the cost was identical, the bill went out at that price.

Q. You handled the money to buy that whiskey?

A. That is right.

Q. And paid the charges?

A. That is right.

Q. And did deduct your own handling charges?

A. That is right.

Q. And was identical up to that point, with the exception of the addition of $50 which you explained? A. That is correct.

Q. Now as to the first carload that arrived, Mr. Barengo, you having collected the money to purchase that whiskey and handle it, you know of your own knowledge that the whiskey was sold for exactly what it cost Mr. Remmer and there was no profit to Mr. Remmer, is that correct?

A. To my knowledge.

Q. I mean, you collected what was paid?

A. That is right. I billed it out.

Q. And as to the second carload, having turned it over to the [352] warehouse, you don't know what became of that? A. That is correct.

Q. You went into service the early part of the following year? A. That is correct.

Mr. Gillen: I think that is all, thank you.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Pierino C. Barengo.)

Redirect Examination

By Mr. Thompson:

Q. Mr. Barengo, as I recall your testimony, the actual amount of money that you received for the two carloads of whiskey from Mr. Remmer, that is, the 54 thousand dollars he paid you, plus the amounts paid you by the Bank Club, the Silver Dollar Bar and the Palace Club, was $80,343.50, is that correct?

A. And the 222 Club. $80,343.50.

Q. And after computing your charges on the two carloads, you found that the total amount of your charges was $62,604, is that right?

A. $62,604.

Q. And you then remitted the balance to Mr. Remmer by check which is in evidence in the amount of $17,739.50? A. That is correct.

Mr. Thompson: That's all.

Recross-Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Q. Mr. Barengo, the reason you remitted 17 thousand odd dollars to Mr. Remmer was that Mr. Remmer had deposited with you more than was necessary to cover the cost, isn't that correct?

A. That is correct. [353]

Q. And, by the way, I omitted asking you—I understood your testimony to be that you retained in your company 147 cases to secure you for any additional charges, the balance of the charges that were due your firm, is that correct?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Pierino C. Barengo.)

A. That is correct.

Q. And that was paid by the Bank Club when they took delivery of the 147 cases?

A. That is correct.

a witness on behalf of the plaintiff, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Will you state your name, please?

A. Patrick Mooney.

Q. Where do you reside, Mr. Mooney?

A. 800 So. Seventh Street, Reno.

Q. How long have you been a resident of Nevada? A. Since 1906.

Q. What is your present occupation, Mr. Mooney? A. I am retired.

Q. And what was your former occupation?

A. With the Internal Revenue Department for 15 years.

Q. Over what period of time were you with the Department? A. 1933, to August 31, 1948.

Q. And at that time you retired? [354]

A. Yes.

Q. And with what office of the Bureau of Internal Revenue were you associated?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Patrick A. Mooney.)

A. I was with the Internal Revenue Department.

Q. With what office were you, with the collector's office? A. With the collector's office.

Q. And what was your position in the collector's office?

A. I was deputy collector in Las Vegas from October, 1933, to January 1, 1946, deputy collector.

Q. Now are you acquainted with the defendant, Elmer Remmer? A. Yes.

Q. How long have you known him?

A. About '37.

Q. Since 1937? A. Yes.

Q. Are you acquainted with his wife, Helen Remmer? A. I met her once.

Q. Do you recall when that was?

A. That was about the year '45. I met her at one time, just introduced to her and that was all.

Q. That was the only time that you have ever met Mrs. Remmer? A. Right.

Q. Now in connection with your duties as a deputy collector, was it a part of your duties to make out income tax returns for those requesting that service? [355] A. Yes.

Q. Have you on any occasion made out any income tax returns for the defendant, Elmer Remmer? A. I have.

Q. Do you recall for what years?

A. In 1941, he came to me in front of the Golden Hotel in Reno and he——

Q. (Interrupting): I asked you for what years

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Patrick A. Mooney.)

you made out returns for him, if you recall, Mr. Mooney?

A. I think I made them out ever since, '41 to '47.

Q. Do you recall definitely that you made out a return for 1941? A. Yes.

Q. Was that return filed, if you know?

A. Yes.

Q. For the purpose of refreshing your recollection, I wish to state that a deputy collector has appeared here and stated that the first return filed since 1935, by Mr. Remmer, was filed for the calendar year 1942.

A. I don't know anything about the '35 return. I was in Las Vegas at that time.

Q. As I say, the first return since that time filed by Mr. Remmer was for the calendar year for 1942.

A. Well, it might have been '42. I will tell you the circumstances if it is permissible.

Q. We will come to that in just a moment. At any rate, after [356] you assisted in preparing the first return for him, you then continued to do so each year, is that correct?

A. Each year, right.

Q. And did you also assist in preparing the returns for his wife, Helen Remmer? A. No.

Q. Or in the name of Helen Remmer?

A. That is right.

Q. You did assist in preparing returns in the name of Helen Remmer, is that right?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Patrick A. Mooney.)

A. They split returns on the community property basis.

Q. Mr. Mooney, I am going to show you Government's Exhibit 9, which purports to be the income tax return of Elmer F. Remmer for the year 1942, which bears a preparation date of March 13, 1943, and ask you if that is a return which you assisted in preparing?

A. That is in typing. There is no writing of mine on there.

Q. Are you able to state whether or not that was one of the returns that you prepared?

A. It was for ten thousand dollars or a like amount, very close to it.

Q. I call your attention to the fact that the net income shown here, before division with his wife, is the sum of $10,915. A. That's right.

Q. Would that refresh your recollection that this is a return [357] which you prepared?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. I have here a like return, being Government's Exhibit 10, return of his wife, Helen L. Remmer, for 1942, prepared on the same date and showing the same income before division of $10,915, and ask you if that also then was prepared by you, to the best of your recollection?

A. To the best of my recollection, yes.

Q. Now will you state, Mr. Mooney, the circumstances which you were about to relate, under which you prepared these returns?

Mr. Avakian: Just a moment. That question is objected to as being based on facts which are not in evidence, because Mr. Mooney, in a prior explanation which he was about to make said he was referring to the first return he prepared and he thought it was for the year 1941, and there is no evidence in the record that this 1942 return is that first return. Mr. Mooney wasn't sure that it was 1942, or 1941, as the year for which he prepared a return.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Patrick A. Mooney.)

The Court: Objection is overruled.

Q. Now will you proceed, Mr. Mooney?

A. He met me in front of the Golden Hotel.

Q. Are you referring to Mr. Remmer now?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Proceed.

A. He met me in front of the Golden and he said, "I want to file [358] an income tax return." I says, I asked him what he wanted to put in as his occupation. He says, "Gaming," and I says, "How did you make this money?" He said, "I won it on the Kentucky Derby," and I says, "How much do you want to file?" He said, "I made $10,915," and he took no deductions of any kind, as I remember.

Q. Did he on that occasion show you any records of any kind? A. No records, not a thing.

Q. Was anything said on that occasion as to whether or not he had filed returns for previous years? A. Not a thing.

Q. What was that?

A. No reference to any previous years.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Patrick A. Mooney.)

Q. Now did you then on that occasion prepare returns for Mr. Remmer and his wife based upon the figure which he gave you?

A. I don't quite get you.

Q. Did you fill in a return with the figure that he gave you? A. Yes.

Q. And did you prepare a return for his wife, showing that as community income? A. Yes.

Q. Were you present when Mr. Remmer signed his return? A. Yes.

Q. I call your attention to the fact that on Government's Exhibit 10 the return for Helen Remmer, the signature is Helen L. [359] Remmer by Elmer Remmer? A. That's right.

Q. Was that signed in your presence?

A. Yes.

Q. And by whom? A. By Mr. Remmer.

Q. At that time you had, I take it, never seen Mrs. Remmer? A. No.

Q. Now after having prepared that return, did you each year thereafter prepare returns for Mrs. Remmer? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And where were those returns prepared?

A. I think in 1943, I am not sure, I got the information from Mr. Simmons in El Cerrito.

Q. Where, physically, did you prepare the returns?

A. I got the figures and prepared them in Reno.

Q. Where did you get the figures?

A. From Mr. Simmons and Willie Kyne. I think I got them in '43, from Mr. Simmons and Mr. Kyne. Mr. Kyne drove me over——

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Patrick A. Mooney.)

Q. (Interrupting): Just a minute. For '43, you mean for 1943 return or figures that you got during the year 1943?

A. The figures I got, yes.

Q. For 1943 return? A. Yes.

Q. Do you recall Mr. Simmons' first [360] name? A. I don't recall it, no.

Q. Was it George Simmons?

A. I don't think it was. I have some letters here.

Q. Was the name Lester Simmons?

A. I wouldn't be sure.

Q. Do you have something with you that would refresh your recollection?

A. I have some letters, I wrote them about tax matters.

Q. Would they assist you in recalling Mr. Simmons' first name? A. I think they would.

Q. Would you look at those then and tell us Mr. Simmons' first name?

A. It may be only the initials, I don't know. Mr. G. E. Simmons, San Pablo Avenue, El Cerrito.

Q. Mr. G. E. Simmons?

A. Yes. See if that is the correct initial.

Q. That is correct, sir. Now, Mr. Mooney, I am going to show you Government's Exhibit 7, the individual income tax return of Elmer F. Remmer for the year 1943, and I direct your attention specifically to the signature of the person preparing the same, and ask you if you prepared that return?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Patrick A. Mooney.)

A. This is my handwriting under Mr. Remmer's signature.

Q. Can you state that you prepared that return?

A. Yes, sir; that is my handwriting.

Q. And did you at the same time prepare a return in the name [361] of his wife for one-half interest in the income?

A. Yes, I believe that year I sent the return to Mrs. Remmer—I am not sure now—for signature. I think she may have signed it that particular year.

Q. Now what was the source of the figures which you placed in this 1943 return, Government's Exhibit 7?

A. It came from the 21 Club, as I remember it, in El Cerrito.

Q. Who gave you those figures?

A. Mr. Simmons, partnership return 1065.

Q. Did you, yourself, examine any books or records? A. None, whatsoever.

Q. Did you question any of the figures which were provided to you?

A. None at all. Didn't question anything.

Q. I observe, Mr. Mooney, that on this return, Government's Exhibit 7, you placed, I believe you say in your handwriting, the words, "Taxpayer's figures"? A. Yes, sir.

Q. By that are you referring to the fact that you saw no figures? A. Right.

Q. I show you Government's Exhibit 1, the individual income tax return of Elmer F. Remmer,

BLURRED COPY

for the calendar year 1944, and ask you if you prepared this return? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you prepare a like return, dividing the income, in the [362] name of Helen L. Remmer? I show you Government's Exhibit 2, being the individual income tax return for the year 1944, of Helen L. Remmer. A. Yes.

Q. Those are both in your writing?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were they signed in your presence, Mr. Mooney?

A. Mr. Remmer signed them in my presence.

Q. Now as to Mrs. Remmer's return, by whom was that signed?

A. By Mr. Remmer, I believe. I don't believe she ever signed the returns.

Q. Do you have a recollection as to whether or not Mr. Remmer signed this return for her?

A. Yes, he signed all returns.

Q. Now what was the source of the figures which you placed in those 1944 returns?

A. I think Willie Kyne couldn't give me the figures, he was in the navy, and I filed 1040ES with no payment. That is an estimate of 30 thousand dollars. I went to Mr. Remmer and asked him if I could have some money on the estimate and he said he was short of funds and couldn't pay anything right now. I asked the chief of the income tax division what we would do about it——

Q. (Interrupting): No, I asked you, Mr. Mooney, where you got the figures that went into that final return?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Patrick A. Mooney.)

A. On the estimate of 20 thousand dollars. [363]

Q. Whose estimate was it that the income was 20 thousand dollars?

A. Elmer F. Remmer and Helen L. Remmer.

Q. You didn't supply the figure? A. No.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, if I may be permitted to interrupt. I believe the prosecutor interrupted Mr. Mooney when he was giving an explanation as to when and how this estimate was filed and I think after Mr. Campbell interrupted him, he began from the 1040 estimate.

The Court: Will you ask the question again and if the witness desires to make an explanation, he may do so. Will you ask the question again?

Q. What was the source of the 20 thousand dollar income figure which is placed in that return?

A. The 21 Club at El Cerrito.

Q. Who supplied the figure of 20 thousand dollars?

A. I think Mr. Remmer and myself agreed on that figure.

Q. You say you agreed upon it together?

A. We agreed tentatively on that 1040ES, the estimate. I asked him how much he was going to make and he said around 20 thousand dollars, I think.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor——

The Court (Interceding): Have you any further explanation you want to make, Mr. Mooney, on that question? [364] Have you answered it to your satisfaction, on this last question?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Patrick A. Mooney.)

A. I can't hear.

The Court: I just want to know if you have completed the answer. Counsel has indicated that he feels that you wanted to make a further explanation, so have you answered it as fully as you desire?

A. The answer I made in full is all right. I believe the 1944 return was a 1040ES estimate. There is some correspondence, I believe, in the file some place that will show that I had some question. I went to Mr. Simmons that year to find the 1065, which is the partnership return, at El Cerrito and it was in the hands of Mr. Lewis and some other gentleman. Mr. Lewis was the former Collector of Internal Revenue in San Francisco and he had an office on Montgomery Street, and I couldn't get the return, so I had to file it before it was delinquent.

Q. Did you then discuss it with Mr. Remmer?

A. I don't believe I did.

Q. When did you first discuss that return with Mr. Remmer?

A. When he signed it. He paid the money. I believe he paid half the money.

Q. I call your attention to the fact that this return bears the stamp "Received with remittance, April 13, 1945."

A. I think he had an extension.

Q. Yes, but I call your attention to the remittance stamp, [365] "April 13, 1945, Collector of Internal Revenue, District of Nevada."

A. Is that the full amount of the tax?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Patrick A. Mooney.)

Q. That would indicate that there still remained a balance due at that time? A. Yes, sir.

Q. But was that the date that you discussed with Mr. Remmer this 20 thousand dollar figure and he signed the return?

Mr. Gillen: Just a moment. I am becoming a little confused on this. I first understood that counsel was asking about the 1943 return which Mr. Mooney identified as an estimate.

Mr. Campbell: No, 1944.

Mr. Gillen: I should have said 1944 return, not 1943, that Mr. Mooney called an estimate and suddenly, apparently, the return itself has come into the picture and I am trying to follow it, whether the discussion about the 20 thousand dollars took place at the time the estimate was agreed upon or whether it was discussed at the time the actual estimate itself was filed and part payment paid on it.

Mr. Campbell: No, I think you misunderstood me, Mr. Gillen. He was shown Plaintiff's Exhibit 1, the return for 1944. It is 1944 return.

Mr. Gillen: That is the actual return?

Mr. Campbell: That is correct, which shows figure of 20 thousand dollars filed on a CP basis on the face of the [366] return.

(Discussion between counsel.)

Mr. Campbell: Possibly I can straighten it out by a question or two. It is a difficult situation.

Q. I will show you again, Mr. Mooney, this

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Patrick A. Mooney.)

Government's Exhibit 1 and ask you if that is the return that you referred to as having originally been prepared by you?

Mr. Gillen: That is 1944 return?

Mr. Campbell: That is the 1944 return.

A. This is my writing.

Q. Now is it your recollection that you prepared some document or estimate prior to preparing that?

A. I disremember.

Q. I beg your pardon?

A. I don't remember. I may have——

Q. You think you may have some memoranda on the subject?

A. I believe there is something here.

Mr. Campbell: May I suggest the morning recess? Will you examine your records for that while we have recess, Mr. Mooney?

(Jury and alternate jurors admonished and recess taken at 10:55 a.m.)

MR. MOONEY

resumes the witness stand on further

Direct Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Now, Mr. Mooney, just before the recess I was showing you this 1944 return of Elmer Remmer, which is Government's Exhibit No. 1. This return, which is on a community property basis, shows under the item, "Your Income," "Various self-employed $20,000," then divides the income as between the husband and wife, $10,000 each shows a tax liability of $2,570, with a payment based on declaration of estimated tax of $1,500 and a balance due of $1,070, which was paid on April 13, 1945, whereupon interest was assessed. At that time you stated that an estimate had been filed and that you believed you had some information regarding it, that you would examine your files for that purpose. Have you done so? (Witness hands counsel paper.) The record will show that the witness has handed me what purports to be a carbon copy of a letter, which I will have marked for identification as 68 for identification.

Mr. Gillen: No objection to this being offered in evidence. I might state, however, that we do have the original signed letter, of counsel would like to offer that instead, on the letterhead of the Treasury Department and signed by Mr. Mooney.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Patrick A. Mooney.)

Mr. Campbell: Yes, under representation of counsel, we will accept the stipulation and let the record show that counsel has produced the original of the carbon copy which Mr. [368] Mooney has produced, which will be offered as government's Exhibit 68.

The Court: It may be admitted in evidence, Exhibit 68.

Q. Now, Mr. Mooney, I observed that on March 20, 1945—and I am reading from plaintiff's Exhibit 68—you wrote Mr. Remmer as follows: (Reads Exhibit 68.) Do you recall having written him that letter? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And showing you again plaintiff's Exhibit No. 1, the 1944 return, is that the 1040 that you sent him in the letter of March 20, which I have just read to you? A. I believe it is.

Q. Now did Mr. Remmer ever thereafter produce to you any data from his different places, so that a proper amended return might be filed?

A. To the best of my knowledge, no. 1946—we will come to that later.

Q. Yes, but so far as the year 1944 is concerned, you never received any additional information, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. I have previously shown you the return of Helen Remmer for the year 1944 and ask you if your testimony is the same with regard to that return? A. Absolutely.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Patrick A. Mooney.)

The Court: That is Exhibit 2? [369]

Mr. Campbell: Exhibit 2, yes.

Q. Showing you government's Exhibit 3, the individual income tax return for the calendar year 1945 of Elmer F. Remmer, I will ask you if you prepared this return? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And referring to government's Exhibit 4, did you prepare a similar return in the name of Helen L. Remmer? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were these returns signed in your presence?

A. Mr. Remmer signed them in my presence.

Q. You say Mr. Remmer signed them—do you refer to both returns?

A. I believe both—give me Helen's and I will tell you.

Q. I am handing the witness plaintiff's Exhibit 4.

Q. This is Mr. Remmer's writing?

Q. That is Mr. Remmer's writing?

A. Yes.

Q. Let me ask you this, what was the source of the figures which you placed in this return?

A. I got them from the 1065 partnership return.

Q. Partnership return of whom?

A. Of the Menlo Club and the various other clubs.

Q. I call your attention to the fact that there is attached a typewritten schedule reading as follows:

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Patrick A. Mooney.)

(Reads schedule.) Now who supplied you with those figures or that table? [370]

A. Mr. Maundrell, the bookkeeper in the partnership return. I never saw any books.

Q. Mr. Maundrell is the bookkeeper for whom?

A. For Mr. Remmer.

Q. Did you examine any books or records of any kind? A. Not a thing.

Q. Where was it that you secured these figures?

A. At 50 Mason Street, San Francisco.

Q. Did you go to San Francisco for that purpose? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And at whose expense?

A. At Mr. Remmer's. He gave me the actual expenses of my trip and I took my vacation time off to make the returns, not on government time.

Q. You did that on your own time, is that correct? A. On my own time.

Q. At this time I will show you government's Exhibit 5, the individual income tax return of Elmer F. Remmer for the year 1946 and ask you if you prepared this return as well as plaintiff's Exhibit 6, the return of Helen L. Remmer, for the year 1946? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who supplied you with the figures which were placed in that return?

A. Mr. Maundrell. [371]

Q. Did you yourself examine any books or records in connection with the figures which went into that return?

A. Nothing but the partnership return, 1065.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Patrick A. Mooney.)

Q. You accepted the figures which were given to you? A. Absolutely.

Q. And where were those returns prepared?

A. As far as I know, I prepared them in Reno. I got the figures in San Francisco.

Q. Under a similar circumstance to that of the preceding year? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were those returns signed in your presence?

A. Mr. Remmer signed them, yes.

Q. Will you examine the return of Helen Remmer and state whether or not that was signed in your presence? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And by whom was it signed?

A. Mr. Remmer, both of them.

Q. Did you question any of the figures that were given to you in connection with these returns?

A. There were three or four purchases Mr. Remmer spoke to me about.

Q. Did you question any figures? A. No.

Q. You understood, did you not, Mr. Mooney, that when I refer to examining records, I refer to any books of account, [372] cancelled checks, bank statements, anything of that nature?

A. Not a thing. All the figures are derived from partnership returns. I never looked at the books.

Q. And those partnership returns were shown you by whom?

A. Mr. Maundrell and Mr. Simmons in El Cerrito on two occasions, I believe.

Q. On the first two occasions I believe Mr. Simmons and Mr. Kyne?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Patrick A. Mooney.)

A. Mr. Kyne, he was in the navy, I don't know when. This one year, the 1944 year, is the one that Mr. Kyne wasn't there. He used to supply me with all the information.

Q. In 1945 and 1946 the figures were supplied to you by Mr. Maundrell, is that correct?

A. Mr. Maundrell, yes, and there was another—Mr. Maundrell only kept the accounts of the Menlo Club, I believe, and there was another accountant used to take care of the other places by the name of Atkin. I just met him once.

Q. Did he supply you with figures of the other places, or did Mr. Maundrell?

A. I disremember. I met him in the office just once, I believe. I understand he has since died.

Q. Now, Mr. Mooney, you have been subpoenaed as secretary and treasurer of the Mountain City Consolidated Copper Company, a corporation, to produce here certain stock transfer records relative to the issuance of certain shares of stock of [373] that corporation. Have you produced those records?

A. I think I have them.

Q. Will you produce those, please.

A. What do you want to find out from the records, Mr. Remmer's connection?

Q. As the question has been asked, yes, sir.

(Witness produces records.)

Mr. Campbell: May I inquire if counsel require that these be marked for identification or may they be viewed and oral testimony given and the records returned to Mr. Mooney?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Patrick A. Mooney.)

Mr. Gillen: We would be willing to stipulate that they may be viewed and orally testified from, and I think we would be willing to produce, if it is desired, the original stock certificates.

Mr. Campbell: I do not think it would be necessary to bring the original certificates so long as we have the testimony.

The Court: I understand it has been stipulated that oral testimony of the exhibit can be used in place of the record itself, and the exhibit will be marked for identification next in order.

Mr. Campbell: My understanding was, your Honor—well yes, it can be marked for identification and we ask it be withdrawn and returned.

The Court: Very well, 69, the stock book. [374]

Mr. Campbell: Which would be the stock book of the Mountain City Consolidated Copper Company.

Q. Mr. Mooney, were certain shares of stock of the Mountain City Consolidated Copper Company sold to the defendant, Elmer F. Remmer?

A. Six thousand shares.

Q. And upon what date were those shares of stock sold to him?

A. The 29th of August, 1946.

Q. And what amount of money did he pay for them? A. Forty cents a share, $2400.

Q. Did I understand $2400?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Patrick A. Mooney.)

A. Right; 40 cents a share.

Q. And on what date did he make that payment?

A. I believe the same date.

Q. That is to say, August 29, 1946?

A. I believe it was the same day.

Q. And did you receive that money from him in your capacity as secretary and treasurer of the Mountain City Consolidated Copper Company?

A. Yes.

Q. Were shares of stock issued to Mr. Remmer in return for that $2400? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And are those shares of stock still outstanding in Mr. Remmer's name, according to the records of your corporation? [375]

A. On the 3rd of February, 1947, he became dissatisfied and he said, "You might sell them."

Q. That is not my question. Are they or are they not outstanding at this time?

A. They are outstanding in Mr. Remmer's name.

Q. And were they outstanding in his name as of the 30th day of December, 1946?

A. Yes, to the best of my knowledge.

Q. Or the 31st of December, 1946?

A. Yes.

Mr. Campbell: If the Court please, a subpoena has been issued to one Lawrence Semenza of Reno, Nevada, for the production of certain records, which I will ask to be produced at this time and deposited with the clerk of the court. Is Mr. Semenza present?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Patrick A. Mooney.)

Mr. Avakian: May we inquire what the records are? Perhaps we can make them available.

Mr. Campbell: The subpoena calls for the following records of the B & R Smoke Shoppe; general ledger and general journal, receipts and disbursements record March 1, 1943, to January 31, 1946, and receipts and disbursements record January 1, 1946, to December 31, 1946. The following records of 110 Eddy Street: general ledger, cash receipts and disbursements November 1, 1942, to January 31, 1946, cash receipts and disbursements January 1, 1946, to December 31, 1946. The following records [376] of the Transit Smoke Shop, 85 First Street: November and December, 1946, cash receipts and disbursements. The following records from the Menlo Club: receipts and disbursements 1947 and general ledger, cash receipts and disbursements 1946, Tiny's Restaurant 1946 receipts and disbursements, 1945 receipts and disbursements bar and restaurant, and 1946 receipts and disbursements bar. File on inventory of the following: B & R Smoke Shoppe, daily diary 1942, daily diary 1943, daily diary 1945, daily diary 1946; (7) list of cashier checks bought by B & R Smoke Shoppe; following records of Cal-Neva Lodge: combined journal and ledger, 1937 to 1947, inclusive; pay roll records, 1937 to 1946, inclusive, and all invoices, check stubs, cancelled checks, bank statements and game sheets for the years 1937 and 1946, inclusive. Check in the amount of $7,724.11 dated August 28, 1946, drawn on the Collector of Internal Revenue, from which check signature has been torn; check No. 227, amount $2,400, dated August 31, 1946, drawn to Mountain City Consolidated Copper Company, signed by James B. Jeffers; check in amount of $5,324, dated August 21st, drawn to the order of Collector of Internal Revenue.

Mr. Avakian: May I inquire of counsel whether, in connection with cross-examination of Mr. Mooney, he wants all those documents or whether for the purpose of this direct examination he desires only the last three checks he mentioned at this moment? [377]

Mr. Campbell: Of course, I desire all the records subpoenaed of Mr. Semenza. For immediate purposes, however, I would be satisfied with the last three checks.

Mr. Avakian: May I suggest Mr. Semenza be sworn and questioned as to his knowledge of the whereabouts of those three checks?

Mr. Campbell: I think that should be done outside the presence of the jury.

Mr. Avakian: But if he is going to be questioned regarding this case, it should be in the presence of the jury.

The Court: I think when a subpoena has been served and it appears the subpoena is not complied with for some reason or other, I don't know, because Mr. Semenza announced he doesn't have the records, he has not produced them, that any investigation of the matter should be outside the presence of the jury, so we will excuse the jury.

Mr. Avakian: Before the jury is excused, may I first take exception to your Honor's ruling?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

The Court: It is not necessary. You can have exception to any ruling the court makes at any time and it is so understood.

Mr. Avakian: May we ask the Court to instruct the jury to disregard the comments made on this matter in their presence? [378]

The Court: I have already informed the jury, and I think it is not necessary to do it every time some remark is made by counsel and the Court, but I will do it again. Any exchanges that have taken place in this court room, from the very beginning of this trial all through to the end, between counsel, remarks by counsel, exchanges between the Court and counsel, remarks by the Court, are not evidence in this case and you will be finally instructed. You have already been informed, in your examination as to your qualifications to become jurors, that it is your duty, and will be your duty, to decide the case entirely upon the evidence and nothing else, so remarks by the court, remarks by counsel, are not evidence and the Court has not, and will not at any time indicate any idea as to how you should decide the case on any question. So the matter is entirely in your hands and to be decided only upon the evidence produced from the mouths of the witnesses and the documents which are admitted in evidence.

LAWRENCE J. SEMENZA

being duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Will you state your name, please?

A. Lawrence J. Semenza.

Q. Mr. Semenza, what is your business or occupation? A. Certified public accountant.

Q. You are now, and have been for some time, employed by the defendant, Elmer F. Remmer?

A. I have.

Q. And you have also for some time been the accountant for Cal-Neva, Inc.? A. I have.

Q. And as such you have had in your possession at various times various of the records referred to in this subpoena, is that right? A. I have.

Q. Now, is it not a fact that on July 11, 1949, there were delivered to you, at your request and by representative of the Bureau of Internal Revenue and upon what purports to be a receipt listing certain of the records set forth in this subpoena?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. For this purpose I will show you the yellow paper headed, "Records given to Semenza & Kottinger"—is that your partner? [380]

A. Yes.

Q. "7-11-49," is that in your handwriting?

A. It is.

(Jury present, admonished and excused.)

(In the absence of the jury.)

Mr. Campbell: Now, if the Court please, I wish to state to the Court that apparently there is some misunderstanding, at least as to the location of three of the items called for in the subpoena issued to Mr. Semenza, and that is under subdivision (8), the three checks called for, check in the amount of $7,724.11, drawn on the Collector of Internal Revenue, from which the signature has been torn; check No. 227, in the amount of $2,400, drawn to the Mountain City Consolidated Copper Company and signed by Mr. Jeffers, and check for $5,324, dated August 1, 1946, drawn to the Collector of Internal Revenue. Mr. Semenza informs me that he still has in his possession receipt for a number of checks which were turned over by him to a Revenue agent. That Revenue agent was present and he has been interviewed as to the records in his letter of [381] transmittal, showing that the checks set forth on that list, as well as other matters with respect to Cal-Neva, transmitted to the Reno office of the Internal Revenue agent's office for him to use and then to be restored to Mr. Semenza. Apparently certain of the records involved were returned to Mr. Semenza. We are unable, however, to ascertain definitely that these checks were. Mr. Semenza says he has been unable to locate them in his possession and although a large box and records were given to him, that he had inspected them as late as last Saturday and that those checks were not among those transmittals. We have immediately set in motion investigation to determine if they are still within the possession somewhere of the Bureau of Internal Revenue. However, we have either interviewed or spoken by telephone to every one that we could consider would be concerned in the matter and have been unable to locate those three items, so that is the position in which we find ourselves and I wish to state that frankly to the Court. I think Mr. Semenza, as I say, has a receipt for certain checks which he states were not returned to him and I have no reason to doubt Mr. Semenza's statement in that regard.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Lawrence J. Semenza.)

Mr. Avakian: Now, if the Court please, we have in our possession a newspaper clipping, which purports to contain photostatic copies of these three checks, and subject to a proper explanation as to the inability to locate the actual checks themselves, we would be agreeable to the use of these [382] newspaper photostats in lieu of the originals. However, we do feel that these matters should be brought to the Court's attention. It is my understanding that approximately ten days before Mr. Semenza was served with the subpoena in this case, he had transferred the various documents, which are called for there, with the exception of these three checks, which he did not have, to Mr. Lohse, who had just come into the case and wanted to become familiar with this. In other words, shortly after the subpoena was served, and about one week before this trial commenced, Mr. Semenza informed Mr. Thompson of the prosecution that all records in his possession called for in the subpoena had been transferred to Mr. Lohse's possession ten days or so before and that he did not have possession of them and could not produce them in court. Now, in view of that, we would like to assign as wilfull conduct on the part of the prosecution to his action in requesting, in the presence of the jury, that Mr. Semenza, whom they knew to be the accountant of the defendant, to produce the records. We feel that was a matter that was improper conduct on the part of the prosecution, which could only have the effect of creating in the minds of the jury the impression that Mr. Semenza's inability to produce these records was the fault of the defense, when they knew in advance he did not have them when they subpoenaed them and when they did not choose to issue a subpoena to the man whom they knew did have possession. [383]

(Testimony of Lawrence J. Semenza.)

The Court: Wait a minute—let me see if I get this picture. Some one in the Internal Revenue gave Mr. Semenza the custody of the records.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Lawrence J. Semenza.)

Mr. Avakian: Not these three checks, your Honor. We are talking about these three checks. Mr. Semenza, who had possession of them originally, several years ago, turned these checks over to the custody of the Internal Revenue and the Internal Revenue gave him a receipt and that is the last he has seen of them.

The Court: There is nothing for the Court to decide. You can assign any matter as misconduct, that is your privilege.

Mr. Avakian: That is a part of my statement to the Court. Secondly, this matter has been raised before the jury under circumstances which we believe the prosecution could have avoided. In other words, they knew that Mr. Semenza did not have these records when they, in the presence of the jury and knowing he was the defendant's accountant, called upon him to produce them. We therefore feel that the Court should permit the true facts as to these missing checks to be brought to the attention of the jury, to remove from the minds of the jury any implications as to the defense being responsible for the absence of the records and we, accordingly, request your Honor to permit that showing to be made in the presence of the jury to that purpose. [384]

Mr. Campbell: I might state, your Honor, we are discussing three checks out of a vast quantity of records. Mr. Thompson, I might state, informs me that he has no recollection of any such communication as counsel has referred to.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Lawrence J. Semenza.)

Mr. Avakian: We would like to get Mr. Semenza's sworn testimony on that point, if there is any doubt about it.

The Court: I have no idea that counsel on either side of this case would be guilty of any such misconduct. Those gentlemen with whom I am personally acquainted I feel certain would not be wilfully guilty of any such conduct and I do not think any of those gentlemen with whom I am not well acquainted would be, even including those from San Francisco.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, the point is, for whatever purpose it may have been, the impression has been left with the jury.

The Court: I do not think counsel will have any objection, and I am sure you will have that opportunity, when Mr. Semenza appears before the jury, I will allow you to make such showing.

Mr. Avakian: We feel we would be deprived of the right to overcome that impression in the minds of the jury unless it is done immediately because the impression is there and we feel that impression should be overcome immediately. Mr. Semenza may not be on the stand for another month, we don't know. [385]

The Court: When the jury returns, if you want to call Mr. Semenza, you may do so.

Mr. Avakian: For the purpose of making that explanation.

The Court: There is no objection, Mr. Campbell?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Lawrence J. Semenza.)

Mr. Campbell: I think the statement, however, should be made by the Court.

The Court: I think at this time you ought to make a statement so your statement will be in the record.

Mr. Campbell: I am willing to do it; however, as I said, I think it would be preferable that the Court make a statement rather than an advocate of either side make a statement, because there is apparently some feeling in the matter.

Mr. Avakian: Our position is based entirely upon fear of the impression that will be left with the jury, your Honor.

The Court: That could be done just by questioning Mr. Semenza.

Mr. Avakian: And I understand we will have the opportunity to do that?

The Court: Yes, you will.

Mr. Campbell: May I interrogate Mr. Semenza concerning these other records?

The Court: Yes, sir.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, if counsel is going to go into all other matters, which I understand are not needed now for Mr. Mooney's examination, it might be we will not be able to resume [386] with Mr. Mooney today, in view of his age and physical condition. I wonder if that part can be deferred?

The Court: We must try to cover some of this ground.

Q. (By Mr. Campbell): Mr. Semenza, in addition to the three checks you were requested to produce here a vast number of other records. I believe items 1 to 5 consisted of records which has been placed in your possession by the Bureau of Internal Revenue and for which you gave the receipt or memoranda which have been marked for identification. Can you state, if you will, the course that those records took from your hands?

A. After I received them and brought them to Reno from my office——

Q. You received them when? When was it you received them?

A. In San Francisco—I don't know what the date was on the statement that you showed me.

Q. May I have that. I hand you this dated July 11, 1949, at which time, at your request, I believe you were given the financial records of the B & R Smoke Shoppe, general ledger and general journal, receipts and disbursements record March 1, 1943, to January 31, 1946, receipts and disbursements record January 1, 1946, to December 31, 1946, the following records of 110 Eddy Street: general ledger, cash receipts and disbursements, November 1, 1942, to January 31, 1946, and cash receipts and disbursements January 1, 1946, to December 31, 1946; following records of Transit Smoke Shop: November and December, 1946, [387] cash receipts and disbursements; following records of the Menlo Club: receipts and disbursements, 1947, and general ledger, including only a few recap sheets, cash receipts and disbursements, 1946; Tiny's Restaurant 1946 receipts and disbursements, 1945 receipts and disbursements bar and restaurant and 1946 receipts and disbursements bar, file on inventory. Is that all the records that were given to you at that time?

A. No, I also received the B & R Smoke Shoppe.

Q. Those were daily diaries for 1942, 1943, 1945 and 1946, that is correct? A. That is right.

Q. At the time you received those from the Bureau of Internal Revenue, you left that memorandum and agreed to restore them to the Bureau of Internal Revenue whenever they were required, is that correct?

A. I agreed to return them to the Bureau of Internal Revenue. Subsequently Mr. Weaver made up a list of cashier checks listed under Item 7 to me, so I received Item 7 as well.

Q. And your agreement with Mr. Weaver was that you would return them to him, is that correct?

A. When my purpose was served.

Q. When your purpose was served, you would return them? A. That is right.

Q. And you stated your purpose was to prepare returns? A. No. [388]

Q. Or to make certain audits with respect to your employment?

A. It is my recollection that in December and November, prior to my receiving these records, I was employed, along with the firm of Thatcher, Woodburn and Forman, to prepare computation in tax in answer to matter issued by the Treasury Department.

Q. And you were using them for that purpose?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Lawrence J. Semenza.)

A. No. Subsequently to the filing, negotiations were carried on with your office, as I recall, to come to a conclusion on the actual amount of tax owed by Mr. Remmer. In connection with those negotiations it was necessary to obtain the records from the government and we began examination of the records in order to determine what liability Mr. Remmer might have. Subsequently, other attorneys entered the case that were employed by Mr. Remmer and it was understood that another accountant in San Francisco named Nathan J. Friedman was to be employed to assist in it because the attorneys decided that, in view of the fact Mr. Friedman was in San Francisco and would be able to work directly with their office, the records would be sent to him and he would take care of all matters in California and I would retain the records on Cal-Neva and take care of the Cal-Nevada matters. I sent the records on to Mr. Friedman and——

Q. (Interrupting): May I ask you, at all times that you have related, and up until the present time, you have had on file with the Bureau of Internal Revenue a power of attorney as Mr. Remmer's representative, have you not? [389]

A. I have.

Q. All right, proceed.

A. Subsequently Mr. Friedman withdrew from the case and turned the records over to Mr. Golden and Mr. Gillen in San Francisco.

Q. You are referring to the attorneys?

A. Attorneys for the defendant. I was subpoenaed to appear before the grand jury in Carson City——

Q. Pardon me just a minute. Prior to that, Mr. Semenza, is it not a fact that Mr. Weaver visited your office in Reno for the purpose of obtaining the return of the records, spoke to your partner, ascertained that you were in San Francisco and talked to you by telephone there relative to the return of the records, in order that they might be used before the grand jury?

A. That is true. In fact, Mr. Weaver spoke to me over the telephone.

Q. Yes, that is what I said.

A. That is right, and I informed him that I did not have the records, the records were in San Francisco, but I would attempt to obtain them and appear with them at the grand jury hearing.

Q. You were subsequently subpoenaed to appear with those records, were you not?

A. That is true. I contacted Mr. Golden's office and was advised [390] that Mr. Golden was absent and was in the service at the moment, so I called Mr. Avakian in Oakland and told him that I desired to have the records, as I had been requested to return them by Mr. Weaver. Furthermore, I had been subpoenaed to appear before the grand jury with the records and that I did not have them in my possession, I would like to get them in order to appear. Mr. Avakian informed me that he had not discussed the matter with Mr. Golden and would advise me later on whether they would be returned to me or not. I was subsequently advised that they could not return them to me, so I appeared before the grand jury and made that statement.

Q. Now, have they been in your possession since that time? A. At intervals they have.

Q. And upon what date was this subpoena served upon you? A. The 16th of November.

Q. Were they in your possession at that time?

A. They were not.

Q. In whose possession were they at that time?

A. They were delivered to Mr. Lohse's office approximately a week before that.

Q. And were they subsequently returned from Mr. Lohse's office to your office?

A. They have never been.

Q. Have you had them in your possession since that time?

A. No. I have had occasion to look at them in Mr. Lohse's [391] office.

Q. So far as you know then at all times since that time they have been in Mr. Lohse's office?

A. Yes.

Q. And your examination has taken place there?

A. It has.

Q. Does that also include the records of the Cal-Neva, Inc., other than the three checks involved here, that is to say, the combined ledger and journal 1937 and 1947, inclusive, pay roll records 1937 and 1946, inclusive, and all invoices, check stubs, cancelled checks, bank statements, gaming sheets for the years 1937 to 1946, inclusive, with the exception of the 35 or 40 which you state have never been returned to you? A. That is true.

Q. And they were all turned over to Mr. Lohse about a week, you say, prior to the service of this subpoena upon you? A. They were.

Mr. Campbell: I think that is all, your Honor. I wanted your Honor to have the entire picture, inasmuch as the controversy which has come up, to which reference has been made by Mr. Avakian, concerns at this time only some three checks.

The Court: All of the records and items, except these three checks, have been accounted for and are available now?

Mr. Campbell: Well, they are not available to us, [392] apparently, your Honor, if they are in the possession of Mr. Lohse, having been put out of Mr. Semenza's possession about a week prior to the service of this subpoena, although they were in his possession both before and after his appearance before the grand jury.

The Court: Those records were turned over to Mr. Semenza by Mr. Weaver of the Internal Revenue Department and you turned them over to Mr. Friedman?

Mr. Semenza: Yes.

The Court: Did you have any authority from Mr. Weaver to turn those documents over to any one else, to let them out of your custody?

Mr. Semenza: I have no authority from Mr. Weaver.

The Court: Did you have any authority from any one connected with the Internal Revenue Department?

Mr. Semenza: No.

The Court: Well, you ask that those records be produced to you, Mr. Campbell?

Mr. Campbell: Yes, your Honor.

The Court: Will you produce them, Mr. Lohse?

Mr. Avakian: We would want to make the record in the presence of the jury.

The Court: Well, we will make the record right now. You may produce the records, Mr. Lohse.

Mr. Lohse: May I confer with counsel, your Honor? [393]

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Lohse: If your Honor please, may I ask Mr. Gillen, who is one of associate counsel, to respond to the Court's inquiry, whether I will produce the records?

The Court: No, I will ask you to produce the records, Mr. Lohse.

Mr. Gillen: I just——

The Court: I am asking him and in a moment I am going to order him. I am just asking Mr. Lohse to produce the records and if he does not, I am going to order him to.

Mr. Lohse: Your Honor please, may I have your indulgence?

The Court: Yes, very well.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor——

The Court: I am not going to listen to anything.

Mr. Avakian: I just want to make an inquiry.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Lawrence J. Semenza.)

The Court: There is no need for an inquiry. It is plain. Certain records are missing and I order Mr. Lohse to produce them.

Mr. Avakian: They were defendant's records that were turned over voluntarily by Mr. Kyne to the Internal Revenue. They are personal records, is your Honor demanding to produce personal records of this witness?

The Court: I am going to demand any records that were in this subpoena to be turned over by Mr. Lohse to [394] the government.

Mr. Gillen: You are ordering Mr. Lohse to turn over to the government the defendant's records?

The Court: I have not gotten to that point, counsel.

Mr. Gillen: You are requesting Mr. Lohse to turn over defendant's records to the government?

The Court: I don't know whose records they are.

Mr. Gillen: I am telling whose they are.

The Court: I understand they are records that were obtained from the Bureau of Internal Revenue from Mr. Weaver by Mr. Semenza.

Mr. Gillen: Mr. Weaver who originally obtained them voluntarily from——

The Court: I don't know, but they were turned over to the Bureau of Internal Revenue and given to Mr. Semenza on receipt. Here we have a subpoena duces tecum and it is met by a statement that the witness, in whose custody the exhibits were placed by Mr. Weaver, tells us that they were turned over to one of the attorneys for the defendant.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Lawrence J. Semenza.)

Mr. Gillen: May I respectfully suggest to your Honor, has your Honor the entire story?

The Court: I would like to have the story.

Mr. Gillen: Which we are trying to give your Honor. We believe you would see the entire picture in a different [395] light. That is what we are trying to enlighten your Honor now. Would your Honor like to hear it?

The Court: Yes, I will be glad to.

Mr. Avakian: I would like to make a statement.

The Court: Well, I would like to hear from you, Mr. Campbell, on the question.

Mr. Campbell: To be perfectly fair about the situation, it is the contention of the government that all of these various enterprises which, with the exception of Cal-Neva, Inc., which is a corporation, were partnerships, in which the defendant here, Elmer Remmer, was a partner, and in that respect they are the personal records of the defendant, Elmer Remmer. They were not originally obtained by the special agent from the defendant, Elmer Remmer, but were obtained from third parties. I feel it is only fair that that statement be made to the Court.

Mr. Avakian: Thank you, Mr. Campbell, and I am sure the Court is aware of the constitutional rights involved in a situation of this type, and it is in a desire to make all these facts available to the Court, so the Court will understand the legal and constitutional rights of the defendant that we desire to explore this fully and we appreciate Mr.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Lawrence J. Semenza.)

Campbell's statement of their position with respect to it. I am sure Mr. Campbell was aware of the danger of the prosecution's case in the event he would require by compulsion to produce these records. If I may make just one brief statement [396] before questioning Mr. Semenza, I would like to do that, your Honor, is that permissible?

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Avakian: The whole situation with respect to these records is this: the government obtained from parties other than Mr. Remmer records of the various businesses in which the prosecution now says Mr. Remmer was either sole owner or partner. A question may develop during the course of the trial as to whether there was unlawful search and seizure. That is not before us now. A portion of these documents—not all, only a portion—mentioned in the subpoena were subsequently made available by the Bureau after they were taken, to Mr. Semenza for the purpose of enabling him to advise the attorneys with whom he was working as to the accounting features of this case. The balance of those records are still in the possession of the government, as your Honor knows from the motions that were made prior to trial here, in which we were denied opportunity to examine our own records still in the possession of the government. We are in the position then of the government still refusing to make available to us the balance of our records, which are our property, asking us to make available to them the portion which we do have and which we desperately need every night for the preparation of this case.

BLURRED COPY

With respect to the Cal-Neva corporate records, we will be very happy to make those available to the prosecution, in [397] view of the fact there are no constitutional problems involved with respect to corporate records. Those records are partly in the court room and partly in Mr. Lohse's office. They are very bulky, contain several boxes, we need to refer to them during the course of this trial. We have no objection to the prosecution likewise referring to those corporate Cal-Neva records, subject to our having equal opportunity with them and if they would like to examine them in Mr. Lohse's office during the day while we are in court, we will be glad to do that, but we would like to have them available to us at night, which is the only time we have for working. Inasmuch as we do not have the three checks that are missing, on proper explanation to the jury as to what happened to the originals, we are agreeable to the use of the photostat in lieu of the originals. I would now like, with that brief statement, to question Mr. Semenza as to matters Mr. Campbell questioned him during his examination.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Avakian:

Q. Mr. Semenza, at the time arrangements were made with you between you and Mr. Weaver, on or about July 11, 1949, for the return to you at that time of a portion of these records listed on the subpoena, did Mr. Weaver and the other representatives of the Bureau also have in their possession other records of these same businesses that are listed in the subpoena? A. They did. [398]

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Lawrence J. Semenza.)

Q. Can you give us an idea as to the volume of those records, in size, were they in various boxes, cartons?

A. I can't tell you how many. There were a number of boxes in the room and I went through them with Mr. Weaver and selected these items which are listed here.

Q. And the items which remained with Mr. Weaver, were they sufficient in volume to fill a number of boxes and cartons?

A. Well, I assume they would fill three or four boxes or more. I can't recall exactly.

Q. Now, your purpose at that time in selecting these particular records to bring back to Reno with you was to enable you to consult with Thatcher, Woodburn & Forman regarding negotiations for possible settlement in the case, is that right?

A. That is true.

Q. At that time there was no indictment of Mr. Remmer? A. No.

Q. And at that time the case had not, so far as you know, been referred to the Department of Justice to consider prosecution, is that correct?

A. Well, I wasn't aware of it.

Q. And your purpose then was simply to try to arrive at a settlement of the case without litigation, is that right? A. That's true.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Lawrence J. Semenza.)

Q. Now, you stated that shortly before the grand jury met in connection with this case, you contacted Mr. Golden and me. [399] Was that approximately in April of 1951, late March or early April?

A. I don't recall when the grand jury met.

Q. It was a few days before the indictment was returned? A. That is right.

Q. When you learned Mr. Golden was in the service, you contacted me?

A. That is correct.

Q. And I told you I was newly associated with the case? A. That is right.

Q. And I told you I didn't know the circumstances under which these records had been obtained by the Bureau? A. That is right.

Q. And I also told you I didn't know at that time whether or not they had been obtained in legal and lawful manner? A. That is right.

Q. And did I also tell you to refer the representatives of the government either to me or to some other legal representative of the taxpayer in connection with them? A. That is true.

Q. Now then, you were served with subpoena in this case approximately what date?

A. It is my recollection the grand jury met on Monday——

Q. I mean for this case for today?

A. Oh, the 16th of November. [400]

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Lawrence J. Semenza.)

Q. Do you know approximately how long before that Mr. Lohse had come into the case?

A. Well, it was all of ten days or two weeks.

Q. And was it shortly after his coming into the case that he asked you to make the records available to him in his office? A. He did.

Q. And he stated that was so he could become familiar with the case? A. That is true.

Q. After you were served with this subpoena, did you have a conversation regarding the subpoena with Mr. Bruce Thompson, assistant United States attorney?

A. Well, at lunch one day Mr. Thompson asked me if I was going to hire a truck to bring the records over. I replied I didn't have the records and the subpoena reached me approximately ten days after the records had been transferred to the attorneys.

Q. Where did that conversation take place?

A. At the Elks Club.

Q. That is in Reno? A. That is right.

Q. Do you know approximately how long prior to July 11, 1949, Mr. Weaver, or other representatives of the government, had had possession of the records described on your subpoena?

A. No, I don't know how long.

Q. Did Mr. Weaver, or any other government representative, make [401] any statement to you as to approximately how long they had had them?

A. No, there wasn't any reason for Mr. Weaver and myself to discuss that.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Lawrence J. Semenza.)

Q. Did they state to you whether or not any of them had examined the records?

Mr. Campbell: I submit this is all immaterial.

The Court: We are not concerned with that, are we?

Mr. Avakian: Well, it is the question of the government's opportunity to examine these records at one time.

Mr. Campbell: We intend to offer secondary evidence.

Mr. Avakian: I take it you had these records long enough to have made secondary evidence of them. If you do not want to stipulate, that is all right. That is all, subject to permission to explain in the presence of the jury.

Redirect Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. At the time you obtained these records, isn't it a fact you were taken into a room where the records were and told you could have anything you wanted? A. That is true.

Q. And you were the one who selected these particular records as they were the pertinent records having to do with the matter which you were then investigating, which was the liability of Mr. Remmer? A. That is right. [402]

Q. They were the only records you considered of any use to you in that connection?

A. That's right.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Lawrence J. Semenza.)

Recross-Examination

By Mr. Avakian:

Q. Mr. Semenza, you stated at that time you were simply attempting to assist attorneys in connection with settlement. Have you since been attempting to prepare this case from an accounting point of view for possible trial?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial.

The Court: How are we interested in that?

Mr. Avakian: It goes into the matter of adequacy of opportunity, because the purpose then is different.

The Court: The thought I have here is a witness entrusted with records by the Internal Revenue and he turned them over without any authority to some other accountant. They found their way back in his possession and after he was served with subpoena it developed he had turned the records over to one of the attorneys for the defendant. That is the way it appears to me.

Mr. Avakian: Yes, before the subpoena had been served.

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Avakian: I think the important point is this, that the government, under the law, is not entitled to possession of any individual records unless it is done under court process. [403]

The Court: How could the government acquire these records?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Lawrence J. Semenza.)

Mr. Avakian: That is one thing we would like to know.

The Court: Suppose it developed they were given over voluntarily, what is the situation?

Mr. Avakian: It is still the government's right to inspect and not possess. The owner of the records remains the owner, they are still his property. The government, under the statute, has only the right of inspection.

Mr. Campbell: This is the first time this matter has been raised in any court proceeding. Apparently it is the contention of counsel these records were in the government's possession for a long time. If they had been improperly seized or obtained through improper search or seizure, it is their obligation to immediately proceed, through court proceeding to obtain their return. Further, if the Court feels this matter is warranted to go before the jury here, then I think the entire picture should be given to the jury. However, I think in the interests of justice that whatever statement is to be made to the jury should be made by the Court and not by counsel or not through the lips of the witness, unless this whole matter is developed before the jury.

Mr. Avakian: Well, your Honor, if your Honor desires to find out how these records were obtained, Mr. Weaver is present in court. Your Honor could determine from him just how they [404] were obtained.

The Court: If the situation is as it first appeared to me, if these records were records properly in the custody of the Internal Revenue Department——

Mr. Avakian: That is not so.

The Court (Continuing): ——and entrusted to this witness, found their way into the hands of one of the attorneys for the defendant and subpoena duces tecum was not complied with, then I would order their production.

Mr. Avakian: Well, I think your Honor is satisfied that that is not the situation. And if there is any doubt about it in your Honor's mind, we would be glad to have Mr. Weaver put on the stand.

The Court: I think we will proceed with the trial now and we will not have any examination of this witness before the jury at this time. What kind of statement do you think the Court should make?

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, I understand you ruled earlier we could develop this in the presence of the jury.

The Court: Let us get along with this trial.

Mr. Avakian: We don't want an unfair impression left with the jury.

The Court: What is your fear?

Mr. Avakian: The impression I fear that has been left [405] with the jury that the defense has in its custody records that from remarks of Mr. Campbell in the presence of the jury, the defense has not made available.

The Court: I will state to the jury that they must not infer from anything they have heard here this morning that any records are being withheld by the defendant from the government or from the jury.

Mr. Avakian: May we make an offer of what we would like to present to the jury?

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Avakian: We would like the opportunity, your Honor, to prove through this witness, in the presence of the jury, that insofar as the three checks of Cal-Neva, which have been mentioned by Mr. Campbell in the presence of the jury, are concerned, Mr. Semenza voluntarily turned those three checks over to Mr. Weaver—I am not sure of the date, I would like to get it from Mr. Semenza—what is the date of your receipt?

Mr. Semenza: From Mr. Harkness on April 15, 1948.

Mr. Avakian: On April 15, 1948, Mr. Semenza turned these checks over to revenue agent Harkness and he has in his possession a receipt for those checks signed by revenue agent Harkness and those checks have not been returned to him and he has no knowledge of what has happened to them since that time.

The Court: If we allow that, will you confine yourself to that? [406]

Mr. Avakian: Yes, I will.

Mr. Campbell: Do I understand our request for production of these records is then without validity?

The Court: No. I have no thought of taking any such point.

Mr. Campbell: Then will the Court request the production of the balance of these records?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Lawrence J. Semenza.)

The Court: I have requested them from Mr. Lohse.

Mr. Lohse: If your Honor please, may I then, on behalf of Mr. Remmer, state the constitutional——

The Court: I would like to hear the argument on the constitutional question.

Mr. Golden: The situation is simply this—at the time Mr. Semenza was served with subpoena to produce certain documents which he did not have at the time he was served with the subpoena. Now, if the prosecution feels they have a right, they now know where they are and they should serve subpoena on the person who has them and then we will comply. There is nothing before the court. He said he didn't have the documents.

The Court: The prosecution could very well expect to find those records in the hands of the individual to whom they were delivered by the representative of the Internal Revenue Department.

Mr. Golden: No, your Honor, the attorneys are entitled to use them as well as the accountant. Your Honor, it was only [407] yesterday that we asked the government to produce something and your Honor wouldn't even let us get the name of the man having charge of the material. This goes both ways. I will say that although the records are not physically in my custody, I am defendant's attorney and if they want to serve subpoena on me, when they issue that subpoena we will be glad to comply with it.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Lawrence J. Semenza.)

Mr. Campbell: Mr. Golden knows it would be highly improper to serve subpoena on him as the attorney.

Mr. Avakian: Mr. Lohse is in the same position.

The Court: What do you request the Court to do?

Mr. Campbell: I request the Court, under the circumstances, to instruct that the records called for at least be delivered to the clerk of this court.

Mr. Golden: Just for clarity, if your Honor has in mind as to corporate records, we have offered to make them available under reasonable conditions.

The Court: I have in mind the records mentioned in the subpoena. What do you have in mind, Mr. Campbell? Do you just confine your request to the Cal-Neva records or others?

Mr. Campbell: No, I include all of them, your Honor, with the exception of this check list, but particularly I have in mind those set forth on the memorandum or receipt given by counsel and, of course, there are the corporate records, which [408] as Mr. Golden properly says, do not come within the same circumstances.

Mr. Golden: At the same time, so your Honor may consider both matters at once, we respectfully request the Court to order the government to produce such records belonging to this defendant as it has in its possession, on our demand previously made under Rules 16 and 17 and previously denied by the Court.

The Court: I now order defendant's counsel,

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Lawrence J. Semenza.)

who has custody of the records mentioned in the subpoena duces tecum, to produce them and deliver them to the clerk. That is the order of the Court and the records are in Reno, I understand?

Mr. Golden: That is correct.

The Court: It will take a little time to produce them. I will allow reasonable time, tomorrow afternoon at two o'clock.

Mr. Golden: I say this respectfully—your Honor understands, in addition to the legal aspects of the matter, as a practical matter, it is then impossible for us to make any adequate use of that material during the course of this trial. The clerk's office, your Honor, is open from 8:30 to 5:00 and we are in court from 10:00 through 12, and from one to four, or 1:30 to 4:30.

The Court: I wonder if counsel could work out some way [409] of getting around this problem so defendant would have an opportunity to use some of those records or all of them in the preparation of his case.

Mr. Campbell: I think that could be worked out.

Mr. Golden: What order is your Honor going to make to material of the same character in the hands of the government?

The Court: I ruled on that a few days ago.

Mr. Golden: In other words, it is a one-way proposition. I made that request, your Honor, and I renew it.

The Court: I know you did. We will take a recess for five minutes.

Mr. Campbell: Yes, your Honor.

Mr. Avakian: Yes, I will limit it to that, your Honor.

MR. SEMENZA

resumes the witness stand.

Direct Examination

By Mr. Avakian:

Mr. Avakian: I believe Mr. Semenza has been sworn but I do not believe his name or position was given.

Q. Will you state your full name, please? [410]

A. Lawrence J. Semenza.

Q. And where do you reside?

A. 1113 Greenridge Drive, Reno.

Q. What is your occupation?

A. Certified public accountant.

Q. And you have been engaged in your occupation in Reno for a number of years?

A. I have.

Q. And for a number of years have you been acting for the Cal-Neva, Inc., a corporation?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Lawrence J. Semenza.)

A. I have been.

Q. And also for the defendant in this case?

A. I have.

Q. Before the noon recess, Mr. Semenza, the prosecution requested you to produce, in response to subpoena, three checks drawn on the account of Cal-Neva, Inc., which were identified as checks—the numbers appear to be indistinct so I will describe them, Mr. Semenza—a check dated August 28, 1946, payable to the Collector of Internal Revenue, in amount of $7,724.11, with the signature torn off; another check dated August 31, 1946, payable to the Collector of Internal Revenue in the amount of $5,324.11, signed Cal-Neva Lodge by James B. Jeffers; and a third check dated August 31, 1946, payable to Mountain City Consolidated Copper Company in the amount of $2,400, signed Cal-Neva Lodge, by James B. Jeffers, and I [411] believe you responded that you did not have those records in your possession, is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. When is the last time that you recall having had these checks, Mr. Semenza?

A. On April 15, 1948.

Q. And on that date did you turn the originals of those checks over to Internal Revenue Agent Harkness? A. I did.

Q. Do you have in your possession a receipt signed by him, acknowledging that you delivered those checks to him at that time? A. I do.

Q. Have you seen those checks since then?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Lawrence J. Semenza.)

A. I have not.

Q. So far as you know, have they been returned to you?

A. So far as I know they have not been.

Mr. Avakian: I would like to have the receipt received from Mr. Harkness marked for identification. I would like to offer defendant's C for identification in evidence, your Honor.

Mr. Campbell: I have no objection.

The Court: It may be admitted in evidence, defendant's Exhibit C.

Mr. Avakian: Now, your Honor, we have available a newspaper [412] clipping, which purports to be a photostatic copy produced in the San Francisco Examiner on November 15, 1950, of the faces of these three checks, plus the reverse side of the check payable to the Mountain City Consolidated Copper Company, and in order that the examination of Mr. Mooney may continue, we will be happy to offer this in evidence as defendant's Exhibit D.

Mr. Campbell: To which we have no objection.

The Court: Exhibit D is admitted in evidence.

Mr. Avakian: No further questions of Mr. Semenza.

The Court: Have you any further questions?

Mr. Campbell: Not at this time.

(Witness excused temporarily.)

MR. PATRICK MOONEY

resumed the witness stand on further

Direct Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Just before the recess, Mr. Mooney, you had testified concerning the sale on or about August 29th or August 31st of 1946, of certain shares of stock of the Mountain City Consolidated Copper Company to Mr. Remmer in consideration of $2,400? A. Right.

Q. Will you relate the circumstances under which that sale was made?

A. I had been after Mr. Remmer for two years previous to buy some stock. He said, "I will take some some day." Cal-Neva was about to close after Labor Day, which was on the 2nd of [413] September. I had a bill against him for the balance of his 1945 tax. He signed the return and I said, "How about the stock?" He says, "I can't take the stock today unless you take it off the revenue bill." He says, "I haven't got enough money in the bank, but I will send you the money from San Francisco." The balance owed to take up the $2,400. He said, "I will give you a check for the stock and you can turn the income tax in and I will send you the balance." He had until the 15th of September to pay it. I turned the 1040 in and I found out he had a credit on the books. He never did send me the money. To the best of my knowledge no notice or demand was sent to him. No form 469 was ever issued against him and I figured that everything was all right.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Patrick Mooney.)

Q. In other words, as I understand you, that in lieu of paying to the Collector of Internal Revenue all that was due on that day, you arranged with him to subtract the sum of $2,400 from that amount for the purpose of buying stock in your company, is that right? Is that correct?

Mr. Gillen: I think counsel's question contains matter which is not a fact and not in evidence. He says the money that was due that day, to wit, September 2nd.

Mr. Campbell: I will amend the question.

Mr. Gillen: Just a moment. I am addressing the Court on my objection—when the witness' answer contained the fact that payment wasn't due until September 15th. [414]

Mr. Campbell: I will amend the question.

Q. In other words, as I understand you, Mr. Mooney, you arranged with him on August 31st to deduct $2,400 from a payment which he was otherwise making to the Collector of Internal Revenue, in order that that $2,400 might be used to purchase stock in your corporation?

Mr. Gillen: We offer the objection it is leading and suggestive, a compound and complex question. This is his witness, your Honor.

The Court: I will sustain the objection.

Q. Will you relate the conversation which you had with Mr. Remmer on that occasion?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as having been asked and answered.

The Court: Objection will be overruled.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Patrick Mooney.)

A. I related the entire conversation I had with him I thought. He said he didn't have enough money in the bank. I will start over again. I wanted him to take ten thousand shares, four thousand dollars. He said, "I can't do it." He said, "We will cut it down to five thousand." I said, "You better make it six. I need it for pay roll and expenses for the mine." He made it six thousand shares at 40 cents a share, $2,400. That is about all the conversation had. He told James Jeffers to give me a check for $2,400 and give the balance for the Internal Revenue Department. [415]

Mr. Campbell: You may cross-examine.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Q. Mr. Mooney, who was it that first organized this mining corporation?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial.

The Court: Objection will be overruled. You may answer the question.

Q. Do you have the question, Mr. Mooney? Who was it that first organized the Mountain City Copper Mining corporation?

A. There were several, George B. Thatcher and myself.

Q. George B. Thatcher?

A. Yes, he died in 1945.

Q. That was Mr. Thatcher, attorney, member of the firm of Thatcher & Woodburn in Reno, is that correct? A. That is correct.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Patrick Mooney.)

Q. And yourself, were the principal organizers?

A. Yes.

Q. Where was the mine located, Mr. Mooney?

A. In Mountain City, Nevada.

Q. How much did you personally invest in that mine, of your own personal money, over the years?

A. Oh, about 8 or 10 thousand dollars, I advanced to make up the pay roll and one thing or another. It broke me.

Q. And where is the mine located?

A. About 15 miles from the Idaho line. [416]

Q. Is that near any other mining property, your mine?

A. Our mine adjoins the Mountain City Company controlled by Anaconda.

Q. Your mine is adjacent to that?

A. It joins it right on the end of it.

Q. Could you tell me what year it was that this was organized? A. 1937.

Q. Was there any work done on that mine?

A. About 130 thousand dollars worth.

Q. Do you have books and records to show how much money was put into that mine, how much money was expended in the development and working of that mine?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial to the issues of this case, if the Court please.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Q. Do you have the question in mind? I will repeat the question, with the Court's permission.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Patrick Mooney.)

Do you have books and records to show the expenditure of approximately 130 thousand dollars?

A. I wouldn't be sure about the amount, but approximately that much.

Q. Approximately 130 thousand dollars since 1937 for development and working of that mine, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. Now, I take it that Mr. Remmer was not the only one to whom you sold stock in that mine? [417]

A. Oh, no; there were 600 stockholders. That is what the intelligence agents told me. They worked on it—they were all entire strangers to me.

Q. They worked on your matter for three weeks? A. For three weeks.

Q. Did they inspect the mine?

A. Yes, sir, and the stockholders, went to all the stockholders. There was four intelligence agents and a reporter and it covers about 80 pages testimony and I was exonerated by the Internal Revenue Department on their report.

Q. I see. Now, Mr. Mooney, I understood your testimony to be that you had been after Mr. Remmer for a couple of years to invest in the mine?

A. Yes.

Q. And that he had promised that he would get around to doing that, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. And you asked him more than once to buy some stock?

A. Oh yes, every time I met him.

Q. And finally, on the occasion that you had his 1945 return for him to sign and you were desirous of collecting from him a balance due thereon of some $7,700, you broached the subject again, is that correct? A. Yes.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Patrick Mooney.)

Q. Now, at the time you appeared at Cal-Neva, I believe you [418] said it was? A. Yes.

Q. To have him sign the return of 1945 individual tax return? A. Right.

Q. Did he have it prepared and ready for you at that time, a check to cover the amount due?

A. Yes.

Q. And was that check shown to you?

A. I believe it was already made out.

Q. Now, I am going to show you the first photographic reproduction of the check appearing in defendant's Exhibit D. You will find it to be the one at the top of those figures—let me withdraw that question and ask you this question.

Q. Do you recall in what manner the $7,700 check that was made payable to the Collector of Internal Revenue was cancelled?

A. Well, he would have to cancel it in order to give me the $2,400. He didn't have money enough in the bank to take care of more checks.

Q. I didn't make myself clear. Do you recall in what manner the cancellation was made of the check, or how it was made effective as a negotiable instrument?

A. I don't know how it was made or anything how it was treated on the stub of the check book or anything.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Patrick Mooney.)

Q. I don't mean that. Did you see anything done to the check? [419] A. No.

Q. Did you see the signature torn off the check?

A. No.

Q. Did you see the check when it was ready?

A. I did not. I don't believe I did.

Q. Let me show the first picture appearing on this Exhibit D of the defendant's and ask you to look at the top portion and see whether or not this refreshes your recollection as to whether or not you have ever seen the check. The top one, Mr. Mooney, the top check that is reproduced.

A. $7,724, is that right? I don't believe I ever saw it.

Q. You note, do you not, that signature is torn off that check? A. Yes.

Q. Who was that check made payable to?

A. The Collector of Internal Revenue; the cancelled check?

Q. No, the first top check you are looking at now, who was that made payable to?

A. Collector of Internal Revenue.

Q. And for what amount?

A. It was in the full amount of the tax due.

Q. Will you read us the amount there on that check? A. I can't read it.

Q. I am sorry. Do you recall the amount that was due on that return?

A. It was seven thousand dollars. [420]

Q. By the way, that 1945 return—I think that I misunderstand your testimony—that 1945 return had been prepared and signed and returned and filed prior to the occasion when you appeared there to collect what was due on it, isn't that correct?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Patrick Mooney.)

A. I believe so.

Q. I will show you plaintiff's Exhibits 3 and 4, which have been identified as the 1945 returns prepared by you for Elmer Remmer and for Helen Remmer, his wife, and I will ask you to look at those two exhibits, which I will hand you with the Court's permission, and tell us whether or not that refreshes your recollection that those two returns were prepared by you and filed on June 14th of that year? A. Is the collector's stamp on here?

Q. Yes. With the Court's permission, Mr. Mooney, I will read it.

A. I said is the collector's stamp there?

Q. There is with purple ink, Mr. Mooney, a stamp impression which reads as follows: "Received" and then a large "88" and alongside of that the abbreviation for June, "Jun. 14, 1946, Coll. Int. Rev. Dist. Nev." Do you see that, sir?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is that the so-called collector's stamp, showing when the return was received by the Collector of Internal Revenue for the District of Nevada?

A. It showed on the right-hand corner on the face of the return, [421] received on such and such date.

Q. That is correct.

A. I don't know what the others mean.

Mr. Gillen: Well, perhaps we can be assigned in this I believe Mr. Campbell will stipulate that both of these returns, (3) the 1945 Elmer Remmer return, and (4), the Helen L. Remmer return, both bear collector's stamp, showing that they were filed in the collector's office in this District of Nevada, on June 14, 1946.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Patrick Mooney.)

Mr. Campbell: So stipulated.

Q. So then your purpose on the occasion you sold Mr. Remmer the stock was to collect from him something in excess of seven thousand dollars due on these two returns due September 15th, is that correct? A. Yes, sir, that is correct.

Q. And this was just before the closing of Cal-Neva for the summer season, that year the closing date being Labor Day? A. 1946?

Q. 1946.

A. He closed it, I think, right after Labor Day, which was the 2nd of September.

Q. And I believe this exhibit, these checks, bear the date, the first check made payable to the Collector of Internal Revenue, bears date of August 28, 1946, and the two additional checks appearing on there bear date of August 31, 1946. The collector's [422] check which was prepared for you, which you said had to be cancelled, bore date of August 28, 1946, and the other two checks, one of which was to the Mountain City Copper Company, bore date of August 31, 1946. Now, were those two checks prepared in your presence on the same day that you were there?

A. James Jeffers gave me the check on that day.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Patrick Mooney.)

Q. On the 31st of August?

A. If that is the date.

Q. Were they prepared there in your presence?

A. Yes.

Q. Now is this your testimony, that on this occasion you again then approached Mr. Remmer and spoke of purchasing some stock, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. And he told you that he didn't have enough money available in the bank in Nevada to be able to pay his full balance on his return and in addition to that buy some stock, is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. Now you say you had wanted him to buy ten thousand shares of stock?

A. I talked to him about it.

Q. Which would have been an amount of four thousand dollars, is that correct?

A. Four thousand dollars, correct.

Q. And he told you he couldn't purchase that much but he would [423] purchase a lesser amount, he would purchase five thousand, or half that much, is that correct?

A. Right. I pressed him to buy it, I needed it for the pay roll.

Q. Had it been the practice and policy of the company not to run into debt, but only operate and work the mine so long as you had money to work the mine and meet the pay roll?

A. Correct. In 12 years we never passed a payday.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Patrick Mooney.)

Q. And Mr. Remmer agreed then to buy six thousand shares? A. Six thousand shares.

Q. And that incurred the obligation of $2400?

A. Yes.

Q. And is it my understanding of your testimony that he told you if you wanted him to pay you for the stock then, that he would give you the $2400 in the form of a check, but that he would only be able to pay a portion of the amount that was due on his income tax return for 1946 and that he would send you the balance from San Francisco?

A. Right.

Q. And he still had better than 15 days before he became delinquent, is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. So at that time, Mr. Mooney, he gave you two checks instead of one? A. Yes. [424]

Q. One of which was for $2400, payable to the Mountain City Copper Company, and the other of which was for $5324.11, payable to the Collector of Internal Revenue, is that correct?

A. As far as I remember. I know about the $2400.

Q. And he gave you also a check for the Collector of Internal Revenue? A. Yes.

Q. Would you look at the two additional checks that appear, the two checks that are reproduced in this newspaper clipping, defendant's Exhibit D, and tell us, if you can, whether or not you recognize those checks as checks given you that day by Mr. Jeffers?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Patrick Mooney.)

A. That is $5324 for the Revenue Department. I can't make it out exactly. The $2400 I can read.

Q. The original check on this exhibit shows check payable to the Collector of Internal Revenue in the sum of $7724.11.

A. Deduct $2400 and you have the answer.

Q. $2400 deducted from it left check which he gave you for the Collector of Internal Revenue for $5324.11, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. Upon leaving Mr. Remmer on that occasion you expected, did you not, Mr. Mooney, that in due course, either by his personal appearance in Reno or through the mail, you would receive the balance due on the $7724.11, is that correct?

A. Yes. [425]

Q. That you would receive the difference yourself? A. Yes.

Q. Now as a matter of fact, it came to your attention, did it not, that there was a refund, or notice of a refund, due to Mr. Remmer?

A. No notice. It was on the books in the revenue office.

Q. It was reflected on the books of the revenue office that Mr. Remmer was entitled to a refund?

A. Yes.

Q. Which would have more than covered the amount of $2400, is that correct?

A. I believe it was around $2600.

Q. So therefore Mr. Remmer was not required to pay the additional $2400, is that correct?

A. Yes.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Patrick Mooney.)

Q. Was that amount that was due to Mr. Remmer as a refund applied to the balance of his tax owed in 1946?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as not the best evidence.

The Court: He may answer the question.

Q. Do you have the question in mind or would you rather I repeat it?

A. There was somebody told me in the office——

Mr. Campbell: Now——

Mr. Gillen: You have to testify to your own knowledge.

Mr. Campbell: That is why I am objecting, as not the [426] best evidence.

Q. Do you have any personal knowledge of how that refund was handled by way of any credit to Mr. Remmer and Mrs. Remmer?

A. How it was handled? It was credited on his 1945 tax.

Q. And was that within the right of the Collector of Internal Revenue to apply a credit on any balance due on a tax?

A. Certainly, a taxpayer is entitled to have a credit if it exists on the books.

Q. Now, Mr. Mooney, the returns that you have stated that you made out for Mr. Remmer and for Mrs. Remmer through the several years that you recounted, they were for individual returns, is that correct? A. Correct.

Q. You had nothing to do with any partnership or corporate returns? A. Nothing.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Patrick Mooney.)

Q. You had nothing to do with returns of Cal-Neva, Inc., corporation? A. Oh, no.

Q. You had nothing to do with the returns that were made out for any enterprises in any of the other partnerships? A. No.

Q. The only thing that you had to do with this, is this not a fact, was to find out what financial benefit or profits or earnings Mr. Remmer derived from any of those enterprises, is that [427] correct?

A. The distributed share to each partner.

Q. And the only reason you did that was to be able to make out a true and accurate report of his individual income?

A. Right. I never saw a book.

Q. Now the individual returns that you made out usually bore a notation on the face, "Taxpayer's figures without audit," is that correct?

A. That is correct. I think that is on all my returns.

Q. And that is a very common thing where any accountant or a deputy collector, or any other person other than the actual taxpayer, accepts figures given to him as the income of the taxpayer without making a personal audit, to put that notation on it?

A. The only figure a deputy collector could put down is the figure given by the taxpayer or the accountant.

Q. Now, when you have stated or placed on the returns, individual returns, of Mr. Remmer and Mrs. Remmer "Taxpayer's figures," you didn't mean by that, did you, Mr. Mooney, that you received those figures actually and personally from the taxpayer? Do you understand my question?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Patrick Mooney.)

A. I understand your question. I received them from Mr. Remmer's bookkeeper.

Q. In other words, you mean by that, not that you received these figures actually and personally from the taxpayer himself, Mr. or Mrs. Remmer, but rather from somebody representing [428] them?

A. Oh, no, he never looked at a figure.

Q. He never looked at a figure? A. No.

Q. Now, as I recall your testimony—and correct me if I am wrong, Mr. Mooney—in the earlier returns that you made for Mr. Remmer, you got your information from Mr. George L. Simmons, a public accountant in El Cerrito, California?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And then later on you got some figures from Mr. Kyne, Willie Kyne? A. Yes.

Q. And also some figures from a public accountant by the name of Ayton?

A. I think that is his name.

Q. And then subsequently that Mr. Harold Maundrell took over the management of the books and you got your figures from Mr. Maundrell?

A. Right.

Q. And those figures were figures referring to the distributive shares to Mr. Remmer and also to Mrs. Remmer from profits of partnership enterprises, is that correct?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Patrick Mooney.)

A. Yes, partnership or joint venture, which you wish to call it.

Q. And of course that included all of those things, included initially the 21 Club and the San Diego Social Club in El [429] Cerrito, and still later on included the Menlo Club and the 186 Eddy Club, the 110 Eddy Club and the other enterprises that have been mentioned here, is that correct?

A. Right.

Q. Other than the occasion that you testified to here earlier this morning, when you stated that there was an occasion when Mr. Remmer told you he had won some money on the Kentucky Derby and sought your assistance in making out the tax return—— A. Yes.

Q. ——other than that occasion, did you, on any other occasion throughout the years that you made out Helen Remmer's and Elmer Remmer's individual income tax returns, ever get any figures from Mr. Remmer?

A. Except on three or four occasions.

Q. Now, the three or four occasions were occasions when Mr. Remmer spoke to you concerning some charitable donations he had made, is that correct? A. Right.

Q. And if I remember correctly, that was with relation to the 1946 return, is that true?

A. '45.

Q. 1945 return, and do you recall what his inquiries were at that time, what information he sought from you?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Patrick Mooney.)

A. He says, I gave $7500 to purchase the Catholic playground at St. Thomas Aquinas Church for the church; that is, he contracted— [430] he paid five thousand in 1945 and 2500 in 1946.

Q. That is, he signed a commitment to pay and paid down five thousand and agreed to pay an additional 2500 toward this playground of St. Thomas Aquinas Church?

A. Yes, St. Thomas Aquinas purchased that property for $7,500 and he and three or four of his associates paid off the full amount of the money. The Masons had allowed the children the use of the ground for 20 years. Property had advanced and they were going to sell it and Mr. Biltz had it under option and he knocked off his commission, since the church was going to buy it.

Q. Now Mr. Remmer asked for some opinion or advice of yours regarding that?

A. No advice, only he had given the money to Mr. Graham.

Q. What was the question he put to you?

A. He said, "Don't forget that; I don't know whether there is a record in the partnership return or not." It had no relation to the partnership because it was individual contribution.

Q. It was his individual contribution?

A. So far as I know.

Q. And you told him that you had that information, is that correct, that charitable contribution, in mind? A. Yes.

Q. Now, did Mr. Remmer at that time, or at any other time, speak to you about another contribution that he had made, charitable? [431]

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Patrick Mooney.)

A. Yes, on the 1947 return he made a contribution of a Chrysler station wagon to the crippled children in Carson Valley.

Q. Do you know the amount of that?

A. $2700. That was the valuation of the Chrysler Town and Country wagon.

Q. In other words, he purchased an automobile, station wagon?

A. It might have been used a couple of hundred miles before they got it.

Q. He purchased that for the crippled children of what valley? A. Of Carson Valley.

Mr. Campbell: What year was that for?

A. 1947.

Q. Was that purchase made in 1947 or 1946, as you recall?

A. I think it is on the 1947 tax return as deduction. I had to cut it down. He was over-contributed. I had to cut it down on the 15 per cent contributions.

Q. Now, Mr. Mooney, do you recall testifying this morning regarding the occasion when you were compelled, by reason of the shortness of time, to use the figure that had been given to you earlier that year as an estimate for the initial return, with a view to making an amended return? Do you recall that?

A. What year are you speaking of?

Q. Well, I will get that for you. Do you recall

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Patrick Mooney.)

testifying this morning with regard to plaintiff's Exhibit 1, the 1944 return of Elmer Remmer and Helen Remmer? [432] A. Yes.

Q. Which you stated was based upon an estimate given to you in the summer of 1943?

A. Yes. If it was an estimate it is 2650.

Q. Now, you stated this morning, if I recall your testimony this morning, that you had obtained from Mr. Remmer an estimate of 20 thousand dollars for his income for a year?

A. I think one day at Reno he figured that would be about right.

Mr. Campbell: I suggest, if the Court please, the witness be shown the exhibit. It is difficult to hear and I am afraid he misunderstands some of the things.

Mr. Gillen: I wonder if counsel has the 1040 estimate? It is not in evidence—the original estimate.

Mr. Campbell: No, I do not. I will ascertain if one has been filed. If it has been, I will have it produced.

Mr. Gillen: I think we had testimony there had been an estimate of 20 thousand dollars made.

Q. He made an estimate of 20 thousand dollars?

A. A rough guess.

Q. And then when the time came to make the return, you testified this morning something regarding the information or data being in the hands of a Mr. Lewis, do you recall that, a former Collector of Internal Revenue?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Patrick Mooney.)

A. Mr. Lewis was connected with the Internal Revenue at San [433] Francisco in 1944 or 1945. He opened an office in Montgomery Street.

Q. You stated this morning in your testimony that because of the shortness of time and because if you waited to get the information, Mr. and Mrs. Remmer would have been delinquent, that you made a return based on 20 thousand dollar estimate, is that correct? A. Correct.

Q. And you said you advised Mr. Remmer at that time by letter on March 20, 1945, the letter being plaintiff's Exhibit 68, which was provided by the plaintiff, that you were returning them the two forms, that they must sign immediately and that they owed you $1070 each; do you recall that?

A. Yes.

Q. And do you recall in that letter you said: "I took it off your estimate for last summer. If there is any change to be made, we will make it at our first trip to Reno, as you may want to raise the amount. Bring all the data from the different places, so that we may file a proper amended return"; do you recall that? A. Yes.

Q. And do you recall you mentioned not only was this return necessary to be filed by March 15th, but also there should be a declaration of expected income for the year 1945 filed by March 15th? [434]

A. Yes.

Q. Now, do you recall that your letter was not written until March 20th? Your letter bears date of March 20th.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Patrick Mooney.)

A. He had an extension, as far as I know.

Q. Now, when the returns are made on March 15th, what is the policy of the Internal Revenue Department for the District of Nevada, in regard to length of time it takes them to open mail and whether or not mail coming before it is completely open goes in without question?

Mr. Campbell: I don't understand that question. I object on the ground it is unintelligible.

Mr. Gillen: I think Mr. Mooney understands it.

The Court: Let us have the question read.

(Question read.)

Mr. Gillen: I don't understand the question myself.

Q. Mr. Mooney, was it the policy of the Collector of Internal Revenue of the District of Nevada to allow mail coming in, returns coming in through the mail after March 15th of each year, or being dropped into the office, to be considered as having been filed on time, provided it arrived before you finished opening all the mail?

Mr. Campbell: That is objected to, if the Court please, on the grounds it is immaterial, that the witness obviously doesn't know what the present custom or method is; he has been retired, he says, a number of years. [435]

The Court: He might have known at that time.

Mr. Campbell: That wasn't the question.

Q. What was the custom at that time?

A. It took two weeks to open mail.

Q. And anything that got in before all the mail

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Patrick Mooney.)

was opened was considered in the entire mail, is that correct? A. I guess that is right.

Q. Well, was that the policy? A. Yes.

Q. Now, you testified this morning that although you so admonished Mr. and Mrs. Remmer in your letter that they, Mr. Remmer, might want to increase the amount that was shown in the return, that he never did increase the amount that was shown in the return or gave you any other papers; is that correct?

A. I will bring that up now. Mr. Campbell has a pencilled return made in 1946 on 1944 return. He showed it to me at the time of the meeting of the grand jury.

Mr. Gillen: Do you have that with you?

Mr. Campbell: I don't know to what he refers.

A. 1944 amended return.

Mr. Campbell: Isn't that attached to the original exhibit? I think the 1944 return, plaintiff's Exhibit 1, is a pencilled return.

Mr. Gillen: It is not an amended return here, counsel. [436] It should be amended return.

A. It is marked amended on top.

Q. You have handed me a pencilled 1944 return marked amended return, for Helen L. Remmer. Was there one similarly for Elmer Remmer?

A. Exactly.

Mr. Campbell: I will have to look it up.

Mr. Gillen: May it please the Court, Mr. Mooturn for Helen L. Remmer, increasing the amount of return and tax due. I should like to have this marked as defendant's next in order for identification.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

The Court: E for identification.

Mr. Gillen: So we may understand, it is my understanding that Mr. Campbell is seeking to find the amended return for Elmer Remmer.

Mr. Campbell: That is presuming there is such a thing.

Q. Well, Mr. Mooney, Mr. Campbell showed you, at the time the indictment was returned in this case, in this city at the grand jury, a pencilled amended return for Elmer Remmer, is that correct?

A. Yes, it was made in my handwriting. I identified the handwriting. I don't know whether it was signed or not.

Q. Now, Mr. Mooney, after writing the letter of March 20th of the year 1945, to Mr. and Mrs. Remmer, advising them that you were making the return based on the estimate that they had [437] given you, or Elmer Remmer had given you, the previous summer, and that he might want to increase the figures, did you talk to Mr. Remmer at any later time subsequent to the writing of that letter concerning that matter?

A. I don't think so.

Q. Let me ask you if it isn't a fact that you talked to Mr. Remmer in Reno and Mr. Remmer told you as to any other partnership enterprises or anything, he knew nothing about them personally, and you could get all the information from the bookkeepers?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Patrick Mooney.)

A. He always referred me to the bookkeeper.

Q. And didn't he do that in regard to the 1944 return?

A. I have forgotten whether he did or not.

Q. You don't recall whether he did or not?

A. I don't recall.

Q. Let me ask you, Mr. Mooney, if you have any recollection of having gone to Mr. Willie Kyne and receiving additional information from which you made the amended 1944 return? A. Yes.

Q. And where did you see Mr. Willie Kyne?

A. In San Francisco.

Q. Now, you mentioned here, Mr. Mooney, that you obtained your information concerning the partnership enterprises from various bookkeepers in San Francisco? A. Yes. [438]

Q. And you stated that you did that on your own time and not on government time?

A. Exactly.

Q. And that you received from Mr. Remmer your exact expenses? A. That's all.

Q. It is true, is it not, in the United States government, employees of the government have two types of leave each year, one known as sick leave and one known as annual leave or vacation leave, is that right? A. That is right.

Q. And the sick leave you can take off any time you are sick up to a given point, is that correct?

A. Any time you are sick, if you are not faking.

Q. And your annual leave you can take a day or two at any time up to the amount of leave you are allowed for each per annum?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Patrick Mooney.)

A. Deducted off your total.

Q. Total annual or vacation leave, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. And those trips to San Francisco, did you make any on week ends? A. Sometimes.

Q. They were off your annual leave?

A. All of them. I never did anything on government time.

Q. Now, Mr. Mooney, I hold in my hand defendant's Exhibit E, [439] which I will identify for you as amended return for 1944 for Helen Remmer, made out in pencil, in your handwriting, which you said was a counterpart of identical one for Elmer Remmer. It is true, is it not, that you filed both of these amended returns and that you collected what was due, the additional money that was due, and turned it in on those amended returns and that that created the credit?

A. Yes, there is a book charge, interest, probably two years in there, 1944.

Q. And there was interest due?

A. $160 there is marked up.

Q. $166.60 interest? A. For each one.

Q. For each one?

A. It must have been two years, at the amount of 15%.

Q. These were filed and collected?

A. So far as I know. They might have got lost. The money was paid.

Q. But the money was paid?

A. Yes, I think I turned the money in on two slips, two credit slips, and the returns were filed two weeks afterwards or maybe a month.

Q. Now, did you, during the years that you were making out these individual returns, did you correspond with any representatives of Mr. Remmer concerning his distributive shares out of [440] any of the business enterprises in which he was interested?

A. With Mr. Simmons and Mr. Kyne.

Q. Do you have any copies of those letters in your possession?

A. There are some there to Mr. Kyne and Mr. Simmons, if Mr. Pratt will give me the file.

Mr. Gillen: May we have the Court's permission for Mr. Mooney, Jr., to pick the documents out of his father's file?

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Gillen: Mr. Mooney hands me, may it please the Court, what purports to be——

Mr. Campbell: It might be marked for identification before any description is made, if the Court please.

Mr. Campbell: All right. I was just going to identify them as being carbon copies of letters, without going any farther. Three carbon copies of purported letters have been marked for identification, may it please the Court, and I will hand them to counsel now. They are defendant's F, G, and H.

Q. Mr. Mooney, the three single sheets that you have handed me, which appear to be carbon copies of letters written by yourself to other persons, let me ask you whether or not all three of them represent inquiries made by you of bookkeepers familiar with the partnership enterprises in which Mr. Remmer had an interest, inquiring concerning certain data to enable you to make an authentic and correct individual return for Mr. Remmer and Mrs. [441] Remmer?

A. Yes, to Mr. Kyne and Mr. Simmons and Mr. Maundrell.

Q. Mr. Kyne and Mr. Simmons?

A. Mr. Kyne and Mr. Simmons.

Mr. Gillen: If there is no objection, I will offer them in evidence.

Mr. Campbell: We object to them until further foundation is laid.

Mr. Gillen: Very well.

Q. In regard to letter written by you May 23, 1945, to Mr. Frank E. Simmons, 313 San Pablo Avenue, El Cerrito, did you receive in response any information you sought in this letter, from this letter?

A. I believe I did. Mr. Simmons was very prompt.

Q. And the information that you received did you utilize in preparing 1040 indivdual income tax form for Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Remmer?

A. Yes, if there was any income for that year.

Mr. Gillen: I offer the May 23, 1945, letter as Defendant's Exhibit F in evidence.

The Court: It may be admitted.

Q. Now, Mr. Mooney, with regard to what appears to be a carbon copy of letter written by yourself to Mr. Frank E. Simmons, 313 San Pablo Avenue, El Cerrito, California, dated May 10, 1946, do you recall whether or not you received any response in any form from Mr. Simmons regarding the information you [442] desired and requested in that letter, to enable you to make individual income tax returns for Elmer Remmer and Helen Remmer?

A. If I didn't get a response, I called on him probably. I notice one occasion where partnership returns is in the hands of Mr. Lewis. He was former Collector of Internal Revenue, Northern California Division.

Mr. Gillen: We offer in evidence Exhibit G.

Mr. Campbell: I think it is immaterial here. I have no objection.

The Court: It may be admitted.

Q. And finally there is what appears to be carbon copy of letter written by yourself to Willie Kyne, 50 Mason Street, San Francisco, re: Elmer Remmer, under date of March 7, 1947. Do you have any recollection whether or not you received a response in any form regarding the information and matters that you desired to obtain in that letter?

A. Some time afterward Mr. Kyne and I talked the matter over.

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as not having been shown it was brought to the knowledge of the defendant or that any information or any other of the information elicited therefrom.

BLEED THROUGH— POOR COPY

(Testimony of Patrick Mooney.)

The Court: Objection overruled. Admitted in evidence, Exhibit H.

Q. Mr. Mooney, you have handed me carbon copy of a letter which you wrote on May 23, 1945, to Mr. Frank E. Simmons, 313 San Pablo Avenue, El Cerrito, California, which reads as [443] follows: (Reads Exhibit F.)

Q. You recall writing that letter, do you?

A. I do.

Q. And did you receive some information, whether it affected the return that you were making for Mr. Remmer or not, did you receive some information or response from Mr. Simmons?

A. Yes, that's the time, I believe, that he informed me that the partnership was all in the hands of Mr. Lewis and I couldn't get it and never did get that return.

Q. Let me ask you this, Mr. Mooney, now calling your attention to Defendant's Exhibit G, I will ask you if you recall writing this letter, May 10, 1946? (Reads Exhibit G.) Undoubtedly signed by yourself in the original, because it bears the stenographic notation at the bottom, "PM/M." Do you recall what was the occasion of writing the letter?

A. Well, the partnership return, I don't believe I ever saw it.

Q. And that was the same Mr. Lewis you referred to was at one time Internal Revenue Collector at San Francisco? A. That is right.

Q. And then went into private practice as a lawyer and accountant?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Patrick Mooney.)

A. He was an attorney.

Q. Now finally, Mr. Mooney, do you recall that you wrote a letter on March 7, 1947, addressed to Willie Kyne, 50 Mason [444] Street? (Reads Exhibit H.) Now you recall writing that letter?

A. Yes.

Q. Now will you tell us what you had in mind when you made the proposal in the letter to Willie Kyne on March 7, 1947, that Mr. Remmer might be able to deduct the costs or his investment in the Menlo Club over the period of time on his lease and save himself some money?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial what Mr. Mooney had in his mind.

The Court: Objection will be overruled. You may answer the question.

Mr. Campbell: Further, it is not within the scope of direct examination.

The Court: You may answer the question.

Q. Mr. Mooney, his Honor says you may answer that question. Would you care to have the question read?

A. No. I was thinking of amortizing over the period of his lease the amount for 1945 for 8 months, or 18 thousand some odd dollars and for the full year it was 28 thousand and some dollars, 700 dollars, I think, and he took it over a three-year period.

Q. You had in mind to have him spread that out over the period of time of his lease?

A. Yes. [445]

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Patrick Mooney.)

Q. And his lease was for how long?

A. Five years Mr. Maundrell told me. I understood afterwards it was ten.

Q. Mr. Maundrell was under the impression it was five years but it was ten?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to Mr. Maundrell's impression.

The Court: Yes, that may go out.

Q. Well, in all events, from the information you had in your hands at that time, you had the impression it was a five-year lease?

Mr. Campbell: Object to this, what is his impression.

The Court: I think we have gone far enough on that question. Objection will be sustained.

Q. Well, it was your plan to suggest an amortization of his lease over the period of five years?

Mr. Campbell: Same objection. If the Court please, it is immaterial what this man's plan was.

The Court: It is practically the same as he already answered. He may answer the question.

A. He had to recover an investment of over 140 thousand dollars.

Q. Now, Mr. Mooney, do you have any recollection of having discussed with Mr. Maundrell the matter of amending a partnership return in connection with the Menlo Club for 1945?

A. Yes. [446]

Mr. Campbell: Just a minute—I am going to object as to third parties.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Patrick Mooney.)

The Court: Objection sustained. All right, answer this yes or no.

A. Yes.

Q. As a result of such a discussion, did you prepare a proposed amended or addenda to the amendment of partnership return for the Menlo Club for that year?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as not within the scope of direct examination. If counsel desires to make him his own witness, that is a different matter.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Gillen: Of course, may it please the Court, the theory that it appears the government is pursuing here——

The Court (Interceding): The reason I did not permit testimony in regard to amended returns it came out through Mr. Mooney's presentation of that pencilled copy of 1944 return. If you desire to bring anything further out on these matters, you may do so by making Mr. Mooney your own witness.

Mr. Gillen: Of course, I have no fear of making Mr. Mooney my witness. I may make him my witness at some later time, but since there is involved in this case the question of fraudulent intent upon the part of the defendant, I think [447] cross-examination——

The Court: Let me have the question.

(Question read.)

BLEED THROUGH— POOR COPY

(Testimony of Patrick Mooney.)

Mr. Campbell: I suggest this was result of discussion with a Mr. Maundrell; further it is not within the scope of direct examination; further it is incompetent and immaterial.

The Court: It is not proper cross-examination. Objection sustained.

Mr. Gillen: In connection with Mr. Maundrell, he will be a witness for the government. He has been here from Honolulu, I don't know how long, waiting to appear.

Mr. Campbell: We ask that the jury be instructed to disregard the remarks of counsel.

The Court: The ruling will stand.

Mr. Gillen: Without disregarding, of course, your Honor's ruling, I would like to obtain from Mr. Mooney, and have marked for identification, the particular document I asked for.

The Court: You may do so.

Q. Do you have, Mr. Mooney, a copy of the proposed statement to go with an amended partnership return for the Menlo Club for the year 1945?

A. I believe I have it in the files.

Q. May I show him a photostat—the original of that, Mr. Mooney? While we are looking for that, Mr. Mooney, do you mind if I ask you what is your age, please?

A. I was 81 the 17th of March, 1951. I was born in 1870. [448]

Mr. Gillen: I will ask that this be marked for identification. I take it your Honor is directing me not to pursue the examination on that point any farther?

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Gillen: Very well.

Q. Mr. Mooney, it was part of the duties of every member of the collector's office, not only for the District of Nevada, but everywhere in the United States, to assist any taxpayer who appealed to them in making out, or to make out with them, their returns?

A. Assistance—it is called assisting the taxpayer.

Mr. Gillen: I am going to ask Mr. Campbell, through the Court, your Honor, whether or not he will stipulate he now recalls there was an amended return for the year 1944 made out in pencil in Mr. Mooney's handwriting for Elmer Remmer, as well as the pencilled return that we filed, or copy which we filed as exhibit for the defense.

Mr. Campbell: I ask an opportunity to check that over the evening recess to make sure such a return was filed.

Mr. Gillen: I understood you to say that you did recollect it.

Mr. Campbell: I have some recollection of an amended return, but I want to make sure that is correct. I will be prepared the first thing in the morning.

Mr. Gillen: With regard to Defendant's Exhibit I for [449] identification, may it please the Court,

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Patrick Mooney.)

I would like to ask one question to lay a foundation for introduction of this exhibit at some later time in evidence.

Mr. Campbell: Is this as Mr. Gillen's witness?

The Court: He is going to ask a question for the purpose of identification is all and we will hear the question.

Q. My question is, Mr. Mooney, referring to Defendant's Exhibit I for identification, a communication or statement you prepared for Mr. Maundrell to be attached to amended return of the Menlo Club, did you deliver or mail this to Mr. Maundrell?

Mr. Campbell: May that be answered yes or no?

The Court: Yes.

A. I may have delivered it to him.

Q. I am not seeking necessarily the form in which it came to his attention, but to your knowledge did this proposed statement ever come to his attention, was it brought to his attention by you or in any other manner?

A. Yes, it was brought to his attention.

Mr. Gillen: I think that is all. We are happy to excuse Mr. Mooney, with the understanding he may be on call.

The Court: Counsel may have some more questions.

Mr. Campbell: No, that is all.

(Witness excused.) [450]

Mr. Campbell: I wonder if the defense is ready to proceed with completing cross-examination of Mr. Billington that the government is keeping here at their request?

The Court: How about that, Mr. Gillen? Have you any more cross-examination of Mr. Billington?

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, in regard to the cross-examination of Mr. Billington, the defense is unable to complete that cross-examination without having access to the records of the prosecution. May we suggest he be excused and go back to his business, subject to recall on reasonable notice?

The Court: Is that satisfactory?

Mr. Campbell: Yes.

The Court: Mr. Billington, you may be excused, subject to call on a few days' notice.

having been previously sworn, was recalled on behalf of the plaintiff and testified as follows:

By Mr. Thompson:

Q. Mr. Forrester, you have already testified to your position with the Collector's office with the District of Nevada, have you not? A. I have.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Homer H. Forrester.)

Q. And since your appearance in court to testify in this trial some few days ago, have you personally examined the records of the office of the Collector of Internal Revenue for the District of Nevada for the purpose of determining what income tax returns have been filed since the year 1934 for and on behalf of Elmer Remmer and his wife, Helen L. Remmer? A. I have.

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as asked and answered, was gone into both on direct and cross-examination.

The Court: Objection overruled. The answer may stand.

Q. And as a result of that search, Mr. Forrester, what did you discover in the way of a record of any return having been filed by Elmer L. Remmer, that is, a federal income tax return for the years from 1934 to 1942, inclusive? [452]

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as asked and answered, gone into both on direct and cross-examination previously.

The Court: Read the question.

(Question read.)

Mr. Thompson: My first question referred to search the witness personally made since his first appearance.

The Court: Of course, it assumes that he did discover something. The form of the question might be objectionable.

Q. According to the records and entries in the office of the Internal Revenue for the District of

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Homer H. Forrester.)

Nevada, what federal income tax returns have been filed by Elmer Remmer since 1934 to and including 1946?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as calling for opinion and conclusion. Income tax returns can be filed in any collector's office in the United States. I think he can say what he personally found or did not find.

The Court: I thought that was the purpose of this examination, to determine whether or not he found some returns since the last time he was on the stand, so you may answer the question.

(Question read.)

A. A delinquent 1934 return was filed during the calendar year 1937. I could find no returns for the period 1935 through 1941. Returns were filed for the period 1942 through 1946. [453]

Q. And what is the situation with regard to record or entry of any returns for Helen L. Remmer during the same period?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as leading and suggestive, assuming something not in evidence.

The Court: Objection overruled. You may answer the question.

A. Returns were also filed for Helen L. Remmer for the same years that returns for Elmer Remmer were filed.

Q. And have you found any returns for either Helen Remmer or Elmer Remmer other than those that you have heretofore produced before this court?

Mr. Gillen: Same objection, asked and answered, gone into on direct and cross-examination on the first appearance of this witness. He is asking these questions just to impress——

The Court: Objection overruled. Read the question.

(Question read.)

A. No, except for the years that I have mentioned.

The Court: I don't understand the answer.

(Question and answer read.)

The Court: That doesn't mean much to me.

Q. What do you mean, "except for the years that have been mentioned"?

A. Well, I have found returns subsequent to 1946.

Q. But referring to the period of 1934 to 1946, the ones you have produced are the only ones you have found? [454] A. That's right.

Q. Now, Mr. Forrester, I would like to show you Defendant's E for identification, which has written at the top "Amended Return" on form 1040, for the calendar year 1944, in the name of Helen L. Remmer, and ask you whether an amended return for the year 1944 in that form, or in any form, was filed with the Collector of Internal Revenue for the District of Nevada?

A. No, it wasn't.

Mr. Gillen: I move that the question and answer be stricken, may it please the Court, assuming something not in evidence and calling for conclusion. I think the proper form of the question would be if he found any record of such a record.

The Court: Read the question.

(Question read.)

The Court: Objection will be overruled. The answer may stand.

Q. And Mr. Forrester, was any return filed in form similar to Defendant's Exhibit E for identification, that is an amended return, for the calendar year 1944 for Elmer Remmer?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as calling for opinion and conclusion of the witness and I suggest again the proper form of the question would be, did he find any.

The Court: You referred to the District of Nevada in that question?

Mr. Thompson: Yes, your Honor. [455]

The Court: Objection will be overruled. You may answer the question.

A. No.

Mr. Thompson: You may cross-examine.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Q. Mr. Forrester, it is true, is it not, that a taxpayer might file a return in any collector's office in the United States, is that correct?

A. It is, with the exception that the law provides it should be filed in the district in which the taxpayer maintains his residence or personal place of business.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Homer H. Forrester.)

Q. Well, as a matter of fact, the form itself asks what collector's office you filed your last return, isn't that so, in the lower left-hand corner of the form? A. That's right, yes.

Q. Now, when a tax return is made, what is the machinery for keeping track of what return has been made on that tax return, that is, what credit should be given and what delinquency, if any, should be noted?

A. You are talking about what years?

Q. I am talking about any year of any taxpayer. What is the machinery of your office?

A. Well, we set up an assessment list, showing the tax assessed and the payments made thereon.

Q. And the tax assessed, of course, noted as an assessment, is [456] from the return as made by the taxpayer, is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. And so if the taxpayer said, for example, the tax was fourteen thousand dollars for he and his wife, it would be assessed at that on your assessment roll? A. Yes.

Q. Then there would be some note made as to what payment was made on the 14 thousand dollars assessment? A. That is right.

Q. And if the taxpayer made his complete payment, it would be a washout item, he would be given full credit for the assessment, there would be nothing against him? A. Correct.

Q. On the other hand, if he did not make full

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Homer H. Forrester.)

payment, it would be noted what he still owed as the balance on that assessment? A. Correct.

Q. Then if he made a payment at some later time on that delinquency, of course that would be noted, he would be given credit for whatever payment he made? A. Yes.

Q. Now, I will ask you to look at the prosecution's Exhibits 3 and 4—and with the permission of the Court I will hand these exhibits to the witness—and tell us what tax return was made by Elmer Remmer and Helen Remmer for that year, which I believe [457] is for the year 1945.

A. That is the total tax shown on the return?

Q. Yes.

A. The 1945 return for Helen L. Remmer shows tax of $14,074.29.

Q. That is what Helen L. Remmer owed?

A. Correct; and Elmer Remmer owed $13,072.02.

Q. That is what Elmer Remmer owed?

A. Correct.

Q. The difference in the figures of those might be difference in the deductions, is that correct?

A. It could have, yes.

Q. Now, I will ask you to look at plaintiff's Exhibits 13 and 14, which I will remind you are certificate of assessment and payments which you introduced on your last appearance here, according to the district attorney what the books of your office show against Helen Remmer and Elmer Remmer, and ask you what was paid by the two taxpayers on that 1945 return, as reflected on your transcript there?

BLEED THROUGH— POOR COPY

(Testimony of Homer H. Forrester.)

A. Helen L. Remmer made a payment of $7724.11 on August 1, 1946. On September 3, 1946, a payment of $2,662.02 was made. During the year 1945 she paid $2500 on her declaration of estimated tax.

Q. That was for the next year?

A. No, it was for that year, 1945.

Q. I see, all right. Now, what was the total amount that Helen [458] Remmer paid on that 1945 return? A. Total $12,886.13.

Q. And she owed 14 thousand how much?

A. $14,074.29.

Q. Would you be kind enough to give us the differential? A. $1,188.16.

Q. Now, would you be kind enough to give us what was paid on Elmer Remmer's tax for that year and give us the difference, if the full amount was not paid?

A. A payment on April 4, 1946, in the amount of $7,000. A payment was made on September 3, 1946, in amount of $2,662.05. A payment had been made on August 19, 1945, of $2500 on declaration of estimated tax. The total payments made were $12,162.05. The tax shown on the return, $13,072.02, would leave a difference of $909.97.

Q. So, on Mrs. Remmer's tax, there was something in excess of a thousand dollars owing, that is, $1,188.16 due on Mrs. Remmer's tax for that year, and $909.97 on Mr. Remmer's tax, is that correct? A. Did you say due?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Homer H. Forrester.)

Q. Unpaid, according to the figures that you gave us there.

A. No, it would show that they were overpaid by that amount.

Q. That they were overpaid by that amount? I thought you said Mrs. Remmer owed a tax of $14,074.29 and had only paid a total, including the estimate, of $12,886.13, leaving an unpaid balance [459] of $1,188.16, isn't that correct?

Mr. Campbell: That is objected to as stating something not in evidence. The question of the witness was what was shown on the face of the return.

Mr. Gillen: All right; he said it was so placed on the assessment roll, as I understood, the return was accepted and placed on the assessment roll and that is the amount that was collected on.

The Court: That is what I thought.

Mr. Campbell: That is not my understanding, your Honor.

The Court: Objection will be overruled. You may answer the question.

Q. Do you have the question in mind, Mr. Forrester?

A. I am sorry; it would show that amount due.

Q. And for Mr. Remmer your figures that you gave us was a return which was placed on the assessment roll, I presume, showing that Mr. Remmer owed $13,072.02 and that he paid a total of $12,162.05, leaving a balance due of $909.97, is that correct? A. That is correct.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Homer H. Forrester.)

Q. When there is a blance due on a tax such as indicated here, what is the machinery of your office with regard to collecting that balance due? What do you do about it?

A. Well, we send the taxpayer's notice and demand for the payment of the tax.

Q. Do your office records reflect that such was done here? [460] A. I couldn't say.

Q. Now, another thing can happen, can it not, with regard to a balance reflected on the books. For example, an amended return can be made, showing that there was a full payment or an overpayment, isn't that true?

A. I don't exactly get the question.

Q. Perhaps I am not making myself clear. For example, one of the things that could happen on your books would be the filing, for example, in Mr. Remmer's case, of an amended return, showing that the tax originally figured was too high and that he may have overpaid and had a credit due him; that could happen, isn't that so? A. That is true.

Q. And it could be also that a credit could be reflected for a prior year, isn't that true, by reason of an overpayment of a prior year?

A. By filing an amended return.

Q. Yes, or an audit, showing there had been overpayment for the prior year, is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, if an overpayment for a prior year were revealed and for a subsequent year there was a balance due your office, would you offset that, that is, give the taxpayer the credit for any overpayment, is that true? A. That is right. [461]

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Homer H. Forrester.)

Q. What occurred in this case, with reference to the reflected payments here showing a $909.97 balance due from Mr. Remmer and $1188.16 due from Mrs. Remmer? Was there ever a notice sent to these taxpayers on that?

A. I couldn't state whether there was or not.

Q. Was the money ever collected, those balances?

A. It appears not from the certification.

Q. Was there ever a credit given which offset those balances?

A. I couldn't state without the assessment list just what was done with the balance.

Q. Well, somebody looked at the assessment list and you prepared these documents that form the prosecution's Exhibits 13 and 14, isn't that true?

A. Correct.

Q. And according to your assessment list those balances were just left up in the air, nothing ever done about them, isn't that true? I say according to the list. A. According to the list, yes.

Q. And you wouldn't say, as a deputy collector, that that was the fact, that nobody ever did anything about sending out any notices trying to collect that money, would you? A. No.

Q. So there is something wrong about that, isn't there? A. Yes.

Q. And you are not prepared now to say what the assessment [462] list reflects with regard to any credits and payments, except what you have shown us here and what was prepared and brought in here as an exhibit? A. Right.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Homer H. Forrester.)

Q. Are returns ever misplaced or lost in your office? A. Not to my knowledge.

Q. Has there ever been an instance of a return or an amended return going astray in your office?

A. Not to my knowledge.

Q. How many of these returns do you handle in this District of Nevada?

A. Amended returns or regular returns?

Q. All kinds of returns, all income tax returns, what is the approximate total?

A. Well, during 1945 I would say roughly forty to fifty thousand.

Q. And has that number increased since that time?

A. It has increased since that time.

Q. So it was between forty to fifty thousand in 1945, is that correct?

A. That would be my guess, yes.

Q. And it is your testimony that to your knowledge nothing ever went astray out of 40 to 50 thousand returns that were made?

A. To my knowledge. [463]

Q. But you do observe, from the exhibits and from the returns that you hold in your hand, all of which are prosecution's exhibits, that there is something that went astray in regard to the balance that is shown on those two returns?

A. Yes. I notice this claim six thousand dollars; both claim six thousand dollars payment on their estimated tax, whereas they only paid $2500.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Homer H. Forrester.)

Q. So something is astray right at that point?

A. That has been adjusted though.

Q. How has it been adjusted?

A. By an additional assessment of $3500.

Q. Where does that show?

A. On the upper left-hand corner of the return.

Q. Well, if that was done, it would put us in the position we were before, isn't that correct, that there is still something wrong about the balance?

A. It would be.

Q. Now, I am going to show you, with the Court's permission, Mr. Forrester, defendant's Exhibit E for identification, which I believe has been mentioned as a purported amended return for Helen Remmer for the year 1944. Mr. Forrester, if a return was made with a remittance by check or cash, if the return went astray, would the remittance be reflected as a credit on your assessment?

A. It would. [464]

Q. So that it is possible that an amended return could go astray but still since the money to take up the balance did come into your hands, it would be properly deposited and noted and reflected as a credit for the benefit of the taxpayer on your assessment roll, is that correct? A. Correct.

Q. How long are returns kept in your office, Mr. Forrester?

A. Well, there are two classifications of returns. The collector's returns are retained for a period of six years from the date they are filed. The agent's or Bureau's returns are retained for a longer period of time.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Homer H. Forrester.)

Q. So that anything that was filed before the year 1942 in the way of a return would no doubt have been destroyed by your office, is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. And so, when you stated that you found no returns between 1934 and 1941, where did you get that information?

A. From the assessment list.

Q. The assessment list doesn't show a return; it shows only what is chargeable to the taxpayer and what credit is given, is that so?

A. Correct.

Q. And so, whether or not a return ever existed for those years, you are unable to say now?

A. I can say, return was not and income tax due was not filed. [465] If a non-taxable return was filed, it wouldn't show on our assessment list.

Q. So the fact of the matter is this, that if I, prior to those years manifested, had filed with your office—this is by way of illustration—had filed with your office a tax return, showing no tax due by reason of lack of income or by reason of proper deductions, it would not show on your assessment roll, is that correct? A. Correct.

Q. And at this date the actual return showing no tax due from me would have been destroyed, is that correct? A. If it was a collector's return.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Homer H. Forrester.)

Q. Collector's return prior to six years to this date, or April, 1942? A. Correct.

Q. And so there would be no record of whether I ever filed a return that year or not?

A. Ordinarily there would be an index record. In other words, we prepare index cards when the return is filed, which we file in alphabetical order, of all returns filed, including the taxable and the non-taxable.

Q. You say ordinarily; what do you mean by ordinarily?

A. I say we do prepare those index cards.

Q. You used the term "ordinarily"; do you mean sometimes it is not done? [466]

A. No, it is always done.

Q. Now, if you had income tax return for the year 1934, showing taxable return filed, and then in the intervening years there was no tax due, what would be the situation in that instance?

Q. There would be index cards for all the returns for those years.

Q. Now, did you search those index cards?

A. No.

Q. You did not?

A. They were destroyed in the flood we had in 1950. We had the prior index cards stored in our basement. That was the reason that search was made through the assessment list.

Q. So that whatever records you may have had of any taxpayer's returns, whether taxable or non-

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Homer H. Forrester.)

taxable, for a period of time prior to 1942 have been destroyed?

A. No, the assessment lists are still in our possession.

Q. I mean with reference to the indexes.

A. The index cards for those years——

Q. What years were covered——

Mr. Campbell: He hadn't finished his answer.

Mr. Gillen: I am sorry.

(Question and answer read.)

Mr. Gillen: Maybe I can reframe the question.

Q. It is my understanding of your testimony, Mr. Forrester, that between the years 1934 and 1942 that you still have a [467] record in your office of any taxable returns that were made, is that correct? A. Correct.

Q. As to non-taxable returns, you have no record, by reason of the fact, first of all, that non-taxable returns do not appear on the assessment roll, and by reason of the fact that, due to this act of God that you mentioned, your index cards were destroyed? A. Correct.

Q. The cards were destroyed for what period of time, Mr. Forrester?

A. The index cards prior to 1942, including 1942 and prior.

Q. Were destroyed? A. Right.

Q. In your storage room in the basement of the building, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. So that at this moment you can not say now

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Homer H. Forrester.)

whether or not there was any record, by way of index card, showing the filing of non-taxable returns by Elmer Remmer and his wife, Helen Remmer? A. That's right.

Mr. Gillen: I think that is all.

a witness on behalf of the plaintiff, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct Examination

By Mr. Thompson:

Q. Will you state your name, please?

A. William Greenhouse.

Q. Where do you live?

A. Lawrence, Long Island.

Q. That is in New York State? A. Yes.

Q. What is your business?

A. Custom tailors; 18 East 53rd Street, New York.

Q. What is the name of your firm?

A. Corrado-Greenhouse, Inc.

Q. What is your position with that company?

A. I am president of the company.

Q. How long have you been an officer of Corrado-Greenhouse?

A. Since its inception, about 17 years ago.

Q. You have been president of the company continuously through that time? A. Yes.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William Greenhouse.)

Q. What is the nature of your business?

A. Men's custom tailors; everything made to measure. The price today is $235 a suit.

Q. Have you brought with you the original ledgers of Corrado-Greenhouse relating to account of Elmer Remmer? [469]

A. I brought the original cash books and have made a record from them.

Mr. Thompson: Your Honor, I have a record here covering the years 1944, 1945 and 1946 for account of Elmer Remmer with Corrado-Greenhouse, which has been marked plaintiff's Exhibit 71 for identification.

Mr. Gillen: The defense is prepared to stipulate that this may be offered in evidence, subject to whatever explanation we may require in the way of cross-examination.

The Court: Very well.

Mr. Thompson: We offer it in evidence, your Honor, Exhibit 71.

The Court: They are understood to be records kept in the regular course of business?

Mr. Thompson: Yes, your Honor, the witness has produced his original ledger books. He has made a transcript of them.

The Court: I didn't hear any testimony in regard to it. I just want to know if counsel will stipulate that?

Mr. Gillen: Yes, your Honor.

Q. Mr. Greenhouse, I show you plaintiff's Exhibit 71. Will you state the total of the payments which were made Carrado-Greenhouse by Mr. Elmer Remmer during the year 1944? A. $1542.00.

Q. And what were those payments for? [470]

A. Those payments were for clothes.

Q. Do you know Mr. Remmer personally?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And have you personally waited on him?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Fitted him?

A. Well, I don't do the fitting. Mr. Carrodo does the fitting and I wouldn't be the only one who sold. There are others besides, but I sold him on several occasions.

Q. Referring to the year 1945, what is the total amount which Mr. Elmer Remmer paid Carrodo-Greenhouse during that year?

A. Five hundred dollars.

Q. What were those payments for?

A. Also for clothes.

Q. During the year 1946 what is the total amount of payments made by Mr. Elmer Remmer to Carrodo-Greenhouse?

A. Six hundred three dollars.

Q. What were those payments for?

A. For clothes.

Mr. Thompson: You may cross-examine.

Cross-Examination

Mr. Campbell: That is the one with the clerk's stamp on it.

Mr. Gillen: I think the sheet in duplication should be withdrawn.

Mr. Campbell: Then why not substitute this for the other?

Mr. Gillen: Whatever way, as long as it is not a duplication. I think we should remove the third sheet, may it please the Court, and leave the transcript showing the other two sheets for each year.

Mr. Thompson: We have no objections, your Honor, if the clerk's stamp may be placed on the exhibit as Exhibit 71.

The Court: Very well.

Mr. Gillen: No cross-examination.

a witness on behalf of the plaintiff, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Will you state your name, please?

A. Chris R. Weisz.

Q. Where do you reside?

A. 1614 30th Avenue, San Francisco.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Chris R. Weisz.)

Q. What is your business? [472]

A. Deputy collector in the San Francisco office of the Internal Revenue.

Q. How long have you been a deputy collector in the San Francisco office?

A. Since December 7, 1942.

Q. In other words, for a period of nine years, is that correct? A. Nine years.

Q. And to what particular part of the collector's office are you assigned?

A. Well, the regular duties of a deputy collector.

Q. No, are you attached to any particular division of the collector's office?

A. At the present time with the cabaret and admissions tax division.

Q. As a deputy collector, do you have access to the official files and records of the collector of internal revenue for the First Collection District of California? A. Yes.

Q. And as a deputy collector, have you been designated as the official to produce here certain records of the collector's office? A. I have.

Q. And did you personally secure those records?

A. I did.

Q. You have been asked to produce here certain returns, (1) [473] relative to a partnership known as the 21 Club. I will ask you if you have the partnership return for 1944 of the 21 Club?

A. I do.

Q. Will you produce that?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Chris R. Weisz.)

Mr. Campbell: May this be marked for identification?

The Court: No. 72.

Mr. Campbell: May I state, your Honor, this witness will produce a number of returns, so for the sake of time, and if counsel will agree, may I have him produce them seriatum and they can be examined all at one time.

The Court: I think so.

Q. Have you also produced the partnership return, also for the year 1944, of that same 21 Club?

A. I have.

Mr. Campbell: I will ask to have this marked plaintiff's 72A for identification.

The Court: What was 72?

Mr. Campbell: No. 72 is partnership return of the 21 Club for a portion of the period 1944, while 72A purports to be of the entire year 1944.

Q. Have you also produced here a partnership return purporting to be a combined return for the 21 Club and the San Diego Social Club for the year 1946? A. I have.

Q. Will you produce that? [474]

Mr. Campbell: May this be marked 73 for identification?

Q. Now, have you also produced here the 1944 partnership return of the 311 Club? A. Yes.

Q. And do you have the 1945 partnership return for that organization? A. Yes.

Q. And the 1946 return for the 311 Club?

A. I do.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Chris R. Weisz.)

Mr. Campbell: I will ask that the 1944 return be marked 74 for identification, the 1945 return be marked 75 for identification, and the 1946 return be marked 76 for identification.

Q. Mr. Weisz, in regard to the B & R Smoke Shoppe, have you produced here the 1943 partnership return? A. I have.

Q. Have you also produced the 1944 partnership return? A. I have.

Mr. Campbell: The 1943 partnership return I will ask to have marked 77 for identification and the 1944 return 78 for identification.

Q. Mr. Weisz, did you personally make an examination and search for the purpose of determining whether or not a 1945 partnership return was filed for the B & R Smoke Shoppe?

A. I did.

Q. What did such search disclose? [475]

A. No record.

Q. No record of any being filed?

A. No record of any being filed.

Q. Have you produced here the 1946 partnership return of the B & R Smoke Shoppe?

A. I have.

Mr. Campbell: I will ask to have this marked 79 for identification.

Q. Mr. Weisz, in regard to a partnership known as the 110 Eddy Street, I will ask if you have produced here the 1943, 1944, 1945 and 1946 partnership returns? A. I have.

Mr. Gillen: May I suggest, unless there is a great many more, if we got all these before recess we could examine them.

The Court: Very well, go ahead.

Q. With regard to 186 Club, a corporation, I will ask you if you have produced here, with regard to the fiscal year 1944, the tentative and original returns for that year? A. I have.

Q. And have you also produced the tentative and original returns for the fiscal year 1945?

A. I have.

Mr. Campbell: I will ask that the tentative return of the 186 Club for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1944, be marked 87 for identification and that the original return of the 186 Club for the

Q. Mr. Weisz, did you personally make a search to determine whether or not an income and excess profits tax return, or either, were filed for the 186 Club for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1946? [477]

A. Yes.

Q. And what did such search disclose?

A. No record.

Q. With regard to the Menlo Club, a partnership, I will ask you if you have produced here the 1945 partnership return, the 1946 partnership return, and the 1946 amended partnership return of the Menlo Club? A. I have.

Q. Will you produce them?

Mr. Campbell: I will ask that the 1945 partnership return of the Menlo Club be marked government's 89 for identification, that the 1946 return be marked government's exhibit 90 for identification, and that the 1946 amended return be marked 91 for identification.

Q. Mr. Weisz, I will ask you also if you have produced here the 1946 partnership return of the Transit Smoke Shop, a partnership?

In Chambers—11:15 A.M.

(Defendant not present.)

(All attorneys present.)

Mr. Golden: I would like the record to show that all counsel are here in chambers and we waive the presence of the defendant.

Mr. Pike: May I say this, there is a provision in one of the federal rules that the defendant shall be present at all proceedings of the trial. Now, if this is something that requires the attendance of the defendant, I do not want any error in the record for non-compliance with that rule, and I would like to refer to Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure——

The Court: If this is part of our regular court procedure, a matter which belongs to and is a part of the trial of this case, it is going to be in open court and the public invited. I have just this thought, I do not see why we should have to have part of court sessions in chambers and the public barred. These trials are supposed to be public.

Mr. Golden: That is all right, let us have the jury there then.

The Court: If you want them there. It all depends. I want to see what the statement is for before it goes to the jury.

BLURRED COPY

Mr. Golden: Well, as to the matter of the defendant, I [479] said I would waive the presence of the defendant.

Mr. Gillen: Our only thought is, if the matter is taken up in the presence of the jury, they will hear actually what takes place; if it is taken up out of their hearing, they get a garbled account of what occurred if they happen to read the papers and that is what we want to guard against. Sometimes you read these reports in the paper and wonder if they are reporting the same trial you are conducting.

The Court: I want to let in the light of day on all our affairs. I do not mean to say counsel does not feel the same way, but I do not want to put myself in any case in a position for criticism that we have star chamber sessions in our court trials.

Mr. Golden: It would not be star chamber session if counsel on both sides were present.

Mr. Gillen: It will be in the record.

The Court: So if there is any statement made, we will have it in open court in the absence of the jury. I thought it was to be a conference for something but if it is going to constitute a part of the procedure in this trial and be something going into the record, constituting a portion of the record of the trial, we can not have it here.

Mr. Golden: When we shall have it?

The Court: We can have it right now in open court. [480]

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

11:20 A.M.

(In the absence of the jury.)

The Court: Court will be in session. Let the record show the presence of the defendant with counsel.

Mr. Golden: If the Court please, the defense requests permission to advise your Honor of its position in regard to the matters yesterday in connection with the subpoena served upon Mr. Semenza for the production of certain material.

There are three different categories, your Honor, into which the material called for by that subpoena falls. The first category is the matter of the three checks in connection with the testimony of Mr. Mooney which, as your Honor will recall, are apparently somewhere that neither side knows, and the photostats from the Examiner newspaper were produced by us and accepted by everybody as substitutes, so we can consider that that part of the subpoena is finished. That is correct, is it not?

Mr. Campbell: That is correct.

Mr. Golden: Now, the other two remaining groups consist, in the first place, of the books of account and other records pertaining to the Cal-Neva corporation. As to that group of records and material, we do not claim any legal privileges, that is to say, we agree that when properly subpoenaed they are available to the party issuing the subpoena, and although they were not in the possession of Mr. Semenza at the time that they were subpoenaed, we are willing to produce them at the [481] request of the prosecution. We urgently and sincerely suggest, however, that they be produced in such a way that we will have equal access to them and convenient access to them during the course of this trial, and your Honor, of course, is aware of the physical difficulties—most of counsel on both sides are living in Reno and I do not think it is necessary to go into detail of the physical difficulties there at the moment.

BLURRED COPY

The Court: That is a matter I wish you would take up with Congress, so we can have a courthouse built in Reno.

Mr. Golden: In connection with those records, the Cal-Neva corporate records, your Honor, we are today, the defendant's staff are today, going through the material and getting those out and we can make them available by Monday, providing we can work out some way that they don't have to be taken back and forth every day and some way that both sides can look at them when court is not in session.

Now, the remaining group consists of records which Mr. Campbell himself has stated yesterday in court, are the property of the defendant, in that the government contends that he was a partner or part owner, or perhaps in some cases sole owner, of the enterprises of which they are records. As to those, if the Court please, Mr. Campbell himself stated yesterday—this is on page 408 of the transcript—that it would be highly improper to subpoena them in the hands of the defendant's attorneys. [482] Without going into detail, we submit that the Court's order to us to produce the same is not sanctioned by law, is contrary to the law and is unfair and unjust to the defendant and deprives him of the rights guaranteed him by law and the Constitution. We, of course, have no intention of defying the Court and if the Court, notwithstanding our position, wants their production, that production will be made. At the same time today people are going through the records over there to get out what was called for by the subpoena, which is in this last group of material, namely, concerning the enterprises in which the government says the defendant is part or sole owner. All the material over there is mixed up with our own work sheets and our own memoranda and it is going to take a little time to get things separated. There is, I might say, in volume a considerable mass of material, probably fill a couple of large packing cases.

Now, in connection with that material also, we would like the record to show that it is necessary for us to refer to it daily and that it will hamper us if the material remains on deposit here with the clerk, whose official offices are such and whose location, compared with the temporary residences of counsel is such, that it makes it very difficult to get at the material.

Furthermore, if the Court please, while we are not prepared today to go into detail as to the legal reasons why it [483] would be error—and I say that respectfully—error and prejudicial error to enforce the Court's order of yesterday, we do feel that there are authorities as to court decisions on the subject and would like permission to present the same on Monday, in other words, giving us the week end as opportunity to assemble.

So I say we make this statement for the purpose of clarifying the record and we want the record to be very clear, your Honor, that as to the non-corporate records covered by the subpoena which was served on Mr. Semenza, if we produce them in accordance with the Court's order, which we will do if that order stands, that we are producing them only in accordance with the Court's order and under respectful protest and only because of the Court's order and insisting all along that not only would we be deprived practically of the means of preparing our defense, that is, for the purpose of consulting those matters during the trial, but also legally the Court's order is entirely without due sanction of law.

The Court: Well, we may have some interesting legal questions raised here and questions which should be carefully considered by the Court and will be carefully considered by the Court.

Getting back to the situation yesterday, we had Mr. Semenza testify here he received these records which we have in mind here now, from a Mr. [484] Weaver and there was a receipt or something to the effect that would indicate that the records were to be returned to Mr. Weaver, isn't that so?

Mr. Golden: That is correct, your Honor; yes.

The Court: So the agent, you might say, of this defendant, Mr. Semenza, obtained these records from the Internal Revenue Department on a promise to return to the Internal Revenue Department.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

Mr. Golden: Your Honor starts in the middle, if I may say so respectfully.

The Court: That is the part I first heard and that is a good place to start from. Now that is it. Mr. Semenza received these from Mr. Weaver of the Internal Revenue Department on promise to return them. What did he do? Turned them over to some other agent of the defendant, a Mr. Friedman, and then to counsel, and they are still in the hands of counsel. They have never been returned to the Internal Revenue office, which is where they belong. I made that order yesterday and you have two hours to comply with it, I think—2½ hours—and I want those records here or at this clerk's office at two o'clock. Then when we get the records over here, we will come to your legal points on the question of whether or not they should be admitted in evidence. [485]

Mr. Golden: Now, your Honor, we have no objection——

The Court (Interceding): Now, when this came up yesterday I wondered if my order was a little bit out of line, but after being informed of these matters, the questions of law in regard to these partnership records, they go to the question of whether or not any of these records are admissible in evidence, but still the situation appears to me to be this, that the defendant obtained the records for inspection purposes on a promise to return them and did not return them. Now I want them returned.

BLURRED COPY

Mr. Golden: So did the government, your Honor; they obtained them——

The Court (Interceding): I am talking about the defendant.

Mr. Golden: We are talking about the government. There are two parties here.

The Court: Then after this situation was opened up and we found there was a question as to whether or not they would be legally admissible, Mr. Campbell stated yesterday that this order be made, isn't that correct?

Mr. Campbell: Yes, your Honor; that they be delivered to the clerk. [486]

The Court: There is no chance for the defendant being deprived of any constitutional privilege by having those records deposited with the clerk.

Mr. Golden: Well, your Honor, we have no objection to deferring the legal argument as to what is to happen to them until they are deposited here, if that is the Court's order.

The Court: I made the order and from your remarks here I took it that you did not intend to comply with it. You were talking about somebody going through the records and examining them. I want that order complied with. At two o'clock I want these records here.

Mr. Golden: Your Honor, as a practical matter I stated yesterday, and I am going to state today under oath that those records are physically mixed up with other matter not called for by the subpoena, not admissible in evidence, our own memoranda and so on, and it may take a little further time——

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

The Court (Interceding): Yesterday I let you fix your own time. I suggested 10:00 o'clock and then on the suggestion of counsel made it two o'clock. Here is my position. I don't want to appear to be severe. I am not severe, I do not think I am, but I just don't want to be pushed around by any one, in court or out. Now, I made an order and I expect it to be complied with. [487]

Mr. Golden: Of course, your Honor, we couldn't get there and back.

The Court: Well, you had all night to get them and all day yesterday.

Mr. Golden: I would like——

The Court (Interceding): What do you think I meant when I said two o'clock yesterday afternoon? What did you think I meant?

Mr. Golden: I thought when I told your Honor——

The Court: Why didn't you tell me at that time?

Mr. Golden: Because I didn't know, your Honor. I thought when we explained the practical difficulties, it wouldn't be a matter and that order of two o'clock wouldn't be any particular significance and we could have, if your Honor will put it that way, an extension.

The Court: Well, we have to get an understanding some time or other. It could very well happen what I said yesterday had no significance and what I say today would likewise have no significance.

Mr. Golden: I think your Honor is——

BLURRED COPY

The Court (Interceding): I just don't like the idea of any one obtaining records from any person or governmental agency or from an individual on a promise to return and then have them scattered around the country and not returned. [488]

Mr. Golden: I say this respectfully, I think your Honor is unduly apprehensive about pushing the Court around.

The Court: Let us not go into any outside matters. I want the records here at two o'clock.

Mr. Golden: Will it be understood they will remain sealed until such time——

The Court (Interceding): They will be brought and left in the custody of the clerk and they will not be sealed. They were not sealed when taken out by Mr. Semenza.

Mr. Golden: You see what is happening. The prosecution, over the week end, is going through them before we have a chance.

The Court: I don't know whether they will or not.

Mr. Golden: They will.

The Court: They would have had opportunity to look through them if Mr. Semenza had returned them to the revenue office.

Mr. Glidden: Of course, as Mr. Golden says, your Honor is starting in the middle. Because something comes up, your Honor immediately seizes upon as a piece of——

The Court (Interceding): I don't think it is unfair, in view of the record here and the situation, I don't think it is proper to take those records and not return them to the Internal Revenue. [489]

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

Mr. Gillen: Your Honor understands what the law is, the Internal Revenue only has the right to inspect records of a defendant and not to have possession of them. I think that was pointed out by Mr. Avakian.

While we are talking, I would like to say this—I am afraid your Honor mistakes vehement and earnest advocacy from the floor of the court room for personal affront on the Court.

The Court: No, I do not.

Mr. Gillen: It has never been intended as such. It is strong advocacy—perhaps we are a little more vehement than your Honor is used to encountering, but it is done in the nature of sincere realization of our duty as advocates for the defendant whom we represent.

The Court: Do not think I have any feeling at all. I am not going to pursue that any more. I have no feeling. What I hear from you has just as much consideration as coming from any gentleman in this room. Now don't think there is any feeling at all. I have not any. I am trying to be, and will continue to try to be, fair but when we make an order, we are going to have that order obeyed.

Mr. Golden: Your Honor, I want the record to show that this material was originally taken upon promise of Mr. Weaver to return it to us——

The Court: I only go this far back and no farther—Mr. [490] Semenza obtained those records with the understanding he was to return them.

BLURRED COPY

Mr. Golden: The government never got title to them and it is our property.

The Court: Well, we will call in the jury.

Mr. Golden: And to deliver these to the court and leave open to inspection of the prosecution is unfair and unjust and prejudicial error and not the American idea.

The Court: Let us not have any trouble and I do not want to punish you, but I am not going to let you fill this record with that kind of remarks. Now please stop; no more. Call in the jury.

(Jury returned into court at 11:40.)

Direct Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Mr. Gillen: With regard, may it please the Court, to the exhibits which were offered this morning, that would be [491] prosecution's 72 to 92,

BLEED THROUGH— POOR COPY

(Testimony of Chris R. Weisz.)

inclusive, and included among those are several bearing additional "A" designations, such as 72A, 87A and 88A, the defense is willing to stipulate that they may be offered in evidence if the prosecution so desires, subject, of course, to motion to strike in the event there is any need for it.

Mr. Campbell: Then they will be offered with that agreement.

The Court: Very well, exhibits numbered 72 to 92, inclusive, including 72A, 87A, and 88A, are admitted in evidence.

Q. Mr. Weisz, did you also personally make a search of the files and records of the Collector of Internal Revenue for the Northern District of California, for the purpose of ascertaining whether or not any income tax returns were filed in that office for or on behalf of Elmer or Helen Remmer for the years 1935 to 1941, inclusive? A. I did.

Q. And what did such search disclose?

A. No record.

Q. Incidentally, in connection with the records which are kept there and the method which is followed when an income tax return is filed by an individual, what record is made of it?

A. A 3 by 5 card is made of every income tax return that is filed. [492]

Q. Is that made whether or not the return shows a taxable income? A. Yes.

Q. And for what period of time is that record maintained?

A. Well, they are there from the beginning of the income tax period, 1913.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Chris R. Weisz.)

Q. And in what form are they kept?

A. The 3 by 5 cards, I believe, up to 1944;—I am not quite sure—are kept on microfilms.

Q. That is for the purpose of compressing the record, saving space, is that correct?

A. Saving storage space.

Q. And did you examine the microfilms for the years 1935 and 1941 inclusive, that is, for the purpose of determining whether or not any returns had been filed by those individuals for any of these years? A. I did.

Q. And you state you found no record, is that correct? A. No record.

Q. Incidentally, what territorial limits does the collector in San Francisco cover?

A. Well, I don't know what the south boundary is.

Q. It does, however, cover all of northern California?

Mr. Gillen: I don't think counsel should lead. If the witness doesn't know, he doesn't know. I offer the objection. [493]

Mr. Campbell: That is a matter of law, of course. I think that is all. You may cross-examine.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Q. Mr. Weisz, any index card records that are kept in your office are kept only for the Northern District of California, is that correct?

A. Yes.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Chris R. Weisz.)

Q. So it wouldn't reflect what had been filed for any other district? A. No, sir.

Q. When did you change from the card system to the microphoto system?

A. Well, they done that possibly about two years ago, they came in and microfilmed the cards.

Q. How long have you been up here under direction to be in this court?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial.

Mr. Gillen: It is preliminary to asking another question regarding his personal services.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. When did you make this search of the index cards?

A. Well, within a few days before coming up here.

Q. When was that, can you fix the time better?

A. I made this search during the week of the 19th of November, 19, 20, 21, 22, and 23 I worked on these returns. [494]

Q. Who was it that told you to search and see if there was any index card for Elmer Remmer or Helen Remmer in San Francisco?

A. Well, I got my first orders from Mr. McCall, the assistant collector, to see——

Mr. Campbell: I think that answers the question, what instructions he got. He was asked from whom he got the instructions.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Chris R. Weisz.)

The Court: I don't think he answered the question. He said he got his first orders—he may go ahead.

(Question and answer read.)

A. (Continuing): ——to see Mr. Campbell, the attorney, and I saw Mr. Weaver and Mr. Shelton and they gave me the data that was required.

Q. And included in your instructions was the request made to you, were you specifically told, to see if there was any index card for Elmer Remmer or Helen Remmer, or either of them, between 1935 and 1941? A. Yes.

Q. And that was some time prior to the 19th of October? A. No, that was during that week.

Q. During the week, as I understand, you made your search, you got your instructions prior to the 19th, did you not, or at least on the 19th?

A. Yes, probably on the 19th. [495]

Q. Was that October or November, did you say?

A. November.

Q. November, I beg your pardon. Now I understood you to say that you had made a personal search of the records and had obtained and produced the various returns for various partnerships which have been mentioned here and which are now admitted under designations of prosecution's Exhibits 72 to 92 inclusive, including several others that have a special designation of the number with an "A" attached. Is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. And I understood you to say that you found,

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Chris R. Weisz.)

with regard to the 186 Club, that you found returns for 1944 and 1945, but not return for 1946, is that correct? A. That's right.

Q. Then with regard to that same enterprise, 186 Club, were you requested to obtain, or did you look for a return for 1943? A. Yes.

Q. Were you able to find any?

A. We have a return for the fiscal year 1943.

Q. We are talking about the 186 Club?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you find any returns for the year 1943?

Mr. Campbell: I submit he just answered he found return for the fiscal year '43.

Q. Did you find any return for the fiscal year 1943? [496]

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as asked and answered.

The Court: Well, you may proceed.

A. I found a partnership return.

Q. Did you find any other returns for that year for the 186 Club?

A. I have a note here, says 6-30-42 on form 1121.

Q. Do you have that return?

A. Well, that was one of those that was introduced in evidence.

Q. No, on the 1943 return. Do you have that with you?

Mr. Campbell: According to our records that is introduced, for the fiscal year beginning July 1,

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Chris R. Weisz.)

1943, and ending June 30, 1944, being plaintiff's Exhibit 87.

A. That is what I refer to, 6-30-43.

Q. You say that you found 6-30-43, is that correct?

A. Well, for the fiscal year beginning 6-30-43.

Q. Now counsel stated a moment ago that that return I am referring to is now prosecution's exhibit 87. I think if counsel will look at it, he will find out it is for the next fiscal year, 6-30-44.

Mr. Campbell: Fiscal year beginning July 1, 1943, and ending June 30, 1944.

Mr. Gillen: That is not what you said.

Mr. Campbell: The exhibit speaks for itself, if the Court please.

Mr. Gillen: I think we are talking at cross purposes. [497]

Q. Do you have a return with you for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1943? A. Yes.

Q. May I see it please?

(Defendant's Exhibit J.)

Q. How many returns are handled by the Collector for the Northern District of California, on an average, do you know?

A. Approximately two million.

Mr. Campbell: That is per annum?

A. That is for the year.

Q. What was the situation with regard to the number of returns handled in the years between 1942 and 1946? Was it about the same, if you are familiar with it?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Chris R. Weisz.)

A. Well, I wouldn't put any figure on what they were in 1942. They were somewhat less, of course, more taxpayers now than there were then. During the present time they are handling approximately two million returns.

Q. In the Northern District of California you say there were somewhat less taxpayers in 1942? Do you have any information on the intervening years, or any knowledge? A. No.

Q. In the office of the Collector of the Northern District of California have you any knowledge of whether or not returns are ever mislaid or lost?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to. He can question if some particular [498] returns have been mislaid or lost.

The Court: He may answer the question.

A. Well, not to my knowledge.

Q. You never heard of a case?

Mr. Campbell: As to hearsay, I object.

The Court: That may be.

Mr. Gillen: I will reframe the question.

Q. Has it ever come to your attention or knowledge that any return was mislaid or lost out of two million returns handled?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as hearsay.

The Court: Overruled. You may answer the question.

(Question read.)

Q. In any year? A. Well, not officially.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Chris R. Weisz.)

Q. What do you mean by that, "not officially." Do things get lost officially and unofficially in your office?

Mr. Campbell: If the Court please, if it hasn't come to his knowledge officially——

The Court: I think we are dealing in things not so important right now. You may proceed.

A. Well, you might hear of some return being missing, but you might not be officially connected with that return; therefore, so far as I am concerned, I don't recall any return I have searched for or had anything to do with as being mislaid, that I recall. [499]

Q. Now you personally searched for the 1946 return of the 186 Club, did you not? A. Yes.

Q. You made that search personally?

A. Yes.

Q. And you found no record of any return for 1946 for the 186 Club? A. That's right.

Q. And that is the reason that you testified here today that there was no 1946 return for the 186 Club, is that correct?

A. As far as my search went, I couldn't find anything.

Q. And of course I am referring to the 1946 return, I am referring to the fiscal year ending in June of 1946. A. Yes, I understand that.

Q. You could find none and there is none brought with you that is any such return?

A. There was no record of it that I could find.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Chris R. Weisz.)

Q. I will show you here a letter on a letterhead, and I will ask you if you recognize the letterhead and the signature? You may answer that yes or no.

A. Yes.

Mr. Gillen: I would like this marked for identification, may it please the Court.

The Court: K.

Q. I am going to show you the exhibit again—counsel has seen [500] it—can you tell us whose letterhead that is and whose signature is attached thereto?

Mr. Campbell: That is objected to unless it is shown that this witness has any familiarity with the contents of the letter.

The Court: I think the witness has identified the letter. Do you want to offer it?

Mr. Gillen: Yes, I will offer it in evidence.

Mr. Campbell: Objected to, no proper foundation laid.

The Court: Overruled. Proceed with your questions.

(Question read.)

A. That is the letterhead of the Treasury Department, Internal Revenue Services, on the office of Internal Revenue agent Harliss.

Q. At what place? A. San Francisco.

Q. Are you familiar with the signature appearing on that letter? A. No.

Q. Do you know a man by the name of Harliss in the Internal Revenue Service?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Chris R. Weisz.)

A. I know of him.

Q. What is this man's position in the Internal Revenue?

A. He was Internal Revenue Agent in charge, which is a separate department. [501]

Q. Do you know his full name?

A. No, I do not.

Q. Have you never seen his name on any correspondence?

A. Oh yes, I have seen his name.

Q. Don't you recognize his signature there on that letter I showed you that you hold in your hand? A. No, I don't.

Q. Doesn't it look like the signature you have seen of Frank Harliss, the Internal Revenue Agent in charge, and other documents that have come to your attention?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as argumentative.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Well, does it look like the signature of Frank Harliss you have seen on other official documents?

Mr. Campbell: Same objection.

Mr. Gillen: This is cross-examination.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Gillen: On the ground it is argumentative?

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Gillen: Well, I don't know how to put it. I asked if it appears to be the same signature he had seen on other official documents.

Mr. Campbell: He stated he didn't recognize the signature.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Chris R. Weisz.)

Mr. Gillen: He said he had seen the signature of Mr. Harliss [502] on other documents.

The Court: What is your question now?

Mr. Campbell: The question is, the witness having answered that he knows who Mr. Harliss is and knows his official position and that he has seen Mr. Harliss' signature on other documents, I am asking him to look at that letter he holds in his hand and tell me whether or not he recognizes that as the same signature he has seen on other official documents.

The Court: You may answer the question.

A. I have seen very few signatures of Mr. Harliss and to the best of my recollection the documents of Mr. Harliss that I have seen were signed by a rubber stamp and I do not believe this was a rubber stamp.

Q. Well, the general framing of the letter, the appearance of the signature, does it appear to you to be the same as other signatures, either original or rubber stamp signatures, you have seen?

Mr. Campbell: I am going to make my objection again——

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Gillen: I will now, with the Court's permission, ask Mr. Campbell, who is familiar with the signature of Mr. Frank M. Harliss, I am sure, if he will stipulate that this is an official letter signed by Mr. Harliss?

Mr. Campbell: I will state on its face, it is not signed by Mr. Harliss. [503]

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Chris R. Weisz.)

Mr. Gillen: Does it look like Mr. Harliss' signature and official piece of stationery?

Mr. Campbell: If Mr. Gillen wants to call me as his witness.

Mr. Gillen: I take it counsel is not sporting enough to stipulate.

Mr. Campbell: I resent that remark.

The Court: We will have the remarks stricken from the record.

Mr. Gillen: We have made every endeavor to stipulate and facilitate——

The Court: We will deal with what we have here.

Mr. Gillen: I will offer this exhibit as the proper foundation is laid.

Mr. Campbell: To which I object; no proper foundation has been laid.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Let me ask you if you were familiar, Mr. Weisz, with this form letter as an official form of the Internal Revenue Service? A. Yes.

Q. Is that an official form of the Internal Revenue Service covering the subject matter contained in that letter?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as calling for conclusion of the witness.

Mr. Gillen: He says he is familiar with it. [504]

The Court: Objection overruled. It may be admitted in evidence.

Mr. Gillen: Thank you, your Honor. With the Court's permission, I desire to read this letter to the jury at this time. The letterhead, in printing, is the Treasury Department, Internal Revenue Service, San Francisco 5, California. It bears the coat of arms of the Revenue Service and in printing, "Office of Internal Revenue Agent in Charge, San Francisco."

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Chris R. Weisz.)

(Reads Exhibit K.)

Q. Now I am going to show you some other documents, Mr. Weisz, and ask you whether or not you are familiar with this document, and incidentally, while counsel is looking at them, let me ask you this, this letter is no more than the government asking the taxpayer to waive statute of limitations and give the government more time to look into the books?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as calling for conclusion of the witness. The letter speaks for itself.

The Court: Objection overruled.

A. Yes.

Q. And that form 872, which is referred to and notes as an enclosure here, is the form wherein the taxpayer gives the government more time to examine his books, isn't that so? A. Yes.

Q. And the taxpayer doesn't have to, if he doesn't want to, isn't that true? [505]

Mr. Campbell: That is objected to. Well, that is all right.

Q. I will show you some sheets on salmon paper form in printing and ask you to look at those and tell us whether or not you are familiar with those forms? A. Yes.

Mr. Gillen: I would like to have these marked.

The Court: Exhibits L-1, L-2, L-3, L-4.

Q. What are those forms that are now marked defendant's Exhibits L-1, 2, 3, and 4?

Mr. Campbell: I am going to make an objection as not being within the scope of direct examination. I think we are getting extraneous matters into the record.

Mr. Gillen: May I be heard?

The Court: Objection will be overruled, consent forms.

Q. They are forms of consent, that is, form where the taxpayers gives the government more time to look into his books? A. That's right.

Q. The reason the government asks for more time is so they won't be barred from the statute of limitations from looking into a man's books to determine whether or not he should be prosecuted?

Mr. Campbell: Same objection.

The Court: I am going to ask, Mr. Gillen, I just don't see what this has to do with any subject matter [506] brought out on direct.

Mr. Gillen: He says there was no return for 1946. We not only find there was a return, but there was considerable correspondence, that the government had asked for more time.

The Court: Do these documents here——

Mr. Gillen: Include 1946, yes, your Honor. The letter referred, your Honor, to the returns that were in the hands of the government.

The Court: Very well, you may proceed.

(Question read.)

Mr. Campbell: We object——

The Court: Objection is sustained to that question.

Q. What is the reason the government asks for the taxpayer to extend time to the government to prevent statute of limitations running against the government?

Mr. Campbell: Same objection.

The Court: Objection will be sustained.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Mr. Gillen: I was just showing counsel what appeared to [507] be three original letters. With the Court's permission, I will hand them to you and ask you whether or not you recognize the letterheads? A. Yes.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Chris R. Weisz.)

Mr. Gillen: I would like to have these marked as either one or three exhibits.

The Court: M-1, 2, and 3.

Q. What are those three letterheads, Mr. Weisz?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to. They speak for themselves, if the Court please.

The Court: He may answer the question. Don't state the contents, just the general nature.

A. They are official government letterheads.

Q. Did you observe the signature on those letters? A. No, I did not.

Q. I ask you to look at the signature on those three letters and tell us if you recognize it?

A. I recognize the name, of course.

Q. Do you recognize the official designation under the name? A. Yes.

Q. The name is that of F. M. Harliss, is that right? A. Yes.

Q. And the official designation is Agent in Charge of Internal Revenue Service?

A. Internal Revenue Agent in Charge. [508]

Mr. Gillen: I offer them.

Mr. Campbell: May I ask a question on voir dire?

The Court: You may do so.

Q. (By Mr. Campbell): Did any of these letters originate from your office? A. No.

Q. Or from the office to which you are attached?

A. No.

Q. Those letters, judging from their letterhead, originated from the office of the Internal Revenue

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Chris R. Weisz.)

Agent in Charge, did they not? A. Yes.

Q. Where is his office located, if you know?

A. 74 New Montgomery.

Q. Where is your office located?

A. 100 McAllister Street.

Q. Do you have anything to do with the activities of his office? A. No.

Q. Of any kind whatever? A. No.

Mr. Campbell: I am going to object to their reception in evidence, if the Court please, no proper foundation laid.

The Court: I would like to hear from you on the question. First let me see the exhibit.

Mr. Gillen: I was going to suggest I would like to have [509] your Honor look at it.

Mr. Campbell: Well, while your Honor is examining them, may I point this out, that there is no way in this method for us testing the authenticity of these letters. If I may be heard a moment further. In that record, if the Court please, if this method of producing evidence is to be followed, we are deprived of an opportunity to examine either the writer of the letter, assuming that they are authentic, to obtain the surrounding circumstances of the correspondence, if there was such correspondence, relating to the subject matter to which those letters refer. In other words, under Mr. Gillen's theory, anything which was written on a piece of government stationery would be admissible through this witness because he can recognize the government letter and because he can recognize that there is an official designation after the signature, with which he is not familiar, at the bottom of the letter.

(Testimony of Chris R. Weisz.)

Mr. Gillen: May I be heard on that?

The Court: May I make this remark first. It seems to me that the only interest we possibly could have in any of the subject matter contained in any or all of these letters would be the question as to whether or not there was a return filed for the year ending June 30, 1946.

Mr. Campbell: That is correct, your Honor.

Mr. Gillen: This witness has testified, your Honor, [510] that he has examined the records of the government to determine whether or not there had been a return filed for this corporation, 186 Club, for the fiscal year June 30, 1946. He said there was not, so the impression is left with the jury that there was no return filed. Now we have the right to determine whether he only looked in his own office and did not go to the office of the man across the street or did not make a complete search of anywhere where these records would be handled in the course of official business, and we are offering correspondence pertaining to the very exhibit he said he couldn't find.

Mr. Campbell: I make the objection no proper foundation has been laid for the introduction.

Mr. Gillen: I don't think Mr. Campbell seriously contends those are spurious letters on the letterhead of the Treasury Department of the Internal Revenue Service.

The Court: They may be admitted for that purpose.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Chris R. Weisz.)

Mr. Gillen: If there is any question, I would be happy to offer in evidence letters that brought the response by way of those official letters, I would be happy to show Mr. Campbell. If counsel would be willing to stipulate or would offer no objection, I would like to offer in evidence for the defendant the balance of the correspondence, which would make it clearer to the jury.

The Court: Does counsel desire to accept such a statement? [511]

Mr. Campbell: No, I do not.

The Court: Then they will not be admitted.

Mr. Gillen: Then, of course, it would be a little silly because we only have the answers of the government. We have to do the best we can.

Mr. Campbell: I object to counsel making that statement.

The Court: We will try to avoid making these statements.

Mr. Gillen: With the Court's permission, I would like to read these letters to the jury, Exhibits M-1, M-2, and M-3.

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Gillen: I will read them in accordance with their date. (Reads Exhibit M-1). I wonder if counsel will be willing to stipulate Mr. John R. Golden is one of the attorneys of record in this case and associate?

Mr. Campbell: So stipulated.

Mr. Gillen: Thank you.

Mr. Campbell: You're welcome.

The second letter is on different letterhead: (Reads Exhibit M-2. The third letter is on the letterhead of the United States Treasury Office: (Reads Exhibit M-3.)

Q. Now, Mr. Weisz, did you in your search find any other returns [512] for the years 1943, 1944, 1945 and 1946 for any of the following enterprises: the 21 Club——

Mr. Campbell: Will you go one by one because there are certain amended returns which have been filed which he is prepared to produce. I think if you ask a blanket question you will be lost in a maze of papers.

Mr. Gillen: I am lost in a maze of papers right now.

Mr. Campbell: May I make this suggestion—he has a number of amended returns which were filed which can be produced at this time, marked with one number and left for your examination over the week end. Will that be satisfactory?

Mr. Gillen: I think that would be the most practical thing to do to save time.

Mr. Campbell: May he withdraw from the stand and he can assemble those and leave with the clerk for your examination.

Mr. Gillen: Surely.

Mr. Campbell: I have one question, if the Court please.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Chris R. Weisz.)

Mr. Gillen: Only if it is understood my cross-examination is not completed.

The Court: Very well.

Q. (By Mr. Campbell): Mr. Weisz, how are income tax returns, whether they are individual or corporation, filed in the Northern District of California? Are they all filed with the collector of the Internal Revenue at San Francisco, California?

A. Yes. [513]

Mr. Campbell: That's all.

The Court: You may be excused for the time being.

DAVID N. KESSEL,

a witness on behalf of the plaintiff, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Will you state your name, please?

A. My name is David N. Kessel.

Q. Where do you reside?

A. 283 St. James Drive, Piedmont, California.

Q. What is your business or occupation?

A. I have no occupation.

Q. Are you acquainted with the defendant, Elmer Remmer?

A. Judge, may I read a statement?

The Court: Just answer the question yes or no.

A. I refuse to answer the question on the ground it will tend to incriminate me.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of David N. Kessel.)

The Court: We had better excuse the jury.

(Jury and alternate jurors admonished and excused at 3:34 p.m.)

(In the absence of the jury.)

The Court: I can't see any reason why the Court should not on Monday morning at 10:00 o'clock, in the presence of the jury, order this witness to answer that question, and that is what I propose to do. I thought perhaps, if we were going to be confronted [514] with questions of this nature, it might be beneficial to have a little argument or discussion of the subject matter.

Mr. Gillen: May I make our position clear, may it please the Court. This witness is a government witness. We have nothing to do with this witness. It is immaterial to us whether he testifies or not and I want it clearly understood that we are not participating in whatever procedure is taken between the Court and the prosecution and this witness.

The Court: I see; thank you.

Mr. Campbell: So far as the government is concerned, the evidence has shown here that this man was associated with the defendant in various business enterprises. We intend to interrogate him to the extent of our ability as to the extent of that association and as to the monetary rewards which resulted from that association. That is the government's position.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of David N. Kessel.)

The Court: I take it that he is going to raise the question as to whether or not such answers would incriminate him.

Mr. Campbell: Apparently he is equipped with some statement which he has brought with him in that regard. I understand he is also accompanied by counsel. However, the government desires to press this question and the succeeding questions along the line which I have indicated to your Honor.

The Court: Well, he will be ordered to answer this [515] question that is propounded to him. Perhaps I was too hasty in dismissing the jury. I thought we might accomplish something by discussion of some legal point that might be involved in this general subject. If that isn't the idea, we might as well adjourn now and go home. This particular question the witness is ordered to answer at the beginning of court and that order will be repeated in the presence of the jury.

Mr. Campbell: Of course, the question of incrimination would have to be put up as to each question put to the witness, but certainly this type of question can not be incriminating.

The Court: No. I am sorry I did excuse the jury under the circumstances. We will be in recess until Monday morning at 10:00 o'clock. This witness, and all other witnesses under subpoena and not excused are ordered to be here Monday morning.

(Court adjourned at 3:40 p.m.) [516] resumes the witness stand on

Direct Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. You were sworn Friday, Mr. Kessel. Are you acquainted with the defendant, Elmer Remmer?

A. I declined to answer Friday, didn't I, your Honor?

The Court: I will have the question read to the witness.

(Last question and answer of Friday read.)

"Q. Are you acquainted with the defendant, Elmer Remmer?

"A. I refuse to answer the question the ground it will tend to incriminate me."

Mr. Campbell: At this time I wish to press the question.

The Court: That is your answer now, you refuse to answer on the grounds it will tend to incriminate you?

A. Yes.

The Court: Well, the matter was before the Court Friday and the same response was given and I have been informed, and is it true, that you are represented by counsel?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of David N. Kessel.)

A. Yes, sir.

The Court: And you have consulted counsel before you came to the witness stand Friday and you have consulted [517] with counsel since on this very matter?

A. Yes.

The Court: Well, it is the finding of the Court that the question, "Are you acquainted with Mr. Remmer," response to that question, in the opinion of the Court, does not present a reasonable danger or real danger of incrimination and you are ordered to answer the question.

A. I do know Mr. Remmer.

Q. How long have you known Mr. Remmer?

A. I have known him about 10 or 15 years.

Q. Have you ever visited in his home?

A. Oh, yes, a few times.

Q. And did you visit in his home during the years 1944 to 1946 inclusive? A. A few times.

Q. Where did he reside at that time?

A. Well, he lived on Panhandle Blvd., but I don't know the address.

Q. Panhandle Boulevard in what city?

A. El Cerrito.

Q. Does he still live there, if you know?

A. I wouldn't know.

Q. Do you know Mr. Remmer's occupation?

A. I refuse to answer the question. [518]

Q. Upon what ground?

A. Tend to incriminate me.

Mr. Campbell: I press the question.

Mr. Haller: Your Honor, may I be heard?

The Court: No, sir. You may consult with Mr. Kessel and I am sure the marshal will give you opportunity to consult with the witness on this question. The witness is committed to the custody of the marshal, to be here tomorrow morning at 10:00 o'clock.

WALTER M. PECHART

a witness on behalf of the plaintiff, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

Q. And where did he reside at that time?

A. El Cerrito, California.

Q. Does he reside there now, to your knowledge?

A. That I can't answer.

Q. Do you know Mr. Remmer's occupation?

A. That I can't answer.

Q. You say you can't answer, is that because you do not know?

A. Well, I knew at one time but at present I don't know.

Q. Did you know his occupation during the years 1944 to 1946, inclusive? A. Yes, I did.

Q. What was his occupation?

A. Gambling business.

Q. Do you know one George Simmons? [520]

A. Yes, I do.

Q. Who is George Simmons?

A. He is my accountant.

Q. Does he have associated with him one Lester Simmons? A. Yes, he does.

Q. And was George Simmons your accountant during the years 1944 to 1946 inclusive?

A. That I can't answer. There are two brothers, they are both accountants. They were both in my employ, but the exact years I can't state.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Walter M. Pechart.)

Q. By two brothers you refer to George and Lester Simmons? A. Yes, I do.

Q. Have you ever rented any real property from Mr. Remmer? A. Yes, I did.

Q. What property?

A. I rented a portion of the 21 Club for two months or three, I am not sure.

Q. Is that the real property sometimes referred to as 90 San Diego Street, El Cerrito?

A. That I am not sure.

Q. You say that you rented a portion of the 21 Club from him? A. Yes, I did.

Q. Where is the 21 Club located?

A. El Cerrito, California.

Q. Do you recall the street address? [521]

A. No, I do not.

Q. Do you recall whether or not it is 90 San Diego Street? A. No, I do not.

Q. And in what years did you rent a portion of those premises? A. That I couldn't state.

Q. You say you cannot state, is that because you do not remember? A. That's right.

Q. What portions of the premises of the 21 Club did you rent from him?

A. The back room.

Q. Did that back room have any particular name? A. San Diego Social Club.

Q. With regard to a portion of the premises which you rented from Mr. Remmer, known as the San Diego Social Club, did you operate any business on those premises?

Have you counsel and have you consulted counsel on the subject matter of your presence here as a witness and the questions which might be required of you? [522]

A. Yes, I have.

The Court: You have counsel now?

A. Yes, I have.

The Court: So the marshal will give counsel an opportunity to confer with Mr. Pechart and you will have a hearing tomorrow morning at 10:00 o'clock on the matter concerning your refusal to answer the question.

Read the question so we will have it in mind.

MR. WEISZ

having been previously sworn, resumed the witness stand on further

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Mr. Campbell: I provided counsel with certain additional returns which they could take over the week end for the purpose of examination. You have them with you, have you, Mr. [523]

Mr. Gillen: Yes, these are the ones.

The Court: I have forgotten—you have entered on your cross-examination before, this is just resuming?

Mr. Gillen: Yes, your Honor. The cross-examination was ended with the examination of certain documents to be produced in court.

Mr. Campbell: As I recall, it reached the point where Mr. Gillen had asked if there were additional amended returns filed and I offered them to counsel at that time and called another witness rather than take the time to examine them.

Mr. Gillen: That was it, your Honor.

Q. Now, Mr. Weisz, I have before me a folder that you produced and in the folder are 1, 2, 3, 4, 5 returns. With the Court's permission I would like you to look at these and after you have looked at them, I will ask you a question. Now, Mr. Weisz, my question is, having examined the folder that I

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Chris R. Weisz.)

handed back to you, the one that you produced in court Friday last, have you found, in addition to those and in addition to what has been offered in evidence, any other returns or amended returns for the 21 Club, the 311 Club——

Mr. Campbell (Interrupting): Pardon me, may that be broken into individually? I think he has to refer to different files.

Q. All right, then we will break the question down. In addition to what you have in the folder there and in addition to [524] what may be in evidence or in custody of the court, marked for identification and therefore out of your hands, do you find any other return or amended return, first of all for the 21 Club?

Mr. Campbell: I suggest this question is calling for his conclusion as to what is in the custody of the court.

Mr. Gillen: I am distinguishing what we already have.

Mr. Campbell: I think the question is if he has any more, what he has found any more than he is producing.

The Court: I think that is what you mean?

Mr. Gillen: That is right. I want to eliminate what he has already produced before the court and see if there are any additional, that is my purpose.

A. No.

Q. May I ask you the same question as to the 311 Club, have you in your possession now any additional returns, or amended returns, for the 311 Club?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Chris R. Weisz.)

A. No, except I brought a 311 Club return with me which was in the wrong return.

Q. By wrong return do you mean that it did not refer to the 311 Club, which is involved in this matter? A. That's right.

Q. It was some other 311 Club?

A. 311 Cafe, and inadvertently put it in with this. Has nothing to do with this. [525]

Q. Was that 311 that you brought a mislaid file?

A. No, we just misread it in going through and didn't realize it was a different return and involves 311 Washington Street, San Francisco, and we put it in.

Q. Now may I ask the same question as to the B & R Smoke Shoppe, any additional returns in your possession, or amended returns, which have not been presented to the court yet?

A. We have these two returns in this file, which I gave you Friday.

Mr. Campbell: Was that for the same year?

Mr. Gillen: No, 1943 and 1944. I should like to offer in evidence the two documents in the form of partnership returns just handed me by the witness. The first document is for the year 1943 for the B & R Smoke Shoppe, and the second document is for the year 1944 for the B & R Smoke Shoppe, both designated "Amended Returns." May they be marked in evidence as defendant's Exhibits?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Chris R. Weisz.)

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Campbell: No objection.

The Court: They may be admitted in evidence as defendant's Exhibits N and O.

Q. Now may I inquire, Mr. Weisz, if you have any additional returns, or amended returns, other than are before the court for 110 Eddy enterprise?

A. No. [526]

Q. Now I will ask the same question with regard to the Day-Night Smoke Store. A. No.

Q. And I will ask the same question with regard to the 186 Club?

A. I have two additional for the 186 Club. These were in the folder which I gave you Friday evening.

Mr. Gillen: I should like to offer both of these in evidence for the defendant, may it please the Court, and I should like to have the partnership return for the year 1943 for the 186 Club marked as the first in order.

The Clerk: P.

Mr. Gillen: And the corporation excess profits return marked next for 1943.

Mr. Campbell: Is that a fiscal or calendar year?

Mr. Gillen: That is a fiscal year.

Mr. Campbell: For identification, will you state the fiscal period for that?

Mr. Gillen: Ending June 30, 1943, and beginning July 1, 1942.

The Court: Exhibit P admitted.

Q. Now I show you here a photostatic copy of what purports to be an additional return for the calendar year 1944 for the same place, 186 Club, and I will ask you, Mr. Weisz, if you will look at it and tell us exactly what it is. [527]

Mr. Campbell: Just a minute—I am going to object to that, if the Court please, the document should be marked first for identification.

Mr. Gillen: You are right. May I have this marked for identification, your Honor?

Q. I am handing you what I have already described and which is now designated as defendant's Exhibit R for identification. Be kind enough to look at that, Mr. Weisz, and tell us what it represents.

A. That is a corporation income and declared excess profits tax return for the fiscal year July 1, 1942, to June 30, 1943.

Q. Now there are some impressions on there of rubber stamps. Will you tell us what those mean?

A. The received stamp?

Q. Yes, the various rubber stamp impressions that are left on the face of that document, will you tell us what they mean?

A. There is a "Received" stamp dated May 31, 1944, First District of California.

Q. What does that mean, that that was the date it was received by the Collector of Internal Revenue, First District of California?

A. Yes, says, "Received with remittance."

Q. That means received with money that was paid on it?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Chris R. Weisz.)

A. Yes, that's right.

Q. Was there any other stamp bearing any other significance to you as a deputy collector on [528] there?

A. Yes, another stamp on here which says, "Revenue Agent in Charge Received July 12, 1945, San Francisco."

Q. That the revenue agent in charge received that particular document on the date given?

A. Yes.

Q. That would be received from the collector's office, is that correct? A. Correct.

Q. In other words, the May stamp was when the taxpayer turned it into the collector of internal revenue and the July stamp is when the agent in charge received it from the collector, is that correct?

A. That's right.

Q. Any other stamp of significance on there?

A. There is a "Reviewed" stamp, which has been crossed out.

Q. What does the "Reviewed" stamp mean?

Mr. Campbell: Apparently it has been cancelled.

The Court: The witness can answer.

A. Well, the "Reviewed" stamp ordinarily means that it has been reviewed by some office, either the collector's office or the revenue agent's office. I can't tell which one this is. It has been crossed off so badly.

Q. You are not able to determine the date?

A. The date is very clear, date November 30, 1944.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Chris R. Weisz.)

Q. Now, Mr. Weisz, while you are holding that in your hand—— [529]

The Court: Do you want to have this offered in evidence?

Mr. Gillen: Yes, I will offer it.

Mr. Campbell: No objection.

The Court: Exhibit R admitted in evidence.

Q. Now, I will hand back to you Exhibit R, which is now in evidence, and I will show you also Exhibit Q for the defendant, which is also in evidence and which appears to be another form of return for the same corporation for the same period of time. Will you explain the reason for those two different returns for the same corporation for the same period of time?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to, calling for his conclusion as to what was in the taxpayer's mind.

The Court: Let us have the question.

(Question read.)

The Court: We will hear what the answer is.

Mr. Campbell: I didn't understand what the question was.

Mr. Gillen: I presume counsel withdraws the objection?

Mr. Campbell: Yes.

(Question read.)

Q. Two different forms. I have different forms, do you notice that? A. I wouldn't know.

Q. Well, do you know whether or not it is not a fact that at that particular time all corporations were required to file two forms, one form of which was called the corporation income [530] and deferred value excess profits tax return, which is defendant's Exhibit R, and the other of which was called corporation excess profits tax return, which is defendant's Exhibit Q. Does that recall anything to your mind?

BLURRED COPY

Mr. Campbell: I will stipulate that is a fact, that was the law.

Mr. Gillen: We will accept the stipulation that all corporations were required at that time to return those two forms.

Mr. Campbell: Well, not all corporations, but this type of corporation.

Mr. Gillen: Well, all right, this type of corporation was required to return those two forms for their accounting or fiscal return, whatever it might be.

Mr. Campbell: It is a matter of law.

Q. Now, Mr. Weisz, attached to defendant's Exhibit Q, we find an orange sheet and a green sheet. Can you tell us what those are?

A. That's a consent for extending the statute of limitation.

Q. In other words, that is where the corporation or the taxpayer consents to permit the government to have a longer period than the period of statute of limitations to examine into the matter, is that correct? A. That's right.

Q. In other words, it prevents the outlawing of the matter, is that correct? [531] A. Yes.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Chris R. Weisz.)

Q. And will you tell us what is the last consent date, what date does it extend to on that exhibit?

A. June 30, 1952.

Q. So the taxpayer has consented to permit the government to have until June 30, 1952, to continue its investigation of that and has not taken advantage of the statute of limitations, is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, before we leave defendant's Exhibit R, which is the corporation income and declared value excess profits tax return for the fiscal year commencing July 1, 1942, and ending June 30, 1943, and which you have identified as having been received, from the stamp on the face of it by the Collector for the First District of California, on May 31, 1944, do you find in your records the original from which that photostat copy was taken, or the original return which was received on May 1, 1944?

A. I have a note here where I have this number.

Q. Do you know what happened to the return?

A. No, I don't.

Q. Was it misplaced or lost?

A. I don't know.

Q. Did you look for it when you were looking for all these records and were you unable to find it? [532] A. I don't have that note.

Q. You have a note that you were looking for such a numbered document, do you? A. Yes.

Q. What is your recollection when you made the search? Were you unable to find it where it should have been, or unable to find it any place? Do you have my question in mind? A. Yes, I do.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Chris R. Weisz.)

Q. I am asking you now for your own independent recollection of what you encountered, or what the result of your search was for this particular return?

A. Hasn't this return been offered in evidence, the original?

Q. No, I do not believe so. In fact, I am certain it has not. If you care to look at your evidence, I would be glad to have you check with the clerk. I am sure the original has not been offered in evidence. You have no recollection at this moment of finding that in your search?

A. No, I do not. I do not remember.

Q. You have no recollection of whether you found it or not?

A. That's right, I do not know. There were so many of them.

Q. This return would be a matter that was coming before your official attention, is it not?

A. Yes.

Q. You were assigned to produce this document?

A. That is right. [533]

Q. Would you say that this is an instance where a mislaid or lost return has come officially to your attention?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to because he said he did not know. He has been given the opportunity to make the examination——

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Chris R. Weisz.)

Mr. Gillen: All right, we will withdraw the question until such time as he has checked with the clerk of the court. May I suggest he be returned after he has an opportunity to check, so we won't delay matters now?

Mr. Campbell: That is satisfactory.

The Court: Yes.

Q. It appears that 186 Club was a corporation and not a partnership, isn't that correct; is treated as such by the government?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to; that is calling for his conclusion, if the Court please. He is not the man to pass upon such matters.

The Court: I think the question really means what appears from the document.

Mr. Campbell: No, Mr. Gillen just said, treated as such by the government.

The Court: Reframe your question.

Q. From what appears from the documents, the form of returns which you have produced here, which are now in evidence, it is true, is it not, that the United States Internal Revenue [534] collector treated this organization or enterprise, the 186 Club, as a corporation rather than a partnership or individual business?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as incompetent and immaterial, not within the scope of this man's examination.

The Court: He can answer if he knows. Do you know?

A. Well, the returns would so indicate.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Chris R. Weisz.)

Q. Now, Mr. Weisz, I want to show you plaintiff's Exhibit 89, which you will find is the partnership return for the year 1945 for the Menlo Club, and attached to that is a letter. I would like to have you look at the letter and tell us, if you know, what is the meaning of the initial "M" alongside the purported signature of Elmer Remmer, the defendant?

Mr. Campbell: Just a minute—that portion of the signature certainly can not——

Mr. Gillen: Suppose counsel does not point out his ability or limitation of Mr. Weisz. Mr. Weisz may know more than you think he does.

Mr. Campbell: I ask the jury to disregard the last statement of counsel and also I point out to the Court that the "M" actually referred to is a handwritten "M," which is a portion of the signature; therefore, I object to the question as calling for conclusion of this witness.

Mr. Gillen: I am asking him if he has any knowledge. If he hasn't, all he has to do is to say no.

The Court: Let us have the question. [535]

(Question read.)

Mr. Campbell: I will ask your Honor to examine the exhibit.

The Court: He may answer the question.

A. No.

Q. You don't know whether it means Maundrell for Harold Maundrell who was the bookkeeper for the Menlo Club, do you? A. No.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Chris R. Weisz.)

Mr. Gillen: With the Court's permission, I would like to read from the letter attached to the 1945 Menlo Club return, which is plaintiff's Exhibit 89 in evidence. I would like to read the letter.

The Court: You may.

Mr. Gillen: This is all in typewriting with the exception of the purported signature. (Reads Exhibit 89.)

Q. And then the inked signature, "Elmer F. Remer" and then below that the inked initial "M," and below that in typewriting the word "Partner." Now, it appears, does it not, Mr. Weisz, that the data from some period the preceding year had been used as the basis of estimating to arrive at what was due that year, is that correct?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as argumentative. The document speaks for itself and makes its own explanation.

Mr. Gillen: All right, I will withdraw it.

The Court: It is withdrawn. [536]

Q. I am going to show you, Mr. Weisz, plaintiff's Exhibit 57 for identification, which appears to be a 1943 return for the 21 Club and San Diego Social Club, which you produced here on Friday, if my recollection serves me right. If there is no objection and without further ado, I will offer it in evidence.

Mr. Campbell: We have no objection, your Honor, provided that, for the purpose of keeping the exhibits in some semblance of order, that it be marked as exhibit for the defendant instead of plaintiff's number.

The Court: Instead of being admitted as Exhibit 57, it would be admitted as defendant's exhibit next in order, Exhibit S.

Mr. Campbell: That was produced when Mr. Billington was on the stand.

The Court: Yes, just a moment. We can get along without any discussion.

Mr. Gillen: I think that is all, Mr. Weisz, thank you. Jury and alternate jurors admonished and short recess taken at 11 o'clock.

Redirect Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Mr. Weisz, prior to the recess—— [537]

Mr. Gillen: May I interrupt counsel for a moment. Did Mr. Weisz learn whether or not the exhibit R, the photostat, there was in his record any note of that?

Mr. Campbell: Yes, I am just going to show him defendant's Exhibit J for identification and ask him if that is not the same exhibit of which a pho-tostat has been put in as defendant's R, concerning which he was asked whether or not he had produced such a document.

Mr. Gillen: We will stipulate it is.

Mr. Campbell: I wish to show that to the witness.

The Court: You may proceed.

Q. I am going to hand you defendant's Exhibit R, the photostatic copy of which was shown to you by Mr. Gillen. He asked you if that was an instance of a misplaced return; and also defendant's Exhibit J for identification, and ask you to compare them and state whether or not J for identification is the original of which R is a photostatic copy? A. Yes.

Mr. Campbell: Thank you. That's all.

Recross-Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Q. Mr. Weisz, "J" for identification is the document that we called for and received from you on cross-examination, isn't that correct?

A. Well, I produced it at some time.

Q. It is marked defendant's Exhibit. It was called for, isn't [538] that true?

A. Yes, it must be.

Mr. Gillen: We offer it as defendant's J in evidence.

Mr. Campbell: Do you wish to withdraw R at this time?

Mr. Gillen: No, we will leave them both in.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Chris R. Weisz.)

Mr. Campbell: Very well.

The Court: Exhibit J is admitted.

Mr. Campbell: That's all, Mr. Weisz.

The Court: Is there any reason why this witness could not be finally excused now?

Mr. Campbell: We desire to keep him for other purposes.

The Court: Very well.

GEORGE E. SIMMONS

a witness on behalf of the plaintiff, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Will you state your name, please?

A. George E. Simmons.

Q. Where do you reside, Mr. Simmons?

A. El Cerrito, California.

Q. What is your business or occupation?

A. Public accountant, insurance and real estate.

Q. What is the name of your firm or the concern with which you are located?

A. My own practice.

Q. You practice under the name of George Simmons? [539] A. G. E. Simmons.

Q. And do you have any one associated with you in that business?

A. No public accountant, no.

Q. Is there one Lester Simmons who is associated with you?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of George E. Simmons.)

A. He was associated with me.

Q. And over what period of time was he associated with you?

A. To about 1944 to 1947 or '48, I don't remember which.

Q. What is the office address of your business?

A. The present office, 3803 McDonald Avenue, Richmond.

Q. Now, in connection with your public accounting work, did you keep, or supervise the keeping of the records of the 21 Club?

A. Will you restate the question?

(Question read.)

A. No, sir.

Q. Did you at any time have the records of the 21 Club? A. No, sir.

Q. Did any one connected with your firm or your business do so?

A. I might explain that I was hired as an auditor and bookkeeper, not to supervise and not in an accounting capacity; simply was an employee.

Q. I asked you, did you keep the books of the 21 Club? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You did keep them? A. Yes, sir. [540]

Q. Did you keep the books of the San Diego Social Club? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And did you keep the books of the 311 Club?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. By whom were you employed for that purpose? A. Messrs. Pechart and Kessel.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of George E. Simmons.)

Q. By Messrs. Pechart and Kessel, you refer to the two men who were on the stand here this morning? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Are you acquainted with the defendant, Elmer Remmer?

A. No, sir—correction—I know of Elmer Remmer.

Q. Did you ever meet Elmer Remmer?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And did you ever meet him in connection with your employment as to the books of the 21 Club, the San Diego Social Club or the 311 Club?

A. I never discussed it with him.

Q. Did you keep the books of those three clubs during the years 1944, 1945, and 1946?

The Court: Maybe I missed something, I don't quite get that question. I only heard two clubs with which this gentleman was employed.

Q. Mr. Simmons, I asked you as to the 21 Club, you kept the books there? A. Yes. [541]

Q. You also kept books of the San Diego Social Club? A. That is right.

Q. And did you also keep the books of the 311 Club? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And did you keep those books of those three clubs during the years 1944, 1945 and 1946?

A. I don't remember whether the 311 was in existence at that time. If it was, I kept the books.

Q. You do recall that the 21 Club and the San Diego Social Club were in existence at that time, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of George E. Simmons.)

Q. And if the 311 Club was in existence at that time, you kept its books, is that right?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now you were served with a subpoena, Mr. Simmons, to produce all books of any description for the period January 1, 1943, to January 31, 1947, inclusive, relating to the following businesses: 21 Club, San Diego Social Club, and 311 Club, all of El Cerrito, California. Have you produced such records? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you have any records of any kind relating to those three clubs in your possession?

A. No, sir.

Q. Do you have any work papers with relation to those three clubs in your possession? [542]

A. No, sir.

Q. When was the last time such matters were in your possession?

A. As far as I can remember in 1947 and the first part of '48.

Q. Had you delivered all such records to some one at that time?

A. They were left with the employer when I left his employ.

Q. You have not, since 1947 or 1948, been employed in connection with any of these three businesses?

A. No, sir. I might amend that to this extent, that in 1949 I handled the books of one small restaurant for Pechart and Kessel.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of George E. Simmons.)

Q. Aside from that, you severed your relationship, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Are you acquainted with one Joseph Billington? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, in connection with those three businesses to which I have referred, did you prepare certain partnership returns of income for them?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. I am going to show you plaintiff's Exhibit 54, being partnership return of income Jos. Billington, doing business as 21 Club, and ask you if that is a return which you prepared in 1944?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was the source of the information which you placed in [543] this return?

A. The source was from Messrs. Billington and Pechart and Kessel.

Q. Did you examine any books or records in that connection? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were those books and records which were kept by you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, Mr. Simmons, you were familiar, were you not, with the operation and the nature of the operation of the 21 Club? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where was it located?

A. In El Cerrito on Panhandle Boulevard and San Diego Street.

Q. Was that at an address known as 90 San Diego Street? A. I believe so.

Q. Would it refresh your recollection to examine the return? A. That's right.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of George E. Simmons.)

Q. Now at 90 San Diego Street was there more than one of these clubs located?

A. There was one building which had a restaurant and bar in one section, a gambling house in the other section.

Q. The restaurant and bar were known under what name? A. The 21 Club.

Q. And the gambling part was known by what name? A. San Diego Social Club.

Q. First let me ask you as to the physical set-up. Was the [544] gambling establishment behind the restaurant and bar or to one side?

A. Well, it depends what way you look at the building. The entrance was into the bar and restaurant. The gambling was in the other room.

Q. Was there a separate entrance to the gambling establishment? A. Not that I know of.

Q. So that in order to enter the gambling establishment one had to pass through the bar and restaurant, is that right?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as leading and suggestive, also misquoting the witness. The witness said he didn't know that he knew of.

Mr. Campbell: Well, it is immaterial. I will withdraw it.

Q. Now with reference to these books which you kept both for the 21 Club and the San Diego Social Club, where did you keep them?

A. 315 San Pablo Avenue.

Q. At your office? A. Yes, sir.

Q. From what source did you get the information—let us take the 21 Club first—that went into those books?

(Testimony of George E. Simmons.)

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as already asked and answered. He said he kept the books and got the information from Pechart, Kessel and [545] Billington.

The Court: Objection overruled.

A. The information was received daily or weekly in the form of report from the manager, which were entered into the records as I kept them.

Q. Who was the manager of the 21 Club?

A. The first time was Mr. Cavani and later Mr. Billington.

Q. Do you recall during what period of time it was Mr. Cavani?

A. Well, Mr. Cavani was the first. I don't remember what time Mr. Billington took over. I think it was in October of 1945 or '46. I think it is '45.

Q. Who was manager of the San Diego Social Club from whom you got information?

A. Mr. Billington.

Q. So then, as I understand, the San Diego Social Club was a gambling room?

A. That's right.

Q. Mr. Cavani managed the bar and restaurant, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And Mr. Billington managed the gambling establishment? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now was the 21 Club a sole proprietorship, a partnership, or a corporation?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of George E. Simmons.)

A. As I remember, Mr. Cavani operated the 21 Club as an individual for some time.

Q. Then? [546]

A. I am not entirely sure. Apparently it was all grouped together after that between Mr. Billington and Mr. Cavani. The operations were consolidated.

Mr. Gillen: I will object, if the Court please, and move the answer be stricken as purely opinion, conclusion and speculation of the witness; if your Honor will listen to the answer.

The Court: Motion will be denied.

Q. I am going to show you government's Exhibit 72, partnership return of income of the 21 Club for the fiscal year beginning January 1, 1944, and ending September 30, 1944, and ask you if you prepared that return? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know by whom it was prepared?

A. No, sir.

Q. I am going to show you government's Exhibit 72A, partnership return of income for the calendar year 1944 of Frank Cavani, doing business as the 21 Club, and ask you whether or not you prepared that return? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I am going to show you plaintiff's Exhibit 54, partnership return of income for the calendar year 1944 of Joseph Billington, doing business as 21 Club, and ask you if you prepared that return?

A. Yes, sir. [547]

Q. Now I call your attention to the fact that both of these returns purport to be of the 21 Club,

(Testimony of George E. Simmons.)

one being that of Frank Cavani, doing business as the 21 Club, and the other that of Joseph Billington, doing business as the 21 Club, and ask, if you will, to state why the two returns were filed?

The Court: Will you refer to the exhibit numbers in your questions?

Q. In asking you that question, Mr. Simmons, I am referring to plaintiff's Exhibits 54 and 72A, being partnership returns, both for the calendar year 1944.

A. I don't know. I prepared them, but I don't know.

Q. Upon whose instructions did you prepare those returns?

Mr. Gillen: Just a moment. I am going to offer an objection, assuming something not in evidence—upon whose instructions. It is leading and suggestive and the witness has already answered he doesn't know why two returns were made.

The Court: It is leading.

Mr. Campbell: I don't think it suggests who gave him the instructions. Very well, I will withdraw the question.

Q. Can you state from the examination of those returns, if you will first examine plaintiff's Exhibit 54, Mr. Simmons, will you state the nature of the operation set forth thereon?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to, the document speaks for itself. It is in evidence.

The Court: Read the question. [548]

(Question read.)

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of George E. Simmons.)

Mr. Gillen: It is previously testified to.

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question.

A. I can not tell.

Q. You can't answer. All right, sir.

Mr. Campbell: I would like to have this photostat marked——

The Court: The jury will be excused now.

(Jury admonished and alternate jurors, and excused at 11:40.)

(In the absence of the jury.)

The Court: I desire to have an order entered admitting the witnesses Mr. Kessel and Mr. Pechart, to bail in the sum of five thousand dollars each, conditioned upon their appearance here tomorrow morning and whenever ordered by the Court, and that bail is to be approved by the United States attorney. We will now be in recess until 1:00 o'clock.

Mr. Pike: Before the Court recesses, if we could have a number assigned to this last exhibit, the photostat, by the clerk.

Clerk: 93.

Mr. Gillen: I wonder if I might ask your Honor this. On the appearance Friday of Mr. Kessel on the witness stand and upon his stating to the Court that he declined to answer the question, giving his reasons, I made a statement to your Honor in the absence of the jury as to the position of the defense in this case and I wonder if I may have the permis-

Direct Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Mr. Simmons, prior to the noon recess you testified that you had returned all of the records called for in the subpoena duces tecum that was served on you. To whom did you return those records?

A. That were left with the Pechart and Kessel organization when I left.

Q. And at what address?

A. 315 San Pablo Avenue, El Cerrito.

Q. And you have not seen them since that time?

A. No, sir.

Q. Mr. Simmons, I will ask you whether or not, during the course of your employment, you drew a profit and loss statement and balance sheet of the 21 Club as of December 31, 1943? [550]

A. I do not remember it.

Mr. Campbell: I will ask to have this marked for identification as government's next in order.

Q. While counsel is examining that, I will ask you whether or not you drew a property schedule of the San Diego Social Club as of 1943 and 1944?

A. I do not remember, sir.

Mr. Campbell: I will ask to have this marked for identification as government's Exhibit 95 for identification.

Q. I show you government's Exhibit 94 for identification and I particularly call your attention to the balance sheet and profit and loss statement attached thereto, and ask you if that is a document which you prepared in the course of your employment?

A. I prepared this. Whether or not the figures are correct, I don't know now.

Q. You did prepare that, however?

A. I did prepare it, yes, sir.

Q. Was that prepared from such books and records as were made available to you or were available to you at that time? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Campbell: This will be offered in evidence as government's Exhibit 94.

Mr. Gillen: May it please the Court, before your Honor rules on the admission of the document, I would like to ask Mr. [551] Simmons some ques-

The Court: Yes, sir.

Q. (By Mr. Gillen): Mr. Simmons, with the Court's permission, I will ask you to look at this exhibit again and tell us what there is about this that causes you to recognize it, or enable you to recognize it as something you prepared?

A. I remember the figure of approximately 1700 loss.

Q. Is that the only thing that enables or assists you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. There is nothing about any of the other figures? A. Just a blank.

Q. But you do recall that you did prepare it. That showed a 1700 odd dollar loss?

A. That's right.

Q. At that time, 1943?

A. This is written in 1944.

Q. I mean for 1943? A. Yes, sir.

Q. There is nothing else about the document that assists you in any wise recalling the preparation? A. That is right, sir.

Mr. Gillen: That is sufficient, your Honor, and I offer the objection to its admission. It purports to be a copy of something. There is no original signature or anything on the [552] document. Would your Honor care to see it?

The Court: Read the previous question and answer.

(Question and answer read.)

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of George E. Simmons.)

The Court: I think the objection will go more to the weight than to the admissibility. The exhibit will be admitted in evidence, Exhibit 94.

Q. (By Mr. Campbell): Mr. Simmons, I show you plaintiff's Exhibit 95 for identification and ask you if this is a document which you prepared in the course of your employment?

A. I wouldn't know, sir.

Q. Is there anything to which you could refer which might refresh you recollection in that record?

A. Nothing, sir. I have no way.

Q. I am going to show you, Mr. Simmons, government's Exhibits 54 and 72A, being partnership return of income for the year 1944 of Jospeh Billington, doing business as the 21 Club, and Frank Cavani, doing business as the 21 Club, respectively, and ask you to examine those, which you have heretofore testified you prepared. I will also hand you government's Exhibit 95 for identification and ask you if examination of the first two mentioned exhibits refreshes your recollection as to preparation of the document marked for identification? You will examine particularly the depreciation schedules set forth on those returns.

A. These returns for Joseph Billington and Frank Carvani, 1944. [553] This memorandum is headed "San Diego Social Club." I can't remember anything about that.

Q. Very well. In connection with the keeping of these books, did you become acquainted with Walter Parman?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of George E. Simmons.)

A. I believe the latter part of '43 or the first of '44.

Q. And what, if any, connection did he have with any of these clubs?

A. He was operating manager of the San Diego Social Club.

Q. Do you recall over what period of time?

A. No, sir, I do not.

Q. What do you mean by operating manager?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as calling for opinion and conclusion.

The Court: Objection overruled. You may answer the question.

Q. He had charge of the gambling portion of the San Diego Social Club for a certain length of time, comparatively short, if I remember.

Q. Do you recall when he left?

A. No, sir.

Q. Do you recall who succeeded him?

A. About seven or eight of them. I can't remember off-hand.

Q. Did you become acquainted, in the course of your employment, with one A. Ruggiardo?

A. Yes, sir. [554]

Q. Sometimes known as Tony Ruggiardo. How do you spell that, Mr. Simmons?

A. I don't know.

Q. What was his connection with the Club?

A. He was manager for a while of the San Diego Social Club.

BLEED THROUGH - POOR COPY

(Testimony of George E. Simmons.)

Q. When you say manager, do you mean operating manager again? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Over what period of time was he operating manager?

A. 1943 to possibly '45, possibly '46, I can't remember which year.

Q. Was he operating manager at the same time Parman was? A. He preceded Mr. Parman.

Q. I understood you to say that Parman was there in 1943 until early 1944?

A. That is right.

Q. Did you mean preceded or succeeded?

A. They were both there at the same time, they changed off.

Q. It required more than one operating manager?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as calling for conclusion.

The Court: Objection will be sustained as to that.

Q. To your observation, would there be more than one operating manager present at the same time? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Gillen: Calling for opinion and conclusion. He might be present and not be working. [555]

The Court: Objection overruled and the answer may stand.

Q. As I understood you to say, Riggardio was there until some time in 1945, is that correct?

A. Or 1946.

Q. Did you become acquainted with one Andrew

Desimone in the course of your employment?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was his connection?

A. Well, I would again call him an operating manager.

Mr. Gillen: Just a minute. I move the answer be stricken, no certainty—would call—stipulation. It is the witness' characterization. If he knows, he should say so, if he doesn't know, he may say so.

The Court: The answer may stand.

Q. Over what period of time was he there?

A. Possibly the same period as the other two.

Q. Now you said Parman left in 1944 and Riggiardo was there until probably 1946. Do you recall how long Desimone was there, over what period?

A. No, sir, I do not.

Q. In the course of your employment did you become acquainted with one Dimitria Sarantos?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Can you spell that?

A. S-a-r-a-n-t-o-s. [556]

Q. And what was his connection there?

A. Sort of a head game keeper.

Q. What did you observe——

Mr. Gillen: We offer the objection—"sort of a head"—uncertain answer, characterization by the witness.

The Court: The answer may stand.

Q. What period of time was he there?

A. The early part of forty—I just don't know.

Q. You don't recall that time?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of George E. Simmons.)

A. I can't recall that time.

Q. In the course of your employment did you become acquainted with one Michael Nechek?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was his connection?

A. He was sort of a head game keeper.

Mr. Gillen: Same objection.

The Court: Same ruling.

Q. What do you mean by a head game keeper?

A. I am not very much familiar with the gambling fraternity names and activities. This is from my observation only.

Mr. Gillen: Then I move it be stricken. It is obvious the witness does not know.

The Court: Motion denied.

Q. Just go ahead, what was your observation?

A. Well, he acted as head man at the gambling table. [557]

Q. And over what period of time was he there?

A. I don't know, sir. A very short time.

Q. Do you recall in what year?

A. No, sir.

Q. Mr. Simmons, I am going to show you government's Exhibit 93 for identification, a photostatic copy, and ask you if you recognize the document of which this is a photostat?

A. It is a copy of information that I made up for the field auditor, as I remember.

Q. Was that made up from any books or records which were maintained for that club, the San Diego

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of George E. Simmons.)

Social Club, for the year 1944, in the course of your employment?

A. I don't know, sir. It might have been made from the books. It might have been made up from memorandum that I had in my possession at the time.

Q. When you say memorandum which you had in your possession at the time, do you refer to memorandum which you had made or which had been provided to you in the course of your employment?

Mr. Gillen: I am going to object to that question, may it please the Court, as leading and also as containing an assumption. The man so testified and said he didn't know—it might have come from some books and might have come from some memorandums he had in his possession. I think the question is very leading.

The Court: Let me have the question. [558]

(Question read.)

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question.

A. I thought I answered that question.

(Question read.)

A. It was made from some records in my possession, just where I don't know. That is a copy——

Q. I——

Mr. Gillen: Just a minute—he hasn't finished his answer.

Q. Did you finish your answer?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of George E. Simmons.)

A. That is a copy, a memorandum, as I said before, it was made up for one of the field auditors. Whether or not this is correct, I can't remember now.

Q. I am trying to find out from you what you made it up from.

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as asked and answered. He says he doesn't know, it might have been made up from some books, might have been made up from memorandums in his possession.

The Court: I think we have covered that ground.

Mr. Campbell: I offer in evidence Exhibit 93 for identification.

Mr. Gillen: To which we offer an objection, may it please the Court. I would like to see the document. I would like to examine this gentleman on voir dire.

The Court: You may.

Q. (By Mr. Gillen): Mr. Simmons, this document, this photostatic [559] exhibit, which contains four photostatic pages which have been designated thus far prosecution's Exhibit 93 for identification, has written on it in what appears to be ink, "Office copy." Do you recognize the printing?

A. Yes, my handwriting.

Q. Now what became of the original of this?

A. I wouldn't have the least idea.

Q. Did you ever deliver it to anyone, the original of this? Did you retain it as your office copy?

A. I don't know, sir.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of George E. Simmons.)

Q. Now you mentioned that you made this up for a field agent.

A. A field auditor for the government.

Q. What do you mean by field auditor for the government?

A. Internal Revenue auditor, comes in and makes audit of the taxpayer's books.

Q. Do you recall how long after the year 1944 this was made up?

A. Probably 1946 or early part of '47, I don't remember; probably '46.

Q. Two or three years later? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you do recognize the printing on this copy as your printing? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that is something that you have retained, is it, in your office, or did you turn that over to the government? [560]

A. The original from which this was made was retained in my office. This has no signatures on it, so it is simply an office copy.

Q. You mean the four sheets from which these figures were made were retained in your office?

A. Yes.

Q. And what happened to the original of this, the original document?

A. That document was turned over to the Revenue Department.

Q. And when?

A. Some time in late 1946 or '47.

Q. And to whom particularly, do you recall?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of George E. Simmons.)

A. No, sir, I do not. One of the two revenue officers.

Q. You don't know the name of the men?

A. Mr. Farley or Mr. Gould, I don't remember which.

Q. Now do you know how the prosecution got a photograph of your office copy that was retained by you?

A. Possibly I didn't make myself clear. This copy was made up and given to the revenue agent.

Q. Yes?

A. And he made the photostatic copy evidently.

Q. Let us see if we understand each other. Did you make two copies of this?

A. I had one original copy in the office and I made up another and marked it "Office Copy" and gave it to the revenue agent. [561]

Q. You marked the one you gave to the revenue agent "Office Copy"? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you retained the original?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you have that now? A. No, sir.

Q. Did the original copy contain anybody's signature? A. That I can't recall.

Q. Did you sign it?

A. I signed that one, yes, sir. I signed it as having prepared that copy.

Q. Was anybody else's signature on the original that you retained? Any taxpayer's signature?

A. I don't think so. It doesn't indicate so there.

Q. Will you tell us why it was that you gave the

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of George E. Simmons.)

office copy rather than the original to the field auditor?

A. As I remember, he asked for a copy.

Q. He asked for a copy? A. For a copy.

Q. Was this return ever made? Was it ever filed? A. That I don't know, sir.

Mr. Gillen: I think, may it please the Court, that I will have to offer the objection that this document, this exhibit, is something that was prepared by Mr. Simmons, as he has [562] related, from data or under circumstances that he doesn't now recall and that it was never presented to or signed by anybody so far as his knowledge is concerned, except he signed it as the one who prepared it, and that he gave an office copy to a field auditor for the government and retained the original and so far as he knows, the original was never filed and so, of course, it couldn't be binding on anybody. In other words, if I may make myself clear, from this testimony, suppose somebody comes to my bookkeeper and says, make up some data, and he makes it up and gives it to him and I never see what he made up, I never sign it, I never return it as any declaration against my interest, so it can not be binding certainly on this defendant, whose name does not appear there on the document itself.

Mr. Campbell: Yes, it does, under schedule I.

Mr. Gillen: I mean it doesn't appear as returned. I would like your Honor to see this document.

Mr. Campbell: I wish to be heard. As your

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of George E. Simmons.)

Honor examines it, I particularly direct your attention to Schedule I, as set forth as partnership distributive shares.

The Court: I would be glad to hear from you, Mr. Campbell.

Mr. Campbell: I wish to point out to your Honor that this document was prepared by this witness in the course of his employment as bookkeeper for that particular organization, as well as the other organization. He testified that it was prepared [563] from memorandum or books which he had in his possession as a result of that employment, and I think counsel's objection actually goes to the weight of the document rather than to its admissibility. We are forced, of course, to rely upon secondary evidence here because the witness has put all his original books of account in the hands of his employers.

Mr. Gillen: May I be heard further?

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Gillen: In the first place we must recall that this witness has stated that he was employed by Pechart and Kessel and that in the course of the employment with Pechart and Kessel that he kept some books for certain organizations in which they were interested. He stated definitely and emphatically and unequivocally that he had never done any work for the defendant here and had never discussed the matter with him. Here we have something that is in the form of a return, may it please the Court, and if it was ever filed as a return, the original should be in the hands of the prosecution and it should be produced here, but since it is not produced here, we must assume that that was never filed as a return, but was some data made up on form of return some two years later; that the partnership never signed it as a return, either for themselves or for the partnership and it is just some data that is made up from whatever it was—Mr. Simmons is very sketchy about it. Certainly that would not be binding upon the defendant in [564] this case and I do not think the proper foundation is laid. Maybe they can do it, or maybe they can produce the original return, if it was ever filed, but I think it is without foundation and should not be received by your Honor at this time.

BLURRED COPY

Mr. Campbell: We do not contend that this document was filed as a return, but this is a document that was prepared by this man in the course of his duties as a bookkeeper.

Mr. Gillen: Not for this defendant.

Mr. Campbell: The evidence here shows that the defendant claimed to have and reported income from those concerns as a partner in those stores. The other documents here in evidence show that he is a partner in this organization.

The Court: That is the thought I have, Mr. Gillen, while this witness' testimony alone might not show any relationship, other evidence we have had does. The document will be admitted in evidence.

Mr. Gillen: It doesn't indicate, may it please the

BLEED THROUGH— POOR COPY

(Testimony of George E. Simmons.)

Court, it is form of return that was prepared even for the partnership.

The Court: But it constitutes a summation of records.

Mr. Gillen: If it was filed for the partnership, I would say it had some dignity and your Honor should consider it, but it has not been filed as a partnership return, may it please the Court.

The Court: Well, it is admitted in evidence, Exhibit 93.

Mr. Campbell: If I may read briefly from this exhibit. [565]

The Court: Yes, sir.

Mr. Gillen: Before counsel reads, may I ask counsel, through the Court, whether or not the government is in possession of that document in its original form, whether or not that document was ever filed as a return for the partnership? If it is, then secondary evidence should not be introduced here. Primary evidence would, of course, be the best evidence.

The Court: Do you desire to answer the question?

Mr. Campbell: Yes, I have no objection. As previously stated, the government does not contend, in fact states that this document was never filed as a return, and I further state that this is the best evidence in our possession of the contents of the document.

Mr. Gillen: It certainly is not binding on the defendant. This man wasn't even working for the defendant.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of George E. Simmons.)

The Court: I think we had better let the matter rest where it is now. Admitted in evidence.

Mr. Campbell: This is Exhibit 93. Is on form of return for partnership income, 1944. (Reads from exhibit.) Reading from Schedule I, "Partner's Shares of Income and Credits" (Reads) Making a total of $48,956.76.

Q. Mr. Simmons, I am going to show you government's Exhibit 55, a 1945 partnership return of income of J. Billington, doing business as the 21 Club and San Diego Social Club, and ask you whether or not you prepared that return in the course of [566] your employment?

A. It was prepared in my office by one of my associates, under my direction.

Q. By whom was the actual preparation done?

A. Mr. Beck.

Q. Was that return prepared under your direction and supervision? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you state whether or not it was prepared from books and records which you maintained in the course of your employment?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. I will call your attention to the fact that on the face this return states as being for both the 21 and San Diego Social Club? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were the two operations combined for the purpose of that return?

A. Yes, sir, physically and for the return both.

Q. I show you government's Exhibit 56, being the 1943 return of Joseph E. Billington, and ask

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of George E. Simmons.)

you whether or not you prepared that return?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And was that also prepared in the course of your employment? A. Yes, sir. [567]

Q. I show you government's Exhibit 72A, being the partnership return of Frank Carvani, doing business as the 21 Club, for the year 1944, and ask you whether or not you prepared that return?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was that also prepared from the books which you kept in the course of your employment?

A. That is a '43 return?

Q. '44 return. A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, Mr. Simmons, you stated that you kept books also for the 311 Club? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where was that located?

A. 311 Panhandle Boulevard, El Cerrito.

Q. And in the course of your employment in that connection did you prepare partnership returns of income for the years 1944, 1945, and 1946?

A. I don't remember, but I believe I did.

Q. I show you government's Exhibits 74, 75 and 76 and ask you if you prepared those returns in the course of your employment, being partnership returns for the 311 Club for 1944, 1945 and 1946?

A. I personally prepared 1944 and 1946. 1945 was prepared by Mr. Beck under my supervision. [568]

Q. And were all three of those returns prepared from the books maintained by you in the course of your employment? A. Yes, sir.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of George E. Simmons.)

Q. Now what was the nature of the business of the 311 Club during those years?

A. Gambling.

Q. In the course of your employment, did you have occasion to visit the premises of the 311 Club from time to time? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was the nature of the gambling carried on there during those years, to your observation?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

The Court: I do not believe it is material.

Mr. Campbell: I did not ask that question as to the preceding clubs, your Honor, but I do think it becomes material as to this particular one.

The Court: Well, we will sustain the objection for the present. We will see if anything develops which appears to make it material—we will consider the matter again. I can't see where it is material at this time.

Mr. Campbell: Very well.

Q. Was that the only business of the 311 Club?

A. As far as I know, sir. [569]

Q. There was no bar or restaurant in connection with it, is that correct?

A. Not the 211 Club itself, no, sir.

Q. Now were the books of the 311 Club among those which you returned to your former employers at the time you severed your connection?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. I believe you stated you returned them to Mr. Pechart and Mr. Kessel, is that correct?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of George E. Simmons.)

A. Either one of the two or both.

Q. Do you have in your possession any record of any kind with reference to the operation of the 311 Club during the years 1944 to 1946 inclusive?

A. No, sir.

Q. Will you describe the books which were maintained for the 311 Club?

A. Simple cash receipts and disbursements.

Q. You have set those up for each year on a partnership return of income. Were investment accounts set up in those books for each of the partners?

A. There were no real books of the company, simply cash and disbursements.

Q. And they were the only books maintained?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. So there was not a complete set of books, I take it? [570] A. Not a ledger book.

Mr. Gillen: I move to strike the comment of counsel. He said there was not a complete set of books, as his characterization. It might be a complete set of books so far as the books that were maintained is concerned.

The Court: The remark may stand as part of the question.

Mr. Campbell: Yes, I did not mean it as a side remark.

Q. Did the same situation prevail so far as the San Diego Social Club and 21 Club were concerned?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as calling for opinion and conclusion and his own characterization; the same situation prevail.

Mr. Campbell: I will withdraw the question and approach it in a different manner.

Q. What books of account were maintained for the 21 Club?

A. There was a general ledger for the 21 Club, made up by my predecessor.

Q. To whom do you refer?

A. Mr. Bishop.

Q. And did you continue to maintain that general ledger after you took over?

A. When I took over it was about seven or eight months behind. We endeavored to keep on as we could. I doubt if it was ever up to date.

Q. I was going to ask was it ever brought up to date during [571] that period of time?

A. I hardly think so.

Q. This is during the years 1944 to 1946, inclusive? A. That's right.

Q. Now what books of account were maintained for the San Diego Social Club?

A. Cash receipts and disbursements.

Q. Was any general ledger maintained for that organization? A. No, sir.

Q. Now when you refer to the fact that a book of cash receipts and disbursements were kept regarding the San Diego Social Club, will you state the nature of the entries that you made in that book?

A. The daily record of receipts would be

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of George E. Simmons.)

brought over to my office by whoever happened to be available and each day's activities they would show gain or loss for the day, which was entered in my record.

Q. Was that a written or oral memorandum which was brought to you?

A. It was a printed form, signed.

Q. And by whom would it be signed?

A. Whoever happened to be on that particular day.

Q. By whoever happened to be on, do you refer to whoever happened to be managing the business on that day?

A. That is right. Might have been Riggiota, might have been [572] Mr. Parman, might have been somebody else.

Q. In other words, what you term the operating manager? A. That is right, or the cashier.

Q. Would that slip contain more than one paper? A. No, sir.

Q. I take it then it would contain a net figure, showing the profit or loss of the operation of the gambling at the San Diego Social Club for that particular day?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as leading and suggestive. This is direct examination.

The Court: It is a little leading and suggestive. Could you reframe that question?

Mr. Campbell: Yes, your Honor.

Q. What did that one figure purport to show, Mr. Simmons?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of George E. Simmons.)

A. The receipts or loss for the day, insofar as what was concerned. I paid all bills which were deductions from that figure.

Q. Was a bank account maintained for the San Diego Social Club? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where was that maintained?

A. Mechanics Bank at El Cerrito.

Q. How many accounts were maintained there for the San Diego Social Club?

A. Covered five or six different operations.

Q. Do I understand there was one account or five or six [573] different accounts?

A. Five or six accounts. Each activity had its own bank accounts.

Q. Will you state what those were?

A. I don't understand the question.

Q. Well, how the bank accounts were divided?

A. Each separate—San Diego Social Club, 21 Club, 311 Club.

Q. But there was only one account for the San Diego Social Club?

A. No, two accounts, one was simply pay roll account, then there would be the main bank account. The pay roll account was taken out of the main account at the bank, as is the usual practice.

Q. Now who were the authorized signators on those accounts?

A. Well, for the San Diego Social Club, for the gambling, probably have Mr. Billington——

Mr. Gillen: Just a moment. I am going to offer an objection to such speculation—"would probably have."

The Court: I think the witness should answer from his own knowledge if he can or without any uncertainty if he can. If he can't answer the question, say you don't know.

Mr. Gillen: Or if the records of the bank accounts are available, they should be produced as the best evidence.

The Court: That answer will go out. We will have the [574] question read. Answer the question directly. If you do not know, say so.

(Question read.)

A. I do not remember on general accounts. On pay roll accounts I or my brother Lester were authorized to sign those pay roll checks.

Q. Were you authorized to draw on the general accounts? A. No, sir.

Q. Of any of the three clubs? A. No, sir.

Q. Now with regard to the 21 Club, you stated that you had a general ledger. Now was there set up in that general ledger investment accounts for each of the partners?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as leading and suggestive. I think it would be proper to ask what was set up.

The Court: Objection will be overruled.

Mr. Gillen: It is similar to the question that your Honor ruled upon in regard to 311 Club.

The Court: Just a little different.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of George E. Simmons.)

A. I don't know.

Q. You don't know? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you keep those records?

A. They were kept by Mr. Bishop.

Q. After you began your employment, I believe you stated in [575] 1944, did you maintain any such accounts? A. Not to my knowledge.

Q. Did you maintain any such accounts, that is, partners accounts, on any of the three clubs, that is to say the 21 Club, the San Diego Social Club or the 311 Club, to which reference has been made?

A. No books were kept except the Internal Revenue report showing the distribution.

Q. What was the source from which you obtained the distribution of profits or loss at the end of each year?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as asked and answered. He said he kept daily reports from whoever happened to be in charge and in addition, because he paid the bills himself, he knew what other deductions were to be made for current bills.

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question.

Q. Do you understand the question?

A. No, may I have the last question?

(Question read.)

A. Messrs. Pechart and Kessel, either one or both.

Q. And was that true of each of the three clubs?

A. Yes, sir.

BLEED THROUGH-- POOR COPY

(Testimony of George E. Simmons.)

Q. Taking, for example, government's Exhibit 54, the 1944 partnership return of income of Joseph Billington, doing business as the 21 Club, and calling your attention to Schedule I, where the reported profit of 3799 and some odd cents is [576] divided $1800 to Remmer, $900 each to Kessel and Pechart, and $190 to Mr. Billington, do I understand that the information from which you put those figures down there was given to you by Mr. Pechart and Mr. Kessel?

A. Not Joseph Billington, no, sir.

Q. From what source did you get the information in that return?

A. Both Billington and Pechart themselves.

Q. That is to say from all three?

A. Yes, sir, to the best of my knowledge.

Q. Calling your attention to government's Exhibit 93, the office copy which was never filed, I believe you stated, of 1944, of Joseph Billington, doing business as the San Diego Social Club, and dividing the 48 thousand dollar profit set out here as among eight or nine individuals——

Mr. Gillen: Just a minute—may it please the Court I think you misquoted the record in your question. I do not think this witness did state that was never filed as a return. He stated he did not know. Mr. Campbell stated it was not.

Mr. Campbell: Yes, I so state. I will reframe my question.

Q. Calling your attention to plaintiff's 93, the office copy of 1944, of 1944 purported partnership return of income, for Joseph Billington, doing business as San Diego Social Club, wherein some $48,900 of profit is divided among some eight [577] or individuals, from what source did you obtain the information as to the division to be made of that profit among those individuals?

A. If I may go back just a moment. It was rather hard to determine who owned that and which. It was my understanding these people were all partners——

Mr. Gillen: Just a minute——

Mr. Campbell: Counsel is right.

The Court: That may go out as not responsive.

Q. You must answer my question directly, Mr. Simmons.

The Court: Just answer the question.

(Question read.)

Mr. Gillen: Just a moment—I am going to offer several objections. In the first place, I offer the objection this question was asked and answered some time ago on direct examination. The gentleman does not know, he thought, to the best of his recollection, he obtained the information that he put in that exhibit either from some books or from some memorandum he had and that is as far as he went on that. My next objection is that it is not shown to be a return for the reason that this witness testified that it was something that he prepared for a field auditor for the Internal Revenue Department, who asked him for a copy, and finally counsel's question contemplates that there was such a division of profits as was shown in there, which is not the fact. There is not anything [578] on that. He said he prepared some statement for a field auditor from some information he may have gotten from books or from some memorandum and he doesn't know whether that was ever filed as a return or not, so there is no evidence in the record at all that there was ever any distribution to anybody that is mentioned in there.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of George E. Simmons.)

The Court: Let me have the question again.

(Question read.)

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question.

A. I don't know, sir.

Direct Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Mr. Simmons, I call your attention to the fact that on the three returns of the 311 Club, being plaintiff's Exhibits 74, 75 and 76 respectively, there is named at the top of the return W. M. Pechart, D. N. Kessel and Fred Grunewald, doing business as 311 Club. Who is Fred Grunewald?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of George E. Simmons.)

A. Fred Grunewald is the owner of the building in which the 311 Club is located.

Q. I also notice in respect to the 1944 return of Billington, [579] doing business as the 21 Club, plaintiff's Exhibit 54, there is attached as a part of the return an agreement between Walter M. Pechart and David N. Kessel, partners, and Fred Grunewald. Did he have any connection with that club, the 21 Club?

A. No, sir. The agreement is attached to the wrong form.

Q. By wrong form, to what form should that have been attached? A. The 311 Club.

Q. That was attached there by you at the time you made it up?

A. I don't know, sir. Probably stapled to the wrong return.

Q. Now with respect to any of the three organizations, that is, the 311 Club, the San Diego Social Club, or the 21 Club, did you ever see any partnership agreements?

A. No, sir, outside the 311 to which that memorandum refers.

Q. By memorandum you refer to the memorandum which is stapled to government's Exhibit 54, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Which you say should have been stapled to the return of the 311 Club? A. Yes, sir.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

Q. And that is the only agreement that you have seen among any of the parties? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And as I recall, you prepared both the 21 Club return, Exhibit 54, to which that is attached, and the 311 Club, Exhibit [580] 74, is that correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. To which you said it should have been attached? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you recall the circumstances under which it was attached to Exhibit 54?

A. Probably a clerical error before the returns were sent in.

Mr. Campbell: I see. You may cross-examine.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Q. Mr. Simmons, during the years 1944, 1945, and 1946, who were your employers in connection with the three clubs that have been mentioned here, the 311 Club, 21 Club and San Diego Social Club?

A. Messrs. Pechart and Kessel.

Q. Did you ever make an individual return for Elmer F. Remmer, the defendant here, or for his wife, or for either of them? A. No, sir.

Q. By the way, I take it that your organization was an independent organization of public accounts, is that correct?

A. No, sir, we were paid individuals by Pechart and Kessel.

Q. I mean you had your own organization, they were not the only people that you kept books for?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of George E. Simmons.)

A. No, we had others.

Q. So you had your own organization, but Pechart and Kessel employed you to keep books for those three enterprises? [581] A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now I will ask you to look at defendant's Exhibits F and G and I am going to ask you whether you recall receiving either or both of these letters from Mr. Pat Mooney, inquiring of you concerning any distributive share out of the 21 Club or the San Diego Social Club for Elmer Remmer?

Mr. Campbell: For what year does that refer?

Mr. Gillen: 1944.

Q. Do you recall receiving those letters, sir?

A. I do not recall whether these were the letters. I received one or two letters from Mr. Mooney similar to these.

Q. You recall that Mr. Mooney wrote you on May 23, 1945, and requested as follows:

> "Will you please let me know the amount of the distributive share of Mr. Elmer F. Remmer partnership return for the 21 Club in El Cerrito for the year 1944? We have to have these figures as I may have to file an amended income tax return 1040. Thanking you for your prompt attention in this matter. I might add that I was in your office about a year ago with Mr. Willie Kyne. With the writer's kindest personal regards. Sincerely, Pat Mooney, Chief Field Agent."

Do you recall a letter similar to that coming to you?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of George E. Simmons.)

A. Yes, sir. [582]

Q. Now do you recall whether or not you ever answered that letter? A. I did.

Q. And do you recall what you said in that letter? A. No, sir.

Q. Let me ask you if you recall whether or not you advised Mr. Mooney that you did not have that data at hand, that it might be in the possession of Mr. Lewis, who was former collector of Internal Revenue at San Francisco?

A. I do not remember, sir.

Q. Let me ask you to look then at defendant's Exhibit G and see if this refreshes your recollection. It is another letter on May 7, 1946, from Mr. Mooney to you.

A. I probably received this or a similar letter.

Q. Now, Mr. Simmons, does this refresh your recollection that you referred Mr. Mooney to Mr. Lewis at 333 Montgomery Street, San Francisco?

A. I don't think so.

Q. Let me read this to you:

"May 10, 1946. Dear Mr. Simmons: I was unable to get Mr. Lewis at 333 Montgomery Street, San Francisco, regarding the partnership returns of Elmer F. Remmer for the 21 Club in El Cerrito. You may have returns in your possession at this time and no doubt you can give me the distributive [583] share of Mr. Remmer in the accounting. It is necessary to have these figures in order to complete Mr.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of George E. Simmons.)

Remmer's return. Thanking you for your courtesy in this matter, very truly yours, Chief Field Deputy."

Does that refresh your recollection?

A. I recall the incident, but what happened I don't know.

Q. Well, let me ask you if it would refresh your recollection if you were told Mr. Pat Mooney testified here that when he inquired of you of information for any distributive net share of the partnership in the 21 Club of Elmer Remmer, that you informed him at that time that that data was out of your hands and was now in the hands of Mr. Lewis, who had formerly been the collector of Internal Revenue at San Francisco, and who had subsequently resigned from that post and had become a lawyer and tax expert at San Francisco with offices at 333 Montgomery Street. Do you recall that?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as assuming a fact not in evidence.

Mr. Gillen: I can show counsel the records.

The Court: That seems to be my recollection.

Mr. Campbell: I will withdraw my objection.

The Court: You may answer the question. The substance of the question is, does that refresh your memory?

Mr. Gillen: Yes, your Honor. Do you have my question? [584] A. Will you repeat it?

(Question read.)

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of George E. Simmons.)

A. I recall writing Mr. Mooney. I remember that part of it, that the information was in the hands of Mr. Lewis and I didn't have it at that time.

Q. Do you know whether or not you ever furnished Mr. Mooney with any information on the distributive share of any profit out of the 21 Club that was to go or did go to Mr. Remmer?

A. I did, sir.

Q. In what form did you give him that information?

A. By letter, after discussions in my office.

Q. Was it subsequent to the last letter that he wrote you May of 1946, and I am referring now and showing you defendant's Exhibit G, in which he said he couldn't get in touch with Mr. Lewis and asked you if you now had that information?

A. Before this day I talked to Mr. Mooney. I didn't furnish anything after this date.

Q. You can see by reading that letter that Mr. Mooney still did not have the information; isn't that obvious to you?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as argumentative.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Read the letter and see if it does not assume yet that Mr. Mooney did not have the information that he wanted and was asking if you now had it?

Mr. Campbell: Same objection. [585]

The Court: Same ruling.

Mr. Gillen: That it is argumentative?

The Court: Yes.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of George E. Simmons.)

Mr. Campbell: That is my objection.

The Court: I think it is asking this witness for his view of the exhibit.

Mr. Gillen: All right, let me put it this way:

Q. Can you tell us if you had already given Mr. Mooney the information he wanted?

A. No, sir.

Q. So when he wrote you this letter May 19th, he didn't have it?

Mr. Campbell: Same objection, argumentative.

The Court: Same ruling.

Q. Did you write a letter to Mr. Mooney in answer to defendant's Exhibit G, in which you told Mr. Mooney you had already given him the information? A. I do not remember, sir.

Q. Well, what did you do with regard to that letter?

A. I might have written; I might have referred it to Mr. Lewis. I have no knowledge what happened after that.

Q. Isn't it a fact, Mr. Simmons, you had already referred him to Mr. Lewis and he wrote you he was unable to get Mr. Lewis and asked you if the information had come back in your hands?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as [586] argumentative.

The Court: Same ruling. Objection sustained.

Mr. Gillen: That it is argumentative.

Q. Will you read that exhibit, Mr. Simmons, and tell us whether or not that refreshes your recollection that you had not, up to that time, given any information to Mr. Mooney regarding any distributive share due Mr. Remmer?

BLEED THROUGH— POOR COPY

(Testimony of George E. Simmons.)

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as asked and answered.

The Court: He may look at the exhibit. I think the question was to examine the instrument and determine whether or not it refreshes his memory; wasn't that the question?

Mr. Gillen: Yes, your Honor.

A. I don't know whether I ever answered this letter or not.

Q. Do you know whether you ever gave Mr. Mooney information regarding the distributive share due Mr. Remmer out of the 21 Club?

A. I remember writing Mr. Mooney one letter, giving him the distributive share of Mr. Remmer for a certain year, the year of which I don't remember.

Q. Would you say it was before this letter, defendant's Exhibit G, or after? A. Before.

Q. Before? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you obtain any explanation from Mr. Mooney at any time [587] as to why he wrote this letter, saying he didn't have the information, if you had already given it to him?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as argumentative.

The Court: He can answer that yes or no.

(Question read.)

A. No, sir.

Q. Now, Mr. Simmons, I am showing you here

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of George E. Simmons.)

the prosecution's Exhibit 54, which purports to be the return for 1944 of Joseph Billington, doing business as the 21 Club, and in which it is shown that Joseph Billington had received a distributive share of the profit in the sum of $190, and in which there appears your name and your stamp, G. E. Simmons and Associates, as the person who made up that return. You recall making that return, do you not? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And I believe your testimony, in answer to Mr. Campbell's question, was that you received the information of that distributive share in the sum of $190 to Mr. Billington from Mr. Pechart, Mr. Kessel and Mr. Billington, himself; is that correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now the following year, to wit, 1945, your organization made up the return for J. Billington, doing business as the 21 Club and San Diego Social Club, and the return as the person who made it up was signed by R. Beck, Frank E. Simmons and Associates, and in that return it is shown that Mr. Billington received [588] $3,658.17. Can you tell us where that information was obtained?

A. It was the distributive percentage received from Messrs. Billington, Pechart and Kessel, and this is not the share of his actual receipt. It is his proportionate share. Whether he got the money or not, I cannot tell.

Q. That is the same position that prevailed as to the $190 the year before? A. Yes, sir.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of George E. Simmons.)

Q. You don't know whether he got the money either? A. No, sir.

Q. But those three gentlemen, Mr. Pechart, Mr. Kessel and Mr. Billington, told you that that was his distributive share, $190; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Is that the same thing that occurred the following year when his distributive share was 3,600 odd dollars? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you get that information yourself from those three gentlemen? A. I don't remember.

Q. I understood you to say that you have never discussed any of these returns or the profits or the business of either of these, or any of these three enterprises, with Mr. Remmer, the defendant in this case? A. That is correct. [589]

Q. Now, Mr. Simmons, I am going to show you what has been introduced here as prosecution's Exhibit 93, and that, if you remember, is the document which you said you made up for a field auditor a year or two after 1944, or two or three years after 1944, I believe you said either 1946 or 1947, and I will ask you to note that in that exhibit the distributive share, or the distributive percentage, to Mr. Billington is set forth as two thousand dollars, while for the same year in the return that was filed by you, the distributive share for Mr. Billington was set forth as $190, in Exhibit 54. Can you tell us how that difference arose? Both of those were prepared by you. Can you tell us the reason for that difference, namely, that 54 shows Billing-

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of George E. Simmons.)

ton was entitled to a percentage of $190 while Exhibit 93 shows him entitled to a percentage of two thousands dollars? Can you tell us why the difference?

A. The $190 distributive share refers to Joseph Billington doing business as the 21 Club. On this photostatic copy for Joseph Billington, doing business as the San Diego Social Club, the distributive share is two thousand dollars. They are two different entities.

Q. Two different enterprises?

A. Two different enterprises.

Q. So then that Exhibit 93 has nothing to do with the 21 Club at all? A. No, sir. [590]

Q. Now again referring to Exhibit 54, prosecution's Exhibit 54, which is the Joseph Billington return for the 21 Club in 1944, which, if I understand your testimony correctly, that this two-page agreement that appears attached hereto, mentioning some terms of agreement between Pechart and Kessel and a man named Grunewald, was attached to this return inadvertently? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That did really belong to the 311 Club?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Because Mr. Grunewald was the owner of the building in which the 311 Club was housed and Mr. Grunewald had nothing to do with the 21 Club and the San Diego Social Club; is that correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. It was mere inadvertence?

A. Mere inadvertence, that's right.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of George E. Simmons.)

Q. Now in prosecution's Exhibit 72A, you made a return for the year 1944 for one Frank Carvani; you recall that return? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Mr. Simmons, isn't it a fact that Frank Carvani never did actually manage the 21 Club, but that his name had initially appeared on the license and that he was supplanted by another person because of the death of somebody that was running an enterprise in San Francisco?

A. My recollection is Frank Carvani, as far as we were concerned, from the heading on the books of account—— [591]

Q. (Interrupting): Well, let me ask you this, do you recall——

Mr. Campbell: I don't think he finished his answer.

A. (Continuing): ——but when we tried to find Frank Carvani, he was very seldom available. Perhaps we saw him three times during that interval.

Q. Was it within your knowledge that Mr. Frank Carvani was conducting another enterprise altogether in San Francisco?

A. I didn't know anything about that.

Q. Does it refresh your recollection, Mr. Simmons, that you called upon Frank Carvani to make a return because Frank Carvani's name had been initially on the license; does that refresh your recollection? A. That I do not remember.

Q. Mr. Bishop, whom you have mentioned here as your predecessor on this account, did he work for Mr. Pechart and Mr. Kessel also?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of George E. Simmons.)

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And he was the man who had set up the ledger on the general account for the 21 Club?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you found it when you took over?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you found it to be somewhat behind?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And hadn't been kept up to date? [592]

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Mr. Bishop had been lax——

Mr. Campbell: I am going to object to that, as calling for conclusion of the witness.

Q. Well, let me put it this way—that indicated to you a laxity on the part of the man who is keeping the books, rather than on the part of the people who employed him; is that correct?

Mr. Campbell: Same objection.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Well, did you ever talk this account over with Mr. Bishop?

A. Quite frequently. Mr. Bishop was ill the biggest part of the time.

Q. Did Mr. Bishop tell you had fallen behind on the bookkeeping?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to that as calling for hearsay.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Well, at all events, you did the best you could to bring the books up to date? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you didn't have any difficulty in getting

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of George E. Simmons.)

hold of people who assisted you in bringing the books up to date?

A. During those times it was hard to get competent help. I had only my brother and I and one man.

Q. I mean you were able to get the information you needed to bring the books up to date and you did it as best you could with your staff; is that correct? [593] A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Gillen: I think that is all.

Redirect Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Mr. Simmons, reference has been made here particularly in some correspondence that was purportedly between you and Mr. Mooney and this gentleman, Mr. Lewis, a former collector at San Francisco. Was Mr. Lewis collector of Internal Revenue during the years that you were keeping these books? A. No, sir.

Q. As a matter of fact, he had not been collector since 1938, had he?

Mr. Gillen: We will stipulate he was not collector but was in private practice, both as a lawyer and tax expert.

The Court: You accept that stipulation?

Mr. Campbell: Yes, I accept that stipulation. That's all.

(Witness finally excused.)

LESTER SIMMONS

a witness on behalf of the plaintiff, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Will you state your name, please?

A. Lester E. Simmons.

Q. Where do you reside?

A. 806 Liberty Avenue, El Cerrito.

Q. What is your business or occupation?

A. Accountant. [594]

Q. With whom are you associated at this time?

A. Pechart and Kessel.

Q. During the years 1944 to 1946 were you associated with Mr. Pechart and Mr. Kessel?

A. 1945 and '46.

Q. Were you also at that time associated with your brother? A. I was.

Q. Your brother testified that he severed his connection with Pechart and Kessel late in 1946 or early in 1947. Are you able to fix that date with any greater certainty?

A. I believe it was '48.

Q. It wasn't until 1947. I take it that after he severed his connection, you remained on; is that correct? A. That's right.

Q. Now during the years 1944, 1945 and 1946, were you working under your brother's supervision or independently?

A. The year 1944 is not involved. I was not in California at that time.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Lester Simmons.)

Q. But after you came here?

A. I worked for him.

Q. Was that the same thing during the year 1946? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now a subpoena duces tecum was served upon you, Mr. Simmons, to produce all records of any description for the period January 1, 1943, to January 31, 1947, inclusive, relating to the [595] following businesses: 21 Club, San Diego Social Club, and 311 Club, all at El Cerrito, California; is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you have such records? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you have any records of any kind in your possession? A. I have no records.

Q. Do you have any work papers for that period in your possession? A. No, sir.

Q. Where are such records, if you know?

A. Mr. Remmer has them.

Q. When were they delivered to Mr. Remmer?

A. Some time in April, 1951.

Q. And who made the delivery to Mr. Remmer?

A. Well, Mr. Remmer picked them up at the Pechart office.

Q. Were you there on that occasion?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You say it was in April of 1951?

A. That's right.

Q. And so far as you know, have they been in Mr. Remmer's possession at all times since then?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as calling for conclusion.

Mr. Campbell: I will withdraw that question.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Lester Simmons.)

Q. Since April, 1951, when Mr. Remmer picked up these records, [596] that are called for in this subpoena, that is to say, the records of the 21 Club, San Diego Social Club, and the 311 Club, have you seen them since that time? A. I have not.

Q. Who was present on that occasion when Mr. Remmer picked these records up? A. Myself.

Q. And who else? A. No one.

Q. Mr. Remmer was there, I take it?

A. Naturally.

Q. And Mr. Pechart? A. No.

Q. Had you previous to that time been given instructions by anyone to turn those records over to Mr. Remmer?

A. Mr. Remmer requested the records and Mr. Pechart approved it.

Q. Mr. Pechart approved it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. At the time that those records were turned over to Mr. Remmer, did you obtain a receipt for them? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you have that receipt?

A. Mr. Pechart has it.

Q. Do you know if he has that here with [597] him? A. He is not here.

Q. I mean to say, did he bring it here to court with him? A. I think he did.

Mr. Campbell: If the Court please, may the further examination of this witness be deferred until 10:00 o'clock tomorrow morning until the other matter has been determined?

BLEED THROUGH— POOR COPY

The Court: Yes, we will take our recess at this time.

Mr. Gillen: Before your Honor excuses the jury, may I make a statement that your Honor said you would permit me to make?

The Court: Yes, sir.

Mr. Gillen: In the absence of the jury on Friday, your Honor called for some comment regarding the problem that confronted the Court at that time, with reference to the appearance on the witness stand of Mr. Kessel. At that time I stated to your Honor, and wish to reiterate, with your Honor's permission, in the presence of the jury, that Mr. Kessel, and since that time Mr. Pechart, are both witnesses subpoenaed by the prosecution, by the government, and their attitude and their decision regarding whether or not they desire to testify in this matter is something that rests entirely with them on the advice of independent counsel. They were accompanied from San Francisco by Mr. Chas. Wiseman as counsel, and also represented here this morning by Joseph P. Haller, a Nevada attorney, with offices in Reno, and it is the desire of the [598] defense that your Honor should know, and the jury should know, that their decisions and determination what they should do in the face of any orders your Honor makes, is entirely their decision and that the defense is not in any wise participating in this matter. I might say to your Honor that it has been the contemplated thought of the defense in this case to call Mr. Pechart and Mr. Kessel as defense witnesses——

BLURRED COPY

Mr. Campbell: Just a minute.

Mr. Gillen: The Court said I could make a statement. If the Court thinks I am making an improper statement, he is well able of advising——

The Court: I do not think we should go into matters of what the defense contemplates. I think the substance of the statement made the other day to the Court in the absence of the jury is pretty well covered.

Mr. Gillen: If your Honor feels so.

The Court: I think so. No need to go any further at this time. The record will show and the jury will understand the position of the defendant, as stated just now by Mr. Gillen. So the jury is excused until 11:00 o'clock tomorrow.

DAVID N. KESSEL

a witness on behalf of the plaintiff, having been previously sworn, testified as follows:

Direct Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Mr. Kessel, I am going to repeat to you the question which was asked you yesterday. Do you know Mr. Remmer's occupation?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of David N. Kessel.)

A. I decline to answer. It would tend to incriminate me.

Q. On what grounds?

A. On the grounds it may incriminate me.

Mr. Campbell: I press the question, your Honor.

The Court: That question was propounded to the witness on Friday and yesterday, Monday, December 10, 1951, and the same response was made. The defendant declined to answer then on the ground that the answer would tend to incriminate him. Thereupon the matter was continued until this morning at 10:00 o'clock. The Court at that time heard from counsel for the witness legal argument in behalf of the witness' position and also received certain exhibits in evidence. At the conclusion of the morning session I indicated that I would order the witness to answer the question, so I will now order the witness to [600] answer the question which was propounded by Mr. Campbell. Will you please read the question to the witness again?

(Question read.)

A. At the present time I do not know.

Q. Do you know what his occupation was during the years 1944 to 1946, inclusive?

A. I decline to answer the question.

Mr. Campbell: I press the question, your Honor.

The Court: What is your reason for declining to answer?

Mr. Campbell: I think, your Honor, if it is the same reason in each instance, that it may be deemed to have been stated.

The Witness: Yes.

The Court: Same reason. Does counsel for the witness desire to have any further presentation in regard to the present situation?

Mr. Wiseman: No, your Honor.

The Court: I give counsel for the witness an opportunity to be heard if they so desire and they may make any showing that they might desire.

Mr. Wiseman: Do I understand, your Honor, there has been an order or direction made by the Court?

The Court: I think the question was merely propounded and the witness has refused to [601] answer.

Mr. Wiseman: I presume there has been no order?

The Court: No order made.

Mr. Wiseman: I assume our understanding was there would be an order made in respect to the question.

The Court: No, I do not know what the situation might be. I cannot contemplate the questions that may be propounded.

Mr. Wiseman: As I understand, with respect to each particular question it would be considered by the Court before he orders and order and direction be given.

The Court: So I will now direct the witness to answer the question just propounded by Mr. Camp-

(Question read.)

A. Cafe business and gaming.

Q. Where, if you know, was that business conducted by Mr. Remmer?

A. I refuse to answer that question.

The Court: The Court will order and direct the witness to answer the question.

A. That was at the 21 Club, and San Diego Social Club.

Q. Where were the 21 Club and San Diego Social Clubs located?

A. Somewhere on Panhandle Boulevard.

Q. Were they at Panhandle Boulevard and San Diego Street or Avenue in El Cerrito? [602]

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know the amount of Mr. Remmer's investment in those enterprises during the years 1944 to 1946, inclusive?

A. I refuse to answer that question.

Mr. Campbell: I press the question, your Honor.

The Court: The Court will direct the witness to answer the question.

A. Mr. Remmer owned the property. I don't know how much he had invested. He never took an active interest in the business.

Q. Do you know who the bookkeeper or bookkeepers were for those businesses, that is, the 21 Club and San Diego Social Club, during the years 1944 to 1946?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of David N. Kessel.)

A. I think we had Mr. Simmons, the two Simmons accountants.

Q. Is that the George Simmons who appeared on the stand here yesterday? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who employed Mr. Simmons for that purpose? A. The Club employed him.

Q. By the Club, to what individual or individuals do you refer?

A. I had 25 per cent, Mr. Pechart had 25 per cent, Mr. Remmer had 50 per cent. He was paid to keep the books.

Q. Was that division of 50 per cent to Mr. Remmer applicable to both the 21 Club and the San Diego Social Club?

A. It was sort of a combined interest. One was a cafe and [603] one was a gaming house; one was called the San Diego Social Club and one was called the 21 Club. The San Diego Social Club was the gaming house and the 21 Club was the bar and restaurant.

Q. They were both housed under the same roof?

A. Yes.

Q. Are you acquainted with one Joseph Billington, sometimes known as Frankie Denny?

A. I decline to answer the question.

The Court: The Court directs and orders you to answer the question.

A. Yes, I do know Mr. Denny.

Q. Under what name did you know him during the years 1944 to 1946?

A. Under the name of Joseph Billington.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of David N. Kessel.)

Q. To your knowledge did he have some connection with the 21 Club and San Diego Social Club?

A. I refuse to answer that question.

The Court: The Court directs you to answer the question, Mr. Kessel.

A. He had a job there. He was no partner in the business. He just had a job.

Q. What was the nature of his job?

A. Well, he took care of the bar and the restaurant.

Q. And what, if you know, was he paid for his services in that connection? [604]

A. I think he got about seventy-five a week and bonus; about seventy-five.

Q. You say he was not a partner in the venture?

A. Not a partner.

Q. Did you know one Frank Cavani during the years 1944 to 1946?

A. I refuse to answer the question.

The Court: The Court directs you to answer the question, sir.

A. Yes, I do know Mr. Cavani.

Q. Did he have some connection with the 21 Club and San Diego Social Club during that period?

A. The only thing I knew about him, the license was in his name at one time.

Q. Did he have anything to do with the operation of either of the clubs? A. No, sir.

Q. Nor was he a partner in the operation of the club?

A. Just simply a name only on the license.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of David N. Kessel.)

Q. Who is Frank Cavani?

A. I didn't know him very well.

Q. Where does he live?

A. Well, he lives in San Francisco.

Q. By license are you referring to liquor licenses? A. Liquor license. [605]

Q. And when was that put in his name, if you know?

A. I wouldn't remember, but I believe he was the first man named on the license when the club opened.

Q. And during the period in question, 1944 to 1946, was the license continued in his name?

A. I wouldn't be sure. I think it was changed to Billington. I wouldn't be sure.

Q. Were you in 1944 acquainted with Walter Parman? A. I refuse to answer that.

The Court: The Court will order and direct you to answer the question, Mr. Kessel.

A. I know a Walter Parman.

Q. To your knowledge did he have any connection with the operation of the 21 Club or the San Diego Social Club? A. Just worked there.

Q. What was the nature of his employment?

A. He was sort of a manager in the gaming room.

Q. Did he have any interest in the operation of the establishment? A. Not that I know of.

Q. Were you, during 1944, acquainted with one A. Riggardio, sometimes known as Tony Riggardio?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of David N. Kessel.)

A. I refuse to answer the question.

The Court: The Court will direct and order you to answer the question, Mr. Kessel. [606]

A. He also worked at the 21 Club.

Q. What was the nature of his employment?

A. He also helped out in the restaurant.

Q. Did he have any interest in the operation of the two clubs? A. I do not think so.

Q. He was simply an employee?

A. Yes, sir; just an employee.

Q. Did you, during 1944, know one Andrew Desamoni?

A. I refuse to answer the question.

The Court: Same order. The Court will direct you to answer.

A. He was also employed in the gaming room.

Q. Did he have any interest in the enterprise?

A. Not that I know.

Q. Did you, during 1944, know one Demetris Sartanos? A. I refuse to answer.

The Court: Same order. The Court directs you to answer.

A. He also worked in the gaming room. Just a paid employee.

Q. Was my pronunciation of that name correct?

A. I wouldn't know how to pronounce it myself.

Q. Do you know to what individual that refers though? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did he have any interest in the enterprise?

A. Just a paid employee.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of David N. Kessel.)

Q. During the year 1944 did you know one Michael Necheck? [607]

A. I refuse to answer.

The Court: Same order.

A. He was also a paid employee.

Q. In what part of the establishment was he employed? A. The gaming room.

Q. Was he also a paid employee?

A. A paid employee.

Q. Did he have any interest in the enterprises, to your knowledge? A. None that I know of.

Q. There has been testimony here, Mr. Kessel, that the books and records of the 21 Club, of the San Diego Social Club, as well as those of the 311 Club, all in El Cerrito, were delivered in about April, 1951, to the defendant, Elmer Remmer, and that a receipt was given therefor.

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as leading and suggestive.

Mr. Campbell: It is preliminary to the question.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Q. Do you have such receipt? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know who does have that receipt?

A. I refuse to answer the question.

The Court: The Court will direct you to answer the question.

A. Mr. Pechart has the receipt. [608]

Q. Were you, during the years 1944 to 1946, inclusive, familiar with the operation or business known as the 311 Club, located at 311 Panhandle Boulevard?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

A. I refuse to answer the question.

The Court: The Court orders you to answer the question, Mr. Kessel.

A. Yes, I was.

Q. Did Mr. Remmer, the defendant here, have an interest in that business or profits thereof?

A. No, sir. Would you repeat that question?

(Question read.)

Q. Shall I divide the question?

A. I wish you would.

Q. Did Mr. Remmer have an interest in the business?

A. I decline to answer the question.

The Court: The Court does order and direct you to answer the question, Mr. Kessel.

A. Mr. Remmer was no partner in that business.

Q. Mr. Kessel, I will ask you if you had an arrangement with Mr. Remmer, whereby he received a part of the profits of that business during the years 1944 and 1945?

Mr. Gillen: We are going to offer the objection, may it please the Court, this gentleman is Mr. Campbell's witness. The questions are very leading and suggestive. The direct examination should be conducted the same as any other direct [609] examination, I know your Honor will agree. He is cross-examining his own witness.

The Court: The Court will overrule the objection.

(Question read.)

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of David N. Kessel.)

Mr. Gillen: We offer the further objection it has been asked and answered by the witness.

The Court: Objection overruled.

A. I refuse to answer.

The Court: The Court orders you to answer the question. You know, counsel—I am speaking to the witness' counsel now—it seems to me unusual and frivolous, if this witness is going to stand on his constitutional rights, he should do so, rather than force the Court to use time filling this record full of orders.

Mr. Wiseman: That was the suggestion I had this morning, that some arrangement could be made for stipulation that could be entered. The thing I suggested this morning; that it would be deemed——

The Court: No, he will have to claim his privilege whenever he intends to claim it, but claiming it is one thing and abandoning it is another. That is the thing that annoys me. We are just wasting so much time cluttering the record. Now it would seem to me that if the witness, in good faith, is claiming a [610] privilege under the Constitution, he ought to stand on it and not abide with the order of the Court. In other words, if he is going to answer a question by the order of the Court, it is a frivolous thing to keep going the way we are now.

Mr. Wiseman: I think he is compelled to under the law to stand upon his rights.

The Court: I can't understand, if he is claiming his privilege and then answers the question when directed what is his position? Hasn't he waived the privilege as to that question?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of David N. Kessel.)

Mr. Wiseman: I don't think he has waived his privilege. He is sustaining his privilege and also obeying the order of the Court. He would be caught between two fires.

The Court: I was hoping we might find some way of simplifying it.

Mr. Wiseman: I am willing to go along. That is what I suggested this morning, but he is answering questions under order of the Court.

The Court: The thought I had, if his claim was made in good faith, it would seem to me he would stand on.

Mr. Wiseman: If he did that, he would be in contempt of the order of the Court, which the witness apparently doesn't intend to do.

The Court: Very well. [611]

Mr. Wiseman: Unless it is understood in the interest of time——

The Court: No, I think he ought to be entitled to make his claim as he goes along.

(Last question read.)

A. I refuse to answer that.

The Court: The Court will order you to answer the question.

A. We did not have any agreement. It is customary in the 21 Club and 311 Club and we gave Mr. Remmer a bonus, just a friendship bonus. One was across the street from the other and we just gave a bonus and whatever the bonus is, it is on the books. I don't know the amount. It is customary in our business to give a bonus. The place he had over there and the other place run in conjunction and we give him a little bonus. I don't know the amount. The amount is on the books, and as I said before, that is all I know about the business. I wasn't very active in it; in fact, I wouldn't be there maybe once a week or once every two weeks.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of David N. Kessel.)

Q. How was that amount arrived at?

A. Well, I don't know. My business is all percentage, something on the net. I only noted the amount. I don't remember the percentage. As I said, I wasn't very active there and I didn't pay much attention because I had my own business to take care of. [612]

Q. It was then based upon percentage?

A. No, just a friendship bonus. I don't know whether 2 per cent or 5 per cent or 10 per cent.

Q. I am going to show you government's Exhibit 74, being partnership return income for 1944 of W. M. Pechart, D. N. Kessler and Fred Grunewald, doing business as the 311 Club, and ask you if you recognize that return? A. Yes, I do.

Q. Is that the return of the 311 Club for the year 1944?

A. Well, I never knew the amounts that were added. The accountant took care of any account.

Q. You do recognize the document, though?

Mr. Gillen: Is that some copy?

Mr. Campbell: This is the original.

BLEED THROUGH— POOR COPY

(Testimony of David N. Kessel.)

Mr. Gillen: It speaks for itself.

A. I recognize the signatures.

Q. I call your attention to Schedule I, "Partner's share of the income"; it sets forth the following: E. L. Price, $1241.66; Fred Grunewald, $2793.72; E. Remmer, $1257.18; W. M. Pechart, $3562.03; D. N. Kessler, $3562.03. Directing your attention specifically to E. Remmer, $1257.18, I will ask you if that refreshes your recollection in any manner as to how the amount paid to Mr. Remmer was arrived at?

A. As I said before, I never paid no attention to this Club. I came out there maybe once a week or once every two weeks, [613] maybe once a month, and I know there was a little money—I thought it might have been five or six hundred at one time, but I don't recollect—it might be $1257 just as well as five hundred.

Q. Do you recall who managed the club at that time, referring to the 311 Club?

A. I don't remember the man's name.

Q. I call your attention to the fact that the third person mentioned here, in addition to yourself and Mr. Pechart, is one Fred Grunewald. Who was Fred Grunewald?

A. Mr. Grunewald owned the building.

Q. Did he have anything to do with the management of the concern?

A. He had nothing to do with the management.

Q. I call your attention to, under the Schedule I, "Partner's Share of Income," there is the name of one L. E. Price. Who was L. E. Price?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of David N. Kessel.)

A. I believe he worked there.

Q. Did he have an interest in the enterprise?

A. I do not think so.

Q. Was he an employee?

A. Employee, paid employee.

Q. He is listed here as a partner. Does that refresh your recollection as to his connection with the 311 Club?

A. He might have been listed as a partner, but I think the [614] accountant listed him as a partner and then later on they changed it. There were only three people in the partnership.

Q. Only three people?

A. Mr. Grunewald, myself and Mr. Pechart.

Q. Was that true for both the years 1944 and 1945? A. That is correct, yes.

Q. Aside from these businesses to which I have called your attention, do you know of any other businesses in which Mr. Remmer had an interest, either as a partner or receiving a share of the profits, during the years 1944 to 1946, inclusive?

A. None with my partner.

Q. You say "my partner"; to whom do you refer? A. Mr. Pechart.

Q. These three then were the only ones which you and your partner had any contact with Mr. Remmer?

A. That is right, the only ones I know.

Q. Do you know of any other businesses in or about El Cerrito in which Mr. Remmer had an interest? A. No.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as leading and suggestive.

Mr. Campbell: He said, no.

The Court: Objection overruled. The answer may stand.

Mr. Golden: I will withdraw the objection if he has answered.

Q. In whose name were the licenses at the [615] 311 Club?

A. They belonged to Mr. Grunewald. Mr. Grunewald, he owned the building.

Q. They were in his name?

A. He had nothing to do with that. That was his part. It was on the same premises but had nothing to do with it. That was his own saloon and that was his own profit, whatever he made, that was his own.

Q. Did Mr. Remmer contribute any capital or investment in the 311 Club?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as asked and answered. He said Mr. Remmer had no interest in it; he was given a friendship bonus.

The Court: Objection will be overruled. Read the question.

(Question read.)

A. None monies whatsoever; nothing.

Q. Now coming back to the 21 Club and San Diego Social Club, which you have testified that Mr. Remmer had a 50 per cent interest in during the years 1944 to 1946, inclusive, were any formal papers of agreement or partnership drawn up?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of David N. Kessel.)

A. No, sir; there was no agreement of partnership.

Q. You had no agreement?

A. No agreement.

Q. By that you mean there was no written agreement?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as leading and [616] suggestive. This is his witness that he is cross-examining.

The Court: I understand counsel withdraws that question.

Mr. Campbell: Yes, I withdraw that question.

Q. What was the nature of agreement or understanding that you had with Mr. Remmer as to the division of profits?

A. Mr. Remmer had 50 per cent and I had 25 and my partner, Mr. Pechart, had 25 per cent. We had no agreement. That is the way we do business.

Q. When you use the word "agreement," what do you mean by that?

A. We had no agreement. We just simply—I had 25, Mr. Pechart had 25, and Mr. Remmer had 50.

Q. By the word "agreement," are you referring to a written agreement? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as leading and suggestive, cross-examining his own witness.

The Court: Objection overruled. You may answer the question.

BLEED THROUGH— POOR COPY

(Testimony of David N. Kessel.)

A. We had no written agreement.

Q. As I understand you, you did have this understanding as to the division of profits; is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now when was that first entered into?

A. I can't remember that. It might have been the first day that we opened the doors. [617]

Q. Well, when was that?

A. '43 or '44. I took no active part in this.

Q. What is your best recollection as to when the 21 and San Diego Social Clubs were opened?

A. I think they were opened about '43 or '44, between '43 and '44; I wouldn't know for sure.

Q. I am going to show you plaintiff's Exhibit 56, the individual income tax return of Joseph E. Billington for the year 1943, prepared by G. E. Simmons and associates and reporting the profit and loss from the business known as the San Diego Social Club, and ask you if that refreshes your recollection as to when that business was opened?

A. I never saw this return; in fact, I saw very few returns. These were made out by the auditor.

Q. Does the fact that Joseph E. Billington reported the operation of the San Diego Social Club in 1943 of itself refresh your recollection?

A. If it is on our books, that is the amount and that is all I know about it. If the accountant has it on the books and it is recorded, that is the amount. I wouldn't know the amount.

Q. And where are the books of the San Diego Social Club and the 21 Club at this time?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of David N. Kessel.)

A. I refuse to answer.

The Court: The Court will direct the witness to answer the question. [618]

A. The books were turned over to Mr. Remmer. Mr. Remmer wanted the books.

Q. Do you recall when they were turned over to him? A. Sometime in April.

Q. And at that time were there also turned over to him the books of the 311 Club?

A. All the books were turned over. He wanted them for his personal tax. He had some tax trouble and he wanted the books. I was in there when he got the books.

Q. Will you state whether or not he has had those books since that time?

Mr. Gillen: That is certainly calling for his opinion and conclusion.

Mr. Campbell: If he knows.

Mr. Gillen: That is cross-examination of his own witness and calling for speculation.

Mr. Campbell: I am examining under difficulties.

Mr. Gillen: I assign that as misconduct.

The Court: Objection is overruled. Answer the question.

Mr. Gillen: May I make an assignment of misconduct?

The Court: I think by making the assignment you would give prominence to something that no one else heard. I do not believe anybody heard it. The objection is overruled. Read the question.

(Question read: "Will you state whether or not he has had [619] those books since that time, if you know?")

A. Mr. Pechart has a receipt for the books and I believe Mr. Remmer has the books.

The Court: That answer is not responsive. It may go out. Listen to the question.

(Question read.)

A. As far as I know, Mr. Remmer has the books and we have the receipt.

Mr. Gillen: I move the answer be stricken as not responsive—"as far as I know."

Mr. Campbell: I think it is responsive.

Mr. Gillen: I don't think it is, and at this time I desire to make assignment of misconduct against counsel for asking these questions because I charge the questions are being asked in bad faith, which will develop before your Honor.

The Court: The record may show the assignment.

Mr. Gillen: We will develop later what we charge bad faith.

The Court: I want to make an observation, not in regard to this particular subject, but any like subject you think it is necessary to make an assignment. The record will show the reasons for it.

Mr. Gillen: It is sometimes hard for jurors to follow [620] remarks of counsel.

The Court: But assignment is not for the benefit of the jury. It is for the appellate court.

The Court: I have a little different view of it. I don't see it.

(Last question and answer read.)

Mr. Campbell: You may cross-examine.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Q. Mr. Kessel, is it not a fact that before the 21 Club and before the San Diego Social Club came into existence that you and your partner, Mr. Pechart, employed an accountant by the name of Bishop? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And Mr. Bishop kept books for you and your partner in connection with your business enterprises? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that was exclusive of the 21 Club or the San Diego Club; is that correct?

A. That's right.

Q. I am talking about before those clubs came into existence. [621] Now when the San Diego Club and the 21 Club came into existence, it is a fact, is it not, that Mr. Bishop continued serving you and Mr. Pechart and included in his work for you the keeping of the books of the 21 Club and the San Diego Club? A. That is correct.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of David N. Kessel.)

Q. It is a fact, is it not, that Mr. Bishop became a very sick man and subsequently died?

A. That is correct.

Q. It is a fact, is it not, Mr. Bishop became too ill to continue his work for you, that you then employed the services of an accounting firm as G. E. Simmons and Associates?

A. That is right.

Q. And G. E. Simmons and his associates kept books for you and your partner, Mr. Pechart, for the several and various enterprises in which you were interested; is that correct?

A. That is right.

Q. And included in those enterprises was the 21 Club and also the San Diego Social Club, which had then come into existence; is that true?

A. That is right.

Q. And Mr. Bishop had also kept the books for the 311 Club, is that so, or had the 311 Club come into existence after Mr. Bishop became too ill to work for you?

A. I don't think he ever kept the books for the 311 Club. [622]. I think he had died.

Q. You and Mr. Pechart paid Mr. Bishop for keeping books for your various enterprises out of your own funds; is that true?

A. That is right.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of David N. Kessel.)

Q. And you have stated that you were inactive, insofar as the 21 Club and the San Diego Social Club was concerned, that you only went there infrequently; is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. And took no participation in the active operation of either the gaming room or the restaurant or the bar? A. That's right.

Q. Now I understood you to testify that in regard to the 311 Club, that this Mr. Grunewald owned the building and had a tavern business operating there; is that correct?

A. That is right.

Q. And that he derived his interest from the 311 Club by permitting you and your partner to operate in conjunction with this tavern?

A. That's right.

Q. And he conducted his tavern business and you conducted the other business yourselves, you and your partner; is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. And he derived his share in the profits from the use of his building and the location and so on; is that correct? A. Yes. [623]

Q. Now with regard to the 21 Club and the San Diego Social Club, it is true, is it not, that not Mr. Remmer but Mr. Grunewald owned the building; is that correct? A. That is right.

Q. And you and your partner conducted the gaming portion, or so-called San Diego Social Club; is that correct? A. That is right.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of David N. Kessel.)

Q. And insofar as the restaurant and tavern was concerned, who conducted that?

A. That was taken care of by Billington and Riggardio. They handled the restaurant and tavern.

Q. To your knowledge did Mr. Remmer work at the 311 Club in any capacity at any time?

A. Never.

Q. To your knowledge did Mr. Remmer work at the 21 Club in any capacity at any time?

A. Never worked there.

Q. To your knowledge did Mr. Remmer work at the San Diego Social Club in any capacity at any time? A. Never.

Q. To your knowledge did Mr. Remmer spend any time in any of those three clubs? Do you understand my question?

A. Yes, I do. Never spent any time in the 311 Club, but he used to visit the 21 Club. Had dinner in there.

Q. He used to go in there for dinner at the 21 Club? [624] A. Yes.

Q. Now you stated in your direct examination that the books that were kept by your accountants, namely, the accounts of the 311 Club, the accounts of the 21 Club, and the accounts of the San Diego Social Club, had been turned over to Mr. Remmer by your partner, Mr. Pechart, and that a receipt had been taken? A. That's right.

Q. And I believe that Mr. Campbell in his question fixed the time as April of 1951?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of David N. Kessel.)

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as assuming a fact not in evidence. The witness fixed the time.

Mr. Gillen: Mr. Campbell asked so many leading questions——

Mr. Campbell: I ask that be stricken.

The Court: I think so.

Q. Well, regardless of who fixed the time, do you now recollect that time or can you state the time was about April of 1951?

A. Sometime in April. It might have been April 21st, I don't know the exact date.

Q. I am talking about the year.

A. I wouldn't know the year.

Q. You wouldn't know the year? Mr. Kessel, was it within your knowledge, or is it within your knowledge that Internal Revenue Agents Farley and Gould took over all of the books and records and the accounts of the 21 Club and the San Diego Social Club [625] for the years 1943, 1944 and 1945 and worked on them for approximately four months and returned them with an audited report, reporting on the year 1943 on November 21, 1947—that is, completing the report and turning back the books on that year—and reporting on the year 1944, completing their survey and reporting on the year 1944 on April 5, 1948, and completing and reporting on the year 1945 on July 27, 1948, and returned those books and accounts for those two clubs to you and Mr. Pechart and your accounts on the dates given?

A. The books were audited at that time by these two agents. They were about four or five months and they returned them to us.

Q. They turned the books over to you?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And is it true that those books were in the possession of you and your partner and your accountants from not later than July of 1948 until they were turned over to Mr. Remmer in the month of April of 1951?

A. Well, I never saw the books there because I never kept track of all the books that were there.

Q. In regard to the 311 Club, is it within your knowledge that the same two agents had those books, which were turned over voluntarily to them by you and your partner, and worked on those books for a matter of four or five months and returned them to you as being through with them on July 27, 1948, and that they [626] were in your possession from that time until April of 1951, when they were turned over to Mr. Remmer?

A. I wouldn't know the exact date, but they audited all the books of all the enterprises.

Q. Is it within your knowledge that the Internal Revenue agents, when they turned the books back, stated that they had completed their audits and were through with those books?

Mr. Campbell: "Within your knowledge"—no proper foundation laid.

The Court: You may answer the question.

A. I believe they were through with the books.

Q. Well, believe—did the agents tell you they were through?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of David N. Kessel.)

A. Well, I never spoke very much to the agents.

Q. You don't know? A. I don't know.

Q. Now do you know why Mr. Remmer wanted to take over the books in 1951, April?

Mr. Campbell: Objected, calling for his conclusion.

Mr. Gillen: I am calling for his knowledge, if he knows. If he doesn't, he can say so.

The Court: He may answer the question.

Mr. Campbell: I submit, if the Court please, it should be in the form of conversation. He can't interpret Mr. Remmer's mind except as told to him by Mr. Remmer.

The Court: Well, I will sustain the objection in that form. [627]

Q. Mr. Kessel, did Mr. Remmer ever have any conversation with you in which he stated to you why he wanted to take over the books of those three clubs? A. He never asked me for them.

The Court: We are getting along fine, so I don't want any exchanges between counsel. I don't want any remarks made back and forth between counsel at all.

Mr. Gillen: I think that is all.

Mr. Campbell: That is all.

a witness on behalf of the plaintiff, being previously sworn, testified as follows:

Direct Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Mr. Pechart, I will put to you again the question which was asked you yesterday. With regard to a portion of the premises which you rented from Mr. Remmer, known as the San Diego Social Club, did you operate any business on those premises?

A. I refuse to answer on the ground it may tend to incriminate me. [628]

Mr. Campbell: I press the question.

The Court: The Court will now, and does, order and direct you to answer the question.

A. Yes, I was putting in a booking office.

Q. What do you mean by booking office?

A. Race horses.

Q. And in what year was that?

A. That I can't say. It was after the 21 Club had closed. It is a matter of record on my returns.

Q. During the years 1943 and 1944 particularly, and up to and including 1946, were you associated with the defendant, Elmer Remmer, in the operation of any business or businesses on those premises? A. May I have the question?

(Question read.)

A. I refuse to answer on the ground it may incriminate me.

The Court: The Court now orders and directs you to answer the question, Mr. Pechart.

A. Yes, I was.

Q. What was the nature of the business or businesses with which you were associated with Mr. Remmer? A. Gambling, cafe and food.

Q. What name or names did those businesses operate under?

A. The food and cocktail, lunch, operated under the name of 21 Club; the gaming room operated under the name of the [629] San Diego Social Club.

Q. Who, if any one, supervised the operations, so far as the bar and food were concerned?

A. Mr. Denny and Mr. Riggeotti.

Q. By Mr. Denny are you referring to Joseph Billington, sometimes known as Frankie Denney?

A. Yes, I am.

Q. Was it by the name of Denny that you knew him? A. Yes, I did.

Q. In whose name were the liquor licenses?

A. At what time?

Q. In the years 1943 to 1946, inclusive.

A. I couldn't say. They were in two names at that time when first taken over.

Q. Is the name Frank Cavani familiar to you?

BLEED THROUGH— POOR COPY

A. Yes.

Q. Is that one of the names on the license?

A. Yes.

Q. Is the name Joe Billington familiar to you?

A. Yes.

Q. Is that one of the names on the license?

A. That is right.

Q. At that time did you know anyone by the name of Joe Billington?

A. I knew Billington, but I am not sure on the first name. [630] That is Frank Denny, the same man, but I am not sure of the first name.

Q. At that time were you aware that Billington and Denny were one and the same man?

A. Yes, I was.

Q. Do you recall approximately when the change was made in the licensee's name from Cavani to Billington? A. No, I have no idea.

Q. Do you recall who directed that change to be made?

A. I know I didn't. That I couldn't say.

Q. You know you didn't? A. That's right.

Q. Who was in charge of the gambling part of the business, or what was known as the San Diego Social Club?

A. Well, there was a gentleman by the name of Walter Parman, a gentleman by the name of Michael Necheck, a gentleman by the name of Andrew Desamoni.

Q. Was there also a Tony Riggoetti?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Walter M. Pechart.)

A. Well, he was more or less the overseer of food and the bar.

Q. How about Dimetios Saratan?

A. He was what we call the floor boss.

Q. Is that the correct way to pronounce his name? A. Jimmy Sarantos.

Q. Who were the interested parties, so far as division of the profits of the operation of those two clubs? [631]

A. Well, it was Pechart, Kessel and Remmer.

Q. What was Mr. Remmer's interest?

A. Mr. Remmer's interest was 50 per cent, Pechart and Kessel 25 per cent apiece, but we gave bonuses at the end of the month.

Q. Did any of the parties to whom you gave bonuses have any interest in the business itself?

A. Now when you say interest, do you mean any investment?

Q. Yes. A. They did not.

Q. Were the bonuses which you gave based upon the profits for the month? A. That's right.

Q. And were they given to whatever employees were employed during that month?

A. Well, they were given to the key men.

Q. In that regard, did you continue to give bonuses to those men after they left your employment? A. After they left the employment?

Q. Yes. A. Absolutely not.

Q. So that the bonuses, as I understand it, were given to them for the purpose of employment.

A. They stopped when the employment stopped.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Walter M. Pechart.)

Q. By whom were the bonuses paid?

A. By whom were the bonuses paid? [632]

Q. Yes.

A. By the cashier and the floor man, the manager, Mr. Riggeotti, the overseer.

Q. Do you know how that was handled on the books of the business?

A. It is all on the books, but how it was handled I can't state. It is six or seven years ago and the accountant made all those sheets up.

Q. Who kept those records?

A. To start with, a man by the name of Bert Bishop; he was our accountant, and he passed away and then Mr. G. E. Simmons came in.

Q. When was that business opened, incidentally?

A. What business?

Q. The 21 Club and San Diego Social Club?

A. In '43.

Q. And when was it that Mr. Simmons took over after Mr. Bishop's decease?

A. That I couldn't say.

Q. Do you presently have the records of that business, as well as the records of the 311 business, for the period 1943 to 1946, inclusive, in your possession?

Mr. Gillen: To which we offer objection, may it please the Court. It has been established in the record that the books were out of this witness' possession, out of the [633] bookkeeper's possession, out of the partners' possession and repeated asking of that question is for the purpose of emphasis.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Walter M. Pechart.)

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question.

(Question read.)

A. No, I have not.

Q. Do you have in your possession a receipt from anyone, indicating to whom you delivered the books? A. Yes, I have.

Q. Will you produce that receipt?

A. To whom?

Q. Will you produce it to the Court at this time? (Witness produces document.) May I see the document?

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Campbell: May this be marked for identification, if the Court please, Plaintiff's 96?

The Court: So marked.

Mr. Gillen: As to prosecution's Exhibit 96 for identification, the defense is prepared to stipulate it may be offered in evidence if the prosecution cares to.

Mr. Campbell: We offer it.

The Court: It may be admitted in evidence.

Mr. Campbell: At this time I would like to read this document to the jury. Plaintiff's Exhibit 96, April 24, 1951.

(Reads Exhibit 96.)

Q. Mr. Pechart, do you know the amount of investment of [634] Mr. Remmer in the 21 Club?

A. No, I do not.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Walter M. Pechart.)

Q. Do you know the amount of his investment in the San Diego Social Club?

Mr. Gillen: Just a moment. I am going to offer the objection it is leading and suggestive and assuming something not in evidence. There is no reference here that there was any investment at all.

The Court: I think the objection is good on the grounds it is assuming something not in evidence.

Mr. Campbell: Possibly the latter; I can't see how it is leading and suggestive.

The Court: No, I am more interested in the latter.

Mr. Campbell: I will reframe the question. The question and answer may be stricken.

Mr. Gillen: And so far as the previous question and answer——

The Court: Yes, the previous question and answer will be stricken.

Q. Mr. Pechart, do you know the amount of Mr. Remmer's investment, if any, in the 21 Club?

A. No, I do not.

Q. Do you know the amount of Mr. Remmer's investment, if any, in the San Diego Social Club?

A. No, I do not. [635]

Q. During the years 1943 to 1946, inclusive, did you, yourself, spend any time on these premises during operating hours? A. Yes, I did.

Q. Did you, yourself, take any active part in the management? A. No, I did not.

Q. In connection at the time the business was opened of the San Diego Social Club, or the gambling part of the business, was a bank roll set up?

(Testimony of Walter M. Pechart.)

A. Yes, it was.

Q. And what was the amount of that bank roll?

A. I couldn't say at the present time. It is entered in the books, the amount.

Q. What is your best recollection?

A. I haven't the slightest idea.

Q. Did Mr. Remmer contribute to that bank roll?

A. Whatever is in the books is correct.

Q. You have no recollection of what is in the books? A. No, I haven't.

Q. When was the last time that you examined the books?

A. I don't believe I have ever examined them. I have an auditor, a certified public account, and I left it entirely up to him.

Q. You stated that you had never examined the books, but that whatever was in the books was correct. Will you explain that answer? [636]

A. Well, whatever was turned over to my auditors I would say was correct, yes.

Q. You believe it was correctly entered?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. Did they make reports to you from time to time as to such matters?

A. Monthly reports, yes.

Q. And were monthly reports made with respect to the San Diego Social Club?

A. No, I had several enterprises and it was made as a whole.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Walter M. Pechart.)

Q. On those enterprises was there also included on this monthly report sheets the operations of the 21 Club and San Diego Social Club? A. Yes.

Q. Were those among the records turned over to Mr. Remmer?

A. No, just for my own personal use.

Q. You still have those records, do you?

A. No, I have not.

Q. Where are those records now?

A. Well, they were of no value to me.

Q. I didn t ask you whether or not they were of value, I asked you where they are.

Mr. Gillen: Just a minute, I object, he is arguing and cross-examining his own witness. This is direct examination and it smacks all the way through of cross-examination of his [637] own witness.

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question.

(Question read.)

The Court: Can you reframe the question?

Q. Where are those monthly reports sheets of the 21 Club and the San Diego Social Club at the present time?

A. It wasn't a report sheet. It was an adding machine tape to let me know how we were going along, whether we were going in the red or using black ink.

Q. How was that adding machine record taken? Was each business shown separately? A. No.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Walter M. Pechart.)

Q. Then do I understand there was only one figure on the tape? A. That's all.

Q. Do you at the present time have in your possession—I do not mean physically on the stand, but in your business possession—any records relating to the assets, liabilities, receipts or disbursements of the 21 Club or the San Diego Social Club for the years 1943 to 1946 inclusive?

A. No, I haven't.

Q. Calling your attention to plaintiff's Exhibit 96, receipt of Mr. Remmer for various matters set forth in it, I will ask you if included on there were all records of any kind pertaining to the operation of the 21 Club, San Diego Social Club for the years 1943 to 1946 inclusive, which were in your [638] possession at the date of that receipt?

A. As far as I know, yes.

Q. Were you present at the time those records were turned over to Mr. Remmer?

A. I am not sure whether I was or not. Mr. Remmer talked to me about the records and asked me if the government had them or if I had them and asked me if they had been audited and I told him yes——

Mr. Campbell (Interrupting): That is not responsive to my question.

(Question and answer read.)

The Court: The answer may stand.

Mr. Gillen: I do not think the witness has completed his answer.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Walter M. Pechart.)

The Court: I think he has fully answered the question.

Mr. Campbell: I think the first part of the answer fully answers the question.

The Court: Yes, I think it does. The question is fully answered now.

Q. During the years 1944 and 1945 were you familiar with the business known as 311 Club, situated at 311 Panhandle Avenue in El Cerrito?

A. Yes, I was.

Q. Did Mr. Remmer have an interest in that club? A. No, sir. [639]

Q. Did you have, during those years, some arrangement or arrangements whereby Mr. Remmer was to receive a portion of the profits of that club?

A. No, I gave him a small portion because he didn't approve of the club being in there. As a matter of courtesy I gave what we call it a little bonus. As far as any investment, he didn't have one dollar invested.

Q. On what was that bonus based, that is to say, was it a percentage?

A. I am not sure whether it was a 5 or 10 per cent cut off 75 per cent at the time. I am not sure. The records will show.

Q. Those are on the records referred to on the receipt before you, are they not? A. Yes.

Q. And you say it was a percentage taken from 75%? A. I am not sure, but I think it was.

Q. That is your best recollection?

A. Yes, it is.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Walter M. Pechart.)

Q. Now what was the location of the 311 Club with relation to that of the San Diego Social Club?

A. Across the street.

Q. And when was the 311 Club opened?

A. After the 21 Club.

Q. Do you recall what year?

A. No, I do not. It is in the books, in the records. [640]

Q. I believe you previously stated that the San Diego Social Club was opened in 1943?

A. San Diego Social Club and 21 Club were opened. You asked me about the 311 Club?

Q. Yes.

A. The 311 Club was across the street and opened after the 21 Club and the San Diego Social Club.

Q. Do you know how long after, to the best of your recollection?

A. It might have been eight months or a year, I couldn't say. I am not positive.

Q. Now with relation to the 311 Club and the percentage which you say you gave to Mr. Remmer, that arrangement was made at the time the 311 Club, I take it, was opened, is that correct?

A. No, we hadn't opened the 311 Club.

Q. I mean your arrangement with Mr. Remmer, when was that entered into?

A. Started the moment it was open.

Q. How long did it continue?

A. Until we closed.

Q. And when did you close the 311 Club?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Walter M. Pechart.)

A. Well, I couldn't state.

Q. Did that arrangement continue throughout 1944 and 1945?

A. If we were open, it did.

Q. I am going to show you government's Exhibit 74, 1944 partnership [641] return of income of Pechart and Kessel and Grunewald, and ask you if you are familiar with the signature appearing as the party mentioned in that return?

A. Yes, I am.

Q. That is your signature?

A. Yes, that is my signature.

Q. Now does that refresh your recollection as to whether or not you were open during the year 1944?

A. What is the date? It must have been. This is March 15, 1945, so it must have been 1944.

Q. And that is return for 1944, is it not?

A. That is correct.

Q. I show you plaintiff's Exhibit 75, 1945 return of Pechart, Kessel and Grunewald for that year, and I call your attention to the signature of the party purportedly making the same and ask you if you are familiar with that signature?

A. That is mine.

Q. Is that your signature? A. Yes, it is.

Q. Now does that refresh your recollection as to whether or not you were open and operating during that year?

A. This is dated March 4, 1946. Does that mean this is filed of '46 or '45?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Walter M. Pechart.)

Q. I ask you to examine the document. You will observe it is return of income for 1945. [642]

A. That's right.

Q. Does that refresh your recollection?

A. Yes, it does.

Q. That you were or were not open in 1945?

A. We were.

Q. I show you plaintiff's Exhibit 76, return for 1946 of Pechart, Kessel and Grunewald, calling your attention to the language, "Not in Operation" and to the signature appearing as the party making the same. Are you familiar with that signature?

A. Yes, I am.

Q. Whose signature is that?

A. David N. Kessel.

Q. And referring to the document itself and the words, "Not in operation," does that refresh your recollection as to whether or not the 311 Club was operating during 1946? A. Yes it was.

Q. It was in operation or was not?

A. It was.

Q. And over what part of 1946 was it operated?

A. That I couldn't say.

Q. So that when this return, plaintiff's Exhibit 76, recites "Not in Operation," that it was isn't the fact?

A. It would not be in operation if the return says it was not in operation. [643]

Q. Now let's straighten this out. Were you, or were you not, during the calendar year 1946, operating the 311 Club?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Walter M. Pechart.)

A. I would say no. It am not positive.

Q. Now directing your attention again to government's Exhibit 74, the 1944 return, and particularly to Schedule I, being 1944 return of the 311 Club, under "Partner's Share," I will direct your attention to the fact that some $12,416.61 of profit is reported on this return and that under Schedule I, "Partnership Shares of Account" is listed: E. Remmer, $1,257.18, slightly more than 10 per cent of the entire net income. I will ask whether or not that refreshes your recollection as to the profit-sharing arrangement which you had with Mr. Remmer?

A. This was prepared by my auditors and my accountants, has my signature on it, so it must be right.

Q. Does that refresh your recollection as to the profit-sharing arrangement which you had with Mr. Remmer for that year? A. No, it does not.

Mr. Gillen: Just a moment—I am going to offer an objection.

The Court: He has already answered no. Does that make any difference?

Mr. Gillen: No, it does not. In the first place, I object to Mr. Campbell's characterization as partnership arrangement. It was described otherwise.

The Court: There is some question about [644] that.

Mr. Gillen: And No. 2, my second objection——

The Court (Interceding): I think your objection comes a little late on that score. You have heard that question phrased that way two times.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Walter M. Pechart.)

Mr. Gillen: I move it be stricken.

The Court: It will stand. Motion denied.

Mr. Gillen: All right, then I make the objection the witness testified he had no recollection, but his accountant made it up and it must be right. I object to the speculation, conclusion on his part. If he has no recollection, he should say so. If he has a recollection, he should tell us.

The Court: The answer may stand. The motion is denied.

Q. Now, Mr. Pechart, I am going to show you plaintiff's Exhibit 75, the partnership return of income of 311 Club for the year 1945, and call your attention on the first part thereof to this language, under deductions: Salaries and wages $55,844.76; plus bonus, $20,785.34; total deduction for salaries and wages, $76,630.10. I will ask you whether or not any part of the amount listed here of bonus, $20,785.34, was paid to Elmer Remmer?

Mr. Gillen: Which exhibit is that?

Mr. Campbell: 75.

A. It is my signature and on the back of it Elmer Remmer, $584.92. I didn't prepare it. I wouldn't swear whether it is true or not. [645]

Mr. Pechart: I made a mistake in my testimony. May I correct it?

The Court: Yes, you may.

Mr. Pechart: When you asked me if I visited Mr. Remmer's home I stated yes; you asked where he lived. I said El Cerrito. I should have said Orinda, California.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

The Court: We will take our recess at this time.

(Jury and alternate jurors admonished and excused.)

(In the absence of the jury.)

The Court: All right, Mr. Golden.

Mr. Golden: I only wanted to inquire if the Court would set a time for argument of the matter of deposit of those records last Friday. On Friday it was arranged or at least tentatively.

The Court: Argument will be had any time, should it happen, that you intend to introduce records.

Mr. Golden: The point is in the interim they are sealed up and we can't look at them.

The Court: I didn't order them sealed up.

Mr. Golden: In chambers Friday afternoon, after court had recessed—the reporter was not present, but some of the attorneys on each side were in there, and it was arranged over the week end that they would remain inaccessible to both sides. [646]

The Court: That was because we couldn't agree at that time. See if I have the right recollection of that. Agreement might be entered into between counsel whereby each side could have access to those records. That is what I would like to see done, if it is possible to do it.

Mr. Golden: If your Honor will recall, we expressed grave legal doubts as to the legal propriety of the Court's action and it was tentatively arranged that your Honor would hear argument on the matter at one o'clock Monday, yesterday, and then something else came up. There is no record to show that we deposited those books and documents and we would like to be heard on it at a time convenient to the Court.

The Court: I am not going to open that question at the present time. The ruling will remain as the former ruling.

Mr. Golden: We would like, your Honor, to make a motion for the return of that material and other material and motion to suppress the introduction of that material and other material in evidence.

The Court: I think we can take care of the matters as the situation presents itself. I had in mind the idea we would probably encounter a serious legal problem and when we did, I proposed to hear from counsel. But I am not going to go behind the ruling [647] I made requiring the production of the records in the clerk's office.

Mr. Golden: I understand your Honor wouldn't vacate that order, but the motions we wish to make are for the return of that material and other material and motion to suppress the use——

The Court: Very well, but I am not going to postpone or delay this trial for hearing of those motions.

Mr. Golden: We do not care to postpone or delay the trial. We will make that at any time, we will make it at nine o'clock tomorrow, at any time your Honor wishes.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

The Court: No.

Mr. Pike: I am familiar with the circumstances of what took place last Friday with reference to orders and no order whatsoever was made by the Court at that time. However, the circumstances of the records having deposited with the clerk of the court by defense counsel were brought to the Court's attention and the concensus of the expressions there was neither the prosecution nor the defense would have access to those records, but there should be some further indication by the Court as to their being available to both parties, and if counsel's inquiry is directed to the proposition that they would like to have access to the records, I am in accord with that view. I feel that the records should be made accessible to both parties under conditions convenient to the clerk, so [648] work there and if necessary make arrangements to see them in the evening after usual court hours, which I feel could be arranged.

The Court: I believe that suggestion was made Friday and I believe the Court indicated that that could be approved. That is my recollection. I approve such an arrangement.

Mr. Golden: I ask permission to make a motion for the return of them and other material and for suppression of its use in evidence prior to the time it is opened up to the prosecution. I am willing to make the motion at any time.

BLURRED COPY

The Court: Well, you can make your motion now.

Mr. Golden: All right, your Honor.

Now, if the Court please, the following records were deposited on Friday afternoon at approximately 1:30 in the afternoon, in compliance, under protest, with the Court's order, namely: (Starts to read list of records deposited.)

The Court (Interrupting): Do you have to read that long list into the record? Can't you give it to the reporter to copy?

Mr. Golden: I don't want to detain your Honor. Under Rule 41(e) of the Rules we are entitled to make a motion and produce evidence. It is going to take some time.

The Court: Well, we will be in recess until tomorrow morning at 10:00 o'clock.

Direct Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Mr. Pechart, when you were on the stand yesterday, I made inquiry as to certain individuals whom you described as employees in various capacities in the 21 Club and the San Diego Social Club, you recall that, do you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Mr. Pechart, in connection with the operations of the 21 Club and the San Diego Social Club, who was it that hired or originally employed Joe Billington, or Frankie Denny, as you said you knew him? A. Well, I did not hire him.

Q. Well, who did, if you know? [650]

A. Well, that I couldn't say. When the place was opened, he was in there.

Q. But you had nothing to do with his work?

A. I had absolutely nothing to do with the hiring of Mr. Denny.

Q. With regard to Walter Parman, who hired him?

A. Mr. Parman was sent to us either from the Lake or San Francisco. I don't know who hired him.

Q. Either from where?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Walter M. Pechart.)

A. Mr. Parman was sent to us from the Lake, that is Lake Tahoe, or San Francisco. At that time Mr. Parman took charge I wasn't around El Cerrito.

Q. Did you have anything to do with his initial hiring? A. No, I did not.

Q. Do you know whether or not Mr. Parman had been employed at Cal-Neva at Lake Tahoe immediately to his employment at the San Diego Social Club?

A. Before he came to the San Diego Social Club?

Q. Yes.

A. No, Mr. Parman, I am pretty sure, came from the East, I am not positive.

Q. I thought you said from the Lake?

A. He was either on a vacation up to the Lake or he was on a vacation in San Francisco.

Q. In regard to A. Riggogardi, sometimes known as Tony Riggogardi, do you know who initially hired him? [651] A. No, I do not.

Q. Did you initially hire him?

A. No, I did not.

Q. Do you know where he had been employed prior to coming to the 21 Club and the San Diego Social Club?

A. He was with the State Board of Equalization.

Q. Of the State of California? A. Yes.

Q. With regard to Andrew Desimone, do you know who hired or employed him in connection with the operation of the 21 Club and San Diego Social Club?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Walter M. Pechart.)

A. I think I had something to do with that.

Q. You hired him?

A. I didn't hire him, I suggested him.

Q. To whom did you suggest that he be employed? A. Mr. Remmer.

Q. And he was subsequently employed?

A. Yes.

Q. With regard to Demitris Sarantos——

A. That is Jimmy Arantos. I hired him.

Q. He was known to you as Jimmy Sarantos?

A. Yes.

Q. Incidentally, what were his duties there?

A. He was a floor boss.

Q. You hired him? [652] A. Yes, I did.

Q. In connection with hiring him, did you consult with Mr. Remmer? A. No.

Q. Now, as to Michael Mecheck, did you hire him?

A. I did not hire him. I couldn't say who hired him.

Q. You don't know who hired him?

A. No, he was the floor boss, the manager, he had the power of hiring.

Q. Do you know whether or not Mr. Kessel hired any of these individuals to whom I have referred?

A. I think he suggested Jimmy Sarantos to me.

Q. And you in turn hired him? A. Yes.

Q. Now you testified, I believe, Mr. Pechart, that certain bonuses were paid to these employees by way of percentages, is that correct?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Walter M. Pechart.)

A. That is correct.

Q. Who fixed the amount of those percentages?

A. Well, the cashier, manager, and probably a couple of the bit bosses and myself, whoever happened to be on the floor.

Q. Were they fixed from day to day or month to month?

A. Oh, no; the end of the month.

Q. The end of each month?

A. That's right. [653]

Q. Were those percentages fixed and determined prior to the rendering of the services or after the services had been rendered?

A. After the services had been rendered.

Q. Did those bonuses apply to the 21 Club, that is to say, the bar and restaurant operation, as well as the San Diego Social Club, the gaming operation? A. That I couldn't say.

Q. You say you cannot say, do you mean you do not remember? A. I do not know.

Q. Will you state whether or not the same bonus percentage was used each month, or whether it varied from month to month, depending on——

A. I refuse to answer that question on the grounds it may tend to incriminate me.

Mr. Campbell: I hadn't quite finished the question. I will reframe the question, Mr. Pechart.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Walter M. Pechart.)

Q. Was the same bonus percentage used each month, or did it vary from month to month?

A. I refuse to answer the question on the grounds it will tend to incriminate me.

Mr. Campbell: I press the question.

The Court: The witness is ordered and directed to answer the question.

A. As far as the key men, it was supposed to be the same and [654] if it varied, I don't remember. When I talk about key men, I am referring to the manager.

Q. Will you state who those key men were?

A. Well, there was Walter Parman, Andrew Desimone, Mike Necheck.

Q. Those were the key men. And what was the bonus percentage that was arrived at to pay to them?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as asked and answered.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Gillen: He testified about percentage of 75 per cent of net profits yesterday.

Mr. Campbell: No, I think counsel is confused.

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question.

A. I am not positive. I think the manager was to receive five per cent off Pechart and Kessel, five per cent off Remmer.

Q. Let me see if I understand you correctly. From Pechart and Kessel combined share of 50 per cent, five per cent was to be paid?

A. That is correct.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Walter M. Pechart.)

Q. And from Mr. Remmer's 50 per cent, five per cent was to be paid?

A. That is correct. That was to the general manager.

Q. And you had during that period of time, I take it, one after the other of the three gentleman managers?

Q. We had three there probably at one time, but they weren't all in the capacity of general manager. [655]

Q. There would just be one general manager at a time? A. Just one general manager, yes.

Q. And he would receive five per cent from you and from Mr. Remmer, is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Now as to the other employees that were receiving bonuses, what percentage would they receive?

A. That I do not recall. I do not recall what Mr. Sarantos received and he was our key man, but he never was a general manager. I know we gave him a bonus, compensated him each and every month, but I do not recall what it was in the book.

Q. When you say "our key man," to what do you refer?

A. I mean he was the man that was suggested I hire him. You asked me who hired these other gentlemen and I told you I didn't know.

Q. Was your arrangement such that you had a man in there looking after your interests?

A. My arrangement was when the boxes were taken off and the cash was balanced at the end of the night, Mr. Sarantos was in there.

Q. And he had been hired by you and Mr. Kessel? A. That is right.

Q. When you refer to the boxes being taken off, you refer to the metal boxes at the gambling table?

A. Not metal, they were wood. [656]

Q. In which bills are placed that pass over the gambling table and were passed by the dealer and it is customary to count those before the end of the evening?

A. It is customary to count them before at least three people.

Q. Did Mr. Remmer have a key man during that period of time?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as calling for his conclusion.

Q. If you know, for the purpose of being present when the cash was counted?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as calling for his opinion and conclusion.

The Court: Objection overruled.

A. Well, there was a cashier in there and there was a manager, Mr. Sarantos and Mr. Pechart and Mr. Desimone.

Mr. Campbell: No, I ask the question be read.

(Question read.)

A. Never heard of him having a key man. I had as much authority over the running of the game room as Mr. Remmer did. In fact, Mr. Remmer was very very seldom around there.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Walter M. Pechart.)

Q. Do you know whether or not any of the three persons who were present at the time the cash was counted had been hired by Mr. Remmer?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as asked and answered. He asked him in great deal who hired who and the witness has answered.

The Court: Objection overruled.

A. Will you read the question? [657]

(Question read.)

A. You mean in the operation of the 21 Club?

Q. I am referring to the San Diego Social Club.

A. Some one must have hired the key man. I don't know who hired them. I didn't hire them.

Mr. Campbell: You may cross-examine.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Q. Mr. Pechart, you were questioned here by Mr. Campbell regarding three enterprises in which you and your partner, Mr. Kessel, had an interest, to wit, 311 Club, 21 Club, and the San Diego Social Club, all in El Cerrito, California. During the same period of time did you have an interest in any other enterprise other than those three enterprises?

A. I refuse to answer the question on the grounds it may incriminate me.

Mr. Campbell: I submit to the Court it is immaterial unless it touched upon the liability of Mr. Remmer here.

The Court: I would like to get your view of that in the face of that objection, Mr. Gillen. It does not seem to be material or within the range of direct examination.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Walter M. Pechart.)

Mr. Gillen: I want to know if he has any interest in any other business and I am going to ask if Mr. Remmer had any other interest by way of bonus or partnership or anything else. [658]

The Court: Objection will be overruled.

Mr. Gillen: Now the witness has declined to answer upon his constitutional grounds, may it please the Court, and the defense urges the question.

The Court: Very well. The witness will be, and is directed to answer the question.

A. Yes, I had an office in El Cerrito, a booking office.

Q. Did Mr. Remmer, the defendant in this case, have any interest in any form or manner with that enterprise by way either of partnership or investment or by way of friendship or token bonuses?

A. No, he did not.

Q. Am I to understand your testimony to be that the only interest that he had in any enterprises in which you were interested were the two clubs, the 21 Club and the San Diego Social Club and whatever might have been termed his interest by way of receiving a bonus from the 311 Club, is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. I understood your direct testimony to be—correct me if I am in error—that the 311 Club was an enterprise that belonged exclusively to you and your partner, Mr. Kessel, is that right?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Walter M. Pechart.)

A. That is correct.

Q. And that so far as friendship bonus based upon percentage that was afforded to Mr. Remmer was because Mr. Remmer had opposed the opening of that enterprise, is that correct? [659]

A. Yes, he opposed the opening, but that didn't mean anything to me. It was more a matter of courtesy. It is done a great many times in the nature of business that we were in. I didn't have to give it to him.

Mr. Campbell: I ask the portion of his answer where he says it is done a great many times in the nature of business he was in be stricken.

The Court: It may stand.

Q. Your testimony was, was it not, that the 311 Club was located nearly across the street from the 21 Club and the San Diego Social Club, is that correct? A. Yes, it was.

Q. So Mr. Remmer's opposition to the opening of the 311 Club was the fact that it formed a competitive concern, that is, that it competed with the business of the 21 Club and the San Diego Social Club? A. Yes, could be so.

Q. Now at the outset of your direct examination you were asked if you recall what names were on the California liquor license to sanction the operation of the retail liquor concern or the tavern, do you recall that question? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And do you recall that you were asked specifically you remembered at one time the name of Mr.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Walter M. Pechart.)

Frank Cavani was on there, do you remember [660] that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And I think you stated that you did not know how long Mr. Frank Cavani remained on the license? A. That's correct.

Q. Is it not true that Mr. Frank Cavani was to become the manager of the 21 Club, that is the restaurant and bar, but because of the death of a man by the name of Bent, who was operating the 110 Eddy establishment in San Francisco, that Mr. Cavani never did become manager of the 21 Club, but remained at the 110 Eddy Club in San Francisco?

Mr. Campbell: If he knows.

Mr. Gillen: I am only asking what he knows.

A. He left the 21 Club in El Cerrito and went over to San Francisco.

Q. Do you recall how long Mr. Cavani was at the 21 Club?

A. It was a short time, I do not remember.

Q. After he returned to San Francisco then another name was put on the license?

A. That is right.

Q. That name was the name of Mr. Billington, was it not?

A. I know he was on the license, but I am not positive.

Q. Now, Mr. Pechart, you were asked a few moments ago regarding the bonuses that were paid to persons you have described not as partners, but as employees in various activities, such as manager, cashier, general manager, floor man, and so [661]

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Walter M. Pechart.)

on. Is it not a fact that the floor man at the San Diego Social Club was paid regularly—perhaps I am not using the right designation when I say floor man—but there was one man who was paid regularly five per cent off the top of the earnings, so that you and your partner received actually only 45 per cent and Mr. Remmer received actually 45 per cent? A. I just stated that.

Q. You stated that? A. Yes, I did.

Q. Who was that man?

A. Whoever the manager was. I don't recall; in fact——

Q. Was that the general manager?

A. Yes.

Q. With regard to the 311 Club, is it or is it not true that the 311 Club opened and closed spasmodically during the time that the 21 Club and San Diego Social Club were in operation?

A. I refuse to answer on the ground it may incriminate me.

Mr. Gillen: The defense respectfully urges the question.

The Court: The witness will be ordered, and is ordered, to answer the question.

A. Yes, it opened and closed.

Q. Over the period of time between 1943, and 1946, could you give us any idea how much of the time the 311 Club was open and how much of the time it was closed? A. No, I cannot. [662]

Q. Would it be your best recollection now that it was open and operating more than it was closed,

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Walter M. Pechart.)

or that it was closed more than it was open and operating? A. I couldn't say.

Q. Now you were also asked regarding the incident occurring during the month of April of 1951, when you, at the request of Mr. Remmer, either personally turned to Mr. Remmer, or had turned over to him, all of the books and accounts of the 311 Club, 21 Club and San Diego Social Club. Do you recall being asked those questions?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. What is your recollection as to whether you personally turned over those records and had a receipt taken from Mr. Remmer, the receipt which is in evidence here?

A. Mr. Remmer met me on the street and asked me if I had my books back from the government, if they had been checked. I told him they had. He said he was having tax problems and wanted to know if I would let him have them.

Q. Did he tell you what he wanted them for?

A. He said he was having tax problems.

Q. Did he tell you what he wanted to do with the books?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as calling for self-serving examination.

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question.

A. He said he wanted to give them to his attorneys. [663]

Q. Did you personally make the delivery to him or did you arrange to have the delivery made?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Walter M. Pechart.)

A. If I didn't, I had arrangements made with my accountant.

Q. And that would have been?

A. Mr. L. E. Simmons

Q. That is Mr. Lester Simmons at that time?

A. That is right.

Q. You say Mr. Remmer asked you if the government had given you back the books and were they through with them or had they checked them?

A. That is right.

Q. Had the government given you back the books at that time, that is, April of 1951?

A. Yes, they gave us back all our books.

Q. Do you recall when it was that you received the last of your books from the government?

A. No, I do not.

Q. Would it refresh your recollection that the last of your books were received from the government on the 27th day of July of 1948?

A. No, I don't know.

Q. Would it refresh your recollection that the books had been back in your hands or possession for a matter of a year or two before you turned them over to Mr. Remmer?

A. I couldn't say yes or no. [664]

Q. Now do you have any recollection now of how long the government retained those books for the purpose of making their audit or examination?

A. They were making an audit in one of our offices for at least two or three months.

Q. Now when you say in one of your offices, can

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Walter M. Pechart.)

you describe better just what facilities you made available to the government agents for the purpose of working on those books?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial.

The Court: You may answer the question. Objection overruled.

A. Well, we gave them an office in the Rancho San Pablo.

Q. Where is the Rancho San Pablo in relation to your office?

A. It is across the street from our office.

Q. Is that on San Pablo Avenue? A. Yes.

Q. In El Cerrito? A. That is right.

Q. You say they worked there for two or three months on your books?

A. I wouldn't be positive. I would say a couple of months. They were in and out and would be away for a few days and come back, had books scattered all over the place for quite some time. I am not positive about the length of time, but it was rather a long time. [665]

Q. Isn't it a fact that they worked on those books between four and five months?

A. That I couldn't say.

Q. Isn't it a fact that as soon as they were through, they not only gave you your books back, but they gave you a report of their audit?

A. Yes, they gave us a report.

Q. And that was all in your possession, and had been for some time, before Mr. Remmer requested

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Walter M. Pechart.)

you to turn the books over to him so he might take them to his lawyers for his tax problems?

A. They were not in my possession. They were in the possession of my account.

Q. Lester Simmons? A. Yes.

Q. Now isn't it a fact that the government agents who made this audit kept the books as long as they needed them and returned them to you voluntarily?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as calling for conclusion.

The Court: That may be conclusion.

Mr. Gillen: Well, I can reframe the question, your Honor.

Q. Did you, or to your knowledge, did your counsel ever ask the government to return the books before the government agents voluntarily brought the books back without request from you?

A. That I couldn't say. [666]

Q. Were you present when those books were returned? A. No, I was not.

Q. Do you recall meeting the agents who made the audit, namely Messrs. Farley and Gould?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Did you ever personally make a request during the period of time that those agents were making the audit of those books in the offices that you made available for them across the street from your own office, did you ever at any time personally make a request that they give you back the books?

A. No, I never did.

Q. Mr. Pechart, what is your recollection with regard to the success or lack of success of the 21 Club during the period of time it was in operation? Did it lose money or make money?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Walter M. Pechart.)

A. It never made very much money.

Q. After the San Diego Social Club and the 21 Club closed down was there any time that you thereafter conducted an enterprise in the premises that had once housed the San Diego Social Club that was your own enterprise?

A. I refuse to answer on the ground it would tend to incriminate me.

Mr. Campbell: I don't think the question was finished.

The Court: Had you finished the question. Let us have the question read.

(Question read.) [667]

Mr. Campbell: I am going to object unless the question is directed at events within this indictment. Any events referred to that took place subsequent to December 31, 1946, I object to on the grounds of the question of materiality.

Mr. Gillen: I am inquiring of the witness if such a thing did exist. If it didn't exist, of course——

The Court: (Interceding): Personally I do not see where it is material, this present inquiry.

Mr. Gillen: For one reason, undoubtedly there were books kept of those enterprises that may reflect some profits that may, because of a previous action of the defendant Remmer he claims is charge-

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Walter M. Pechart.)

able to the defendant Remmer. I want to eliminate that.

The Court: The question, as I understood it, is directed to some enterprise which this witness may or may not have conducted which was entirely his enterprise.

Mr. Gillen: That is correct, your Honor. And also may I state, your Honor, that this was introduced, this independent enterprise I am referring to now, was introduced in direct examination and testified to. Reference was made to it by the witness.

Mr. Campbell: I would like to see that.

Mr. Gillen: Very well.

Mr. Campbell: Your Honor, I think there was a question asked of the witness if he had ever rented any premises from [668] Mr. Remmer and he stated he had for a short period of two or three months, is that the question to which counsel refers?

Mr. Gillen: The testimony to which I refer appears on page 628 of the transcript, Mr. Campbell questioning Mr. Pechart shortly after recess, 3:20 p.m. of yesterday:

> "Q. Mr. Pechart, I will put to you again the question which was asked you yesterday. With regard to a portion of the premises which you rented from Mr. Remmer, known as the San Diego Social Club, did you operate any business on those premises?"

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Walter M. Pechart.)

And then the witness refused to answer and the question was pressed and the Court ordered the witness to answer:

"A. Yes, I was putting in a booking office.

"Q. What do you mean by booking office?

"A. Race horses.

"Q. And in what year was that?

"A. That I can't say. It was after the 21 Club had closed. It is a matter of record on my returns."

That was the matter, your Honor.

Mr. Campbell: It was subsequently developed, your Honor, both on direct and on cross-examination, that the only interest this witness and the defendant Remmer had in common were in relation to the operation of the 21 Club, the San Diego Social Club and the courtesy bonus, whatever it may be termed, of the 311 Club. This particular question is asking him directly as [669] to an operation of his own, and I submit that that is immaterial.

The Court: Objection will be sustained.

Q. Mr. Pechart, I am going to show you, with the Court's permission, prosecution's Exhibit 93 in evidence, and I will ask you whether or not you recognize this document or if you have ever seen it before? A. No, I have never seen it before.

Q. You will notice, Mr. Pechart, that that document is labelled, or at least printed form, of the United States partnership return income year 1944, and refers to the return of Joseph Billington, doing business as the San Diego Social Club, and purports to set forth the taxable income, the gross and net taxable income of the San Diego Social Club, do you notice that?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Walter M. Pechart.)

A. I noted that on the heading, yes.

Q. Did you also notice that this document was prepared and bears both the signature and stamp of G. E. Simmons and Associates, whom I believe you have identified as the accounting firm which worked for you and your partner, Mr. Kessel, and among other accounts kept the accounts of that club, the San Diego Social Club and the 21 Club and the 311 Club? A. That is right.

Q. Do you know whether or not this return was ever filed?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to on the grounds he has previously stated he had never seen the document. [670]

The Court: He may answer.

Mr. Gillen: He might not have seen it and still know something about it.

The Court: You may answer.

A. I wouldn't swear to that. I have no signature on it. If my signature was on it, then I would probably say it was true and correct.

Q. Of course, Mr. Pechart, this is purportedly the return of the partnership and Billington.

A. I have never seen that before.

Q. So you do not know, of your own knowledge, whether this was ever returned to the government and any payment made?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Walter M. Pechart.)

A. I know nothing about it whatsoever.

Q. Do you know whether or not such a return was ever brought to the attention of Mr. Remmer, the defendant in this case? A. No, I do not.

Q. Now I understood you to testify—correct me if I am in error—that it was the policy, during the operation of the 21 Club and the San Diego Social Club, of at the end of each month, with the aid of the manager and cashier and persons in charge of the money, of determining what, if any, profits had been derived from the operation the preceding month, is that correct? A. That is right.

Q. And thereupon a bonus would be made up and the bonus that had been contemplated would be paid, is that correct? [671]

A. That's right.

Q. And the persons who had a partnership interest; namely, Mr. Kessel, yourself and Mr. Remmer, their shares of any profits would be divided up in accordance with the percentage to which they were entitled, is that correct?

A. That is right.

Q. I understood you to tesify also that you were usually present when those divisions were made out at the end of the month?

A. That is right.

Q. And do you recall any occasion when Mr. Remmer was ever present when those divisions were being made at the end of the month?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Walter M. Pechart.)

A. I think all the time I was associated with him he was there only once or twice.

Q. You say in all the times you were associated with him he was there only once or twice. My concern in this question is whether or not he was ever present at the end of the month on the occasion when the divisions of profits would be allocated?

A. Either once or twice.

Q. That he was present when there was a division of profits? A. Yes.

Q. Do you know, of your own knowledge, of the other occasions what, if anything, was done with whatever share was due Mr. Remmer?

A. It was put into a large envelope and the manager put it in [672] the safe.

Q. And do you know whether or not it ever reached Mr. Remmer personally or whether it was sent over to his San Francisco bookkeeper?

A. I know nothing about that.

Q. In other words, all you know, when Mr. Remmer's share was determined and allocated, it was put in an envelope and given to the manager and the manager put it in the safe?

A. That is right.

Q. Who got it after that, if you know?

A. I don't know.

Q. On the two occasions when you say Mr. Remmer was present, did the same thing occur, put in an envelope and put in the safe?

A. That I couldn't say.

Q. Mr. Pechart, do you recall whether or not

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Walter M. Pechart.)

you ever advised Mr. Remmer, whether you personally ever advised Mr. Remmer, as to what, if any, share he had received by way of profit at any time during the operation of the clubs?

A. Did I ever advise him?

Q. Did you ever tell him he made so much last month or this month? A. No.

Q. And you have no knowledge of what knowledge Mr. Remmer may [673] have gained personally as to any profits that he took out of that enterprise? A. None whatever.

Mr. Gillen: I think that is all.

Redirect Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Mr. Pechart, I would like to get straight in my own mind—I am apparently confused about it—as to the five per cent paid to the general manager. Mr. Gillen referred to the fact that five per cent was taken off the top of the profits; is that the manner in which it was handled?

Mr. Gillen: I think counsel misstated the question.

Mr. Campbell: I will withdraw the question in that form.

Q. In what manner was it actually handled?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as asked and answered both on direct and cross-examination.

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Walter M. Pechart.)

A. I think—I am not positive, whether it was five or ten per cent, something tells me it was ten, I am not sure—it was taken off the top and the balance was divided.

Q. In other words, first the percentage bonuses were taken off; is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. And then the balance was divided, 50 per cent to Mr. Remmer and 50 per cent to you and Mr. Kessel? A. That's right. [674]

Q. And as I understand, you are not positive at this time as to whether it was five or ten per cent to the general manager?

A. No, I am not, but it is on the records.

Q. Now with regard to the examination of the records of the 21 Club and the San Diego Social Club and the 311 Club by the revenue agents, which you referred to on cross-examination, was their examination confined to the records of those three clubs, or did that embrace other records?

A. All of my enterprises.

Q. All of your enterprises? A. Yes.

Q. And were those records carried away with them or were they examined on the premises of one of your enterprises?

A. I know they couldn't have carried them all away. They may have taken some; I can't swear to it.

Q. Do you know whether they took any away?

A. No, I do not.

Q. Isn't it a fact that the period of time that they were working on the examination of all of your organizations, that that work was done in a room provided by you on those premises known as the El Rancho San Pablo? A. That's correct.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Walter M. Pechart.)

Q. Now you stated, I believe, in response to Mr. Gillen's question, that Mr. Remmer met you on the street sometime in April of this year and stated that he had tax problems and wanted the [675] records of the 21 Club and San Diego Social Club and 311 Club for his attorney. You recall that testimony? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now isn't it a fact that those records, or at least a portion of them, had previously been in the possession of his attorney?

A. That I do not know.

Mr. Gillen: We will stipulate that they were. We will stipulate a portion of the records were shown to an attorney by the name of Kessler, whom I believe is related to Mr. Kessel and who practices law in Oakland, turned over some account books to Mr. Golden for a brief period of time and were returned by Mr. Golden to Mr. Kessler approximately in April of 1951.

Mr. Campbell: I think that is indicated by this receipt.

Mr. Gillen: That is right.

Q. Incidentally, do you know Mr. Kessler?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. Was he, and is he, an attorney employed by you and your partner? A. Yes, he is.

Q. And are you familiar with the fact, as stated

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Walter M. Pechart.)

in the stipulation, that certain of the records were turned over to Mr. Golden?

A. No, I did not know that.

Q. You did not? [676] A. I did not.

Q. You, therefore, don't know what records were turned over? A. No, I do not.

Q. Now with regard to the examination made by the revenue agents at Rancho San Pablo, you would say of all your organizations the records of these three clubs constituted what portion of your records? I am referring to bulk.

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial. We are only concerned with records——

The Court (Interceding): Well, see what the answer is. Read the question, please.

(Question read.)

A. Only a small portion.

Mr. Campbell: I think that is all.

Recross Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Q. Mr. Pechart, with regard to the examination by the revenue agents, it is true, is it not, that the records of the three clubs which were introduced here, as well as records of any other enterprise in which you were personally interested, were all kept in your accountant's office, which was in the same building as your office is located; is that correct?

A. No, not all the records. We had records——

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Walter M. Pechart.)

Q. Let me——

Mr. Campbell: May he finish his question?

Mr. Gillen: I am going to interrupt something that might [677] shorten this. I will withdraw the question and put another question.

Q. With regard to the records that were taken over across the street to the Rancho San Pablo, were all those records kept in your office or your accountant's office on the other side of the street when the revenue agents came over to get them or to look at them? A. No, they were not.

Q. Well, let me ask you if this isn't what occurred: Isn't it true that the revenue agents, when they appeared and stated that they desired to make an audit of all your books and records, on seeing the volume of them asked that they might be provided with some place where they could work and wouldn't have to carry them around?

A. That is right.

Q. And you voluntarily provided them with this office in this empty former club across the street, the Rancho San Pablo; is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. And they took over there whatever records they needed and worked? A. That is true.

Q. And I presume they came back and forth to get certain records at certain times and brought back certain records; is that true?

A. That is right. [678]

Q. With regard to the percentage that was paid by way of bonus to the so-called key men or top

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Walter M. Pechart.)

men, is it your recollection that, whether it was 5 per cent or 10 per cent, that you and your partner paid that percentage and Mr. Remmer paid that percentage?

A. That is right. I made that statement.

Q. So if it was five per cent, you and your partner would retain 45 per cent of the profits between you and Mr. Remmer would retain 45 per cent?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to because——

The Court: You may answer.

Q. Do you have that in mind?

A. Yes, I do, very clearly. As I stated before, I am not positive; it is either five or ten per cent, but I believe it was ten; that would be five per cent off Mr. Remmer and five per cent off Pechart & Kessel.

Q. You mean a total of 10 per cent?

A. That is right.

Q. You know you paid five or ten per cent and Mr. Remmer paid five or ten per cent?

A. Yes.

Q. Was it within your knowledge that Mr. Remmer also paid to certain so-called key men there in addition some bonus? A. Yes, he did.

Mr. Gillen: That is all. [679]

The Court: Any reason why Mr. Pechart could not be finally excused?

Mr. Gillen: No reason on the part of the defendant.

Mr. Campbell: No, your Honor.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

The Court: Mr. Pechart will be excused. The same order will be made.

Mr. Thompson: At this time I would like to read letter from Theodore M. Monell, attorney at law, San Francisco, dated November 28, 1951, a duplicate of which was sent to defendant's counsel, and at this time I would like to read the letter as the testimony of Mr. Monell.

Mr. Gillen: May it be explained by counsel that the defense has stipulated if Mr. Monell was present—I know he was present here for two days—if he returned and appeared on the witness stand, we have stipulated that he would testify to the matters that appear in his letter as they appear in his letter.

Mr. Thompson: That is correct.

The Court: You may proceed.

TESTIMONY OF THEODORE M. MONELL

as read by Mr. Thompson.

Mr. Gillen: May it be understood our stipulation that this be received is subject to any correction that may appear in any records or matters that should develop later; that is, if the books or records should disclose any need for correction?

The Court: We will meet that as it comes. [680]

Mr. Thompson: I would like the letter I just read marked as an exhibit.

Mr. Gillen: It is read into the record.

The Court: I do not think there is any necessity of marking it as an exhibit.

Mr. Thompson: Your Honor, I have asked marked as one exhibit document entitled "Escrow Instructions," dated October 17, 1946, a document entitled "Assignment," to which is attached a lease dated July 23, 1946; a document on the letterhead of Theodore M. Monell, dated October 17, 1946, and a document purporting to be a wholesale inventory of the Transit Smoke Shop, and I now offer these in evidence as plaintiff's Exhibit 97.

Mr. Gillen: These, I take it, are the papers that reflect the transactions that Mr. Monell wrote about.

Mr. Thompson: Those were papers produced by Mr. Monell and examined by myself and Mr. Golden together two or three days ago.

Mr. Gillen: We stipulate that these may be offered in evidence by the prosecution, subject to any corrections that may arise during the course of the trial.

The Court: They may be admitted in evidence.

Mr. Gillen: We stipulate that that exhibit may go in evidence, subject to motion to strike if it is not connected with the defendant.

Mr. Thompson: That is satisfactory. [681]

The Court: That is satisfactory.

Mr. Thompson: (Reads Exhibit 97.)

GORDON PARTEE

a witness on behalf of the plaintiff, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct Examination

By Mr. Thompson:

Q. Will you state your name?

A. Gordon Partee.

Q. Where do you reside?

A. San Francisco; 433 - 14th Avenue.

Q. What is your business?

A. I am in business in Burlingame now, bar and restaurant.

Q. Are you acquainted with Mr. Elmer Remmer, the defendant in this case? A. I am.

Q. During the summer of the year 1945 did you have a conversation with Mr. Remmer?

A. I remember it was '45 I had a conversation with him.

Q. Is that your best recollection as to the time of the conversation?

A. It was during sometime I was vacationing at Lake Tahoe.

Q. Where in Lake Tahoe did the conversation occur? A. Cal-Neva Lodge.

Q. Was anyone else present that you recall?

A. Not to my knowledge. [682]

Q. What was the conversation you had with him at that time?

A. Just a casual conversation, wherein he mentioned at the time that in the future he might be interested in the same kind of business in San Francisco, namely, in a cigar store; that it might work out that the two of us could work a deal together. In other words, he was interested in going into business with me in a cigar store venture of that type.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Gordon Partee.)

Q. That was the whole substance of his conversation, is it?

A. In essence it was; it was very short.

Q. Some months later did you have occasion to talk with Mr. Remmer about the same subject matter? A. Yes, quite some time later.

Q. And where did that conversation take place?

A. I am not sure whether it took place in his office on Mason Street or on the street; I am not positive.

Q. It was in San Francisco at any rate?

A. Yes, it was in San Francisco.

Q. And do you recall if anyone else was present at that time? A. No, I don't.

Q. What was the conversation you had with him at that time, as you recall?

A. At that time we talked about Lake Tahoe and just mentioned I had a place in mind that he might be interested in, that I thought would be a good location, and we discussed the purchasing or if he would still be interested in the business [683] venture he had talked about when we spoke at Lake Tahoe.

Q. What was the discussion you had in regard to the purchase of it?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Gordon Partee.)

A. I told him I had a place I thought could be bought and might be a good business.

Q. And did you tell him what the place was you had in mind? A. No, I told him where it was.

Q. Where was it?

A. It was a going business, an established business, on 85 First Street.

Q. Did you discuss with him the proposed terms of the purchase?

A. Well, we discussed approximate price. I didn't think there was any——

Q. (Interrupting): Do you recall what approximate price was mentioned?

A. No, because I knew that the place could be bought, but it was a matter of deciding if he wanted to buy it before it then became a matter of negotiation with the people who owned it and myself. In this particular case I did all the talking to them.

Q. What, if anything, did Mr. Remmer tell you with regard to your proposal?

A. He was interested in buying.

Q. Did Mr. Remmer remain in San Francisco after that conversation?

A. No, sir. Shortly after that he left. It was a matter of [684] talking back and forth for a period of maybe a week.

Q. You had several conversations with him; is that correct?

A. I am talking now with the people who owned the Transit Smoke Shop.

Q. And then Mr. Remmer left San Francisco?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Gordon Partee.)

A. He wasn't in town, to my knowledge.

Q. Prior to leaving San Francisco, did he make any suggestion to you with regard to seeing anyone else?

A. He asked me to discuss it with Mr. Kyne.

Q. Did you finally consummate a purchase of the business that you were discussing?

A. Yes, we did.

Q. What was the name of that business?

A. Called the Transit Smoke Shop.

Q. Do you recall now what sums of money you paid for the business?

A. Well, I have, I think, a figure of 22 thousand dollars. The total amount paid for the business was $30,511, $8,511 of which was for the merchandise, as you read in Mr. Monell's letter, the wholesale value of the merchandise.

Q. And the balance of the money was for the business itself and the lease; is that correct?

A. Liquor license, lease, and so on—no, not the lease. The lease didn't have anything to do with that, but goodwill, and so on. [685]

Q. Did you handle any of that sum of 30 thousand some dollars? A. I handled most of it.

Q. To whom did you pay it?

A. Who did I give the money to?

Q. Yes.

A. I gave one check—I guess all the money was paid to Mr. Monell.

Q. From whom did you receive the money that you paid to Mr. Monell? A. Mr. Kyne.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Gordon Partee.)

Q. That is Mr. William Kyne?

A. William Kyne.

Q. You first paid a sum of five thousand dollars; is that correct?

A. I think that is correct, yes.

Q. And did you receive that five thousand dollars from Mr. Kyne? A. I did.

Q. In what form was it given to you?

A. Well, if my memory is correct, I just went down to the office on Mason Street and I think I had phoned previous to the time of going and told them I expected to have the five thousand as a deposit, goodwill deposit or something of that nature, and the check was waiting for me when I got there. I doubt if he even handed it to me; it was in an envelope.

Q. Then you delivered that check to [686] Mr. Monell? A. Mr. Monell.

Q. And a few days later you made a payment of 17 thousand dollars?

A. Within a short period of time as negotiations went on; that is correct.

Q. From whom did you obtain that money?

A. Mr. Kyne.

Q. Where did you receive it?

A. I walked up to the Bank of America, No. 1 Powell Street, the Day and Night Branch, stayed in the foyer of the bank and then in a little while Mr. Kyne came with the check.

Q. You walked over with Mr. Kyne; is that correct? A. That is correct.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Gordon Partee.)

Q. And you waited for Mr. Kyne and he came back with the money? A. Yes.

Q. And he gave you a check for 17 thousand dollars? A. That is right.

Q. And you delivered that check to Mr. Monell?

A. That is correct.

Q. Another payment of $8,511.01 for the inventory of the business, where did you obtain that money?

A. It was obtained in the same manner.

Q. From Mr. Kyne? A. From Mr. Kyne.

Q. Did you, yourself, use any of your own personal funds in [687] making the purchase of the business known as the Transit Smoke Shop?

A. I did not.

Q. Who is Mr. Benjamine Partee?

A. That is my brother.

Q. Was Mr. Benjamine Partee at any time interested as a partner or owner or otherwise in the business known as the Transit Smoke Shop?

A. No, he was not. He had nothing to do with it.

Q. You handled the entire transaction yourself and for yourself; is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. And you and Mr. Remmer and Mr. Kyne enter into a written partnership agreement regarding the Transit Smoke Shop?

A. There was an agreement made.

Q. Have you, pursuant to subpoena, produced that agreement?

A. It may seem funny, but I had it here with

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Gordon Partee.)

me, but at some time in the period of time I was here I lost it.

Q. You lost it at the Mapes Hotel?

A. Yes, sometime. I don't know how it happened, but I just lost it.

Mr. Gillen: If this is a correct or photostatic copy, the defense will stipulate it may be used in lieu of the original which was lost by Mr. Partee.

The Court: We will take a recess at this [688] time.

(Jury and alternate jurors admonished and 15-minute recess taken at 2:30 p.m.)

MR. PARTEE

resumes the witness stand on further

Direct Examination

By Mr. Thompson:

Mr. Thompson: Your Honor, I now offer in evidence plaintiff's Exhibit 98, which is agreement dated November 21, 1946, between Gordon Partee, Elmer Remmer and William Kyne.

Mr. Gillen: I think we have a surprise for you. I think Mr. Partee's original agreement was found on the floor.

A. It was found on the floor.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Gordon Partee.)

Mr. Thompson: I offer it in evidence, your Honor.

Mr. Gillen: No objection.

The Court: Exhibit 98 is admitted in evidence.

Q. Mr. Partee, I show you Exhibit 98; do you recognize the signatures on the third page of the exhibit? A. Yes, I do.

Q. Whose signatures are they?

A. Mine, Elmer Remmer and William E. Kyne.

Q. And that agreement provides in part that you shall have 50 per cent interest in the Transit Smoke Shop, Mr. Remmer a 25 per cent interest, and Mr. Kyne a 25 per cent interest? [689]

A. That is right.

Q. In connection with the starting of that business, Mr. Partee, were there other expenses in addition to the sums to which you have already testified?

A. There was one other expense to add and that would be deposit we had to put on the lease, total of $1,500, three years at $500 per month.

Q. Do you means three years or three months?

A. $1,500 was deposited, I guess for the last three months' rent at the end of the lease. In other words, we had to put up $1,500.

Q. From what source did you receive that $1,500? A. The same way.

Q. From Mr. Kyne? A. Yes.

Q. Did you also establish a change fund for the business?

A. There was a change fund established; I couldn't tell you the exact amount.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Gordon Partee.)

Q. Can you approximate the amount, according to your best recollection?

A. To my best recollection, it would be about a thousand dollars.

Q. From whom was that money obtained?

A. I do not remember.

Q. I call your attention, Mr. Partee, to plaintiff's Exhibit 98, agreement, wherein it is recited that the second parties, namely, Elmer Remmer and William E. Kyne, contributed the sum of [690] $32,011.01 to the capital assets of the partnership.

A. That figure is correct.

Q. That is the figure you arrived at at the time the agreement was executed? A. Yes.

Q. And that is the only contribution to the capital, is that correct? You, yourself, made no contribution? A. No contribution.

Q. In defining the partnership interests, I think I incorrectely read the agreement to you. If you will examine the third paragraph of the agreement, would it not be more correct to say that you had a 50 per cent interest and Mr. Kyne and Mr. Remmer together had a 50 per cent interest, according to the agreement?

A. That is right. It is better to put it that way. If we had $100, I would take $40 and Mr. Kyne would take $25 and Mr. Remmer take $25.

Q. Is that the manner in which the profits of the partnership were divided? A. It is.

Q. When were partnership profits distributed?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Gordon Partee.)

A. Within the period month, according to how the check was done.

Q. At the end of the month you would write a check for yourself for 50 per cent of the profits and one to Mr. Remmer for 25 per cent and one to Mr. Kyne for 25 per cent? A. That's right. [691]

Q. Was the business operated under that ownership and under those conditions continuously to the end of 1946, that is, that year?

A. Yes. We were in business perhaps maybe a month and a half during the period of 1946, from November 15, 1946, to the end of the year.

Q. Then you continued in business for 1947 also?

A. Yes, went on.

Q. Did you file an income tax return for the partnership in the calendar year 1946, that is, for the two months' of operation? A. Yes.

Q. I show you plaintiff's Exhibit 92, and state whether or not that is the partnership return which you filed for the Transit Smoke Shop business?

A. I would say it is. I see my signature on it and it is a partnership return.

Q. There is a typographical error, is there not, on the return, where you name is spelled Parter?

A. That is correct.

Q. What character of business was operated by the Transit Smoke Shop during the year 1946?

A. Well, we had located on a street that is quite heavily trafficked, right near the terminal, and we had a regular merchandising store, we had liquor, was open 24 hours, day and night; we had pin-ball

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Gordon Partee.)

machines, cigars, I believe I mentioned liquor, merchandise, magazines. [692]

Q. Was there a back room to the business?

A. No back room; one large store. Oh, there was a back room, I mean we used it for storing liquor and storage space, but I mean the store was one large room.

Mr. Thompson: At this time, your Honor, I would like to read to the jury a portion of the figures from Exhibit 92, the partnership return for the Transit Smoke Shop for the calendar year 1946, covering the period from November 1, 1946, to December 31, 1946. Total net income after business deductions was $8,797.82, less salaries and wages, rent and repairs and the like, left an ordinary net income of $3,809.04, and that sum was distributed as follows: Gordon Partee, 85 First Post Street, San Francisco, percentage of time devoted to business, 50. His distributive share was $1,904.52. Elmer F. Remmer, Orinda, percentage of time devoted to business, 25. His percentage share was $952.26. William E. Kyne, 975 Lawton Street, San Francisco, percentage of time devoted to business, 25; distributive share, $952.26; total, $3,809.04.

Mr. Thompson: You may cross-examine.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Q. Mr. Partee, you spoke in your direct examination of a conversation had between you and Mr. Remmer at Cal-Neva Lodge on Lake Tahoe during the summer of 1946, when you were vacationing there; is that correct?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Gordon Partee.)

A. It could have been '45; I am not sure of the year, '45 or '46. [693]

Q. And you said that there was some mention in the conversation about the possibility of your going in business with him? A. Yes.

Q. Now it is true, is it not, Mr. Partee, that you are a former football star of St. Mary's College?

A. Thank you, yes.

Q. And that you belong to the St. Mary's College Alumni? A. Yes.

Q. And Mr. Remmer also attended St. Mary's and belonged to the Alumni; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And you struck up your conversation by your both having attended the same educational institution?

A. Yes, I had met Mr. Remmer, I think, at a game or something, just casually.

Q. And this mention of business was a casual thing and at a later time you observed this location which you thought was a good potential business place? A. That is correct.

Q. You mentioned that it was quite a well-traveled portion of San Francisco. It is right in the path of the East Bay terminal, that takes the traffic across the Bay Bridge; is that correct?

A. That is correct, all the traffic.

Q. Both human and vehicular traffic?

A. That's right. [694]

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Gordon Partee.)

Q. Also it is closely located, is it not, to some large steamship and railroad office buildings, within a short distance?

A. All of that vicinity is generally office buildings. I am not sure about train terminals.

Q. I mean, you were close to the Southern Pacific building, the main office?

A. The Western Pacific.

Q. And the Matson Navigation Company is in close proximity; is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. And finding this location, you proposed this as a likely place to go into business?

A. That is right.

Q. Now, Mr. Partee, on the occasions that you have mentioned when you went to the bank with Mr. Kyne and he gave you the money for these two payments, as I recall, did Mr. Kyne on those occasions take cash to the Day and Night Branch of the Bank of America at No. 1 Powell Street, San Francisco, and obtain a cashier's check for you?

A. I wouldn't know about that. I never saw any cash at any time.

Q. You don't know how he purchased the cashier's checks? Were they cashier's checks?

A. Yes.

Q. So when you spoke to Mr. Kyne about the necessity of [695] meeting, for instance, the 17 thousand dollar payment, you and he went to the bank together and you waited until he transacted the business of obtaining the cashier's check?

A. That is correct.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Gordon Partee.)

Q. And whether he paid cash or whether he wrote a check on the account, you don't know?

A. No.

Q. Now do I understand correctly, Mr. Partee, that you conducted the operation there yourself?

A. That's right.

Q. And you kept your accounts down there, and what did you do with the final accounting in the preparation?

A. I kept a regular daily running account that at the end of the month I would bring all of the business or all the records that pertained to the business down and leave them in Mr. Remmer's office.

Q. I notice in prosecution's Exhibit 92 the preparation was made by a Mr. C. D. Ayton, public accountant. Did you turn over your records to him?

A. That is correct.

Q. He was the man who was keeping the books for Mr. Remmer and Mr. Kyne?

A. That is right.

Q. And I notice on this exhibit there is a signature, purported signature, of Gordon A. Partee, I believe you have already [696] identified that for Mr. Thompson as your signature; is that true?

A. Yes.

Q. Insofar as you can recall, at the time you signed this document and now, when it is shown to you, does that truly reflect the earnings, disbursements, and whatever of the Transit Smoke Shop?

A. It does.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

Mr. Gillen: I think that is all; thank you.

Mr. Thompson: That is all, Mr. Partee.

(Witness finally excused.)

JAMES OGLESBY

a witness on behalf of the plaintiff, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct Examination

By Mr. Thompson:

Q. Will you state your name, please?

A. James Oglesby.

Q. Where do you live?

A. 433 Baden Street, San Francisco.

Q. What is your employment?

A. Business manager, Franklin Hospital in San Francisco.

Q. Where is the Franklin Hospital located?

A. 14th & Noe Streets, San Francisco.

Q. Have you brought with you, in accordance with subpoena, the original records of the Franklin Hospital relating to the account of Elmer Remmer?

A. I have. [697]

Q. Have you from those records, which appear to be quite bulky, made a transcript of his account?

A. I have.

Q. Will you produce it, please?

Mr. Gillen: We will stipulate Mr. Remmer had pneumonia and was in the hospital and paid this amount of money.

Mr. Thompson: We do not accept the stipulation, your Honor. We offer in evidence Exhibit 99.

Mr. Gillen: We stipulate it may go in evidence without objection.

The Court: It may be admitted.

Q. Mr. Oglesby, I show you Exhibit 99. Will you state during what period Mr. Remmer was a patient in the Franklin Hospital?

A. From February 7, 1946. This does not indicate the date of his discharge. I think it was February 14, 1946.

Q. And did Mr. Remmer pay you for the services performed for him by the Franklin Hospital?

A. Yes, he did.

Q. On what date? A. February 14, 1946.

Q. And in what amount? A. $279.38.

Mr. Thompson: You may cross-examine.

Mr. Gillen: My only question would be, from my personal experience, how it was so reasonable. I think I have no further [698] cross-examination.

(Witness finally excused.)

WILLIAM B. STRONG

a witness on behalf of the plaintiff, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct Examination

By Mr. Thompson:

Q. Will you state your name, please?

A. William B. Strong.

Q. Where do you live?

A. 1315 Monroe, Evanston, Illinois.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William B. Strong.)

Q. What is your business?

A. I am credit manager for the Blackstone.

Q. The Blackstone Hotel? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where is the Blackstone Hotel?

A. 636 Michigan, South Michigan.

Q. In Chicago, Illinois?

A. Chicago, Illinois.

Q. How long have you been employed at the Blackstone Hotel? A. Oh, seven years.

Q. Have you brought with you an account of the Blackstone Hotel relating to Elmer Remmer?

A. I have.

Q. Will you produce it, please? You have produced a transcript you made from your hotel records? A. That's right. [699]

Mr. Thompson: I ask that the transcript be marked plaintiff's exhibit next in order.

The Clerk: 100.

Mr. Thompson: I would like to have marked for identification, your Honor, the record account with Mr. Remmer with the Blackstone Hotel.

Mr. Gillen: Would that be the originals?

Mr. Thompson: Yes.

Mr. Gillen: May we call that 100-A?

Mr. Thompson: That is satisfactory.

Q. Mr. Strong, I show you plaintiff's Exhibit 100-A for identification; will you state generally what those are?

A. What was it you wanted to know about this one?

Q. What are they in the way of records?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William B. Strong.)

A. Well, that is the active, the only record we have, I mean; it is the front office guest register as they set up the ledger sheets, such as this, and those are posted thereon.

Q. And are those the records of the Blackstone Hotel which are kept, made and maintained in the regular course of the business of that hotel?

A. That is right.

Q. And is it part of the business of the Blackstone Hotel to make and keep records of that character? A. Oh, yes.

Q. Do these records record payments made to the Blackstone Hotel [700] by Mr. Elmer Remmer during the years 1945 and 1946? A. Yes.

Mr. Thompson: I offer Exhibit 100-A in evidence, your Honor.

Mr. Gillen: To which we offer the objection, may it please the Court, there is no proper foundation laid. In other words, may it please the Court, to clarify the grounds of my objection, there must be a foundation laid to show whether or not these were personal or pleasure accounts or whether they were account of obligations incurred as business expenses. That would be material, because they would be deductible business expenses, so the offer is premature, may it please the Court. There would have to be that foundation laid.

Mr. Thompson: If the Court please, I believe a number of witnesses have testified already at the trial that Mr. Remmer's business was conducted at Cal-Neva Lodge and San Francisco, California.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William B. Strong.)

The Court: Objection overruled. They may be admitted in evidence.

Mr. Gillen: I challenge the record to show that his business——

The Court (Interceding): I wasn't interested in that point of view.

Mr. Gillen: May I make a record, your Honor? Counsel has made a statement that I think would tend to confuse the [701] triers of fact.

The Court: You may make your statement.

Mr. Gillen: The witnesses who testified here did not confine Mr. Remmer's business or his business trips or his business activities to Cal-Neva or San Francisco or El Cerrito. They testified there were businesses there.

The Court: The jury will determine what the witnesses testified.

Mr. Gillen: Of course, your Honor, if these are business trips, it is material. They are deductible.

The Court: That may be shown. If that is shown——

Mr. Gillen (Interrupting): Of course, the burden is entirely to show on the government, your Honor. We do not haye to prove, the burden is on the prosecution, as your Honor well knows.

The Court: The objection is overruled. The ruling will stand.

Q. Mr. Strong, I show you Plaintiff's Exhibit 100-A and by examining that exhibit, will you state what, if any, payments were made by Mr. Remmer to the Blackstone Hotel in the year 1945?

Mr. Gillen: Same objection, no foundation laid.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William B. Strong.)

The Court: Same ruling.

Mr. Gillen: I would like to recall to your Honor's mind, if it has slipped your mind, that there was some evidence produced by the prosecution here that Mr. Remmer had some business [702] activities in the East, to wit, the purchase of two carloads of whiskey.

The Court: The ruling will stand. Let us have the question.

(Question read.)

A. Yes, October 31, 1945, $36.23 and November 11, 1945, $118.73. I believe those are the only two in '45; and October 14, $58.77.

The Court: That is 1945?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you find a payment under date of October 2, 1945? A. Four hundred dollars.

Q. Do you also find a payment under date of October 7, 1945? A. Yes, two thousand.

Q. According to your records, at the time Mr. Remmer paid you that sum of two thousand dollars, did he owe the hotel two thousand dollars?

A. No, he didn't. That could have been a check that we put through there. I don't recall just what that was.

Q. As a result of that payment of two thousand dollars, was Mr. Remmer given a credit on the hotel account? A. That's right.

Q. And after that sum of two thousand dollars was paid by Mr. Remmer, what amount remained

BLEED THROUGH— POOR COPY

(Testimony of William B. Strong.)

to the credit of Mr. Remmer with the Blackstone Hotel? [703]

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as assuming something not in evidence because the witness has said it might have been cashing of check and leaving the greater portion of the check there as balance.

The Court: The question before that did state something about credit.

Mr. Gillen: That is right, but he said it might not be payment, he said it might be a check cashed and leaving a balance.

The Court: Objection will be overruled. Read the question.

(Question read.)

A. $1,878.10.

Q. What, if any, payments were made by Mr. Remmer to the Blackstone Hotel during the year 1946?

A. Yes; June 25, $123.50; October 6, $120.83; November 16, $77.57.

Q. Referring back, Mr. Strong, to the credit balance which Mr. Remmer had after paying the hotel the sum of two thousand dollars, do your records show whether or not that payment was used up by Mr. Remmer in hotel services or was any sum of that refunded to him?

A. Well, yes, there was a refund made to him.

Q. Will you refer to your record and state the date of the refund and the amount of the [704] refund? A. You have it on——

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William B. Strong.)

Q. (Interrupting): Well, you have it in there, that is the one we are referring to, Exhibit 100-A. Refer to the date of October 3, 1945.

A. October 31, 1945, $1,392.56.

Q. Does the record which you have before you, Exhibit 100-A, show the daily charge for the room occupied by Mr. Remmer on the occasions when he visited the Blackstone Hotel?

A. Well, when he paid this, it was $10.00, $10.00 room.

Q. On what date was it that he occupied a ten dollar room? A. October 30th.

Q. What year? A. 1945.

Q. Will you go on through the exhibit and see if you find any other room rents paid by Mr. Remmer?

A. November 9th, $10, and then he had a suite here.

Q. What date was that?

A. He came on the 24th of September, 1945, and he had a suite, paid $26.50 a day for that and kept that until October 14th.

Mr. Thompson: You may cross-examine.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Q. Mr. Strong, due to the fact that your records reflect a refund, you would say, would you not, that Mr. Remmer apparently cashed a check for two thousand dollars and took cash of $200 and left $1,800, which was the balance to him, less the two hundred? [705] A. It is a credit, yes.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William B. Strong.)

Q. Instead of taking money away, he left it there with the cashier, is that correct?

A. I would say so.

Q. And then in the interim there were some modest charges made there, such as the ten dollar rooms and finally he drew down what remained to his credit on your books, the sum of $1,392.50, is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. This suite you mention for $26.50 a day, is that the type suite usually used for business purposes, business conferences and the like?

A. Yes.

Q. You wouldn't know from your records, of course, Mr. Strong, whether or not the occasions of his visits to your hostelry were on business trips or on pleasure trips? A. No, I wouldn't know.

Mr. Gillen: That is all.

Redirect Examination

By Mr. Thompson:

Q. Will you describe the suite that Mr. Remmer hired for $26.50 a day?

Mr. Gillen: What materiality would that have? It was more than one room.

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question.

Mr. Gillen: I will offer the further [706] objection——

The Court: I have already ruled.

Mr. Gillen: May I offer a further objection?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William B. Strong.)

The Court: Well, go ahead.

Mr. Gillen: This man can not know from his records what the suite was.

Mr. Thompson: We are trying to find out, your Honor.

The Court: Just a minute. The objection is overruled. He may answer the question.

A. Well, consisted of parlor and bedroom; in this case, it was two bedrooms.

Q. Two bedrooms and parlor. Are those suites used only for business purposes?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as calling for conclusion.

The Court: Objection overruled.

A. Well, yes.

Q. Only for business?

A. Oh, no, no; not only for business.

Q. Is your hotel patronized exclusively by business men? A. I would say so.

Q. Exclusively? A. Yes.

Q. Nobody that comes to your hotel for pleasure?

Mr. Gillen: Now he is cross-examining his own witness. It is improper redirect examination, certainly. He is trying to impeach the gentleman. [707]

The Court: Well, reframe the question.

Q. Is your hotel, Mr. Strong, the Blackstone Hotel, used only by people who come to Chicago on business?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as calling for opinion and conclusion and speculation on his part.

BLEED THROUGH— POOR COPY

(Testimony of William B. Strong.)

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question.

A. Well, I imagine business and pleasure, yes, whatever any hotel would be used for.

Q. Just like any other hotel?

A. I think so, yes.

Q. Will you refer to your record, Exhibit 100-A, which I believe you have there before you, and state whether or not, on the date that Mr. Remmer paid to the hotel the sum of two thousand dollars he owed the hotel any money?

Mr. Gillen: I am going to offer objection now, in view of the cross-examination, it is assuming something which is not in evidence. There is no evidence here now—we have explained that he did not pay the hotel two thousand dollars, that he left a credit on the books, which was refunded to him in the sum of thirteen some odd dollars.

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question.

(Question read.)

A. Yes, $121.90.

Q. And the credit balance which remained to the credit of Mr. Remmer, after the payment was made, was arrived at after deducting [708] the amount that he owed the hotel?

A. That is correct, yes.

Mr. Thompson: That's all.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William B. Strong.)

Recross-Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Q. So, in other words, on that occasion he just paid what he owed the hotel, $121.90, took $100 and left the rest in credit? A. That's right.

Q. So he did not pay the hotel two thousand dollars, did he? A. No.

Q. Do you have the number there of the suite which he occupied? A. At that time?

Q. At the time he paid the $26.50 a day?

A. Oh, yes; 504-5 and 6.

Q. And that consisted of sitting room and two bedrooms, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. Now is it the practice of your hotel, as it is the practice of many hotels, if a man takes a suite he may have another man with him and only one man's name is put down, whoever takes the suite?

A. That is correct.

Mr. Gillen: That's all.

Mr. Thompson: That is all.

(Witness finally excused.) [709]

FRANK A. BRAY

a witness on behalf of the plaintiff, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct Examination

By Mr. Thompson:

Q. Will you state your name, please?

A. Frank A. Bray.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Frank A. Bray.)

Q. Where do you live?

A. 2539 30th Ave., San Francisco.

Q. What is your business?

A. I am controller of Shreve & Company.

Q. What character of business is conducted by Shreve & Company?

A. Jewelry and silversmiths.

Q. Where is that business located?

A. At 200 Post Street.

Q. Have you brought with you the records of Shreve & Company relating to an account with Elmer Remmer? A. I have.

Q. Will you produce them, please? I ask the record be marked Exhibit 101.

The Court: So marked.

Mr. Gillen: The defense, may it please the Court, would have no objection to this exhibit being received in evidence, with the exception there is a payment that was made in 1947, pertaining to obligations incurred in 1946. Of course, that would mean that the obligations incurred should be eliminated and also the payment of 1947, because we are only concerned with [710] what was paid in the years involved in the indictment.

Mr. Thompson: That is correct, your Honor. We are interested only in payments made during the years 1944, 1945, and 1946.

Mr. Gillen: Otherwise we have no objection.

The Court: It will be admitted in evidence if that can be removed some way.

Mr. Gillen: There is a fixed amount there and

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Frank A. Bray.)

I think it can just be deducted from the 1946 charges.

The Court: Very well.

Q. Referring to Exhibit 101, will you state the purchases that were made on that account which were paid for during the years 1944, 1945, and 1946, and the amounts of the payments?

Mr. Gillen: Now just a moment. First of all, may it please the Court, I think it will be found that they were not all purchases. Some are repairs and replacements of things. They wouldn't all be purchases and you couldn't contemplate all the charges of 1946, because of the very matter I mentioned a moment ago.

The Court: Can you reframe your question to meet the situation?

Mr. Thompson: I believe if the question is read again, it does eliminate—I said purchases made during those years which were paid for during those years.

Mr. Gillen: They are not all purchases. It still doesn't [711] meet the objection.

Mr. Thompson: I don't care what you call them. The charges to the account.

Mr. Gillen: That is better.

A. Do you want in dollars and cents or individual items?

Q. Individual items.

A. On March, 1944, diamond ring, $106.87. On the same day there was another diamond ring, $168.75. Under March 31, 1944, there was repairs, total $129.37. That was for altering a ring and also altering a bracelet. In May of 1944, there was a charge for mounting a diamond in amount of $25. On June 7, 1944, there was another ring purchase, $122.50. That is described as pladium ring, so I don't quite know whether that is correct terminology for whatever that purchase was. On June 30, 1944, purchase of pladium ring for $73.50. On February 5, 1945, there was a ring made as ordered, which totaled $300. February 16th was a repair, a diamond and emerald bracelet in amount of $5.50. July 26, 1946, there was repairing diamond and emerald bracelet and replace stones for $96.75. December 9, 1946, purchase of gold charm for $12.25.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Frank A. Bray.)

Mr. Gillen: I think some of those items, if the Court please, were not paid for until 1947, and therefore, should be eliminated. I move that they be stricken. Counsel can very easily see what the charges were for 1946, and deduct from that the payment made in 1947, to eliminate those [712] charges.

The Court: Meet that suggestion, Mr. Thompson, if you can.

Mr. Thompson: The last item should be stricken, $12.25.

The Court: That item will be stricken. What item is that?

Mr. Thompson: Gold charm, $12.25.

The Court: That will be stricken. That seems to be the only one that you found there of that nature?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Frank A. Bray.)

Mr. Thompson: That is correct. Would you like to examine the exhibit?

Mr. Gillen: No, if you say that is the only one, that is good enough.

Q. Now, Mr. Bray, will you state when, during the years 1944, 1945, and 1946, those payments were made on that account and in what amount?

A. In the year of 1944, on April 6th, we received $404.99. On June 21st, $25; October 17th, $196. In the year of 1945, on May 5th, we received $305.50. In the year of 1946, on November 6th, $96.75. That is the extent of the payments.

Q. Now do your records show whether those were payments on account either by cash or check or were they credits for returned merchandise?

A. They were not credits for returned merchandise because they are not indicated as such, but it does not show from the application of credit for payment of money, could be either check or [713] actual cash.

Mr. Thompson: You may cross-examine.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Q. Were any of those payments that were charged there on that account paid by other than the holder of the account, to wit, Mr. or Mrs. Remmer?

A. That would not be definitely determined by the company account. It could be paid by either one of the members or by somebody else, as far as that goes.

BLEED THROUGH— POOR COPY

(Testimony of Frank A. Bray.)

Q. It is true, is it not, that that account reflects that some of those payments were paid by an insurance company for Mr. Remmer, isn't that true?

A. There are certain pencilled notations on here. The actual payment, so far as being identified as being paid by one or the other, could only be determined by association of the amount of the charge and the amount of payment. When I say associating the two, I mean where there is a notation that the insurance company might have been involved.

Q. Also on there are charges such as repair or replacing of stones, is that correct?

A. That is right.

Q. Now there is a notation on there in one or two instances that particular charges should be sent directly to the Bridgeman Insurance agent, isn't that so?

A. Yes, there are two notations there. [714]

Q. Will you tell us what notations they were for, what amounts and what items?

A. Well, you can't identify them as to particular items, unless you want to assume that a repair job was to the insurance company.

Q. Just tell us what the pencilled notations state with reference to sending these bills to someone other than Mr. Remmer.

A. Well, it is noted here, "Send bill to C. A. * * *," and I can't make the name out, 333 Montgomery Street.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Frank A. Bray.)

Q. Is it Bridgeman?

A. Well, something like that.

Q. Was it Bridgeford, C. H., 333 Montgomery Street? A. Yes, it could be that.

Q. What was that item, please?

A. Well, that notation is opposite this pladium ring valued at $122.50.

Q. That could have been replacement of a lost article, is that correct? A. It is possible.

Q. Now is there any other item that has notation that bill should be sent to the insurance broker or company or to a name other than the Remmer name, other than the account name?

A. Well, there is an item here, there is a notation pencilled, one diamond to match stone, diamond and star sapphire ring, $232.75. [715]

Q. That was what date?

A. December 9, 1946.

Mr. Gillen: That is an item that should have been eliminated, then.

Q. Is there any item earlier than that, earlier months or years?

A. No, not with any notation on it.

Q. Now, Mr. Bray, there are other items in addition to the item that has notation to send bill to the insurance agent, Bridgeport, 333 Montgomery Street, there are other items there which show jobs of repair, isn't that so? A. That is true.

Q. More than one?

A. Yes, there is more than one.

Q. How many are there, can you tell us? Not

BLEED THROUGH— POOR COPY

(Testimony of Frank A. Bray.)

counting the one in December of 1946, which we have agreed has no place in the record.

A. There are about three items.

Q. Three items of repairs and replacements?

A. Yes.

Mr. Gillen: I think that is all, thank you.

Redirect Examination

By Mr. Thompson:

Q. Mr. Bray, do Shreve & Company send statements showing the cost of articles to insurance companies for any reason other than to obtain payment from the insurance company? [716]

A. Yes, sometimes by reason of the fact that people have insurance policy, they sometimes request a bill for that purpose, to have the value to know if they are entitled to the insurance.

Q. Mr. Gillen called your attention to an item under date of June 7, 1944, pladium ring, in a total charge of $122.50, and with the pencilled notation alongside it, "Insurance bill to C. A. Bridgeport, 333 Montgomery." Did you find a credit in the account in the amount of $122.50?

A. That specific amount is not reflected as an individual item.

Q. You did not receive one payment from any one in the amount of $122.50?

A. That is correct.

Mr. Thompson: That is all.

BLURRED COPY

Recross-Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Q. Of course, it is within your knowledge, is it not, Mr. Bray, when a person loses a ring, an insurance company might either pay your company direct or might pay the insured a check, is that correct? A. That is true.

Mr. Gillen: That's all.

Mr. Campbell: May I suggest there is a matter that we would like to take up out of the presence of the jury that will take two or three minutes.

The Court: Very well, we will be in session for a few minutes.

(In the absence of the jury.)

Mr. Pike: Your Honor, I wish to address the Court on any necessary clarification of the Court's decision or ruling on the right of government's counsel to inspect the records that are presently deposited with the clerk.

The Court: The government's counsel may inspect the records now in the custody of the clerk.

Mr. Pike: I understand, of course, that they are likewise accessible for inspection by defense counsel at any time that can be arranged with the clerk.

The Court: That is so understood.

Mr. Golden: Under the rule, your Honor, as I understand it, it is not necessary to take an exception unless the situation is such where it might be said the Court has not been advised of the action which is taken. We except to your Honor's ruling upon all the grounds heretofore urged, including not only legal grounds, which I will not attempt to repeat at length unless your Honor wishes me to, but also the practical grounds. It hampers our defense, for the reasons pointed out this morning and thus makes it practically impossible, if not impossible, [718] for us to look at these records.

The Court: That is what we have to contend with. We all have to travel back and forth and I can't see how we can avoid it, unless you can prevail upon Congress to build us a decent courtroom in Reno. I would be glad to have you use your influence to that end.

We will be in recess until tomorrow morning at 10:00 o'clock.

a witness on behalf of the plaintiff, having been previously sworn, testified as follows on continued

Direct Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Mr. Simmons, you identified yourself on the stand the other day as being the brother of George Simmons; is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. And you further identified yourself as being the present bookkeeper of Mr. Pechart and Mr. Kessel? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who were on the stand yesterday and the day before? A. That's right.

Q. And while on the stand you were asked concerning the records of the 21 Club, the San Diego Social Club and the 311 Club, which you have been subpoenaed to produce, and stated, I believe, that they had been delivered to Mr. Remmer on instructions of your employers; that a receipt had been obtained for such records and that the receipt was in the possession of Mr. Remmer; is that [720] correct? A. That is correct.

Q. I show you government's Exhibit 96, which purports to be a receipt from Mr. Remmer for certain records of those three organizations, together with personal tax returns of Joseph Billington, and ask you if that is the receipt to which you refer?

BLEED THROUGH— POOR COPY

(Testimony of Lester Simmons.)

A. It is.

Q. Now was this document written by you?

A. Yes, it was.

Q. Did you personally type it or did you dictate it to a stenographer? A. I typed it.

Q. And at the time you typed it, did you examine each of the records which were turned over to Mr. Remmer, for the purpose of determining whether or not this receipt accurately stated what documents and records were being turned over to Mr. Remmer? A. I did.

Q. Now I call your attention on this document to language appearing immediately above the signature: "Tax returns 21 Club 1943 were not returned with records when picked up from Mr. John Golden." I will ask you whether or not the records referred to in this receipt had previously been delivered and then received from Mr. John Golden?

Mr. Gillen: My objection is that yesterday there was a stipulation offered by the defense, and accepted by the [721] prosecution, regarding certain of these particular records, namely, that they had been put in the hands of an attorney by the name of Kessler of Oakland, California, who is a relative of Mr. Kessel's, who also served as attorney for Pechart and Kessel, and that he had some of those records and turned over certain of them to Mr. Golden for a time and that they were returned.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Lester Simmons.)

This is simply attempting to accentuate and it is repetitious, has been asked and answered.

Mr. Campbell: I might state, your Honor, I have in mind the examination by Mr. Gillen of Mr. Pechart, where he developed the point and emphasized the point that the records referred to were, after the government's agent's examination, at all times and up until the time they were turned over to Mr. Remmer, in the possession of Mr. Pechart or his accountant.

Mr. Gillen: We have the stipulation, we will show it to you in the record, just a moment, and it was accepted—page 676, yesterday's record.

The Court: It might save a little time if I could have a look at the transcript. (Court examines transcript.) Objection overruled. He may answer the question.

Mr. Gillen: Well, may the record show that it is in the record and your Honor saw it?

The Court: I don't think that is necessary.

Mr. Gillen: Let the record show that we showed your [722] Honor and Mr. Campbell where the stipulation was entered into.

The Court: Let us proceed. Read the question.

(Question read.)

Mr. Gillen: Objected to—it is already in the record by stipulation and accepted by the prosecution.

The Court: The objection has been overruled, and let us just have the question read to the witness so he may understand it.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Lester Simmons.)

(Question read.)

Mr. Gillen: Now I am going to ask the Court's permission to examine Mr. Simmons on voir dire in regard to any knowledge on the subject.

The Court: Motion denied. Answer the question.

A. The records were at some time previously delivered to an agent of Mr. Remmer's, whom I do not know. They were later returned to the office of Pechart and Kessel by Mr. Golden.

Q. By Mr. Golden, did you say?

A. That's right.

Q. Do you recall what date it was upon which Mr. Golden returned those records?

A. No, I do not.

Q. Calling your attention to the date of that particular document, which is, I believe, April 24, 1951, can you state when it was with relation to the writing of that document that the records were returned by Mr. Golden? [723]

Mr. Gillen: Objected to, may it please the Court, as having been asked and answered. The witness says he doesn't know.

Mr. Campbell: I want to ascertain if this will refresh his recollection.

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question.

A. This does not refresh the matter.

Q. Now, Mr. Simmons, when did you first begin employment, so far as the keeping of books and records, in behalf of Mr. Pechart and Mr. Kessel?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Lester Simmons.)

A. Approximately around the first part of January of '45.

Q. And was your employment at that time directly by Pechart and Kessel, or was it from your brother? A. It was from my brother.

Q. And how long did that arrangement continue, so far as your keeping books and records in behalf of Mr. Pechart and Mr. Kessel, under the direction of your brother?

A. Until about September of '48 or September of '49.

Q. Now directing your attention again to this receipt, let me ask you this—are the records set forth hereon all of the records that were maintained, so far as you knew, with respect to the operations of the 21 Club, the San Diego Social Club, and the 311 Club, for the years 1943 to 1946?

A. To the best of my knowledge that is the records in its entirety.

Q. Now I call your attention to the fact that under the heading [724] "21 Club," there is listed a general ledger. I will ask you whether or not a general ledger was also maintained for the San Diego Social Club and for the 311 Club?

A. I was not familiar with those two activities, but I don't think there was a general ledger.

Q. Were you familiar with the record keeping so far as the 21 Club was concerned?

A. Yes, I was.

Q. Now will you state just what records were

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Lester Simmons.)

kept for that club, particularly for the years 1943 to 1946?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to, may it please the Court, as having been asked and answered. The exhibit is the best evidence and this witness said that so far as his knowledge was concerned, that they represented all the records pertaining to those activities.

Mr. Campbell: I will withdraw the question.

Q. You referred here to a cash journal for the 21 Club. Will you state the general nature of that record?

A. The cash record is the record that shows the cash receipts and disbursements, daily journal, usually.

Q. Is that what it was in respect to that operation? A. Yes, it was.

Q. Showed the cash receipts and cash disbursements; is that correct? A. Yes, sir. [725]

Q. And you refer there to a general ledger. Will you tell the nature of that book of account, so far as the 21 Club was concerned?

A. This general ledger is double entry usual type ledger.

Q. Now was that general ledger, to your knowledge, brought up to date, so far as the operations of the 21 Club for the years 1943 to 1946 were concerned?

A. The general ledger, so far as I know, was up to date by the end of 1946.

Q. And was up to date at that time?

A. Yes, sir.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Lester Simmons.)

Q. Now will you state whether or not in that general ledger there were set forth investment accounts or capital accounts, or whatever designation they may have had, accounts showing the contributions and accumulated profits of the partners thereto? A. I got lost on your question.

(Question read.)

A. I don't recall what was in the books on the investment accounts.

Q. Do you recall whether or not there were investment accounts? A. No, I do not.

Q. Do you recall whether or not the general ledger set forth accounts payable of the 21 Club?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you recall whether or not there were drawing accounts of [726] the partners.

A. I do not think there were.

Q. Do you recall whether or not the general ledger set forth the notes payable of the 21 Club?

A. Yes.

Q. Now would those matters to which I have referred, that is to say investment or capital accounts, accounts payable and notes payable, be also set forth in the cash receipts and disbursements journal?

A. Yes, they would.

Q. And were they in the case of the 21 Club?

A. To the best of my knowledge now they were.

Q. And in what form did they appear in the cash receipts and disbursements journal?

A. I do not know.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Lester Simmons.)

Q. Do you have any recollection of the contents of those books, so far as accounts payable and notes payable at the end of each of the calendar years, 1943 to 1946? A. No.

Q. Do you have any recollection of what those books would show by way of investment or contribution by the partners?

A. Not at that time.

Q. Would your answers be the same as to the San Diego Social Club?

A. I don't know anything about the San Diego Social Club. [727]

Q. Do you know anything about the 311 Club?

A. I know about the 311 Club. I know nothing about the records that were maintained.

Q. Did you, yourself, keep the records or make the entries of the 311 Club with respect to any of the years 1944 to 1946, inclusive?

A. The only times I would have had any occasion to be concerned with either of those two enterprises would be to possibly make up pay rolls in the absence of George.

Q. In the absence of your brother; is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. Now during the years—that is, from the time you commenced your employment with respect to these enterprises, I think you stated in 1945, and up until the end of 1946, were you the authorized signator on any bank accounts maintained by the 21 Club, the San Diego Social Club and the 311 Club?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Lester Simmons.)

A. I was authorized to sign checks on the 21 Club with a co-signature of Mr. Billington.

Q. And where was that bank account maintained? A. Mechanics Bank at El Cerrito.

Q. What, if any, designation was on that account? What was the name of the account?

A. 21 Club.

Q. Was there any other designation on that account?

A. I don't understand the question. [728]

Mr. Campbell: Well, I will reframe the question.

Q. Was that an account used for any particular purpose?

A. It was used for the purpose of paying the disbursements on the 21 Club.

Q. Was that the only account maintained in the name of the 21 Club at the Mechanics National Bank?

A. It is the Mechanics Bank. There were two accounts; one was general operating account, one was the pay roll account.

Q. And which of the two accounts was it that your signature was authorized? A. Both.

Q. You were authorized on both?

A. That's right.

Q. And was Mr. Billington's signature also authorized on both? A. Yes, he was.

Q. Were you authorized to sign any checks with respect to any bank account of the San Diego Social Club?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Lester Simmons.)

A. It is possible I was on the account to sign pay roll checks.

Q. Was there more than one account for the San Diego Social Club, if you know?

A. I don't know.

Q. Do you recall the name of the account of the San Diego Social Club?

A. It went under the name of the San Diego Social Club.

Q. Was there any designation on that [729] account? A. None other than that name.

Q. Now with respect to the 21 Club, did you, yourself, handle the deposits of money to that account? A. Yes, I did.

Q. How often was that done?

A. Generally weekly.

Q. And we are referring specifically to the period from when you commenced your employment up to and including December 31, 1946. Now during that period of time from whom did you receive the money with respect to the 21 Club to deposit in the bank? A. Mr. Billington.

Q. And where would you receive it?

A. At the club.

Q. You would visit the club; is that correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Mr. Simmons, who made out the deposit tickets on the deposit of money? A. I did.

Q. I presume the money would be in the form of checks, currency and silver; is that correct?

A. That's right.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Lester Simmons.)

Q. And at the time you received the money, did you receive any memoranda or account of any kind with respect to that money?

A. Yes, there would be the sales recap of the sales for the week. [730]

Q. And in what form did you receive that recap of sales? A. I don't remember.

Q. Well, do you recall whether it would be a sheet of paper, an adding machine paper or cash disbursed tab?

A. I believe that Mr. Billington prepared a weekly sheet, on which the daily sales totals were noted.

Q. How were those sales broken down?

A. Between the food sales and bar sales.

Q. And was there or was there not included on that sheet the sales, as you refer to, or receipts—they are one and the same thing, are they not? Is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. (Continuing): ——with respect to the operation of the back room known as the San Diego Social Club? A. They had no connection.

Q. So that the money which Mr. Billington handed to you and the weekly recapitulation of the sales referred only to the bar and the restaurant; is that correct? A. That's right.

Q. And was there also set forth upon that recapitulation such expenses as had been paid out in cash during the week?

A. They were covered by actual paid cash invoices he had in his possession.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Lester Simmons.)

Q. In other words, when the baker would deliver some bread to the restaurant and would receive cash, his paid invoice would [731] show up with the cash; is that correct? A. That is right.

Q. After you received that recapitulation, what did you do with it?

A. It was put in the files of the 21 Club. That was the basis for posting the cash journal.

Q. Both as to receipts and expenditures?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And after the posting had been done, what was done with those records? What was done with the weekly recapitulation which Mr. Billington gave you, and the paid invoices?

A. The paid invoices were filed usually according to the source of supply and the bill sheets were filed also.

Q. And where are those records?

A. At this time I do not know.

Q. Did you have any means of checking those weekly recapitulation sheets and the amount of cash and paid bills which were handed to you, for the purpose of determining whether or not you were receiving weekly all of the receipts of the 21 Club for deposit or posting?

A. No, I did not check.

Q. I take it then you accepted them for your purposes as being accurate; is that correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And they formed the basis of the records which you kept as [732] to the profits or losses of the 21 Club? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now did you have anything to do with the deposit of funds in the bank of the San Diego Social Club?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as asked and answered several times. He said he had nothing to do with it.

Mr. Campbell: He says that he drew checks on the San Diego Social Club.

Mr. Gillen: He said he might have on the bank account for the pay roll at one time.

The Court: You may answer the question.

A. I may have physically carried the money to the bank from the office of my brother, George Simmons.

Q. Was money delivered from the San Diego Social Club to your office?

A. That I do not know.

Q. Did you make out deposit slips in relation to the San Diego Social Club?

A. Not that I recall.

Q. Other than what you have described as possibly signing pay roll checks, did you have anything whatsoever to do with the San Diego Social Club?

A. No, I did not.

Mr. Campbell: You may cross-examine. [733]

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Q. Mr. Simmons, referring to the prosecution's Exhibit 96, which is a receipt—it is really a statement by Mr. Pechart as to what he was turning over to Mr. Remmer and a receipt by Mr. Remmer what he received in the way of books of account on April 24, 1951—referring to that exhibit and referring particularly to the language at the bottom: "Tax returns for 21 Club for 1943 were not returned with records when picked up by Mr. John Golden," it is a fact, is it not, that the 1943 tax return which is mentioned in that language, that was merely an office copy of the 1943 return that was made to the government, the original of which was made to the government; isn't that true?

A. I don't know.

Q. Well, was there a return made for the 21 Club, an income tax return, made for the 21 Club in 1943? A. I have no knowledge.

Q. You weren't there at that time?

A. No.

Q. We will get to that another way. It would be earlier than your employment?

A. That is right.

Q. You were there, however, when all of the records of the 21 Club, the San Diego Social Club, and the 311 Club were turned over to agents Gould and Farley, for the purpose of making an audit for a period of three years; is that correct? [734]

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And were most of those records in your possession and under your supervision at the time Messrs. Gould and Farley arranged to look at them?

A. They were in the office of my brother.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Lester Simmons.)

Q. And did you participate in facilitating their work for them, that is, turning over the records to them and providing whatever they needed?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And do you have any distinct recollection yourself how long those records were in the hands of Messrs. Gould and Farley?

A. To the best of my recollection, it was about three or four months.

Q. Do you have any distinct recollection of where they worked?

A. Yes, they worked in the office of the El Rancho San Pablo.

Q. And that was across the street from your own office? A. Yes, it was.

Q. And that office was provided for their convenience by Mr. Pechart, is that correct?

A. That's right.

Q. Were you personally present when Messrs. Gould and Farley returned on several separate days the books that had been turned over to them?

A. Well, physically the books were left in the office which they were using. [735]

Q. Over at the Rancho San Pablo office?

A. That is right.

Q. Was it brought to your attention by those gentlemen that they were through with those records?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial.

The Court: You may answer the question.

A. I don't know. There was no direct statement made to me that they were through with them. Just assumption on my part they were through; they left them there and were gone.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Lester Simmons.)

Q. They also made audit reports to you, did they not, and gave you copies of their audit reports on various dates?

A. The reports were not made to me personally.

Q. They were mailed to your office, were they not?

A. I think they were mailed to Pechart and Kessel.

Q. Do you have a recollection that agents Farley and Gould sent their audit reports, showing that the 21 Club and San Diego Social Club, for the year 1943, that audit had been completed and the report written on October 21, 1947, and for the year 1944, for the same clubs, the audit had been completed and the report written on April 5, 1948, and for the same clubs for the year 1945 that the audit had been completed and the reports written by the aforementioned agents on July 27, 1948, and that with reference to the 311 Club for the year 1944, the audit had been completed and the report written on April 5, 1948, and for the year 1945 for the same club the audit had been completed [736] and the report written January 27, 1948. Do you have any recollection of those reports coming into your possession from the government, at or about those times?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to, not the best evidence. It is a compound question, which is also unintelligible.

The Court: I think it covers several points. Objection sustained.

Mr. Gillen: It is not the best evidence, I agree; then let the government produce the reports.

The Court: That is not the basis of the ruling. The basis of the ruling was it was a compound question.

Q. All right. Do you have in mind now what was contained in the audit reports which you say were mailed to the office of Pechart and Kessel after the revenue agents had left the books and left the place of the Rancho San Pablo, after their three or four months' work?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as not the best evidence, if the Court please. The evidence here shows that there is in the possession of counsel the matters which he is directing attention to.

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question.

A. I do not know the contents of the revenue agents' reports.

Q. Now with regard to the 21 Club, concerning which you testified, do you recall, that Mr. Campbell asked you whether or not the books that were kept showed any capital investment? [737]

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is your recollection in that regard? Did the books you kept on the 21 Club show any capital investment?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Lester Simmons.)

Mr. Campbell: Objected to on the grounds the books themselves are the best evidence.

The Court: That is generally a good objection. I am inclined to sustain that objection ordinarily.

Mr. Gillen: I am asking him about something on direct.

The Court: But that is the idea. We had these matters gone into on direct examination.

Mr. Campbell: May I be heard on this objection, your Honor? I notice it is time for the morning recess.

(Jury and alternate jurors admonished and excused for 15 minutes. Recess taken for 5 minutes at 11:07 a.m.)

11:15 A.M.

(Defendant present with counsel.)

(In the absence of the jury.)

The Court: I have a thought I would like to state. The objection would ordinarily be good, but you propounded on direct examination many questions to which the same objection would have been sustained. Now you might say counsel did not make the objection, therefore it was all right to continue to pursue that course of examination, but in asking those questions [738] you evidently expected an answer and you got those answers and I do not think it would be proper to sustain the objection now to some question on cross-examination directed to matters which were referred to on direct examination.

BLURRED COPY

Mr. Campbell: May I give your Honor the thought I have in mind. I do not believe your Honor would have sustained such an examination on direct examination, because inasmuch as we had shown that the best evidence, that is the books and records of the 21 Club, the San Diego Social Club and the 311 Club, were out of the reach of the government, having been put in the hands of the defendant himself, and the evidence having shown that they were still in the hands of the defendant, then we are entitled to secondary evidence as to his recollection, if he had a recollection, of what was in those books and the source of the information that went in there. We had laid the foundation for that secondary evidence and his testimony was in the manner of secondary evidence, but here we are faced with a different situation on examination by defendant's counsel, inasmuch as the record shows that it is within their power to produce——

The Court (Interceding): Aren't these records all in the clerk's office now?

Mr. Campbell: No, your Honor, these records are not included among those. These records never came within the [739] possession of the government other than, you might say, constructively, as testified to by the witness, when room was provided for them and they worked on them and left them there and subsequently they were turned over to the defendant

The Court: Those records are not now in the possession of the government or the clerk of this court?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

Mr. Campbell: No, your Honor; so we are faced with a different situation. That is why we laid the secondary evidence foundation as to the present custody of those books and records and that was the basis now of my objection.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Campbell: May I be heard? I would like to show your Honor the absolute fallacy for that objection. We have testimony here introduced, not by the defense, but by the prosecution, that two government agents had all of those records made available to them by Pechart and Kessel for a period of some four months, that facilities were provided for their convenience, that they worked on them for a period of four months, that they got through with the records, that they abandoned and left them, that they made an audit and made a report on their audit. Now certainly the original audit and the original report on the audit was made to the government and the only thing that would be in these records would be a copy of the report on the audit, which would be secondary evidence and the original and primary evidence would be in the hands of the government right [740] now. Now when they worked on these books and records, may it please the Court, for a period of four months, it is not inconceivable and it is not stretching the imagination of the Court or any one else to believe that they must have photostated, examined and exhaustively scrutinized and took copies of everything that they needed to make a complete audit report to their superiors.

BLURRED COPY

So that all of the primary evidence is in the hands of the government right now.

The Court: Let me ask Mr. Gillen a question. That question that you propounded here, to which objection has been made—read the question.

(Question read.)

The Court: Now I want to ask a question. The subject matter of the question would be included in this audit report?

Mr. Gillen: Absolutely.

Mr. Campbell: May I suggest this, your Honor, I can not follow counsel and I can not believe he is seriously contending——

Mr. Gillen: I am serious, I assure you of that.

Mr. Campbell: May I finish—I can not believe he is seriously contending that a transcript or a report made from books and records becomes primary evidence. The primary evidence is the books and records of original entry, and transcripts of the report, oral or written, are certainly not the best evidence, and certainly if we were to offer such reports here, he would be [741] the first to object that they were not the best evidence, that the books and records themselves were the best evidence.

Th Court: Another point would have been to say this is not proper cross-examination, but you went into these matters on direct examination and I have always thought that under cross-examination the ground covered by direct could be gone into. I am going to overrule the objection. The objection is overruled. Bring in the jury.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

(Last question read.)

Mr. Gillen: The Court says you may answer the question.

A. I do not remember about capital investment.

Q. Is it not a fact, Mr. Simmons, that you recall that the only investment of Mr. Remmer in connection with the 21 Club and the San Diego Social Club was that he made available the land and the building on the land in which those two enterprises were housed?

Mr. Campbell: If he knows.

Mr. Gillen: No, this is cross-examination. I wonder if I may stumble through in my own way? I am not bound by the [742] rules as on direct examination.

The Court: All right.

Q. Do you have the question in mind?

(Question read.)

Mr. Campbell: Objected to, assumes a fact not in evidence, the witness having stated he knew nothing about the San Diego Social Club.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Lester Simmons.)

The Court: He may answer the question.

A. I do not believe there are any entries on the books reflecting such a condition.

Q. Isn't it a fact, and within your knowledge, that Mr. Remmer made no cash investment in either the 21 Club or the San Diego Social Club and his only investment, if it might be called such, was the avaliability of the building and the land on which it stood?

A. I do not recall anything in the books indicating that he made an investment.

Q. Any cash investment? A. No.

Q. You recall, do you not, that the entire cash investment was made by Messrs. Pechart and Kessel and that the arrangement was that their initial investment was to be returned to them before any profits derived from the enterprises were divided?

A. I do not know what the initial arrangements were.

Q. They were made before your [743] participation? A. Yes, they were.

Q. Now you testified that on weekly occasions you would go to the 21 Club and obtain information concerning the receipts and disbursements for the food, the restaurant, and the bar, is that correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that you would post that data in the books and any money that was on hand you would take it to the bank? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And any checks which were to be paid either

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Lester Simmons.)

you or Mr. Billington or both of you, as required, signed the checks?

A. Yes, sir, required two signatures.

Q. And that that pertained only to the 21 Club?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you stated that you did not check the data that was given to you by Mr. Billington, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. It is true, is it not, that you were given cash register tickets as well as any statement concerning receipts and disbursements?

A. Those were retained in the office of the 21 Club.

Q. It is true they were made available to you, the cash register tickets, isn't that so?

A. They could have been if I wanted them.

Q. And the cash register tickets would have shown, of course, [744] all the sales that were rung up and any non-sales that were rung up, isn't that true? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You were also provided with bills that came in, such as for bread and commodities, isn't that true? A. Yes, sir, the petty cash accounts.

Q. Well, isn't it a fact that some of those commodities were taken care of by petty cash fund and others were paid by check?

A. Yes, they were.

Q. And whatever those bills were, they were made available for your examination, isn't that so?

A. Oh, yes.

Q. On the occasions of the weekly visits by you to the 21 Club to obtain this information to bring your books up to date and to deposit checks or cash receipts in the Mechanics Bank or to draw checks to cover obligations, was Mr. Remmer ever present on any of those occasions, to the best of your recollection? A. At the time?

BLURRED COPY

Q. When you used to go there to get the information from Mr. Billington?

A. I think I saw him there once or twice.

Q. Can you fix the time? A. No, sir.

Q. Now as I understood your testimony, you had nothing, during that period of time, to do with the San Diego Social Club, except [745] you believe for a time your name may be on the bank account pay roll? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And if you had anything to do with depositing money, it was simply an accommodation to your brother? A. Yes.

Q. You may have been going to the bank at the time and he had a deposit for the San Diego Social Club and you took it along to accommodate him, is that correct? A That is right.

Q. Mr. Simmons, did you participate in the preparation of any of the tax returns from the 21 Club? A. I may have typed the returns.

Q. Do you mean that you may have acted as in a mere clerical capacity? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now for a time you were keeping the books?

A. Yes, but I didn't prepare any returns.

Q. Did you furnish the data for the returns from the books that you had kept?

BLEED THROUGH— POOR COPY

(Testimony of Lester Simmons.)

A. Yes, sir.

Q. To the best of your knowledge and belief was that data that you prepared and furnished for the return to be made from true and correct?

A. Yes, it was. [746]

Mr. Gillen: I think that is all.

Redirect Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

I am going to ask to have marked for identification, as government's next in order, what purports to be a revenue agent's report year 1943 of the 21 Club and San Diego Social Club.

The Clerk: 102 for identification.

Mr. Campbell: And have marked 103 for identification what purports to be revenue agent's report of the 21 Club for the year 1944; as exhibit 104 for identification what purports to be the revenue agent's report of the 21 Club and San Diego Social Club for the calendar year 1945; government's 105 for identification what purports to be revenue agent's report for the 21 Club and San Diego Club for the calendar year 1946.

Mr. Avakian: May I inquire, for convenience in examining them, whether these are copies of reports that we requested the government to furnish the other day during the examination of Mr. Billington?

Mr. Campbell: I do not recall what counsel asked that we produce. The documents speak for them-

MR. SIMMONS

resumes the stand on

Redirect Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

The Court: We are on redirect examination?

Mr. Gillen: Yes, your Honor, and we have examined some revenue office audit reports and with regard to those, we are prepared to stipulate that they may be offered in evidence if counsel wishes, as true copies of the original reports that probably are in the hands of the department.

The Court: Will you accept the stipulation?

Mr. Campbell: Yes.

The Court: They will be admitted as, in accordance with the stipulation, as 102——

Mr. Gillen (Interrupting): Your Honor, I should have mentioned a condition to the stipulation. Our stipulation is offered only in the event that the agent who prepared those is produced as a witness, because undoubtedly Mr. Simmons would not be able to answer any questions concerning their handiwork.

(Testimony of Lester Simmons.)

Mr. Campbell: We will not accept the stipulation.

Mr. Gillen: Very well, we withdraw the stipulation.

Q. Mr. Simmons, counsel asked you on cross-examination as to the length of time that revenue agents Farley and Gould spent in the examination of the various books and records there at Rancho San [748] Pablo, do you recall that?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. How long did you state that that examination took place?

A. Approximately three to four months, to the best of my knowledge.

Q. Was that examination confined to the books and records of the San Diego Social Club and the 21 Club?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as calling for opinion and conclusion and speculation of this witness, unless the foundation is established to show that he was over there and participated in their work.

Mr. Campbell: I will reframe the question.

Q. Were you the person who supplied them with books and records which they were examining on?

A. Partially.

Q. And of what enterprises or businesses did you supply the books or records during that time?

A. All the enterprises of Pechart and Kessel partnership.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Lester Simmons.)

Q. Will you relate what those were?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

The Court: Any answer would be confined to any one of the organizations or institutions in which the defendant has been identified.

Mr. Gillen: Now in my examination yesterday counsel objected [749] to that as immaterial and your Honor ruled with him and I think it would be just as immaterial today.

The Court: I thought matters that had to do with Mr. Pechart solely, I can't see where they had any connection here, so we would have no interest in them

Mr. Campbell: I think we have a different situation today.

The Court: Very well, if the witness will understand that we are not asking for any businesses or testimony concerning any matters not connected with the defendant.

Mr. Campbell: My point is, your Honor, there may be——

Mr. Gillen: I think the Court has ruled.

(Question read.)

Q. What enterprises, the books and records of which you made available to Mr. Gould and Mr. Farley on that occasion?

A. I don't know if I can give them all to you or not. I will try—Rancho Trailer Court—I can't recall the names of them.

Q. Was there the Wagon Wheel?

BLEED THROUGH— POOR COPY

(Testimony of Lester Simmons.)

A. The Wagon Wheel.

Q. Was there a Johnny's Book? A. Yes.

Q. California Novelty Company?

A. I do not recall that.

Q. Consolidated enterprises? [750]

A. Yes, sir.

Q. The Smoke Shop at 2703 San Pablo Avenue?

A. I am not familiar with it.

Q. Sunnyside Club? A. Yes, sir.

Q. The B Club No. 1?

A. That may have been in there.

Q. The Wander Inn? A. Yes, sir.

Q. The Riverside Club?

A. I do not know that one.

Q. In Pittsburg, California? A. No.

Q. Bozo's? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Buddy's Liquor Store?

A. It may be, I don't know.

Q. Were those which you recall among the books and records which you made available to Mr. Gould and Mr. Farley on that occasion?

A. Yes, they were.

Q. And of the books and records that were made available to them, in volume, what part of that volume consisted of the books and records of the 21 Club, the San Diego Social Club, and the 311 Club? [751]

Mr. Gillen: I think that is calling for too gross speculation on the part of this witness, and I think also it——

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Lester Simmons.)

The Court: I think so. Objection will be sustained.

Mr. Campbell: That's all.

The Court: Any further questions?

Mr. Gillen: I have no cross-examination, your Honor, but I may suggest that the exhibits that have been marked for identification, prosecution's 102 to 105, be left in the custody and care of the clerk.

Mr. Campbell: Yes, no doubt they will be.

The Court: They are marked.

GLENARD GOULD

a witness on behalf of the plaintiff, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Will you state your name please?

A. Glenard Gould.

Q. What is your business?

A. Internal revenue agent.

Q. How long have you been an internal revenue agent? A. Since 1943.

Q. What was your general experience prior to becoming an internal revenue agent?

A. Auditor.

Q. Now in connection with your duties as an internal revenue [752] agent, did you have occasion

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Glenard Gould.)

in the year 1947 to make examination into the affairs of Walter Pechart and David Kessel?

A. I did.

Q. And in connection with such examination into the affairs of Walter Pechart and David Kessel, did you have occasion to examine the books and records of a business known as the 21 Club in El Cerrito? A. I did.

Q. And by whom, if any one, were such books and records as you observed and examined made available to you? A. By Simmons Brothers.

Q. Do you recall when that examination took place?

A. It began in the latter part of 1946 and continued into the first few months of 1947, as the best of my recollection.

Q. And what time was it that you saw the books and records of the 21 Club?

A. Well, that could have happened any time during that period of time.

Q. Do you have a definite recollection?

A. I do not, sir.

Q. During the course of your examination into the affairs of Walter Pechart and David Kessel, did you examine books and records of other enterprises in which they were interested? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And were they numerous or few? [753]

A. They were numerous.

Q. Now with respect to the books of the 21 Club, where physically did you make the examination?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Glenard Gould.)

A. The examination was all made at the Rancho San Pablo office in El Cerrito.

Q. Whose office was that?

A. That was part of Pechart's and Kessel's.

Q. Is that property, if you know, which was owned by them?

A. No, it is rented property.

Q. And where is that property located with relation to the business office of Pechart and Kessel?

A. Well, it would be catacorner across the street some distance.

Q. And how far is it, where is it in relation to the office of George Simmons and his brother, Lester Simmons, as of that time?

A. The same distance, as the Simmons office was at that time the same as Pechart and Kessel.

Q. They were occupying offices in the same premises with the office of Pechart and Kessel?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And was your examination of all of those records conducted there at space made available to you at the Rancho San Pablo? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you carry away any of the books and records with you? A. We did not, sir. [754]

Q. Now will you describe, if you will, such books and records as you saw with relation to the 21 Club?

A. The 21 Club, as I recall, had a fairly complete set of records, consisting of a general ledger, journal and cash receipts and disbursements.

Q. By a general ledger, referring to general

BLEED THROUGH— POOR COPY

(Testimony of Glenard Gould.)

ledger, was that a single or double entry system?

A. It was a double entry set of books.

Q. Will you state whether or not, from your examination, if there was set up in that ledger an investment account? A. Yes, sir, there was.

Q. As a matter of fact, the double entry system requires an investment account?

A. That is correct.

Q. And during the time that you examined such records, did you make a transcript from the general ledger of the 21 Club?

A. I did, for our working papers.

Q. Do you have that transcript with you?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you produce that? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Campbell: May this be marked for identification as government's next in order.

The Clerk: 106.

Q. Mr. Gould, have you seen the books and records of the 21 [755] Club since you made this transcription? A. No, sir, I have not.

Q. I will ask you whether or not the figures appearing hereon were figures taken by you from those books and records which you examined?

A. They were.

Q. Do the figures appear in this fashion in the books, or do those represent in many instances combined figures?

A. No, as I recall, they were taken from the closing entries at the end of the year, as prepared by the accountants.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Glenard Gould.)

Q. As set forth in those books?

A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Campbell: This will be offered in evidence as government's Exhibit 106.

The Court: I hear no objection. It will be admitted. Exhibit 106 admitted.

Q. Now, Mr. Gould, if you will refer to your working papers, will you state the amount shown in the investment account of the 21 Club as of December 31, 1943?

A. Total amount of $15,353.07.

Q. Will you state the amount shown as investment account as of December 31, 1944?

A. $13,809.87.

Q. As of December 31, 1944, did the books also show any notes payable to Elmer Remmer? [756]

A. Yes, sir, item of $6100.

Q. Did the books, in addition, show any accounts payable to Mr. Remmer as of that date?

A. Not so marked that I see.

Q. Now that note payable, is that a note payable to Mr. Remmer, or by Elmer Remmer?

A. No, it is note payable to Elmer Remmer.

Q. As of December 31, 1945, what was the amount shown in the investment account?

A. $23,027.69.

Q. And where there also——

A. (Interrupting): I beg your pardon—which year?

Q. December 31, 1945.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Glenard Gould.)

A. I gave you the wrong figure, I gave you '46. The figure 1945 is $3,435.94.

Q. And did the books as of December 31, 1945, show any account payable to Elmer Remmer?

A. Yes, an item of $8700.

Q. And as of December 31, 1945, did the books show any accounts payable to Elmer Remmer?

A. I don't see any, no.

Q. As of December 31, 1946, what was the amount shown in the investment account?

A. $23,027.69.

Q. As of December 31, 1946, did the books show any notes payable [757] to Elmer Remmer?

A. No, they had been closed into the investment account.

Q. As of December 31, 1946, did the books show any accounts payable to Elmer Remmer?

A. There is an item of accounts payable of $1402.37 at the end of '46.

Q. Now did you make an analysis of the investment account as of December 31, 1946?

A. There was an analysis in the records, yes.

Q. You made a transcript of the analysis in the records? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And what did that analysis show to be credited to Elmer Remmer in the investment account of the 21 Club as of December 31, 1946?

A. $11,513.85.

Q. And were there additional amounts as shown on the records as of that date owing to him in that analysis?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Glenard Gould.)

A. Only this $1402.37. I think all of it had been closed into the investment account. I would say it might have been closed into the investment account.

Q. And had there also been closed into the investment account at that time profit and loss accruing to the credit of Elmer Remmer as of that date? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In what amount? [758]

A. The profit and loss was $4,215.49.

Q. Was that profit or loss? A. A loss.

Q. According to those books as you then saw them, as of December 31, 1946, what was the total amount to the credit of Elmer Remmer, both of investment and accrued profits? A. $15,729.34.

Q. Now at the time you were making the examination of various books and records relative to Walter Pechart and David Kessel, was any other revenue agent working with you in that connection?

A. Yes, Mr. Lester D. Farley.

Q. Did you make some division of the work, and if so, in what manner?

A. Well, the only division of the work was that as we came to the various enterprises, one would take one enterprise and make examination and some other agent would take some other enterprise and do likewise.

Q. And I take it then that the 21 Club was the one which fell to your lot?

A. Only as far as making transcript off the records for our work papers.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Glenard Gould.)

Q. Now did you examine the records, if any, of the San Diego Social Club?

A. I did not examine them. I may have seen them, but I did not examine them. [759]

Q. Now with regard to the investment account, other than at the end of 1946, when you have referred to the analysis which appeared in the record, was that the only year in which an analysis was set forth?

A. To my knowledge I can't remember, Mr. Campbell. I made it only for balance sheet purposes, inasmuch as we were closing out at the end of 1946 for a net worth statement.

Q. For your examination? A. Yes, sir.

Q. The investment figure you have given as of the end of 1943, 1944, and 1945 included the shares of all the partners, did it?

A. That is correct.

Mr. Campbell: You may cross-examine.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Avakian:

Q. Mr. Gould, you stated you have been a revenue agent since 1943, is that correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. To what office have you been assigned?

A. Internal Revenue Agent in Charge, at San Francisco.

Q. And do you work out of the San Francisco office?

A. Yes, sir. However, our office is located at

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Glenard Gould.)

709 Financial Center Building in Oakland. We have a branch office in Oakland.

Q. And you work out of the branch office in Oakland, is that correct? A. Yes, sir. [760]

Q. Can you tell us what the duties of an internal revenue agent are?

A. The duties of an internal revenue agent are to make examinations for verification of all returns filed or returns assigned to him, from the books and records of the taxpayer.

Q. I take it not all returns go to the internal revenue agent's office for examination?

A. That is correct.

Q. But when returns are assigned to you, as internal revenue agent, it is then your responsibility to make such investigation as may be necessary to verify the correctness or incorrectness of that return? A. That is correct.

Q. And there were assigned to you, I take it, for such an examination, the partnership returns of the 21 Club for the years 1943 to 1946, inclusive?

A. Not necessarily.

Q. Will you explain your answer?

A. Yes. The assignment would be made on the principal and as such it would be necessary to go into the partnerships but would not necessarily have to have the partnership assignment.

Q. When a return of an individual is assigned to you for examination and verification and you learn that that individual is a member of a partnership, is it then the custom for you to inquire into the correctness of the partnership income as [761] reported? A. That is correct.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Glenard Gould.)

Q. And is that what you did in this case in respect to the 21 Club? A. Yes.

Q. In the course of your examination did you also inquire as to the correctness reported for the partnership known as the 311 Club?

A. We did.

Q. You and Mr. Farley together? A. Yes.

Q. And you participated in that examination?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. And does your name appear with Mr. Farley's on the report that was written?

A. Inasmuch as it was a combined report of Mr. Farley and myself, our names appear upon the reports, regardless of who may have written the report.

Q. You worked as a team?

A. That is correct.

Q. And in the course of this examination which you made, did you also inquire into the correctness of the income report for the San Diego Social Club? A. We did.

Q. And were you permitted to examine all of the records of [762] those three businesses which you wanted made available to you?

A. I would say all the available records, yes.

Q. Nothing was withheld from you, is that correct? A. No, sir.

Q. And those were made available to you for as long as you wanted them? A. They were, yes.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Glenard Gould.)

Q. And you returned them to Mr. Pechart and Mr. Kessel's office voluntarily?

A. They were never taken out of their office.

Q. You had them across the street, is that correct?

A. All the records were across the street.

Q. You did make use of those for as long as you wanted, I take it? A. That is right.

Q. And you wrote your report after you had made such use of those records as you desired?

A. That is the customary procedure.

Q. And that was followed in this case?

A. That is right.

Q. Now you testified, Mr. Gould, as to the investment account which you found in the books of the 21 Club at the 31st day of December, in the years 1943, 1944, 1945, and 1946, and I believe you also testified that you made a copy of the investment account at December 31, 1946, broken down between the partners [763] on that date, December 31, 1946, is that correct?

A. I testified I had made a transcript from the records, that is correct.

Q. And that record contained a breakdown as between three partners on that date?

A. That is my recollection, yes.

Q. Do you know whether the records showed the breakdown as between the three partners at the end of the earlier years, namely, 1943, 1944, and 1945?

A. That I can't recollect.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Glenard Gould.)

Q. In any event, the copy which you made does not contain such a breakdown?

A. It does not.

Q. Now, Mr. Gould, in computing the income of an individual member of a partnership on the net worth basis, is it necessary for you to have the breakdown of that individual partner's portion of the total investment account at the beginning and the end of each year involved in that investigation?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as calling for his legal conclusion.

The Court: He may answer the question. Do you understand the question?

A. Yes, I do, sir. If you were attempting to make a net worth basis, it would be necessary to have a starting point and a closing point and if you were attempting to make a [764] reconciliation on a net worth basis between the years, it would be necessary.

Q. So that if you were then attempting to establish the income by the net worth method of any of the partners in the 21 Club during the years covered by your investigation, it would be necessary for you to have the amount of the investment account of that particular individual partner at the beginning and end of each year, is that correct?

A. No, sir.

Q. Then I misunderstood your answer.

A. I answered you that if I were breaking it down into years, it would be necessary. If I was building net worth statement from a given period of time, say 1938, and closing in 1946, and attempting to make a reconciliation, it would not be necessary to make a reconciliation between years.

BLURRED COPY

Q. Let me see if we understand each other. Let us take the year 1946. You testified that you got from the books of the 21 Club the portion of the investment of the 21 Club allocated on those books to Mr. Remmer at the end of 1946. In order for you to compute Mr. Remmer's income for the year 1946, on the net worth basis, would you have to have the amount of the investment allocated to him at the beginning of 1946?

Mr. Campbell: I submit this question is incompetent, in that the witness has not testified he was investigating Mr. Remmer. He was investigating Mr. Pechart and Mr. Kessel. [765]

Mr. Avakian: Do you wish to hear from me?

The Court: He may answer. Read the question.

(Question read.)

The Court: Do you understand the question?

A. I understand the question.

Q. Can you answer it?

A. If I was examining Mr. Remmer's account and building net worth statement for Mr. Remmer for 1946, it would be necessary to have a beginning and closing as the beginning and closing of the year.

Q. Your answer to my question then is yes, is that right? A. Yes.

Q. And the same would be true of each of the other partners, would it not? A. Yes.

BLEED THROUGH— POOR COPY

(Testimony of Glenard Gould.)

Q. And the same would be true with respect to the year 1945, would it not? A. That is true.

Q. And with respect to the year 1944, also?

A. Yes.

Q. In your examination of the investment account of the 21 Club, did you find any record in the papers which you examined indicating that Mr. Remmer had ever actually withdrawn any money from the 21 Club?

A. That I can't answer. [766]

Q. You testified that as of December 31, 1946, there had been transferred into the capital account of Elmer Remmer a loss of $4,215.49, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. Did you find in that capital account any entry showing a withdrawal of any profits by Elmer Remmer?

A. There is nothing in this transcript to that effect.

Q. That transcript covers the investment account, does it not?

Mr. Campbell: Wait a minute—for what period? The question is misleading.

Q. For 1946.

The Court: Read the question.

(Question read.)

Mr. Campbell: I submit the document speaks for itself.

The Court: He may answer the question.

A. There is nothing in this transcript that would indicate any withdrawals because it is only a closing balance sheet at the end of the period.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Glenard Gould.)

Q. And your testimony is that you do not know at this time whether or not the records showed anything in respect to any withdrawals by Elmer Remmer? A. I do not.

Q. Do you have any papers here in Carson City from which you could determine whether or not you found such an entry in the records? [767]

A. I do not.

Q. Is there some particular reason why you were not concerned with the matter as to whether or not monies had been withdrawn in the partnership?

A. That is not a consideration in determining income or net worth basis as we would make an examination

Q. In other words, the amount of income which an individual partner has to report as his share of the partnership income is not based on the withdrawals he makes, is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. Rather it is simply a portion which represents his percentage? A. That is correct.

Q. And it does not matter whether he withdraws more or less? A. That is correct.

Q. I am going to hand you plaintiff's Exhibit 104 for identification, and without telling me what is on this document, will you state whether or not you recognize the notations in handwriting on page 8 thereof?

A. Do I recognize the handwriting?

Q. Yes. A. No.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Glenard Gould.)

Q. You do not know whose it is?

A. I do not.

Q. Were you present in the courtroom this morning when Mr. [768] Campbell produced from his files the documents which were marked for identification as prosecution's Exhibits 102, 103, 104 and 105? A. No, sir.

Q. I will ask you to look at these documents and the record will show that they were produced by Mr. Campbell from his files, and will you determine, after you have examined them, whether those are copies of the reports which you and Mr. Farley made? A. They are, sir.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, I will request that this now be marked in evidence.

The Court: You offer them in evidence?

Mr. Avakian: Yes, I will be happy to have them marked as defendant's exhibits.

The Court: All right, they will be marked defendant's T.

Mr. Avakian: Are they all four being marked as one exhibit?

The Court: How do you want them marked?

Mr. Avakian: Perhaps it might be better to have each one marked separately.

The Court: Very well, they will be marked separately. No. 102 will now be T, 103 will now be U, 104 will now be V, 105 will now be W. They will be admitted in evidence. [769]

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, may I hand those exhibits to the witness?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Glenard Gould.)

The Court: Yes, sir.

Q. Will you refer first to defendant's Exhibit T, which is the report prepared by Mr. Farley and yourself on the operations of the 21 Club and San Diego Social Club for the year 1943, and will you turn to the page entitled "Preliminary Statement." I call your attention to the statement at the bottom of that page, reading as follows: "Other information. The income and expenses of this partnership were reported in error on an individual return under the name of Joseph Billington DBA San Diego Social Club." Can you explain to us, Mr. Gould, what you mean by that statement?

A. This report was not prepared by myself.

Q. Do you know what that statement means?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to. He didn't prepare the report. The statement speaks for itself.

The Court: If he knows what it is, he may answer the question.

A. No, I do not.

Q. Can you state, Mr. Gould, whether the income of this business, as you found it in the investigation which you and Mr. Farley made, was different in any substantial respect from the income of that business reported on the individual return of Joseph Billington? [770]

Mr. Campbell: Which business are you referring to?

Mr. Avakian: The business this exhibit refers to, report denominated 21 Club and San Diego Social Club.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Glenard Gould.)

Mr. Campbell: That is objected to on the grounds the witness stated he did not prepare this record.

The Court: Read the question.

(Question read.)

Mr. Campbell: And the further objection, it is asking him to attempt to explain without showing him the two exhibits to be compared.

Mr. Avakian: I asked him if he knew, your Honor.

The Court: You may answer.

A. I think the report speaks for itself.

Mr. Campbell: Well, do you know?

A. Yes, I do know. It is shown on Schedule I, net income, after delinquent, was $2,574.94. It was corrected, $3,574.92, which would indicate no change.

Q. Would you refer, Mr. Gould, to defendant's Exhibit U, which is denominated as a report prepared by yourself and Mr. Farley for Joseph Billington DBA 21 Club, for the year 1944. Do you have that before you?

A. Joseph Billington DBA 21 Club, 1944, yes.

Q. If you will refer to the last page of that report, I will call your attention to the Schedule 2, which contains a distribution of income, showing 50 per cent distribution to Elmer [771] Remmer, 25 per cent distribution to Walter M. Pechart, a 25 per cent distribution to David N. Kessel. This does represent an examination of the partnership business which the report describes, does it not?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Glenard Gould.)

A. Yes.

Q. Now would you refer to the page entitled "Preliminary Statement" to refresh your recollection, and tell us the amount of adjustments which you made on your report with respect to the return that had been filed?

A. May I say again I did not write this report?

Q. This represents the team work of yourself and Mr. Farley, does it not?

A. I can only give you what appears on the report itself.

Q. Will you give us that?

A. That adjustment is up to date with $201.55.

Q. And that was in comparison with a net income disclosed on the return of $3,799.85?

A. That is correct.

Q. Is it customary in your investigations, Mr. Gould, for you to find adjustments in amounts that you just mentioned, namely approximately $200, do you frequently find small adjustments of that kind in your audits? A. Very definitely.

Q. Nothing unusual about that, is there?

A. That's correct. [772]

Q. That $201.55 adjustment represented an increase in the income of the partnership, is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. I call your attention now to defendant's Exhibit V, is that the report dated July 27, 1948, for the year 1945? A. Yes, sir.

Q. On the business known as the 21 Club and San Diego Social Club? A. Yes, sir.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Glenard Gould.)

Q. Would you refer to the page in that exhibit which is on the printed form designated "Adjustments to net income," Mr. Gould?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that shows net income as disclosed by the return of $43,297.67? A. That is correct.

Q. And as a result of the audit an adjustment was made in this report, increasing that income by $856.78, is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. Now would you refer to the next page and explain to us the nature of the items and the amounts of the items making up that net adjustment?

A. May I state also that I did not make this report?

Q. Yes.

A. So I am only reading from the report.

Q. Yes. [773]

A. Item 1 says all expenses of the San Diego Social Club were paid out of income before arriving at the net would have been a loss. In the return the allowable expenses were added back to the net wins and losses in arriving at gross income. However, amounts paid for capital expenditures were omitted. Amounts disbursed for capital expenditures was added to net wins and losses in computing gross income.

Q. And what is the amount of that adjustment?

A. The amount of that adjustment is $6,986.23.

Q. Apparently you and I are not reading——

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Glenard Gould.)

A. Pardon me—Item 1, capital expenditure credit to gross income $8,874.40.

Q. So that we may understand fully what that means, Mr. Gould, will you state to me whether I am correct in this question. Does that mean that you in effect disallowed as a current business expense the sum of $8,874.40, on the ground that it represented capital expenditure which the taxpayer should deduct on a depreciation basis over a period of years?

A. It could be that. Not knowing what it was, I couldn't answer, but it obviously would be a non-allowable deduction which should have been capitalized.

Q. And based on your experience as a revenue agent, would you say that the term "Capital Expenditures" refers to such things as money invested in a piece of machinery, which has a life over a period of several years, or in a building which has a [774] profit over a period of several years? A. It could be.

Q. And expenditures of that kind should not be deducted in the year of expense, is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. But rather a proportionate amount should be deducted year to year during the life of the item? A. If it is a depreciable asset, yes.

Q. In your investigation and audits as revenue agents, do you frequently find that taxpayers take as a current expense items which you, as revenue agents, feel should be capitalized as capital expenses?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Glenard Gould.)

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial. We are concerned with one man's income and this man's experience with other taxpayers has no bearing here.

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question.

A. Yes.

Q. And then would you state item two of that adjustment?

A. Item 2 says, "Fines and legal expenses, $1,750."

Q. That represented an expenditure by this partnership business by the way of payment of fines and legal expenses which you feel under the law were not deductible?

A. It is not a question what I felt, it is a question of law.

Q. Your understanding of the law was that that was not deductible? [775] A. That is right.

Q. Would you explain the next item, Item 3, entitled, "Bonus to Joseph Billington, 21 Club."

A. Well, it appears that the item says, "Bonus paid to Joseph Billington computed at 5 per cent of net wins of $72,763.34, is allowed as deduction instead of distribution to a partner. Joseph Billington was an employee and not a partner."

Q. So that we may get that clear, Mr. Gould, on the return that had been filed, Mr. Billington had been shown as a partner with a share of $3,638.17? A. Yes.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Glenard Gould.)

Q. And you determined that instead of treating that as a partnership share it should be treated as a salary expense?

A. Yes, either salary or commission.

Q. Commission would be by way of additional salary, would it not? A. That is right.

Q. Now, Mr. Gould, insofar as the portion of this partnership income which is taxable to Elmer Remmer is concerned, does it make any difference whatsoever whether that amount of $3,638.17 is treated as a salary deduction to Joseph Billington rather than a partnership share of Joseph Billington?

A. You mean would it change the amount that would be reportable by Mr. Remmer?

Q. Yes. [776] A. No.

Q. I call your attention to prosecution's Exhibit 55, which is a partnership return of income of Joseph Billington DBA 21 Club and San Diego Social Club for the year 1945, and I call your attention to Schedule I on the last page, which shows as a partnership share of Joseph Billington the sum of $3,638.17, is that the item to which the adjustment in your report relates?

Mr. Campbell: I am going to make the objection, it seems to me we are going far afield from the direct examination of this particular witness, who was produced simply to produce a transcript which had been taken from the 21 Club books. I am going to make the objection, in the interest of time, that this is not within the scope of direct examination.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Glenard Gould.)

The Court: May I have the question?

(Question read.)

Mr. Campbell: I object it is not within the scope of direct examination, which simply resulted in the production of transcript made of certain figures appearing in certain books which he was shown, and in the interest of time I make the objection that this is not within the scope of direct examination.

The Court: Objection overruled.

A. It would appear to be the same item.

Q. Did I understand you to say, insofar as that item is concerned, it had no effect whatsoever on the amount of income [777] taxable on Mr. Remmer's return? A. Yes.

Q. Now the next item of adjustment in defendant's Exhibit V, report of 1945, is adjustment of depreciation taken on the return, is that correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Would you explain that adjustment and give us the amount of it? Do you have the page to which I refer? A. I presume it would be page 7.

Q. Well, I was referring——

A. (Interrupting): To get the details, you would have to refer to page 7, which is self-explantory.

Q. Well, I want you to explain it for us, using whatever material you need. Would you explain what that adjustment was?

A. Just simply that the agent determined that

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Glenard Gould.)

the life years was too excessive and gave the items a longer life than had been claimed for the return.

Q. Perhaps I misunderstood you. You mean that the agent felt that the life of the asset was longer than the taxpayer felt it was? A. Yes.

Q. And if the life was longer than the amount of depreciation deducted each year was less, is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. So this adjustment simply represents a revision by the revenue [778] agents of the estimated useful life of the assets covered by the depreciation schedule? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And Mr. Gould, isn't it customary in your analysis of returns and the auditing of returns, for you to find on many occasions that adjustments of this kind are made as a result of the audit?

A. Yes.

Q. There is nothing unusual about this type of adjustment, is there? A. No, sir.

Q. And that represents the total adjustments that were made in that report, does it not, Mr. Gould? A. Yes.

Q. Now would you refer to defendant's Exhibit W, which is dated September 8, 1948, and represents the reported audit by Mr. Farley and yourself for the year 1946 of the 21 Club and the San Diego Social Club. Would you refer to Schedule No. 1, showing adjustments to net income and tell us the total amount of the net adjustment which was made? A. That adjustment was $3,166.72.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Glenard Gould.)

Q. And that represented a reduction of the loss shown on the return, is that correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. The return showed loss of $9,872.91? [779]

A. Correct.

Q. And by this adjustment you reported $6,-706.19? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Would you explain the items that went into that adjustment, Mr. Gould?

A. (a) Depreciation of $361.98; (b) accounts payable $2,804.74.

Q. Would you explain the depreciation adjustment that was made?

A. Well, the depreciation adjustment was a depreciation of a prior year.

Q. Your explanation would be the same?

A. That is right; and account payable item, (b) closed over the year 1946 was determined that no liability existed for $2,804.74 for the accounts payable which were on the books of account as 12-31-46 the acounts payable were written off and amounts credited to investment account. Again we do not know whether expenses for the prior year were overstated. The amount $2,804.74, which was credited to investment account is included as income for the year 1946.

Q. In other words, you and Mr. Farley found in the investment accounts this accounts payable, $2,-804.74 and you were unable to determine the exact facts in respect to it, is that correct?

A. I would say, yes.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Glenard Gould.)

Q. And in your experience as a revenue agent, Mr. Gould, would you say that it frequently occurs that when you find items for which you cannot find a complete explanation, if there is some [780] indication that that might have been income, you write it up in your report as income? A. We do.

Q. And there is nothing unusual about that, is there? A. No, sir.

Q. Mr. Gould, are you able to state, either from your personal recollection or from any papers which are here, whether, in the expenses of the 21 Club and San Diego Social Club, there was included any deduction on account of rent paid?

Mr. Campbell: That is a compound question, including both the San Diego and 21 Club.

Mr. Avakian: It is the same real property, your Honor.

The Court: You may answer the question.

A. I could not say.

Mr. Avakian: No further questions.

Redirect Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Mr. Gould, Mr. Avakian has asked you certain questions as to your recollection of what the books themselves contain, both as to the distribution of the investment account and what the books show as to rent. How long ago was it that you examined those records? A. Close to five years.

Q. If you had the records before you, would you be able to turn to those accounts?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Glenard Gould.)

A. No, sir; not without looking over and determining what the [781] account would be.

Q. You would have to re-examine the books, is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. As I understood you to say, you examined no books of the San Diego Social Club?

A. There were not any books, as I recall.

Q. There were no books?

A. That is right.

Q. Now, you were shown this partnership return of income for 1945, Exhibit 55. I believe your attention was addressed to defendant's Exhibit V, changes which were made in the distribution of income from your report. Did you observe on plaintiff's Exhibit 55 Mr. Billington is reported to have received the sum of $3,638.17 as his distributive share and your attention was directed to defendant's Exhibit V to the fact that you had made an adjustment by deducting the amount of $3,638.17, not as a partnership distribution, but as a bonus paid to Joseph Billington and therefore an expense, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, if it appeared, Mr. Gould, that Mr. Billington received no part of that $3,638.17, that in turn would increase the distributive share of the partners Remmer, Pechart and Kessel by that amount, would it not?

Mr. Avakian: Objected to on the ground it assumes a fact contrary to the evidence. There is no evidence in this case [782] that Mr. Billington received no part of that amount.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Glenard Gould.)

The Court: Objection overruled. You may answer the question. I did not take it that the question assumes that this is in evidence, it merely asked if it appeared.

Mr. Avakian: May we have the question read first?

(Question read.)

Mr. Avakian: That is not the evidence in this record.

The Court: I know, there is no implication it is in evidence.

Mr. Avakian: Then it is a hypothetical question. He says "if it appears."

The Court: It is an explanation of counsel, as I see it, is all. Objection overruled. Answer the question. Let us have the question read. I think the witness is in doubt.

A. No, I know the question.

Mr. Campbell: I will reframe the question.

Q. If, in preparing this report, it had come to your attention that the sum of $3,638.17 was not in fact paid to Joseph Billington, how then would you have treated that in your adjustment?

Mr. Avakian: We wish to object to that on the ground this is a hypothetical question, which is speculative and has no basis in the evidence. If the prosecution can show that the assumption which the witness is being asked to make is a fact, [783] then at that time, and at that time only, would it be proper to ask this question.

The Court: We have to have items mentioned

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Glenard Gould.)

here and this question, it would seem to me, was maybe the effect of the item or the absence of the item, that is my understanding. I do not consider that it is intended, and if it is intended I believe the jury should be informed now, that there is no evidence in the record to that effect.

Mr. Campbell: No, your Honor, I think the record should speak for itself. I think the record is clear in that connection.

The Court: Let us go on with this. I am going to overrule the objection.

Mr. Avakian: May I call your attention to the record——

The Court: Let us not do it now.

Mr. Avakian: May I continue the statement of my objection?

The Court: Yes, you may.

Mr. Avakian: My point is this, your Honor. We are already engaged in the third week of this trial and it is very apparent it is going to be very lengthy——

The Court (Interceding): That has nothing to do with it. If we are here ten years it would make no difference. [784]

Mr. Avakian: May I complete my statement?

The Court: Yes, but do not make a speech.

Mr. Avakian: I do not intend to make a speech. I want to state the record should not be encumbered, particularly in a long trial, with immaterial matter.

The Court: That is a matter for the Court to determine. The objection is overruled. The witness may answer the question.

A. Inasmuch as this venture was on a cash basis, the item would not be allowed under those circumstances.

MR. GOULD

resumes the witness stand.

Mr. Campbell: If the Court please, I wish permission to reopen on direct for one or two questions.

The Court: Very well.

Direct Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Mr. Gould, I show you plaintiff's Exhibit 107 for identification. Do you recognize that letterhead as the official letterhead of the United States Treasury Department? [785] A. I do.

Q. I call your attention to the signature of the gentleman attached thereto. Do you know what position he occupies with the Bureau of Internal Revenue? A. I do.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Glenard Gould.)

Q. What is his position?

A. Deputy Commissioner.

Mr. Campbell: This will be offered in evidence as government's Exhibit 107.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, we wish to make an objection to the offer of this document in evidence upon several grounds and after I have stated my position with respect thereto, I would like to hand it to your Honor so your Honor can evaluate the argument accordingly. First of all, we object on the ground that this document is entirely hearsay and extra-judicial statement submitted by a man in Washington, not under oath, and not present here in the court room. Secondly, the introduction of this document in evidence would deprive us of the opportunity of cross-examination of the man who wrote it to determine what steps he took and the search he made, what records are in existence and how diligently he attempted to find the document that is mentioned in this letter. Your Honor will observe, from reading it, that this letter is being offered for the purpose of proving the truth of the statement made in the letter. It is a fundamental proposition. The facts, if they [786] are going to be introduced in evidence, must be introduced judically under oath by the man whose knowledge of them should be subject to cross-examination by the opposition. I know of no exception to the hearsay rule which would authorize the receipt in evidence of this document.

Mr. Campbell: May I suggest to the Court that as the Court examines it, it recalls the manner and circumstances under which the defendant offered in evidence Exhibit M, which the Court received over the government's objection at that time.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Glenard Gould.)

Mr. Avakian: May I state to your Honor, in response to that, that the letters to which the prosecution refers were letters written to us by the prosecution, that is, by an agent of the representative of the Treasury Department. We were not offering them as our self-serving statements, but offering them as statements made by them to us and that comes within the well recognized exception of the hearsay rule. This is offered on the part of the prosecution as self-serving statement by one of its representatives, and not under oath, and not subject to cross-examination.

Mr. Campbell: Also Exhibit K.

The Court: Do you recall on whose examination Exhibits M and K were offered?

Mr. Campbell: Yes, Mr. Weisz.

Mr. Gillen: Your Honor will readily see the distinction [787] there, I am sure.

Mr. Avakian: May I make a further observation after your Honor has examined those documents?

The Court: Yes, you may.

Mr. Campbell: I ask in examining the proffered government exhibit the Court also examine the attachment to that letter.

Mr. Avakian: I believe Exhibit K also is similar, your Honor.

The Court: I will sustain the objection.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Glenard Gould.)

Mr. Campbell: I wish to disengage from this exhibit that portion which has heretofore been certified, the attachment, and ask it be marked 107-A for identification. I will offer 107-A in evidence as a duly and properly certified public document.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, we are willing to stipulate that these two documents which have just been offered as Exhibit 107-A, may be received in evidence.

The Court: You consent that 107-A be admitted in evidence.

Mr. Avakian: Yes, that is right.

The Court: It will be admitted.

Mr. Campbell: That is all.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, at this time I would like to read to the jury these two letters which have just been received in evidence as prosecution's Exhibit 107-A. This document [788] consists of the certification by the Secretary of the Treasury that the two documents attached are correct photostatic copies. There are two letters and I will read them in chronological order. The first is a letter on the letterhead of John R. Golden, Mills Building, San Francisco, October 11, 1951, which bears the stamp of the Bureau of Internal Revenue, Naval Room, 1951 October 13 a.m. 11:40, and the further stamp, "Received Photostat Unit October 13, 1951, Records Division." The body of the letter, which is entirely in typewriting except for the signature, is as follows: (Reads letter.)

The second letter bears date October 22, 1951. It does not contain any letterhead. It has typewritten designation "IT:REC:P" and underneath that the letters, "ODJ." All that in typewriting, as well as the body of the letter, which is as follows: (Reads letter.)

BLURRED COPY

No further questions.

(Witness excused.)

OGDEN MONAHAN

a witness on behalf of the plaintiff, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct Examination

By Mr. Thompson:

Q. Will you state your name, please?

A. Ogden Monahan.

Q. Where do you live?

A. 807 Dolores, San Francisco.

Q. What is your business? [789]

A. Presently employed Pacific Turf Club, Golden Gate Fields.

Q. Mr. Monahan, are you acquainted with the defendant in this case, Elmer F. Remmer?

A. I am acquainted with Mr. Remmer by sight only.

Q. In the year 1937 did you have occasion to bring an action against Mr. Remmer in the Superior Court, State of California, in and for the County and City of San Francisco?

A. It is my recollection that the incident that brought about the action took place in 1938.

Mr. Gillen: Just a moment. I wish to offer

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ogden Monahan.)

an objection; the answer is not responsive, so far as it has gone, to the question.

The Court: It may go out. Let us have the question read and please just make your answer in accord with the question.

(Question read.)

The Court: That can be answered yes or no.

A. Well, your Honor, I am confused as to what is termed an action.

The Court: Well, maybe counsel can reframe the question.

Mr. Gillen: I will stipulate counsel means lawsuit.

Q. That is right—did you bring a lawsuit against Mr. Remmer? A. Yes, I——

The Court: You have answered.

Q. Was that lawsuit filed in the Superior Court of the State [790] of California, in and for the City and County of San Francisco?

A. I believe it was.

Q. Did you obtain a judgment in that action?

A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Thompson: If the Court please, we offer in evidence plaintiff's Exhibit 109 for identification.

Mr. Gillen: To which we have the objection it is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

The Court: You have seen it?

Mr. Gillen: Yes, your Honor, back in 1937. That was beyond the period of time involved in the indictment.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ogden Monahan.)

Mr. Thompson: If your Honor will also examine plaintiff's 108 for identification, I think the materiality will become apparent.

The Court: Have you seen both these exhibits?

Mr. Gillen: Yes, your Honor. Was the other offered also?

The Court: I have not heard of the offer here. Do you offer the other?

Mr. Thompson: I offer both, your Honor.

Mr. Gillen: To which offer we must object. It is an incident arising back in 1937, long prior to the starting point in this action, which is the year 1944.

The Court: I do not think the objection would apply to 108. [791]

Mr. Thompson: Well, if your Honor please, the judgment itself must be proved in order to show the amount of the obligation.

The Court: It may be admitted in evidence. They could very well be admitted as one exhibit.

Mr. Thompson: Well, I handed that to the clerk together, your Honor, and they were inadvertently marked as two exhibits. I would like to read plaintiff's Exhibit 109. (Reads Exhibit 109.) I would like also to read plaintiff's Exhibit 108. (Reads Exhibit 108.)

Q. Mr. Monahan, you are the Ogden F. Monahan named as plaintiff in that action?

A. I am.

Q. And the defendant here, Elmer F. Remmer, is the defendant in the action just referred to?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Ogden Monahan.)

A. He is.

Q. Did you, prior to September, 1945, receive any payment on account of the judgment for $1800?

A. None whatever.

Q. And full payment was finally made in September of 1945, as shown by the satisfaction of judgment?

A. Full payment was made to me by my uncle at a little later date. He had full authority to act for me.

Q. The money you received, in any event, was received after September, 1945? [792]

A. Yes.

Q. And during the year 1945?

A. That is correct.

Mr. Thompson: You may cross-examine.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Q. You say your uncle acted for you?

A. My uncle acted in all particulars in this.

Q. Now, I notice that the judgment here says that on the blank day of October, 1938—it doesn't show what date in October of 1938—that you were present in court with your attorney, Joseph E. Durham, is that correct? A. I was.

Q. And I notice that it says that just an attorney was present in court for the defendant, is that correct? A. That is my recollection.

Q. Mr. Remmer wasn't in court, isn't that true?

A. That is correct.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Ogden Monahan.)

Q. What is your job at—where did you say you worked?

A. Presently employed as a mutuel seller.

Q. Where? A. Golden Gate Fields.

Q. That is a race track?

A. The race track.

Q. In Albany, California?

A. That is correct. [793]

Mr. Gillen: I think that is all.

(Witness excused.)

SYLVAN LANDO

a witness on behalf of the plaintiff, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Will you state your name, please?

A. Sylvan Lando.

Q. Where do you reside?

A. 611 Marina Boulevard, San Francisco.

Q. What is your business or occupation?

A. I have no business.

Q. What was your former business or occupation?

A. Well, I raced horses practically all my life.

Q. Are you acquainted with the defendant, Elmer Remmer? A. I am.

Q. How long have you known him?

A. To the best of my recollection about thirty years.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Sylvan Lando.)

Q. Have you ever been in business with Mr. Remmer? A. I have.

Q. And what was the first date that you became interested in a business with Mr. Remmer?

A. I just don't recollect the date, but it was in the month of December, I think, in 1941.

Q. What was the name of that business?

A. The B & R Smoke Shoppe. [794]

Q. And where was the B & R Smoke Shoppe located?

A. 50 Mason Street, San Francisco.

Q. And who else, if any one, was associated in that business?

A. Willie Kyne and Mr. Remmer.

Q. What was your relationship to that business, that is to say, was it a corporation, a partnership or what? A. It was a partnership.

Q. And who were the partners?

A. Willie Kyne and Mr. Remmer.

Q. And yourself? A. And myself.

Q. And were any formal papers of partnership drawn up? A. Not that I know of, no.

Q. What was it, simply an oral understanding?

A. It was an oral understanding.

Q. Now, what were the respective shares of the partners in that business?

A. I had 25 per cent, Willie Kyne 25 per cent, and Mr. Remmer 50 per cent.

Q. Now, at the time you entered into that business at 50 Mason Street, known as the B & R

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Sylvan Lando.)

Smoke Shoppe, was that a going business operated by someone else? A. Yes, it was.

Q. By whom had it been operated?

A. I just don't know the person's name. [795]

Q. Was his name Silverman?

A. Not to my recollection.

Q. Now who, if any one, put up the money to buy that business? A. Mr. Remmer.

Q. Did you put any money up for that purpose?

A. I did not.

Q. To your knowledge did Mr. Willie Kyne put up any money for that purpose?

A. No, he did not.

Q. Do you know the purchase price of that business?

A. I think it was either seven thousand—no, the purchase price, I think it was two thousand dollars.

Q. And to the best of your recollection that was 1941, is that correct? A. That is right.

Q. Now, after 1941, how long did that business continue to operate, or when did you leave the business?

A. I left the business in April, 1947.

Q. And was the business still operating at that time? A. I expect it was.

Q. Now, let me ask you this, what was the business of the B & R Smoke Shoppe?

A. Booking on horses.

Q. Will you describe the premises which were used for that purpose at 50 Mason Street? [796]

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Sylvan Lando.)

A. Well, it was a large room with a counter in it. There was an open pool room.

Q. By open pool room, you are using a term applied to a bookmaking establishment, are you not?

A. That is right.

Q. Where any one can go in and make a bet?

A. That's right.

Q. Was there not a front room which you had to enter in order to reach what you call the pool room?

A. It was just a small enclosure. There was a cigar store there.

Q. Were there any cigars in the cigar stand?

A. I don't think so.

Q. There were, however, dummy boxes?

A. That is right.

Mr. Gillen: May we have the witness testify and not Mr. Campbell?

The Court: Try to avoid leading questions.

Mr. Campbell: Very well.

Q. You say there was a cigar stand there. Was there any merchandise in the cigar stand for sale?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to, calling for opinion and conclusion.

The Court: Objection overruled.

A. I didn't get the question. Repeat it, [797] please.

Q. Was there any merchandise for sale at the cigar stand portion? A. I do not think so.

Mr. Gillen: I think I should move the answer be stricken because it is an uncertain answer. He said, "I don't think so."

The Court: It may stand.

Mr. Gillen: He should either say he does know or he doesn't know.

Q. You refer to it as a pool room. Was there any pool tables in the establishment?

A. No, there wasn't.

Q. Was there business conducted on those premises other than what you have referred to as the booking of horses? A. No.

Q. Now, in connection with the operation of the business of booking horses, was it necessary that there be a supply of cash or a bank roll on hand? A. That's right.

Q. And who supplied that, Mr. Lando?

A. Mr. Remmer.

Q. And what was the amount of the bank roll?

Mr. Avakian: May we have the time of that particular question fixed?

Q. Very well. When was a bank roll initially supplied? [798] A. When we opened up.

Q. And what was the amount of the bank roll?

A. It was either seven thousand or seventy-five hundred.

Q. And who supplied that?

A. Mr. Remmer.

Q. Did the amount of the bank roll vary or change during the period of time you were there?

A. I don't know. That wasn't my department.

Q. Who handled that part of the business?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Sylvan Lando.)

A. Willie Kyne.

Q. And who was it, in connection with the partnership, who handled the money, that is, both the receipts at the end of the day and such payments or expenses as had to be made?

A. Willie Kyne.

Q. Was Mr. Remmer himself active in the operation of the business? A. He was.

Q. Was he active in the operation of the business in the years 1944 to 1946, inclusive?

A. He was.

Q. And how often was he there during business hours?

A. Oh, he was in and out of there.

Q. Now, what were your duties in connection with that business?

A. I was the price maker.

Q. Will you state what you mean by price maker? [799]

A. There was three changes of races a day on three different tracks, about four or five hours' work to make the price, and then we had an open room and we would put the prices up in the open room.

Q. By prices do you refer to the odds which would be bet by the business to the bettor in a bet on horses on which he wagered won the race?

A. That is right.

Q. And I take it it was your job to establish in advance of the races the prices which would be offered by your establishment, is that right?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Sylvan Lando.)

A. That is right?

Q. And during the course of the day and before running of a particular race, would the odds change on a particular horse?

A. Well, that all depends. Yes, sir, it would.

Q. What were the circumstances that affected that?

A. Well, the amount of money that would be wagered on the horse.

Q. Would that be the amount of money wagered only in your place, or would it include taking into consideration wagers made in other booking establishments? A. No, just in our house.

Q. Now, in addition to the odds which you made and posted, will you state whether or not, when you were operating as an open pool room, the business also paid pari mutuel or track odds?

A. That's right. [800]

Q. Now, throughout the period of time which you were there, did the business continue to be operated as an open pool room; that is to say, where a person could walk in off the street and make a bet? A. It did up until the end of 1944.

Q. And was there a change in the manner of conducting the business toward the end of 1944?

A. There was.

Q. And was there some event or events that brought about or caused some change in that opera-operation?

Mr. Gillen: I think——

A. Yes, there was.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Sylvan Lando.)

Mr. Gillen: Just a moment—I think that is calling for conclusion and opinion.

The Court: It is answered yes. We will see what the next question is.

Q. You understand if I hold up my hand you are not to answer, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. What was the nature of the event or events that caused the change in the method of operation of your business?

A. We just followed suit. Every other book room closed and we closed.

Q. How long were you closed at that time?

A. To the best of my recollection not very long, maybe a month [801] or two.

Q. Who determined, that is in your partnership, if any one did, that you close at that time?

A. Mr. Remmer.

Q. In regard to such matters of operation in the conduct of the business, who determined the policy? A. Mr. Remmer.

Q. Now, when you reopened, after this short closing toward the end of 1944, what was the method of the conduct of the business?

A. We operated over the telephone.

Q. Did your so-called open pool room, that is, where the bettor could walk in off the street and into your establishment, type of operation then cease? A. That's right.

Q. Did your telephone type of operation then continue up until the time you left the business?

A. That's right.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Sylvan Lando.)

Q. Now, in connection with the operation of the business, Mr. Lando, did you receive what are known as lay-off bets from other bookmakers?

A. We did.

Q. Was that the situation both during the open pool room operation and during the telephone type of operation?

A. I don't quite understand. Will you repeat?

Q. Yes, I will reframe the question. Did you receive lay-off [802] bets from other bookmaking establishments during all of the time that you were connected with the business?

A. At times, yes.

Q. And were those lay-off bets received from both bookmakers in San Francisco and bookmakers in other cities? A. They was.

Q. Will you state, Mr. Lando, what is known as a lay-off bet?

A. Well, sometimes a bookmaker wants to bet on the race track if he takes an order from the owner of the horse in some city, build the odds up and protect, that is one way, and another way if a man has too much money on a horse and he doesn't want to stand to lose a big amount of money.

Q. Let me see if I get that right. You have given two instances, one is where it is desired to place money with a number of bookmakers in different cities, so as to not disturb the odds, is that correct? A. That is right.

Q. And the second is where the bookmakers feels he has too much risk on one horse, so he sort

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Sylvan Lando.)

of shares the risk around with other bookmakers?

A. That's right.

Q. Now, in the conduct of your business did you also lay off bets yourselves? A. We did.

Q. And were those bets laid off with other bookmakers in San Francisco? [803]

A. They was.

Q. And were they laid off with other bookmakers throughout the country? A. They was.

Q. Now, who handled that part of the business?

A. Willie Kyne.

Q. Both the acceptance and the laying off of the bets? A. That's right.

Q. Did you have any duties other than the fixing of odds to be offered? A. I did not.

Q. Now, in the first phase of your business, that is to say while it was still operating as an open pool room, how many employees did you use?

A. I don't know how many we used.

Q. Do you recall how many paid writers were utilized?

A. No, but the social security should take care of that.

Q. Who handled the hiring of help?

A. Willie Kyne.

Q. Did you, yourself, participate in the writing of bets? A. When we started in I did, yes.

Q. How long did that continue?

A. Just for about a week.

Q. In other words, until you got organized and rolling? [804] A. That's right.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Sylvan Lando.)

Mr. Gillen: Just a moment—I move Mr. Campbell's voluntary testimony, not under oath, "until you got organized and rolling," be stricken from the record.

The Court: That was precipitated by the other answer. Read the question.

(Question read.)

The Court: It was induced by the witness' answer.

Q. Are you acquainted with a man by the name of Pritchett? A. I am.

Q. Was he active in the business of the B & R Smoke Shoppe? A. He was.

Q. What was his first name? A. Pat.

Q. What duties did he perform?

A. Well, he wrote tickets.

Q. Now, there was a period of time, was there not, Mr. Lando, when Mr. Willie Kyne was in the service? A. That's right.

Q. Do you recall what period that was?

A. 1945.

Q. Do you recall what months?

A. No, I don't.

Q. Do you recall when he returned from the service?

A. Yes, he returned in June, 1946. [805]

Q. Now, during the period of time that Mr. Kyne was in the service, who handled the financial end of the business? A. Pat Pritchett.

Q. After Mr. Kyne returned from the service in

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Sylvan Lando.)

June of 1946, who then handled the financial end of the business?

A. He took over when he came back, Mr. Kyne.

Q. Will you state in what manner Mr. Pritchett was compensated for his services?

Mr. Gillen: I am going to object to that as calling for opinion and conclusion of this man, who has already stated his only duties there were the fixing of prices on odds.

The Court: Objection overruled. He may answer the question.

Q. Do you understand my question?

A. No, I do not.

(Question read.)

A. I don't know. He might have been paid at the end of the month.

Q. Well, how was he paid; was he paid a percentage or salary or how?

A. He was paid a salary.

Q. Do you recall what that salary was?

A. No, I do not know.

Q. Was Mr. Pritchett ever given a percentage in the business? A. Not that I know of.

Q. Now, during the war, Mr. Lando, there was a period, was there [806] not, when all of the race tracks were closed down? A. That's right.

Q. Do you recall when that was? A. 1945.

Q. And do you recall what part of 1945?

A. From the first of January until up until May 15th.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Sylvan Lando.)

Q. And did the B & R Smoke Shoppe conduct business during that period?

A. They did not.

Q. If you recall, was Mr. Kyne in the service during that period? A. I believe he was.

Q. Now, in connection with the operation of the business, how often, if at all, would the partners have an accounting as to the profits or losses?

A. At the end of each year.

Q. By the end of each year, do you refer to the calendar year? A. That's right.

Q. Now, in addition to your partnership share, did you also draw salary or compensation of any kind?

A. I didn't draw no salary, now.

Q. Do you know if Mr. Remmer drew any salary? A. I do not know.

Q. Do you know if Mr. Kyne drew any salary?

A. Yes, he did. [807]

Q. Do you recall the amount of Mr. Kyne's salary, if you know? A. It was ten dollars a day.

Q. Did that continue during the period of time that Mr. Kyne was in the service?

A. To my knowledge, yes.

Q. To the best of your knowledge?

A. That's right; to the best of my knowledge.

Q. Now, Mr. Lando, in the event you, or the other partners, required money to be drawn from the business during the course of the year, was some method worked out for that purpose?

A. That's right.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Sylvan Lando.)

Q. And what was the method used?

A. Well, if I wanted to draw any money, I would just put a marker in.

Q. What do you mean by a marker?

A. The same as an IOU, along those lines.

Q. And to whom would you give that marker?

A. Willie Kyne.

Q. Now, what would occur—assuming, for example, that you drew $200 and gave a marker, what would next occur in relation to that? What would you do next? A. Just get the money.

Q. And from whom would you get the money?

A. I didn't understand.

Q. Who would give you the money? [808]

A. Willie Kyne.

Q. He handled the money?

A. He handled the cash, yes.

Q. And when he was away, Mr. Pritchett handled it? A. That's right.

Q. Prior to the end of the year, would you pay the amount of that marker back to the money keeper?

A. Well, I have at times and other times would carry it along, might carry it over.

Q. So that, I take it, there would be——

Mr. Gillen: Pardon me—I wonder if counsel would not take it and let us get the evidence from the witness.

The Court: All right.

Mr. Campbell: I just frame my questions in my own way.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Sylvan Lando.)

The Court: Go ahead and frame your question.

Q. At the end of the year, when you had your accounting period, would all of the money in the bank roll, plus accumulated profits, be represented by cash or by cash and markers?

A. By cash and markers.

Q. And when the accounting of profits were had, would it be had upon that basis of a division based upon the amount that might be owed by any of the partners to the bank roll? Do you understand me?

A. No, I don't. I would like to have the question repeated.

Mr. Campbell: I will withdraw the question. I will ask [809] you another.

Q. Mr. Lando, did you have anything to do with the preparation and filing of partnership tax returns for the B & R Smoke Shoppe?

A. I did.

Q. And what did you have to do with the preparation of the returns?

A. Maybe I don't understand you right.

Q. Did you have anything to do with the preparing the partnership returns of income, the income tax return?

A. No, I didn't; I misunderstood the question. I was referring to my own.

Q. No, I am referring to the partnership return.

A. I understand now; no, I didn't.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Sylvan Lando.)

Q. Who, if you know, did have that duty for the partnership? A. I don't know.

Q. Do you recall whether or not you ever saw the returns?

A. No, I don't believe I ever did.

Q. I am going to show you government's exhibits 77, 78, and 79, which are the partnership returns of income of the B & R Smoke Shoppe for the calendar years 1943, 1944, and 1946, and ask you if you have ever seen those documents before? A. No, I never saw them before.

Q. I call your attention, however, to the fact that each of these documents is signed William E. Kyne, and ask you if you are familiar with his signature? [810] A. I am.

Q. And is that his signature?

A. It appears to be, yes.

Q. Now, I call your attention, Mr. Lando, to the fact that the partnership returns which I show you does not include a partnership return for the calendar year 1945, which return would have been due for filing not later than March 15th of 1946. Now, who was it that had financial charge of the business in March of 1946?

A. You say there was none filed, did I understand you to say?

Q. I am asking you who had financial charge of the business in March of 1946?

A. Why Pat Pritchett.

Q. Do you yourself know whether or not any 1945 partnership return for the B & R Smoke

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Sylvan Lando.)

Shoppe was prepared? A. I know I filed.

Q. You are referring to your personal return?

A. That's right.

Q. But do you know whether or not any partnership return was prepared? A. No, I do not.

Q. Mr. Lando, are you acquainted with a business known as the 186 Club? A. I was.

Q. And where was that located? [811]

A. 186 Eddy Street, San Francisco.

Q. And what was the nature of the business conducted there?

A. The 186 Club was a card room in back and in front was the wholesale liquor store and cigar counter.

Q. Was that the Day and Night?

A. Known as the Day and Night, yes.

Q. Now, did you yourself have anything to do with the operation of the 186 Club?

A. I did not.

Q. Are you familiar with the fact that the 186 Club was a corporation? A. Yes, I was.

Q. When did you first learn that?

A. About a year after it opened.

Q. Now, when did it open?

A. I think it was opened in '43, if I am not mistaken.

Q. Were you an officer of the corporation?

A. I was.

Q. When did you first become an officer of the corporation?

A. When it started; when it opened.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Sylvan Lando.)

Q. When did you first learn that you were an officer of the corporation?

A. About a year after it was opened.

Q. Do I understand you had been an officer for a year without knowing it? [812]

Mr. Gillen: I object to the form. It is cross-examination; it is argumentative and it is the characterization and assumption of the examiner.

The Court: Perhaps you could change the form of the question.

Q. How did you learn that you were an officer of the corporation? A. From Willie Kyne.

Q. Now, you say that the 186 Club started in 1943. When was it that Willie Kyne told you that you were an officer?

A. Well, after it was changed from a partnership to a corporation.

Q. When was that, do you recall?

A. It was opened in '43. It was in '44.

Q. That it became a corporation?

A. To my knowledge, yes.

Q. Had you been a partner?

A. I had been.

Q. When? A. When it started.

Q. What was your partnership interest?

A. In the 186 Club?

Q. Yes. A. I had one-sixth interest.

Q. Did you contribute any money or capital toward the 186 Club? [813] A. I did not.

Q. At any time? A. No, I didn't.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Sylvan Lando.)

Q. When did you first learn that you were a partner in the 186 Club?

A. As I said, after it was changed from a partnership to the corporation—I am all confused now.

Mr. Gillen: I am going to offer the objection it has been asked and answered. He said he became a partner when it opened and then changed.

The Court: The objection will be overruled. I don't think the witness quite understood the question.

Q. I will repeat the question. When did you first learn that you were a partner in the 186 Club?

A. When it opened.

Q. Who were the other partners?

A. Mr. Remmer and Mr. Kyne, Bert Pistanio, Attilio Cassilini, Carl Nellus, Jess Kopstick.

Q. What interest did each of the partners have?

A. To my knowledge—one-sixth apiece.

Q. How did you obtain that knowledge?

A. Mr. Remmer.

Q. Did you ever receive any salary from the 186 Club?

Mr. Gillen: Just a moment—objected to as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial, whether he received a salary as a [814] partner or as an officer of the corporation.

The Court: Objection overruled. You may answer the question.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, may we add to the grounds of that objection, I think your Honor is aware of the fact the 186 Club was a corporation and the question as to whether an officer of a corporation, such as the witness, received a salary, I submit could have no bearing on this case, which is a matter of Mr. Remmer's personal income.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

The Court: I understand he was a partner.

Mr. Avakian: But the question was, did you receive a salary as an officer.

Mr. Campbell: No, I said, did you receive a salary from the 186 Club?

(Question read.)

Mr. Avakian: May I make the further objection, the question is uncertain because——

The Court: You may answer the question.

Q. Did you receive any salary from the 186 Club? A. I did not.

Q. Did you receive any share of profits from the 186 Club? A. No, I did not.

Q. At the time, Mr. Lando, that it was changed from a partnership to a corporation, did you receive any shares of stock? A. No.

Mr. Gillen: I think, may it please the court, that I [815] will have to offer an objection and move that the question be stricken upon this grounds, counsel, I am sure, knows when he asks the question in the State of California, when it is a so-called membership corporation, there is no stock.

The Court: Well, the motion will be denied. The answer will stand.

Mr. Gillen: I mean the law does not provide for any stock.

Mr. Campbell: May it please the Court, in view of the argument here before the jury yesterday, I would like to read briefly from the record of the testimony of Joseph Billington given on December 5, 1951, in this court room.

Mr. Gillen: I don't have in mind what argument he is talking about.

The Court: I can't see any purpose in reading it now.

Mr. Campbell: As I recall, there is some misunderstanding as to just what the testimony was.

The Court: You might just call counsel's attention to it, but it would be better not to read it again.

Mr. Campbell: Very well, I will.

(Conference between counsel.)

Mr. Gillen: We don't mind whether he reads that or not if he reads the entire testimony of Mr. Billington at that point.

The Court: I do not think it should be read.

SYLVAN LANDO

having been previously sworn, testified as follows on further

Direct Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Now, Mr. Lando, at the time of the recess yesterday afternoon I had been questioning you concerning the 186 Club. I believe [817] you testified that you were first a partner in that Club and then an officer of the Club, is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And did you take any active part in the operation of the Club? A. I did not.

Q. How often did you visit the Club?

A. I used to go down there early in the morning maybe a couple of times a week on the way down to my place of business. It was only a block.

Q. Did you, on those occasions, inspect the records of the Club? A. I did not.

Q. Who kept the books and records of the 186 Club? A. I do not know.

Q. Who handled the money that was taken in or paid out with respect to the 186 Club?

A. I do not know.

Mr. Campbell: At this time I am going to ask to have marked for identification certain sheets entitled "Poker" as government's Exhibit 110 for identification as the first group, and the others to be marked 110(a), (b), (c), (d), (e), and (f) for identification, respectively.

Q. Mr. Lando, I am going to show you government's exhibits 110 to 110(f), inclusive, and ask you if you recognize those sheets?

A. Yes, I do. [818]

Q. And what are those sheets?

A. Well, I imagine they are sheets pertaining——

Mr. Gillen: Well, now, just a moment. If the witness imagines, may it please the Court, it is inconclusive and speculative answer. I move it be stricken.

Mr. Campbell: No objection.

The Court: It will be stricken.

Mr. Campbell: I will reframe the question.

Mr. Gillen: It isn't the question, it's the answer.

Mr. Campbell: I am going to reframe it.

Q. What are those sheets used for?

A. I think they have, I am not sure, reference to players in the club.

Mr. Gillen: I move the answer be stricken for the same reason—"I think—I am not sure."

The Court: Yes, you had better explain that to Mr. Lando.

Mr. Campbell: Mr. Lando, it is necessary that you give a direct answer, if you know. If you don't know, you should say so. You can't state that you think or what you may believe, anything of that kind. Confine your answer to your knowledge. Will you read the question again?

(Question read.)

A. I am in doubt.

Q. You are in doubt? A. Yes, sir. [819]

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Sylvan Lando.)

Q. Mr. Lando, who was the active manager of the 186 Club during the year 1944?

A. To my knowledge, Bert Busterno.

Q. Was he known by some nickname?

A. Bert the Barber.

Q. Who was the active manager during 1945?

A. To my knowledge Bert the Barber.

Q. And in 1946? A Bert the Barber.

Q. He was the manager throughout that period, is that right? A. That's right.

Q. Were you familiar with the type of game, that is to say, the kind of game, that was played at the 186 Club? A. I was not.

Q. Were you acquainted with the method or manner by which the management derived its profit from the operation of the 186 Club?

A. I was not.

Mr. Gillen: Just a moment, may it please the court, there is no foundation laid that this man had anything to do with the operation.

Mr. Campbell: The record shows he was a partner.

Mr. Gillen: The record shows he was a member of the corporation.

The Court: The answer is evidently satisfactory to all concerned. [820]

Mr. Gillen: Yes, your Honor.

Q. Now, in connection with the same premises, with the 186 Club was there conducted another enterprise? A. There was.

Q. And what was the name of that enterprise?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Sylvan Lando.)

A. The Day-Night Cigar Store.

Q. Now, will you describe briefly the physical set-up of the premises there as to the conduct of the Day-Night Cigar Store and the 186 Club?

A. Well, in front was the Day-Night Cigar Store, cigar stand, magazines and cigars and wholesale liquor store, and in the back room was the 186 Club.

Q. How did you enter the 186 Club?

Mr. Gillen: I don't know as those things are material to a net worth theory.

The Court: That is probably preliminary. The objection will be overruled.

Q. How did you enter the 186 Club?

A. There was a door to the right of the cigar counter as you came in. You went in through there.

Q. You went in through the cigar store?

A. That's right.

Q. Now, I am going to ask you, Mr. Lando, if you were acquainted with one Joe Leonard?

A. I was not. [821]

Q. Were you acquainted with one Bob Burgess?

A. I was not.

Q. Were you acquainted with an individual known as Sacramento Sam? A. I was not.

Q. Were you acquainted with an individual known as Crying Mac? A. I was not.

Q. Referring again to plaintiff's Exhibit 110 for identification, I will show you first Exhibit 110 and ask you if you know whose handwriting that is? A. No, I don't.

Q. I will show you Exhibit 110-A and ask you if you know whose handwriting that is?

A. No, I don't.

Q. I will show you Exhibit 110-C and ask you if you are familiar with the handwriting?

A. No, I am not.

Q. I will show you 110-D for identification and ask you if you are familiar with that handwriting?

A. I am not.

Q. And I will show you 110-F for identification and ask you if you are familiar with that handwriting? A. I am not.

Mr. Gillen: May it please the Court, for the reason that I do not want to offer unnecessary objections, I refrained from [822] objection to the questions concerning the foreign names that were put to the witness on the witness stand of the four people who were named here. At this time, may it please the Court, I ask the Court to strike from the record those names, for this reason—this witness is a government witness who undoubtedly has been interviewed numerous times and statements taken by the government. The prosecutor knows, when he asks the question, that this man did not know these people and I am sure the questions were asked, not for the benefit of this case or to establish any net worth basis, but were asked for the purpose of bringing some ridicule by use of nicknames.

The Court: I can't assume counsel would do anything of that kind. I anticipated your present argument and have been thinking it over and my thought is if it were to appear a little later, or at some time later in the trial, that it was an improper thing to do, I will then strike those references to those names from the record and give instructions to the jury on the point, but at the present time it will stand.

BLURRED COPY

Mr. Gillen: The reason I didn't object——

The Court (Interceding): I am not ruling because you did not object, but that is my thought and I am not going to impute to counsel any such charge.

Mr. Campbell: And I assure your Honor the questions were asked in good faith. [823]

The Court: If it should appear improper later, then, of course I will strike it.

Mr. Gillen: Yes, your Honor, if they are not connected up.

Mr. Campbell: And I assure the Court they will be connected up.

Mr. Gillen: Well, I think that should remain to be seen. I charge——

The Court: Just a moment, counsel, I will take care of that.

Q. Now, Mr. Lando, did you have any interest in the Day-Night Cigar Store? A. I did.

Q. And when did you acquire that interest?

A. When the place was purchased.

Q. When did you first learn of your interest?

A. From Mr. Remmer.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Sylvan Lando.)

Q. When? A. I think it was 1943.

Q. Did you invest any money in the Day-Night Cigar Store? A. No, I did not.

Q. What was the amount of your interest in that? A. I had one-third interest.

Q. And what, if anything, did you pay for that one-third interest? [824]

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as asked and answered. He said he invested no money in there.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Q. What, if anything, did you pay for that one-third interest? A. I didn't pay anything.

Q. Did you, during the year 1944, receive any portions of any profits that were made?

A. I did not.

Q. I call your attention to plaintiff's Exhibit 84, the partnership return of income of the Day-Night Cigar Store for the year 1944, and Schedule I, the distribution of income, showing Sylvan Lando, 611 Marina Blvd., San Francisco, one-third, $1092.51, and I will ask you if you received that money?

Mr. Avakian: Just a moment, your Honor. We object to that question on the ground that any taxation of partnership income, as the government's own agent, Mr. Gould, testified on the stand yesterday, the income is taxable to the partners——

Mr. Campbell: I object to a speech——

The Court: What is your objection?

Mr. Avakian: We object on the ground it is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial to this case, because the taxation of partnership income is based not on money the partners may or may not withdraw from the partnership, but rather on their particular share of whatever the partnership income may be, the [825] share they are entitled to. Mr. Gould himself testified to that effect on the stand yesterday. He testified profits were immaterial in determining the taxation of partnership income and I believe counsel well knows that to be the law.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Sylvan Lando.)

The Court: Objection is overruled. You may answer the question.

Q. Do you have the question in mind?

A. I have not. Will you repeat it?

(Question read.)

A. I did not.

Q. Did you receive it any time, Mr. Lando?

A. No, I didn't.

Q. Incidentally, who was the manager of the Day-Night Cigar Store? A. I do not know.

Q. Do you know who kept the records of the Day-Night Cigar Store? A. No, I don't.

Q. Did you, yourself, take any part in the operation of the business? A. I did not.

Q. Were you advised by any one at the end of 1944 as to whether or not the operation of the Day-Night Cigar Store had been profitable or not?

A. Not that I can recall.

Q. I call your attention to plaintiff's Exhibit 85, partnership [826] return of income of the Day-Night Cigar Store for the calendar year 1945, to Schedule I, showing Sylvan Lando, 611 Marina

Mr. Avakian: We make the same objection as to the same question as to the prior year on the same grounds.

The Court: It will be the same ruling.

A. I did not.

Q. Did you ever at any time receive that money set forth here? A. I did not.

Q. I show you plaintiff's Exhibit 86, the partnership return of income for the calendar year 1946 of the Day-Night Cigar Store, and direct your attention to Schedule I, Sylvan Lando, 611 Marina Blvd., San Francisco, 33⅓, $652.96, and ask you if you received that money?

Mr. Avakian: We make the same objection as we made with respect to the same question for the year 1944 and for the same reasons.

The Court: It will be the same ruling.

A. I did not.

Q. I call your attention to Schedule H on this exhibit, under the heading "Partners Capital Accounts," Sylvan Lando, beginning of taxable year $8,492.53, end of taxable year, $8012.15. Are you familiar with those figures? A. I am [827] not.

Q. Do you know whether or not at any time there were records kept showing a capital account of that amount in your name?

A. I do not know.

Q. Mr. Lando, I call your attention to government's Exhibit 87-A, the corporation income and declared valuation excess profits tax return of the 186 Club for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1943, and ending June 30, 1944, and I call your attention to the language respecting annual salaries for officers, Sylvan Lando, treasurer, $4,000, and ask you if you received any such salary?

A. I did not.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, we were unable to locate our copy of this exhibit in time to make an objection. May I ask the Court's permission——

The Court: You may make the objection.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, we object to the question on this ground, that it is an inquiry into the matter of the net income of a corporation, namely, the 186 Club, rather than an inquiry into the matter of net income of the defendant in this case. The evidence of the prosecution itself shows, and Mr. Campbell has repeatedly stated, that the 186 Club was a corporation. The taxpayer may have been a shareholder in any number of corporations, but his net income is not affected by what the net income of that corporation is and unless the prosecution shows that Mr. Remmer received income from this corporation, [828] either by way of a salary or by way of dividends, is completely immaterial and this inquiry into whether or not the net income of the 186 Club was one figure and paid certain salaries or not to another witness, not the defendant, is completely immaterial in this case and we submit it is introduced simply for the purpose of trying to confuse the jury and mislead them and we object to any inquiry that is related to net income of a corporation, as distinguished from net income of Mr. Remmer, the defendant in this case.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Sylvan Lando.)

The Court: Objection overruled and the answer may stand.

Q. Mr. Lando, I am going to show you government's Exhibit 88-A, the corporation income and declared value excess profits tax return of the 186 Club for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1944, and ending June 30, 1945, and direct your attention to the fact that in this return the annual salaries for the officers were set forth, including Sylvan Lando, treasurer, three thousand dollars. I will ask you if you received any such salary, Mr. Lando?

Mr. Avakian: Same objection, your Honor.

The Court: Same ruling.

A. I did not.

Q. One further question. I may have asked this yesterday but I do not recall, so it may be repetition of the question asked yesterday. Mr. Lando, with regard to the B & R Smoke Shoppe, who kept the records of that business? [829]

A. A Mr. Slater.

Q. And do you know what type of records were kept? A. No, I don't.

Q. Mr. Slater is now deceased, is that correct?

A. That's right.

Q. Mr. Lando, you testified yesterday that at the end of each year the partners in the B & R Smoke Shoppe, that is to say, yourself, Mr. Willie

BLURRED COPY

Kyne and Mr. Remmer, had an annual accounting, is that ocrrect? A. That's right.

Q. Do you recall at this time the status of your own account with the B & R Smoke Shoppe as of December 31, 1946? A. I do not.

Q. Do you recall at this time as to whether or not, at the end of 1946, December 31st, the business owed you money or you owed the business money?

A. I don't recall.

Mr. Campbell: I believe that is all. You may cross-examine.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Q. Mr. Lando, the gentleman you named as the man who kept the books of the B & R Cigar Stand, Mr. Slater, now deceased, he was a public accountant, was he not? A. That's right.

Q. By the way, Mr. Lando, did you ever receive a gift of any [830] Sulka neckties from Mr. Remmer?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as not within the scope of the direct examination.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Gillen: May I be heard on that, your Honor.

The Court: I will excuse the jury.

Mr. Gillen: Well, I won't deter the jury at this time. We will take it up at another time. I would like to argue the matter before Mr. Lando is excused.

The Court: You can call it to my attention.

(Jury and alternate jurors admonished and excused at 10:45.)

(In the absence of the jury.)

The Court: I am somewhat at a loss just how to approach this present situation. Now I have tried cases in [831] Los Angeles, I have tried cases in San Francisco, Portland, Seattle, Sacramento, not just one case, but I have been to each one of those cases for more than a month at a time, and I have had the most pleasant relations with lawyers in all those cities, always in Nevada pleasant relations with lawyers, but I notice a tendency, and I think it is your purpose, to ride this Court, Mr. Gillen.

Mr. Gillen: No, it is not my purpose to ride the Court.

Mr. Gillen: I would like to be permitted to tell you respectfully my position.

The Court: I know you are a very competent lawyer, you have demonstrated that, you are ably handling this case, but you do not stay within the rules. Now that remark that you made in the record there just illustrates certain types of remarks you have made during the hearing. Now I do not want to have to put up with any more and I am not going to listen to any more of it, and as far as the press is concerned, this courtroom is open all the time and I will not be influenced by their presence or wouldn't be by [832] their absence. It wouldn't make any difference, but I am reluctant to punish anyone for contempt. I do not want to do it; I don't think I have ever done it but once in nearly nine years I have been on the bench, and I don't want to do it. I am not the kind of man who wants to get even with anybody and my attitude in this case, whether you recognize it or whether you don't, I am trying to be fair to this defendant and to the government and I am going to continue to do that, so let's not have any more of these things.

Mr. Gillen: May I be heard?

The Court: Just let me finish. I am doing the talking here. There is no necessity of that remark. Your remark in making that objection to these nicknames received here, imputing something

Mr. Gillen: You are not going to let me say a word?

The Court: We are going to call the jury.

(Off-the-record remarks by counsel.) [833]

A. That's right.

Q. You had at one time, I believe you stated, owned a stable of horses yourself?

A. That's right. [834]

Q. That was some years ago, was it?

A. That is right.

Q. And I believe you stated as to actual cash, you had made no investment? [835]

A. That is right.

Q. What was it that you were expected to contribute to the partnership?

A. What was I to contribute to the partnership?

Q. Yes, what was it you were expected to contribute to the partnership if it was not money?

A. Well, my knowledge of the game and ability to make prices.

Q. And is that what you did in connection with the partnership, work out odds and make prices?

A. That's right.

Q. And when would you do that, with relation to the hours of the day, when would you do that?

A. From eight in the morning up until around 12:30 and one o'clock.

Q. And then was your work, insofar as your participation of the partnership business, finished for the day? A. Practically was, yes.

Q. I understood you to say at the outset, for a week or two, that you also assisted in writing up bets. A. Yes, when it first started.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Sylvan Lando.)

Q. And after that you just devoted yourself to the matter of making prices from about eight o'clock in the morning and working until around noon? A. That is right.

Q. And for that you were given a 25 per cent interest? [836] A. Right.

Q. Now, with regard to your interest in the 186 Club and in the Day-Night Cigar Store, which was part of the 186 Club property, I understood you to say that you made no actual cash investment in either of those enterprises? A. That's right.

Q. But you were given originally a one-sixth partnership interest in the 186 Club, is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. And you were given an interest share in the Day-Night Cigar Stand? A. That is right.

Q. What was that interest, one-third?

A. That's right.

Q. And you testified that you put no actual cash into either of those enterprises by way of investment, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. What were you expected to contribute to both of those or either of those enterprises in lieu of any cash investment?

A. Well, I had a big following amongst sportsmen in the city. They would call me up in the morning 10 or 15 times, where I was working, for tips on the horses, my opinion as to prices, along those lines.

Q. Were you expected, by reason of your following, to bring business to the 186 Club? [837]

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Sylvan Lando.)

A. That is right. I sent them up there, quite a few.

Q. Those people of the sporting fraternity knew you were interested in this place and followed you over to this place and gave you their business, is that correct? A. That is right.

Q. Now, the B & R Cigar Shoppe, you stated that there were empty boxes in the cigar store?

A. To my knowledge, yes.

Q. Did you ever tend the cigar store; was that part of your work? A. No.

Q. Was there a man who did tend the cigar store there? A. Not that I know of.

Q. Was there a man at the front there at the cigar counter? A. I do not recall.

Q. At all events, you never tended the cigar store? A. No.

Q. Now, you were asked by Mr. Campbell regarding the amount of time that was devoted by the defendant, Mr. Remmer, to the B & R cigar store and you said he was active in the business, is that correct? A. That is right.

Q. Let me ask you, isn't it a fact that during the time that you were connected with the B & R Cigar Store and with the other enterprises, that Mr. Remmer spent five months of the year [838] managing and operating Cal-Neva Lodge in Nevada?

A. That's right.

Q. Isn't it a fact that he went up there in April or May of each year and didn't return until some time in October, with the exception of possibly short trips to San Francisco?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Sylvan Lando.)

A. To my knowledge that is correct.

Q. So for five months of the year, each year that you were there Mr. Remmer wasn't around there to be active in the business, was he? A. Right.

Q. And then I believe you stated in the year 1945 for the first five months of the year no tracks were running at all? A. That is right.

Q. And the B & R Cigar stand was closed up?

A. Right.

Q. And Mr. Remmer was at Lake Tahoe all the time when the tracks opened until October of that year? A. That's right.

Q. So that that year he was there practically at no time during the year 1945, is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. And that was the year, was it not, that the other partner in that business, Mr. Willie Kyne, went into the armed forces services, is that correct?

A. Correct. [839]

Q. And he was away until 1946, isn't that true?

A. That is true.

Q. And immediately after Mr. Willie Kyne went away, it is true, is it not, that you for a period of time did handle the funds, for a short period of time? A. I did.

Q. And you were mistaken yesterday when you said Mr. Pritchett had handled them?

A. He did.

Q. He did, but you had handled them for a brief period of time, is that correct?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Sylvan Lando.)

A. Repeat it, please.

Q. Yes. I said Mr. Pritchett had handled the funds when Mr. Kyne went away into the service, but there was a brief period of time immediately after Mr. Kyne went away that you handled the funds, isn't that correct? A. That is right.

Q. Now, Mr. Campbell asked you yesterday questions regarding what is known in the fraternity of the racing world as laying off of bets; do you recall those questions? A. That is right.

Q. And you explained to Mr. Campbell yesterday that there were two reasons for laying off bets; one was to keep the odds on a horse and the other was if a man who was making a book felt he had too much of a gamble, he would lay off part of it, that [840] is right? A. That is right.

Q. He would ask some other bookmakers if they would take part of the bets that were available, is that correct? A. Correct.

Q. Now, is it not a fact that frequently and most times that laying off, or accepting of laying off bets, or assisting in laying off bets, is done as an accommodation? A. At times it is, yes.

Q. Just explain how it is done as an accommodation and doesn't bring anything in the way of a profit or emolument to the person who lays off the bet?

A. Well, a man may call up from New Orleans, around the country around post time, which gives you 10 or 15 minutes, and say, "I am in bad"——

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Sylvan Lando.)

Q. He means he has too much money on a horse?

A. Yes, he has too much, for example two thousand on a horse, and he has taken this order and wants to execute it and get rid of it, so I would say, "Wait, hang on and I will see what I can do for you." So if you get rid of the money, or part of the money, whatever you got rid of, then it would be around post time——

Q. Let me see if I can break that down so I understand a little better. If A felt he had too much to cover bets placed on one horse and wanted to rid himself of that obligation, he [841] might call B and ask if he would take part of the order for him? A. That is correct?

Q. So Mr. B, might as accommodation, ring up C, D, E, and F and ask them if they were interested in taking some of that?

A. That is correct, or fill the order or try to fill the order.

Q. And in that regard Mr. B, who was first appealed to, would be merely acting as middle man, trying to accommodate the man who was wanting to get rid of the obligation?

A. That is correct.

Q. Was there much of that done at the B & R?

A. Over a period of time lots done.

Q. If you make a long-distance call to another person to lay off a bet, you then incur a telephone bill? A. That is right.

Q. And got nothing out of it?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Sylvan Lando.)

A. That is all merely an accommodation.

Q. And that was done for the reason that on other occasions those same people who had appealed to you might have accommodated you in taking some lay-off money, that is correct?

A. Right.

Q. Now, that money would sometimes pass through your hands without any profit, isn't that correct? A. That is right.

Q. Now, you stated that you do not recall any man tending the [842] B & R cigar stand. Do you remember a man called John the Door Man?

A. Yes.

Q. Didn't he tend the cigar stand?

A. Well, he may have, but I don't remember.

Q. Now, Mr. Lando, to your knowledge was there not also a bookkeeper to whom was turned over the financial accounts from the various enterprises? A. I don't think so.

Q. Well, you mentioned here the public accountant who had died, Mr. Slater. It was within your knowledge, was it not, that the report of profits and losses were ultimately turned over to Mr. Slater and he worked at the books and made up the income tax returns, isn't that true? A. That is right.

Q. Now, in the year 1945, which we have referred to here in your testimony, was that a so-called loss year, that is, when the B & R Smoke Shoppe lost money?

A. I don't recall. That's a matter of record from the tax returns, would show it.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Sylvan Lando.)

Q. Well, wasn't that the year the race tracks were closed down all over the country for a period of five months? A. Yes, they were.

Q. Do you have any recollection now whether that was a loss year or a profitable year? [843]

A. I am not sure, but I think it was a loss year.

Q. Mr. Lando, do you recall that on your own individual income tax return for the year 1945 you showed it as a loss year? A. I think I did.

Q. And you attribute that, do you not, to the fact that there was no business for the first five months of that year, insofar as the racing game was concerned? A. That's right.

Q. Now, Mr. Lando, with regard to the 186 Club, which was described by you as a card room adjoining or related to the Day-Night cigar stand, you had an interest of one-sixth in that 186 Club, is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. And you stated at the outset you were informed that you had a one-sixth partnership interest, is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. And that some little time later—I believe you fixed the time as approximately a year after the place opened—that you were informed that it had become a corporation and that you were an officer of the corporation? A. That's right.

Q. Now, do you recall what other information you obtained regarding how and in what manner it was converted from a partnership to a corporation? A. I don't know. [844]

Q. Does it refresh your recollection that a Mr.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Sylvan Lando.)

Mooser, an agent of the Internal Revenue Department, in auditing the accounts and returns of the 186 partnership, decreed that it was a corporation rather than a partnership and that a return should be made as a corporation?

Mr. Campbell: I am going to object unless the foundation is laid, unless he had a conversation with Mr. Mooser regarding the subject matter. Otherwise it is hearsay.

The Court: Let me have the question.

(Question read.)

The Court: Will you lay a little foundation, Mr. Gillen, on that question?

Mr. Gillen: I think perhaps I can.

Q. Mr. Lando, I am going to ask you whether or not, by way of refreshing your memory, whether or not it came to your attention that in the return of the 186 Club for the fiscal year commencing July 1, 1943, and ending June 30, 1944, that this information was contained in Schedule I—and I am reading now from plaintiff's Exhibit 87-A in evidence——

Mr. Campbell: Pardon me, before you read that, Mr. Gillen, I am going to make an objection to the question in this form. I think the document should first be shown to the witness as to whether or not he has ever seen the statement he referred to. It is quite a lengthy statement.

Mr. Gillen: I think, may it please the Court, since it [845] is an exhibit put in by the prosecution in evidence, that it is evidence and I am entitled to read any part of it and ask him if that refreshes his recollection as to what were the facts in the matter.

Mr. Campbell: Oh, yes.

The Court: Very well.

Mr. Gillen: I am going to read you, Mr. Lando, from plaintiff's Exhibit 87-A in evidence, and ask you whether or not this notation in the return of the corporation, in which you were an officer, refreshes your recollection on the subject matter of my last question. Schedule I: (Reads.)

Q. Does that refresh your recollection on the subject matter, Mr. Lando, or are you familiar with that?

A. I recall there was a Mr. Mooser and he changed from the original partnership to the corporation and that is as much as I am familiar with. I am not familiar with the transaction.

Q. Now, Mr. Lando, you say that the active manager of the club was Mr. Bert Busterno, who was also known by the nickname of Bert the Barber, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. And so far as you know, he was the man who kept track of the accounts and ultimately turned them over to the public accountant, is that correct? A. That's right, yes.

Q. Was the 186 Club, during the time that you were connected [846] with it, making money or losing money?

BLEED THROUGH— POOR COPY

(Testimony of Sylvan Lando.)

A. Well, I don't know whether it was or it wasn't.

Q. You don't remember whether it was making money or losing money?

A. No, all I know it was mostly in the red around there. That is what I was told, on account of the markers.

Q. What do you mean by that, Mr. Lando? Is that that people who owed money to the club put in their markers instead of putting in cash, is that correct? A. That's right.

Q. In other words, instead of the club getting a lot of money, it was getting IOUs?

A. Correct.

Q. Which in the racing fraternity are referred to as markers? A. That's right.

Q. When were you informed about this? Were you informed about this when you asked whether or not you had money coming from the 186 Club?

A. That's right.

Q. Now, in regard to the income tax returns of the corporation which Mr. Campbell read to you at the close of your direct examination, on which it is shown that you during one year, according to the return, received four thousand dollars' salary and another year that you drew three thousand dollars' salary. Let me ask you, Mr. Lando, whether or not on your individual income [847] tax return you reported receiving such salary?

A. The monies I received——

Q. (Interrupting): First of all, let me ask you

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Sylvan Lando.)

if you remember, then you can give any explanation you wish. Do you remember whether or not you reported in your own income tax return you had received any salary? A. I do not remember.

Q. You don't know whether you did or not?

A. No, I do not.

Q. Were you ever given any money to cover any tax for any salary that was chargeable to you on the books of the corporation? A. Yes, I was.

Q. By whom were you given that money?

A. Willie Kyne.

Q. And who was it that made out your individual tax return? A. The tax man.

Q. Who was that? A. Mr. Hubner.

Q. Is that Conrad Hubner, the tax lawyer in San Francisco? A. Yes.

Q. And the money Mr. Kyne gave you to pay your tax for the salary that was supposed to have been given to you, did you pay that to the government on your income tax? A. I did. [848]

Q. Who did you turn that over to, Mr. Hubner?

A. Mr. Hubner.

Q. How did you happen to pay that tax? Were you told by Mr. Kyne that you were chargeable with having received such a salary and therefore would be taxable for it, would have to pay a tax on it? A. That is right.

Q. So that, if we may attempt to boil this all down to an understandable statement of your testimony, summarizing what you have testified to, you were supposed to receive a salary by way of reward for your participation in the corporation——

Mr. Campbell: Just a minute—I am going to object to counsel characterizing or summarizing or giving his summary of the testimony. I think the testimony speaks for itself. I object to this question as incompetent.

The Court: Let me have the question.

(Question read.)

The Court: You may answer the question.

Mr. Gillen: I didn't complete the question, your Honor.

Mr. Campbell: I thought you had.

Mr. Gillen: No. Mr. Lando, I will start over again. Let me withdraw that. It will be simpler and I will start over again.

Q. The fact of the matter is, regarding the money situation, Mr. Lando—and correct me if I am misquoting your testimony— [849] the fact of the matter is that you were supposed to receive and were put down on the corporation's books, as having received a certain fixed salary, is that correct? A. Correct.

Q. And you did not receive that salary and in inquiring about why you did not receive it, you learned that the 186 Club had its coffers filled with markers or IOUs rather than cash, is that correct?

Mr. Campbell: That is objected to as assuming a fact not in evidence.

The Court: I understood it to be a question. You are not stating he testified to that effect?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Sylvan Lando.)

Mr. Gillen: I am asking if that was the sense of his testimony and if I am in error he can say so.

The Court: I will sustain the objection to the form of the question.

Q. And it is a fact that you testified, in inquiring why you did not receive any money from the corporation, learned it was because the 186 Club was not making any money, due to the fact that it was receiving so many IOUs or markers?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as assuming a fact not in evidence.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Gillen: I would like the record referred to, may it please the Court. If your Honor will recall, the reporter [850] started to read back and Mr. Lando elucidated on his answer and said the place was losing money because of markers. Your Honor will recall that.

The Court: My opinion of this question is you are summarizing the testimony of this witness.

Mr. Gillen: I am asking him on cross-examination, which I always understood was permissible, if this is the sense of his testimony.

Mr. Campbell: That is asking him to characterize or summarize his testimony.

The Court: I think counsel has the right to inquire what the witness meant when he gave certain evidence.

Mr. Campbell: But I think if he is referring to testimony he has given, the question must refer exactly to the testimony which was given.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Sylvan Lando.)

Mr. Gillen: Let us read it out of the record.

The Court: Let us have the question.

(Question read.)

The Court: You may answer the question.

Q. Do you have the question?

A. That is right.

Q. Is that the fact? A. That is correct.

Q. Now, is it also the fact that regardless of your not having received any money, your income tax lawyer told you that because [851] you were put down for a salary, you would have to pay a tax on the amount of money that was due you, is that correct? A. That's correct.

Q. And is it a fact that you went then to the corporation, or Mr. Kyne, or whoever it was and advised them that you were going to have to pay taxes on the money you did not receive because the corporation did not have the money to give you, and asked them what you would do about the tax you would have to pay, is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. And they advanced you the amount of tax you would have had to pay on the salary that was owing to you, is that true?

A. That is correct.

Q. Now, then, you still have that credit on the books of the corporation known as the 186 Club, isn't that so? A. I have.

Q. Now, with regard to the Day-Night cigar

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Sylvan Lando.)

stand which was attached to the 186 Club, I understood you to testify that you did not receive any money out of that enterprise either, is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. And that regardless of the fact that the income tax return for the Day-Night cigar stand showed there was a profit? A. Right.

Q. But you did not receive any of that [852] profit? A. I did not.

Q. Now, it is a fact, is it not, Mr. Lando, that the profit that was made by the Day-Night cigar stand was put right back into the business and used for purchasing of merchandise?

A. That's right.

Q. Are you familiar with the partnership return of the Day-Night cigar stand for the year 1944 and the Day-Night cigar stand for the year 1946 and for the year 1945, and I will identify it in the record as prosecution's Exhibits 84, 85, and 86, and with the Court's permission, I will hand these exhibits to the witness. Are you familiar with those?

A. No, I am not familiar with it.

Q. Well, will you look at the first one I handed you, the year 1944, prosecution's Exhibit No. 84. You will note, do you not, that this is income tax return for the partnership known as the Day-Night Cigar Store, 186 Eddy Street, San Francisco 2, California, and that the business conducted there is cigars, liquors and periodicals, that was correct, was it not? For the year 1944 I am referring to.

Mr. Campbell: I am unable to understand the question as to what he is directing his attention to as being correct.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of Sylvan Lando.)

Mr. Gillen: What I read appears on the exhibit.

Mr. Campbell: The exhibit speaks for itself, I submit, the witness having testified he has never seen the exhibit. I make the objection the document speaks for itself. [853]

The Court: See if you can answer the question.

Q. Have you the question in mind?

A. I have the question in mind, yes, but I am not familiar with it.

Q. Well, you stated, did you not, that the money that was made by the Day-Night cigar stand, instead of being paid out in profits to the partners or salaries, was put back into the business for the purchase of merchandise? A. That is true.

Q. It is true, is it not, that the 1944 returns shows that the inventory for the beginning of the year is put down as $11,889, is that correct?

A That's what is here.

Q. And then if you will look at plaintiff's Exhibit 85 in evidence, you will note, will you not, that the inventory—and that is for the year 1945, the next year—that the inventory for that year increased from $11,889 to $24,747.27, isn't that what appears there? A. That is right.

Q. And then if you will look at plaintiff's Exhibit 86 for the year 1946, you will note that the inventory shows for that year as $22,466.44, or twice as much as at the beginning of the period, namely, the year 1944, is that correct?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Sylvan Lando.)

A. Yes.

Mr. Campbell: The same objection, the documents speak [854] for themselves.

The Court: The answer may stand.

Q. Now, with regard to the Day-Night cigar stand, let me ask you whether or not your income tax lawyer advised you that you would also be chargeable in your individual income tax with the profit that you were shown to have made at the Day-Night cigar store partnership, is that correct?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as immaterial.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Gillen: That is the same question as your Honor permitted with regard to obtaining money to pay tax on money that was credited to him.

The Court: Isn't that hearsay, Mr. Gillen?

Mr. Gillen: I don't think so. If I may have the question read.

(Question read.)

Mr. Gillen: Do you mean about his lawyer?

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Gillen: I will withdraw the question. It is very definitely, I suppose, hearsay.

Q. Let me ask you this, did you obtain from the Day-Night cigar stand sufficient money from that partnership to pay the individual income tax obligation of your own to the government for any profit that was due you out of it?

A. I did. [855]

Q. Now, did you know, Mr. Lando—you have the original up there, would you take a look at the year 1946 return, which is on the desk there before you, and it is prosecution's Exhibit 86, and if you will turn to the last page—did you know that there was for the taxable year of 1946 credited to you a partner's capital account credit of $8,491.53? You see under Schedule I where it says "Partner's Shares of Income and Credits." A. I see.

Q. And you see your name there, Sylvan Lando, 611 Marina Blvd., Schedule H, Mr. Lando, line 13, it says, "Partners Capital Accounts."

A. I see it.

Q. Sylvan Lando, $8,491.53, do you see that?

A. I do.

Mr. Campbell: May we have the question?

Q. I will put the question again. I will ask you, were you acquainted with the fact that that capital investment credit was credited to you in the return of the partnership?

A. I really don't understand. Will you repeat it, please?

(Question read.)

A. I get that much credit. It was put back into the business, that is what I was told.

Q. Well, you had put no money into that business? A. No, I didn't.

Q. And you had been given one-third of that business, as you [856] stated, by reason of your following in the sporting fraternity, is that correct?

A. Yes.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Sylvan Lando.)

Q. And were you aware of the fact that you had built up an equity, so to speak, in that business in that amount? A. That is correct.

Mr. Gillen: We are reaching the matter not determined over the last recess, and that is in regard to the Sulka tie question.

The Court: We will take our recess now.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Q. Mr. Lando, shortly before the close of the noon session, I asked you about the money that you still had on the books in those enterprises; do you recall that? A. Yes.

Q. Now, were you ever called upon to make up any of the losses of the B & R Smoke Shoppe, of which you were a 25 per cent partner? [857]

A. I was not.

Q. You were not? A. I was not.

Q. Now, in direct examination this morning, Mr.

BLEED THROUGH— POOR COPY

Campbell asked you, or perhaps it was yesterday afternoon, Mr. Campbell asked you what you did in connection with any of those enterprises in the way of work or active participation, do you recall the question? A. Yes, I do.

Q. Did you, among other things that you did in and about the enterprises, did you ever recommend what customers of any of the enterprises might be given Christmas gifts of Sulka ties or other gifts?

A. I did.

Q. Did you ever participate in preparing or wrapping Sulka ties for customers?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. You got some ties yourself?

A. That is one there.

Q. You have a Sulka tie on now?

A. That's right.

Q. By the way, was that a gift by Mr. Remmer to you? A. That's right.

Mr. Gillen: That is all. [858]

Redirect Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Mr. Lando, in response to Mr. Gillen's question, you stated that when you inquired about the profits of the 186 Club you were told that they were represented in markers, is that correct?

A. That is right.

Q. Now, do you know whose markers those were? A. No, I have no idea.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of Sylvan Lando.)

Q. Do you know whether or not they were the markers of Mr. Remmer? A. I do not know.

Q. Did you, yourself, ever see the markers?

A. No, I never did.

Mr. Campbell: I think that is all.

(Witness excused.)

WILLIAM E. KYNE

a witness on behalf of the plaintiff, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Will you state your name, please?

A. William E. Kyne.

Q. Where do you reside, Mr. Kyne?

A. Christmas Tree Inn, Mt. Rose Highway, near Reno.

Q. You are presently the manager of that establishment? A. Part owner.

Q. Did you formerly reside in San [859] Francisco? A. Yes, I did.

Q. And over what period of time?

A. For 42 years.

Q. And up until what time, Mr. Kyne?

A. A year ago last July.

Q. What is your present business or occupation?

A. Part owner of the Christmas Tree Inn.

Q. Are you acquainted with the defendant here, Elmer Remmer? A. Yes, I am.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. How long have you known Mr. Remmer, Mr. Kyne? A. Over 20 years.

Q. Have you in the past been associated with him in business? A. Since about '41.

Q. Are you presently associated with him in business?

A. Well, I have my name on two licenses.

Q. Well, aside from having your name on two licenses, do you presently have any business interests in common with him? A. No.

Q. And when did you cease to have business interests in common with Mr. Remmer?

A. About February 4, 1949.

Q. Now you stated, I believe, that your association began in 1941? A. Correct.

Q. Do you recall the month of the year? [860]

A. December 1, 1941.

Q. And continued, as I understand you, until 1949? A. That's correct.

Q. Now what was the first business in which you became associated with Mr. Remmer?

A. First business was B & R Smoke Shoppe at 50 Mason Street.

Q. In San Francisco? A. That is right.

Q. What was the nature of that business?

A. Book making.

Q. By book making do you refer to book making on horse races? A. Horses, strictly.

Q. You say "strictly." In other words, it was entirely confined to that type of wager?

A. That's right.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. What was the next enterprise that you became associated with him?

A. 110 Eddy, a tavern.

Q. When did you become associated with him in that enterprise?

A. I believe it was, oh, it was either '42 or '43.

Q. And what was the next enterprise you became associated with him in?

A. The 186 Club and the Day-Night Cigar Store.

Q. Do you recall the date that you became associated with him in those enterprises? [861]

A. No, I can't remember the exact date. I believe it was shortly after the 110 deal.

Q. What was the nature of the business of the 186 Club?

A. 186 Club was a social club and card room.

Q. And what was the nature of the Day-Night Cigar Store?

A. A cigar store, running 24 hours a day.

Q. Was it also a liquor store? A. Yes.

Q. And what was the next business that you became associated with him in after that?

A. Menlo Club.

Q. Where is it located?

A. 33 Turk Street.

Q. What was the nature of its business?

A. Card room.

Q. And what was the next business you became associated with him? A. That was it.

Q. Do you recall the Transit Smoke Shop?

A. Oh, I am sorry, yes, the Transit Smoke Shop.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. Now have you completed the list?

A. That's it. I missed the Transit Smoke Shop.

Q. Do you recall when you became associated in the Transit Smoke shop?

A. 1946, November. [862]

Q. Were you at any time associated with Mr. Remmer in the operation of Cal-Neva?

A. No, I was not.

Q. Were you at any time associated with Mr. Remmer in the operation of the 21 Club or San Diego Social Club? A. No.

Q. Were you and Mr. Remmer at any time associated together in a venture relative to the purchase of Gallagher and Burton whiskey?

A. I think I bought the check to make the payment for it.

Q. Now turning first to the B & R Smoke Shoppe, which you say was located at 50 Mason Street, in the City of San Francisco, and which I believe you testified to be engaged in the business of booking horses, now what was the ownership of that business, that is to say, was it a partnership, a corporation, or sole proprietorship?

A. It was a partnership, Remmer 50 per cent, Lando 25 per cent, and Kyne 25 per cent.

Q. Did you contribute any of the investment in that business, Mr. Kyne? A. No, I did not.

Q. At the time that business was acquired, was it operated by some one else?

A. Yes, it was operated by a man called Sherwood.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. Sherwood? A. A. Sherwood. [863]

Q. Was any consideration or money paid to Mr. Sherwood at the time the business was acquired?

A. I believe the purchase price was $2,500.

Q. By whom was that paid? A. Remmer.

Q. Did you or Mr. Lando contribute any of that purchase price? A. Nothing.

Q. Now in connection with the operation of that business, was it necessary that there be a bank roll?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And what was the amount of the bank roll used in the operation of the B & R Smoke Shoppe?

A. Seventy-five hundred.

Q. Who contributed that? A. Remmer.

Q. When was that originally put up?

A. December 1, 1941.

Q. Now how long did that business continue to operate?

A. I operated it until February 14, 1945.

Q. You went into the service at that time?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. When did you return from the service?

A. Went back to work June 8, 1946.

Q. And when you came back to work June 8, 1946, was the B & R Smoke Shoppe [864] operating? A. At the time I don't think it was.

Q. Was it subsequently reopened?

A. Yes.

Q. And do you recall when?

A. I can't recall. At times we closed down for

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

a month or two, due to different things. On my return I don't think it was operating.

Q. How soon after you returned, if you recall?

A. Well, my books will show that.

Q. Did you keep the records of the B & R Smoke Shoppe? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Of what did those records consist?

A. They consisted of one entry each day, whether we lost or won.

Mr. Campbell: At this time, if the Court please, I wonder if certain of the records in the clerk's possession can be produced. I am referring to certain books and records. I wonder how physically we can do that? I am referring to certain records which are in the clerk's office.

(Clerk produces box of records.)

Q. I am going to show you——

Mr. Golden: Just a minute—we object to the opening of this material to the witness, whether or not it is offered in evidence, and move to suppress its use by the government, on the ground it is illegally obtained and violates the defendant's [865] constitutional rights, for all the reasons heretofore stated in our many motions, and we again offer to adduce evidence to show the circumstances of the original obtaining of these books by the government.

Mr. Campbell: I think that matter has been thoroughly covered.

The Court: Yes. The objection will be overruled.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. I am going to show you a volume with the imprint on the outside, "Daily Reminder 1942," and ask you if that is one of the books to which you refer? A. That is right.

Mr. Campbell: I ask that this be marked for identification as government's next in order—111 for identification.

Q. I show you a similar volume with the imprint on the outside, "Daily Reminder," and the year 1943, and ask you if that is also a book which you maintained relating to that business?

A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Campbell: I will ask that this be marked 111-A for identification.

Q. I show you a volume with the imprint, "Standard Daily Journal 1945," and direct your attention to the first page and ask you if that is a record which you made?

A. It looks like my writing.

Q. Is that a volume which you kept in connection with that business? [866] A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Campbell: I will ask that this be marked 111-B for identification, 1945.

Q. I show you a plain leather bound volume, upon which on the first page appears date January 1, 1946, and ask you if that also is a record maintained by you in the conduct of the B & R Smoke Shoppe? A. Those are my figures; yes, sir.

Mr. Campbell: I will ask that this be marked Exhibit 111-C.

Q. Mr. Kyne, was a similar book kept for the

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

year 1944?

A. I believe you have it here.

Q. Could you step down and examine these books and see if you can identify it?

(Witness examines box.)

A. It isn't there.

Mr. Golden: May we offer the same objection to that procedure and the further objection there is no showing that has been brought into the court room all the material deposited with the clerk.

The Court: I wish you would make your objection before the procedure was carried out.

Mr. Golden: It was such an unusual procedure I couldn't see what it was.

The Court: If there is anything wrong, I don't see how [867] it could be cured now.

Mr. Golden: We could do it this way. I move your Honor to advise the jury that the inability of the witness to find in one box a certain book has no significance.

The Court: I so advise the jury, the inability of the witness to find a certain record in a box has no significance.

Mr. Campbell: May I inquire if the clerk has brought in all the records?

The Clerk: No, your Honor, there are other records.

The Court: Did you ask the clerk to bring them all in?

Mr. Campbell: That is what I understood. Possibly we can pass this matter until the recess and those records can be examined at that time.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

The Court: Very well, all right.

Q. Now so far as the years in question which are represented by these four volumes, 1942, 1943, 1945, and 1946, are these the only records maintained with respect to the B & R Smoke Shoppe?

A. That's correct.

Q. And were they maintained by you as part of your duties as a partner there? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Campbell: I am going to offer these in evidence.

Mr. Golden: To which we object upon all the grounds heretofore stated. [868]

The Court: Does counsel desire to examine them?

Mr. Golden: Well, yes, perhaps we had better. Of course, your Honor, the further objection as to 111 and 111-A that they cover the years 1942 and 1943, which are not years covered by the indictment. Pardon us just a moment. Your Honor, while we are going over these proffered exhibits, may I have permission to question the witness on his voir dire concerning the exhibit which Mr. Campbell had him come down and look for, the potential exhibit he had him look for, namely, a diary for the year 1944?

The Court: There is nothing before the Court in regard to that now, Mr. Golden.

Mr. Golden: I know there isn't, but I would like to request it.

The Court: I will deny your request.

Mr. Golden: Now then, if the Court please, I wish to assign as misconduct on the part of the prosecution the procedure whereby the witness was asked to look through these records for diary for the year 1944, on this ground, your Honor, that it was not included in the material which the government turned over to Mr. Semenza, it is not included in the subpoena directed to Mr. Semenza, it was therefore not deposited with the clerk, although it appears in the record here, and having the witness search for it in the presence of the triers leaves an inference the defendant is withholding something. The [869] government knew they were not here.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

The Court: The record will show the assign and the Court again instructs the jury not to draw any inference from the circumstance where the witness left the stand and went down with counsel to look at the records. Have you finished your examination of the books?

Mr. Golden: Yes, we have looked at them.

The Court: You have stated your objections on all the grounds heretofore stated?

Mr. Golden: Yes, your Honor. Does your Honor feel the record is quite clear as to what the grounds are?

The Court: You may state them if you want to, if you are not satisfied with the record. Of course, the Court is. Just state your grounds if you are not satisfied with the record.

Mr. Golden: I have, in mind this matter, we were going to take up further with the Court when these things were offered in evidence. Your Honor will recall that. In other words, we were protesting originally with the deposit and the Court said when they were offered in evidence we will take it up further.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

The Court: Yes, yesterday we had an argument and I suggested some question and we had quite a discussion, which I think satisfies the Court.

Mr. Golden: We object to all four, that is 111, 111-A, [870] 111-B, and 111-C, on the grounds that they were illegally obtained and retained by the agents of the prosecution and that their acquisition and retention and use at this trial violates the constitutional rights of the defendant; namely, the fourth and fifth amendments of the Constitution of the United States; that the agents of the prosecution promised to return them to the persons from whom they got them at the time they got them and did not keep their promises, and we offered, of course, as your Honor knows, to show a factual basis for those objections by evidence of witnesses, and we further object to the proffered Exhibits 111 and 111-A on the grounds they are incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial, in that they apparently cover years which are not within the scope of this indictment, and we move to suppress the same and for their return to us and suppress their use in evidence and for their return to us, as well as objecting to their introduction in evidence.

The Court: Objection overruled and the motion will be denied and the Exhibits 111, 111-A, 111-B, and 111-C, will be admitted in evidence.

Mr. Campbell: May I ask your Honor that the

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

jury be advised to disregard the factual statements made by counsel?

The Court: Yes, I think the jury will understand from other matters which have occurred here. I want to remind the jury once more—and it seems unnecessary to do it—that this case is to be decided entirely [871] upon testimony from the witnesses and documents which are admitted in evidence and any remarks of the Court or counsel, exchanges back and forth, are not evidence and are not to be considered; just the evidence of the witnesses and contents of the documents which are admitted. So the jury will disregard any evidence other than testimony of witnesses and contents of the documents admitted.

Q. Mr. Kyne, in regard to the operation of the B & R Smoke Shoppe, in addition to your personal interest of 25 per cent, did you draw any salary?

A. Ten dollars a day.

Q. And was that throughout the period until you went into the army and after you returned from the army?

A. Before I went to the army.

Q. After you returned from the army, did you continue to draw that amount?

A. No, I didn't.

Q. Did you draw any salary after that?

A. No.

Q. Now at all times when you were present, that is to say excluding the period of time that you were in the army, at all times that you were present and

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

while the business was in operation, so that we are excluding periods of a month or so being closed for various reasons, who was in charge of the [872] business? A. I was.

Q. And who handled the money?

A. I did.

Q. Who paid the expenses of the business?

A. I paid the expenses.

Q. Were you here in court when Mr. Lando testified? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now you will recall that he testified there were two phases of the operation of that business, first it operated as an open pool room, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you recall over what period of time that was? A. Until about the end of '44.

Q. And will you describe what is meant by open pool room operation?

A. It is where any one can walk in from the sidewalk and walk through the door and place a bet.

Q. Incidentally, this enterprise was called the B & R Smoke Shoppe. Will you state whether or not there was any merchandise by way of smokes or tobacco for sale there?

A. We had some boxes out in front on different shelves.

Q. Will you state whether or not there were cigars in those boxes?

A. They were dummy boxes.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. Did you have any merchandise for sale there at all in the [873] front part of the store?

A. No, sir.

Q. There is reference made here to one John, the Doorman. Do you know him?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is his name, if you recall?

A. I forget his name. The social security will show.

Q. What were his duties?

A. Well, we couldn't allow every one in; for instance, if a person was drinking or something, we didn't want them in there and it was up to him to keep them out.

Q. In other words, I take it his duties were somewhat as his name implies, John, the Doorman? He watched the door, is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. Now I am going to call your attention to Plaintiff's Exhibit 111, the daily reminder of 1942, as an example, and calling your attention to the first entry therein of Thursday, January 1, 1942, $7,300 cash BR, will you state to what that refers?

A. That would mean bank roll.

Q. The figure is repeated below the line, $7,300, then appears $19.25 win, to what does that refer?

A. That was the day's winnings.

Q. And the final figure, $7,319.25, what would that then represent? [874]

A. That is what was there.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. Would you state whether or not that would represent the bank roll at the end of the day?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you glance through here and see if that same method of accounting is used throughout the year? A. That seems to be it.

Q. Now referring to the figures for "Win" or "Lose," there are, are there not, certain days on which there was a loss, isn't that correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you state whether or not the figure of "Win" or "Lose" for the day as set forth in this Government's Exhibit 111, is a net or gross figure?

A. Net.

Q. And will you state whether or not that figure is arrived at before or after expenses had been paid? A. After.

Q. And will you state whether or not that included all expenses of doing business?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. For example, did that include salaries?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And the expenses that were deducted before the figure was arrived at? [875] A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did that include your daily salary?

A. Yes, sir. What year was that?

Q. This happens to be 1942 that I show you.

Mr. Gillen: I think we ought to offer an objection concerning the details as being incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial and not within the time in the confines of the indictment, which commenced

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

in the year 1944, and ends in the year 1946, those are the three years concerned.

The Court: It is part of the same discussion we had early in the trial on the question of the starting point, pertaining to the same ideas.

Mr. Avakian: I don't believe so. These questions are not directed to establishing net worth at the end of any particular year, but rather are details of the transactions that occurred during the year and I do not see that they would have any relevancy on the question of net worth at the end of the year.

Mr. Campbell: I might state I am asking these questions as to operation of business and how the figures were arrived at and it is material to the net worth of this defendant and to the starting point, as will be developed.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, that is a simple statement of conclusion. There is no explanation offered as to the manner in which he kept books in 1942 would throw any light on net [876] at the end of any particular year, or more specifically at the beginning of this indictment period. Now if the materiality will develop later, the proper foundation should be laid. If this is simply an example, then one of the years of the indictment period should be used.

Mr. Campbell: I think the materiality will develop.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, in fairness to all, shouldn't there be a statement how this would become material?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Mr. Campbell: Possibly I can shorten the argument by asking another question.

Q. I call your attention to the entry shown of December 31, 1942, the final figure $14,872.80, do you observe that? A. Yes.

Q. What does that figure represent?

A. That was what was left.

Q. Was that what you have termed the bank roll? A. Bank roll, yes.

Q. And before arriving at that figure, had all of the expenses of doing business during the year been deducted? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And with respect to the win or lose figure as set forth below, did that figure represent then a net figure after expenses had been deducted?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now I call your attention to Government's Exhibit 111-A, [877] which purports to be the record for 1943, and I call your attention to the first entry under January 1, 1943, $15,000 BR, what does that figure represent? A. Bank roll.

Q. I call your attention to the fact that the last entry on December 31, 1942, was $14,872.80, so that there is a difference of some $27.20 in the opening bank roll of 1943, do you recall the circumstance?

A. Some one may have paid a marker.

Q. Now in connection with the operation of the business, were all of the bets which you accepted cash bets? A. No, sir.

Q. Was or was not credit given to some of the customers?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

A. On the phone and also at the counter.

Q. I call your attention in Government's Exhibit 111-A to two pages, the last two pages in the book, under the heading "Memoranda," with certain names and amounts and ask you to what that refers? For example, on the back page here is an entry, "Dugan, $80.00"? A. That is correct.

Q. To what does that refer?

A. He has a marker.

Q. Will you explain what you mean by marker?

A. One who bets and does not pay in this respect.

Q. In connection with the obligation of $80, were you holding [878] any document of any kind representing that obligation?

A. You mean a note?

Q. Yes. A. No, sir.

Q. Or an IOU? A. No, sir, just his word.

Q. Now I notice there is quite a column of those notations there opposite names, running in amount from $5 to $80, I believe is the highest, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do they all represent what you call markers or obligations of those who have not paid you?

A. Yes, sir, the IOUs are still in the book.

Q. Were those ever paid, if you know?

A. There are two items which have been paid and marked paid, Aleck, the barber, and Eddie Woods.

Q. And can you tell when those items were paid?

A. Aleck, the barber, paid February 22nd and Eddie was paid on March 29th.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. Of what year?

A. It must have been '44.

Q. Well, these were outstanding markers at that time? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I call your attention to the preceding page, where there are certain amounts and names set forth in red ink, running from [879] $5 to the amount appears $1,527.25.

A. That is the total, isn't it?

Q. Isn't that a subtotal?

A. Total, yes. I think that also includes the preceding page. No, that does not include the preceding page.

Q. What are these in red ink?

A. Those are markers, also.

Q. Now the fact that only one of these is scratched out, what would that indicate to you?

A. Evidently it was marked up.

Q. As to the others, were they outstanding at the end of the year? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I call your attention to a page in the memorandum in which appears the following language: "Total winnings $7,796.15," is that in your handwriting?

A. No, sir, that is not in my handwriting.

Q. Do you know in whose handwriting that is?

A. I wouldn't have any idea. That is a copy of that amount on that page there.

Mr. Avakian: Can Mr. Campbell identify the page on which that appears so the record may be clear?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Mr. Campbell: First page, Memorandum 1943. This is 111-A.

Q. As I understood your testimony, the character of the business changed in 1944? [880]

A. Toward the end of '44; yes, sir.

Q. What was the method of operation of the business after that change? Do you recall the date of that? A. No, I do not.

Q. What was the nature of the method of operating the business after that change?

A. A phone business.

Q. After you returned from the army, when you became associated with the business again, what was the nature of the business, that is, by phone or by open pool? A. Phone business.

Q. You went into the army early in 1945?

A. February 14th.

Q. And you returned when?

A. The end of May. I went to work June 8th.

Q. And as I recall your testimony, you said it was closed for a while after you returned?

A. I believe it was. It was on a month and then off.

Q. Now I call your attention to Plaintiff's Exhibit 111-C, which purports to be a record for the year 1946, and I call your attention to the date of September 30th, upon which appear, I believe, the first entries in that book. You might examine the book to make sure that is correct; beside the date 1946 appearing on the first page, is that correct?

A. I believe so, yes. [881]

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. I believe you stated that this record is kept in your handwriting? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now I call your attention to the fact that apparently this is a little different type of record than the preceding one, is that correct?

A. That is the way the government wanted it.

Mr. Gillen: I move to strike that as not responsive.

Mr. Campbell: I agree, it is not responsive.

The Court: It may go out.

(Question read.)

A. That is correct.

Q. I call your attention to the first item, $19,936 pay, what does that represent?

A. That is what we paid out.

Q. The next item, $12,698T, what is that?

A. The take.

Q. And the final, $7,248 L? A. Loss.

Q. So those were the losses for that day, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now for the next day, October 1st, first item is $16,050 T? A. Take.

Q. And 12,413.75 P? A. Play. [882]

Q. And 3,636.25 W? A. Win.

Q. When you refer to "play," that refers to the gross amount of bets accepted for that day?

A. Yes, sir, that is the handle.

Q. By "handle" you refer to the amounts of bets that were handled?

A. The money that we handled; yes, sir.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. And by "pay," you refer to the amount that is paid out to those that were fortunate enough to bet a winner? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And by subtracting one from the other you then determine your winnings or losings for that day? A. Correct.

Q. Now will you state whether or not in the figure "pay" as set forth in this volume, Government's Exhibit 111-C, are the expenses of the business taken out? A. Yes, sir.

Q. So they then become a part of pay-out?

A. Correct.

Q. For example, if on a given day you paid your rent—incidentally, were those premises rented?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And do you recall the rent that was paid?

A. $275, that included a warehouse and storeroom. [883]

Q. Was that a month? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And was that paid monthly?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And was that paid, if you recall, by cash or by check?

A. I don't remember. Usually cash. The agent for the Wilson estate used to come around. I am pretty sure it was cash.

Q. On the day that that was paid, will you state whether or not that was added to the "pay" figure as set forth in these records?

A. That would be taken out; yes, sir.

Q. So that included in the figure of "pay-out" here is not only the payments which you made to winners of bets, but also the expenses of the business? A. Yes, sir.

resumed the witness stand on further

Direct Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Now in further explanation of this record, I call your attention to Plaintiff's Exhibit 111-A, book relative to 1943, and call your attention to the fact that, for example, on [884] January 19, 1943, there appears some four figures with names opposite them in amount, middle of the page: 250—Johnny; 525—Fisher; 200—Switzer; 3050—Gus. To what does that refer?

A. It is in reference to our accounts. I don't know whether it was a carry-over or what it was, but that is what it refers to.

Q. Does that refer to money owed to the B & R or by the B & R? A. Right now I forget.

Q. Do you know who any of these individuals are? A. Yes, sir.

BLEED THROUGH— POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. For example, 3050 Gus, who is that?

A. Greenbaum.

Q. And your answer, I presume would be the same where other such notations appear?

A. Yes, except it paid out or something going out.

Q. I see notation 250 here?

A. Abdo, Tony Abdo.

Q. Now in relation to the B & R Smoke Shoppe, Mr. Kyne, did you maintain a bank account?

A. I believe we did; yes, sir.

Q. And do you recall in what bank that was maintained?

A. That would be the Bank of America, No. 1 Powell.

Q. I show you Government's Exhibit 29, photostatic copy of a commercial account in the name of B & R Smoke Shoppe, 50 Mason Street, Bank of America, Day and Night Office, together [885] with signature cards thereof, and ask you if these are the records of the bank account which you refer to as being maintained by the B & R Smoke Shoppe? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And were you the only authorized signator on that account? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now during the time that you were in the service, do you know who handled the financial business of the B & R Smoke Shoppe?

A. No, I don't.

Q. I will ask you whether or not there was also opened an account in the Crocker First National

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Bank in the name of the B & R Smoke Shoppe, and for the purpose of refreshing your recollection, I will show you Plaintiff's Exhibit 23, containing the commercial account ledger sheets and signature card on that account.

A. I opened it up. I forgot it.

Q. Do you recall that account, Mr. Kyne?

A. July 17, 1946—I may have opened this account and I left it down there and got a safe deposit box also, probably at the same time.

Q. Do you recall opening that account now?

A. I really don't.

Q. That is your signature on the signature card?

A. Yes. I remember going down there and getting a safe deposit [886] box but I don't remember opening up this account.

Q. Now in connection with the operation of the B & R Smoke Shoppe, was a safety deposit box maintained? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where was that safety deposit box?

A. No. 1 Powell Street, Bank of America.

Q. That is the Day and Night office of the Bank of America? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And do you recall the number of that box?

A. Forty-eight.

Q. Over what period of time did you maintain that box? A. I still have it.

Q. Do you recall approximately when you opened that box?

A. It was opened since we have been in business.

BLEED THROUGH— POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. Since 1941? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And who, in addition to yourself, had access to that box? A. Elmer Remmer.

Q. Did any one else have access to it?

A. No, sir.

Q. In connection with your association with Mr. Remmer and these various businesses, was more than one safety deposit box maintained?

A. By myself?

Q. Yes, by yourself and in connection with the business? [887]

A. I had two other boxes directly with the business.

Q. And where were they located?

A. One was at No. 1 Powell and the other was at the Crocker Bank.

Q. I am going to show you Government's Exhibit 25 for identification, which has heretofore been identified by a representative of the Crocker National Bank, with relation to safety box No. 730, and ask you if that is your signature?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Does that relate to the box to which you refer in the Crocker National Bank?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. I call your attention to the signature, "Henry Clay."

Mr. Gillen: The defense will stipulate the signature, "Henry Clay," is in the handwriting of the defendant, Elmer Remmer.

Q. Is that correct, Mr. Kyne?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

A. Yes, sir.

Q. It would appear here that the box was opened on February 29, 1944, and was surrendered on March 5, 1947, does that coincide with your recollection, Mr. Kyne?

A. I don't remember the exact date.

Q. You do recall that the box was given up?

A. That's correct.

Q. I call your attention to the fact that the address given [888] under the signature of Henry Clay is St. Francis Hotel. Did Mr. Remmer maintain a residence in the St. Francis Hotel?

A. He lived there at the times when he was in town.

Q. What business was this particular box under the name of William E. Kyne and Henry Clay used for?

A. Well, we took that box out because we had an account there with the Menlo Club.

Q. And was that box used in connection with the Menlo Club business? A. No, it was not.

Q. Was it used in connection with any particular business? A. No, sir.

Q. Now in regard to the operation of the B & R Smoke Shoppe, there has been some testimony here relative to what is known as layoff bets. Will you state whether or not it was the practice of the B & R Smoke Shoppe, during the time that you were in active management, both to receive and place layoff bets? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And did that practice continue throughout

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

the time of operation from the beginning and up until the end of 1946?

A. It would happen almost every race.

Q. Now with regard to the acceptance of layoff bets, Mr. Kyne, will you state whether or not it is customary for a commission to be paid?

A. No, sir. [889]

Q. Did either the acceptance or the placing of layoff bets by the B & R Smoke Shoppe involve a payment or receipt of commissions?

A. Will you repeat that question?

(Question read.)

A. We received commission in one spot. We used to have access to the mutuels at the California Jockey Club and they paid us, I believe, 2½ per cent commission. That was the only place that we received money during our layoff operations.

Q. Were bets which you had accepted then placed directly with the Jockey Club?

A. Well, the only time we used to take advantage of it was when we were loaded on horses.

Q. And in placing bets with the Jockey Club, do you refer to placing bets which would go then to the pari mutuel machine at the track?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And over what period of time was that practice followed?

A. It was a very short period. The California Racing Commission objected to it.

Q. Do you recall in what year that method was followed?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

A. You have the checks, the photostat of the checks.

Q. In that connection and in connection with all of your layoff business, either where you were accepting or where you were laying off bets yourself, what was the method of settlement [890] used?

A. Mostly cashier's checks.

The Court: I think we will take a recess now until Monday morning at 10:00 o'clock.

(Jury and alternate jurors admonished and recess taken at 3:45 p.m.) [891]

WILLIAM E. KYNE

resumes the witness stand on further

Direct Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Mr. Campbell: At the close of the session Friday the witness had identified Plaintiff's Exhibit 25 for identification, the signature card and certain slips relative to safety deposit box at the Crocker National Bank, as being jointly held by himself and the defendant under the name of Henry Clay. At this time I wish to offer this exhibit in evidence as government's 25.

The Court: Exhibit 25 may be admitted in evidence.

Mr. Campbell: With the Court's permission, I will read briefly from this exhibit. There is written on the document "Access to either." Bears the signature of William E. Kyne and signature of Henry Clay. (Reads Exhibit 25.)

Q. Now, Mr. Kyne, in addition to the safety deposit box, box No. 48, which you had at the Day and Night branch of the Bank of America and this box at the Crocker First National Bank, did you also maintain other safety deposit boxes with relation to Mr. Remmer's business?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

A. Had one at the Bank of America, a box that belonged to Pat Pritchett and myself. [892]

Q. Is Pat Pritchett the individual you have described as being an employee at the B & R Smoke Shoppe? A. Yes, sir, he is employed there.

Q. And is he the same individual described as handling the financial affairs of the B & R Smoke Shoppe during the period of time it was in operation and you were in the service?

A. That is correct.

Q. Now other than the type of daily diary record which you identified Friday, were any other books and records maintained by the B & R Smoke Shoppe? A. No, sir.

Q. Were there any books of the nature of general ledgers or journals? A. No, sir.

Q. Now will you state whether or not it was the practice for the partners in that enterprise, Mr. Remmer, yourself and Mr. Lando, to withdraw money from time to time during the years it might be needed? A. As they needed it, yes.

Q. And what record, if any, was maintained of those withdrawals?

A. Just put in a marker for whatever they needed.

Q. And what was the practice with relation to repaying those markers?

A. Well, they would pick the marker up whenever they could.

Q. As of the year ends, while you were there, did there still [893] remain markers?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

A. Usually on a settlement there was markers.

Q. And did or did not those markers enter into the final settlement at the end of each year?

A. They were considered as cash.

Q. Now as of the end of 1944, do you recall whether or not any of the partners were overdrawn, so far as their share of the profits were concerned?

A. No, I don't know.

Q. Do you recall, as of the end of 1946, were there any of the partners overdrawn so far as their share of the profits were concerned?

A. No, I don't.

Q. Aside from markers, which I believe you have identified as being similar in character of an IOU, was any book record kept of those amounts?

A. No, sir.

Q. Now with regard to the layoff bets which you accepted from others, did or did not the bets so received become a part of your regular business for the particular day?

Mr. Gillen: We offer the objection, first it is a confusing question, and secondly, to call for the conclusion of the witness.

Mr. Campbell: This man was a partner in that business.

The Court: You may answer the question. Do you [894] understand the question?

A. I wish you would repeat it.

Mr. Campbell: I will reframe it.

Q. For example, Mr. Kyne, on a particular day when you received layoff bets from other book-

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

makers, did or did not that become a part of and was that entered into your business for that day?

A. Yes, sir, that would be considered as part of the handle.

Q. And was or was not such money treated as other bets which you received from local people phoning in a bet?

Mr. Gillen: Just a moment. I am going to offer the objection that the question is confusing because as I recall there were two types of layoff bets, one where you would obtain somebody, other bookmakers to take up some of the bets, another where you take some of the bets yourself by way of layoff, and third where you lay off some money which you had to somebody else, so I think it should be broken down to what particular layoff bet counsel refers to.

The Court: I will inquire if the witness was confused by the question?

A. No, the question is clear.

The Court: You may answer.

Mr. Gillen: I wonder if counsel would clear it for me which type he is pertaining to?

The Court: Perhaps the answer would clear up the [895] confusion. If not, you can take it up on cross-examination.

(Question read.)

A. That is correct. It was just considered as handle.

Q. With regard to layoff bets received from other bookmakers and accepted by you, if the bet

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

was a losing bet, so far as the customer was concerned, who received the profit?

A. Who we laid to?

Q. No, I mean when you received the bet.

A. Who received the profit?

Q. Yes. A. The fellow you laid it off.

Q. No, I think you misunderstood my question. I am referring to bets which you have accepted of other bookmakers and placed with you, their laying off to you, and it is a losing bet, so far as the person putting up the money is concerned, who received the profit?

A. Are you talking about layoffs to us?

Q. To you.

A. If we accepted a bet, naturally that would be our profit.

Q. And in converse, if a bet won, you would suffer a loss, is that correct?

A. You refer to layoff from another bookmaker? We would consider that as a bet.

Q. The other bookmaker would consider that as layoff but you would consider it as bet? [896]

A. That's right.

Q. And if that bet won, you would have to pay the loss? A. The loss.

Q. If the bet lost, you would receive the profit, is that right? A. Correct.

Q. Now so far as lay-off bets which you made, did you assume either profit or loss on such bets?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

A. Just the way it went—we just handled the money.

Q. So that if the person who placed the money with you and which you laid off with another bookmaker, won his bet, the other bookmaker would have to pay it, is that correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. If he lost his bet, that bookmaker would receive the profit, is that correct? A. Correct.

Q. Now reference was made to the fact that layoff bets are ordinarily for two purposes, namely, to spread the money around so that the odds will not be affected, or, secondly, where a given bookmaker has assumed what he considered too great a risk on a particular horse, is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. Now so far as layoff bets from other bookmakers which are received by you, come bets to you, does it make any difference to your operation for what purpose the bets were placed with [897] you by other bookmakers?

A. Will you repeat the question?

(Question read.)

A. It is just a courtesy to move money off other bookmakers.

Q. But it is a fact, is it not, that such money is handled as other bets which you receive from your regular customers? A. Same way, yes, sir.

Mr. Gillen: I move to strike the question as leading and suggestive, assuming something not in

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

evidence. I think it is confusing because the witness had answered it was a matter of courtesy, which I take it would mean there was no profit involved in the matter and then counsel in the last question said something as to the same as other customers placing bets, which would indicate there was a profit.

The Court: The motion will be denied.

Mr. Gillen: May I have the question and answer read?

(Question and answer read.)

Q. Now I believe you stated, Mr. Kyne, that you were in the service from February, 1945, until approximately June of '46? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now during the period of time that you were in the service did you happen to be in New York City at any time? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you recall approximately when that was?

A. Whenever I could get a leave. [898]

Q. You were there from time to time?

A. That's right.

Q. Where were you stationed, Mr. Kyne?

A. Fayettville, North Carolina.

Q. Now do you recall an occasion when you were in New York City on leave when you were in contact with Mr. Remmer in New York City?

A. No.

Q. Do you recall an occasion when you were in New York City when you were in telephonic communication with Mr. Remmer?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

A. I used to talk to him on the phone, yes, sir.

Q. I will ask you whether or not on any occasion you learned that you had an interest in a New York night club? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now do you recall when that was?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Well, can you place it this way——

A. Well, it was winter—I believe it was towards the end of the year. It was quite cold there.

Q. You were in the service at that time?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you stated you were in the service between February, 1945, and June, 1946—would that be toward the end of 1945?

A. That would be it.

Q. Now will you relate the conversation, the telephonic [899] conversation, that you had with Mr. Remmer in that regard?

A. He suggested that I go to this certain address and I asked him, I said, I didn't want to go there in the first place, I just had my own friends to entertain.

Q. And what did he say?

A. So he suggested I go up and take a look at it because I had a piece of the place.

Q. Was that the first information you had on that subject matter? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was the name of the place, if you recall? A. I don't remember.

Q. Did you follow his suggestion and go to the place? A. Yes, sir.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. Will you describe the place and business conducted there? A. Just another night club.

Q. Do you recall its location?

A. No, I don't.

Q. Do you know how large a place it was?

A. No, I don'.t

Q. Do you recall who the managers or operators of the night club were?

A. Lew Brice, I believe.

Q. Is that the brother of Fanny Brice?

A. Fanny Brice's brother, yes, sir. [900]

Q. Do you recall whether or not there was a second operator there? A. No, I do not.

Q. Do you recall the name of Mattie Silverman?

A. I do not believe I recognize it.

Q. Now had you invested any money in that enterprise? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you at any time? A. No, sir.

Q. Upon the occasion of your visit to that night club, did you learn whether or not you purportedly owned a portion of it?

Mr. Gillen: Just a moment. That would be hearsay. Objected to on that ground.

The Court: Answer that question yes or no.

A. Will you repeat the question?

(Question read.)

A. No.

Q. You had no discussion of that matter with any one? A. No, sir.

Q. Was that the only occasion upon which you visited that place? A. Yes, sir.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. Did you at any time receive any profits from the operation of that night club? A. No, sir.

Q. Or did you at any time receive any profits or distribution [901] of capital from that operation?

A. No, sir.

Q. Now, Mr. Kyne, are you familar with a business known as 110 Eddy Street? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is the nature of that business?

A. Tavern.

Q. That is the sole business that is conducted there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you, yourself, have any interest in that business? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was the extent of your interest?

A. A working interest.

Q. And will you describe what you mean by a working interest?

A. I think I received 25 per cent interest for keeping the books and whatever was necessary to do around the place.

Q. When did you first become interested in the 110 Eddy Street?

A. I think it was about 1942.

Q. Did you have any agreement with any one relative to your working interest? A. No, sir.

Q. Who else had interests in that operation?

A. Well, to start off there was Clarence Bent, Arthur Pratt, Kyne, Remmer, Turner and Cavani.

Q. Were they all at the same time? [902]

A. No, not at the same time.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. Now before the business was taken over, who operated it?

A. Clarence Bent. The place was known as the Crystal Tavern.

Q. Do you recall when it was taken over?

A. No, I don't.

Q. Could you state whether or not, or does the year 1942 refresh your recollection?

A. I believe it was in 1942.

Q. And do you recall the circumstances under which it was taken over?

A. Clarence Bent owed Remmer about over four thousand dollars, I guess it was, and to protect his money he took the tavern over.

Q. And at the time he took it over, as you say, to protect his money, who then became interested in it? A. Arthur Pratt had one-third of it.

Q. Do you recall what Mr. Pratt paid for it?

A. I believe $3500, I am not sure.

Q. To whom did he pay that money, do you know? A. I think to me.

Q. What, if anything, did you do with the money? A. Probably paid bills.

Q. Well, what is your recollection?

A. Well, we put quite a bit of money into the place.

Q. When you say "we put quite a bit of money into the place," [903] to whom do you refer?

A. Mr. Remmer.

Q. Did you, yourself, put any money into the place? A. No, sir.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. Did any one else, other than Mr. Pratt, who bought his interest you say for $3500, did any one else put any money into the place other than Mr. Remmer? A. No, sir.

Q. And aside from Mr. Pratt's $3500, as expenditures there, by way of improvements or money to operate the business or purchasing stock, stock-in-trade, did any one other than Mr. Remmer pay any money? A. No, sir.

Q. Now how long did Mr. Pratt remain interested in the business?

A. I don't remember. The books should show.

Mr. Campbell: If the Court please, at this time we desire certain records of 110 Eddy Street which are in the clerk's office. I have asked one of the agents to step out with the clerk so they can be readily identified.

The Clerk: I have them right here.

Q. I will ask that these two bound account books be given one number for identification.

The Clerk: 112.

Q. I show you two bound volumes, Mr. Kyne, and ask you to examine those and state if you recognize them? [904]

A. I believe that is Slater's writing.

Q. By Slater, to whom do you refer?

A. The bookkeeper.

Q. Bookkeeper for whom? A. 110 Eddy.

Q. Mr. Slater is now deceased?

A. Yes. He was also bookkeeper for the Day-Night Cigar Store.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. And do you recognize these as being the books maintained for the 110 Eddy Street?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now in whose name were the liquor licenses at 110 Eddy Street?

A. I think they were in my name.

Q. Over what period of time?

A. Oh, about a year, I guess.

Q. What year was that?

A. I don't know whether it was '42 or '43.

Q. And in whose name were they after that?

A. Remmer, Kyne, Cavani and Turner.

Q. How long did they continue in those names?

A. Until the place folded.

Q. When was that?

A. I believe it was '47.

Q. What was Turner's first name? [905]

A. Clarence, I think.

Q. And it is Frank Cavani?

A. Frank Cavani, yes, sir.

Q. Now during the years 1944, 1945, and 1946, did Cavani and Turner continue throughout that period to be active in the conduct of the business?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What were their duties in respect to the business?

A. I believe that Cavani was there in the day time and Turner used to be there at night time.

Q. What duties did they perform there?

A. Manager.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. And what share of the business, if you know, did Cavani have? A. One-fourth.

Q. And what share of the business did Turner have? A. One-fourth.

Q. Now did you receive at any time any of the profits from the operation of that business?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did you at any time report as income to you profits of that business? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And in what years? A. Since '42.

Q. Now with regard to income taxes accruing on such profit as [906] you reported, from what source, if any, did you obtain money to pay taxes?

A. From Slater.

Q. And Slater you refer to the bookkeeper?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you state whether or not on the profit of the 110 Eddy Street which you reported on your return, if you paid out of your personal funds that part of the tax which accrued by reason of reporting that profit?

A. I received the money from 110 Eddy, from Bob Slater, to pay on my interest.

Q. Now I call your attention to government's Exhibit 80, the partnership return of income for the calendar year 1943 of 110 Eddy Street, and ask you if that is your signature attached thereto?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. I call your attention to the "Partner's Share of Income," the ordinary net income having been reported $10,275, which is divided, W. E. Kyne, $6,850 and Arthur R. Pratt, $3,425?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

A. That is correct.

Q. Will you state what the division of profits for the year 1943 from 110 Eddy Street was?

Mr. Gillen: We offer the objection it is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial. It is a year prior to the starting point of the indictment. [907]

The Court: Objection will be overruled.

A. The reason we filed this way, we run into quite a bit of difficulty——

Mr. Campbell: No, that is not responsive to my question. Read the question again.

(Question read.)

Mr. Gillen: I think the books speak for themselves, if the Court please. You have a set of books there and the return also speaks for itself. I object on those grounds.

The Court: I think the objection is good. The record will speak for itself.

Mr. Campbell: Yes, your Honor, but I am asking an explanation of that return, which shows two-thirds to one and one-third to another partner.

The Court: What is the question?

(Question read.)

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Did you yourself receive the sum of $6,850 set forth on that account? A. No, sir.

Mr. Gillen: Just a minute——

The Court: The answer may go out.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Mr. Avakian: Objected to as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial. Involves the year 1943 and certainly Mr. Campbell knows the taxation of partnership income is based on not what [908] is withdrawn by the partners, but rather on their proportionate interest in the profits of the business and therefore the question is immaterial in determining the correctness of a report of the income. That is the law and I think counsel knows it and I think your Honor is well aware of it too.

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question.

(Question read.)

A. No, sir.

Q. Mr. Kyne, does that amount of $6,850 which is set forth as your share, does that include the share of profits accruing to the benefit of any one other than yourself?

A. That was credited to me on the books.

Mr. Campbell: Will you read the question?

(Question read.)

A. No, sir.

Mr. Gillen: Just a moment—that would be assuming something not in evidence—it is already answered.

The Court: Objection overruled. The answer may stand.

Mr. Gillen: I withdraw the objection.

Q. In order that I may understand the situation then, Mr. Kyne, do I understand the only persons interested in the partnership in 1943 were yourself and Mr. Pratt?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Mr. Gillen: We offer the objection to counsel calling for Mr. Kyne's opinion and confusion of Mr. Campbell's understanding. I think a direct question would be who was interested, [909] would cover the situation.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. During the year 1943 who were the partners in 110 Eddy Street?

A. Remmer, Kyne, Pratt and Clarence Bent.

Q. In what amounts were they interested?

A. One-third, each had a third.

Q. You have enumerated four people.

A. I was included with Remmer.

Q. Did you have one-half of one-third interest, then Mr. Kyne? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Would you explain the circumstances under which on the partnership return two-thirds of profit are shown as being your distributive share?

A. At that time Clarence Bent died and things were very upset around there, so we just put it in my name.

Q. Now did the two-thirds which is shown there on that return, which you signed in your name, did that belong to you? A. No, sir.

Q. To whom did it belong? A. Remmer.

Q. The entire amount? A. Yes, sir.

Q. The entire two-thirds?

A. That's right. [910]

Q. I will ask you whether or not, however, for

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

that year you reported the entire amount of $6,850 on your own personal return?

A. Will you repeat the question?

(Question read.)

A. I did.

Q. As I understand you, that full amount belonged to Mr. Remmer, is that correct?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as asked and answered. It is only asked for the purpose of emphasis and I think, may it please the Court, that counsel is proceeding along a line of questions that is going to result in an argument. It has been pointed out, may it please the Court, that in a partnership, whatever is charged to the partner by way of profit, under the income tax law that partner is chargeable in his income tax, whether he receives the money or not. Counsel knows that and we do not want to be placed in the position of persistently offering objections to something that counsel knows.

The Court: I have an idea there may be another point involved in that statement, so the objection will be overruled. You may answer this question.

A. Will you repeat the question.

(Question read.)

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as asked and answered several times.

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question. [911]

A. Yes.

Q. Incidentally, who prepared that partnership return? A. Slater.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. And that is the bookkeeper that you referred to? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And who prepared the personal return which you signed? A. Slater.

Q. And I believe you stated, did you not, that Mr. Slater was the person that gave you the money from 110 Eddy to pay your income tax?

A. Yes, sir; he kept the books.

Q. Did you receive any salary from 110 Eddy Street? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever, other than money which was given to you in regard to paying income tax on the funds which you reported, or profits which you reported accruing from the 110 Eddy Street, did you ever receive any money from that business operation?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as having been asked and answered several times.

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question.

A. No, sir.

Q. I am going to show you plaintiff's Exhibit 81 for identification, partnership return of income for 110 Eddy Street for the year 1944, and ask you if that is your signature? A. Yes, sir. [912]

Q. And by whom was that return prepared?

A. Slater.

Q. I show you plaintiff's Exhibit 82, partnership return of income for the year 1945, which was filed March 15, 1946, you were in the army at that time?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you, however, recognize the signature which is attached thereto, signature purportedly to be that of Frank Cavani, do you recognize that?

A. No, I do not.

Q. Do you recognize the signature of Harold Maundrell? A. No, I do not.

Q. Do you know Harold Maundrell?

A. He is in court.

Q. What connection, if any, did he have with this, or any of the other organizations in which you and Mr. Remmer had an interest?

A. He was Mr. Remmer's bookkeeper.

Q. Do you recall approximately when it was that Mr. Slater died? A. No, I do not.

Q. Can you state whether or not Mr. Maundrell replaced Mr. Slater as bookkeeper in the various enterprises? A. Yes, he did.

Q. I call your attention to Exhibit 83, 1946 partner's return of income for 110 Eddy Street and signed Frank Cavani, and call [913] your attention to the signature on the return of the person who prepared the return, C. D. Ayton, P.A., and ask you if you know who Mr. Ayton is?

A. Yes, I do know Mr. Ayton.

Q. Who was he?

A. He was a certified public accountant.

Q. Was he a certified public accountant or public accountant? A. I am pretty sure he was.

Q. That was your understanding?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What relation, if any, did he have with these businesses?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

A. He was bookkeeper for the Menlo Club.

Q. Do you know over what period of time?

A. I believe he was bookkeeper for Joe Baily, who owned the Menlo Club before Mr. Remmer had it.

Q. Did he continue to work in connection with the Menlo Club books?

A. He used the same bookkeeper, yes, sir.

Q. During the years 1945 and 1946 by whom, if you know, was Mr. Ayton employed?

A. By Remmer.

Q. Can you state whether or not he was employed simultaneously with Mr. Maundrell?

A. Yes, he took care of the income tax returns.

Q. Who? [914] A. Mr. Ayton.

Q. Did he maintain any of the records himself, that is to say, as to making records therein?

Mr. Gillen: In 1945 and 1946?

Mr. Campbell: 1944, 1945 and 1946.

Mr. Gillen: Just a moment. It has been established Mr. Kyne was in the army for over a year, so that would certainly be asking for conclusion.

Mr. Campbell: I asked if he knew, and during such periods from 1944, 1945 and 1946 when he was there.

The Court: He may answer if he knows.

A. I believe Mr. Ayton made the returns starting with 1945.

Q. Do you know if that was his only employment, or did he also keep books and records?

A. That I don't know.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. Is Mr. Ayton alive today?

A. No, he is not.

Q. Do you recall when he died?

A. No, I do not.

Q. Now with regard to Mr. Pratt's association with this business, do you recall where Mr. Pratt resided? A. Where he resides now?

Q. No, where he did in 1943? A. Vallejo.

Q. Do you recall how long Mr. Pratt continued to be connected [915] with the business after it was taken over by Mr. Remmer in 1942?

A. No, I don't.

Q. I call your attention to government's Exhibits 80 and 81, upon both of which you have identified your signature, and to the fact in 1943 return the partners are listed as yourself and Mr. Pratt, while in the 1944 return, Exhibit 81, the partners are listed as yourself, Cavani, Turner and Remmer. Does that refresh your recollection as to when Mr. Pratt ceased to be connected with the business?

A. I don't know the exact date that Mr. Remmer bought him out.

Direct Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Mr. Campbell: At this time I am going to offer these two exhibits in evidence.

Mr. Golden: To which we object upon all the grounds of illegality as heretofore urged. I think the record is clear.

The Court: Yes. The objection will be overruled and Exhibit 112 is admitted in evidence. [916]

Q. Now, Mr. Kyne, I call your attention to the fact that in the books which have heretofore been introduced in evidence as Exhibit 112, the account of W. E. Kyne is listed as W. E. Kyne, Trustee. Do you know to what that refers?

A. Well, I was in charge of the place, the money end of it.

Q. And is that the meaning of the term "trustee" which is used there?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as calling for opinion and conclusion of the witness. It has been established here that this set of books was kept by a bookkeeper named Slater and apparently whatever Mr. Slater chose to set Mr. Kyne up, whether he chose to call him trustee or what, would be Mr. Kyne's conclusion. Bookkeepers, we all know, have their own way of setting up accounts, and it is calling for conclusion.

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question.

Q. What is your answer, Mr. Kyne?

A. I was in charge of the place, trustee or whatever expression you want to use.

Q. Did you take any active part in the management of the bar? A. Yes, sir.

Q. To what extent?

A. You mean at the time of going in there?

Q. During the period set forth in that account, which runs from December 31, 1942, to the last entry in here, May 31, 1944?

A. Well, at first I was responsible for the bills and everything, [917] and after it got rolling I just let it roll.

Q. Will you state whether or not you maintained a bank account in connection with that business? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And where was that bank account maintained? A. Day and Night Bank.

Q. Under what name was it maintained?

A. 110 Eddy, I believe; I am not sure.

Q. And who were the authorized signators on that account? A. I signed the checks.

Q. Was anyone else authorized to sign the checks on that account? A. I do not remember.

Q. I call your attention to government's Exhibit

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

32, which consists of the ledger sheet of account with the Bank of America for 110 Eddy, 110 Eddy Street, San Francisco, California, and to the signature cards attached thereto, and ask you if that is a record of the bank account to which you refer?

A. I believe that is it; yes, sir.

Q. I call your attention to the fact that the authorized signatures at various times upon that account show signatures of Frank Cavani, T. C. Turner, William E. Kyne, and Slater; does that refresh your recollection as to the various signatures that were authorized on that account?

Mr. Gillen: I think the exhibit speaks for [918] itself.

The Court: Objection will be overruled. Answer the question.

A. This is the time I am speaking of. I was the only one that had a bank account.

Q. You are referring to this card which is dated September 23, 1942, when you were the only authorized signator; is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now subsequently were other signatures authorized on that account, if you know?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And they included the individuals to whom I referred? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now do you know whether or not any other bank accounts were utilized in connection with that operation? A. I do not believe so.

Q. Will you state whether or not any safety deposit box was utilized in connection with the 110

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Eddy Street? A. No, they had a safe.

Q. That safe was located on the premises?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now directing your attention to the fact that the books which have been produced here bear no entries of any date subsequent to 1945, will you state, if you know, whether or not records were maintained for the year 1946? [919]

A. I do not know.

Q. Do you know who the bookkeeper was for the enterprise in 1946? A. Harold Maundrell.

Q. Can you state whether or not you ever saw books and records pertaining to the 110 Eddy Street for the year 1946? A. No, sir.

Q. Now after that business was acquired, Mr. Kyne, were certain improvements made?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you recall when those improvements were made? A. 1942.

Q. And who, if anyone, supplied the money for those improvements? A. Mr. Remmer.

Q. Now can you state whether or not those premises upon which the 110 Eddy Street business was conducted were leased from anyone?

A. I forget the name of the estate we leased it from.

Q. Do you recall the amount of the rent?

A. No, I don't.

Q. Did you have anything to do with the payment of the rent? A. No, sir.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. Do you recall whether or not you signed checks in payment for rent? [920]

A. I think I would have in the course of business.

Q. Who, if anyone, prepared the checks for the rent? A. I imagine Slater would.

Q. In regard to the bank account upon which you were the only signator, who prepared the checks relative to expenses or other operating costs which you signed? A. Slater.

Q. Who, if anyone, would present the checks to you for your signature? A. Slater.

Q. Will you state whether or not, after the 110 Eddy Street operations were acquired by Mr. Remmer, if additional premises were secured for the purpose of enlarging the business?

A. Yes, sir; we leased the store next door to 110 and broke the wall through and made a large circular bar.

Q. Do you recall the cost of this improvement?

A. No, I do not. I think the books will show.

Q. What is your best recollection?

A. I do not remember.

Q. I believe you stated Mr. Remmer advanced the money for that purpose? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know whether or not salaries were paid to Turner and Cavani?

A. Yes, sir. [921]

Q. What was the amount of those salaries?

A. Either $75 or $100 a week; I am not sure.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. You identified them, I believe, as one the day manager and the other the night manager?

A. Yes, sir; that's correct.

Q. During that portion of the years 1944 to 1946, inclusive, when you were in San Francisco, do you recall how many bartenders were utilized in that business?

A. I believe night time there was two bartenders.

Q. And in the daytime? A. One.

Q. Did either Turner or Cavani serve in that capacity? A. No, sir.

Q. Were you familiar with the operation known as the Menlo Club? A. Yes.

Q. When, if you know, was that acquired?

A. I don't remember — the year 1945 — I was away at the time.

Q. Was that acquired, if you know, while you were in the service? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now when you returned from the service were you advised by anyone that you had an interest in that establishment? A. Yes, sir.

Q. By whom? [922] A. Mr. Remmer.

Q. And I will ask you whether or not you were given some written agreement with relation to the interest Mr. Remmer told you had? A. I was.

Q. You have that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you produce it?

A. I haven't it.

Q. I beg your pardon?

A. It is in the bank.

Q. Now, Mr. Kyne, you were served with subpoena, were you not, to produce any records of any partnership you had with Mr. Remmer?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. But you did not produce that record?

A. I did not think it necessary. I believe I gave the agents photostats of it.

Q. You did not think it necessary to produce the original document? A. No.

Q. In what bank is that document located?

A. I think it is in the safe deposit box here in Reno.

Mr. Gillen: Mr. Kyne stated he thought he gave the agents photostatic copies. We have no objection, to facilitate [923] the examination, if Mr. Campbell will use the photostatic copies.

Mr. Campbell: Yes, I will do that, but I wish to explore this situation further.

Mr. Gillen: I don't know what there is to be explored.

The Court: There is nothing before the Court.

Mr. Gillen: May I make this statement?

The Court: There is nothing before the Court.

Mr. Gillen: Counsel is going to explore——

The Court: There is nothing before the Court.

Q. Mr. Kyne, you were requested to produce in the subpoena all records of any description relating to the income tax liabilities of either Elmer F. Remmer or Helen L. Remmer for the years 1944 to 1946, inclusive, records of any partnership or other businesses in which Elmer F. Remmer was engaged. Have you produced any records in response to that subpoena?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

A. Since 1946, Mr. Campbell, I have given the government agents every record they asked for.

Q. I understand, but have you in your possession at this time any such records?

A. Not on me, no; it is in the safe deposit box.

Q. Can you produce those original records, Mr. Kyne? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Campbell: I do not mean to infer that this witness has not been cooperative. [924]

Mr. Gillen: Oh, no. We have no objection to the photostatic copy being used.

Q. I am going to show you a photostatic copy of a document and ask you if that is the photostatic copy of the document to which you refer, relative to your interest in the Menlo Club?

A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Campbell: I will offer this in evidence as government's Exhibit 113.

The Court: It may be admitted in evidence.

Mr. Gillen: No objection.

Q. Mr. Kyne, can you identify the two signatures on there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Whose signatures are they?

A. Remmer and Kyne.

Q. And by Kyne you refer to yourself?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And by Remmer you refer to Elmer Remmer? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know by whom this document was prepared? A. Joseph Haughey.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. That is the Joseph Haughey who appeared here? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Campbell: At this time I should like to read plaintiff's Exhibit 113. (Reads Exhibit 113.)

Q. Mr. Kyne, did you at any time invest any money in the [925] Menlo Club? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you at any time draw any money by way of salary or profit from the Menlo Club?

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, we again object to that question on the ground it is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial in this case involving income tax of Mr. Remmer, whether one of the partners actually withdrew his profit or left it in the business to build up his equity. It is immaterial for income tax purposes whether a partner draws his profits or leaves it in the business. He still has to pay tax. It may draw it out or build up his equity, it is immaterial; he still has to pay taxes. He has to pay taxes not on the basis of what he withdraws, but on the basis of what his share is, whether it is left in the business or taken out.

Mr. Campbell: I object to a speech.

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question.

Mr. Avakian: May I assign as misconduct the remark of counsel I was making a speech? I have a right to state the grounds of my objection.

The Court: You may. Objection overruled and the witness may answer the question.

Q. Will you state, Mr. Kyne, whether or not, as of [926] December 31, 1946, there had been returned to Mr. Remmer, as called for in this agreement, the sum of 175 thousand dollars?

A. I wouldn't know.

Q. Do you know whether or not, as of December 31, 1946, your 15 per cent interest in the business had come into being?

A. Will you repeat that, please?

(Question read.)

A. I wouldn't know that.

Q. Now, Mr. Kyne, do you know whether or not a bank account was maintained for the Menlo Club?

A. I believe there was; yes, sir.

Q. And in what name was it maintained?

A. I think there was one bank account in my name and one in Harold Maundrell's.

Q. In your personal names, as you recall?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And where was the bank account which was in your name?

A. It was the Day and Night branch of the Bank of America, No. 1 Powell Street.

Q. Was there more than one authorized signator on that account? A. That I don't remember.

Q. Do you know where the bank account in the name of Harold Maundrell was maintained?

A. I believe it was at the Crocker Bank.

Q. Were you the authorized signature on that account? [927] A. I do not remember.

Q. Now after you returned from the army, did you take any active part in the operation of that business? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was the nature of your activity?

A. For a while I kept the monies and the records pertaining to the Menlo Club.

Q. By records do you refer to books of account?

A. No, just the money and the sheets.

Q. By sheets to what do you refer?

A. Daily record.

Q. What was the business of the Menlo Club?

A. Social club, card room.

Q. You say social club, card room; were there licenses in connection with that business?

A. I believe they had some kind of a permit.

Q. Do you know whose name that was in?

A. No, I don't.

Q. I will ask to have these three sets of sheets headed "Poker" marked Exhibits for Identification 114, 114A and 114B, respectively. What were the business hours of the Menlo Club?

A. Open twenty-four hours a day. [928]

Direct Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Mr. Kyne, prior to the recess you had been testifying concerning the Menlo Club and you referred to sheets which were delivered to you. I am going to show you government's Exhibits 114, 114A and 114B for identification and ask you first if you recognize this type of record? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And I will ask you if those were the type of sheets which you referred to as having been delivered to you daily from the Menlo Club?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is the nature of those sheets?

A. Well, I am not too well acquainted with them, Mr. Campbell. There are markers and also record of the employees here.

Q. Now when such sheets were delivered to you, what did you do with them?

A. Bundled them up and put them in a box.

Q. Did you make entries into any other records from them? [929] A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know whether or not the figures set forth on those sheets, or any of the figures, were entered into any books? A. No, sir.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. You do recognize these as sheets from the Menlo Club? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Campbell: They will be offered in evidence under the numbers heretofore given, 114, 114A and 114B, respectively.

Mr. Gillen: Just a moment. I would like to examine the witness on voir dire before they are admitted in evidence, your Honor.

The Court: You may do so.

Q. (By Mr. Gillen): Mr. Kyne, will you look at those sheets and tell us whether or not you actually recognize them as sheets from the Menlo Club or types used?

A. There are names on there of employees—Joe Atkinson—that I recognize they work at the Menlo Club.

Q. Can you say from your own knowledge whether those are sheets from the Menlo Club?

A. Well, it is the type sheet that was used over there, and I know most of these names.

Q. Do you know whether, from looking at this, those are some of the sheets that you turned over to the Internal Revenue agents that they promised to return to you?

A. I wouldn't know that. [930]

Q. You wouldn't know that?

A. I am just recognizing the employees' names here.

Q. Was it your testimony, Mr. Kyne, that because the type of sheets look the same and because you recognized some of the names on the sheets,

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

you concluded from that that they must have come from the Menlo Club? A. Yes.

Mr. Gillen: I think, your Honor, they are not properly identified.

Mr. Campbell: I renew my offer.

The Court: Objection overruled. Admitted, 114, 114A, 114B.

Mr. Golden: May it be understood, your Honor, that we have the same standing objection to those records on the ground that they were illegally obtained and promised to return them?

The Court: If you want that objection in this record, too, you may have it.

Q. (By Mr. Campbell): Mr. Kyne, I call your attention to government's Exhibit 114, which consists of two sheets, both dated January 1, 1946, and in the upper left-hand portion of this sheet appears the heading, "Mine Alone," under which appears certain figures, against which there is a column headed "Name" and certain names bearing "Return," with certain amounts set forth, "ours" and "ours." Do you know to what that refers?

A. No, I do not. [931]

Q. Do you recognize any of the names appearing herein—one of Miller; do you recognize the name Miller?

A. I recognize Olson, Fricker; not Miller.

Q. Referring to this portion, the upper left-hand portion, first page?

A. Fricker worked for the Menlo Club; and I also recognize Oscar Nelson.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. Did he also work for the Menlo Club?

A. He was the manager.

Q. Do you recognize any of the other names in that column, upper left-hand column?

Mr. Gillen: Is that the same exhibit?

Mr. Campbell: Yes, the same exhibit.

A. No, sir; those are all the names that I recognize.

Q. Do you know what is meant by "Mine alone," set forth against your name?

A. No, I do not.

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as asked and answered.

The Court: He has already answered the question; he didn't know.

Q. Do you know what is meant by these amounts set forth under the heading "Return"?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to on the same ground, already asked and answered.

The Court: Objection overruled. [932]

A. I believe it refers to the time, but I am not sure.

Mr. Gillen: I move it be stricken if he isn't sure.

The Court: It may go out.

Q. Now calling your attention to the figures at the bottom of the left-hand column, "Sheet Win $75.50," do you know what that refers to?

A. No, I wouldn't know.

Q. You don't know? A. No, sir.

Q. I call your attention to the initials BR $10,000; do you know what that refers to?

A. No, I wouldn't know.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. I call your attention to the language, "New top"; do you know to what that refers, $10,075?

A. No, I wouldn't know.

Q. I call your attention to the names appearing under the heading "Incidentals," number of names with certain amounts, ranging from $6 to $20, appearing opposite the name, and ask you if you recognize any of those names?

A. I recognize about three names on here.

Q. Which names do you recognize?

A. Fricker, Nelson and Atkinson. He is not here on this sheet. Those are names I recognize as employees.

Q. Was Atkinson also an employee?

A. Yes, sir. [933]

Q. I call your attention to the second page dated January 1, 1946, to the language appearing, "Sheet Win $265.50"; do you know what that means?

A. No, I don't.

Q. The "Old top," $10,075? A. No, sir.

Q. And the figure, "Cash $10,341"; do you know what that means? A. No, sir.

Q. Were you present at any time during the making of records, either this or similar records?

A. No, sir. They were made three times a day.

Q. Will you explain that; how did that come about?

A. Three eight-hour shifts, and whoever came on to work in the cage made out his own sheets.

Q. So that, for example, calling your attention to plaintiff's Exhibit 114A, which consists of three sheets, all dated December 31, 1946, will you examine those and state whether or not they represent the three shifts for that date?

Mr. Gillen: I imagine, your Honor, the shifts are around the clock; the third shift would be in the morning of January 1, 1947. It wouldn't be all three shifts under one date; if there were three 8-hour shifts, one would be after midnight.

The Court: It might start at 12:01?

Mr. Gillen: That is right; there would be two different dates at least. [934]

Mr. Campbell: Not necessarily.

The Court: Well, you may proceed.

A. That looks like a complete set for 24 hours.

Q. Could you state, from your knowledge of the operation of the club, what 24 hours would be covered by a set of three shifts bearing the same date?

A. Wherever you start her off at, from 12 to 12.

Q. That is my inquiry; when did you start her off? A. That I don't know.

Q. After you returned from the service, Mr. Kyne, what portion of your time was spent at the Menlo Club?

A. About five minutes each day.

Q. And what duties did you perform there in that five minutes?

A. I received whatever money was left in the safe.

Q. And what did you do with it?

A. Put it in my box.

Q. And which box? A. 48.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. That is the box of the Day and Night branch of the Bank of America? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I believe you testified that you and Mr. Remmer had access to that box? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Can you state whether or not that money was subsequently all [935] transferred to the bank account?

A. I think in October we opened up a bank account.

Q. After the bank account was opened were the entire daily receipts placed in the bank account?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Let me ask you this—when you stopped by there daily to pick up the money, did you place in the safety deposit box all of the money that you picked up? A. Not always; no, sir.

Q. What would you do with money which you did not place in the safety deposit box?

A. If I needed it in some other spot I used it.

Q. When you say when you needed it in some other spot, was that for your personal use?

A. No, sir.

Q. What was the use of that?

A. Went to 110 Eddy Club or the 186 Club, or Day-Night Cigar Store.

Q. Did you retain any of that money for your personal use? A. No, sir.

Q. Will you state or not more was placed in the bank than was required to pay current accruing bills? A. Most of it went to the bank.

Q. At the time you picked up the money at the Menlo Club, did you check it against the daily [936] sheets? A. No, sir.

Q. From whom would you receive the money when you picked it up?

A. It was put in the safe.

Q. By whom?

A. By anyone who was in charge on the last shift.

Q. Will you name those individuals during that period of time when you came back from the service and up until the end of 1946?

A. Joseph Silva and Oscar Nelson.

Q. You referred to Oscar Nelson as a manager. Did he have any particular period of time in which he served in that capacity?

A. Usually night time.

Q. And what period during the period of day did Silva serve? A. Night also.

Q. Who, if anyone, served in the day time?

A. Fricker is the only one I can think of right now.

Q. In what manner would money be left in the safe for you? A. Usually in an envelope.

Q. Will you state whether or not there was any accounting slip of any kind in that connection?

A. A total written on the envelope.

Q. You say after the bank account was opened that you were the authorized signator on one of the two accounts? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Campbell: May I have check dated November 7th marked [937] 115 for identification.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is that your signature appearing as drawer of the check? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And is that also your signature appearing as endorser of the check? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And on what account was this check drawn?

A. Menlo Club.

Q. What, if anything, did you do with the proceeds of the check?

A. Gave it to Mr. Remmer.

Mr. Campbell: I will ask that this be received in evidence as government's Exhibit 115.

Mr. Golden: Same objection, your Honor, on the grounds it is illegally acquired and retained.

The Court: Objection overruled and exhibit is admitted in evidence.

Q. Now, Mr. Kyne, I call your attention to the fact that this is check dated November 7, 1946, payable to W. E. Kyne in amount of 65 thousand dollars, signed Menlo Club, Wm. E. Kyne, and in typing on the side, "Apply to Elmer Remmer." Did you type up this check?

A. Yes, sir. [938]

Q. At whose request? A. Mr. Remmer.

Q. I notice it bears your endorsement on the back. Did you cash this check? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And did you receive cash for it from the bank? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And I believe you stated you turned the cash over to Mr. Remmer? A. Yes, sir.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. And on what date?

A. Same day it was issued.

Q. Where did you cash it? I notice the bank perforation is November 8, 1945.

A. It was Day and Night branch; they probably carried it over through the morning hours.

Q. Do you know what was done with this money? A. No, I don't.

Q. Do you recall the form in which you received 65 thousand dollars?

A. I think it was in thousand dollar bills; I am not sure.

Q. What is your best recollection?

A. Large bills.

Q. And where did you deliver that to Mr. Remmer? A. 50 Mason Street. [939]

Q. Now for the moment I wish to refer back, Mr. Kyne, to the B & R Smoke Shoppe.

Mr. Avakian: May I inquire of counsel whether he has concluded questioning the witness regarding that particular check?

Mr. Campbell: Not necessarily.

Mr. Avakian: When it was concluded, we assumed it would be connected. If he is not through, I will reserve my motion.

The Court: Proceed.

Q. Incidentally, Mr. Kyne, what do the initials B. R. of B & R Smoke Shoppe stand for?

A. Bank roll.

Q. Who, incidentally, decided on that name?

Mr. Gillen: What difference would it make? Incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial. It is something started back in 1942.

BLURRED COPY

The Court: I think so. I agree with counsel. Objection sustained.

Mr. Campbell: Very well.

Q. Coming back for a moment to the lay-off bets, that is, lay-off bets you made and lay-off bets received by you from others. How often were settlements had as between yourself and other bookmakers?

A. It varied from one day to a month. [940]

Q. And what form did those settlements take, Mr. Kyne?

A. I usually paid off with a cashier's check.

Q. You say usually—was there any other method of paying off?

A. If a party was in town and wanted cash, I usually give it to him.

Q. In what manner were you paid off on what was coming in?

A. Cash or cashier's check.

Q. The same manner? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now so far as arrangements for lay-off, or accepting lay-off bets from others, who made those arrangements?

A. Either the party producing new players or——

Q. So far as other bookmakers were concerned?

A. Will you repeat that question?

A. Through people I knew or Mr. Remmer or Mr. Lando.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. Now so far as your payments were concerned, where were the cashier's checks purchased?

A. Most of them at the Day and Night Branch, Bank of America.

Q. I wish to have these checks marked government's next exhibit for identification in order.

Clerk: 116.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, counsel handed us additional sheets, one packet relating entirely to 1942 and another packet entirely to the year 1943. May we inquire whether counsel intended to go ahead with those two years also? [941]

Mr. Campbell: Yes.

Q. I am going to hand you these sheets, Mr. Kyne, and ask you if you recognize them?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What do they purport to represent, without stating the items?

A. Payments to bookmakers.

Q. Will you state whether or not that is by way of cashier's checks which were purchased?

A. Yes, sir; that is a record of the bank.

Mr. Campbell: I am going to ask that these be received in evidence, with the exception—I am going to withdraw this last page upon which the clerk has placed his stamp, and as to the last page which now remains, only the items running to December, 1946. The balance we will arrange to black off in some way.

Mr. Gillen: I would like to examine this witness on voir dire in regard to these accounts, may it please the Court, before they are admitted in evidence.

BLURRED COPY

The Court: You may do so.

Q. (By Mr. Gillen): Mr. Kyne, will you look at those sheets and tell us whether or not you personally prepared those sheets?

A. No, sir. I imagine the Bank of America prepared them.

Q. You imagine the Bank of America [942] prepared them? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You don't know of your own knowledge who prepared them? A. No, I do not.

Q. Had you seen those before coming to court?

A. I believe I did see this one here.

Q. When, where, and under what circumstances?

A. Each year I used to pay the clerks at the Bank of America so much to go through their files to give me a complete record what checks were purchased, and that is one of the records.

Q. I think you recognized the year 1943 for checks purchased in 1942? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you recognize any other?

A. No, these other two I do not.

Q. So it is your belief that these sheets which Mr. Campbell handed you are probably sheets that were prepared for you by somebody in the Bank of America as a special courtesy, at your request?

A. Yes, sir; a record.

Q. To give you a record of cashier checks purchased? A. All checks going out.

Q. Now you are not in position to say whether or not this truly reflects all the cashier's checks that you purchased? A. No, I am not.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Mr. Gillen: I will offer the objection, may it please [943] the Court, that these records which are offered are records which were not either prepared or kept by Mr. Kyne in the ordinary course of his business, or that it was his business to keep those records; that he believes they comprise records that he had prepared as a special courtesy to him, in order to enable him to try to keep track of his affairs; that they were prepared by some other persons; that he does not know the accuracy or correctness of those records, and I do not think under those circumstances they could be identified as evidence of what they are claimed to portray and, of course, as your Honor readily recognizes, under those circumstances we are left bereft of any opportunity to cross-examine whoever prepared them from whatever records and therefore deprived of that cross-examination, so I do not think Mr. Kyne is the witness who can properly establish the foundation, or would he establish the foundation, for admission of such documents in evidence. Your Honor will recall that we had a man here from the Bank of America who produced a goodly number of records here and identified them, had familiarity with them, and that is one of the few witnesses who had complete familiarity with what he brought into court.

Mr. Campbell: I object to the last statement. I think that is uncalled for.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

The Court: I think that ought to be stricken. It will be stricken from the record, that last [944] statement.

Mr. Gillen: I mention that because your Honor recognized it and became irritated with the lack of knowledge——

The Court: Objection will be overruled.

Mr. Campbell: I would like to ask further questions of the witness.

The Court: You may do so.

Q. (By Mr. Campbell): Mr. Kyne, will you examine these sheets, which consist of a large number of items, and will you state whether or not the items set forth here of cashier's checks purchased in the amounts stated and upon the dates stated to the best of your recollection?

A. I believe that is a record of cashier's checks——

The Court: Wait a minute—do you want to make an objection?

Mr. Gillen: Your Honor, that still does not cure the lack of foundation. Some of those names might be names he recognizes as people he sent cashier's checks to, but in toto the last question propounded by Mr. Campbell would not cure the lack of foundation and would not enable us to cross-examine the proper person.

The Court: Objection overruled. Let us have the question read.

A. I believe this is a record of cashier's checks I purchased at the Bank of America.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Mr. Campbell: I renew my offer.

Mr. Golden: May I inquire further on voir dire?

The Court: Yes. [945]

Q. (By Mr. Golden): Mr. Kyne, do you know that this is record of cashier's checks that you purchased from the Bank of America during the years that are set forth on these sheets?

A. I couldn't swear to it, but those are the names of people I did business with.

Q. Do you know whether it comprises a complete list?

A. I paid for a complete list from the bank.

Q. My question is, do you know whether it comprises a complete list, of your own knowledge?

A. I do not know. I paid for a complete list.

Q. I understand you asked the man to give you a complete list and paid him for it? A. Yes.

Q. But you did not look at the bank records yourself? A. No.

Q. You relied on him to supply it?

A. Yes.

Q. You don't know how many errors, how many wrong amounts may be represented, how many names left out or how many other names picked up that didn't belong there? A. No, sir.

Mr. Golden: I submit, your Honor, we are in a position where we are not able to cross-examine, if this exhibit is allowed to go into the record, the person who prepared it. Mr. Kyne cannot say this is an accurate list. He paid [946] someone especially to do that work, but he did not go over the records and cannot say whether he got a correct list or not.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

The Court: Objection is overruled. The exhibit will be admitted.

Mr. Gillen: May I have another objection to admission of the exhibit upon the same grounds urged so frequently, the illegality of obtaining and retaining of the documents by the Internal Revenue Department?

The Court: Yes, that objection will be considered as made. Objection overruled. Exhibit admitted in evidence.

Q. (By Mr. Campbell): Mr. Kyne, did you maintain any record of the cashier's checks received by you in connection with the B & R Smoke Shoppe? A. No, sir.

Q. You understand I refer to payments made by others to the B & R Smoke Shoppe; is that correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now when you received cashier checks——

Mr. Gillen: May I interrupt a minute, may it please the Court. I think for the record I should add to my objection, although your Honor has already ruled, if you will permit me to do so.

The Court: You may do so.

Mr. Gillen: I should add that this exhibit is entirely [947] hearsay. In other words, it is not the best evidence. The best evidence would be the bank records of the bank, of which we had many produced of the identical exact cashier's checks produced by this witness over the period of time, and also urge again to your Honor that we are absolutely powerless to cross-examine on accuracy, and also they were produced not by the witness on the witness stand as records, but they were produced by Mr. Campbell, the prosecutor. Of course, your Honor can see that Mr. Kyne could have made his own record every time he purchased a cashier's check, then we would be in position to cross-examine him, but he called on somebody else to make a record for him, and there we are.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

The Court: The objection is overruled and the ruling admitting the exhibit in evidence will stand.

Mr. Gillen: Is that all one exhibit?

Mr. Campbell: That is one exhibit, with the exception of those items appearing after date of December 31, 1946, which I will arrange to black out.

Mr. Gillen: I wonder if we might find out how many sheets there are in that exhibit?

Mr. Campbell: 27 sheets.

Mr. Gillen: I think also, your Honor, that we should specifically object——

The Court: I am not going to entertain any further objections. [948]

Mr. Gillen: This is a new objection just called to my attention.

The Court: No, I think objection should be made when the exhibit is offered. I do not want to hear any more.

Mr. Gillen: There are two earlier years in there, your Honor.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

The Court: I do not want to hear any other objections.

Mr. Gillen: Well, I move to strike that portion of the exhibit that refers to the years 1942 and 1943, as being beyond the scope of the time bracket fixed in the indictment, which we will recall was 1944 to 1946, inclusive.

The Court: The motion is denied.

Q. Mr. Kyne, did you have anything to do with the preparation of Mr. Remmer's personal income tax returns? A. No, sir.

Q. I am going to show you defendant's Exhibit H, a letter dated March 7, 1947, which purports to be a carbon copy of letter dated March 7th under the signature of Pat Mooney, and ask you if you received the original of that letter?

A. I do not remember.

Q. Do you remember ever having seen the original of that letter? A. I do not remember.

Q. Mr. Kyne, are you familiar with the operations known as the 186 Club and the Day-Night Cigar Store? [949] A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you recall when they were acquired?

A. Either '42 or '43.

Q. Do you recall from whom they were acquired?

A. Max Silverman.

Q. I am going to call your attention to government's Exhibit 20, document dated February 4, 1943, and bearing the typed signature of Max Silverman and Willie Kyne, and ask you if you recall that document?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

A. I don't remember that paper, but that was the price for the back room.

Q. The amount set forth here of 16 thousand dollars? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You say that was the back room?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Does the date February 4, 1943, which is set forth on this document, refresh your recollection as to the date that that business was acquired?

A. About that time; yes, sir.

Q. That will be your best recollection?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now you refer to the back room; was there also a front room; also a business in the front room, was there not?

A. Yes, sir; Day-Night Cigar Store.

Q. And the room in back was known as the 186 Club? [950] A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now you have stated the price for the back room was 16 thousand dollars. Do you recall who put up the money?

A. Carl Nealis and Jess Kopstick.

Q. Did you handle the money yourself?

A. Either gave the money to Elmer Remmer or myself.

Q. Did you transmit the money to Mr. Silverman?

A. Yes, sir; in the form of cashier's check.

Q. Did you purchase the cashier's check?

A. I believe so.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. Do you recall in what form Mr. Kopstick and Mr. Nealis put up the 16 thousand dollars?

A. Probably cash.

Q. Do you recall where you purchased the cashier's check?

A. I think it was the Bank of America.

Q. Now at the time that was acquired, that is the back room, 186 Club, in approximately February, 1943, who was interested in that club?

A. There were seven people in all.

Q. Who were those seven people?

A. Jess Kopstick, Carl Nealis, Attilio Casselini, Bert Bustrano, Elmer Remmer, Willie Kyne, and Sylvan Lando.

Q. What interest did each of them have in that operation? A. One-sixth.

Q. You have seven people and you say it was divided into [951] sixths; will you explain that?

A. Carl Nealis and Jess Kopstick had one share, one-sixth.

Q. In the acquisition of that for 16 thousand dollars, you say that money was entirely put up by them? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did anybody else put up any money in connection with the acquisition of the back room?

A. None for the back room; no, sir.

Q. And for that 16 thousand dollars together they received one-sixth interest? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And the other five people you named each had one-sixth? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you put up any money?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

A. No, sir.

Q. How long did Carl Nealis and Jess Kopstick remain interested in that business?

A. I believe they filed for one year.

Q. Was that the year 1943, the first year?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. After that what occurred, so far as their interest was concerned?

A. I think they drew their money out. I believe they drew that money out.

Q. At any rate, were they repaid their [952] money? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And after the first year——

Mr. Gillen: Just a minute. I wonder if we can get these things settled from the witness, may it please the court, without a suggestion. Mr. Kyne said he believed they drew their money out; counsel suggested they were paid that money back. I think if counsel will ask the witness, the witness will testify what he knows, and if he doesn't know he can say so.

The Court: Try to avoid leading questions, Mr. Campbell.

Mr. Campbell: I will to the best of my ability.

Q. Were you present at the time that Kopstick and Nealis withdrew from the partnership?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Do you recall in what manner or method they obtained their money?

A. I believe I paid them back.

Q. And what was the source of the money which

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

you paid them back? A. The club, 186 Club.

Q. Was there a bank account maintained for the 186 Club? A. No, sir.

Q. In what form did you pay them the money?

A. Cash.

Q. And you say the source of the cash was the 186 Club? A. Yes, sir. [953]

Q. Where was the cash belonging to the 186 Club kept? A. Box 48.

Q. That is in the Day and Night Branch of the Bank of America? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And will you state whether or not you were acting on any one's instructions when you paid them back? A. No, sir.

Q. Will you relate the circumstances under which you paid them back?

A. They wanted their money back so I gave it to them as promptly as it came in.

Q. And how much did you pay them?

A. Sixteen thousand.

Q. After they left or withdrew from the partnership, what were the interests in the 186 Club?

A. It was equal share.

Q. Well, that left five of you, is that correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Well, prior to the end of 1946 did any of the others withdraw? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who?

A. I may be mistaken there, Mr. Campbell. I think that Lando and Casselini withdrew, but I am not sure as to the exact year.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. At the time they withdrew, were they paid any money? [954] A. Not to my knowledge.

Q. Did you pay them any money?

A. No, sir.

Q. Now so far as your interest in the 186 Club was concerned, was any written agreement entered into?

A. I believe we had—I think we had papers concerning a partnership the first year until they changed into a corporation, but I am not sure.

Q. Now will you describe the nature of the operations of the 186 Club?

A. It was a card room, open 24 hours a day.

Q. Was that operation similar to that of the Menlo Club? A. Same type, yes, sir.

Q. Who were the managers there?

A. Bert Bustrano was manager.

Q. What hours, if any, did he serve as manager? A. Mostly at night time.

Q. Who served in the day hours?

A. Oh, different floor forces, I don't remember the names,

Q. I am going to show you government's Exhibits 110 to 110F for identification, sheets headed "Poker," and ask you first if you are familiar with such sheets? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Avakian: Your Honor, may we raise objection to that question and be permitted—— [955]

The Court: No, it is too late. You want it on the regular ground?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Mr. Avakian: No, as to the form of the question.

The Court: No, it is too late. The question has been answered.

Mr. Avakian: May we move to strike?

The Court: Motion denied because there was no objection made before the answer.

Mr. Avakian: He answered before we could speak, your Honor.

The Court: The ruling will stand.

Mr. Gillen: Will your Honor instruct the witness not to answer quite so fast?

The Court: Yes, do not answer immediately the question is propounded. Give counsel an opportunity to object.

Q. Do you recognize those particular sheets?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you recognize the handwriting thereon?

A. No, sir.

Q. Now in the course of your connection with the 186 Club, were sheets similar to these delivered to you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And by whom?

A. They were left in the cage and I used to pick them up every [956] morning.

Q. Now how much of your time was spent on the premises of the 186 Club?

A. About five minutes.

Q. A day? A. Daily.

Q. What did you do there other than pick up these sheets?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

A. Pick up what money there was.

Q. And that was money, you say, that was kept in Box 48? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where was the money kept on the premises?

A. In the cage.

Q. Cashier's cage? A. Yes.

Q. In connection with your services, did you draw any salary from the 186 Club?

A. At the time I was in the army my wife drew ten dollars a day. That was from the Day-Night, nothing from the 186.

Q. Did you at any time draw a salary?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did you at any time receive any profits from the 186 Club? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you at any time make any investment in the 186 Club? A. No, sir.

Q. So far as the other people whom you say were participating [957] there were concerned, do you know whether or not Mr. Busterno drew a salary?

A. I believe he drew twenty or twenty-five dollars a day, I am not sure.

Q. Do you know whether or not Mr. Lando drew any salary? A. No, he did not.

Q. Do you know whether or not Attillio Cassenili drew any salary? A. No, sir.

Q. Incidentally, Mr. Cassenili is usually known by some other name? A. Dutch White.

Q. Do you know whether or not he drew any salary? A. No, sir.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. Do you know whether or not any of those individuals drew any profits from the 186 Club?

A. No, I don't.

MR. KYNE

resumes the witness stand on further

Direct Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Now after you picked up the sheets from the 186 Club, Mr. [958] Kyne, what did you do with them? A. Put them in a box.

Q. On what premises? A. 50 Mason.

Q. That is where you maintained your office?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And was that also Mr. Remmer's office?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. I believe you stated that you recognized these sheets? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I notice, Mr. Kyne, there are several sheets in each group. I will hand you the top group, appears to be that of December 30, 1944, which is marked 110A for identification. Can you explain why there are several sheets as to that day?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

A. There would be three shifts.

Q. There are some five sheets there. Occasionally were there more than one sheet used on a shift?

A. Between the markers and employees there might be more than one sheet, yes.

Mr. Campbell: I am going to offer these sheets in evidence as government's Exhibits 110A to F inclusive.

Mr. Gillen: May it please the Court, if I recollect Mr. Kyne's testimony correctly, he couldn't recognize the handwriting on those sheets. I might be in error, but I would like to examine him on voir dire. [959]

Mr. Campbell: I believe that is a correct statement.

Mr. Gillen: If that is correct, he can not identify the sheets. Of course, those sheets were produced by the prosecution and not by the witness. He says he does not recognize the handwriting and at one point in his testimony, if I recall, he stated they appeared similar to sheets used at the 186 Club. That is as near as he comes. We are entitled, of course to the person who made the sheets and who is familiar with them. Mr. Kyne's only connection with the sheets seems to be that he picked them up at one place and deposited them in another place, without any checking or anything of the sort. So I submit, first of all, no proper foundation has been laid from this witness to entitle those sheets

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

to be entered into evidence. Of course, in addition, to that, I think at this time I should make the original objection that is made to all of these documents, the grounds of which have been fully stated and restated.

Mr. Campbell: I might say also there was a partial identification by Mr. Lando of these sheets.

Mr. Gillen: Mr. Lando didn't recognize them at all, as I recall.

Mr. Campbell: You may be correct. I don't have the transcript of his testimony.

Mr. Gillen: I think the reason why they did not go into evidence is because Mr. Lando did not recognize them. [960]

Mr. Campbell: May I be permitted to ask a few more questions of this witness before renewing the offer?

The Court: Yes.

Q. Using plaintiff's Exihibt 110A for identification as an example, and particularly referring to the names appearing in the left-hand column, do you recognize those names, Mr. Kyne?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial, may it please the Court, whether he recognizes names or not, that still would not lay the foundation as to the accuracy of the contents of the sheets and still would not furnish us with an opportunity to cross-examine the person familiar with them.

The Court: That may be just one question in an attempt to lay a foundation. Objection overruled.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Mr. Campbell: Yes, your Honor.

Q. You may answer this yes or no, Mr. Kyne.

A. Will you repeat the question?

(Question read.)

A. Yes.

Q. And will you state at this time whether or not you recognize names appearing there of those who were connected with the business, either as partners or as employees?

A. I recognize four names here.

Q. And what was the nature of the connection of those individuals with the business? [961]

A. So much credit on the house.

Q. Will you state whether or not any of those were employees or partners?

A. Three of them partners, one was an employee.

Q. Mr. Kyne, will you state whether or not it was a regular part of the operation of the 186 Club to make up sheets during the course of each day of operation of the type which you hold in your hand?

A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Gillen: May it be considered my objection goes to all these questions as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial, and still not laying the proper foundation?

The Court: Your objection to this question will be overruled.

Q. Calling your attention to the other exhibits in the group, that is 110 for identification and 110B

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

to F for identification, I will ask you whether or not these are sheets of a similar nature to that which I showed you which was 110A?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And do you also recognize the names of partners and employees thereon? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now after you received such sheets, Mr. Kyne, did you examine them?

A. No, sir. [962]

Q. Do you know if any one examined them?

A. No, sir.

Q. Were any entries made in any books of such sheets? A. No, sir.

Mr. Avakian: Was the question if he knew or if any were made?

(Question read.)

Mr. Avakian: May we ask the answer be stricken? There is no foundation as to his knowledge as to whether he knew.

The Court: The answer will stand.

Q. Mr. Kyne, did you at any time see any books or records purporting to be books and records of the 186 Club? A. No, sir.

Q. Now calling your attention again to these sheets, Mr. Kyne, was it a part of your duties to pick up such sheets from the 186 Club and deliver them to the office at 50 Mason Street?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as asked and answered, leading and suggestive and also incompetent, irrele-

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

vant and immaterial because it lays no foundation for the admission of these sheets in evidence.

The Court: Objection overruled. You may answer the question.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now did you subsequently, Mr. Kyne, deliver to the agents of the Bureau of Internal Revenue the books containing the [963] Poker sheets?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And did they contain all of such Poker sheets as were in your possession at that time?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you recall the date of that?

A. No, I do not.

Mr. Campbell: I am going to renew the offer at this time, if the Court please, of Exhibits 110 to 110F, inclusive, in evidence.

Mr. Gillen: May it please the Court, he has done absolutely nothing to lay the foundation in the first place.

Mr. Campbell: I ask counsel state his objection rather than making a statement of that kind.

Mr. Gillen: I am stating my objection and I am not making a speech.

The Court: What is your objection?

Mr. Gillen: My objection is, may it please the Court, counsel has gotten no farther in the matter of laying foundation than initially when he made his offer. Now if I may point out to your Honor, the asking of the question by Mr. Campbell if Mr. Kyne recognized a name, that does not establish the truth or authenticity or accuracy of anything about the exhibit, because I may write your Honor a letter and mention another man's name and if your Honor was asked if you recognize [964] the name I mentioned, you might say yes, but that still wouldn't place your Honor in the position of establishing the authenticity of anything written in that letter or anything about it and I think there are other means counsel has of getting those records in. Apparently the agents picked those up from Mr. Kyne. They wouldn't know whether they are the same records picked up by Mr. Kyne, there is a question then whether or not they were authentic records of this particular enterprise. It has been indicated here that their enterprises had the same sheets and whether or not one sheet from one place or another belonged to either place, has not been established by this witness' testimony. He is not in position to recognize the handwriting or whether he actually picked up those records from that particular enterprise. He never checked, simply picked up at one place, delivered to another place, without looking at them or using or in any wise utilizing them in connection with his duties and I submit, your Honor, of course whatever is in the records Mr. Kyne is not in position to answer so any cross-examination wouldn't be evidence on them.

BLURRED COPY

The Court: I think we may sum up the situation this way. It has been shown that records similar to these exhibits were kept in the regular course of business, but so far it can not be said that these records were kept in the regular course of business of this institution. We have gone so far and no farther to [965] show that records similar to this exhibit were kept in the course of business. I will sustain the objection.

Mr. Gillen: May I respectfully call your Honor's attention to Exhibit 114 in evidence, and 114A and 114B. Those exhibits are in the identical position as the exhibits offered here and may I respectfully ask your Honor to reconsider the ruling. Those were admitted with no greater foundation than in this instance. I think, your Honor, if you refer to the record you will see that Mr. Kyne was unable to lay a foundation for the authenticity of those records as he was in this case.

Mr. Campbell: It occurs to me that the objection was entered at great length at the time and passed upon by the Court.

The Court: If you point out to me at any time that a ruling made here was erroneous, I am perfectly willing to vacate that ruling.

Mr. Gillen: Whatever your Honor suggests. I think the record will reflect the positions are identical.

The Court: I think it can be said of these records, 110 to 110F, it has been shown records similar to those were kept in the regular course of business but it has not been shown that these particular records were kept in the regular course of business. If [966] that is the same situation as to 114, 114A and 114B, I will vacate the ruling.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Mr. Gillen: I think your Honor will find it is identical. If your Honor would rather wait until the transcript is written up tomorrow, we will call it to your Honor's attention at that time.

The Court: Very well.

Q. Referring, Mr. Kyne, to Exhibit 110 for identification, which consists of some nine sheets, I refer first to the first sheet and ask you if you recognize any of the handwriting on that page?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to first of all, already asked and answered; secondly, that it is referring to an exhibit that has already been excluded from evidence by your Honor. The foundation will have to be laid before counsel can use that.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Q. I wish you would go through this exhibit page by page and state whether or not you recognize any of the various handwritings which appear?

A. I wouldn't recognize any handwriting.

Q. Now I call your attention on the first page to the name Kyne and amount set forth opposite. Does that in any way refresh your recollection?

A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Gillen: Just a moment. I don't think counsel should [967] refer to any contents of a document that has been excluded by your Honor. If he can do it with one or two items, he can read the whole matter in and it has been excluded.

The Court: Of course, I wouldn't want to see the contents of the document brought out unless it is admitted in evidence, but I think this question is all right. Objection overruled.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. Does that refresh your recollection as to whether or not that was a record of the 186 Club?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And what is your recollection?

A. Regarding this amount?

Q. As to whether or not that is a record of the 186 Club? A. That was my daily record.

Q. And is that true—examine each of these and state whether having examined that item, if that is true of each of the sheets?

A. I believe that is the record.

Mr. Campbell: I will renew the offer.

Mr. Gillen: Now I ask permission to examine this witness on his voir dire in connection therewith.

The Court: Yes.

Q. (By Mr. Gillen): Mr. Kyne, counsel showed you Exhibit 110 for identification and he asked you to look at page 1 of the sheet of pages in that exhibit, and asked you to look particularly at the name Kyne and asked you if that refreshed your [968] recollection as to whether or not that was the record of the 186 Club. Let me ask you now, Mr. Kyne, does the fact that your name appears on one sheet refresh your recollection that was an original accurate and authentic record of the 186 Club?

A. The amount refreshes my memory.

Q. The amount refreshes your memory that everything else in that record was a record of the club? A. That I wouldn't know.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. The name Kyne and the amount refreshes your recollection as to some transaction with the 186 Club, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. Can you tell us whether you are refreshed mentally as to the other pages as to all the other various names, as to the authenticity and original records of the 186 Club?

A. That I wouldn't know.

Mr. Campbell: That is not proper voir dire. It might be proper cross-examination.

The Court: He may answer the question.

(Question read.)

A. That I wouldn't know about. They are the parties mentioned on the sheet.

Mr. Gillen: I might advise your Honor, if your Honor cares to look at them, there are numerous names on these various sheets and Mr. Kyne look at 110 and tell us whether there is anything else on any of those sheets that you know anything [969] about or recall anything about? A. No, sir.

Q. Other than the item referring to you. Now, Mr. Kyne, I am going to hand you the balance of these exhibits and ask you if you will run through the balance of the exhibits and tell us if that is your position and condition of mind as to all the other exhibits there, A to F?

A. The only account I can swear to would be my own account.

Q. In other words, is it true that on each of those exhibits the name of Kyne appears with something that refreshes your recollection as to a personal transaction of yours? A. Yes, sir.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. And you know nothing about anything else on those sheets? A. No, sir.

Mr. Gillen: May it please the Court, the foundation has not been laid.

Mr. Campbell: May I ask the witness a further question?

The Court: You may do so.

Q. (By Mr. Campbell): When you say that is the only thing you can swear to on there, are you referring to the accuracy of the information or not?

A. The only amount I can swear to is the amount made to me.

Q. You did not make the entries yourself, is that correct? A. No, sir.

Q. The question I asked you, after having seen that information, [970] if you can state that these were records made in the conduct of the 186 business?

Mr. Gillen: Just a moment, may it please the Court. He has already answered a number of times they were similar to records kept.

The Court: No, he answered just before the voir dire that those were the records.

(Record read.)

The Court: Objection overruled. Admitted in evidence.

Mr. Gillen: May I respectfully state, as the record stands, he has answered both ways. He says he knows nothing other than the matter of his own transactions.

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

The Court: Objection overruled. There are other matters the Court takes into consideration in addition to that answer.

Mr. Gillen: May I ask a question on voir dire?

The Court: I will withdraw the ruling. You may do so.

Q. (By Mr. Gillen): I hand you, Mr. Kyne, prosecution's exhibits 110 to 110F inclusive, and I will ask you to look at those and tell us whether or not you know, of your own knowledge, if those are actually the records of the 186 Club, if those are the records at the time turned over to the Internal Revenue agent, or who kept them or whether they are accurate or not or whether you know anything about them other than appears under an item referring to you? [971]

Mr. Campbell: Objected to on the ground it is a compound question, contains five or six elements.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Gillen: I can break it down. I was trying to save a little time.

Q. Do you know of your own knowledge that those were the actual records, the exhibits which you hold on your knee now, prosecution's exhibits 110 to 110F, inclusive?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as having been asked and answered.

The Court: You may answer the question.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

A. I can only swear to the one amount that is owed to me.

Q. My question is, do you know whether or not those documents which you hold on your knee are the actual authentic, original records kept by the 186 Club?

Mr. Campbell: I object to the question in that form because it includes descriptive matter as to authentic. They were actual records, but of course he did not make the entries and can't say.

The Court: Do you recognize those as the documents which you picked up from the cage?

A. No, I don't, aside from the one amount owed to me.

Q. In other words, your testimony is that there is one item reflected on those exhibits that you are familiar with, had something to do with? [972]

A. That is correct.

Q. You don't recognize the handwriting?

A. No.

Q. You don't know whether you ever picked up those actual documents which you have there on your knee from the 186 Club and dropped them at 50 Mason Street? A. No, sir.

Q. And you don't know whether those are part of the documents you turned over to the Internal Revenue Department? A. No, sir.

Mr. Gillen: We stipulate, your Honor, the foundation has not been laid.

The Court: The exhibit will not be admitted in evidence. Objection sustained.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. (By Mr. Campbell): Now you stated, Mr. Kyne, that as you were examining this particular document, you saw there an item relating to you?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you stated, I believe, that that was an accurate item? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now what was the nature of the business which you had with the 186 Club which gave rise to that item? A. I had a credit there——

Mr. Gillen: Pardon me—objected to as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial. [973]

The Court: I assume counsel is trying to lay the foundation.

Mr. Gillen: I will withdraw the objection.

A. I had a credit with the 186 Club of fifteen thousand dollars.

Q. And that is the item that you refer to on the sheets which were shown to you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And for the purpose of refreshing your recollection, I call your attention to Exhibit 110B for identification, is that the amount which is owed for which you have a credit on December 31, 1944?

A. I don't remember the dates.

Q. Does examination of 110B for identification refresh your recollection in that regard?

A. That is noted there.

Mr. Avakian: That may be answered yes or no, your Honor.

The Court: Answer yes or no.

A. Yes.

Q. What is your present recollection as to the amount of credit that the 186 Club owed you as of December 31, 1944?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Mr. Avakian: Objected to on the ground counsel is not laying the foundation but is trying to get into evidence contents of a document which has been excluded from evidence.

Mr. Campbell: I am asking for his own personal recollection. [974]

Mr. Avakian: Objected to as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial as to this case, which involves income tax of Elmer Remmer.

Mr. Campbell: This is a preliminary question.

The Court: You may answer the question.

A. I had that much credit in 1944.

Q. I will ask you, Mr. Kyne, if that credit to you at the end of 1944 was a personal credit?

A. No, sir.

Q. Will you state whether or not that was a credit belonging to some one else?

A. It was money belonging to the partners in the the 186 Club.

Q. And by partners you are referring to the various people whose names you gave as being interested in the partnership as of that date?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you state whether or not the credit being in your name was as a representative of all the partners? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now will you state the manner in which that credit in your name arose, so far as the conduct of the business was concerned?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

A. It was a fill-in for markers.

Q. Will you state whether or not that 16 thousand dollars represented monies withdrawn by the partners?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as leading and suggestive. I [975] think counsel can ask him what he means.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Very well. What do you mean by fill-in for markers?

A. You are supposed to have some cash in a place to operate and if it is all markers, someone has to go and get a new bank roll until the markers are paid.

Q. Yes; and what did the 15 thousand dollars credit represent? Did that repay the money?

A. That represented the partner's money, yes.

Q. And that 15 thousand dollars that was credited to you, was that in regard to cash deposit there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And who, if anyone, supplied you with the 15 thousand dollars cash to fill in for the markers?

A. It was money I had collected from the Club.

Q. Previous to the time that you put it up?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And where had you kept that 15 thousand dollars previous to the time that you put it up with the club as a fill-in for the markers?

A. The sheets will show. I paid it in a little at a time.

Q. And whose markers were involved?

BLEED THROUGH— POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

A. There are about 20 names on this sheet here.

Q. Well, do you recognize those names?

A. No, sir. [976]

Q. With regard to the markers they were fill-in for and you put up this money, where were those markers held? A. The cage, 186 Club.

Q. Did you, yourself, at any time examine those markers? A. No, sir.

Q. Now taking the year 1944, will you state, if you know, whose duty it was to make up the daily Poker sheets?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as asked and answered. He said it was made up by each shift of cashiers.

Mr. Campbell: I am trying to ascertain who they were.

The Court: You may answer the question.

A. I don't remember their names.

Q. Do you remember the names of any single one of them?

A. No, I don't. There were quite a few of them.

Q. Mr. Kyne, do you know whether or not any pay roll record was kept of the employees of the 186 Club?

A. Yes, sir. The social security will show that.

Q. Who maintained that record?

A. I believe Mr. Slater kept that record.

Q. Can you state under whose supervision the daily Poker sheets were made up?

A. Bert Busterno was the manager of the club.

Q. Incidentally, what were Mr. Cassilini's duties there?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

A. Attilio Cassilini had quite a following among the sporting people and he used to play cards there at night time and bring [977] his friends there.

Q. Those were the duties he had?

A. Yes, sir, and cashing checks and OKing.

Q. And I believe you said Billy Silva was the day manager? A. I did not.

Q. Who was day manager?

A. I was talking about Joe Silva at the Menlo Club.

Q. Who was on days at the 186 Club?

A. There wasn't much play in the day time. Any one might be in charge there, any one of these sheets.

Q. Do you have any recollection in that regard?

A. Joe Chilli was or any one of these employees could be on the floor.

Q. Any one of these employees, to what are you referring? A. This sheet here.

Q. Referring to plaintiff's Exhibit 110 for identification.

A. Young fellow Gene was, or any one on the sheet.

Q. You refer to the second page, government's 110 for identification, to the column at the upper left-hand corner, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. State whether or not you recognize the list of names there, or any of them, as being employees of the 186 Club?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as asked and answered several times. [978]

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

The Court: You many answer the question.

A. Well, these are just first names—Abe, Roy, Eddie, Murphy, Louie, Joe, Pete, Al, Phillips, Gene.

Q. Do you recognize those as employees?

A. I recognize Gene and Eddie.

Q. Now you stated, I believe, that there was in the front of the 186 Club a business known as the Day-Night Cigar Store, is that correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now will you state whether or not you had an interest in that operation as a partner or otherwise? A. Yes, sir, I had one-third.

Q. And when did you acquire that?

A. The day we opened up.

Q. Now did you invest any money for that one-third interest? A. No, sir.

Q. From whom did you receive the one-third interest?

A. Remmer put up about six thousand dollars, I believe, for it.

Q. From whom was that business purchased?

A. Max Silverman.

Q. And what was the nature of that business?

A. Cigars, magazines, liquor.

Q. Will you state whether or not there were any other sources of income to that business?

A. Pin ball machine, two of them. [979]

Q. And will you state whether or not any dice games were operated in connection with that business? A. No, sir.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. Such as 26? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you at any time receive a salary from that business? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Over what period and in what amounts?

A. My wife received ten dollars a day out of the business when I was in the service and when I came out I received $12.50 a day out of the business.

Q. Did you perform any services in connection with that business?

A. No, sir. Slater had charge of the books.

Q. Did you perform any other services?

A. I hired the clerks.

Q. Aside from hiring the clerks, did you perform any services? A. No, sir.

Q. And aside from ten dollars a day, which was paid to your wife while you were in the service, and $12.50 a day that you received after you returned, did you receive any other amounts from the Day-Night Cigar Store by way of profits or distribution of capital?

Mr. Avakian: Objected to as incompetent, irrelevant and [980] immaterial. The same question counsel keeps repeating. The profits of the partner are immaterial.

The Court: We have heard that before two or three times.

Mr. Avakian: It is a perfectly good objection. I would like to have the Court consider it.

The Court: The Court will overrule the objection.

MR. KYNE

resumed the witness stand on further

Direct Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

The Court: Yesterday, just near the end of the session, there was some discussion about the foundation, concerning 110 series and 114 series, of exhibits. At that time I vacated the order admitting 114A, etc., for the reason that it appeared from the discussion here that the same situation existed as to 114 as was found to exist as to 110, but I think the matter should remain as it was before that discussion until we have an opportunity to examine the record in regard to the 114 series, and the order vacating and setting aside the admission of that series 114 is vacated and they are restored as exhibits, with the right, if counsel desires, to move for a reconsideration or to hear argument on the question of foundation later. For the present that order will stand and they will stand as they were before they were stricken from the record.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Mr. Gillen: Let me understand your Honor. Yesterday we were concerned with 110 to 110F and as I recall the record, [982] your Honor did not admit those in evidence.

The Court: No, without any prejudice to showing additional matters of foundation.

Mr. Gillen: Now then we called your Honor's attention to a similar situation as existed as to 114, 114A and 114B.

The Court: And on that suggestion, I vacated the order which had been made earlier, admitting those exhibits.

Mr. Gillen: I didn't understand your Honor had admitted them.

Mr. Campbell: I think the matter was held in abeyance until we saw the record.

Mr. Gillen: I have that here if your Honor would care to see it.

The Court: For the time being the matter will stand as it is.

Mr. Gillen: As I understand, nothing more will be done with those exhibits until your Honor has an opportunity to look at the record.

The Court: Yes. Of course, any time counsel wishes to present argument on the matter, I will be glad to hear it, but the way the record is, 114 series remains in the record as exhibits admitted in evidence.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Mr. Gillen: But as I understand, they can not be referred to until your Honor has passed on that further. [983]

The Court: No, just leave them the way they are.

Mr. Gillen: Of course, you see what would happen. Counsel could go to work and get what they wanted out of them and our argument at a later time would be futile. We have the record, it is very short, at page 921 to 929.

Mr. Campbell: We would want to be heard on that matter as well.

The Court: We will let the matter stand the way it is at present.

Q. Mr. Kyne, referring back to plaintiff's Exhibit 115, check dated November 7, 1946, in amount of 65 thousand dollars, signed by you and which you testified you cashed and turned the proceeds over to Mr. Remmer, do you recall that?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Showing you the exhibit. Now will you state whether or not, if you know, that 65 thousand dollars was returned to Mr. Remmer prior to the end of 1946?

A. No, it wasn't. Returned to the Menlo.

Q. Yes, and your answer is no, it wasn't?

A. No, sir.

Q. Now at the conclusion of court yesterday we were going into the matter of the Day-Night Cigar Store. Now will you state again what your interest was in that operation, Mr. Kyne?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

A. One-third.

Q. And the owners of the other [984] two-thirds? A. Remmer and Lando.

Q. And I believe you stated that you had invested no money, is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. What was the purchase price for above portion of the business?

A. $5500 or six thousand.

Q. And will you state what, if anything, was received in return for that $5000 or six thousand dollars.

A. There was a liquor license and inventory.

Q. Do you recall the amount of the inventory?

A. No, I don't.

Q. Now were books and records set up, so far as the Day-Night Cigar Store was concerned?

A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Campbell: If the Court will indulge me, I desire to withdraw some of the records here.

The Court: You may.

Mr. Golden: To save time, your Honor, while Mr. Weaver is going through the records, may we object to the use or offer of the contents on the same grounds?

The Court: The record may show that objection and the same ruling of the court. Objection is overruled.

Mr. Golden: That objection includes a motion to suppress on the same grounds.

The Court: It may be so understood. [985]

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. Mr. Kyne, who put up the money for the acquisition of the inventory and the license?

A. Mr. Remmer.

Mr. Campbell: May this be marked for identification 117 for identification. I ask to have this volume marked 117A for identification, cash receipts and disbursements, and as Exhibit 117B for identification, volume headed "Cafe and Restaurant Business and Tax Record." These are all Day-Night Cigar Store. Containing pay roll, income and expenses.

Q. Now, Mr. Kyne, I show you plaintiff's Exhibit 117 for identification, a bound accounting volume with the words "Day-Night Cigar Store" appearing on the front, and ask you if you recognize that volume? A. No, I don't.

Q. Do you recognize the handwriting in the volume? A. It looks like Slater's writing.

Q. Who was Mr. Slater?

A. He was the bookkeeper.

Q. I show you plaintiff's Exhibit 117A for identification. On its first page appears notation "Day-Night Cigar Store, W. E. Kyne, Commencing March 1, 1943," and ask you if you recognize that volume?

A. These books were kept up in his office. I do not recognize the volume. It looks like his handwriting.

Q. Is your testimony the same as to government's Exhibit 117? [986] A. Yes, sir.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. I show you government's Exhibit 117B and ask you if you recognize it?

A. This looks like a book that Maundrell kept, 50 Mason.

Q. And are all of these books, if you know, with relation to the Day-Night Cigar Store?

Mr. Gillen: Objected as calling for conclusion. He says he doesn't recognize them.

The Court: I will sustain the objection.

Mr. Campbell: If the Court please, I am going to offer these in evidence, they having been produced pursuant to subpoena to produce books and records of the Day-Night Cigar Store, as enumerated therein.

Mr. Gillen: May it please the Court, we object to the offer of the 117 series in evidence. Mr. Campbell's statement is not correct. They were not produced in response to a subpoena, as your Honor is well aware, and your Honor is also familiar with our objection along those lines. We have the same objection as yesterday to the 110 series, no foundation laid, no opportunity to cross-examine the person who prepared the books to determine the accuracy of the contents of the books, and Mr. Kyne says that the books look familiar but he does not recognize them and he does not know them to be the books of the establishment in question.

Mr. Campbell: These are a portion of the records called [987] for in the subpoena issued by the government.

Mr. Golden: That does not authenticate them.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

The Court: Well——

Mr. Campbell: Which have been produced here by the defense.

The Court: We have your statement for that and disputed by counsel. We have no evidence in the record to that effect.

Mr. Campbell: The subpoena is in the record, if the Court please. The subpoena was read in the record and the Court subsequently made its order with respect——

The Court: Does the record show that these were books produced pursuant to that subpoena?

Mr. Campbell: These books were produced here in the courtroom as books that had been placed in the possession of the clerk, if the Court please. I extracted them at this time from the records in the clerk's possession.

Mr. Golden: We renew our offer to take evidence on these books and your Honor will recall the question the other day and I won't go into it at length until permitted to, but we offered to produce evidence showing the conditions surrounding the circumstances of these books and records. Now as your Honor well says, there is no evidence at this time.

The Court: If the books and these other records, 110, were brought into court here pursuant to the order [988] the Court made sometime ago, then they will be admitted in evidence.

Mr. Golden: That doesn't authenticate them. They still have no foundation.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

The Court: The only question I have in regard to them is whether or not the foundation was laid sufficiently in accordance with the terms of Section 1732. (Reads section.) If that is a record that was kept——

Mr. Golden: There is no showing as to how these were made, as the section says, "in the regular course of the business at the time of transactions or within a reasonable time thereafter." There is no foundation.

The Court: The point which was bothering me yesterday, was whether or not the record was one which was kept by the particular establishment——

Mr. Golden: I think if your Honor will have read the answers of the witness since Mr. Campbell offered these books, you will find nothing to indicate, outside of Mr. Campbell's statement, that these are books——

The Court: Are these among the records which were brought into court pursuant to the Court's order?

Mr. Golden: Yes.

The Court: Required the defendant to produce?

Mr. Golden: That's right.

The Court: Then that, it would seem to me, would meet [989] the situation. They will be admitted in evidence, 117, 117A, and 117B. Now does the same situation apply to 114?

Mr. Campbell: No, your Honor, those are in a different category. The 110 and 114 series are in a different category.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

The Court: Very well. 117 is admitted.

Mr. Golden: But your Honor says that the holding is that anything the government calls for is ipso facto authentic?

The Court: No, I don't go that far. I take the fact that they were produced by the defendant, pursuant to order, taking that with the testimony I heard from the witness.

Mr. Golden: Suppose, your Honor——

The Court (Interceding): They are going to stand admitted 117, 117A and 117B.

Mr. Campbell: I will ask to have marked for identification as government's Exhibit 118, a folder containing various documents, the folder bearing the writing, "Inventories."

Mr. Golden: Your Honor, may I suggest, to avoid the necessity of interruptions, that the basic objection and motion to suppress——

The Court: It might be well if you just say the same objection.

Mr. Golden: Yes, I am willing to do that, provided the record will be clear in what is meant.

The Court: Well, you can make it clear as we go along. [990]

Mr. Golden: I hope so.

Mr. Campbell: I think it will be agreed that this folder document was withdrawn from those deposited with the clerk by counsel, is that correct?

Mr. Golden: We will if you say so.

Mr. Gillen: We won't go that far.

Mr. Campbell: May this be marked 112A for identification. 112 is in evidence, consists of ledgers of 110 Eddy Street. It is book headed "Cafe and Restaurant Business Tax Record 110 Eddy Street." Now will it be agreed 118 for identification is a portion of the documents delivered to the clerk pursuant to the Court's order?

Mr. Golden: Your Honor, I feel we can not agree to that, for this reason—your Honor is apparently——

The Court (Interceding): If you just don't agree, that is all that is necessary.

Mr. Campbell: Well, I am placed in this position, if the Court please. We took these out of the box this morning and I——

The Court (Interceding): There is nothing the Court can do about it counsel won't agree.

Mr. Golden: If your Honor will hear me, I would be very glad to be heard on it.

The Court: All right.

Mr. Campbell: That will be outside the presence of the jury. [991]

The Court: Very well, we will have to excuse the jury.

By Mr. Campbell:

Mr. Campbell: At this time I wish to renew my offer in evidence of the 117 series.

The Court: Exhibits 117, 117A and 117B are admitted in evidence.

Mr. Campbell: Now in regard to 118 for identification, would it be agreed that this folder of papers was withdrawn from those delivered to the clerk?

Mr. Golden: We will agree, your Honor, that Mr. Campbell got it out of the box that was deposited with the clerk, but we can not agree as to what this is, because we do not know what evidence it is.

The Court: It was deposited with the clerk by whom?

Mr. Golden: By us.

The Court: Pursuant to that order?

Mr. Golden: Which we consider to be an illegal and [992] unconstitutional order.

The Court: Very well. It is admitted in evidence.

Mr. Golden: He hasn't even attempted to lay a foundation what it is.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

The Court: I will withdraw that.

Mr. Campbell: It has been stated, however, that this has been withdrawn from the records deposited with the clerk.

The Court: I understand.

Q. Mr. Kyne, I am going to show you government's Exhibit 118 for identification, which purports to contain various documents, is headed "Inventory" and names of various enterprises, and ask you to examine this. Do you know what record is? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you state whether or not, Mr. Kyne, based upon your participation and activity in various businesses which you have described, if it was customary and part of the business to take inventories? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Gillen: Just a moment——

Mr. Campbell: Just a moment, I am asking him if it was the custom, and may I finish my question.

The Court: The question goes out.

(Question read.)

Q. (Continuing): ——from time to time of the merchandise on hand?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as incompetent, irrelevant and [993] immaterial, whether it was customary to do anything. That does not establish whether this exhibit counsel holds in his hand, plaintiff's 118 for identification—or actually what might have been the custom in the various businesses can not in any way lay the foundation.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

The Court: Objection is overruled. Answer the question.

A. It was customary to take inventory for sales tax reports, floor tax.

Q. And when you refer to floor tax, to what particular type of merchandise do you refer?

A. Whiskey.

Q. That is alcoholic beverages?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And did you, yourself, participate in taking inventories? A. No, sir.

Q. Who did take the inventories?

A. The bookkeeper.

Q. Now during the year 1944 who took the inventories of the Day-Night Cigar Store?

A. Slater.

Q. Of the 110 Eddy? A. Slater.

Q. Of the 186 Club?

A. That was a card room.

Q. Was any inventory taken there? [994]

A. No, sir.

Q. During 1945 who took the inventories of those establishments? A. That I don't know.

Q. During 1946 who took the inventories?

A. That I don't know.

Q. Now calling your attention again to plaintiff's Exhibit 118 for identification, do you recognize any of the various handwritings which appear therein? A. Most of this is printed.

Q. Do you recognize the printing?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

A. No, I don't.

Q. Do you recognize the handwriting of that which is handwriting? A. No, I don't.

Q. Mr. Kyne, I am going to show you government's Exhibit 80, being partnership return of income for the year 1943 for the 110 Eddy Street, and ask you if that is your signature thereon?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. I call your attention to the face of that document and the figure given "Inventory at the end of year $22,510," do you observe that?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who, if any one, supplied you with that figure? A. Bob Slater. [995]

Q. I call your attention to government's exhibit——

Mr. Gillen: I move the answer be stricken so I may offer an objection that that would be hearsay.

The Court: I will consider the objection has been made and overruled.

Q. I call your attention to plaintiff's Exhibit 81, partnership return of income, 110 Eddy Street, for the year 1944, and ask you if that is your signature thereon? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I call your attention to the figure on the face of the return of "Inventory at end of year $28,131.45," and ask you who, if any one, provided you with that figure? A. Slater.

Mr. Gillen: Same objection, may it please the Court.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

The Court: It may be understood that you made the same objection and same ruling.

Q. I call your attention to plaintiff's Exhibit 84, partnership return of income of 1944 of the Day-Night Cigar Store, and ask you if that is your signature thereon? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I call your attention to the figure on the face of the return, "Inventory at end of year $24,747.27," and ask you who, if any one, provided you with that figure? A. Slater.

Mr. Gillen: Same objection. [996]

The Court: Same ruling. You may answer the question.

A. I answered the question. Slater.

The Court: Pause a moment before you answer so counsel may have an opportunity to make an objection.

Q. I show you government's Exhibit 86, partnership return of income Day-Night Cigar Store for the year 1946, and ask you if that is your signature?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. I call your attention to the figure appearing on the face of the return, "Inventory at end of year, $22,466.44," and ask you who, if any one, provided you with that figure?

A. I don't know who took the inventory that year.

Q. Do you recall the capacity of the person taking the inventory?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as calling for opinion and conclusion and hearsay and speculation on his part. He said he didn't know.

The Court: Objection sustained. Can you reframe that question?

Q. Was that figure of $22,466.44 given to you by some one? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And do you at this time recall who gave it to you? A. No, I don't.

Q. I believe you stated you did not personally take the inventory? [997] A. Yes, sir

Q. Now with regard to these returns which you signed and which I have shown you, do you have any reason to doubt the accuracy of the inventory taken and provided to you in those returns?

Mr. Gillen: Well, that is objected to——

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Campbell: At this time I will offer in evidence plaintiff's Exhibit 118 for identification.

Mr. Gillen: To which we offer the objection, may it please the court, no foundation has been laid.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Campbell: May I be heard later on that?

The Court: Yes, without prejudice to allow any further attempt to lay a foundation, if you desire to make it.

Q. Now, Mr. Kyne, as I recall your testimony yesterday, you stated that, with reference to the Day-Night Cigar Store, a daily amount was paid to your wife from that business while you were in the service? A. Yes, sir.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. From February, 1945, until approximately June of 1946, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that after you returned from the service you received a daily amount, I believe of $12.50 per day? [998] A. Yes.

Q. Now I believe also you stated that aside from those sums, you never received any monies from the Day-Night Cigar Store? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now will you state, Mr. Kyne, whether or not, for the year 1943, you returned all of the profit of the Day-Night Cigar Store as your individual profit in your income tax return?

A. I do not remember.

Mr. Campbell: I will ask to have marked for identification what purports to be a 1943 individual return of Wm. E. Kyne and 1943 amended return of Wm. E. Kyne, as one number.

The Clerk: 119.

Direct Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Now I will ask you, Mr. Kyne, if for the calendar year 1943 you have reported operation known as the Day-Night Cigar Store as your individual business, and you stated that you did not recall.

Mr. Gillen: I am going to offer the objection, may it please the Court, that Mr. Kyne's individual tax return for the [999] year 1943 is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial. This is a year prior to the starting point named in the indictment, to wit, 1944. We are concerned in this indictment with the individual tax of the defendant Remmer for 1944, 1945 and 1946. Mr. Kyne's return for the year 1943 would not be binding upon us, would be entirely incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial as to the issues of this case.

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question.

Mr. Campbell: I had not quite finished my question, if the Court please.

Q. At this time I show you government's Exhibit 119 for identification and ask you if that refreshes your recollection?

Mr. Gillen: We offer the objection it is an attempt to impeach his own witness.

The Court: Objection overruled.

A. That is my signature.

Q. Is the document which I have shown you the return which you filed, Mr. Kyne?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now does that refresh your recollection that you did report the operation of the Day-Night Cigar Store for the calendar year 1943 as your individual operation?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as impeaching his own witness. The witness has previously testified and exhibits were produced here to show that the Day-Night Cigar Store was a partnership. [1000]

The Court: Objection overruled. You may answer the question.

A. That may have been filed for this amount, but I don't remember if that is the amount of the whole operation.

Mr. Campbell: I am going to offer this in evidence as government's Exhibit 119.

Mr. Gillen: To which we offer an objection, may it please the Court, as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial. It is impeaching other exhibits that have been offered by the government heretofore, and third, it is an attempt to impeach his own witness. Your Honor will recall that the government offered exhibits to show that this Day-Night Cigar Store was a partnership and introduced the testimony of other witnesses to that effect. Now they can't blow hot and blow cold. They are bound by the evidence which they introduced themselves.

Mr. Campbell: Yes, your Honor, but we are now showing how it was reported to the government.

The Court: Objection overruled. The exhibit may be admitted, No. 119.

Mr. Campbell: I will read from this document, Exhibit 119. (Reads.) After deduction of expenses which are enumerated, including wages and depreciation and other expenses, a net profit of $8505.80.

Q. Now, Mr. Kyne, I believe you testified, have you not, that during the year 1943 the Day-Night Cigar Store was in fact [1001] a partnership, is that correct?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as repetition and asked and answered. Counsel repeatedly asked the same question. I have a score here of one instance five times. We will be here until the rest of next year if counsel——

The Court: I will sustain the objection.

Q. Did you at that time, or any time, receive any of the profit shown on that statement?

A. No.

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as asked and answered three times and outside of ten dollars given to his wife while he was in the army and $12.50 given to him when he returned, he received nothing from the Day-Night Cigar Store.

Mr. Campbell: I will withdraw the question.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Mr. Gillen: When I said "nothing," I should have said nothing by way of cash. It will be shown there was an equity in the business being built up.

Mr. Campbell: I didn't get that last statement.

The Court: It is not necessary. Proceed.

Q. Now, Mr. Kyne, with relation to the purchase of the 186 Club and the Day-Night Cigar Store, what, if anything, was received by way of physical assets for the 16 thousand dollars paid for the back room which you have described?

A. Thirteen card tables and chairs.

Q. Was anything else obtained? [1002]

A. Nothing.

Q. By way of equipment?

A. Some decks of cards and things like that.

Q. Chips, I presume? A. Chips.

Q. Do you at this time recall the value which was placed, or any separate value placed, upon that merchandise or equipment?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as calling for opinion and conclusion. Your Honor will recall that Mr. Silverman testified, said he placed some valuation and couldn't break it down how he placed the valuation on the property he sold.

Mr. Campbell: I am asking if the purchaser can place any value on it.

The Court: You may answer the question.

(Question read.)

A. I don't know.

Q. Now, Mr. Kyne, were you familiar with an operation known as the Transit Smoke Shop?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And did you have any interest in that enterprise? A. One-fourth.

Q. And do you recall when that was acquired?

A. I believe November '46.

Q. In that connection, did you handle the negotiations? A. No, sir. [1003]

Q. Who did handle the negotiations?

A. Gordon Partee.

Q. Prior to the operation of the Transit Smoke Shop had Gordon Partee been associated with you in any enterprise? A. No, sir.

Q. I am going to show you plaintiff's Exhibit 98, purporting to be agreement between Gordon Partee as party of the first part, and Elmer F. Remmer and William E. Kyne as parties of the second part, and ask you if you are familiar with that agreement? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is that your signature thereon?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you recognize the signature of Elmer Remmer? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And is that the signature of Elmer Remmer?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now I call your attention, Mr. Kyne, to the fact that this agreement recites that the parties of the second part have contributed the sum of $32,011.01. Did you, yourself, contribute any of that money? A. No, sir.

Q. Who did supply the 32 thousand dollars?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

A. Mr. Remmer.

Q. Did you, yourself, handle the paying out of that money? [1004] A. Yes, sir.

Q. And to whom did you pay it?

A. Gordon Partee.

Q. Was that full amount paid to him?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And were any additional amounts paid to him at that time, or to any one?

A. No, sir, 32 thousand was the whole.

Q. $32,011.01? A. Yes, sir.

Q. State whether or not Mr. Remmer handed you the money to pay him?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as leading and suggestive, may it please the Court.

Mr. Campbell: Very well, I will withdraw it.

Q. Where did you get the money, $32,000?

A. I believe I got it out of Box 48.

Q. At the Bank of America, Day and Night Branch? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And in what form was the money?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

The Court: I don't see the materiality. Objection will be sustained.

Mr. Campbell: I am going to have a check on the Bank of [1005] America Day and Night office marked as Exhibit 120 for identification.

Q. Mr. Kyne, I am going to show you government's Exhibit 120 for identification and ask you if that is your signature? A. Yes, sir.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. And will you state upon what bank account that check was drawn? A. Bank of America.

Q. And what particular account there?

A. The Menlo Club.

Q. That is the same bank account which you described in your testimony yesterday?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And I call your attention to the reverse side and ask you if that is your signature as endorser?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. I call your attention to the words appearing on the front of the check, "Loan for Transit," is that in your handwriting? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Mr. Kyne, was this check used in connection with the purchase of the Transit Smoke Shop?

A. Yes, sir. Paid back to Remmer.

Q. After you drew this check, did you cash it?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And obtained the cash thereon?

A. Yes, sir. [1006]

Q. And what did you do with the cash?

A. I used——

Mr. Gillen: This is only a document marked for identification. We believe he should not go into the contents. We do not care in this particular instance —we have no objection to its going into evidence.

The Court: The exhibit will be admitted in evidence.

Q. What did you do with the cash obtained?

A. I used it in any activity that came up; for instance, the pool for the B & R Smoke Shoppe.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E Kyne.)

Q. Did you use any of this money for your personal benefit?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as calling for opinion and conclusion, whether he used it for his personal benefit. Calls for self-serving statement.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Gillen: My thought was he could say what he used it for and it would be up to the jury to determine whose benefit it was used for.

The Court: Answer the question.

A. Will you repeat the question?

(Question read.)

A. No, sir.

Q. Now, Mr. Kyne, after the Transit Smoke Shop was acquired in November, 1946, was it in operation until the end of the year? [1007]

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you take any part in the management of the Transit Smoke Shop? A. No, sir.

Q. Or did you take any part in the conduct of the business? A. No, sir.

Q. Now as a result of the operations during 1946, was any money paid to you by way of profit?

A. I believe a thousand dollars, I am not sure.

Q. And what, if anything, did you do with the money that was paid to you?

A. Put it in box 48.

Q. That is box 48 of the Bank of America?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you personally use for yourself the

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as leading and suggestive, calling for opinion and conclusion and calling for self-serving statement.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Gillen: It is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial whether he personally used any profit that he got.

The Court: Objection overruled. You may answer the question.

A. No, sir. [1008]

Q. Was that money used for any purpose?

A. It could have been used in the pool room.

Q. If you know?

A. I say it could have been used in the pool room.

Q. What is your best recollection?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Now will you describe the nature of the operation at the Transit Smoke Shop?

A. It is cigar store and liquor store.

Q. Were any games operated there?

A. Dice games.

Q. And what type of dice games?

A. A game called 26.

Q. Will you state the nature of that game?

A. I believe it is played with five dice.

Q. And will you state in that operation whether that game was played for money or for merchandise? A. Money.

Q. I call your attention to plaintiff's Exhibit 92, the partnership return of income of the Transit Smoke Shop, bearing signature of Gordon A. Partee, and ask you if you have seen that return before? A. No, I have not.

Q. Do you have a recollection, Mr. Kyne, of the amount of profit arising during the operation in November and December of [1009] 1946 from dice games?

Mr. Gillen: Objected, assuming something not in evidence. Assuming there was a profit.

Q. ——profit, if any? A. No, I don't.

Q. I call your attention to the fact that on plaintiff's Exhibit 92, the return of the Transit Smoke Shop for the period November 1, 1946, to December 31, 1946, there appears under "Other Income," pins, etc., $1248.51; games, $5843.43, and I will ask you if that refreshes your recollection as to the amount of profit that came from that source?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as having been asked and answered. He said he didn't know.

Mr. Campbell: And I asked if that refreshed his recollection.

Mr. Gillen: He said he hadn't seen this return before.

Direct Examination

By Mr. Campbell:

Q. Mr. Kyne, with reference to the Day-Night Cigar Store, I direct your attention to plaintiff's Exhibit 117, book of accounts, under the heading "Capital" account, headed "William E. Kyne, Investment Account," are you familiar with that account? A. No, sir.

Q. Have you ever seen that before?

A. No, sir.

Q. It would appear from this account that a contribution was made in the name of William E. Kyne for equipment, $10,400, inventory $5600, or a total of 16 thousand dollars investment. Did you ever make any such investment? A. No, sir.

Q. State whether or not that is the money which you referred to as having been paid by Mr. Remmer? A. That I can't say.

Q. That is the same amount?

A. That room cost 16 thousand dollars, the B & R Smoke Shoppe, I think we put in about six thousand.

Mr. Gillen: Is that the B & R or the Day and Night?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

A. 186 and Day-Night.

Mr. Gillen: I thought Mr. Kyne said B & R.

Q. You mean to refer to the Day-Night Cigar Store? A. Yes, sir. [1011]

Q. Now, Mr. Kyne, immediately adjoining the B & R Smoke Shoppe and your offices at 50 Mason Street, will you state whether or not, in connection with the operations of the various enterprises there was rented a storeroom or warehouse?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And what was the location of that storehouse? A. 52 Mason.

Q. First let me ask you, what was the type of building which was rented there?

A. Probably an empty store. We used it as a warehouse for whiskey.

Q. And over what period of time, Mr. Kyne?

A. Until we gave up the place at 50 Mason.

Q. When was that? A. I don't remember.

Q. Was that after 1946? A. Yes.

Q. And when did you first acquire that location?

Mr. Gillen: After 1946?

Mr. Campbell: He said yes.

Mr. Gillen: When was that acquired, after 1946?

Mr. Campbell: No, he said he gave it up after 1946.

(Record read.)

Q. Were those premises known as 52 Mason Street? A. Yes, sir. [1012]

Q. When did you acquire the occupancy of those premises?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

A. I don't remember. It was after we were at 50 Mason. I don't remember the exact date.

Q. Can you state whether or not it was acquired prior to the year 1944? A. I wouldn't know.

Q. Can you state whether it was acquired prior to the time that you went into the army?

A. Before, yes.

Q. Now you say you used that for storing what?

A. Whiskey.

Q. And to what enterprise or enterprises did that whiskey belong?

A. I believe it was 110 Eddy and 186 Club, or rather Day-Night Cigar Store.

Q. And was any other whiskey stored there?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Now during the time that you were associated with Mr. Remmer, and prior to the end of 1946, did you participate in the handling of any deals for the purchase of whiskey? A. Yes.

Mr. Gillen: Just a moment——

The Court: The answer may be stricken.

Mr. Gillen: That has been asked and answered very early in this witness' testimony. He said the only participation [1013] he had was that he obtained a cashier's check in payment of some whiskey.

The Court: He may answer the question. The answer may stand. He answered it yes.

Q. And in that connection did you have anything to do with the purchase of some whiskey through the Sierra Wine & Liquor Company?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

A. No, sir.

Q. Did you, yourself, participate by way of investment or otherwise in any such purchase?

A. No, sir.

Q. In that connection I am going to show you plaintiff's exhibit 65, a check from the Sierra Wine & Liquor Company, payable to cash, $17,739.50, and the endorsement on the rear thereof, William Kyne, and ask you if that is your endorsement?

A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Gillen: Just a moment——

The Court: The answer may go out.

Mr. Gillen: I renew my objection, may it please the Court, this question has been asked and answered. It is an attempt to impeach his own witness. I call your Honor's attention to the fact that the record shows at the outset of this man's testimony he was asked if he had anything to do with the 21 Club, the San Diego Social Club or Cal-Neva and he said no. He was asked if he had anything to do with the purchase of any [1014] liquor and his testimony was that he purchased a cashier's check for payment of some whiskey.

The Court: Objection will be overruled. The witness has answered the question. Read the question.

(Question read.)

A. Yes, it is.

Q. I call your attention also to some figures appearing in green ink on the reverse of this check and ask you if those are your figures?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you recall when this came into your possession?

A. I believe originally was 34 thousand dollars payable to cash; in fact, I note on it reference to Haas Bros.

Q. I am referring now to this particular check. Do you recall when the particular check of the Sierra Wine & Liquor Company came into your possession?

A. It was after the check was issued for 34 thousand dollars.

Q. I call your attention to the fact that this is dated November 14, 1943, and is perforated paid 11-15-43.

Mr. Avakian: Pardon me, I believe counsel misread the perforation. I think it was 12.

Mr. Campbell: It couldn't be 12—it is dated 11——

Mr. Avakian: It was cashed in December.

Mr. Campbell: I see, yes, 12—what do you make out the balance—12-3-43 it appears. [1015]

Mr. Avakian: That is right, counsel, I believe.

Q. What, if anything, did you do with the cash which you secured from this check?

A. Put it in my Box 48.

Q. What, if you know, was subsequently done with that cash?

A. To be used as we needed it, whether the pool room, 186 Club or any other enterprise.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. Was any of the money used for your personal benefit? A. No, sir.

Mr. Gillen: I move the answer be stricken.

The Court: The answer may go out.

Mr. Gillen: I am going to object to that as calling for opinion and conclusion and self-serving statement. If he was a partner and it was used in the partnership enterprise, at least indirectly it would be used for his benefit.

The Court: Objection overruled and the answer may stand.

Q. Now you stated, Mr. Kyne, that the check which I have shown you was given to you subsequent to a check received from Haas Bros. Will you state whether or not some transaction was had with Haas Bros., relating to the purchase of whiskey? Answer that yes or no.

A. Will you repeat that, please?

(Question read.)

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you recall when that transaction was had? [1016] A. No, I don't.

Mr. Campbell: I will ask to have this marked for identification, containing photostatic copy of two documents.

The Clerk: One hundred and twenty-one.

Mr. Campbell: I ask also to have marked as part of 121 for identification a second series of photostats, all to be part of 121 for identification, 121-A.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. Now in connection with the transactions had with Haas Bros., do you recall whether or not a cashier's check was purchased?

A. I am quite sure it was.

Q. And by whom was it purchased?

A. Myself.

Q. Do you recall the amount of that cashier's check? A. Around 34 thousand.

Q. And will you state whether or not any of the funds used to purchase that cashier's check were your personal funds? A. No, sir.

Q. Who, if anyone, supplied you with the funds to purchase that check? A. Mr. Remmer.

Q. And in what form was it supplied to you?

A. In cash.

Q. Do you at this time recollect when that cashier's check was purchased?

A. No, I don't. [1017]

Q. I am going to show you Plaintiff's Exhibit 121 for identification and ask you if that refreshes your recollection as to the date upon which the cashier's check was purchased?

A. I purchased the check. I don't remember the date.

Q. I call your attention to the photostatic copy of the application for the check and ask you if that is your signature that appears thereon?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. I call your attention to the date of the application, September 8, 1943.

Mr. Gillen: Just a moment—may it please the Court, it is not in evidence, it should not be read from.

The Court: I think so.

Mr. Campbell: Very well. Do those photostats relate to the transaction which you have described?

A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Campbell: I am going to offer this in evidence, without, however, the top portion pencilled notes, which I will remove from the exhibit.

Mr. Gillen: We have no objection to its going in evidence. My objection previously was it was only offered for identification and the contents should not be read.

The Court: Yes. That is Exhibit 121 that is now being offered?

Mr. Campbell: Yes. [1018]

The Court: It will be admitted in evidence, 121.

Q. Showing you Government's Exhibit 121, you have identified your signature on the application?

A. Yes.

Q. And I will ask you whether or not, Mr. Kyne, the money paid to Haas Bros. was subsequently refunded by them?

A. Half of it was refunded to me.

Q. Mr. Kyne, I am going to show you Plaintiff's Exhibit 121-A for identification, photostatic copy of a check, and call your attention to the endorsement, "William Kyne," and ask you if that is your signature? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you recognize the handwriting of the signature "William Kyne"?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

A. No, sir; I can't say I do.

Q. Did you at any time authorize anyone to place your signature on the document which you hold in your hand?

A. Mr. Remmer has my power of attorney.

Q. Referring to this specific document, did you at any time authorize anyone specifically with respect to this document?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as having been asked and answered. He said he authorized nobody to use his signature except Mr. Remmer, who had his power of attorney.

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer this question.

Q. Do you want the question read? [1019]

A. Yes, sir.

(Question read.)

A. No, sir.

Q. Let me ask you this, Mr. Kyne, did you ever see this document before? A. No, sir.

The Court: I would like to have that cleared. Do you mean this document or the original of it?

Mr. Campbell: I shall reframe my question.

Q. Mr. Kyne, did you ever see the original document of which this is a photostat?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. When did you see it?

A. I believe in your office.

Q. The original document? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And was that the first time that you ever saw it? A. Yes, sir.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. Do you recall the date, Mr. Kyne?

A. No, I don't.

Q. Was that on or about May 3, 1950?

A. 1950?

Q. Yes. A. No, sir.

Q. What is your best recollection? [1020]

A. Period from '43 to '45.

Q. That you saw it in my office?

A. Oh, in your office—excuse me, I misunderstood your question.

Q. When was it that you first saw the original of the document, of which this is a photostatic copy? A. May, 1950.

Q. Prior to that time had you known any such document was in existence?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

The Court: Objection overruled. You may answer the question.

A. It had to be in existence for me to get the half back.

Mr. Campbell: I don't think that is responsive.

The Court: The answer may be stricken.

(Question read.)

The Court: Answer that yes or no.

A. Yes.

Q. And from whom had you learned that such a document was in existence?

A. I received the check for 17 thousand dollars

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

for half of the carload of whiskey, received that back.

Q. And from whom did you receive a check for 17 thousand dollars? [1021]

A. From Mr. Remmer.

Q. Do you recall upon what account that check was drawn? A. I believe from a Reno bank.

Q. Which bank?

A. I believe from a Reno bank.

Q. Do you recall what Reno bank?

A. No, I don't.

Q. And do you recall when it was that you received that amount? A. I don't remember.

Q. As I understand your testimony, was it at that time that you learned of the existence of the original document, of which 121-A is a photostatic copy, is that right?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to as asked and answered.

The Court: I think that has already been answered.

Q. During the years 1944 to 1946, other than the two boxes which you have testified about, to which Mr. Remmer had access, that is to say, Box 48 in the Day and Night Branch of the Bank of America, and the box under the name of Henry Clay in the Crocker First National Bank, do you know of other safety deposit boxes which Mr. Remmer maintained?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to—that was asked and answered yesterday.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question.

A. Concerning Remmer's personal box?

Q. Yes, other boxes to which he may have had access. Do you [1022] have any knowledge of that?

A. No, sir.

Q. Now other than the bank accounts to which you have testified, that is bank accounts upon which you were signator, of various enterprises, do you know of any bank accounts which Mr. Remmer maintained during the years 1944 to 1946, inclusive?

A. I believe he had a personal account in a bank in Tracy, California.

Q. Is that the Bank of America, do you know?

A. I believe it is.

Q. Where is Tracy, California, with relation to San Francisco?

A. It is right outside of Stockton, southeast.

Q. Approximately how many miles from San Francisco? A. About 90 miles.

Q. And what other bank accounts did you know of at that time? A. That is the only one.

Q. Now you have referred to a check given to you by Mr. Remmer on a Reno bank. Do you recall the signature on that check?

A. I believe it is Pete Barengo.

Q. Is the check that you are referring to that Mr. Remmer gave you Plaintiff's Exhibit 65?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And this is the check by which you say you received back half of the 34 thousand dollars, is that correct? [1023] A. Yes, sir.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. Do you know whether or not Mr. Remmer had an account in the Reno bank?

A. No, I don't.

Q. Mr. Kyne, were you acquainted with a man by the name of Badovinatz? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was his first name?

A. He was known as Curley, that is his nickname.

Q. Where did he reside?

A. I believe he lived most of the time in Stockton, Stockton or Fresno.

Q. Do you know whether or not, during the years 1944 to 1946, he borrowed money from Mr. Remmer? A. I do not know.

Q. You have no knowledge of that subject?

A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know whether or not during that period of time he was a patron of any of the businesses with which you were connected?

A. He played at the 186 Club.

Q. But you have no knowledge of any loans made to him? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever discuss with Mr. Remmer the matter of a loan to Mr. Badovinatz? [1024]

Mr. Gillen: May it please the Court, this is four times that this witness has been asked about any knowledge of this loan. He said no, he had no knowledge in each instance, and now he is asking for a discussion. If those questions are asked repeatedly, we are going to prolong this trial indefinitely.

BLEED THROUGH-- POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

The Court: My understanding is in response to questions he stated he did not know if this individual borrowed money from Mr. Remmer.

Mr. Campbell: That is correct. I am asking if he had a conversation.

The Court: Objection overruled.

A. No, sir.

Mr. Campbell: You may cross-examine.

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Q. Mr. Kyne, going back to your testimony, which began on December 14th, I understood you said that although you have known Mr. Remmer for some twenty years, that you had first engaged in business enterprises with him in the year 1941, is that correct? A. Correct.

Q. And you enumerated six different enterprises in which you were interested with Mr. Remmer, do you recall that? A. Yes. [1025]

Q. And those enterprises, as I recall, and the order in which they came into being, were first of all the B & R Smoke Shoppe, which came into being in 1941, if I recall, and after that the 110 Eddy Club, then the 186 Club and in conjunction with the 186 Club a separate enterprise known as the Day-Night Smoke Shop, and the Menlo Club, and finally the Transit Smoke Shop, is that correct, those were the six enterprises? A. Yes.

Q. I understood you to testify also that you never had anything to do in the way of any partnership interest or business interest in Cal-Neva Lodge at Lake Tahoe? A. That is correct.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. Nor did you have any interest with Mr. Remmer, or anybody else, in the 21 Club or the San Diego Social Club in El Cerrito, California?

A. Right.

Q. Now in the various enterprises that you have testified you had an interest in, the six I mentioned a moment ago, let me ask you whether or not, throughout the time that you were associated with Mr. Remmer, when those particular enterprises were operating, did Mr. Remmer spend any amount of time in and about any of those businesses, either managing or operating or overseeing or supervising? A. No, sir.

Mr. Campbell: May the answer be stricken and the question [1026] read?

The Court: Yes.

(Question read.)

The Court: The answer may stand.

Q. It is true, is it not, Mr. Kyne, that you were really the overseeing partner or the general manager of those various places? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And it is true Mr. Remmer left his interests and the welfare of his interests to you and to the various people who were employed under you, either as manager, bookkeepers or auditors or whoever they might have been? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now did Mr. Remmer, to your knowledge, ever participate in keeping books on any of those

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

establishments or preparing books on any of those establishments? A. No, sir.

Q. Now you stated in your direct examination that of the six enterprises in which you were interested with Mr. Remmer, with regard to the first five of them, namely, the B & R, 110 Eddy, 186 Club, Day-Night Club and the Menlo Club, you never actually invested any money out of your own pocket, is that correct? A. Correct.

Q. That you received your partnership share, or your interest as a member of the corporation, as in the case of the 186 Club, [1027] without actually having taken any money out of your pocket and putting it in, is that true? A. That's right.

Q. Now also you were asked whether or not you had actually taken any money out of any of those organizations by way of profit and put that into your pocket, that is, other than the salaries or allowances or drawing accounts that you have mentioned, do you recall that? A. Yes.

Q. And you stated that you had not?

A. That's right.

Q. Now with relation to the Transit Smoke Shop, you did, did you not, make an investment in the Transit Smoke Shop? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In other words, there was 32 thousand odd dollars paid for the Transit Smoke Shop and you at a subsequent time borrowed some money from the Menlo Club and charged it against your account, isn't that correct?

A. Sixteen thousand; yes, sir.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. $16,005 and I believe 50 cents, is that correct? A. That is right.

Q. And then you stated that that 16 thousand was placed by you in the general fund in Box 48 at the Day and Night Branch of the Bank of America? A. Yes, sir. [1028]

Q. And that money was then used for various partnerships wherever and whenever any part of it was needed, is that correct? A. Correct.

Q. And, of course, you were a member of all those partnerships, isn't that true?

A. Correct.

Q. Now the Menlo Club was purchased during the year 1945, while you were still in the United States Army, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And away, of course, from San Francisco and you were informed that you had an interest in the Menlo Club, isn't that true? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And the amount of that interest was what, Mr. Kyne? A. I believe it was 15 per cent.

Q. Now it is true, is it not, Mr. Kyne, that from the very inception of your associations with Mr. Remmer, it was agreed between you and Mr. Remmer that you would have an interest with him in any San Francisco enterprise that he undertook, is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. And you did during the period of time that you were together, between 1941, when the B & R Smoke Shoppe came into being, until the month of February of 1949, when you and Mr. [1029] Remmer no longer had enterprises together, with the exception that you still remain on two of the licenses, you did have an interest in every enterprise that Mr. Remmer was interested in, is that true?

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And when I say every enterprise, I mean every enterprise in San Francisco.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now you recall, do you not, Mr. Kyne, being shown an agreement that was prepared with regard to the purchase of the Menlo Club and with regard to there having been given to you a 15 per cent interest in the Menlo Club?

Mr. Campbell: I object to the characterization of the document. The document speaks for itself and it doesn't so provide.

Mr. Gillen: What is wrong with it?

The Court: Let us have the question.

(Question read.)

Mr. Campbell: The document, if the Court please, provides he is to have a 15 per cent interest in and when certain sums are received back by Mr. Remmer out of the business, and I submit that is the provision of the document. It does not provide for an immediate 15 per cent interest.

Mr. Gillen: I will accept the difference.

Mr. Campbell: I object to the [1030] characterization.

The Court: Let us have the question.

Mr. Gillen: I will change my mind—I will not accept it. The agreement says he does have an immediate 15 per cent interest.

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Mr. Campbell: I submit the document to the Court and the document must be read by its four corners.

Mr. Gillen: We will read the document.

Q. With the Court's permission, I will show you the original prosecution's Exhibit 113 in evidence, and a copy which is a little easier to read than the photostat. Mr. Kyne, will you look at Exhibit 113 and the typewritten two pages that are copies of 113 and tell us if you are familiar with that document as the agreement wherein you derived a 15 per cent interest in the Menlo Club?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as assuming a fact not in evidence. The document speaks for itself, if the Court please, and does not provide for the characterization as stated by counsel.

Mr. Gillen: May I ask through the Court wherein he believes I mischaracterize this, because I would like to read him a paragraph here. You read Paragraph 8 on Page 1.

Mr. Campbell: First, if I may, I will read Paragraph 6. (Reads.)

Mr. Gillen: Now will you read Paragraph 8?

Mr. Campbell: (Reads Paragraph 8 and [1031] 9.)

The Court: Objection will be sustained.

Mr. Gillen: Now let me get this straight, so I won't be accused by counsel of mischaracterization again. Will it be stipulated by counsel that this agreement conveys to Mr. Kyne immediately a 15 per cent interest in the profits of this enterprise in Paragraph 8?

Mr. Campbell: I suggest the document speaks for itself.

The Court: He evidently will not accept the stipulation.

Mr. Gillen: Well, then, it is going to take about three-quarters of an hour to make this clear.

Q. Now, Mr. Kyne, you recall this agreement, do you? A. Yes.

Q. And you recall by the terms of that agreement that you were to receive, as indicated in Paragraph 8 of the agreement—and if you wish to look at it while I am interrogating you on it I will give you the original document—Paragraph 8 on the first page, you will find the paragraph which states that effective as of May 1, 1945, that you are given an immediate 15 per cent working interest in and to the profits derived from the operation of the aforesaid social room, restaurant businesses and so on, situated as aforesaid.

Mr. Campbell: Objected to on the grounds that the document speaks for itself.

The Court: May I see the document a [1032] moment?

Mr. Gillen: Paragraph 8 on page 1.

Mr. Campbell: I think the entire document should be examined.

The Court: The objection is sustained.

Mr. Gillen: Sustained what, so I may be guided?

The Court: I have Paragraph 6 in mind, Paragraph 6 after the word "Witnesseth." Now keep that in mind.

Mr. Gillen: Paragraph 6 says——

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Gillen: Will your Honor look at Paragraph 8?

The Court: No, I am through. The objection is sustained.

Mr. Gillen: Your Honor won't look at the rest of the document?

The Court: I have looked at it and studied it and heard it read and that is my view. Objection sustained.

Mr. Gillen: Is it your Honor's view that this man did not get any immediate interest——

The Court: My ruling explains my view.

Mr. Gillen: No, it does not to me, your Honor, I do not understand.

The Court: There will be no further explanation.

Mr. Gillen: I don't think there was any question pending for your Honor to sustain before it. I think counsel wanted you to look at the document.

Mr. Campbell: I refer to the question. [1033]

(Last question read.)

The Court: We had in mind the similar question, in substance would be the objection that the question assumes matters not in evidence. Now I am sustaining the objection to that question on that ground.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Mr. Gillen: What portion isn't in evidence? I want to be guided so I will not get in trouble with the Court and counsel. I want to conduct my examination with the least amount of trouble.

The Court: Just proceed.

Q. Did you read Paragraph 8 of the agreement, Mr. Kyne? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And did you observe in Paragraph 8 of the agreement that you were to immediately have an interest of 15 per cent of all profits derived?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to on the grounds the document speaks for itself.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Gillen: I wanted to ask him if he read it and understood what he was getting.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Gillen: Are you going to keep the jury in the dark about what this agreement is?

The Court: Mr. Gillen, that implies the Court is trying to keep the jury in the dark about some evidence. [1034]

Mr. Gillen: I am not implying the Court is trying to keep the jury in the dark.

The Court: There is nothing before the Court. Let us proceed. Objection sustained.

Mr. Gillen: I am trying to cross-examine this man on a document shown to him and introduced during direct examination.

The Court: I sustained the objection. There is nothing before the Court now.

Q. What did you receive by way of interest in the Menlo Club under this agreement, Mr. Kyne?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to on the ground the agreement speaks for itself.

The Court: Sustained.

Q. Do you know what you received?

Mr. Campbell: Same objection.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Gillen: Certainly he is entitled to state if he knows what interest he had.

The Court: The Court has ruled.

Q. Did you have an interest in the Menlo Club?

Mr. Campbell: Same objection. The document conveys whatever interest there was and speaks for itself.

The Court: That objection is overruled. Answer the question.

Q. Did you have an interest in the Menlo [1035] Club? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What interest did you have in the Menlo Club in 1945?

Mr. Campbell: Same objection.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Campbell: It is an attempt to vary the terms of the document.

The Court: Objection overruled.

A. 15 per cent.

Q. What did you have 15 per cent in, the profits or in the actual tables or chairs?

Mr. Campbell: May I ask a question on voir dire?

The Court: Yes, you may.

The Court: I have given him permission to ask questions on voir dire.

Q. (By Mr. Campbell): Mr. Kyne, referring to the written contract, did that set forth the entire terms of your agreement with Mr. Remmer relative to the Menlo Club?

Mr. Gillen: Objected to—the document speaks for itself.

A. I have 15 per cent working interest in the Menlo Club.

Mr. Gillen: I ask that the question be read and the [1036] answer be stricken.

The Court: Read the question.

(Question read.)

Mr. Campbell: That may be answered yes or no.

Mr. Gillen: Just a minute—this is his witness.

The Court: There is nothing before the Court. He may answer yes or no.

Mr. Gillen: Objected to; he is cross-examining his own witness.

The Court: Objection is overruled. Read the question once more, please.

(Question read.)

The Court: Answer it yes or no.

A. Can I read the document again?

BLURRED COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

The Court: Yes, you may, and the objection is overruled, and I wish counsel would make a practice, when they object to a question to state all their grounds in one objection, so we don't have constant rulings on all the grounds known to Mr. Wigmore for making objections.

Mr. Gillen: There is nothing wrong to stating our grounds.

The Court: The Court has made a request and we desire to have that done.

Mr. Gillen: I object on the ground Mr. Campbell is making [1037] speeches.

The Court: Mr. Gillen, let's get along now. Now we will have the question read to the witness.

(Question read.)

A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Campbell: That is the only question I have.

The Court: Now you may proceed, Mr. Gillen.

Mr. Gillen: May I have the answer of this witness prior to the interruption on voir dire?

(Question read.)

Mr. Campbell: I now object to that question on the grounds the document speaks for itself.

The Court: Objection sustained. The answer may go out.

Q. You stated in answer to question by counsel that you had 15 per cent working interest in the profits; is that a fact?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as assuming a fact not in evidence.

Q. What did you state to counsel was your interest?

Mr. Campbell: The record is the best evidence.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Gillen: I will have the record read, his whole testimony regarding the Menlo Club.

The Court: We won't stop to do that now.

Mr. Gillen: Then I will have to stop my [1038] examination. If he says the record is the best evidence, I can't go on until we get that point cleared up.

The Court: What point do you want cleared up?

Mr. Gillen: I want what interest Mr. Kyne had in the Menlo Club.

The Court: I am not going to have the whole record read.

Mr. Gillen: I could clear it up in a couple of questions. Counsel said the record was the best evidence.

The Court: We will excuse the jury and comply with your request. You want the record read, do you?

Mr. Gillen: I don't; counsel wants the record read.

Mr. Campbell: No, I do not.

Mr. Gillen: He says the record is the best evidence.

The Court: So you don't want the record read now? If you do, we will send the jury out.

Mr. Gillen: No, I can get at it in another way.

Q. Mr. Kyne, did you state to counsel you had

Mr. Campbell: Objected to; the record is the best evidence.

Mr. Gillen: I will withdraw the question.

Q. Did you have 15 per cent working interest in the Menlo Club in 1945?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to; the contract speaks for itself.

Mr. Gillen: This is cross-examination. [1039]

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Gillen: In cross-examination I can ask him the same question twice.

The Court: I sustained the objection.

Q. Do you know what your interest was in the Menlo Club?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to on the same ground.

The Court: Sustained.

Q. Did you have any interest in the Menlo Club?

Mr. Campbell: Same objection.

The Court: Sustained.

Q. Look at this agreement and tell me what was meant by working interest in the amount of 15 per cent?

Mr. Campbell: Same objection, may it please the Court.

The Court: Objection sustained. Now I am going to respectfully suggest that you do not pursue this line any further.

Mr. Gillen: This line of what?

The Court: Pursuing this same subject that has been covered by my rulings, sustaining objections to your questions. I think when the Court has ruled on a subject, then it is no longer proper to persist with questions along the same line.

Mr. Gillen: May it please the Court, this man was examined specifically——

The Court: I just made a suggestion. [1040]

Mr. Gillen: I respectfully suggest I have a right to pursue——

The Court: You may proceed.

Mr. Gillen: Could we be heard on this matter in the absence of the jury?

The Court: No, there is nothing before the Court.

Mr. Gillen: Your Honor, it is cross-examination of the witness on matters gone into on direct.

The Court: I have sustained the objection, and if you do like the rulings, you can take it on appeal. That is my ruling.

Mr. Gillen: I take exception to your Honor's remarks, that there would be a necessity for appeal in this case.

The Court: Very well. Go ahead.

Mr. Gillen: I demand at this time, for the record, that we be permitted, out of the presence of the jury, to be heard on our right to cross-examine Mr. Kyne with regard to his interests, both in the Menlo Club and any other enterprise in which he was interested with the defendant Remmer.

The Court: The request will be denied.

MR. KYNE

resumes the witness stand on further

Cross-Examination

By Mr. Gillen:

Mr. Gillen: It is my understanding that we are permitted to question Mr. Kyne concerning his agreement with the Menlo Club.

The Court: Yes, particularly in regard to that paragraph 8.

Mr. Gillen: Yes, your Honor.

Q. Now, Mr. Kyne, with the Court's permission, I will hand you the prosecution's Exhibit 113, which is the agreement in which is provided that you are given a 15 per cent working interest in the profits of the Menlo Club, and when the full purchase price of the Menlo Club, to wit, $175,000, has been recovered out of the profits and returned to the initial investor, [1042] Mr. Remmer, that you are to receive then a 15 per cent interest in the physical assets of the Menlo Club. Do you have that paragraph in mind? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, Mr. Kyne, did you participate in 15 per cent of the profits of the Menlo Club, commencing as of May 1, 1945, the date the Menlo Club was purchased, throughout the period of time that you were associated with the Menlo Club?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you stated that you did not draw any of the profits that were credited to you; is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What happened to those profits that were credited to you; where did they go?

A. Credited to my account on the books of the Menlo Club.

Q. And that was credited to your account toward building up your equity in the physical assets of the Menlo Club; is that correct? A. Yes.

Mr. Campbell: We object to the last question and move the answer be stricken.

The Court: It may go out.

Mr. Campbell: On the ground that would vary the terms of the agreement.

The Court: Let me have the question. [1043]

(Question read.)

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

The Court: The answer may stand.

Q. Now, Mr. Kyne, you were questioned by Mr. Campbell regarding the purchase price of the Menlo Club as it is set forth in this agreement. Do you recall that you were questioned on the agreement, the purchase price? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And do you recall that the agreement, which is in your hands there, set forth that the purchase price of the businesses referred to as the Menlo Club at 30-32 Turk Street and 24 Turk Street, 18 Turk Street, were purchased for a total of 175 thousand dollars? Do you recall that?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you were asked by Mr. Campbell if that 175 thousand dollars had been paid by anyone and you said it had been paid by Mr. Remmer.

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as stating a fact not in the record. Mr. Kyne testified he was in the army when that thing was purchased and I think counsel——

Mr. Gillen: We will show it to you in the record.

Mr. Campbell: Yes, I would like to see it.

The Court: I have a note here—I don't know whether it would be any use—just before that Exhibit 113 was offered, the Menlo Club acquired in '45 while he was away; Mr. Remmer told him he had an interest after [1044] his return. There was a written agreement.

Mr. Gillen: That is correct, your Honor, and there is some other testimony regarding the amount of money paid.

BLEED THROUGH– POOR COPY

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Mr. Campbell: There is this testimony beginning at the top of page 926 as follows: (Reads).

Mr. Gillen: Of course, that was for 15 per cent interest in the physical assets of the property, not as to profits.

Mr. Campbell: I object to that.

The Court: Let us have the question.

(Question read.)

Mr. Campbell: I know of no such testimony in the record.

Mr. Gillen: I may be wrong.

The Court: I do not recollect that myself.

Mr. Gillen: I can reframe my question, in the interest of time.

Q. Mr. Kyne, you understood, did you not, that retroactive as of May 1, 1945, you were participating in a 15 per cent interest in the profits that came out of the Menlo Club?

Mr. Campbell: I object to the question in that form.

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you understood, did you not, that you were to leave your 15 per cent interest in the profits toward building up on the books your equity toward the ultimate equivalent of 15 per cent of the physical assets of all the businesses comprising the Menlo Club? [1045]

Mr. Campbell: Objected, the document speaks for itself. Further, I suggest that the form of the question is improper, in that the witness should be permitted to state his understanding rather than counsel stating the understanding to him, and in that regard it is not within the scope of direct examination.

Mr. Gillen: This is cross-examination, your Honor.

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer the question.

Q. Do you have the question in mind?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you learn, from your own knowledge, how or in what manner the Menlo Club was purchased; that is, was it all paid for at once, or notes given, or how the purchase was made?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to as calling for hearsay, the witness having testified he was in the service.

The Court: He can state whether or not he knows. He can answer that yes or no.

A. No, I don't know.

Q. Do you know anything about any notes that were given for the Menlo Club? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know, of your own knowledge, whether or not the 175 thousand dollars that was the purchase price for the Menlo Club had ever been fully paid? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know of your own knowledge whether or not the Menlo [1046] Club had, by way of profits, returned to Mr. Remmer the amount of his investment? A. No, sir.

(Testimony of William E. Kyne.)

Q. Do you know, when the Menlo Club closed, what the books reflected as to the interest that you had acquired by way of participating to the extent of 15 per cent in the profits of the Menlo Club?

Mr. Campbell: Objected to on the grounds the books are the best evidence.

The Court: That objection may be good.

Mr. Gillen: I think that objection is good.
